Forest Notes

Some wood utilization Facts:
All other things being equal, that is, grade for grade:
1. Sapwood of any species is as strong when used as a beam or post and as stiff as the heartwood of that species.
2. Red (heartwood) hickory tool handles are as strong as white (sapwood) handles.
3. Timber cut from dead trees (free from decay) is as strong as that cut from live trees.
4. The harder the wood, the higher its nail-holding power, but the more easily it splits. Conversely, the softer the wood, the lower its nail-holding power, but the less easily it splits.
Hence, use slimmer and more nails in hardwoods and larger and less nails in soft woods.

Albert Lalone Killed in California

Mrs. Josefa Vega received a message from Sierra Madre, California, Wednesday stating that Albert Lalone, oldest son of Fred Lalone, had been killed by a cave-in in an unfinished cesspool. Albert had gone down for a final inspection when the earth slide occurred, burying him under tons of dirt. It took rescue workers six hours to recover the body from the bottom of the sixty-eight foot shaft. The funeral will be held today.

Albert was born and reared here and received his education in the local schools. About fourteen years ago, he left with his parents for California, where his mother died about one year ago. The many friends of the Lalone family are grieved over this sad happening and tender their condolences to the bereaved wife, father, sisters, brothers and other relatives.

The message carried no further information other than that stated above.

Memory's Lane

Sixty-five years ago, the old Webster school at St. Joseph, Mo., found itself without a janitor. The winter was coming on and men were hard to get, especially for janitor work in schools, which was heavy and tiresome. The old school had but four rooms, two on the lower and two on the upper floor. The stairways went up from the lower landing, one to the right and one to the left. It was the janitor's duty to carry heavy loads of wood and coal and keep the rooms supplied and in that country, it was extremely cold and as fast as one supply of fuel was furnished, another would run out. When the janitor would land one box of fuel, a messenger would be there to call him to some other room. It was hard to get a man to take the job. Finally a small, insignificant personage applied for the work and gave his name as Peter Dutton. He was gladly accepted. The time-honored saying of "a new broom sweeps clean" proved true in Peter's case, for he pitched into the work with a burst of glory.

A little description of the new janitor wouldn't be out of place here, as to overlook that, would destroy the significance of the article.

His height was not over four feet and six inches. His figure was bent almost in the shape of a letter S; his measurement would have been more in height had he been straightened out. His nose was bent to one side, and it looked as though he had been the victim of a head-on collision with a railroad engine. What hair he had which consisted of a little tuft in the middle of his head, was of a fiery red. As small as he was, he wore a No. 12 shoe.

Knowing how many had turned the job down, Peter had no fear of being discharged—so he became an unruly Czar and Dictator, lording it over all—and King over all he surveyed.

Peter kept the floors clean, lugged coal, cursed anyone who would attempt to interfere with his plans. No matter how quiet a teacher would like to have it in study periods—and even if there should be a class on the floor, Peter would lumber in with a batch of coal, drag it to the stove, and make as much noise as an incoming freight train.

He would streak it from one room to another with his shovel on his shoulder, like a soldier on dress parade. One bitter cold morning, the kids gathered around the stove after Peter had swept the floor nice and clean, one of the boys spit on it.

Just then, Peter came in, all of a bustle, as usual and the first thing that caught his eye, was the round spot on his clean floor. Standing before the crowd with his shovel uplifted, he exclaimed, "I'm a poor man, but I'll give anybody a dollar who'll tell me who spit that gob on the floor!" All was silence, for it

Local Mention

Albert Roberts killed both a deer and wild turkey this hunting season. We saw the turkey (in the icebox of the Zumwalt Kandy Shop) and it is a beautiful specimen, weighing over 15 pounds, dressed.

Mrs. W. T. Lumpkina of Capitan was a business visitor in town this Tuesday.

The County Agent E. W. Williams and Philip Bright were out quail hunting in the San Andres Mountains the early part of this week—and bagged the limit.

Marvin Roberts killed a nice buck while out deer hunting.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Drake of Ancho were Carrizozo visitors this Monday, having some notary work done at this office. The Drakes informed us that they purchased the latest 1938 model Oldsmobile from the City Garage.

George Harkness is among the successful hunters, having killed his buck last week.

Mrs. R. A. Walker of the Lyric Theatre received word from the veterans' hospital at Albuquerque Wednesday morning to the effect that Mr. Walker had undergone his operation and stood the same in excellent manner, but he will be confined to the hospital for about a month longer before he will be able to come home.

Earl Berry, who underwent an operation at a local hospital recently, has improved to the extent that he is now able to be on the streets with the aid of crutches. But he will soon be able to lay them down, we are glad to say.

Dr. Turner performed the operation.

Louis Mixon was here Monday from Ancho and entering his name on our subscription list, took home a box of chocolate creams, the premium we are now offering to new subscribers and also to those who renew their subscriptions.

Marion Jolly was here Saturday from Corona and sold one of those 1938 Oldsmobiles to Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Drake. Marion also took advantage of the candy premium offer made by this paper.

J. V. Stokes and son T. J., who had been visiting with the Dewey Stokes family for about one week, left Sunday for their home in Midland, Texas in a new Ford V-8.

would seem that it would be as much as a life was worth to admit to the breach of school rules. But Peter cleaned it up in a fit of rage. After that and when on the playground, the kids would call Peter from his work and as he approached, they would yell out, "Peter, here's another gob!" Peter Dutton has long ago passed to his reward; the old school has been replaced with a new and beautiful edifice, heated by steam instead of with Peter Dutton's coal and shovel, but in the "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," we wonder if Peter Dutton ever meets with the kids of the old school, and if so, does he ever find any gobs on the floor?

Favorite Recipe of the Week

What to Do With Succotash
SUCCOTASH is a combination of cream style corn and lima beans. It is an American dish, having come to us from the Indians of this country, and its popularity has lasted through the years. Today it is possible to buy it in the canned form, and while it is good served hot with salt, pepper and butter, as was the custom years ago, it is equally good, and many times more appealing, if made into different dishes.

Succotash is excellent to use in filling stuffed peppers and in making souffles and scalloped dishes, but this time the suggestion is especially for succotash chowder. If you have not tried it, do so and you will find yourself well repaid for the time and energy spent.

Succotash Chowder:
 3 slices bacon 1 No. 2 can succotash
 2 onions Salt and pepper
 2 potatoes 2 cups medium white sauce
 3 carrots Chopped parsley

Cut the bacon into small pieces and fry until crisp. Chop the onion, dice the potatoes and carrots and add to the bacon fat, and fry until the onion is a light brown. Add the succotash and about a cupful of water. Cover the pan and simmer until the potatoes and carrots are tender. Season with salt and pepper. Meantime, make the medium white sauce and add it to the cooked vegetable mixture. Allow the mixture to heat through thoroughly to blend the flavors. Serve hot with a sprinkling of chopped parsley over the top. This is hearty. If you prefer a thinner chowder, add extra milk.

GET READY FOR WINTER DRIVING

No section of our population is more dependent upon the automobile as a means of transportation than the residents of the smaller communities and rural districts. Yet each Fall, many car owners cause themselves a great deal of trouble and expense by neglecting one or all of the simple yet necessary steps to assure proper operation of the car in winter weather.

A minimum winter protection program should cover:

1. Complete change to correct grade of lubricants for motor, transmission and differential.
2. Motor tuned up, including adjusting of carburetor, valves, distributor, sparkplugs, generator and all electrical equipment.
3. Drain and flush cooling system. Refill with suitable anti-freeze solution.

Selection of motor oil and greases for winter driving is particularly important. You must select an oil which will permit easy starting, that will lubricate the motor throughout the entire driving range of speeds and will continue to do so for a reasonable mileage.

For many years Quaker State Winter Oils and Greases have been recognized as the highest quality and most generally satisfactory winter lubricants on the market.

Through Quaker State's highly developed methods and equipment it is possible to produce a motor oil which will have a satisfying body over the 400-degree range of temperature it will meet. That is, when the motor temperature is way below zero, the oil will still be fluid enough to allow the motor to turn easily and also to flow freely to all the bearings. Yet this same oil has enough body to stand up and to give the motor proper lubrication when the temperature inside the cylinder wall reaches 400° and over.

As with any other product you buy, you get what you pay for. An oil of Quaker State quality is necessarily expensive to make. This does not mean, however, that Quaker State is more expensive to use. Being pure, concentrated lubrication, it stands up longer in service. It gives more miles per quart and at the same time gives the bearing surfaces safer protection.

You will want to step into the car, even when the mercury is hiding in the bulb and press the starter with every expectation that the motor will start off with its usual Summer zest. This sure starting, plus motor protection, is only possible by preparedness.—Adv.

CHAPTER VI—Continued

Oliver was sitting up now. "I oughtn't to have come, I tell you. Bill and I've been thrown out of the hotel, we haven't been able to pay our room rent for three weeks and we're both down to carfare and we've been trying to find somebody who'd tide us over, just a loan, things are bound to break better for us soon, and—there it is. Forget it, Rachel. I'll be all right in a minute or two."

"But you said you were hungry, Oliver, that you hadn't eaten for a long time."

"Did I say that? I'm a fool. When did I say it?"

"Just before you fainted. Is it true, are you hungry?"

"Not any hungrier than usual. I had coffee this morning, and a roll, the maid on our floor sneaked them off somebody else's tray. She's a good old scout."

Rachel looked about her distractedly. "There's almost nothing in the house to eat, but I can phone to that little restaurant across the street and get them to send something."

"No, don't think of it. I'm all right. If I could have a little more hot milk—"

"Of course," she hurried again to the kitchen, heated more milk, made a couple of slices of toast. "Now," she said, when she came back, "I want you to eat all of this, it's not much. And, Oliver, look here, I've felt all along that I owed you something—a commission—for taking me to Vinco and getting me started there and now's certainly the time for me to pay it, and I'm going to."

"You don't owe me anything, I won't take anything from you."

"Don't be ridiculous. I do owe you something. And I'm going to pay it." She went into her bedroom and took out all of the money in her bag except a little silver.

"Now," she said, coming back and folding the bills flat, "you're to take this and find Bill and get yourself a room and some breakfast in the morning."

Oliver had expertly flipped the corners of the bills. "There's $30 here! You don't owe me anything. I can't possibly take this. You know I can't." But he made no move to return it.

"I feel I owe it to you," said Rachel, "and anyway you need it. I wouldn't have it on my conscience to send you out here broke and nowhere to go. And as for saying you can't take that little bit of money from me, that's rot. Why can't you?"

Oliver still held the bills in his hand. He looked at her miserably, almost with tears. "You're so kind!" he said. "You're so lovely, Rachel. And I'm nothing at all. But I love you. That's why I can't take any money from you." Before she could answer he went on, quickly: "Don't say anything, there's nothing you can say. I'm ashamed to be such a louse, I'm ashamed that I came here and—made you all this trouble. I'm going now. You'll forgive me, won't you, beautiful, dear Rachel?" He rose unsteadily to his feet and picked up his hat.

"I'll forgive you if you take the money," said Rachel, shaken and distressed. She caught the bills from his hand, pushed them into his pocket. "There, forget about it, go along and find Bill, unless—are you really strong enough to go out alone, Oliver? Do you know where Bill is?"

He flung his arms around her and held her against him, kissing her cheek and forehead and eyes. "I'll never forget this as long as I live," he whispered. "There's nobody in the world but you who would be so wonderful!" And as swiftly as he had embraced her he released her and went to the door and was gone.

Rachel stood perfectly still listening to his step on the stairs. Even in her confusion it occurred to her that he was oddly vigorous for a man who had just come out of a hunger faint. He had made, it seemed, a quick recovery. Almost too quick. And hadn't there been something histrionic in the whole episode?

CHAPTER VII

She went to the morning conference in a mood of reckless determination, for she was still angry and disturbed about the scene with Oliver.

She came into Vinco's agency before the hour, but Curt Elton was already there and the two of them went together to the chromium, plate-glass and black lacquer arrangement which was Vinco's private office and the pride of his life. "You still want to do this?" Curt asked, as they knocked.

She nodded. She didn't dare let him see how much she wanted it.

Terriss had not come but Vinco was waiting and gloomy.

"I don't know why Terriss is so late," he said, looking anxiously at a ghostly clock which was nothing but a glass face and black enamel hands and numerals, with no visible works.

"It's only two minutes past nine-thirty," said Curt; "yes, and there he is," for there was a knock at the door.

Terriss was the most commonplace man Rachel had ever seen, there was nothing about him that could be remembered. Not until later did she realize that complete inconspicuousness is the best disguise in the world.

Gurt moved over beside her as they all sat down again. "I suppose you know something about this matter," Terriss said to Rachel, "but I'll explain more fully. My client is a wealthy business man. His wife is almost twenty years younger than himself and I gather he has always relieved her of responsibility, shielded her from everything hard and disagreeable. They have, by the way, one son, a boy about seventeen, his parents think him brilliant and promising, but he's not very strong so they've never sent him away to school, he's had tutors and gone to private schools."

"There has been petty thieving going on in my client's apartment for some months; he has checked up everyone and everything as far as he can without anything being his wife, he doesn't want to alarm her or make her nervous. He has and I can sew," said Rachel doubtfully.

"I think all this is nonsense. Miss Vincent isn't the type, you can see yourself, Terriss, she's too good-looking and too well educated, your client's wife would smell a rat."

"Miss Vincent, please take off your hat," said Terriss. He took his spectacles from his pocket. "Smooth your hair back, wipe off your lipstick and put on my glasses. Now, in a uniform and cap you'd be just a nice healthy-looking girl, with your eyes obscured. You'd have to leave the enamel off your nails. I'd never have gone this far if I hadn't seen that she'd look all right. As for education, that doesn't matter, she won't have to pull any Latin or Greek."

"I don't know any," said Rachel. "The thing now is to sell Miss Vincent to my client. He's difficult in some ways, but a very fine man, Miss Vincent. I've gone over your record here, Miss Vincent, I know that your father's dead, your mother's abroad for the winter and you're living with Miss Matthews, who's employed by an advertising agency. Can you direct me to some known and reliable person who will vouch for you to me and to my client? Someone who's known you from childhood and knows your family?"

Rachel hesitated. "It's a little difficult," she said. "There's Mr. Hobart Grable, my mother's lawyer, but he probably wouldn't approve my doing this and he might alarm my mother."

Mr. Terriss listened with satisfaction. "If Hobart Grable's your mother's lawyer you've already vouched for yourself, Miss Vincent. I know Mr. Grable."

Vinco broke in fustily: "Let's get down to cases, let's get down to cases. When will Miss Vincent see your client, when will she know whether or not he likes her? I want to get her appointments arranged, I want—"

"And another thing, Louis," said Curt Elton, "this may be a very short job for Miss Vincent. I think she ought to be sure you're going to take her back on your staff."

Terriss was suave and quick. "I don't consider that Miss Vincent has ever left Mr. Vinco's staff, this work is in the nature of a leave of absence and I can't begin to tell you, Vinco, how greatly I appreciate your finding Miss Vincent for me. I felt when I called you up you were the one man in New York who could help me."

Under this blandishment Vinco beamed. "Of course Miss Vincent's not leaving me permanently, I wouldn't think of letting her do that, what do you think I am?"

"I think you're awfully good," said Rachel, gratefully. "Nothing's settled anyway, Mr. Terriss's client may not like me."

"There you are," said Vinco. "Now everything's fixed except this cranky client of yours and the sooner you see him the better."

"We'll go over to his office right now if it suits you, Miss Vincent."

"If it suits Mr. Vinco to let me, you mean," said Rachel.

"Go along, go along, and let me know what happens."

The meeting broke up at this and Curt turned to Rachel. "You took just the right line with both of them. I'm going to wait here to find out what happens."

On the way with Terriss, Rachel felt the reality of her adventure and began to wonder how much Peter Cayne knew, whether or not his wife had told him about her first child and if he knew her name.

"There's one thing I'd like to ask," said Rachel. "Your client—can you suggest any way for me to make the right impression on him?"

"Be yourself and natural, that's all. Anything phony's bound to seem phony, that's my motto. I noticed you didn't talk much there at Vinco's which is all to the good."

Mr. Terriss Listened With Satisfaction.

had, on one pretext or other, new and very intricate locks put on all the outside doors, thinking that some of the apartment house servants may have a passkey. He's had burglar alarms installed so that outside entry is practically impossible. He has had the private lives of his servants looked into and found nothing suspicious. He's up against it. At my suggestion he's finally consented to let me plant an operator in the household."

"And why don't you use one of your regular employees instead of breaking in on me like this?" grumbled Vinco.

"My client has seen my regular employees and refused to have any of them."

"He might refuse me then," said Rachel. She wondered why Cayne had not once been mentioned by name.

"May I ask you a few questions, Miss Vincent?"

"Of course."

"I'll explain first about my client's servants. There's a couple, the woman's the cook and the man's the butler, and he also valets for my client, they've been there a long time, my client has perfect trust in them. Then there's a chauffeur who lives outside, he's been there a long time, too. The lady, my client's wife, has never had a personal maid, I mean regular, there's been a sort of seamstress and maid coming in several times a week. But now this woman's taken a full-time place somewhere and my client thought it would be possible to put a woman in the house to look over the situation and trace this thieving and not have his wife disturbed by knowing about it."

"But I thought they wanted a housemaid or a waitress—I don't believe—I don't know if I could do a personal maid's work!" exclaimed Rachel. "It would mean hairdressing and manures—and probably massage—"

"I thought of that and asked my client, but he says his wife goes regularly to one of the big beauty establishments and he knows she wouldn't change, she enjoys the place and it is used to. But you'd have to keep her clothes in order and wait on her and be generally useful, maybe help out the butler and cook, answer the phone, perhaps look after the boy now and then, that would give you the right of the house and a way to close to everybody in it."

"I could keep her clothes—"

Let the other people do the talking, only listen to what they say."

They reached a high business building and took the elevator to the twentieth floor and Rachel saw that Terriss was watching her closely. "Are you nervous?" he asked, as they walked down the long hall.

"Of course," she said. "It's too exciting for words. I can't believe I'm actually doing this."

"You're all right," he said. "Here we are."

He opened a door marked "Planner's Engineering Co." and gave his name to the boy in the anteroom and a few moments later they were following this boy down an inner hallway to a door at the end. A loud impatient voice told them to come in and as they entered Rachel saw, rising from behind a great flat desk, an impressive man with a crest of white hair, his manner authority and decision personified.

"So this is the young lady," he said. Then disregarding Terriss and looking at Rachel, "What is your name, please?"

Terriss did not permit himself to be disregarded. "This is Miss Vincent, Mr. Cayne."

This was the crucial moment and Rachel held herself rigid with fear, but Mr. Cayne gave no sign of any recognition of the name. Nevertheless, Rachel could not speak, but she managed to bow naturally.

"Sit down," he ordered. "Sit down, Terriss, I suppose," turning to Rachel, "you know what I'm looking for?"

Now she must speak. She pulled herself together. "Mr. Terriss has told me something about it. Not in detail."

"Mr. Cayne," said Terriss, "Miss Vincent qualifies with me for a chance at this job. She assures me she can do the routine work of a lady's maid and we can have some extra instruction given her so that Mrs. Cayne will not suspicion anything. You don't want Mrs. Cayne to know why Miss Vincent is there? You want her to feel that Miss Vincent is a servant just like the others—"

"I haven't said that I'd engaged Miss Vincent yet. But that's right, whoever comes in there must be like the other servants and Mrs. Cayne mustn't be bothered. She isn't very well, she's high-strung and imaginative and besides she's—she's like an impulsive child, she couldn't hide her feelings, she'd be certain to give the show away without intending it." His voice softened into indulgence as he spoke of his wife.

"Would you like to talk to Miss Vincent alone?" asked Terriss. "I'll wait outside."

"That's a good idea. I won't be long," he nodded. Terriss out and Rachel was left facing him. "Now, young lady, let's get down to brass tacks. You can do a lady's maid's work, can you? Where did you learn it?"

"At home, taking care of my own clothes. I understand that this position doesn't require expert beauty-shop work."

"That's right." He looked Rachel over from head to foot. "I don't know, I don't know. I've seen all the women on Terriss's regular staff and they're terrible. Elinor wouldn't stand any of 'em for a split second. Now you're a lady, anybody can see that. Maybe you're too much of a lady, too pretty. You'd have to tone that down, but Terriss said you could. This isn't going to be easy, you know. Whoever's the thief he's smart, too-damned smart. It must be one of the servants, but they've all been with me, why, they're like friends. It's unbelievable!"

Rachel, remembering Terriss's warning to let other people talk, sat silent through all this, listening and watchful. "I wonder why he seems lonely," she thought. "He's grand. I like him."

Home Heating Hints By John Barclay Heating Expert

Let Ashpit Damper Regulate. Daily Speed At Which You Want Fire To Burn.

IMPROPER adjustment of the turn (or smoke pipe) damper in your furnace results in "chimney" loss of heat. Leave this damper closed as nearly as possible without retarding free burning of fuel or causing gas to escape into the basement.

Once you have found the ideal adjustment for it, be sure you leave it in that position throughout the heating season. Do not attempt to use it from day to day to regulate your fire. It was never meant for that purpose. The only time you need move the Turn Damper is at the start of the very cold season and again at the start of the very mild season. These two times are necessary to meet the extreme changes in outdoor temperature.

Use only the Ashpit Damper and Check Damper for regulating the fire daily—to speed up or slow down the rate at which you want the fire to burn. Rely wholly on these two dampers, and you'll get the proper fire regulation. I repeat—do not change the position of the Turn Damper inside the smoke pipe. Otherwise you'll waste a lot of very valuable fuel and heat.

30 MINUTES AFTER Eating-Drinking ALKALIZE

AFTER A HEAVY MEAL... AFTER A LONG EVENING

The fastest way to "alkalize" is to carry your alkalizer with you. That's what thousands do now that genuine Phillips' comes in tiny, peppermint flavored tablets—in a flat tin for pocket or purse. Then you are always ready. Use it this way. Take 2 Phillips' tablets—equal in "alkalizing" effect to 2 teaspoonsful of liquid Phillips' from the bottle. At once you feel "gas," nausea, "overcrowding" from hyper-acidity begin to ease. "Acid headaches," "acid breath," over-acid stomach are corrected at the source. This is the quick way to ease your own distress—avoid offense to others.

Armistice Day—1937
By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

"You are in some special sense the soldiers of freedom."

That was the message delivered by the people of America, through their Chief Executive, to the youths who made up our National Army two decades ago.

That is still the thought of America when on Armistice Day it accords to the Unknown Soldier at Arlington honors higher than are paid to any famous Captain.

On that anniversary of peace, Americans recall the ideals to which we once subscribed so wholeheartedly.

On that anniversary, we recall the sacrifices made in the cause of human freedom, in the conviction that the will of the people must supersede the will of kings and despots.

In America we not only remember these things, but continue to strive valiantly for the ideals of democracy. In Europe many nations are forgetting them—forgetting as a result not only the peace of the world, but the well-being and preservation of their own people.

Despite the picture of turmoil and cruelty which such nations present, there are men who would have America accept some of their theories. There are men who would have us weaken our democracy in spiritless imitation of methods which have brought want and terror to millions abroad.

But America knows that the only real security lies in the freedom of spirit and of body which our democracy assures.

And Armistice Day reminds us of that spirit of the American citizen—sometimes the soldier, but always the guardian, of freedom.

ADVENTURERS' CLUB

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Killer Elephant"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO, EVERYBODY:

This yarn stars Ike Rosen, our latest club member. But Ike would have given a couple of million dollars to have been left out of the cast.

First we go back to the early days of moving pictures—1915 to be exact—when Ike was employed as a technician at the Universal studios in Hollywood.

Animal pictures were going great in those days and there was a complete zoo on the lot. The king of that collection of beasts was Charlie, an elephant bought from a circus. Charlie was a good actor, but nobody could handle him except Curley, his personal trainer.

Well, Ike stepped into the dramatic part of the picture when Director Smalley began staging the wedding procession of an Indian prince. It was comedy, and, for the parts of the Indian prince and his bride, two actors, weighing nearly 400-pounds each, were cast. Ike's job was to build a huge canopied chair in which the prince and princess were to ride in state on the back of Charlie, the elephant.

Charlie Didn't Like Ike.

Ike finished the royal howdah. Workmen tried to budge it and found that it weighed nearly 2,000 pounds. Twelve men heaved and struggled to saddle Charlie with the gorgeous structure. Then, 700 pounds of prince and princess went up the ladder.

That's where Charlie took a dislike to Ike. And then, when the director called for more ornaments, Ike put a stepladder against Charlie's side and climbed up. There was Charlie's chance.

He whipped his trunk around, seized Ike by the leg, trumpeted in anger and lifted him for a dash to the ground.

Curley, the trainer, sank his curved elephant hook into Charlie's forehead and Ike limped away. That was his first round with his monstrous enemy.

The trainer knew elephants. He knew what to expect in the future, so he warned Ike. "Charlie's going bad," he said. "He'll kill you the first chance he gets."

Ike did watch out. But one night a wild chimpanzee cleverly opened his cage and almost killed a keeper. Ike hurried over to devise a lock that the chimp couldn't open. Charlie's big stall was next door. He sensed Ike's presence and went berserk. He lifted his iron water tub and beat at his chains and bars around his enclosure. The whole zoo trembled from the elephant's fury. Curley, the trainer, again rushed to the rescue.

"For God's sake, Ike, leave this studio if you value your life," Curley said. "Charlie's turned killer. He's out for you. Lucky for you his chains held."

Ike took no more chances. He gave Charlie a wide berth. But one day, when his work called him to a remote part of the movie lot, he rounded a hill and ran smack into Charlie, tethered to an anchor of poles and railroad iron, driven into the ground.

The Elephant Really "Went Bad."

Ike had no time to turn back. The bull elephant, ears flattened against his head, eyes blazing and his trumpeting echoing from the hills, charged.

Rosen was trapped. His only chance was to dive for a shallow gully that separated the movie lot from an Indian village. He flung himself into the gully and flattened himself against the side. The earth was vibrating under those plunging feet. Ike only hoped for a quick death.

Then, there was a clank of chains—the groanings of the heavy anchor poles set deep in the ground. Charlie had reached the end of his chain. His head was jerked down. He stumbled, plowed the earth.

The maddened beast was halted only a few feet from Ike's hiding place. Rosen could see those bloodshot eyes gleaming with hatred—a lust to kill.

The long trunk slashed out in fury. Ike felt a thud on the side of his head as Charlie's trunk grazed him and snatched off his cap.

For a moment big Charlie paused to hurl his enemy's cap beneath his feet and trample it to ribbons. That pause saved Rosen. He was on his feet, running, limping and ripping with cold sweat.

But Charlie bided his time. For days he worked quietly. And then, during the making of a spectacular film in a setting of old Jerusalem, Ike crossed the set and came face to face with his old foe.

Once more Charlie charged in an insane desire to crush the man who had tortured him with that huge, 2,000-pound saddle in the earlier picture. But this time Ike was in the clear. He ducked to safety. The baffled elephant, once more cheated of his vengeance, turned upon the set.

Jerusalem, with all its splendor—thousands of dollars worth of costly settings—crushed into a heap of dust and splinters.

This time Charlie did not quiet down. He was ready to kill anything in sight. Men with long, spiked poles, ripped his hide and jabbed him into helpless submission—but only for a moment.

How the Killer Was Killed.

A few days later he saw Ike in the distance and went into another frenzy. Rosen scurried out of sight, but Charlie, thirsting for a kill, seized his trainer, Curley, lifted him high into the air, dashed him to earth and then, with his massive forehead, ground him into the dust. Curley was killed instantly.

"Killer elephant!" The words set Hollywood trembling. It was no longer a single foe. It was the life of any human being.

Charlie must die, studio officials ruled. But how? Poison and dynamite were rejected as not sure enough. Ike Rosen's technical skill was enlisted. Despite his narrow escape, he hated to be Charlie's executioner, but many lives were at stake.

A heavy wire cable was rigged over pulleys, looped around Charlie's neck and lashed to two heavy trucks, headed in opposite directions. The trucks started. The loop tightened. Cables sang with the strain. Charlie looked sorrowfully and inquiringly at the men around him. His knees buckled, his head sank. His great bulk rolled over—dead from strangulation.

Squirrels as Forest Planters

Gray squirrels are natural forest planters. Ernest Thompson Seton estimates that a single squirrel may bury as many as 10,000 nuts in a season. Obviously they do not require nearly one-half of them for food. Hickory nuts, walnuts and butternuts will not take root from the surface of the ground like acorns. They must be planted or they dry up before their shell can burst. For that reason it is almost safe to say that nearly every hickory tree was planted at one time by a squirrel. The squirrel meant to come back for the nut, but didn't.

Canton Island

Canton Island is the chief spot of land among the tiny dots which make up the Phoenix group, 2,700 miles north of New Zealand. The importance of this archipelago, which lies just south of the equator, is readily seen on any map of the South Pacific. The Phoenix group lies almost on a line between New Zealand and Honolulu, practically half way between the two. Canton Island covers about eight and a half square miles, nourishes shrub vegetation and provides a salt-water lagoon navigable to boats which draw up to 8 feet.

What They Learn at School for 'Angels of the Airways'

BEFORE she is sent aloft to keep airline passengers comfortable and happy, the air stewardess must learn the ropes in special classes, such as the ones conducted at Kansas City, Mo., and pictured here.

The girls, most of whom are graduate nurses, must be taught the proper manner in which an air-stewardess greets passengers at the door of a plane; how to move about in the aisle; what to say and what not to say in conversing with passengers; the correct way to serve hot food prepared in the plane's buffet; how to make up a berth neatly and correctly (as pictured at right); the correct make-up of face and nails, and dozens of other things.

A prospective stewardess must be of somewhat mechanical bent, too, for she must understand instruction in the building of an airliner; in the heating system of the cabin; why and how a plane flies, and the duties and ability of the pilot while aloft.

Serving a hot meal to a passenger in the clouds is no simple trick. The student shown above is practicing the deft art and doing very well too. A typical meal which might be served aloft to an airline passenger would include fried chicken or lamb chops, potato chips, fruit salad, coffee and nuts.

Paper dishes are usually used for meals in the sky, but the silverware must be polished (as shown above) in the liner's compact buffet.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for November 14

THE CHRISTIAN MINISTER

LESSON TEXT—I Timothy 4:6-16; II Timothy 2:1-4.

GOLDEN TEXT—Neglect not the gift that is in thee.—I Timothy 4:14.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Two Brave Preachers.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Two Brave Preachers.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why and How Ministers Are Trained.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian Minister in the Modern World.

"The Christian Minister"—there is no greater calling among men, but none is more often the target for misrepresentation and abuse by those outside, and all too often the victim of the carelessness, weakness, and sin of those within its own circle. On the other hand it has had, and continues to have to this day, within its ranks such a noble army of faithful and sacrificial men as would probably be impossible to duplicate in any other calling.

The study of today's lesson should arouse in the hearts of Christian people a high regard for the ministry as a calling, and a kindly purpose to aid their minister to live up to its glorious possibilities. Every true minister who studies it will find his spirit humbled before God in thanksgiving for the privilege of service, and in prayer that he may be forgiven for his failures and empowered for the work of the future.

The need for such a study is indicated in the verses just preceding our lesson, namely, I Timothy 4:1-5, where we read of the express warning of the Spirit of God that in the latter times there should be teaching and preaching which departed from the faith, substituting men's wisdom for God's Word. One who looks around him cannot but feel that we have fallen upon that evil day.

I. What to Preach (I Tim. 4:6-9). The "good minister of Jesus Christ" preaches the words of God. To do this he must himself be "nourished" by them. Spare your preacher the necessity of running errands, serving on boards and committees, and encourage him to study his Bible.

Preacher, are you studying God's Book, learning and teaching "good doctrine"? If so you will have no interest in or time for "profane and old wives fables."

II. How to Preach (I Tim. 4:10-12).

1. Sacrificially (v. 10). The man who regards the ministry as a nice, easy, respectable occupation is not in the same calling as was the apostle Paul. In fact, there is nothing to indicate that he is in the Christian ministry at all, for in that calling there is labor and suffering of reproach. This is not something to be borne in a spirit of resigned submission. The minister knows and "trusts in the living God," and gladly bears every responsibility with which God may entrust him.

2. Authoritatively (v. 11). The minister of Christ speaks for God. In doing so he teaches with assurance and is to "command" men in the Lord's name. All too often the servants of the Lord feel and act like "grasshoppers" (see Numbers 13:33), and everybody else regards them as feeble and impotent, when they should be "strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus" (II Tim. 2:1).

3. Actively (v. 12). Whether young or old, the minister is to be an example, a pattern in his active daily life. Note how discriminating is the scripture. He is to be a pattern for others in speech, manner of living, in love, in spirit, in faith, and in purity of life.

III. Who is to Preach (I Tim. 4:13-16).

1. The man who is divinely called (v. 14). God called Timothy; men recognized that call and ordained him to give his life to the exercise of his God-presented gift. This is the right order for our day.

2. The man who is properly prepared (vv. 13, 15-16). The ministry calls for the best preparation that a man can possibly obtain. He must know how to read God's Word, both publicly and privately. He is to be skilled in exhortation, and in teaching Christian doctrine.

In conclusion, let us consider the portion from II Timothy 2 which properly presents the work of the minister as that of a soldier at war against the world, the flesh, and the devil. He must be prepared to bear hardness, and he must not yield to the temptation to get into "side-lines," no matter how dignified and profitable they may be. His sole business is to serve and to please God.

What Education Means

The real object of education is to give children resources that will endure as long as life endures; habits that time will ameliorate, not destroy; occupation that will render sickness tolerable, solitude pleasant, age venerable, life more dignified and useful, and death less terrible.—Sydney Smith.

Washington Digest National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

National Press Building Washington, D. C.

Washington.—The old mother hen, congress, has settled down, prepared to hatch something from the nest of crop control eggs.

Chairman Jones of the house agricultural committee began work on drafts of bills for crop control long before the session convened.

The main question before congress is the type of crop control law to be enacted. There are two kinds. Control may be compulsory or it may be voluntary.

We have seen both types used. Potato growers will remember how the potato control law laid down the rule that a quota of production should be imposed upon every farmer.

Beyond these requirements, there was also a penalty prescribed to be invoked against any person who did not properly package his potatoes and place a government stamp thereon.

Two Big Lobbies Having presented the picture as I see it, it seems almost unnecessary to add that there will be two enormous lobbies bearing down on congress in the special session.

Cotton Control regulations had to pay a tax on cotton produced over and above his allotment. This tax was so high—50 per cent of the value—that it amounted to a fine as punishment.

In addition to this farm sentiment, the lobby in opposition to the Wallace program likely will find certain phases of other industry aligned with it.

Hallowe'en night, the youngsters had their sport as usual. Buildings were overturned (if I know what you mean.) But the kids broke 13 city street lights. We think it is all right to have some innocent pranks, but willful vandalism such as this, is deplorable.

TOO DANGEROUS?

"I wouldn't like to go deer hunting, because the mountains are full of hunters from all over the middle west. 'Carrizo,' they think, is the jumping off place of the world. They think that this town is a two-gun place, abounding with Indians, horse thieves, Mexicans, rattlesnakes, cactus, and what have you. A typical wild and woolly frontier town," ventures a Subscriber.

BUCK FEVER VICTIM?

In New York, Mayor LaGuardia was elected to succeed himself by a substantial majority. He is a Republican, but favors many of the New Deal policies. LaGuardia ran on the anti-Tammany ticket, his opponent being Jeremiah Mahoney. Mayor LaGuardia was bitterly opposed by Jim Farley and Tammany.

"This New York mayor's race puts LaGuardia in line as presidential timber for the Republican party," suggests an observer.

Quoting a Subscriber: "I think LaGuardia shows the most strength as evidenced by his recent majority in New York City. If he isn't a Catholic—we all remember what they did to Al Smith, even Texas went Republican."

Big Time at Jicarilla

Last Saturday night, the Jicarilla mountains were all alight with Jack-O'-Lanterns, a noisy carnival and a big barn dance. The carnival was in the new schoolhouse, and with all the interesting things to do and see, everyone was furnished with plenty of entertainment. At the old school building after the carnival, the Alto boys kept folks dancing and laughing to a jolly tune the rest of the evening.

The people of Jicarilla wish to thank those who attended from Roswell, Carrizozo, Angus and Alto, as we say our Hallowe'en celebration was a success. Come to the hills again!—Contributed.

Narrow Escape While Deer Hunting

Wednesday morning about 9 o'clock, Leandro Vega of the Vega ranch made a trip to Pine Canyon in Church mountain to look for deer. He rode on top of the mountain and as he began to descend down the canyon and just where the trees and brush were the thickest, some nut took his horse for a deer and a bullet hit the horse in the shoulder. The horse fell with Leandro under him and barely escaped serious injury. He recovered from his fright and led the limping horse back to the ranch a distance of twelve miles. People who cannot discern the difference between a horse and a deer, should not be allowed to carry a gun.

Entertained

Mr. and Mrs. George Goodson entertained Wednesday with a one o'clock dinner honoring Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hefren who are leaving soon to make their home in Texas. Other guests invited were the Doc Kennedys, Bryan Hightowers, Jack Cleghorns and Mrs. Keller of Roswell.

Seasonal flowers of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums centered the table. Guests found their places at the table by dainty place cards of the Hallowe'en motif. Favors at the places held a fortune which each guest read aloud. After the lovely dinner and a much enjoyed social hour, the jolly crowd enjoyed the remainder of the afternoon playing cards.—Contributed.
