STRANGER THAN FICTION

Manager Abe Borisky of the St. Elmo Picture theatre at Chattanooga, Tenn., had frequent complaints about queer squeaking noises that so interfered with the reception that they would never patronize the show again. The noises continued with as much disgust to the manager as to the patrons, so he put on a show at which no persons except those in the employ of the theatre were to attend. He thought by that means, the trouble could be located and it was. In the loft just above the curtain, a nest of young robins was located. The little fellows would begin to "cheep, cheep," as soon as the noise and music began on the films. But how to remove the trouble was another problem, so Abe made an announcement the next night and assured his patrons that as soon as the feathered chirpers were strong enough to fly, the trouble would cease and would never be repeated. But, he added, "I haven't the heart to take them out now, as they would die. So they remained and now that the jinx has disappeared, the reception is uninterrupted."

Mrs. Linda Hazzard of Seattle has been illegally practicing medicine for some time past, and finally found her way to jail. Her method of treatment was by the use of herbs made into juices. She gave it to her patients with a few pink pills which she made herself out of ordinary flour dough, dyed with Easter egg coloring. One of her patients, on whose testimony she was arrested, swore that her system was slow starvation, and that she lost 25 pounds in three weeks. Her charges at the 'starvation' school were as high as $30 per week. She'd tell her patients that medicines and food were enemies of the human system - but starvation was the only method of curing human ills.

Joseph Marsh, Bedford, Mass., had but one friend—a parrot, but he was true even unto death. Joe was a foe to society, keeping himself secluded from all visitors. The parrot would sit at the table and partake of the fare as if he were a human being. When his master would read, the parrot would sit on his shoulder. Two weeks ago, Joe died. Seeing no signs of life about the place, the officers gained admittance only by breaking in the door. They found Joe slumped in his chair and according to physicians, he had been dead about a week. On his shoulder sat the parrot, which furiously tried to fight the officers away from his dead friend. Without food or water, the pet had kept its lonely vigil undismayed by hunger and thirst. What an example for selfish humanity to fellow! Fortitude, patience, love. You may read this story and forget it—but you shouldn't.

Corona News

Mrs. R. A. Chase, wife of the choir leader, came in yesterday from Tucuman, accompanied by her daughter Mrs. Chas. Townsend, who will visit for a short period with her parents. We welcome them to Carrizozo.

What the Politicians Should Know

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

One of the most interesting developments of recent weeks has been the sudden alarm of many men in public office over various political and economic theories which happened to originate elsewhere than in legislative halls.

Openly the politicians are expressing amazement at many of these new plans and projects, and wondering aloud just where and how they were inspired.

But the politicians should be the last of men to ask such questions. For years many of them, in the quest of popular support, have been advocating projects not only startling and unusual, but frequently at odds with our American theories of government.

For years many of them have been preaching, for example, the exact opposite of Grover Cleveland's famous dictum that it is the business of the people to support the government—not of the government to support the people.

But whatever the temporary influence of such philosophies on scattered groups of citizens, they seem to be exerting little effect on the great productive body of American workers and farmers.

Recognizing a responsibility to the handicapped and unfortunate, this pre-dominant group, which represents the real strength and spirit of America, still believes with Theodore Roosevelt that America expects every citizen to be willing, so far as he is able, to pull his own weight.

And so long as that typically American spirit of courage and self-reliance prevails, neither the politicians nor the people need fear the wildest theories.

Kelvinator Leads

To aid prospects in deciding which make of electric refrigerator to buy, Gunther C. Kroggel, manager of the New Mexico Mechanical Equipment Co., local Kelvinator dealer, is offering free a new booklet entitled "How to Select an Electric Refrigerator," according to an announcement made today by Mr. Kroggel, head of the local store.

It gives the facts about every fundamental point which prospective buyers of electric refrigerators should consider before making the purchase. The booklet was prepared and is copyrighted by the world-famous authoritative research organization, Ross Roy Service, Inc., of Detroit, Mr. Kroggel said.

Kelvinator dealers throughout the country are making this booklet available to the public in an earnest effort to be of service in making the facts about refrigerator buying common knowledge.

Everyone interested in the purchase of an electric refrigerator is cordially invited to visit the N. M. Mechanical Equip't Co.'s showroom, receive a free copy without any obligation, of this booklet on—How to Select an Electrical Refrigerator.

Mrs. Jack Payne and son Jack left last week for South Dakota, where they will make their future home.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Greer, son Glenn and Mrs. T. M. DuBois and Earl Buchanan of Corona were El Paso visitors last week-end.

Mrs. Clesta Prior, who has been ill recently, is now improving.

Ted Purcay is attending a Mechanical School in Los Angeles.

Diamond Dust

By Joe Chavez

	Won	Lost
Cobras	2	1

Diamond Dust, never having smoked 'Tobacco a la Havana' in all of his life, chewed a cigar to shreds at the local park last Sunday afternoon.

HOW COME? Well, just stop, look and listen—

Tino Lopez of the Cobras started a rally by rolling away for four bags. Then—Look Out! I could have done 'NO' better myself in placing a line-up. Andy Lueras, (alias) cacaguete, hijo, et cetera—was on the receiving end, with Kermit Shaw pitching a brand of ball that was hard to beat. In addition to all this 'rumblin', the boy contributed with one home marker, socking one of the Bingham pitcher's offerings for a home-run.

A man wearing a big black hat from out 'SorrOCO' way, hit the ball right on the nose and made us all sit back on our haunches. Tony Pera almost stole the show; but 'Chino,' long 'eye' on the I, playing the hot corner, delivered so beautifully towards the catcher's mit, that even Garrison, the hero of the tournament of 1935, was caught at the plate to end the game.

Marquez played the keystone bag 'in great fashion; likewise did St. John and A. Lopez, who took turns on the initial sack.

We paid no attention to the official score, for when our boys began to connect with the horsehide (excuse the phrase) h— couldn't stop them, and they walked away with the premium.

The Cobras resume hostilities with the Indians at Mesalero next Sunday and vow that they will return home unscathed.

Mrs. Benola Kirk Snell

Was born in Alabama Oct. 11, 1870, and lived there until she was 20 years of age. She moved to Ragan, Texas, where she married J. H. Snell 1892. To this union were born ten children, namely: Tom of Dumas, Texas; Walter, Nogal; Ernest, Carrizozo; Bernard, Casper, Wyo.; Mrs. Alice May, Nogal; Miss Lizzie Mae Snell, Stralford, Texas; Mrs. Kirk Dickey, Amarillo; Mrs. Olive Porter, Roswell; Mrs. Bernice Jones, Dumas, Texas. One baby died in infancy.

Mrs. Snell passed away Monday night and the funeral was held at Angus Wednesday with Rev. Bell officiating. Surviving relatives have the sympathy of this community.

The family wishes to thank the physicians and hospital attendants for their many kindnesses and considerations.

—Rev. J. A. Bell.

Miss Ella Bell, chief clerk of the Franchise Tax State Department and Mrs. Martha Howard LaBill of the Bureau of Revenue Department at Santa Fe, came over last Friday, remaining over and returning to Santa Fe Tuesday.

Hugh Bradley Says

Ball Player Feuds Are Always Sure to Be "Gate" Tonic

AFTER too many seasons overburdened with brotherly love, I have been noting recent dolings of the Dodgers and Giants with considerable glee.

Undoubtedly such knowledge added greatly to Ty Cobb's stature as a ball player. So far as I know he never spiked an opponent intentionally and, off the field, he was a genial citizen.

It is just as true that John Joseph McGraw would never have been the greatest manager of all time if he had acted like a Girl Scout.

Perhaps this did not serve any useful purpose in deciding events upon the field, but I am not so sure about it.

Burlough Grimes is another who might be placed high up on the list of haters of opposing uniforms.

The era already had arrived when the game was to overflow with sweetness and light. So numerous folks did their middlemost best to arrange a peace treaty.

Tinker and Evers Rose on Mutual Hate

Most other long term misunderstandings are ended as quickly when old-time feuds are united in a mutual cause. Yet once there was a feud which must confuse the theorists who babble that all the best in sports life is destroyed by battling.

That was when Joe Tinker was at shortstop and Johnny Evers was at second base for the Cubs. After clanging at one another as they rolled over the clubhouse floor one day, they decided that frequent "hat rights" could never settle the issue between them.

By all the copybook maxims this alien hatred should have shattered them as well as the team. Instead, Tinker outplayed himself each day so that he might excel Evers.

In conclusion I will leave some peace in the direction of a guy who occasionally may have been saluted with bricks in this space.

NOT in the box score. Tom Yawkey and P. K. Wrigley, the youthful baseball magnates, are being urged to back a new pro football league.

The colors of John Hay Whitney will be seen on metropolitan tracks for the first time this year with Slinging Wood likely to be the racing commissioner's heat bet.

Adolfo Luque likes Ken Maynard movies so much that he would almost as soon see one as pitch a no-hit game.

If Joe Louis ever tours Europe it will be strictly as a paying customer. He has been offered big enough dough to perform on the continent but, having burned their fingers with last winter's Cuban fiasco, his managers will take no more chances.

Harry Danning of the Giants will bet that he can finish one-two-three in a foot race with all the catchers in Big-time baseball.

Recalling Early Trials of Francis Ouimet

In 1910, 1911, 1912 a lean Massachusetts youngster, who once had been a caddy tried his luck in the National Amateur Golf championships.

Jerome D. Travers, rated an one of the steepest golfers of all time and as a man who rose to the heights under fire, played the Sandwich course in 74 on his last round before the start of the British amateur championship.

American league players are complaining that their circuit is all out of balance. They claim that the league should have loaned money to the St. Louis Browns so that they could have taken advantage of some of the Philadelphia offerings.

Young Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt is so boxing conscious that he has named one of his two-year-olds Brown Bomber.

Brief description of the forlorn Athletes: "They look like money in the bank". Horsemen are complaining about the amount of attention given to the "Electric Eye" at Jamaica.

Although his home towners arranged a "Berkeley Hell Day" when he visited Austin with the pro tennis troupe the Texas net star has a secret sorrow.

The average dog racing kennel contains from twelve to fourteen dogs. In the four states where racing is legal five kennels must be represented in each event.

Naturally I do not advocate drastic measures yet it is all too true that there have been far too frequent moments when the silence of the ball parks has been broken only by the sighs of fans who felt that they had spent their money in vain.

HOW ARE YOU TODAY

DR. JAMES W. BARTON Talks About

Preserving the Figure YOU may have passed early youth, are approaching or have reached middle age. You are in good health but find you are a little sluggish or lazy, with abdomen beginning to sag, and the whole body attaining a "middle-age spread."

As you remember your youthful figure, and how you enjoyed games or dancing you realize that it is the over-eating and the underexercising that are causing the change in your figure.

Accordingly, you make a firm resolve to take vigorous exercise at once so as to get back the elasticity and figure of your youth as soon as possible.

Now there isn't any reason why you can't get back your figure and to some extent the elasticity of former years if you are willing to use common sense methods. These methods are simply to remember that during the years since your youth your body has been gradually "softening"—heart and muscles—and any attempt to harden yourself up in a short time will not only discourage you from further attempts to regain figure and elasticity, but may cause damage lasting for months or even permanently.

Col. George A. Skinner, M. D., Omaha, in Clinical Medicine and Surgery, says: "The human body has an elastic limit that is truly wonderful, and the amount of punishment it will take and still do its work well, is much beyond that of any mechanical device of man."

In exercise the first thought is regularity; ten, fifteen or twenty minutes daily will give gradual development, whereas three hours Saturday or Sunday afternoon may simply leave the muscles sore for two or three days afterwards, and the effect upon "the" muscle of the body—the heart—may be more harmful than helpful.

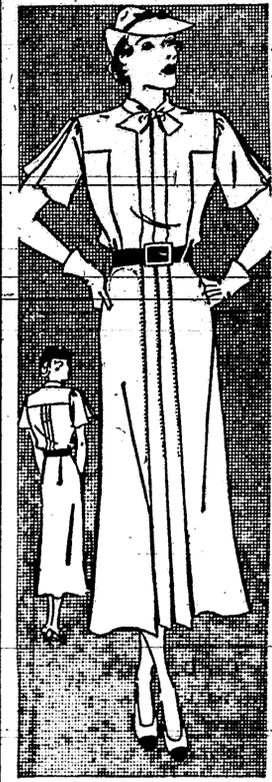

Any physical director (athletic club or Y. M. C. A.) can show you in five minutes the correct way in which to do about three abdominal exercises such as bending from side to side with the knees straight, lying on the back and raising legs (with knees straight) to the perpendicular position, or bending over and touching toes with knees straight.

The other exercise needed is walking. This will keep the heart muscle in shape by asking it to send blood regularly and in a rhythmic manner to the farthest point in the body. Using the huge muscles in the legs to carry the body forward means that much blood will be needed and in purifying it before it is used the lungs will get increased work and development.

Of course the day golf is played the walk can be omitted. Gas Pains in Abdomen While almost everybody gets a pain in the stomach or intestines occasionally there are many who suffer a great part of the time with what is called flatulence or "gas pains."

The treatment of gas pains in the stomach or intestine depends upon the cause. The food should be well-chewed, and if the teeth are not in good condition or some of the chewing teeth are missing, these conditions must be corrected at once.

New Slit Sleeves and Youthful Bodice Go With This Spectator Sports Frock

Pattern No. 1848-B

Some are chosen and some are not, as you remember. And this is one of the "summer" chosen! A pretty bad pun, but this perfectly stunning spectator sports frock makes up for it.

It is surprisingly easy to make, and with the aid of the step-by-step chart, illustrating the cut and fit of the new slit sleeves and the way to pleat and attach-up the youthful bodice, you will immediately realize how automatically it goes together.

The bodice has a lot of blouse to it, even makes you suspect that it's held underneath by an elastic band, and the side pleats of the skirt harmonize beautifully with the action pleats in the back blouse.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1808-B is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22 and 24. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 (34) requires 4 1/2 yards of 30" material. Send fifteen cents for the pattern.

The Barbara Bell Pattern Book featuring spring designs is ready. Send fifteen cents today for your copy.

Floyd Gibbons ADVENTURERS' CLUB

Hello, Everybody!

"The Turn of a Wheel"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

WHATEVER you might say about gambling, it takes nerve to do it. The best of the professional card sharks are men who can keep a poker face and never bat an eye when they're betting their last nickel. Yes, it takes plenty of nerve to gamble with your money—but it takes a doggone sight more courage to gamble with your life.

I've got a yarn here from Adventurer William Joseph Brinkley, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and unless I'm no good at all at reading between the lines of a story, Bill Brinkley is one of those lads who can keep a cool head and figure out the odds even at moments when his life is in the greatest of peril.

If Bill hadn't had that faculty he wouldn't be here collecting his ten and joining the Adventurers' club today. For back in 1915 fate tested out those iron nerves of his—and it was one of the most rigorous tests fate ever dished out to a guy, at that.

Iron nerve or no iron nerve, Bill admits he was pretty scared when it happened. Maybe "pretty scared" isn't quite the expression for it either. When it was all over Bill's nerves felt more like putty than iron.

Bill Had a Prosaic Job Checking Freight Cars.

It was down in the town of Atlanta, Ga., where he was working as an interchange clerk for the Central of Georgia railroad. Bill was just a young lad then, and his job consisted of checking up on cars that were to be switched from one line to another. It was during the June peach season and there was a lot of traffic on the line. The railroad yard was full of box cars and it kept both Bill and his partner, Willie Baker, on the jump most of the time.

The first job in Bill's routine was to get the seal numbers on the cars as soon as a train entered the yard. Bill would get them on one side while his partner, Willie, got them on the other. They were supposed to wait for those trains at the break-up track, but sometimes they would walk out to meet them and ride in on the first car. That's what they were doing when Old Lady Adventure swooped down and got Bill in her clutches.

They had walked out to meet the "Special" and the Special was late that night, so, without realizing it, they walked a little farther than they had intended. They met it quite a ways out of the yard when it was going at a pretty fast clip. Willie caught the first car, but Bill let three or four go by before he could make up his mind to jump for it. He caught the fifth car, and since he was supposed to check the other side of the train, he started to climb over the top.

But Falling Under a Train Isn't So Prosaic!

But Old Lady Adventure didn't ever intend that Bill should get to the other side of that train. As he reached for the top grab-iron with his right hand the one he was holding with his left broke away from the side of the car. His body swung out from the side of the car and started to fall.

As Bill fell he clutched at the top grab iron. He caught it, but his weight broke the hold. His body twisted—swung around between the cars. Then, as he dropped, his left leg hit the draw head. He swung head downward and fell—under the train.

"I lay flat on my back," says Bill, "and watched the bottoms of the cars whiz by only a few inches from my face. The wheels ground past only a few inches from my body on either side. I lay for a moment utterly unable to move. Then my mind began to race.

Underslung Hopper-Bottom Cars Meant Certain Death.

"In a flash I had figured everything out. I had been lucky enough to land between the tracks—not on them. As long as I did not move I was perfectly safe unless—and there was the horrible possibility—unless there was a hopper-bottomed coal car in that train. The hoppers of those cars are only a few inches from the ties. If one of them hit me I would be mangled—mashed to a pulp—spread along a half mile of track."

And there was a darned good possibility that not one but several of these hopper-bottomed cars were in the train. In long trains like the one Bill was under it was the custom to put short, empty coal cars between the refrigerator cars to cut down the side sway. Bill knew that. His mind was clicking on all four in his moment of peril—taking in every consideration.

There was just one way out—a perilous way—but something told Bill it was a better risk than waiting for one of those murderous hopper bottoms. He began watching the wheels as they clicked by—gauging their speed and their distance.

Courage Plus Quick Thinking Saved Bill's Life.

Where two cars were coupled together the wheels were only about four feet apart, but between two wheels on the same car there was a space of forty feet. If he could throw his body over the rail as the front wheel passed, and get across before the rear wheel hit him—he'd be safe.

There was no time to lose, but Bill gauged those moving wheels carefully. He nerved himself and tensed every muscle. Then, as a front wheel flashed by, he started to roll.

He hit the rail and started to go over. Would he get across in time? Bill didn't know because his eyes were shut. He didn't dare look at the thing he was doing. Then, all at once, he felt himself go over the top of the rail. He opened his eyes and saw clear sky overhead. He had made it!

"Then," says Bill, "came the reaction. I began trembling all over and got sick as a dog. And to this day the mere sight of a hopper-bottom coal car can give me a bad case of chills."

Primary Cause of Decay of Teeth Still Unknown

Teeth may decay in spite of a completely adequate diet. It is shown by experiments at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University. Tests lasting three years contradict the theory, widely held in both scientific and lay circles, that tooth decay is caused by a dietary deficiency.

"The practical significance of this finding is that, while we know it is possible to reduce the amount of caries or dental decay by improving the diet, we now know that we cannot prevent decay completely by this last method," Dr. Theodor Rosebury, assistant professor of bacteriology, who conducted the research, writes in Scientific American Magazine. "The reason for this is that a deficient diet is a modifying influence rather than the primary cause of caries, which still remains virtually unknown."

Doctor Rosebury fed five generations of rats "a fully adequate diet." Over a period of three years, the rats continually developed caries. "This result," he explained, "checks with human experience to the extent that we know the disease occurs in human beings healthy in all other respects and giving evidence of adequate nutrition. We can produce caries more rapidly with diets deficient in mineral elements. But no matter how adequate we make the diet, dental caries is still produced."

To Drop In; to Drop Up

Idiomatc phrases in the English language are the despair of foreigners; the phrases so rarely make sense if the words are considered separately. The idiom, "to drop in," meaning to happen in, as for a chat, is well established, and is an accepted part of our speech. "To drop up" is not generally accepted, possibly because of the utter incongruity.—Literary Digest

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake

If you feel run-down and tired, and things aren't going so well with your job, try to steal a Back to the week or so away from the town and make a short trek through the woods.

I recommend a short trek, because it takes a tenderfoot a little while to get accustomed to sleeping out of doors, and eating the sort of camp food that he is likely to cook for himself.

But perseverance will help you along.

Don't load yourself down with a lot of dunnage. Take some good serviceable food like potatoes and bacon and bring along a couple of blankets and a rubber sheet to put over you when it rains.

Three or four days of hard pelting rain, which penetrates your clothing to the skin and trickles down the back of your neck will be likely to discourage you.

Learn how to make a tent out of your rubber blanket, and to pitch it on high ground, so that you won't wake up in the night and think you have fallen into a mountain torrent.

Don't have any particular objective.

If you see a hill top that looks as if it would provide an interesting view, climb to the crest of it, and look around at the landscape.

Learn how to build a cook fire—just a little one, the kind that an Indian makes.

If you make a big one you will have to stand ten or fifteen feet away from it, and then the heat will not reach you.

You can crouch above a little one, and cook your bacon over it without burning your fingers.

Take a compass along, for some people have no sense of direction, and you may be one of them.

Keep your eyes open all the time. When you hear some kind of an animal rustling in a tree, stop and stand motionless. By and by his curiosity will get the best of him, and you can get a look at him.

There is no better fun in the late summer or in the autumn than trekking through a strange country, growing more and more sure of yourself and of your ability to live on very little food, and still never be hungry. If you can, choose a terrain near a mountain side or a sizeable river, with a deep high wood not very far away.

Before you start learn about mushrooms and the kind that can be eaten. Bring a bird book and an animal book along and a good pair of field glasses.

If you are careful you won't need any guide, and it will tickle you to think how well you can get along without one.

Don't go alone if you can find the right kind of a companion. But don't be afraid to go alone if you can't.

No right thinking intelligent person will ever be afraid of a friendly forest.

I do not know what kind of newspapers the Borgias had, if any.

But if they had newspapers, or even a poor substitute for them, you can make up your mind that there was no free press in their day.

As soon as knowledge became as much as 10 per cent universal, the kind of tyranny that was prevalent in medieval days disappeared.

As soon as the public—even long before there was any such thing as general suffrage—began to know what was going on, oppression was doomed.

People had learned to read long before Louis the Fourteenth established his absolute monarchy.

But there was no honest newspaper to let the public know what was going on in Versailles. Had there been the people of Paris would not have waited so long for the revolution that started them on their way to freedom.

In every country where there is freedom of the press and freedom of speech there is liberty.

You may not agree with the newspapers you read. You may not fully agree with any newspaper.

But if there were no newspapers you would never find out what is going on, or what was likely to happen.

Editorial comment is made of course, but the news from the White House comes to you exactly as it is issued. And that is as it should be.

Your newspaper is the window through which you look out on the nation and on the world.

If you read it every day, and from one end to the other, you will be a well informed man, and from the information you thus receive you can make your own opinions, and shape your own political course.

All over the world trained and intelligent men are finding out for you what has happened during the last twenty-four hours, and are ready to tell you about it.

Don't skim your paper. Read it. It gathers for you the news of the world, it opens to you a broad avenue to education.

Without its aid you would be powerless to make a decision on election day, or to understand the meaning and trend of the events of the day.

I believe that the first hour in every school day should be devoted to a thorough reading of a good, honest, up-standing newspaper.

Colorful Embroidery Picture for Your Wall

Pattern 5527

In honor of spring your house deserves a colorful new wall-hanging such as this, which depicts roses and lilacs in their natural splendor. You'll enjoy embroidering it—it's so easy even a beginner will be won over to this delightful occupation. The lilacs are in lazy daisy—the roses in satin and outline stitch; and you needn't frame it—just line it and hang it up.

In pattern 5527 you will find a transfer pattern of a hanging 15 by 20 inches; a color chart; material requirements; illustrations of all stitches needed; directions for making the hanging.

Simple Method to Get Rid of Hitch-Hikers on Poultry

Poultry lice and feather mites, like barnacles on a ship, spend their lives "hitch-hiking" in the feathers of your poultry, slowly but surely impairing health, and production. However, of all poultry afflictions, this is perhaps the easiest to eliminate. A little nicotine sulphate tapped along the roost and then smeared into a thin film will quickly rid the flock of lice and feather mites. It is a wise precaution to do this at regular intervals. It is a simple and economical insurance against the presence of lice on poultry.

The "FIRST QUART"

Tells the Story

Out of the experience of thousands of motorists has been developed a simple method of comparing oil performance... the "First Quart" Test. It is just a matter of noting how many miles you go after a drain-and-refill before you have to add a quart. If you are obliged to add oil too frequently, try the "First Quart" Test with Quaker State. See if you don't go farther before you have to add that tell-tale first quart. And, the oil that stands up best between refills is giving your motor the safest lubrication. Quaker State Oil Refining Company, Oil City, Pa.

Pretty Soft for F. D. R.

The vacations our President has enjoyed since he assumed office has cost us taxpayers $1,781,000—almost two great big whole million dollars.

His recent fishing trip to the jaunt to the Bahama Islands cost us taxpayers $400,000.

Since Mr. Roosevelt became our chief executive he has taken 32 trips at the expense of us taxpayers, the total cost being $1,621,000, then he had the Electa yacht remodeled and renamed it the Potomac, after which it became the presidential yacht, and this cost us taxpayers $160,000.

But all this is what Ole Mat opines is what they call the emoluments of the office, and I just ain't regretting that part of my taxes he used to have a good time and catch himself a few fish with.

But Ole Mat just ain't going to waste any more of that bemoaning about the President not drawing enuf wages—not me.

And the only comment Ole Mat's gotta make is that the fish he caught on his last trip—the $400,000,00 one to the Bahamas—shore orter tasted mighty good, for $400,000,00 fish, all caught within a period of a week or ten days, shore are costly.—Tucumcari News.

The Liberty Bell Rings Again

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Recently the Liberty Bell was "rung" again in Philadelphia.

At its guarded shrine in Independence Hall the famous relic was tapped with a rubber mallet and its deep tones were broadcast into homes throughout America and many parts of Europe.

On this occasion the Bell was sounded in the cause of peace. To the people of America and other lands it carried the message of our desire to live honorably in amity with all nations. But there are other messages which the Bell that has made glorious history could carry throughout the world.

It could remind us at home of the courage and strength and passionate desire for personal liberty on which our fathers founded and developed this nation.

It could carry to the regimented millions of Eastern Europe a reminder that it was in devotion to those principles that America attained a greater measure of well-being and happiness for all its people than any nation on earth.

It could recall to the autocrats and the people of central Europe the glorious history of a nation which wrote tolerance and freedom of religion into its fundamental law, and has devoted itself to these principles through 150 years of liberty.

It could remind the men and women of southern Europe that peace and happiness and their sweet resting place where the people, not a dictator, rule the land.

These are some of the principles for which the Liberty Bell first rang a century and a half ago. If today it can strengthen those principles, not only at home but abroad, it will have performed another great service to mankind.

MAKES COLD BY BURNING KEROSENE
This exclusive Super Condenser Top model, efficient and economical operation.
SUPERFEX
Requires no electricity
Uses no running water
Operates on kerosene
MAKING ICE from oil heat may sound like some sort of a miracle, but in thousands of homes all over the country Superfex Refrigerators have proved over a period of years that "coal oil" may be used to make modern refrigeration of the most economical sort. Not a miracle, but certainly a most important blessing to rural homes.
This amazing refrigerator actually provides plenty of cold for keeping foods fresh, freezing ice cubes, and making frozen desserts, simply by burning a small amount of kerosene!
The new 1936 models offer adjustable shelves, ample food storage space, porcelain lining and dozens of other features that save time, work and trouble. And, if you wish, you may purchase a Superfex on easy terms. Ask for free home demonstration.
Burners operate about two hours each day! Simply light the convenient burners. That's all you have to do—they go out automatically, but Superfex keeps right on working. It gives you twenty-four hours or more of refrigeration with one lighting. Superfex gives you modern refrigeration in its most economical form.

A NEW STANDARD OIL PRODUCT

MOTOR OIL unsurpassed

To safeguard the Automotive Industry's new Super R.P.M. Motor Car Values, Standard Oil Company of California presents RPM Motor Oil Unsurpassed

*Revolutions Per Minute.

THIS fine new oil was bound to come! We want you to try it. We've called it "R P M"—because it is the motor-oil answer to all the new lubrication problems created by Super R. P. M. (Revolutions per Minute) in the newest cars.

—Before We Mention Price!

Imagine assembling in one oil the finest characteristics found in a study of 146 varieties of crude oils from all over the world.

That is what happened. And so "R P M"—a truly luxury product—brings to you all these virtues: complete protection, clean engine, high mileage, quick starting, low carbon formation.

What the New Car Demands
The thrilling improvements in new-car performance have caused the whole Petroleum Industry to study the new necessities for fine lubrication. Increased Revolutions per Minute, increased temperatures, increased bearing pressures—finer clearances, quicker starting—and a dozen other major problems are solved only by producing a remarkably fine oil, such as "R P M"—and every car owner gets the benefit.

You Save Money Besides

R P M Motor Oil is the companion product to the Automotive Industry's magnificent accomplishment in providing super motor car performance for less cost per horsepower.

Made, by a new refining process, it passes along to you every economy in manufacture.

No motor oil at any price can give you more and better lubrication.

HASH MORE THAN LEFTOVER DISH

Concoction Is Taken Seriously by Many Cooks.

By EDITH M. BARBER
HASH! The word carries a pleasant or an unpleasant meaning, depending upon experience. Nothing can be better and nothing can be worse.

Although probably originated in order to use up left-overs, I have recently known people to buy material especially for it. The business woman housekeeper, who is an expert on making a good hash, will find the canned-corned beef useful. Here is a recipe sent to me by one of my friends. It will appeal particularly to the business woman housekeeper, as it does not demand cooked potato. From her letter I quote:

"I'll tell you how I had to make hash one day, and I did it ever after. You use the thinned or delicatessen cooked or home cooked corned beef. Run the beef through the chopper first, then an onion and enough raw potato to double the quantity. I forgot to state you must park the corned beef by itself first. If you have a little green pepper, add that to the onion and potato. Put it in a skillet and cover with cold water, let it cook until the potato is done and it is almost dry and starchy. (Don't you love my free verse way of writing a recipe?) Then add the c. p. and reheat. As the old Maestro says, 'I hope you like it.'"

A letter from a reader tells me that she cannot find a recipe for chicken hash, which should be creamy, as it is when it is served at a hotel. Chicken hash is actually creamed ground chicken. The proportion which is best is one cup of white sauce made with chicken stock and cream to two cups of ground chicken. Minced green pepper may be added.

Corned Beef Hash

- 2 tablespoons bacon fat or drippings
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- 2 cups chopped corned beef, cooked
- 2 cups boiled potatoes
- 1 cup stock or milk
- Salt and pepper to taste

Melt the fat in a frying pan, add the onion, and brown slightly. Add the remaining ingredients, well mixed. Spread the mixture evenly in a pan and cook over a slow fire for half an hour. It is best to cover the pan at first so that the mixture may become thoroughly heated. If the hash is to be baked allow 45 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit). The hash may be stirred while cooking so that it will brown all over, but if not stirred it should be folded and served in the same manner as an omelet. Garnish with pickled beets and serve with horseradish sauce.

Lamb Stew With Sour Cream

- 2 tablespoons fat
- 2 small onions
- 3 pounds shoulder of lamb
- Salt
- Pepper
- 2 cups tomato pulp
- 2 tablespoons minced parsley
- 1 cup thick sour cream

Heat the fat, add the onions, cut fine, and the meat rubbed with salt and pepper. Brown the meat and the onions, then add the tomato pulp and parsley. Cook the meat slowly for two hours, adding water only if necessary. Just before serving add the sour cream and blend it well with the sauce.

Glazed Carrots

- 1 quart cut carrots
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 4 tablespoons sugar

Wash and cook carrots until tender in a small amount of water with a dash of sugar and salt. Drain. Dot with butter and sprinkle with sugar. Cook until sugar melts.

Spinach With Sour Cream

Cook washed spinach in a saucepan without water. Add a dash of salt and sugar. Cover. Cook until tender. Whip half a cup of sour cream, add a dash of nutmeg and serve with cooked spinach.

Curried Veal

- 2 cups cold veal
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 cups milk
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- Salt
- Pepper
- Parsley
- 2 tablespoons flour

Cut veal in small pieces. Melt butter, add flour and when blended gradually add hot milk and seasonings. Stir over fire until thick, add chicken. Serve with boiled rice, garnish with raw bananas cut lengthwise, and top with parsley.

Cabbage and Apple Salad

- 1 pint finely shredded cabbage
 - 1 red apple finely sliced
 - 1/2 cup mayonnaise
 - 2 tablespoons chili sauce or catsup
 - Chopped nuts
- Mix cabbage, apple, mayonnaise and chili sauce or catsup and add more salt if desired. Serve on lettuce or small cabbage leaves. Sprinkle with nuts.

To Break in Brush

A new paint brush should be broken in on the priming coat, never on one of the finishing coats. It should first be dipped in the paint to a depth of two or three inches and wiped across the edge with a mixing paddle several times to work the paint well into the clean bristles.

The Household

By LYDIA LE BARON WALKER

IF YOU expect the housework to be well done either by yourself, the maid or the woman who comes in by the day, it is up to you as the homemaker to see that proper tools are supplied. This sounds logical but, unfortunately it takes more than logic to make matters right when the mop wears out, and the day when it must be used comes, and there is no new mop.

Keeping up with household exigencies requires an attention to detail that is amazing. Forgetfulness is usually more at fault than is the lack of funds for replacements, when work is hampered. When the cost exceeds the funds on hand, no blame can be attached to what would otherwise be negligence. When a temporary adjustment has to be made until the purse permits a purchase, it can be practically always made. But such adjustments, when unnecessary, betoken a thoughtless homemaker, and indicate a certain incompetency.

Efficiency

The efficient homemaker looks ahead. She knows her household equipments and is ready with fresh supplies before there is a hampering lack. There should be shelves in a closet for surplus supplies such as soap, cleaning agents, washing soda, silver polish, etc., just as there are shelves for emergency foods. When anything gets low, a new lot should be ordered before there is danger of getting out. It costs no more to manage this way, and is often an economy, since, taking advantage of sales is possible, instead of finding immediate purchase necessary.

But apart from the things that must be bought, there are often little things which are not ready for use. Chief among these are clean dusters and cleaning cloths. Old cloth does perfectly well for the latter, yet it is often one of the hardest things for a homemaker to get. It is sometimes her own fault, however, as these cleaning cloths must be washed clean, and be dried after using in order for them to be in readiness for the next time. Maids in general dislike to wash cleaning cloths, just as they find it easy to overlook laundering of hot dish holders which should be kept fresh and clean as tea towels.

About Doors

The function of doors is to open and close entrances and exits, thereby permitting or excluding circulation of air currents, sights, and sounds. These are their architectural requirements, and they are made to do such work with dignity and ornament. Most doors swing on hinges, and open in one direction. There was a law enforced in some localities that outside doors of public buildings must swing out. This was a "safety first" measure in case of fire or any panic which would make easy exit imperative.

In dwellings, front doors open in, with a welcoming gesture. These doors are inside as well as outside features of a house, permitting entrance ways and exits. They open in, because this adds to the convenience. It is awkward to have a door open out especially in a storm and the necessity of letting out a crowd in a hurry is negligible.

Wide doors separating adjoining rooms or halls and rooms which it is desirable to throw together when doors are open, may swing on hinges or work on rollers. In the first instance the doors are always visible whether open or shut. In the second they are only visible when shut or partly shut. They slide in between walls occupying a space made for them.

Glazed Doors

The fashion for having glass doors has revived the hinged double doors to great advantage in some instances, while in others, nothing but the vogue in their recommendation. In very large houses there is a room, especially a reception parlor, in which the glass-paned doors can shut off the room and thus help conserve heat without closing the view. Through doors are shut there is a feeling of space and an intimate view of the unused room which makes it seem to be part of the adjoining room in a very pleasing way.

When full space is lacking for wide hinged doors to be thrown open, double hinging is an interesting way to overcome the difficulty. Each door can be in two hinged sections. This arrangement allows the middle sections to fold back against those hinged to the door frame, so that the doors when open are but half their full width. Thus the doors take but little space, and remain decorative features of the room.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. F. E. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, © Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for May 10
EFFECTUAL PRAYER

LESSON TEXT—Luke 18:1-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—God be merciful to me a sinner.—Luke 18:13.
PRIMARY TOPIC—How Two Men Prayed.

JUNIOR TOPIC—When Prayer Changes Things.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Should I Pray?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How Shall We Pray Effectively?

From first to last the books of the Bible teem with the language and spirit of prayer. Prayers of every type are found in the Old Testament—personal confession and petition, intercession, and especially praise to Jehovah voiced in private and public prayers. The present lesson offers definite instruction by a great Teacher.

I. "Men Ought Always to Pray" (v. 1).
Prayer is necessary to spiritual life. What breathing is to the physical body prayer is to the spiritual existence. Men ought to pray under every variety of circumstance; in time of sorrow and burden, for strength to endure; in time of joy and success, for grace to behave aright.

Prayer ought to be persistent even when the answer is not immediately recognized. "All men pray at times," we are told. "To the Christian alms belongs the faith-filled and persistent prayer. God hears and answers prayer, even when we do not understand the mysteries of delay."

II. The Urgent Prayer of a Widow (vv. 2-8).

The picture here is of a helpless widow who was being cheated out of her property rights, coming to a godless judge for redress. Her only means of getting help was persistently to declare the justice of her claim. He complied with her urgent request, not because he feared God or man, but to get rid of her. The point here is not that God is like this unjust judge, but that he can be teased into compliance, but rather the teaching is by contrast. If through persistence the judge yields, how much surer is the help of a merciful God for the elect who cry unto him day and night. The believer's prayer is to a covenant-keeping God. This is why the truth concerning the coming of Christ is of such meaning. The church should pray for the fulfillment of God's promise, and not be disheartened and discouraged, as are some (II Pet. 3:4). Though many may despair, we should be assured that genuine faith will abide and that the divine promise concerning the coming of Christ will be fulfilled.

III. The Prayer of the Proud Pharisee (vv. 9-12).

1. He took a striking attitude (v. 11). The Jewish custom was to stand while praying, but the word "stood" implies the assumption of ostentation. He was self-righteous and trusted in himself.

2. He prayed with himself (vv. 11, 12). He was merely soliloquizing, pretending to thank God, while really complimenting himself. He congratulated himself upon his morality (v. 11). He claimed to thank God that he was not as other men: extortioners, adulterers, unjust, or even as the publican standing afar off. One who has been kept from the grosser sins ought to thank God, but should not set himself above his fellow men, as though the virtue were his own. He congratulated himself for his religious merit (v. 12). He fasted twice a week and gave tithes of all he possessed. He thus informed God that he did even more than was required.

IV. The Prayer of the Humble Publican (v. 13).

How great the contrast in the prayer and spirit of the publican! He did not stand with ostentation, but for very shame could not so much as lift up his face to heaven, but smote upon his breast, a sign of anguish and despair, and cried "God be merciful to me a sinner." That this heart-cry is indeed the heart of the lesson is indicated from the fact that it is cited as the golden text.

V. Christ's Testimony (v. 14).

Christ makes it unmistakably evident that the attitude and petition of the publican meets with his favor. Pharisees of every age, for their pride and self-righteousness are rejected of God. The spirit of the publican expressing itself in the prayer of a penitent, will today meet with the commendation, "This man went down to his house justified."

The believer who weighs thoughtfully the meaning of this lesson will find much encouragement to prayer. He must be justified, knowing his sins forgiven in answer to penitential prayer. He must pray in spite of a natural impulse to faint, to neglect the practice of prayer; he ought always to pray, and not faint.

A Harsh Word

To be silent, to suffer, to pray when we cannot act, is acceptable to God. A disappointment, a contradiction, a harsh word received and endured in his presence, is worth more than a long prayer.—Fenelon.

Knobbing Our Work

Our daily life should be sanctified by doing common things in a religious way. There is no action so slight or so humble but it might be done to a great purpose or sanctified thereby.—G. MacDonald.

"Morning sickness"—is caused by an acid condition. To avoid it, acid must be offset by alkalis—such as magnesia.

Why Physicians Recommend Milnesia's Wafers

These mint-flavored, sandy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia in solid form—the most pleasant way to take it. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Cleared thoroughly, then swallowed, they correct acidity in the mouth and throughout the digestive system and insure quick, complete elimination of the waste materials that cause gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts.

Milnesia's Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 45, at 35c and 60c respectively, and in convenient tins for your handbag containing 12 at 25c. Each wafer is approximately one adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores sell and recommend them. Start using these safe, effective, non-salt, gently laxative wafers today!

Even after this, Garth had to bear the brunt of the heavy work. Much of the time the others were forced to stop off, to get the cramp out of their knees or rest their arms. And when they paddled, their unskillful stroke kept Garth twisting his own stroke to keep the canoe from being swerved from side to side like a ship with the jaws.

Had work been the only consideration, he would as soon have done it all. There were, however, reasons for more speed than he could make alone with the heavily loaded skin-covered craft. The summer was now far along. The days were rapidly shortening, the nights becoming colder and darker. Delay would mean a serious chance of being caught in early autumn blizzards. Even Lillith Ramill might not be able to survive an all-day drive of sled. Such a storm would undoubtedly kill her father and, not improbably, Huxby also. Persistent use of the paddles would continue the toughening of the three chechacos. It would also quicken the speed of the canoe as they acquired skill from practice.

He himself kept to his stroke like the born voyager he was, dipping his paddle for hour after hour. His steady pull never varied except when, at long intervals, he shifted the paddle over to the other side. He stopped that clocklike stroke only when landings had to be made for food or sleep.

On the third day Lillith attempted to keep stroke with him. She paddled until so exhausted that she broke down and wept. After that Huxby quit less often, though he never came so near to overtingering himself.

They had twice camped on muskeg. The third afternoon brought them to broken ridges where the stream dashed through a gorge. So far as could be seen, the rapids looked easy to shoot. But Garth said it was a portage.

He slung a pack from his tump-line and took the canoe on his shoulders. The total load was a full two hundred and fifty pounds. At sight of it, the others took on all the rest of the meat and equipment. For miles Garth led them up and down rocky slopes, through brush and bogs. Twice they skirted sheer falls that showed why he had taken to land.

At last, below the lower fall, he launched the canoe in the eddy of a deep pool. The others sank down on the bank, outspent. He built a fire and boiled tea for them. They expected to camp overnight. He ordered them back into the canoe.

"Can't chance waiting here. May be too foggy to see tomorrow," he explained. "Sit flat in the bottom, and keep your paddles inboard."

They understood when a few strokes of his paddle brought the canoe to the foot of the pool. For a long two miles they crouched low in the bottom while the frail craft glided down the foaming, swirling torrent of white water. Garth smiled at their cowering backs. He had often shot worse rapids, and he had been down a Athabaskan Indian, he drove the canoe clear of dangerous whirlpools and dodged past rocks with deft twists of his paddle.

At the foot of the rapids, he headed in alongside a bit of gravelly beach and helped Mr. Ramill and Lillith ashore. When he remarked that there was gold in the gravel, Huxby nearly upset the canoe in his haste to get out and look.

"Gold! Why didn't we bring the gold pan?"
Garth laughed and stretched out on the dry grass above the gravel. "Gallant gentleman, your lady is building the fire."
"Don't mind him, Vivian," Lillith chimed in on the banter. "You can use the cup for panning. I need only the pot to hold Alan's tea."
Huxby glanced sidelong at Garth and hastened to help the girl. Her father had flattened out beside Garth. With a yawn, Garth stretched up his arms and let them fall. The left one came down across the millionaire's body. The back of the hand felt a lump under the leather coat. Huxby had not again gained possession of the pistol.

time the flask of grease and pitch dope began to give out. Most of the camps were on wet ground. For days the party were drenched by a steady drizzle, varied only by downpours that kept Lillith and her father bailing the canoe.

Several times fog on the water compelled Garth to put ashore. Without sight, even his training could not enable him to follow the right channel. He was not an Indian. But between the forced halts, he put in still longer hours of paddling.

Matters were coming to a pinch. After the first wetting by the rain, what remained of the meat spoiled. It became so flyblown and tainted that Lillith threw it away before Garth could prevent the wastage. He decided to give them all another lesson.

In the fast that followed, Mr. Ramill was the first to fall. Huxby came next; Lillith last of the three. By the third day they had given up all paddling. On the fourth, they lay slumped in the bottom of the canoe. Garth only tightened his belt again and dipped his paddle in his strong, steady, seemingly tireless stroke.

Whenever he found himself nearing his limit, he headed ashore, boiled tea, slept, and then put off again. The fifth day began to draw on the last reserve of his wiry endurance. Towards noon he made the boggy shore, almost outspent. He dragged out the wolfskin knapsack anchor, with its load of platinum alloy. The girl and the two men lay in a stupor of starvation. He himself was so tired that he could not have lifted even Lillith ashore.

As he rested on the west sedge he recalled the place as one of his former camp sites. A spruce-covered ridge of higher ground here thrust out into the muskeg. The first remembrance brought another. The second gave him strength to pull his rifle from the canoe and climb ascent the ridge end. There was a berry patch on the east slope. The fruit would be better than nothing. He hoped, however, for something more.

Circling to get the wind in his face, he crept through the spruce thickets until he could peer out on the open ground of the berry patch. Luck was with him. The old black bear had gone off and left her cub. He rested the rifle barrel on a spruce branch to get a sure aim.

"Out of the Muskeg; but a Long Way From Out of This D-d North!"

That was the end of famine. Gorged upon the fat, tender meat of the bear cub, even Mr. Ramill rapidly regained strength. He was still rather weak, however, when they came to the last portage.

The approach to solid ground was across a narrow belt of muskeg. Near the far side of the swamp, the millionaire failed to jump squarely upon a tussock of niggerhead grass. He slipped and plunged headfirst into a pool.

Huxby was following close behind, alert for every move of his partner. He sprang to grasp the feet of the sinking man. A heavy dragged him out, alighted and spluttering. Huxby worked over him, scraping off mud, until Lillith hastened back to help assist her father across the rest of the quagmire. Once on firm ground, the millionaire joked about his mishap.

"Haven't had a bath since the last rain," he said. "This one is higher class—equal to the mud baths at Hot Springs. How about my pack Lillith?"

She looked in his foxskin bag. "Everything there, Dad—with some mud added."
Garth had been too far ahead, with his heavy pack and canoe, to see or hear the accident. Mr. Ramill joked again about his extra bath when they took to the canoe at the far side of the portage. But all the time until they reached the evening camp and he started to wash the mud from the leather coat, he did not notice that the pistol was missing.
At the announcement of the loss,

Huxby met Garth's gaze with a stare of cold hostility. Garth walked up to him, empty-handed.
"If you've done what I think you have," he said, "I call you for a show-down."

The engineer's lips tightened in an ironical smile. He put up his hands. Not to be fooled by the seeming bluff, Garth went over Huxby's tattered clothes, from coat collar to moccasins. The pistol was nowhere on the engineer.

"This is one time I'm due to apologize," Garth admitted.
"I accept no apology from you," Huxby replied.

Lillith looked from one to the other, her own lips tightening.
Mr. Ramill good-humoredly interposed, as he hung the washed leather coat before the fire: "Postpone your fight, boys. We're still in the muskeg. I'll built a cockpit for you when we get out."

That won a chuckle from Garth. Huxby smiled with his lips—not with his eyes. As Lillith looked from Garth to him, her eyes narrowed and her lips tightened.

CHAPTER VII

The Gaffed Wolf.

Mr. Ramill's good-humor over his fall into the muskeg pool had not been forced. It was based upon his feeling of physical well-being.

Instead of having, been broken down by the hard toil and exposure of the trip and that severe lesson in the meaning of famine, he had come through it all in even better shape than before the start from the last valley. The days of starvation had completed Nature's raid upon the degenerate fats and poisons of his once obese body.

There had followed the feasts of tender bear-cub meat. He was again putting on weight, but it was hard muscle. The healthy blood flooded his brain with a comfortable glow that was not to be dampened by any amount of toil or discomfort.

He was paddling as vigorously as if not as skillfully as his daughter, when, mid-morning of the twenty-fourth day from the valley, the canoe neared a wooded point that rose well above the swamps. Garth called out from the stern of the canoe:

"If you want a surprise, friends, shut your eyes while we take ten strokes."

He knew that Huxby would keep on staring ahead. But he guessed right about Lillith and her father. At the end of the tenth stroke, the girl flung up her paddle and uttered a shriek of joyous amazement:

"The river! The river!"
Close upon the cry came the deep-lunged shout of her father: "By the Almighty, you've done it, Garth! We're out!"

Huxby continued to stare fixedly ahead at the mighty flood of the Mackenzie. He was last to speak: "Out of the muskeg; but a long way from out of this d-d North!"

"Long by canoe or even by steamer," Garth agreed. "Not so far, though, by air passage. We can make the emergency supply post by two or three hours' paddling downstream."

"What of it? That fellow Tobin told us planes never stop there, unless foul weather runs them short of gas."
Garth met the suddenly anxious looks of Lillith and her father with a smile.

"All pilots have orders to sight non-stop posts in passing. Tobin has a distress signal. There'll be a plane coming south from the Arctic coast within three days—probably tomorrow. You'll be lying in the lap of luxury at Edmonton within a week or ten days."

The millionaire felt at the grease-and-pitch mat of his month-old beard. He chuckled. "A bath and a barber! Hand over that last cigar, Garth. Here's where I celebrate."

He opened the gold-mounted case bit off the tip of the sole surviving Havana, and snapped his patent lighter. It failed to flint. He tossed it over into the water, and turned to Garth, with an impatient command: "Give me a light."

"Only two matches left, sir."
"Enough to light a cigar. Pass them over."

Instead of taking out his waterproof match case, Garth took up his paddle. "The rule is, never burn your last match until you have to. You've thrown away that little flint and steel. The fire-drill is all right in dry weather but hard to use in wet."

Huxby dipped his own paddle. "Come on, Mr. Ramill. By his own account, three hours more will rid us of him and his insolence."

"Wait," said Lillith. She pointed to the bank where the pleasant green of young spruces showed among the weathered white trunks of fire-killed birch trees. "If we have so much time, we'll land there and clean up."

"But—with the post so near, my dear Lillith!" Huxby protested. "That fellow Tobin had any amount of soap."
"All the more reason, I'll not have even a common savy see me in this condition. The rags can't be helped. But the dirt—" Out burst her suppressed loathing for all the grease and grime that smirched herself and the men. "Mud! I'll melt rancid fat! I'll spiced meat! Alan Garth, I know that I have to go in dressed like a squaw. But this—this BURN!"

He surged the canoe around shoreward with a powerful sweep of his paddle.

"Not necessary, Miss Ramill. A scouring with hardwood ashes and sand will do the work of soap. We can go in sweet."

They landed where an ice jam of some spring break-up had gouged through the muskeg mud at the end of the ridge and left a clear beach of glacial sand and gravel. Up over the ten-foot cut bank, Garth started a fire with one of his two remaining matches.

Even Huxby joined in gathering other piles of fallen birch branches for more fires. While they were burning, Garth beached the canoe and tilted it so that the sun would dry the doggy inside. Huxby stirred the fire, and Mr. Ramill broiled the last of the partly spoiled bear-cub meat, while Lillith tried out a cupful of the rancid fat for a final mess of mosquito dope. Garth brought the girl pluck for the mix from the nearby thicket of young spruces.

No cleaning could be done until the fires burned out. When Mr. Ramill took off the spits of cooked meat, all squatted down as usual to share the meal. Garth smiled his thanks as he took the slab of hot meat handed to him by the millionaire. The smile hardened.

A sudden change had fallen upon his three companions. He could easily guess the cause. They realized that this was the last meal they were to share as fellow voyagers with him.

The moment they stepped from the canoe onto the wharf at the emergency refueling post, their forced companionship with him in the lost valley and on all the long trip out would be at an end. Instead of a trio dependent upon their opponent for food and guidance—for life itself—they would be a trio not only independent of, but hostile to him and his interests.

That was at least true of the two men. And even Lillith betrayed in her look and manner a vivid consciousness of the impending change of relationship. As for Huxby, the cold glancing in his stare showed how he was anticipating the robbery and ruin of the man who had so far outplayed him.

Coronation of New King or Queen Is Great Event

A great thing to see in London is the crowning of a new king or queen. It does not happen often, but when it does it is an event to remember, says a writer in the Detroit News.

The actual crowning, or coronation, takes place in Westminster abbey and the archbishop of Canterbury is in charge of the ceremony. The new king sits in the famous Coronation chair, which is covered for the event with cloth-of-gold. He promises that he will govern by the laws made by the British parliament; that he will carry out a rule of justice and mercy; and that he will maintain the Protestant religion.

The Coronation chair dates back to the time of King Edward I, who ruled six and a half centuries ago. It is made of oak, but under the seat is "the Stone of Scone," which was taken away from Scotland during the reign of Edward. Before that the stone had been used during the crowning of Scottish kings.

There is a legend that the Stone of Scone was used as a "pillow" by Jacob, the Hebrew patriarch. The legend says that the stone was moved from Palestine to Ireland, and from there to Scotland before it fell into the hands of the English. There it is reason to believe, however, that it was obtained from a quarry near Scone, a town in Scotland.

Underground Schools
Unlike Britain, where schools are built so as to admit as much fresh air and sunlight as possible, the Lapps burrow under the earth. Only the thatch or tiled roofs of their schools can be seen. The rest is all cellar. Sunlight does not matter, because for at least six months of the year it is perpetually dark, while for only three months does the sun shine continuously. Fresh air in the form of cutting blasts is most unwelcome, and in winter, spring, and autumn everything is done to keep it out. The atmosphere in Lapp schools, with every crevice blocked and heating apparatus full on, is more than English lungs could bear, but the people there are used to it.

Seneca Root
Seneca root or seneca snakeroot is a plant of the milkwort family known to botanists as Polygala senega and found growing mostly in rocky woods and on eroding hillsides. It is a smooth, perennial plant with a short rootstock as thick as a lead pencil and rather thick roots. The roots and rootstock have medicinal value.

Misses Carmen Pino and Trujillo were here from Escondido last week end and went on to Tularosa to attend a dance.

Judge Elerdo Chavez, who has been quite ill of late, is much improved at this writing.

Amos Gaylord, miner, who had been living near the Nogal Peak for the past 20 years, was found last Friday morning by J. H. Fulmer of the New Mexico Light & Power Co., in an ill and dazed condition. Amos had been to a nearby spring for water and collapsed. He had been ailing for some time. Mr. Fulmer brought him here and on Tuesday morning Tommy McCamast and O. T. Newton took him to Estancia, where on an order from Judge Frenger, he was taken to the state institute for the feeble-minded at Las Vegas. Amos was well known in mining circles as an efficient man in that line of industry. He has many friends in this locality who will be sorry to learn of his misfortune.

T. J. Simer of Capitan is reported to be very ill this week. Mr. Simer has been ailing for some time and he has so far, failed to respond to medical aid.

Albert Snow of the New Mexico Light & Power Company and A. L. Burke of the Outlook office were Capitan business visitors Tuesday afternoon.

Paper Luncheon Sets for Picnics and Outings, at Burke's Art & Gift Shop.

Jim Lucero went to the Ancho country last Sunday to take his mother back to her ranch home after visiting here with her son's family for several days. Jimmy is the barber at Peckham's Barber Shop.

Estanislao Bello, stockman from the Claunch country, was a business visitor in Carrizozo this Tuesday.

Florancio and Leandro Vega were business visitors in town Tuesday. Leandro is busy plowing his land for corn and bean planting.

"I CALL IT A BARGAIN!"

Safe Cold now costs
no more than Ordinary Refrigeration

Visible Cold

The controls of the 1936 Kelvinator keep food compartment temperatures ideal, regardless how hot it is in the kitchen. And you can see what the temperature is, because of a Built-In Thermometer which tells you that food is being kept seriously, safely, dependably cold.

And there's a lot of difference between safe cold—as provided by Kelvinator—and ordinary automatic refrigeration.

In Kelvinator you know it's safe, because in Kelvinator you have Visible Cold at all times. No guessing about cabinet temperature—you can see it on Kelvinator's unique Built-In Thermometer. No chance for unexpected refrigeration failures.

In Kelvinator you know it's economical. Because Kelvinator gives you a certified statement of low operating cost.

In Kelvinator you know you're protected—with Visible Protection. The manufacturer backs each Kelvinator with a Five-Year Protection Plan.

The new Kelvinator is worth a special trip to see. We believe you'll be interested at once, that you'll surely want to own one. And—at a cost of as little as 15c a day—why not? You are invited to inspect Kelvinator today.

Como Sta! As the natives say.

Things for which we should be thankful — With the advent of Spring, there's no more fires to build. We guess that suits all of us. Si, Senor.

Talkin' about household chores, we once knew a lady who "just loved to beat rugs." Reminds us of when we were sentenced to beat a rug; we thought we'd done a pretty good job, when lo and behold — there was more dust in it than ever. Yes, I'm ahead of my story, for we beat the rug for two hours. Like hitting yourself on the head with a hammer — it feels so good when you stop.

Things we're tired of hearing: "Them guys donna how to spell."

Judging from results, the AAA must have paid out a million and a half to a couple sugar companies to hire 'em to cut down production so we'd get more used to using Cuban sugar.

And they call the bird who stands up with the bridegroom but doesn't get married the "beat man." A cynical bachelor friend says that he should be called the "smartest man." What thinkest thou?

With the Republicans quoting Jefferson and the Democrats quoting Lincoln you have to admit it's a topsy-turvy world.

This Scribe sits up to the type case with stick in hand — and blazes away at anything that comes in his mind. And, as was stated in this column before, "What are writ are writ." This aint so hot English — but who cares? (High school grads kindly correct.)

"Let 'em Have It," shown at Lyric Theatre the first of the week, was a Gangster picture par-excellence. Queer tiz, the members of the gentler sex don't care for pictures of that type — while most men do. As a Subscriber puts it: "I like a movie where they cut themselves a slice of throat." We wonder if he could have referred to a crime drama. —No Savvy.

A lot of birds don't find out until it is too late, that you can't preserve your health in alcohol.

Its a lot easier for Congress to heap up a big national deficit than it is for the people to pay it off. Aint that correct?—Seguro Miguel.

This office hears the pathetic song by an employee—

"O, bury me not on the lone prairie,
These words came slow and mournful,
From the pallid lips of a youth who lay

On his dying bed at the close of day."

What should be done with him? You're right. He ought to be shot at sunrise.

Seriously speaking, the Malpais (ancient lava flow) a trifle over three miles from town, is a sight which eastern people will never forget. All the Malpais needs is advertising. The flowering cacti will begin shortly; it is a sight to write home about, so beautiful

Guess we have the bronco fever—

"For a kingly crown in the noley town

His saddle he wouldn't change;
No life so free as the life we lead

Way out on the Yayo range."

—After ridiculing the verses above, no punishment could be severe enough. Don't shoot!
