The writer readily recalls as incident which happened early in the spring of 81 in the town of Muskegon, Mich. Mrs. Saral Bowlin and her daughter Ollie were on their front porch enjoying the warm, dreamy spring afternoon. Buds were bursting into bloom, wild song birds werwarbling in the trees and all nature seemed to have put on a mock and gently dozing while Ollie, sat in a rocker, close by Noticing her mother's restfui composure, she laughtingly said; Mother, see if you can pick out my future husband." > "Under the Ice!" By FLOYD GIBBONS

Famous Headline Hunter

LIELLO, EVERYBODY: Do you like hunting? If you do, take a page out of the adventure book of today's winner and always carry a waterproof box of matches with you. Such a box of matches, boys and girls, saved the life of Lloyd D. Jean Menderson of Paterson, N. J., on a hunting trip in the province of Quebec in 1926. Lloyd was up in the Canadian wilds after moose in the late fall of that year and got more than he was looking for.

You travel with snow shoes and sled in that season up in that hard country, and Lloyd's party consisted of himself, an Indian guide named Eli and the guide's dog, Muro. They had been in the woods two weeks and were on their way from one branch cabin, on a desolate lake, known as Kidney lake, to another cabin.

It was 30 degrees below zero as they mushed their way slowly along the shore ice of the lake. Muro, a big powerful Eskimo dog, as gentle as he was strong, pulled their sled over the treacherous ice. The sled, loaded with everything they had, weighed over 300 pounds. Lloyd is no fightweight himself and tips the scales at 250. Luck had been bad, Lloyd says, and he and the guide were trudging along disconsolately. Even the dog seemed to understand and gazed at his master sadly as he stopped now and then to bite the clusters of crippling ice that gathered between the pads of his paws.

Plunged Into the Icy Waters.

Once the dog stopped and whined a little as though asking his master to go no further. In the light of what happened later Lloyd thinks the dog had a premonition of death and wished them to turn back before it was too late. But the men, lacking the instinct of animals, pushed on. The dog led the way, pulling the sled, the guide followed and Lloyd came on a few feet behind.

Buddenly," Lloyd writes, "I stopped horror-stricken in my tracks. A loud cracking came from the ice and before my eyes it broke and the sied and Eli disappeared from view. I had no time, however, to act, because the next second the ice gave way under me and I plunged into the ley waters of the lake.

"The shock was terrific as the water numbed me to the bone. thought it was all over with me as I went under and expected to come up under the ice, but I rose to the surface and was able to hang on to the jagged edge. Eli, I saw then, had not gone completely under. He had caught on the edge by his arms as he fell and was clinging to the slippery ice as I was: The plight of Muro next concerned me and the sight of the terrible predicament of that brave dog is one I can never forget. "He was still on the ice fighting for all he was worth to keep his footing. The heavy sled-made heavier still by the water-was slowly dragging him after it. Although all our food, supplies and guns were on that sled, I know we were both thinking only of the dog at that moment

Dog Perished Doing His Best.

"He would dig his toes claws spread wide—into the ice and pull with all his strength, but little by little the brave dog was being dragged | pleasant home-y," writes M.L.S.closer to his death. Nothing would save him, I knew, once he was in | and do we take a bow! "But now that water '

Well, sir, Lloyd goes on to say that suddenly it occurred to him to vice and so I hope you'll lend an cut the dog loose from his traces. He reached for his knife. But the in- | ear. I seem to be much too venetense cold had already done its work. A coating of firm ice covered Lloyd's gloved hand. The glove was frozen stiff to his hand. Eli had thought of the same thing, only to find his hands likewise helpless.

Lloyd says he could see the tears on his guide's face start and freeze on his wan cheeks as the dog he loved like a child slipped slowly after the sled. Muro's hind legs were now only inches from the edge of the ice. The dog looked around at his master, whined plaintively and the next second slid over the edge and disappeared forever.

The men sobbed aloud, but the fate of the poor dog brought them both back to their own deadly danger. Lloyd's 250 pounds made it impossible for him to pull himself up on the ice. The edge of the ice broke at each effort and each effort made him weaker from the cold. He finally stopped trying and hung frozen to the edge waiting for the end

Eli was a lighter man, and after what seemed hours he was able to draw himself up on the ice. He crawled on his stomach to shore and Lloyd through glazed eyes saw him go and did not blame him.

Saved by His Faithful Guide.

But Lloyd's Indian guide had no intention of deserting him. Back he came cautiously on his stomach, pushing a small pine tree in front of him. Lloyd was able to wrap his arms around the tree and was soon on chore

And then their troubles really began. With clothes soaking wet and freezing fast in the deadly cold they began their fight for circulation. They ran eight miles in that condition. Lloyd says the guide's face was black from the cold and he had to hit him to keep him awake. Cold kills by making its victim sleepy, but Lloyd wouldn't let the guide rest. More dead then alive they reached the cabin, and that's where Lloyd's waterproof matches come in.

His frozen hands finally got a blaze started, and the two lay before the fire and thawed out. No food was in the place, but they heated water and drank it hot throughout the long night. They stripped and dried their clothes and at dawn started the long trek back to their permanent camp. Both men made it and Lloyd was soon on his way home.

But the guide, Eli, took to his bed and never got up. Pneumonia set in and the brave Indian went to join his beloved dog in the Happy Hunting Ground view the situation. I have gathered information and advice from many official sources in an earnest effort to understand what is happening, but with all of that I am quite incapable of what I would regard as a complete analysis. As the air pilot would report while flying through fog; the visibility is zero.

The proper basis for a start therefore, appears to be with recollection that one of the cardinal policies of the Roosevelt administration was control of agricultural production to accomplish higher price's. Another basic plank is the foreign trade policies under which reciprocal trade treaties have been negotiated with numerous foreign nations. These two planks were designed to make markets available for what we produce, first, through scarcity | duction further in the United States. of quantity and, secondly, to stabilize the world exchange of goods on price levels which we, in this country, considered to be worth while. Various other legislative acts and White House announcements came into the picture also, but we need not be concerned with them just now.

Well, the higher prices began to materialize. They came along to the point where eight or ten months ago there was genuine evidence of a speculative boom. Mr. Roosevelt said recently in a statement to the press that the outlook on this circumstance was a bit alarming. Suddenly, however, the depression settled down on the country. The President took note of it after a time and announced that prices had to come down in order to encourage buying by the consumers. That was in January of this year. Early in Februnry, he told the press that there had to be higher prices to bring Subsequently—it was on February 18, I believe, he took another position on the price question. He said in a formal statement:

"It is clear that in the present situation, a moderate rise in the present price level is desirable and that this rise need not and should not extend to all prices.",

So that now we are committed to a price rise on some commodities and present or even lower prices on some other commodities. It is to be presumed (because there is nothing to show a contrary view) that all of the machinery of government is to be used to bring about price rises in "some commodities" but not all of them.

However, to continue our review: I reported to you in December, 1937. and have mentioned several times since that there is a trust busting drive on that is as big and as broad as the famous "big stick" which Theodore Roosevelt used when he blinds are out. I helitated long be- was President. Twenty-nine cases against so-called monopolies are pending now in federal courts and the federal trade commission has some others in process of prosecution. The prosecutions range all the way from ladies' half-size-dresses and against individuals who design styles through the list to Aluminum Company of America.

Now, while the trust drive has been on (and some folks have been cruel enough to charge that the trust busting drive is to keep the folks from realizing we are in a depression), another thing has happened. I refer to the passage of ment of Justice would continue to the new farm aid legislation. I have not been able to understand the one of God's blessings to the farmers because he says that, it will reduce or limit production and thereby force a greater feturn to the "I enclose a diagram of the prob- farmers. > I seem to recall some phrases of a few years back which described the plans as leading, first, to higher prices for agricultural products through "scarcity"; then, there came "the more abundant life" and later balanced abundance. I assume the "balanced expansion" must represent something taken in izing and expensive. I know nothbetween the other policies, but

Washington.-Changes in Presi- | porting more agricultural commodities than it exported. I could not find when that condition had obtained before. Certainly, there have been few times in our history when that has happened.

The department figures showed that the United States imported 18 per cent more commodities from the farms of the world than it exported from our farms. Further examination of those statistics reveals the disturbing fact that the bulk ofthose imports were things which our American farmers could have grown right at home. I can find no other reason for the condition than that the reciprocal trade treaties which were to bring us prosperity have taken prosperity to some other farmers.

The circumstance caused me to wonder then whether these trade treaties are not slowly grinding the American farmer into the dust. have tried to find out how the new farm aid law, which restricts prois going to help this situation. Accepting Secretary Wallace's statement that it will result in higher prices for our farm products, will it not by the same token make a greater difference between foreign prices and our own? And if that be true, is not it to be expected that there will be more imports of farm products from foreign lands? My reasoning brings an answer of "yes" in each case, and so I cannot see where we are going to get "balanced expansion" out of those factors.

Now, as Al Smith used to say, let us look at the record as it concerns the trust-busting drive and its relation to prices, employment and the like. I simply have no patience at all with the big business groups that ignore or forget their responsibilities to the public. There is no excuse and can be no excuse for crushing any individual who is trying to run a business of his own. It is one thing, however, for a business to have grown big because it serves its public well and quite another thing for the same group to have attained its bigness through savage tactics.

That brings me to the recent conviction of the oil companies in a trial that was held Trust at Madison, Wis. Busting As far as I have read the record in that case, the basis of the charge by the government was that the oil companies had used a pricing system which was fostered by the infamous NRA, a policy laid down by congress. Secretary Ickes of the Department of the Interior, now one of the loudest mouths in the chorus of bust the trusts, insisted on the oil companies getting together. He wrote letters to them to that effect. Of course, the NRA was held unconstitutional but the decision was based on the question of congressional authority to delegate powers to the executive officers. It did not declare that congress had no right to grant privilege of agreement on prices for purposes of stabilization.

We might also look at some of the tactics employed by the government. Robert H. Jackson, who was the spearhead and spokesman for the trust busting drive, lately has been promoted to the job of solicitor general of the United States. Mr. Jackson told a senate committee considering his nomination that he had picked "the proper forum" for the oil case. He said the Departdo it. They picked a New York court to hear the case against the law, but Secretary Wallace calls it | Aluminum company in order to get the proper kind of a jury as they did in the oil case.

The tactics used in the Aluminum case seem to me to be almost reprehensible. For instance, the government had been anxious to set a date for the trial and the Aluminum company counsel urged early ac-"Our program seeks a balanced tion. The record of that day in court in New York revealed that when Judge Knox proposed a date early in April, Walter Rice, one of Mr. Jackson's assistants, admitted to the court that the government did not yet have enough evidence to prosecute.

This seems for afield from the price question. I wonder if it is so far off the subject. As I said earlier in this discussion, legal action against anybody, individual or corporation, is destructive, demoraling about the merits of the oil case others beyond what I have picked up in the records. Conquering "Hazard Zones"

Above photo illustrates the "hazard zone of motoring." But every other phase of everyday life has its "hazard zones," a few of which are illustrated below. How many can you identify? Answers given by number below.

"Hazard zones" explained: (1) the "hazard zone"; affecting millions. of children improperly reared in metropolitan slum districts; (2) the "hazard zone" of floods, still unconquered despite great engineering progress; (3) the "hazard zone" of medicine, the common cold from which no one is yet immune; (4) baseball's "hazard zone," the pitch that sometimes hits a batter, like it hit Mickey Cochrane last year; and (5) the "hazard zone" of fire fighting, rural areas out of the fire aparátus' range

Another "hazard zone." undeclared war, Example: "Panay! sinking.

Frogress in DR. JAMES W. BARTON

NYONE who has regularly visited a relative or friend at a tuberculosis sanatorium learns the names of patients in adjoining rooms and wards, and can see the progress toward recovery or otherwise from week to week.

Of course the physician can see the record of each patient—the range of temperature, the amount of coughing, the amount of daily sputum, the number of times he breathes in a minute, and finally the X-ray film which shows whether the tuberculosis process is spreading, healing, or standing still.

From the above

he is able to tell the patient, or the family, just what to expect—three months, six months, or a year to recovery, or it may be just a matter of months before he passes away, notwithstanding al that can be done by way of food, fresh air, rest, or collapsing the lung by artificial air or by surgery to give it rest.

What should help the patient to fight and family to hope, despite all the other signs, symptoms, and tests, is recorded by Dr. Allan S. Kennedy of Mountain sanatorium, Hamilton, Canada, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal. Dr. Kennedy states that the blood pressure-low or high-will give the physician a correct idea of the progress of the patient.

"It is an accepted fact that active and progressing tuberculosis of the lungs is accompanied by lowering of the blood pressure."

"It is generally believed that tuberculosis patients with high blood pressure have very little tuberculosis, or, in any case, tend to heal the tuberculosis more quickly than people with normal or low blood _pressure."

Response to Cold Tells.

The response of the blood pressure to cold—a test taken every few months, will show whether or not the patient is improving.

Dr. Kennedy outlines the method used on 80 patients to obtain the blood pressure response to coldputting hand and wrist of one side in near-freezing water for 25 seconds-while blood pressure is taken on other arm.

If the blood pressure response is poor-does not increase a definite amount—the patient is not improving; if the response is good the patient is putting up a winning fight against tuberculosis.

For Underweight Child.

Some mothers are naturally distressed when they find that despite the amount and the variety of food eaten by their youngsters they still remain underweight. If the youngster is wiry or resembles one of the parents in being underweight at his age, not much is thought of it, but often there is no history of extreme underweight on either side.

If abundant amounts of meats, vegetables and fruits have been given to maintain body structure and also liberal amounts of bread, butter. milk and cream to provide energy and store up a little fat, with no proper amount of increase in weight, there is something wrong with the youngster and he should be examined by the family physician and dentist.

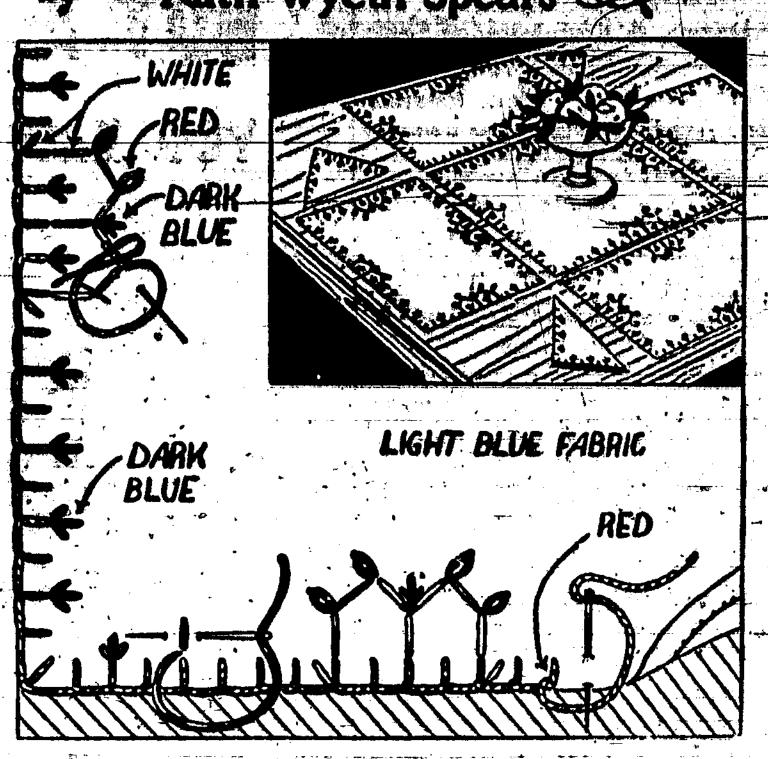

For instance, there may be a history of thyrold trouble in the family and the youngster may be an early thyroid case. Should this be so, the amount of food eaten may be quite large, yet there will be no increase in weight; the youngster continues to be underweight.

Another cause of underweight is infection of teeth and tonsils. So much of the body's energy is being used to fight this infection that there is not enough left for proper growth aside from any increase in weight.

Sometimes the youngster will play so hard and so long, perhaps stay up so late at nights, that he is actually tired all the time and the food eaten is not fully absorbed into the blood.

When the cause for underweight has been removed—fatigue, goitre, infected teeth or tonsils—then what is called the upbuilding diet should be used. This includes all the usual foods—proteins (meat, eggs, fish, poultry, cereals), all the starch foods (bread, sugar, potatoes); all the fat loods (cream, butter, egg yolks), and the minerals and vitamins (fruits, vegetables, dairy products). The next point is to give increased amounts of the foods known to be fattening; an extra tablespoonful of butter with each meal adds 300 calories, and improves the flavor of cereals, vegetables, and desserts without being noticeable when used as a seasoning. A tablespoon of thick cream on cereal, or whipped cream on dessert, and of mayonnaise dressing on salad, will add 200 calories more. One or two ! tablespoons of olive oil at bedtime furnish 100 or 200 more calories and may help relieve constipation.

IT IS often said of an ardent lover: "He seemed to devour her with his eyes." But the common or garden frog has him beat forty ways to a finish,

The large, bulging eyes of the frog are separated from its mouth only by a thin skin. When the eyes are closed they bulge inwardly. Thus the frog closes its eyes when it has an insect in its mouth, and the inner bulging helps to push the food down the throat.

Frogs are insect eaters, and for that reason are very helpful to man. Those that spend most of their time in or near water are also very fond of small fishes and worms. They catch their prey with their sticky tongues. The tongue is not fastened at the rear of the mouth as ours is, but at the front. The tip points backward when the mouth is closed. The adult frog has lungs, but it does not breathe air into them as we do. It sucks air into its mouth through two nostrils, at the same time lowering its throat. Then the nostrils are closed, and the frog lifts its throat and pushes the air into its lungs.

In northern countries, when cold weather sets in, some frogs dive into a pond, bury themselves in the mud and stay there all winter. What little oxygen is needed the frog gets from the water through its skin. The frog sometimes, however, spends the winter in a hole in a soft bank, or buried. under loose stones and earth. BUY A MODERN CAR-NOW--WHILE YOU HAVE MORE TO TRADE AND LESS TO PAY

Get, there early while the choice is wide—fine cars now offered at rock-bottom prices

This National Used Car Exchange Week gives you a great opportunity to OWN A BRTTER CAR for a small investment. Automobile dealers co-operating in this big-sale have a fine selection of used cars—and prices are far below those of several months ago.

Many are 1937, '36 and '35 models—backed by the finest of dealer guarantees. All have thousands of miles of first-class unused transportation in them. And the "first-class" transportation of these modern cars represents satisfaction which the owners of older cars can hardly imagine. Beautiful, modern styling—a more comfortable ride—more room for you and your luggage—finer, more powerful engines — better gas mileage — better brakes — bigger tires — dozens of improvements introduced since your old car was built.

Now's the time to make the switch, while you have more to trade and less to pay. Your present car may cover the down-payment—balance on easy terms. If you have no car to trade, you can still take advantage of the low down-payments and easy terms during this sale.

100 Get Trials In American League Camps

By GEORGE A. BARCLAY NORE than 100 rookies are being taken to the various American league spring training camps this year. How many of them will make good and stay in fast company? That is a question that eight American league managers would like to be able to answer right now. But looking over the records, of these recruits and gathering dope from the minor league managers who tutored them in 1937, it is evident that a very competent bunch of new men are getting tryouts in the junior circuit

The Boston Red Sox seem likely to retain at least eight of the players brought in from Minneapolis and Little Rock, Ark. Among these are Catcher John Peacock, Pitcher Charles Wagner and Outsleider Henry Gaffke of Minneapolis; Pitchers Emerson Dickman and Dick Midkiff, Infielder Jim Tabor and Outfleiders Deal and Nonnekamp of Lit-

Mike's New Pitchers

Mickey Cochrane, who recently announced his definite retirement as an active player at Detroit, appears to have some likely recruits. Detroit's roster is long on pitchers. Mickey will have 17 to choose from. Elton Benton, who storred with Memphis last year, seems ready. Among other good prospects are Pitchers Harry Eisenstat and Jack

Mickey Cochrane

Corbett, Infielder Frank Croucher and Outfielder Roy Cullenbine.

The Chicago White Sox will depend largely on Gerald Walker and Mary. Owens, acquired in the trade with Detroit to bolster them, but Pitcher Bill Cox from St. Paul and Outfielder Rupert Thompson Trom San Diego look like the goods. Cleveland has considerable new material, with Pitcher John Humphrey of New Orleans, Outflelder Geoffrey Heath and Third Baseman Kenny Keltner of Milwaukee out in front, The acquisition of Catcher Rollie Hemsley from the St. Louis Browns, should help,

The New York Yankees' rookies come from Newark, which won the International league pennant by 24 games last year. Pitchers Joe Beggs, Atlee Donald and Second Baseman Joe Gordon seem ready to step into the lineup and make good.

Connie Mack is believed to have four recruits who will give the Athleties considerable aid and comfort this season. These include Pitchers Bill Potter from Columbus, Ohio, Steve Kallass from Trenton, N. J. First Baseman Bill Hasson of Williamsport and Second Baseman Lodigiani of Oakland, Calif.

The St. Louis Browns appear to have strengthened themselves not only in their recent major league trades, but by the acquisition of Pitcher Vito Tamuulis and First Baseman George McQuinn of Newark, and Pitcher Mencrief of San Antonio.

Several of Bucky Harris' Washington recruits appear to lack experience, but Outfielder Frank Case and Pitcher Mike Krakakaus of Trenton and Pitchers Leonard of Atlanta and Phebus of Chattanooga are highly touted as being able to deliver the goods in big-league style.

and you likewise learn a few odds and ends in thirty-six years of major and minor league umpiring. "Brick" Owens, famed American league arbiter who retired a few weeks ago, could tell you that. So out of the fullness of his experience, Brick is preparing to conduct a correspondence school for umpires;

Looking back over the years, Owens has seen some great ball' clubs and some great players. The best team of all, he says, was the White Sox of 1919 and 1920 that turned into the "Black Sox." Among pitchers, Brick considers Walter Johnson's delivery as deceptive as any he ever saw. He says Lefty Grove was one of the three or four fastest pitchers in history, Bob Feller, the schoolboy sensation of Cleveland, is rated by Brick as a faster pitcher than Lefty Grove and as fast as Johnson.

"Feller has something few pitchrs ever had," says Brick, "He throws his curve ball almost as fast as his speed ball.

During his officiating career, Owens umpired more than 5,700 games and believes he encountered every tough problem possible. Not once in his career did he permit a game to get out of hand. He officiated 3,450 games in the Amerlean league; 1,512 in the American Association and several hundred more in other minor leagues.

Thrilling Winter Sport That Is . Popular in Our Mountainous Regions

A sportsman writes: "In my own limited experience, I have tried many sports. Polo has its tremendous thrills, but, after all, the horse does much of the work. Sculling has its charms, but also its labors. I have never ridden a free surfboard. Perhaps that is as thrilling, for the sport resembles skiing, I have solved gliders. Soaring certainly is 'tops.' But even there, the machine introduces an impersonal element.

"I suppose the first man to stand on the top of Everest will have a feeling of personal achievement beyond that of any other mountaincer. But in a more humble way, every skier who stands at the top of a beautiful, unmarked stretch of new snow, waiting for the clean, flowing track of his own skis, experiences that exaltation. It is like being the first one out in the crisp frosty air of an autumn morning. The skier gets a chance to breathe it. before anybody else has breathed Racing on Skis Is Thrilling.

Racing has its place. It is a thrill to see a well-co-ordinated, confident runner come streaking down a narrow trail, cutting a hot corner by a graceful quick hrust with his heels and an-almost instantaneous skidding of his skis, which changes their course or to watch a skier in a slalom race, rid Wade Killifer, lust year's Indian- ling a steep slope in easy schusses, apolis manager, will be the highest | checking his speed with broken crispaid pilot in the Pacific Coast league | ties, or "tailwagging," taking deep next season. The most experienced make their control movements so easily that they seem to float while the skis do the turns. "Tempo stuff," that, the acme of controlled skiing.

But a person alone in the wilderness, finding a pair of skis and knowing what they were, could find fun long before he found technique.

"As a child on the Kenwood hills behind my home in Minneapolis," said a skier, "I learned to stand on skis, then to walk on them, then to run on them, then to slide on them, and then to stop and maybe fall down on them.

"No matter what language one uses to name it, that sequence is about all that skiing is. I used to crouch down when I was afraid of falling. It was 25 years before I knew I was doing an 'Arlberg

A mountain trail with such frequent turns would not be fast enough for Olympic-caliber racing runners; most of the New England down-mountain trails were laid out according to the preferences of racing men.

Fortunately, New England has not stopped with its down-mountain network. Skiing, like golf, requires facilities. And communities, sensing the winter business possibilities, have undertaken to provide suitable open slopes, woods roads, new connecting trails, slopes which can be. floodlighted for nighttime skiing. They have constructed ski tows. American developments which pull the skier to the top of the hill and increase manyfold-the amount of sliding down which one can do in a day.

The snow trains, which brought 35,000 skiers to New England ski areas during the winter of 1935 have created an interesting new problem. It is difficult for the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, for example, to locate areas near enough to New York for a one-day excursion train trip, where the snow is sure to be satisfactory and where the skiing terrain can accommodate thousands of skiers.

Add salt, onion realm of the spirit according to the and paprika and heat until the principles and measurements of the physical world. We are quick to vent scorching. Remove the onion say "We cannot" on the basis of logical human reasoning, when an appreciation of the power of God operative on our behalf would enable us to say "We can," and having left God out of our thinking we find that indeed we cannot.

. The lesson before us presents two pictures from our Lord's second visit to his home country, Nazareth. On His first visit they had tried to thrust Him over the precipice, and He in all the glory and poise of the Son of God had walked through their midst and gone His way. Now He comes again with His disciples. We then see how His home folk virtually made the power of the omnipotent God impotent because of their unbelief. On the other hand we see | Mars, Saturn and Yenus, when the weakness of men made mighty because of obedience to the command of God.

I. The Paralysis of Unbellef (vv.

The world, the flesh, and the devil spite the effort to classify them as have brought forth a dark list of and i wicked things, but perhaps the most "novice," vary so much from day i destructive and distressing of all is to day with weather and snow con- | the foundation sin of unbelief. When ditions that under certain circum- we think back to the underlying reason for any sin or weakness in man it will be found that there is a failure to believe God. Men do not believe what. He says about sin and its penalty, nor do they believe Him when He offers them grace and strength for victory.

At Nazareth the unbelief which limited the Son of God revealed itself in two questions-1. "Whence hath this man these things?" (v. 2).. They could not deny His mighty works so they turn their attack on His person. "Is not this the carpenter?" (v. 3). Essentially this was envy, "the difficulty of acknowledging the superiority over themselves of one of their own number! . . (Morgan). We are ashamed of the attitude of the men of Nazareth, but we follow in their footsteps. Heavy among the burdens a Christian worker must bear is the unbelief and ridicule of his own people. Because a man has sold us groceries, or painted our house or driven :2

taxi in our town we cannot see how he could ever be a preacher or a missionary. Well, he can, and it is such folk that God often calls. 2. "What is this wisdom?" (v. 2).

The wisdom of Jesus was the wisdom of God (John 7:16). But how could they know that? - How can we know? In John 7:17 Jesus gave the answer: "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine; whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself." We see then that the reason for their unbelief was really an unwillingness to do the will of God. The controlling motive of their life was wrong. Had they been moved by a desire to do God's will, and a purpose to live in accordance therewith (even though there might have been failure in that earnest effort), they would have known that Jesus had His wisdom from God.

II. The Power of Divine Commisslon (vv. 7-13).

Just as unbelief hinders even the Son of God, so faith in God and obedience to His command makes of weak and poorly equipped men the mighty servants of God. In fact, their very dependence on Him for all things sets them free to devote themselves fully to the ministry of preaching and healing.

Note that they went "two by two." We have forgotten that divine-plan, and often send men into remote and dangerous pioneer work -alone. Man needs fellowship; he needs counsel and control.

Consider also how they were to learn to trust God for their daily sustenance (vv. 8/9). They suffered no lack (see Luke 22:35). These rules for the life of religious workers were modified later (Luke 22; 36), but the principle remains the same—the man or woman who is not ready to depend on God for everything had better not set out to follow Him. It is a blessed and delightful life!

SYNOPSIS

Jeyce Sewell, on the eve of her twentieth birthday, rebels at her lot, dependent on her detested stepmother, Irma, and full of tragic memories of her mother's murder twelve years before and her father's death six months ago, Irma calls in Helm Blackadder, months ago, Irma calls in Helm Blackadder, an admirer, to help her persuade Joyce to marry rich, young Michael Kirkpatrick. Mike, sent up to Joyce by Irma and Blackadder, demands a showdown on his proposal and is rejected. Reading her father's papers, Joyce realizes that La Barranca. A Mexican hacienda which her father had ewned, legally belongs to her. Later, she receives a letter enclosing a warrant on the United States Treasury for $10,000 compensation for her mother's murder at La Barranca. She confers with Mr. Bradley a ranca. She confers with Mr. Bradley, a banker and only remaining friend of her father's. She confides that she wants to make a secret journey to Mexico. Bradley arranges all details for her. She departs by plane undetected. Dirk Van Suttart, second secretary of the American embassy in Mexsoo City, gives Joyce a chilly reception and ahe loses her temper. She finds a Mexican woman lawyer, Margarida Fonseca, who takes her to General Onella, right-hand man to the Mexican minister of war. Margarida reminds Onella that the usurper of La Bar. ranca is his dangerous enemy, General Derado. The two make plans to send even web most bancho Buenaventura to drive Dorado out. Adan do? Arnaldo, a young man who runs El Tene-broso, a night club, knows Dorado's present whereabouts, so they take Joyce there that night, where she notices Dirk. General Dorado arrives.

Arnaldo's strong hands darted out to seize the barrel of the gun and hold it pointed upward. The last of the lights were extinguished and with darkness came uproar. Five shots rang out in a steady spurt, tables were overturned; dishes crashed, women screamed, men groaned and grunted. Joyce sat quite still, pressing back as if to push herself through the wall. Soon she reached out her right hand tentatively; General Onelia was gone. She pushed her left along the seat. It was empty-Margarida was gone.

At that instant a fumbling hand found her shoulder, shot down along her arm and seized her wrist. She felt hersolf being hauled along the wall by someone who seemed sure of his way. Who was it and why? Was it Onella, Van Suttart or-or Dorado? What did it matter if only she-could get out? Something struck her in the face, enveloping her head. For a moment she thought she would suffocate; then realized it had been merely a plunge through heavy curtains. The next thing she knew she was dragging the sharp sweet air of the night into ther lungs as her escort half lifted, half hurled her into the tonneau of a waiting car. The chauffour started so suddenly her head was thrown against the back of the seat. Then the cold cut into her; she shivered from head to toe and her teeth began to chatter with a steady rattle. Promptly the man took her in his arms, snatched the rug from its bracket and drew it over them both. She tried to calm herself—she must calm herself or she couldn't think. What did he intend? Where was he taking her? Then he did something which steadied her nerves at once; he tried to light a cigarette without disturbing her. At the flash of the match she looked up into Adan Arnaldo's pensive face. A great many thoughts struck Joyce all at once, making her dizzy. She had escaped the scene of pandemonium to fall into what?

"If you'll put me in a taxi," she said, drawing away from him, "I'll be all right. Then you can go back."

"To help the scrubwomen?" asked Arnaldo. "There wasn't anything unusual about our closing tonight. I've seen eight people shot and killed in the last two years."

"Oh!" gasped Joyce. "That's why I was wondering," he stated.

"About what?" she asked. "You-a girl like you! I.don't get it yet. Coming into a dump like that between two buzzards. What did they want?"

She decided at once to put Arnaldo off and in the same flash wondered if she dared try to draw him.

Back in Elsinboro Mrs. Sewell was pacing distractedly up and down her living room awaiting the arrival of Helm Blackadder. Why had he shouted at her over the -telephone? Why had he said such things? It was she who had grounds for anger, she who had a right to feel hurt. Was it her fault he had been away-gone to New York witout saying a word? Her soft brown eyes watered and then blazed. Ev--erything-she-had-done-had-been right; she had sacrificed herself to the limit, but she had done what was right. Abruptly Blackadder appeared before her, not having bothered to ring or knock. She hurled herself into his arms.

"Helm! Oh, Helm!" she sobbed. It was one of the cleverest moves of her entire career. Perforce he held her, patting her back, and the harder she clung to him the less could he find it in his heart to pour out the scathing words which a moment ago had been trembling on the tip of his tongue.

"Irma, how on earth could you stir up such a mess for yourself? Why didn't you find out where I was and call me up? Why couldn't you wait till I came back?"

She threw herself into a chair and covered her eyes. "Please don't, Helm. Please listen to me first. That child—that poor child! When she didn't come back after the week-end I telephoned Frances Holder and found she hadn't been there at all! Then I tried to telephone you; I did, Helm. "Bunk." said Blackadder. "That girl? Never. How much money do you think she had?"

"Hardly any." Blackadder frowned. He went to the telephone and called up the station master. "Jim, this is Helm Blackadder. Did Joyce Sewell leave Elsinboro on a train?" Promptly came the answer: "No, Helm, she didn't. Naturally as soon as I seen about the reward I wasn't satisfied with only checking up around here. I telephoned every crew from Buffalo to New York. interrupted Blackadder.

He proceeded to call up the heads of the three banks in town, leaving Mr. Bradley, known to have been Cutler Sewell's good friend, to the last. The first two made no bones about answering since their information happened to be negative; they had paid out no money as a loan or otherwise to Joyce Sewell. But when it came to the presidentof the City National, the reply was decidedly evasive.

"Let me get this straight, Helm." said Mr. Bradley's aggravatingly calm voice. "Have you taken out papers as Miss Joyce Sewell's guardian?"

"No." said Blackadder, controlling his temper with difficulty, "but her stepmother is sitting here beside me. Do you want me to put her on the phone—have her tell you you can say it to me and say it

Greetings and Salutations!

The sun shines here simost continuously: in fact a cloudy day is one to be welcomed. So, we shall proceed and see what we can dig up (if the readers are willing.)

Tommy Karr was seen one day last week driving down Main street in an old-fashioned wagon drawn by two trusty chargers (horses to you.) It certainly seemed nice; it has been so long since we'ye seen a team of horses pulling a farm wagon that we almost forgot how one looks. - No punctures with this conversnce, Senor,

KIDNAPING AGAIN

The horrible remembrance of the Lindbergh baby, the Matson boy and Charles Ross - and now comes another abduction. 12. yeur-old Peter Levine of New Rochelle, N. Y., has disappeared.

We think, if the Levine lad is kidnapped, the one found guiltyof the crime should be sentenced to a life term at hard labor in the senitentiary, with no pardon or parole.

We are sgainst capital punishment for cases like these - for the electric chair or hanging only takes a second - and 'zip" it is over, just like that.

As proof of this assertion; one may observe the cases of the Negro in the deep South. .The penalty for a crime against womanhood is Lynching. But does that stop them? The answer! is obvious. NO!

BUSINESS MEN'S CLUB

At the regular meeting at the S. P. Hotel Wednesday evening, there was a good attendance. Manager Peterson of the Hotel sprung a surprise on the club-by announcing that it was his first anniversary as manager of the hotel. Mr. Peterson made a few choice remarks and among other things he said that he had never been associated with a club of any kind in which he had enjoyed himself as much as he has in his associations with the Carrizozo Business Men's Club. The cigars and other tokens of friendship were extended, after which the visiting speakers, Ranger G. J. Gray and G. S. Hoover, both of Capitan, were introduced.

Mr. Hoover gave an interesting account of the amount of livestock that had been shipped out of Capitan; also, a summary of how much fruit, particularly apples, had gone-out of that locality during the past year.

Mr. Gray, Forest Ranger, told of our mountain resorts, how many people had visited them during the past year, and cited the advantages which those scenic resorts offered to the public in the way of recreation

The date and particulars given out by the above - named gentlemen were extremely interesting and much enjoyed by the Club.
