The writer would like to inquire of Tom Green of the Hawk-Eye Gazette of Burlington, Iowa, if the old "Black Hawk Rock" on the east side of North Hill, is still there? If not, we would like to know what means were employed to get it from its strong entrenchment in the side of the cliff?

Many stories have been told about the mammoth rock which had, at the last time we saw it, been planted in the side of the hill for centuries perhaps unknown to man. One story goes like this. Being so round and smooth, it came from another part of the universe in a fiery ball and lodged in the side of the cliff. If it was a meteor, it must have been deposited there a thousand years ago—perhaps longer. Who knows?

Another story and evidently a true one, is that Black Hawk with his army of braves in the early days, would gather his allies around the big black rock and hold councils of war. From Black Hawk Rock, which derived its name from the famous Indian Chief, one of the best views of the Mississippi river and far across the Illinois bottoms could be had. In those days, when the writer first lived in Burlington, he was just 17 years of age and that was just 59 years ago. I have revealed my age before I realized it, but you'll excuse me. Twelve years after that, I came to Burlington and made it my home for 19 years.

Many people of the early days would go to Black Hawk Rock to see the sunrise and stand on the big rock, where "Distance lends enchantment to the view." One beautiful spring morning, the writer boarded the first old mule car for North Hill and betook himself to Black Hawk Rock, arriving there in time to witness a beautiful sight. Just as the sun came up over the Illinois woodlands, two steamboats of the Diamond Jo Line passed each other in what was then the main channel of the river, which was very narrow, being on the Illinois side and to the right of Otter Island, which divided the river, leaving O'Connell slough to the left.

As they passed each other, the sun shot its first beams of the morning over the two crafts and as if in response to the sun rays, they blew their shrill whistles in salute to each other as officers and passengers exchanged the waving of handkerchiefs as friendship's tokens. The writer has viewed many other scenes where pomp and pride held sway and forgotten them, but that picture with nature undisturbed will never fade from memory.

We never lacked for entertainment in those days, more especially in the summer time. There were numerous moonlight excursions on the river and as a general thing, we had the old Orchard City Band with us to entertain each occasion. We cannot recall the leader's name, but we well remember Herman Holstein,

Methodist Church Notes

A string band from the Three Rivers Fly Camp will play special songs at the church Sunday evening from 7 to 8. Our presiding Elder of the Clovis district will preach. At the close of the service the string band will play Southern melodies from the church porch. You surely will miss something if you miss hearing these boys. There will also be service Sunday morning at 11.—J. A. Bell.

Masons Attend Musical Master's Degree

A delegation of local Masons headed by Worshipful Master Harry Gallacher made a trip to El Paso Monday and that night, they attended the Musical Master's degree, conferred under the auspices of the Masonic Grand Lodge of the state of Texas. Those who attended were: Messrs. Harry Gallacher, C. P. Huppertz, A. Pirie, L. A. Whitaker, S. B. Bostian, Phil Bright, Bert Pfingsten, Don English and Roy Shafer. The delegation returned a few hours before "chicken crow."

Don't Forget—

About the basketball games and dance tonight, Feb. 26. This will be your last chance to see action on the local court this year. If you haven't been coming to the games this year you don't know what you have missed. Every game has been full of pep and thrills from start to finish. The local teams are a good match for the Corona teams, so these games promise to be good.

Dance to the music of Cleve Jolly's orchestra from Corona. There will be a prize waltz contest sometime during the dance. The winner will receive a five-pound box of candy. A lunch stand will be in operation serving coffee, pie and sandwiches.

Dance, Virginia Grumbles Vocal Solo, Lieut. Speary Song and Dance, Jane Gallacher, Marion Joyce, Betty Beck Physical Education Demonstration—Miss Stover in charge. The play quite delighted the audience which was manifested by the liberal applause—the characters were well taken and each played their parts in a most natural manner and the numbers following were excellent and all went towards a delightful evening's entertainment.

BUSINESS MEN'S CLUB

met as usual at its regular weekly business session and 6 o'clock dinner at the S. P. Hotel Wednesday evening. After the dinner, Roy Shafer, chairman of the entertainment committee, presented Miss Lyle and her class of tap-dancers. The first number was a dance by seven little tots, ranging in ages from 5 to 9. To watch the sweet little fairies dance so gracefully and with such remarkable stage presence, it went over big with the stern-faced-business-men. The names of the tots are: Janet Mae Shafer, Billie Ming, Etta Loy and Nell Joy Bowlin, Nena Sanchez, Helen Jean Kelt and Joyce Welch.

The next number was a tap-dance by the Misses Jane Norman and Margaret Elliott and last, but not by any means least, a dance by Miss Virginia Grumbles, who danced with intermingling gestures in which she performed in remarkable fashion. On the whole, the entertainment was a treat to the club. After the program, the business session was held, road matters receiving the major portion of attention. Mr. Griffin of Adobe spoke at length on road and border land projects.

Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church met at the home of Mrs. C. O. Davis Wednesday afternoon, and the next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. R. E. Lemon, next Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of working on Easter baskets. The ladies will please bring thimbles, needles and thread.

Louis Adams, former treasurer of Lincoln County, is now back at his old position as fireman for the Southern Pacific between Carrizozo and Tucumcari.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Wooten and children are here from Arizona, visiting the H. R. Lamay family at their home on the Nogal-Mesa.

Paul Aguayo was a business visitor this week from the Aguayo ranch in Tortolita Canyon.

Honor Washington

Last Friday evening a large gathering of Masons and their families attended a program of music and speaking which terminated with a luncheon in the banquet room of the Masonic Temple.

The program opened with the singing of America by the assembly, after which there was a community singing, ending with "Roamin' in the Moonlight," dedicated to Mrs. Jane Gallacher, mother of the Worshipful Master, and "Auld Lang Syne." Mrs. Ben S. Burns and Miss Helen Huppertz gave a piano duet. Mrs. Don English gave a graphic account of the Masonic career of George Washington. A. L. Burke addressed the assemblage from the subject "Washington, the Builder." Worshipful Master Harry Gallacher was the chief of ceremonies while William Gallacher served as Chairman and Announcer.

FAMOUS HEADLINE HUNTER FLOYD GIBBONS ADVENTURERS Everybody CLUB

"Hurling Death" By FLOYD GIBBONS

ERNIE SMITH claims he's the only man that has ever done it. Way back in 1895 Ernie took a ride and he doesn't think it has ever been duplicated.

Ernie lives in Waltham. He's reached the age of discretion now, and he doesn't go whooping around in the country on rocks anymore, but when he was sixteen years old—well—it seems he didn't much care what he traveled on.

In these days he lived in the little town of Vinalhaven, Maine, and had a job working for a fellow named Coombs who ran a small boat building establishment down by the water front.

Coombs was just building his shop at the time this all happened. He had the foundation laid and was nailing down the floor. Just across the street, a fellow named Carnes was conducting some building operations too.

Carnes was digging a cellar—blasting it out of solid rock. And Ernie and Coombs, plugging away on their own carpenter job, worked to the tune of intermittent thunder as Carnes set off one blast after another.

Carnes set off several blasts without giving them a word of forewarning, but one fine summer day he yelled across the street: "Hey, you boys better get out of the way. I've got a little more powder in here this time." So Ernie and Coombs lay down their tools and began looking around for a place where they would be under cover.

The water front at Vinalhaven started with a high sandbank. Below that was a narrow beach, and beyond the beach, mud flats stretched far out into the water.

It was low tide and the mud flats were almost bare. At the edge of the bank was a fish house—a flimsy little shack ten feet long by eight feet wide—and a few feet away from that was a big, solid wood pile 20 or 30 feet long and well over six feet high.

Coombs and Ernie elected to stand in the shelter of the fish house. There, they thought, they would be out of the way of flying stones and bits of rubble that Carnes' blast might kick up. They gave Carnes the signal that they were under cover.

Coombs was sitting behind the little shed, but Ernie, who wanted to see the fireworks, was standing at the corner, where he could get a full view of the explosion. Carnes lit the fuse and ducked for cover himself. For a minute they waited. Then, suddenly, the air was shattered with a terrific roar!

"I was watching it with both eyes," says Ernie, "and I thought the heavens had fallen in. The very air itself seemed to rock back and forth. The sky was filled with stones—millions of them, of all sizes and shapes. But what struck terror into my heart was a great boulder that had shot up out of that pit and was coming straight for our shelter!"

That rock was a monster. When they measured it later they found it was four feet long two feet wide and more than two feet thick. But Ernie didn't need any measurements to see it was big—didn't need anyone to tell him that if it ever struck that flimsy shed behind which he and Coombs were standing it would splinter it to matchwood and knock the very tar out of the man and the boy behind it.

Ernie let out a cry and started to move. A few steps away was the woodpile, high and solid, and he started to run for that.

"But I never made it," he says, "instead, the rock made me. It landed on a stone ledge beside our half completed boat shop, bounced off at an angle and came rocketing straight at me."

The next thing Ernie knew the rock was landing for its second bounce RIGHT AT HIS FEET. Ernie had presence of mind enough to jump, but the jump did him no good. Suddenly he felt the rock come up under him and he was being carried through the air.

After that, Ernie couldn't tell you exactly what happened. And small blame to Ernie for that. Coombs was standing behind the fish shed watching the whole business. He had his eyes glued on Ernie all the time, and he couldn't tell you exactly what happened either. All he knows is that he saw Ernie carried for THIRTY-TWO FEET out into the mud flats—they measured the distance afterward—and then the rock went on over the flats leaving Ernie behind flat on his back in the muck.

When Ernie got his bearings again he was in the mud. The rock was still rolling, twenty or thirty feet farther out. He saw it stop, and then he heard somebody on the bank cry out, "Carnes has killed the Smith boy!"

Not Dead "By a Darn Sight." "But I lay there in the mud," says Ernie, "saying, 'Not by a darn sight he hasn't.' It took me a few moments to work my feet and hands clear of the mud, and then, to the surprise of a dozen people I got up and walked over the flats toward the sand bank."

"Not a man offered me a hand as I started to climb the bank. They just stood there petrified, looking as if a ghost was coming at them. But when I did get up they asked me what happened. No one seemed to know except Mr. Coombs, who had been watching me, and he wasn't any too sure himself."

Two doctors had just landed from a boat at a wharf close by, and they looked Ernie over. Except that his clothes were practically torn to ribbons and his right side had a few black and blue spots, they couldn't find anything the matter at all.

The next day Ernie went back to work again, and his first job was juggling ROCKS—clearing away about two tons of them that had come out of Carnes' excavation and showered all over Coombs' half-laid boat-shop floor.

Fan eagles were famous in the eighteenth century for the quantities of fish they devoured off the Norfolk coast.

Hawaii's Sea-Going Ponies

THE only sea-going cow ponies in America are believed to be those used by the ranchers of Hawaii Island, 200 miles southeast of Honolulu.

With the same ease that ponies on the western plains handle a troublesome steer, these island mounts handle cattle in deep ocean waters.

The 4,015 square miles comprising that island contain many cattle ranches, one of which is rated as being among the largest in the entire United States.

It is this unusual transportation problem of Hawaiian ranchers that has brought about the development of specially trained ponies for ocean service.

These Ponies Know Their Work. No horse lover could watch these ponies work without a thrill of appreciation for their stamina, training and initiative.

Hawaiian riders and ponies have to be among the best in America to all their difficult jobs. Cattle ranges run from sea level to the mountain tops, across great jagged fields of lava which years ago poured from the volcanoes.

People in Hawaii have the most unique rodeos in America when cattle are being transferred from shore to ship. Of course, they don't call them rodeos despite the fact they pack more thrills in a half hour than the usual rodeo does in its entire program.

The Cameroons, former German West African territory almost as large as Germany itself, have been mentioned in news reports with discussion of the possible return to Germany of her pre-war African possessions.

"The average man's mental picture of Africa comes to life in the Cameroons," says the National Geographic society. "Spreading families inland from the sharp angle in Africa's west coast, they have lush lowland jungles, tangled rain-forest, cool, high grasslands, pygmies, elephants, lions, gorillas, rubber, ivory, and mahogany, and in some regions the blighting plague of sleeping sickness spread by the tsetse fly."

"Most visitors arrive in the French portion of the Cameroons through Douala, low-lying port on an inlet from the Gulf of Guinea. Here are attractive homes of the few European residents, and a sprawling trading center with native villages nearby.

"Once away from the railroads, travelers find that bridges are woven of vines in the Cameroons, or one may cross a river by sitting on the head of one negro porter with hands and feet resting on the craniums of four others—ax long as the stream is no more than chin-deep."

"Back of the hot jungle of the coastal lowland lies a high and fertile plateau, covered with grass or open woods, and boasting a cool and healthful climate despite its proximity to the Equator a few hundred miles to the south.

"From this city southward, for 400 miles, runs an automobile road to Yaounde, the seat of government of the French mandate.

"Driving along this road, a traveler may see primitive tribes who wear no clothes, but he probably will see no wild animals, though they are all around him. Lions, leopards, hyenas and baboons abound, but they keep well out of sight in the thick grass that often is six feet high.

"South of Yaounde, the Cameroons are almost all jungle—the home of gorillas, great herds of elephants, and little-known pygmy peoples. Here the natives live on a plain far below that of their neighbors on the healthier northern uplands. This is the region of the tsetse fly, which harbors sleeping sickness and spreads the disease by its bite. Authorities estimate that this plague has taken a million lives in the last 20 years.

"Other diseases, such as malaria, cholera, dengue and leptospirosis are also widespread in the region. The French authorities have established hospitals at Ayos, however, and are making important progress against the disease with a new medicine, 'Trypanamide.'"

Rogers rode the range with them during a visit to Hawaii. Will showed them his bag of rope tricks, each of which was immediately duplicated by the various native cowpunchers.

"Boy!" Will remarked, "they told me Hawaiians were great swimmers but they're the greatest bunch of ropers and riders I ever saw."

Cowboys Won Prizes at Cheyenne. Will was then told about a bunch of cowboys from Hawaii who had read, a few years ago, of the wonderful roping and riding of cowboys on the western plains.

Over Mt. Everest

Aviators have succeeded in flying over the top of Mount Everest, the highest mountain in the world. Rear Admiral F. M. Fellowship, D. S. O., rose to a height of 28,000 feet in a temperature ranging down to -78 degrees Fahrenheit in 1934. In his flight over the mountain he cleared the peak by a bare 100 feet. The Houston Mount Everest flight cleared the peak on April 3 and 19, 1933.

Here's that Fast "Phillips" Way To Alkalize Stomach Quickly

On all sides, people are learning that the way to gain almost incredibly quick relief from stomach condition arising from overacidity, is to alkalinize the stomach quickly with Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

You take either two teaspoons of the liquid Phillips' after meals; or two Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Almost instantly "acid indigestion" goes, gas from hyperacidity, "acid" headaches—from over-indulgence in food or smoking—and nausea are relieved.

Try this Phillips' way if you have any acid stomach upset. You will be surprised at results. Get either the liquid "Phillips" or the remarkable new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Only 25¢ for a big box of tablets at drug stores.

Also in Tablet Form. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoon of liquid Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

Washington's Colonial Home

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S colonial home, Mount Vernon, has not been a residence for many years, nor has it been used by a member of the Washington family for three quarters of a century, says the Washington Star.

Miss Washington Howard, daughter of John Augustine Washington, the illustrious Washington's great-grandnephew, was the last private owner of the estate. She first saw the world from the most historic home in America in 1856.

Though General Washington's slaves, numbering more than 150, were freed by his will, his nephew, Bushrod Washington, who inherited Mount Vernon, John Augustine Washington Bushrod's nephew, and his son, John Augustine Washington, Jr., who in turn fell heirs to the estate, were slave owners.

Today, survivors of the last generation of negro folk born in the slave quarters of the old manor are proud that their slave parents served in the ancestral home of the Washingtons. Somehow, they give realism to the farm which George Washington owned and which they helped to care for, as young men. These white-haired men declare there never was any depression at the old farm where the nights were festive with the singing of "Roll, Jordan, Roll," "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," and "Steal Away to Jesus."

George Washington, who is said to have been worth several hundred thousand dollars in today's values, had a salary of $25,000 a year during his presidency and added resources brought to him by his marriage with the rich Martha Custis. With such wealth he was able to keep his estate of 5,000 acres in fine condition. This was despite the fact that he was constantly entertaining visitors.

By the time the property was inherited by John Augustine Washington, his nephew, in 1829, the plantation had been reduced to 1,223 acres, only about 100 acres of which were suitable for farming. When his son, John Augustine Washington, Jr., came into possession of the estate in 1860, after his mother's death, he realized that such wealth as his great-uncle George had possessed was required to restore Mount Vernon and maintain it in its former splendor.

According to tradition a Miss Ann Pamela Cunningham of South Carolina, who was a Potomac boat passenger about the time when John A. Washington wished to sell Mount Vernon, became so impressed with the tolling of the bell and the historical importance of George Washington's home that she became active in working for the purchase of the estate.

In 1868 the organization she had formed as the Mount Vernon Ladies' association of the Union contracted to buy the mansion and the patriotic appeal of the women and the efforts of Senator Edward Everett of Massachusetts, who toured the country and raised $66,254.69, Mount Vernon was actually purchased in 1860 for a shrine. Then the Washington family left the estate.

With breaking out of the Civil war, Miss Cunningham appealed to the commanders of both armies to preserve Mount Vernon. As both General Scott and General Lee gave orders that no armed man should enter the estate, the shrine was self-protected, the only neutral spot in the United States.

For several years members of at least four families of the Mt. Vernon slaves remained to care for the place, in the employ of the association. Some of the children grew up there and a few of the adults stayed long enough to gain the title of "aunt" or "uncle," which was a typical Southern respect for an aged negro.

For a while after the war visitors to Mount Vernon are said to have practiced such vandalism that they wrote their names over its walls and ceilings. Plaster was removed by those who cut pieces of laths as souvenirs, and even glass was broken in the cupola by those who wished to take away pieces of the famous home.

Today Mount Vernon, a national shrine, is a perfectly preserved plantation with mansion, greenhouse, kitchen, servant's quarters, coach house, smoke house, dairy, spinning house, carpenter's house, gardener's house and plantation office.

Perhaps the estate's closest touch with Washington are the beautiful trees in the grounds near the mansion which were planted either by General Washington or by his direction.

If the ancient ashes, beeches, buckeyes, hemlocks, coffee beans, elms, lindes, mulberry and the many venerable holly trees could speak, they would tell much about George Washington's life as a country gentleman.

America's most famous home, Mount Vernon, underwent not one but two major enlargements during the ownership of the first American who believed, apparently, that the first duty of an American citizen to his family was to provide a comfortable home, according to a writer in the Washington Post.

When first built, about 1754, the Virginia home was an unpretentious plantation house of one and one-half stories, comprising the central section of the present mansion.

Just before his marriage to Martha Custis in 1759, Washington "re-organized" the dwelling into a house of two and one-half stories by adding one complete story, but did not increase the floor area.

TASTY WAYS OF PREPARING FISH

Expert Gives Recipes Appeal to Appetite

By EDITH M. BARBER

WHILE fish and Friday are inseparable associations, in households we find that fish is served some form or other is used several times a week. On Friday, perhaps, we go to the fish market to select fresh fish for dinner, but during the rest of the week the fish shelf is likely to be called upon to furnish us with salted or canned fish for a breakfast or lunch or for that before-dinner canape.

Perhaps you have noticed the improvement in the quality of fresh fish recently. If one lives on the seacoast, one does not appreciate, of course, what it means to housekeepers inland to be able to get fresh fish which does not bear its name. The new ways of freezing and packing are giving fresh fish a deserved popularity.

We are all of us so accustomed to good quality salted and canned fish that we simply take them for granted but we are using a greater variety of kinds. A generation ago canned fish meant canned salmon and sardines; now we choose among a number of others. While fish has its own characteristic flavor, there is no food which lends itself to "trimmings" with other foods of high flavor better than fish. We just naturally use lemon or vinegar, or onion, or cheese, or tomato with fish dishes. Bread crumbs also go well with fish. They need plenty of butter, however, whether they are used as a stuffing for fresh fish or with canned fish in one of the many possible ways. One of the easiest and best fish dishes I know is simply alternate layers of canned tuna fish and buttered crumbs baked together in a casserole. In the recipe given today which calls for flaked fish, either left-over cooked fish or canned fish may be used.

Deviled Fish.

3 strips bacon
2/3 cup minced green pepper
2 tablespoons minced onion
2 cups tomato pulp and juice
1/4 teaspoon cloves
Salt
1 pound flaked fish
6 minced olives
1 cup bread crumbs

Cook the bacon until crisp, remove from the pan and mince. Cook the pepper and onion for two minutes in the bacon fat, add the tomato and seasoning and boil for five minutes. Add the flaked fish, the minced bacon, the olives and more seasoning if necessary. Place in a greased rampanin, cover with crumbs; dot with butter, and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) twenty minutes. If cooked fish is used, bake only until the crumbs are brown. This mixture may be used to spread on rounds or oblongs of bread and baked for five minutes in a hot oven to serve as canapes.

Hashed Broiled Fish and Potatoes.

1 pound fish
Salt
Pepper
Chopped parsley
2 cups chopped boiled potatoes
1/2 cup salt pork fat.

Flake the fish and add with the seasoning to the potatoes. Heat the fat in a heavy frying pan and stir in the fish and potatoes. Stir constantly over the fire for three minutes, let brown underneath, shaking the pan occasionally to avoid sticking. Fold like an omelet, turn out on a platter and garnish with parsley. If uncooked fish is used, it will take about forty minutes to brown. Cooked fish will brown in about twenty minutes.

Fish and Cheese Souffle.

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 1/2 cups milk
1/2 cup grated cheese
3 eggs
Pepper
2 cups flaked fish
Paprika

Melt the butter, stir in the flour, and when well blended add the milk and cheese. Stir over the fire until thick and smooth. Beat the egg yolks slightly, add the sauce to them slowly and add the seasonings and flaked fish. Fold in the beaten egg whites and pour the mixture into a greased baking dish. Sprinkle with grated hard cheese, set in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven (375 degree F.) twenty minutes until firm. Oyster or shrimp sauce may be served with this. 1/4 cup flaked lobster, crab or shrimp may be used in the souffle itself instead of the two cups of flaked fish.

Special Sauce.

2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
Paprika
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons minced green pepper
2 tablespoons minced pimiento
1 tablespoon capers or minced olives

Melt butter, stir in the flour and seasonings, and when well blended add the milk and mayonnaise. Stir over a low heat until smooth and thick. Let boil one minute, remove from the fire and add the pepper, pimiento and capers or olives.

Luxury Spread That Is Yours With Thought

Companion squares in flat crochet make the loveliest household accessories. A square at a time made in spare moments—time you'll never miss—and before you know it you'll be ready to join them for a cloth or scarf. As a bedspread, too, this design will be a winner. Use string—it's easy to work with, inexpensive, lovely when done, and wears like iron. If it's gifts you're thinking of, use a finer cotton and make a pillow top, vanity set or other small articles that take but a few squares. In pattern 5738 you will find instructions and charts for making the squares shown; an illustration of them and of the stitches used; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) to The Sewing Circle Household Arts Dept., 226 W. Fourteenth St., New York, N. Y.

"Quotations"

In the final analysis, no nation is better than the individuals who compose it.—Cordell Hull.

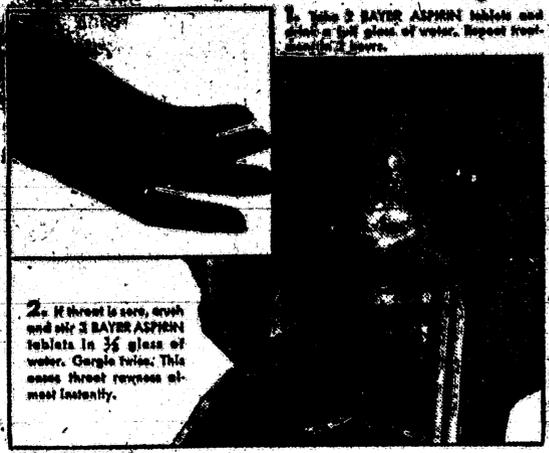

Every nation builds too many warships and too few friendships.—Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt.

Aviation has brought a revolutionary change to a world already staggering from change.—Charles A. Lindbergh.

It is not possible to conduct a modern war if the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth is told.—Sherwood Eddy.

15¢ Price Now of Famous Cold Remedy

Genuine Bayer Aspirin the Thing To Take for Fast Relief

Instead of buying costly medicines for a cold, try the way nearly any doctor you ask will approve as the modern way—BAYER ASPIRIN. It is perhaps the most famous and most widely used of all cold remedies today—yet costs only 15¢ for a dozen tablets or two full doses for a quarter anywhere in the United States. Virtually 1¢ a tablet.

The way you use it is this: Two BAYER tablets when you feel a cold coming on. Take with a full glass of water. Then repeat, if necessary, according to directions in each package.

This will act to fight fever, and pains which usually accompany colds. Relief comes rapidly. Get the genuine BAYER ASPIRIN by asking for its full name: not by the name "aspirin" alone.

JOYS GLOOMS

HOORAY! A LETTER FROM SALLY! HOPE SHE'S GOING TO THE DANCE WITH ME!

OH-OH! SHE SAYS SHE NEVER WANTS TO SEE ME AGAIN! WELL... JUST THE SAME... I'M GOING TO HAVE A TALK WITH THAT GIRL!

CHARGE!

BUT, SALLY... I DON'T UNDERSTAND! WHAT HAVE I DONE?

OH, I DON'T KNOW AND I DON'T CARE! MY HEAD ACHES... AND I NEVER SLEEP NIGHTS... PLEASE LEAVE ME ALONE!

WELL... IF YOU'D DO AS THE DOCTOR SAID YOU WOULDN'T FEEL BAD... OR BE SO CROSS AND MEAN ALL THE TIME!

HE SAID COFFEE NERVES CAUSED YOUR HEADACHES AND SLEEPLESSNESS... TOLD YOU TO QUIT COFFEE FOR 30 DAYS AND DRINK POSTUM INSTEAD. WHY DON'T YOU DO IT?

CHEESE IT! GLOOMS WE'RE TICKLED!

OH, ALL RIGHT... I WILL!

30 DAYS LATER...

SHE'S BEEN A CHANGED WOMAN! SINCE SHE GOT RID OF HER HEADACHES AND SLEEPLESSNESS...

YEP... SWITCHING TO POSTUM SURE DID HER A WORLD OF GOOD!

YOUR MONEY BACK... IF SWITCHING TO POSTUM DOESN'T HELP YOU!

If you are one of those who cannot easily drink coffee... try Postum's 30-day test. Buy a can of Postum and drink it instead of coffee for one full month.

If... after 30 days... you do not feel better, return the top of the Postum container to General Foods, Battle Creek, Michigan, and we will cheerfully refund your money.

the full purchase price, plus postage! (If you live in Canada, address General Foods, Ltd., Cobourg, Ont.) Give Postum a fair trial... drink it for the full 30 days! Postum contains no caffeine. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. Postum comes in two forms... Postum Cereal, the kind you boil or percolate... and Instant Postum, made instantly in the cup. It is economical, easy to make and delicious. You may like coffee at first, but after 30 days you'll love Postum for its own rich, full-bodied flavor. A General Foods product. What the New Mexico Papers Think of It

Deming Headlight:

And we have to admit that any such gamble takes in far too much territory to appeal to us. Today, no sound reason, in the public interest, has been advanced for the reformation of the Supreme Court. And we shall trail along with the vast majority of ordinary citizens who see in the proposal so much danger to our government structure as to make it highly undesirable.

Astec Review:

There are those who believe that the eventual result of the present political tenets will be the return to slavery for the common masses, a slavery where private initiative is suppressed and Liberty is defined by the master.

Rooswell Record:

The president's plan is to forcibly retire members over the age of 70 years, and to increase the number of members by six, all planned to permit him to thus add followers of his own and gain control of the Court. The entire proceeding is most obnoxious. It is unthinkable that Americans will support it in sufficient numbers to see it placed into effect.

Lincoln County News:

The Constitution is like the old-time religion; it's good enough for me.

Valencia County Review:

The president's proposal to 'fire' half of the justices of the Supreme Court in order to make it easier to put through unconstitutional new deal projects.

Eddy County News:

When he is given control of Supreme Court, then the last vestige of the American form of government will have disappeared. Russia has its Stalin; Germany its Hitler; Italy its Mussolini, and America will round out the quartet with its Roosevelt.

Public Confidence

Challenging a recently published statement that there is an "appreciable loss of public confidence in banks," William A. Boyd of Ithaca, N. Y., asks why, if this were true, bank deposits are constantly increasing. "I maintain that any banking institution which has continued to serve its community since the trying days of 1929 must be enjoying the respect and confidence of that community, and I am sure that the very large majority of banking institutions which have come through this depression have never had to 'regain' public confidence," he says.

Trust Institutions

A directory of trust institutions published by the Trust Division, American Bankers Association, lists 2,853 institutions having aggregate capital funds of $4,428,000,000 and total resources of $22,422,000,000. It shows a total of 6,341 men and women engaged in this phase of bank work. The trust institutions comprise 1,364 stock-chartered trust companies and banks and 1,497 national banks with trust departments located in 1,464 cities and towns.

Washington's Great Example

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Historians have said that no name is better known or more highly revered throughout the world than that of George Washington.

"They call it 'The brightest name on history's page.' Why? Because Washington sought and won political power for himself? The historians say no. Rather it was because he relinquished such power—which was his for the taking—to invest it instead in the people under the constitutional system of checks and balances on which our Republic is based.

"But for Washington," explain the historians, "the Republic would never have been conceived; the Constitution would not have been formed, and the Federal Government would never have been put in operation."

What an example to those leaders who, throughout the world, seem now engaged in taking power from the people for themselves.

What an example to the dictators of Europe—and their admirers—who believe that the world has outlived the democracy for which Washington fought, and which in a brief century and a half made the nation he fathered the greatest and happiest on earth!

Washington's name runs not on the power he grasped for himself, but on the power he shared with the people. That is something for all the world to remember as it honors the most famous of American birthdays.

Holdout Technique of Cards, Yankees Provides Contrast

There probably are other ways in which the business heads of baseball's two most efficient farms perform their daily chores. At this season, though, it is the manner in which they manipulate their holdouts that provides the most enlightening contrast.

Branch Rickey of the Cards is a prime exponent of the "let's raise hell before we sign the papers" school. Even when not blessed with such a gifted debating opponent as Dizzy Dean he is a firm believer in the benefits to be obtained from airing salary squabbles in press, news reels and any other available public forums.

Ed Barrow of the Yankees long has been convinced that unballooned negotiations provide the best results. New and then—during the later years of Ruth—Cassin Ed yields to the temptation of a fine fanfare of publicity during the weeks immediately preceding the signing of a contract. But the blather surrounding such yieldings only serves to convince him the more that regular methods are the best. Immediately thereafter he returns to the policy of offering a fair price.

But the fact that such high-salaried notables as Ruth and Dean usually are pretty close to a meeting of minds with the management before all parties start yelling in the papers—probably is the reason why few business managers take the winter fur seriously. Several big-time clubs are notorious for paying piffling wages, but, in general, the average is high. So, because an Eddie Roush comes along very seldom, the managers are happily fortified.

Dizzy Dean

Roush never could have proved his point as easily as a Hubbell, who might give evidence that the added customers at one Sunday game are sufficient to pay his annual salary. But Eddie knew he was worth $100,000.

Once he held out most of the summer before Cincinnati met his terms. At other times he may have remained away from spring training merely because the shifting sands of Texas and Florida did not agree with his aging dogs. But all the while he knew he was worth $100,000 and since the days of the lamented Chris von der Ahe no clubowner has been willing to sacrifice a sum merely to humor a stubborn whim. So Eddie got his way.

Apart from the Dean-Rickey advertisement and one or two other carry-overs of similar nature this winter's show of holdouts seems considerably below the usual belly-boo par. Most of the boys—although as one who likes to see greedy and mismanaging owners clipped for extra dough now and then I make this statement sadly—seem to have a little heart in their demands as Hank Leiber did twelve months ago.

Public prints reported the big outfielder as threatening to coach baseball at Arizona university rather than sign the contract offered by the Giants. Hank is a valuable young player and, even though the Giants' terms seemed very decent, this is a world which favors a guy getting all he can.

In the midst of his most violent protestations he made one mistake, though. He kept writing to friends in New York asking how the Giants were reacting to his demands. This definitely revealed a crack in his armor. So, having heard the gossip which may or may not have reached Horace Stoneham's ears, I was not surprised to see Hank walk into a Pensacola hotel only a few days later.

Rocky Mountain basketball teams usually travel long distances in autos for their league games. Fanchula A. & M. recently finished a 450-mile auto trip and won a one-point victory. Last winter the Utah Aggies left for a 135-mile auto trip at 8 a. m. and didn't arrive until 9 p. m. because of snowdrifts, slides and cold weather. Then they climbed out of the cars, put on their uniforms and won by a big score to clinch the championship. The pioneer spirit still prevails. . . . Only three members of the Hershey hockey team remain in the town during the off-season. Lloyd Blinn works as an assistant golf pro, while Audley E. (Tut) is an accountant with a college degree and Russ Russell keeps in trim in the lumber yard.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

EARLY baseball odds make the Browns, Phillies and A's 200 to 1. . . Helen Jacobs, Peggy Scriven, Dorothy Round, Jesse Owens and most of the basketball stars hear out physicians' claims that most good athletes have flat feet. . . Pedro Montañez, the Puerto Rican lightweight, wears bright red shoes while working out in the gym. . . Women played basketball almost as early as men. In fact, they started one month after Dr. James Naismith invented the game in 1891. . . Mort Lindsay, captain of the Jack Dempsey team in the coming national ten-pin championships, has participated in 27 of the A. B. C. tournaments. . . The U. S. G. A. always waiting, about being mistreated in the papers, has a publicity department that is tops in nuisance value.

Gents who persist in saying that Joe Louis needs extra tape and bandages for his oversize paws, should take a look at the Bomber some time. Actually he has very small mitts for a heavyweight. . . One reason for Minnesota's gridiron success is that 9,000 candidates turned out for the university's intercollegiate and intramural athletic teams during 1936. Of these 400 were candidates for the frosh football team and 233 for the varsity. . . Rev. Reginald Ferrier is president of the American Mouse Fanciers' association, a new organization. . . Umpire Bill Dineen was surprised, and elated, to discover a big increase in his American league contract. . . Fourteen members of the 1936 Columbia varsity and junior varsity crews will be available again this year.

Hockey gossips say that the poor showing of the amateur Brevets is due to jealousy among the players. The boys remember inter-town and inter-sectional feuds in their native Canada and so team play is sacrificed in one of those "every man for his own self" scrambles. Russ Russell, Hershey wing, has not missed one of the more than 140 games played since he joined the B's. . . Lucien Gagnon, the Hershey goalie and a protégé of the famed Georges Verina, stopped 99 out of 100 shots while helping the Quebec Bears win the Allan Cup in 1932. . . Lester Patrick, manager of the Rangers, is one of the nation's best story tellers and can sing a bit, too.

Bill Terry's Son Won't Follow Dad's Footsteps

Bill Terry, manager of the Giants, has a son at the University of Virginia, who doesn't participate in athletics. . . Fred Frick, son of the National League president, confines his DePauw university sporting attention to golf.

Bill Terry

Joe Falcaro, former match game bowling champion, has a sixteen-year-old son whose football work and other actions on the alleys are ringers for those of his old man. . . Hungary, England, Bohemia, Germany and Norway provided the ancestors for the members of Marquatta's varsity basketball five. . . Al Barabas, who scored Columbia's Rose Bowl touch-down against Stanford, has given up the notion of being a lawyer. Instead he is selling accident insurance along with Ivan VanBrec, former Colgate track captain.

A new combine from the West has joined Jack Pfeffer in an effort to oust Jack Curly from local wrestling, proving that some people never learn. . . Dr. Blar examined a fighter at Pompton Lakes the other day and asked him if he was suffering from amnesia. "I never touch it," declared the pug. . . Gunboat Smith is head runner for a Wall Street house. . . Doctors keep telling Tony Cazorletti it will be a boy. . . Johnny Dundee never misses a local fight and thinks he can still beat most of the local scrappers. . . Aldo Spoldi is a regular Metropolitan Opera patron when not belting over lightweights. . . After delivering two knockouts in a row, Indian Quintana feels so much better that he will demand another chance at the bantamweight titleholder. . . One reason why Promoter Bill Johnston is topping all the 25-year-old records at St. Nicholas Palace is a very good press agent.

Members of the Kokomo high school basketball team became so indignant after losing five straight games that they demanded Coach Al Campbell change his methods. The coach merely told the boys not to come out to practice any more and awarded their uniforms to new candidates. . . Paul Miehler, Bloomington H. S. center, and Jim Butler, Decatur Central H. S. (both of Indiana), wear No. "00" on their basketball jerseys. But in spite of having plenty of nothing, they're both high scorers.

Jimmy Johnston, Jr., who took plenty of short-end dough on the Foster-Lewis battle, provides the following list of historic encounters where long-prize layers walked the plank: Dave Wade vs. Jimmy Stabery, Willie Jackson vs. Johnny Dundee, Ace Bushler vs. Ruby Goldstein, Billy Petrella vs. Jimmy McLaughlin, Honey McLaughlin vs. Ed Torrie, Tony Capozzoli vs. Jimmy McLaughlin, Jim Bradstock vs. Tuffy Grubbs, Jim Bradstock vs. Earl and Schmeling vs. Louie.

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

Washington.—More perhaps than ever before in our country's history, the courts of the President and the Court and state, are in a jam. They are being subjected to a greater strain than ever before and, I think, the strain is too great for them long to continue to bear it.

That sentence sounds sensational. It is meant to be. In the opinion of many sound thinkers, men and women of vision, there has never been a time when a wave or surge has attacked the courts or any other American institution with such ferocity.

One of the reasons the situation is to be regarded with so much concern is President Roosevelt's latest request of congress for a reorganization of the judiciary system. He is asking for more judges everywhere which, of itself, seems entirely proper, but the message astounded observers by proposing an increase in the membership of the Supreme court of the United States to fifteen. That is to say that if it were enacted into law, Mr. Roosevelt's own proposal would give him authority to select six additional justices of the highest tribunal. Inasmuch as the present membership of the court has refused a number of times to hold New Deal legislation valid under the Constitution, it takes no stretch of the imagination—at all—to figure out that Mr. Roosevelt's proposal would give him authority to select a sufficient number of new justices, so that the New Deal would hold the balance of power in the highest court of the judiciary of the country.

There may be and probably is merit in the President's proposal that judges should retire at seventy years of age. It happens that the present membership of the court includes six men who are above that age and a statute compelling retirement at seventy would make six added vacancies in the court unless the present court should find that this law itself is unconstitutional in one regard. The judges are appointed for life and they cannot be removed without cause—which means they must be impeached by congress and tried.

The message respecting reorganization of the judiciary system was by far the most sensational to come from Mr. Roosevelt as President. He pointed out in it that he had proposed reorganization of the executive branch of the government so that it might function more efficiently. The next step, he said, was to reorganize the judiciary so that it could administer justice more speedily. But there are many minds throughout the country which find it difficult to believe that the necessity for speedy justice is the fundamental reason for the new proposal.

It is too early to tell, of course, how congress will act on the President's suggestion, but the more astute observers here are quite convinced that such legislation cannot go through without a bitter debate. The political implications are many. If a real struggle develops in the house or the senate, it is not outside the range of a good guess to predict that it could split the tremendous Democratic majority asunder in either house. If it did that once, undoubtedly enmities and factions would be created that would continue through the remainder of the President's new term and only the passage of time can disclose how far reaching such a thing might be.

But let us review for a moment some of the background of the conditions that have preceded the President's sensational proposal. There have been sniping and bushwhacking at the judiciary for a number of years and this was thrown into high speed by the President himself when the Supreme court threw out the NRA. On that occasion, Mr. Roosevelt made the well remembered remark that the decision had taken us back to "the horse and buggy days."

There followed an uproar by a vocal minority of radicals and persons who claimed to be liberal. They attacked the Supreme court for throwing out New Deal measures, ridiculed the justices as "the nine old men" and proceeded in general to spread poison to all and sundry about the country's judicial system. On top of that came Mr. Roosevelt's speech to congress last month in which he made a virtual demand upon the Supreme court for "a more enlightened interpretation of the Constitution." That was an unprecedented thing but it was not nearly so sensational as the present proposal.

Much of the problem that is swirling around the courts of the land results from the position which congress has chosen to take. There are a goodly number of representatives and senators who, awayed by the vocal minority mentioned earlier, have voiced bitter criticisms of the judiciary and have even proposed that its freedom be curbed. They are doing this because they see the Supreme court deciding every now and then that some ill-thought-out piece of legislation should be tossed out of the window. A good many of these congressional shouters have only a slight understanding of the babble that they put out on the floors of the house and senate, but the fact remains they are a part of the congress and hence their words are received with some consideration among those who want to believe the same way.

On the other hand, there are men like Senator Borah of Idaho, who foresee real trouble for all of us if the powers of the courts are curbed. Senator Borah thinks the question of the freedom of the judiciary is a paramount issue and lately has made a powerful appeal that if the people want to make changes in their government, the people ought to do it and not the President and the congress.

The Idaho senator makes the point that only through a judiciary unfettered by politics, free to operate as it sees the law, can the people of the country retain their freedom. If judicial independence goes, liberty goes. So, it seems to me that congress, which just now is the spearhead of the movement to change the power of the courts, ought to recognize its own responsibility.

I said earlier that the courts could not continue long to bear the present burden of attack. That burden which they carry now results largely—and this is especially true of the Supreme court of the United States—from the fact that congress has ceased to be a deliberative body. It has tossed great chunks of undigested legislation at the courts and when the courts have held these laws unconstitutional, a bunch of nitwits each time has unleashed a great howl. It would seem then that the proper conclusion is that the nine old men are not older nor any less enlightened than the members of congress or the executive branches of the government but that especially congress is failing to do its job. It is attempting to read election returns into the judiciary. It seems to me it ought to be remembered by members of congress and officials of the executive branch of the government that each and every one of them has taken an oath as an official of this government to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution and in so doing they must defend the courts.

In any discussion of congress and its activities, I find time to do a little laughing.

Laughs Are Loud Today Through the last several weeks, a period when floods were raging and people were dying, when thousands upon thousands walked the streets without jobs, when other thousands walked the streets because a militant labor leader had called a strike and had permitted his strikers to violate laws of the land by seizure of property—while all of these things were happening, our congress was giving thought to a picayune proposition.

It was discussing a bill providing for alterations of the Capitol building, itself. The tragedy of this particular thing is that it has a very good chance of being enacted into law before the end of this session. It is proposed to spend four or five million dollars to extend and reconstruct the central portion of the Capitol along lines that would make the three east wings extend the same distance from the main building. It would enlarge the central portion and provide more office space when, as far as any observer can see, there is ample space for all of the offices required now or for the next half century.

I said the tragedy of the thing was that this proposal stands a fair chance of passing through congress. Sponsors of the plan declare it will improve the appearance of the central portion of the old building. It may do that but I have found more architects who disagree than agree with that thought.

As for the office space argument, it would appear that somebody in congress is quite determined simply to spend some more money. It is to be remembered that only two years ago, the house of representatives built a second office building at a cost of $6,000,000 for its members. About the same time, the senate added a wing to the senate office building so that each senator could have three rooms whereas heretofore the average senator had only two rooms in his suite. Committee chairmen always have had three or more rooms. In addition, there are several hundred offices in the Capitol building itself and a goodly number of senators and representatives have private offices in the Capitol as well as in the office buildings. So altogether, I think there is just ground for saying, as one hears said frequently, that the congresses of the last few years much resemble boys who have received too many toys in one delivery. They don't know what to do with themselves.

We've a Date to Sew!

OH GRACE, before you go—you're not in a hurry, are you—notice Mabel's ally. Isn't that the one that you were telling the girls about at the Bid-Or-Bid club last week, Mabel?

Yes, it's my Sew-Your-Own and I'm real proud of it because it fits so smoothly. There's no bunchiness at the waistline or hips—it's fitted, you see—and yet there's lots of room around the bottom. And do you know how long it took me to make it—no self praise, but exactly two hours by the clock. I simply followed the pattern's instruction chart—as easy to do as to connect a new dessert.

It would be grand for a tailored dress like mine, wouldn't it, Mabel?

Just the thing! Are you off to the Civic League luncheon at the Hall? Your dress made up beautifully in that aquamarine, Grace. I'm crazy about it. The yoke-and-sleeves-in-one idea is swell and the black tie and buttons to match your hat make you look like Mrs. Merrivether herself.

Now, now, cut the rave. You know that neat-but-not-gaudy is my motto. Bye, I'll see you in print.

So long . . . Anne, since you like my slip so much, I'll be glad to help you make one like it, if you want me to.

That's lovely of you, Mabel, but would that sort of thing be right for a "Stylish Stout" like me?

That Blending Effect. Leave it to the men! This slip would be especially good for you, Anne, because it's fitted and George or no George, you look stylish in that dress you're working in that dress you're working in—but you DON'T look stout. The panel in front breaks the skirt line, and the jabot and collar do wonders for the "Buz-zum." It would be grand made up in a flowered print for Spring, Anne.

That very idea occurred to me. Why don't we get together tomorrow afternoon and sew—are you game? Come to my house. It's a date, Anne, I'll be over in the morning as soon as the kids are off to school.

MONDAY—Continued

"I'll promise to do that," I agreed. "And what have you been doing, Hopeskill?"

"Oh—tennis, swimming," he answered, adding a little evasively, "a lot of things. Caro Prentiss is a swell kid, isn't she?"

"Yes, I like her better than any other young girl who's come to Safrit. She has a quality."

"And what a face!" Hopeskill added. "Figure—personality—charm—she's got everything. And such vitality and strength!"

"I'm glad you're enjoying her so much," I commented.

After luncheon the telephone rang. "It's Mrs. Thelford, Mrs. Avery," Sarah Darbe informed me. I had never liked Brenda Thelford—Ace's cousin. But I knew that of course I must call upon her. I felt a little mortified that she was asking help of me before I volunteered it. "How do you do, Mrs. Thelford?" I began. "I feel frightfully to think that you have had to telephone me. I had every intention of calling you as soon as I came back to normal. I've just crawled to the point where I could take a little walk this morning."

"Quite!" came Brenda Thelford's frigid, correct voice. "I perfectly understand. I wonder you are not a raving maniac. And of course I've been very busy myself."

"It must be a dreadful business for you," I murmured.

"It is. Fortunately with so many deaths in my own family, I've had some experience in this sort of thing. But I've called you up, Mrs. Avery, to ask a great favor of you. It wasn't until yesterday afternoon that it occurred to Sam: Chess that we ought to notify Bruce Hexson of Ace's death. I told Sam to call him up on the telephone. He tried to get him at intervals all day. Then we gave it up. Sam felt that he knew what had happened. Bruce Hexson then took his two servants—I've forgotten their names—'Adah and Berry.' I informed her.

we called the Camp. It is one of the most beautifully constructed log houses I have ever seen. It consists of a big living-room, bedrooms and a kitchen; an all at one side in which lived Adah and Berry. As I came around to the broad front piazza, I saw that Bruce was sitting out in front, reading his Bible. Bruce sat at a big, broad, bare table. He wore one of the tow-colored smocks with the brown corduroy trousers in which he always dressed at camp. His folded arms were resting on the table and over them his absorbed eyes were reading from his big, worn, brown calf-covered Bible. That Bible accompanied Bruce wherever he went. Once I took it up and examined it; it had I think the most beautiful print I had ever seen. I stopped for an instant watching Bruce. As though there was something hypnotic in my gaze, suddenly he lifted his eyes from the book, turned all the way in my direction. I shall always remember what a pang went through me when his gaze, encompassing me, grew soft with affection.

"Well, Mary," he exclaimed, rising, "how glad I am to see you!" My heart began to flutter. I did not like the job before me. "What have you been reading, Bruce?" I asked.

"The Psalms. They are my comfort always. Let me read you!" Thereupon he read the Twenty-third Psalm.

Of course I know the Twenty-third Psalm. I know it by heart. I have read it numberless times. I had heard it read numberless times. But that day, sitting on the little rough porch of Ace's log cabin and looking off at the tranquil sea, I really heard it for the first time because it was the first time I ever saw it.

Bruce's voice always deep—what with emphasis and stress—grows sonorous when it touches Holy Writ. Somehow with that roll of the incoming waves below as a steady underlying accompaniment, the Biblical words seemed to take on a stupendous impressiveness. Perhaps all words are empty vessels; we fill them with whatever essence we have of mind, of heart, of soul. Bruce filled the words of the Twenty-third Psalm until they brimmed. He closed the book. "It's too early for tea, Mary. Can Adah bring you a cool drink—a temperance drink," he reminded me.

"I was not conscious of being thirsty but I had a cowardly desire to put off the fatal moment."

"Yes," I answered. "I'd like some of your delicious root-beer."

Bruce reached up toward the roof of the piazza, tugged at a hanging rope. Inside somewhere a bell rang. Presently Adah appeared. Bruce gave his order. Adah vanished and reappeared with a foaming Wedgewood pitcher. Moving with her noiseless speed, she filled a glass for me and one for Bruce.

Presently Bruce put his glass down. He looked at me a little questioningly I thought.

"Bruce," I said, in a trembling voice, "I've come with bad news. I've got something dreadful and something heartbreakingly sad to tell you."

"My dear friend," he abjured me gently, "tell me!"

"Bruce—oh dear, dear Bruce, it's Ace. Ace is dead. It is more awful than that. He was murdered. He was murdered the night of Mattie Stow's masquerade. He wore a costume of a Roman soldier and he was found dead, stabbed to death by his own short sword, in my Spinnery."

I could not look at Bruce Hexson. I closed my eyes for an instant. For that interval, there was complete silence. Then a strange sound pulled my eyelids up. I hope I never hear that sound again. I hope I never see that sight again.

Bruce Hexson had turned to the table, had dropped his head on his folded arms, was sobbing—the great hoarse, racking sobs of uncontrolled male agony.

TUESDAY

I slept a little that night. I got up at the regular hour, ate my breakfast with Hopeskill and Sylvia. Soon after breakfast, Hopeskill left for this morning game of tennis with Caro Prentiss.

With that sixth sense we all possess and which, in that strange interval of my life, seemed to have doubled on itself, I became aware presently of sounds from the Spinnery. Presently Sarah Darbe came into the room. I said, "There's somebody in the Spinnery, Sarah. Who do you suppose it is?"

"It's Mr. Hopeskill and Miss Prentiss, Mrs. Avery," Sarah answered. "They're there all the time. I suppose they're still hunting for clues."

"How's Bessie this morning?" I asked Sarah.

"I don't think she slept very well last night, Mrs. Avery."

"I'll go out and see her now," I said decisively.

Bessie was busy with breakfast dishes. Snocking as had her appearance seemed to me the day before, it was doubly shocking today. Had that gray, ironed face ever shown a sparkle, a dimple, a smile? "Bessie," I began at once, "you look tired to death." And then as though Sarah had said nothing to me, "Do you sleep well?"

"Not so very well, Mrs. Avery," Bessie answered.

"It's the shock, Bessie," I explained to her. "I feel better but I am by no means myself yet. So don't be surprised that you are so broken."

"No, Mrs. Avery," Bessie said stonily, "it doesn't surprise me."

"Bessie," I suggested, "would you like to go away for a week or two? I think a change would do you good."

Bessie's steely mask flared with panic. "Oh no, Mrs. Avery!" she remonstrated in a frightened voice. "Oh no! I don't want to go away from here. I can't go away from here. I can't—I can't!"

"You don't have to go, Bessie," I soothed, "if you don't want to go. But somehow, I thought you'd like a change."

Again panic flared in Bessie. "But I'm going to ask Doctor Geary to call today," I promised hastily. "He'll give you something that will make you sleep."

"I'd like that, Mrs. Avery," Bessie declared almost inaudibly.

I had scarcely finished telephoning the Geary house when the police car curved into the drive.

"Take me where we can talk alone, Mary," Patrick said. I led him to the piazza which looked toward the Spinnery. "By God, Mary, I'm in a jam!" Patrick said as he seated himself in the broad Gloucester hammock. "I might have to arrest Margaret Fairweather. And anyway, I've got to put a watch on her house."

"Oh no!" burst from me involuntarily.

"That's the way I feel about it!" Patrick commented grimly.

"It would kill Flora if Margaret was arrested."

"That's the way I feel about it," Patrick repeated, more grimly still.

"Queer I never thought of her when Tony told me about the tall woman in dark clothes. You thought of her at once, didn't you?"

At first I did not reply. Then I said, "How did you know that?"

"Because later, when I thought of it myself, I could remember your face. I realized that you'd thought of it. Not that either of us said anything."

He paused for a moment. "Perhaps I could fix it to let Margaret stay in her own home for a while. I could detail a car to saunter up and down the cliff—without raising suspicion, I guess."

"But you haven't any real evidence on Margaret," I remonstrated.

"It is a little negative, I'll admit. But here you are. No woman left the masquerade until long after midnight—with the exception of Molly Eames—Molly Treadway, I mean. Molly left with Walter. No other woman came over to the Head that night. There was no other woman at home that night on the Head—except Flora and Margaret Fairweather and Hannah. One of my men called with his wife on Hannah last night. He called, of course, because I sent him, but Hannah doesn't know that. Naturally they talked about nothing but the murder. He established that Hannah spent the whole evening with Flora—Margaret slept, as she frequently does, downstairs on the porch. Hannah said that Margaret went to bed early because she was so tired. Hannah sleeps on the porch outside. Flora's chamber. Now as soon as Hannah was asleep why couldn't Margaret have slipped out quietly from the piazza to meet Ace Blake in the Spinnery?"

"But what would she want to meet Ace for?" I queried mechanically.

Patrick did not answer me. But he looked at me. I made no comment. But I looked at him. Unsaid things began to whirl in the air about us. And then I heard an automobile crunching up the drive.

"Miss Fairweather is here, Mrs. Avery," Sarah Darbe announced from the doorway. "She says she would like to see you and Mr. O'Brien."

My thoughts began to spin. I made up my mind to say nothing about Hannah's nap.

The ostrich's diet is almost wholly vegetable, consisting of seeds, fruits and grasses. Eggs and insects are rarely eaten. They swallow small stones and gravel to aid digestion.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for February 21

THE POWER OF JESUS OVER DEATH

LESSON TEXT—John 11:23-26, 32-44.
GOLDEN TEXT—I am the resurrection and the life. John 11:25.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When Jesus' Friends Stopped Crying.
JUNIOR TOPIC—With Jesus at Lazarus' Tomb.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Power of Jesus over Death.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Power of Jesus over Death.

Life, even to the follower of Jesus Christ, has its hours of sorrow, suffering, and bereavement. While the Christian is not "of the world," he is "in the world," and here he must meet the problems of life, including the evils to which the flesh is heir because of sin.

The fact that Jesus is our friend, and our Saviour does not exempt us from human sorrow, but it does assure us of the needed grace to bear the trial and to trust Him even in life's darkest hour.

Lazarus, the friend of Jesus, was sick. The home in which Jesus had found rest and fellowship was in deep trouble. Jesus was no longer in Judea. In haste word is sent to him of his friend's illness. But he does not come.

Why does he delay?—Such is the heart-cry of thousands today who call on him in their hour of trouble. The purposes of God are beyond our ability fully to understand. We need but to trust him and abide his time. Notice that his failure to respond at once to the message of Lazarus' sisters did not mean that he had deserted them (11:4-6). Nor did it mean that he had denied them his help (11:7). Lazarus may have been dead before the word reached him. He may also have delayed in order that there might be no question about the resurrection miracle. And he may have tarried in order that their faith might be strengthened.

Above all, do not fail to notice that he came. He always does. Jesus has never failed any child of his. The time and the manner of his answer to our prayers may not conform to our opinion of what should have been done, but let us remember that we know only in part, he knows all. Let us trust him. Job in his darkest hour said, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him." (Job 13:15).

It is suggested that this lesson for today be studied and taught by considering three pairs of words giving cause and effect.

I. Death—Sorrow (vv. 32-35; also vv. 19-21).

Try as we may to temper its cruel blow, the fact remains that death is the enemy of man. It came into the world as the result of sin (Rom. 6:12), and only in Christ is it "swallowed up in victory" (I Cor. 15:54). Until the glorious day of Christ's returning when the redemption of the body will be complete (Rom. 8:23), death will still be the enemy which brings sorrow to the heart and tears to the eyes.

But let us not fail to notice that as the friends of Jesus we do not sorrow alone. He is with us. "Jesus wept" (v. 35) with Martha and Mary. He weeps with us in our trying hour. He is the "friend that sticketh closer than a brother."

II. Faith—Hope (vv. 23-28).

Those who believe in Christ have more than the comfort of his sympathizing presence—they have a sure hope. Read I Thessalonians 4:14-15. Sorrow and unbelief would becloud our faith and thus rob us of our hope. Martha needed to have her faith stimulated by the gracious words of the Lord, and then she triumphantly puts her hope in him as "the Christ of God." Once we recognize him as God, we have no hesitation in believing in his miraculous power.

III. Christ—Resurrection (vv. 25, 26, 38-44).

Majestic and authoritative are the words of Christ, "I am the resurrection and the life." He it was who gave life, for was he not "in the beginning with God"? And is it not said of him that "all things were made by him"? And Paul tells us that "by him all things consist." He is the only one who could say, "I lay down my life. I have power to lay it down and I have power to take it up again." (John 10:17, 18.) So it can rightly be said that if we have Christ we have everything—both in this world and in the world to come. But if we do not have Christ we have nothing. We are without God and without hope.

One can sense the urgency of the soul-winner's task, when this truth is known and realized.

Happiness and Love
Happiness is the legitimate fruitage of love and service. It never comes and never can come by making it an end, and it is because so many persons mistake here and seek for it directly, instead of loving and serving God, and thus obtaining it, that there is so much dissatisfaction and sorrow.

Life and Freedom
That life is only truly free which rules and suffices for itself.—Butcher.

A little starch added to the water used in washing windows, mirrors and other glassware will not only help remove dirt but will give a lasting polish.

To remove brown stains from light colored ranges, dip a cloth in turpentine and apply to stains. With a little pressure the stains will come off.

When broiling a steak, cut off excess fat around edge to prevent it from catching fire when placed below glowing fire.

Sliced almonds make a pleasant addition to chicken salad.

When serving pickled onions use sugar tongs instead of a fork. It is easier to get them out of the jar.

A little sweet oil applied to bronzes after they are dusted, followed by a brisk rubbing with a chamomile skin will bring out their rich tones.

Bluing spots on white clothing can be removed by boiling in clear water.

A solution of ammonia or soda and water will remove grease stains from unvarnished wood.

Pour a cup of cold water over cooked cereal before leaving it for the night. This prevents a hard crust forming on cereal. Four off water in the morning and reheat cereal.

Put a small bowl of water in the oven and your cakes will not burn. Light the oven a good ten minutes before putting in your cake. When the cake has risen and begun to set, lower the heat a little and move to a cooler shelf. To test whether your cake is cooked, touch lightly with one finger; if cooked, the surface of the cake will spring back when the finger is removed.

Wallace Beery would like to know what you'd do with that vast sum. Wallace, who takes the role of "Old Hutch" (who hasn't worked for years) is puzzled. P. S. - "Old Hutch" is coming to the Lyric Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and is Beery's most beloved character. Note - Remember him in the prison picture, "The Big House?" Wallace took the role of "Butch," and all who saw it were of the unanimous opinion that it was Beery's masterpiece.

BILLY THE KID JAIL PROPOSED AS MONUMENT

Senator Perry Sears proposed Thursday to make a national monument out of the old Lincoln County jail from which Billy the Kid made his escape. He has introduced the Bill in the House, "to declare the building, now run down, a monument to preserve and perpetuate these old associations as things of great interest to our citizens and to our posterity." Note - We sincerely trust that the Bill will go through; what do you think?

Why not the historic hamlet of White Oaks as a national monument? If it were left to a vote of the people of this community there wouldn't be any question; as Amigo Andy utters, "The 'I's' have got it."

KIDNAPING CONTINUES

With the body of little Charlie Mattson, 10-year-old boy of Tacoma, Wash., who was abducted and found murdered, not yet cold in its grave, another kidnaping took place. Dr. J. C. Davis, a 67-year-old physician of Willow Springs, Mo., was found, body bullet-riddled, in a wooded spot near that place. Bob Kenyon, 20, confessed to the crime, and charged with first degree murder. Note - It is deplorable we can't have laws like England, where justice is quick and efficiently carried out. The prisoner was kept under heavy guard to prevent lynching.
