Out-of-the-Ordinary

A. L. B.

Thursday, March 17, being St. Patrick's Day, Judge John J. Maher of Detroit, Mich., celebrated it by jumping from his bench in Recorder's Court and seizing a man, Raymond McDonald by the throat and kicked him out of the court room and into the corridor. After returning to his bench, the judge said: "It is somewhat beyond the dignity of the court to act as I have before an intelligent audience, but I once sentenced that man to 90 days in jail for failing to support his wife and young daughter. Since his release, he has gone about abusing Mrs. Katherine Feeney and myself, both of us being interested in welfare work. This act of mine was out-of-the-ordinary, but I thought you might overlook it; as this is St. Patrick's Day."

Before first-class letter postage was increased to 3 cents, the following sign was posted in front of the postoffice at Versailles, Mo. Stamps 2c; stamps licked 3c; stamps licked and stuck 4 cents.

Found in a bottle on the beach at Westport, Wash., March 22, was a note from an old veteran seaman, Capt. Fowler, who bemoaned the fact that following the sea had kept him away from his family for many years. The message read as follows: "This message is dropped into the sea half-way between Yokosama, Japan and San Francisco. I am casting it into the most cruel of mistresses, the deep sea. Into its throbbing bosom I cast it with the prayer that I may, after getting home, have strength to remain and make up for the years in which I have neglected those whom I have loved most of all—my wife and children, and whom the cruel sea has robbed of home joys and comforts of life." No trace could be found of the captain, who signed the note.

Last week, in Portales, a Sedan missed a curve, ripped down 100 feet of fence, plunged across the highway, hurtled over another fence, turned over three times and finally landed with all four wheels in the air. The driver, Cadet Benton Stone of the N. M. M. I., crawled from under the wreckage, straightened up and coolly remarked, "This is a hell of a mess."

On the old mule cars in Burlington, Iowa, 55 years ago, passengers would drop fares into a box containing a slot. On reaching the end of the line, a certain driver would tie the legs and wings of a grasshopper and let him down the slot into the box. With his front legs free, he would clamp on to a nickel or dime and after several acts of that nature, the driver would have enough tobacco money to last him over the day.

"Why Kidnap Me?"

By FLOYD GIBBONS Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Here's a mystery. Why was Sam Wolf kidnaped? That question puzzled Sam himself.

Once in a while a man is kidnaped for revenge, or to keep him from telling what he knows.

Sam lives in Brooklyn, N. Y. One August day in 1934, something went wrong with his lucky star.

The young fellow was in his early twenties and neatly dressed. He said he had a job that he wanted Sam to do.

Just a Job of Trucking.

The young fellow looked all right to Sam, and there was no reason why he should suspect anything.

The young lad asked Sam his price and Sam told him it would be three bucks.

The man pressed the gun against Sam's side. He told Sam to keep quiet. The pair of them—the masked man and the young fellow...

It was all too much for Sam. What did these birds want? Did they expect to get any money out of him?

He tried to talk to his captor. The young fellow wasn't very communicative.

All sorts of questions filled his mind. It wasn't alone the problem of why they wanted him.

Wanted His Truck for a Robbery.

Another hour passed. The young lad who was guarding him was decent enough.

A third hour passed. Then the other man came back. The two of them began to untie Sam.

As soon as their footsteps had died away Sam was on his feet, banging on the door.

It was the simplest thing in the world. That pair of crooks just wanted to rob a dress goods house down on Bleecker street.

CORRECTING WRONG IDEAS OF RELIGION

LESSON TEXT—Mark 7:1-13. GOLDEN TEXT—This people honoreth me with their lips...

The never-ending struggle of Christianity is to keep the simple gospel of the grace of God in Christ Jesus free to operate in all its glory...

Our lesson for today finds Jesus meeting that very issue with the traditionalists of His day.

I. Washed Hands and Unwashed Hearts (vv. 1-9).

In the process of interpreting the law of Moses and applying it to the affairs of daily life...

Their attack on Jesus because His disciples ate with unwashed hands did not refer to the proper cleansing of one's hands before eating...

Jesus skillfully and finally disposes of that question by reminding the objectors that they were serving God with their lips only...

Here is the heart of the entire matter, for while we may not always be aware of it...

II. Traditions of Man Versus the Commandment of God (vv. 7-13).

He is the heart of the entire matter, for while we may not always be aware of it...

The Jew, who was so avaricious that he did not wish to support his aged and needy parents...

Thus do men even in our day make "the word of God of none effect" (v. 13), through their traditions.

The crying need of our day, as it was of the time when Jesus was on earth, is that we should clear away hindering encumbrances.

Goodness. The general goodness which is nourished in noble hearts...

GIBRALTAR OF THE EAST

Chinese Boat Colony at Singapore.

Singapore Is the British Empire's Powerful Naval Base in the Orient

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

THREE cruisers of the United States navy recently steamed into the Orient, bound for a friendly harbor which is famous as being enemy-proof—Singapore. They represented the United States as the only foreign power which took part in Great Britain's naval display when new docks were opened in the port already so well fortified as to be called the Gibraltar of the East.

New docks in Singapore are like new skyscrapers in New York—structures that are symbols as well. For Singapore is a city, an island, a tradition, and a threat. The oval island is the southern tip of the Malay peninsula.

The white-walled red-roofed city spreads along the island's southern shore. It is the city's 35 square miles of harbor that bred the tradition: the biggest port between the China sea and the Mediterranean, surely among the world's leading ten. This importance is shown by crowded docks, with anchored vessels banding the harbor in zones of increasing size and diminishing number of craft.

Its Threat Is Concealed.

The threat of Singapore, meant for whoever yearns to fight the British navy, is veiled from sight in mangrove swamps, but reputed to be on the island of Seletar, in the shallow strait cutting Singapore island from the mainland of Johore. Its docks, among the largest of their kind ever built, can receive and repair battleships. Its air and naval force nourished the legend that the end of the Malay peninsula, nosing down into the Netherlands Indies, is a dragon's head, and Singapore furnished the fangs.

Unlike rocky Gibraltar or cautiously aloof Malta with a big chip of fortress on its shoulder, Singapore sheathes its strength in a green cloak of palm, banana and rubber trees, naturally luxuriant just 88 miles above the Equator.

The low island flaunts no military insignia to distinguish it at a distance from the balmy emerald islet set in sapphire southern seas so popular in travel literature. Yet its 217 square miles contain the most progressive urban area within a 1,000 mile radius, enough naval strength to dynamite Far Eastern diplomacy, and a remnant of jungle heart in which monkeys swing and chatter.

Most important of the four British possessions comprising the Crown colony of the Straits Settlements, Singapore is their capital. Because of its strategic location at the un-avoidable gateway of all oriental traffic east of India, it is capital also of nearly half the world's trade routes.

Because it is a free port, ships from every continent except South America discharge cargoes into the shadowy and odoriferous warehouses for storage until transhipped, then drain other warehouses for cargoes to take home.

Busy With Trade and Manufacturing

Exotic wares cross the docks: Indian shark fins destined for Chinese palates; Egyptian pickles for Sumatra; coriander seeds from Morocco to Java. Australia ships meat and wool and flour. Canada and the United States send automobiles, machinery, and canned goods. Cloves and coffee from Africa, rice and silk from China, matches and cotton goods from Japan, hemp and hardwoods from the Philippines, rubber and oil and spices from the Netherlands Indies, and from Europe supplies for transplanting home civilization into the Eastern tropics—these are unloaded on the docks of Singapore, "Emporium of the Orient."

In addition to playing landlord for international trade, Singapore minds also its own businesses. Pineapples are canned, soap is made from coconut oil, rubber is smoked and graded for shipping. An island in the harbor is headquarters for the world's largest tin smelting plant. In a recent year, 42 per cent of the world's output of rubber and 20 per cent of the tin were dispatched for worldwide use from the docks of this port.

Although an island, Singapore has direct railway connection with the mainland by way of a causeway crossing to the Malay state of Johore. The trip north to Bangkok in Siam is merely an overnight ride. For faster travel over the jungle, Singapore has a new sea-airport built on reclaimed tidal mud flats and equally useful for land and sea planes. Draining the airport's site was an important step in freeing the city from the tropical curse of mosquitoes and malaria, the death rate from which in two decades was reduced 90 per cent.

The whole island is dominated by a city of a half-million, its extensive parks and suburbs, and a few mediocre rubber plantations. Banana trees, tree ferns, and travelers palms luxuriate over the prim European greensward of golf courses and race track. That Chinese efforts at rice-raising and truck farming are not equally luxuriant is blamed by Malay superstitions on the red soil; it was drenched with blood and thereafter accursed at the sack of old Singapore in the Thirteenth century when Japanese slaughtered the inhabitants and leveled the brick-built houses and protective earthen wall.

Established by Sir Stamford Raffles

The old city is believed by some to be the Malayur of Marco Polo, the "Island that forms a kingdom," which even in the days of that early globe-trotter had a great deal of trade in spices and other wares. Afterwards pirates haunted the neighborhood.

Today the Raffles hotel, Raffles square, and the bronze statue therein—indeed, all Singapore is a monument to a Nineteenth-century sales manager supreme for British trade, Sir Stamford Raffles. Flaunting treaties and reversing the work of diplomats, he is remembered for having accomplished what British authorities claimed at the time to regard with "unfeigned regret"—the founding of Singapore as a modern free port.

When a treaty in 1814 had given the Netherlands a monopoly over all ports of the rich Indies trade, Raffles established a puppet sultan to sell Singapore harbor for British use. He put Sultan Hussein on a throne to usurp his usurping brother's royal authority, and rewarded him with $1,000 and some rolls of yellow and black cloth. On February 6, 1819, Singapore's birthday, a free trade treaty was signed. In four months the now world famous port had an increase of 5,000 in population.

Soon the name of Singapore was echoed among seamen with a sinister ring. The sultan who sponsored it was not above suspicion of poisoning his father. The first British governor was stabbed by an Arab. Pirates swaggered into port to buy weapons, then anchored in ambush outside the harbor.

The name acquired associations as fierce as its meaning in the tongue of India from which it came—Singhapura, City of the Lion. Yet Raffles, who kindled the sinister excitement, escaped all its dangers and died young after falling downstairs.

The population rush to Singapore after its opening as a free port, repeated on a small scale a century later in a "rubber rush," is indicated by the racial hodge-podge found in the city today. Sprinkled through the English city, with dignified stone buildings lining macadamized avenues, are short streets straight from China.

Chinese signs line open fronts of first floor shops; from second third, and fourth floor windows above them, items of the family laundry on projecting poles fly like banners. Long red joss candles for use in Chinese joss houses are poured by hand in workshops in the shadow of Moslem mosques. Yet many Chinese know no language except English, and are proud of being slant-eyed British subjects. The city is fringed with Malay villages on stilts over water.

Spencer, English-Latin Name. Spencer or Spenser is an old English-Latin occupation name meaning "dispenser of provisions." First a surname, it is now quite common as a given name.

Wealth in Minerals Brought to Surface by Many Volcanoes

Washington.—Boiling floods of lava and glowing clouds of gas are not the only products of volcanoes; geologists find. Many volcanoes have brought useful and valuable minerals—gold, silver, diamonds, or oil, close to the surface where men can get at them.

Reporting his field findings to the Geological Society of Washington, Dr. A. H. Koshmann, of the United States geological survey, told of the Cripple Creek volcano near Pike's Peak, Colo., whose eruption 25,000,000 years ago brought millions of dollars worth of gold into the rocks near the surface, where it could be reached by mining operations.

After the first eruptions, the crater floor collapsed, carrying leaves and tree trunks deep into the earth, where they are now found as fossils.

Source of Big Walsh Fortune.

Near Silverton, Colo., a similar volcano brought 250 cubic miles of new material to the surface at about the same time as the Cripple Creek eruption. This created the famous Camp Bird mining area, which built the fabulous fortune of the late Tom Walsh. To date, more than $270,000,000 in gold and silver have been mined in the San Juan area near Silverton, of which $30,000,000 came from Camp Bird. After the first eruption of the Silverton volcano, one of the craters, eight miles in diameter, collapsed, opening hundreds of fissures in the surrounding rock, which were later filled with rich deposits of gold and silver, some of them five to seven miles long.

Volcanic activity in the ancient Gulf Coastal plain, an area which now includes Texas, Arkansas, and Mississippi, brought diamonds to Arkansas, and formed oil traps in other areas. Erupting 80,000,000 years ago, the ancient volcanoes were discovered during drilling operations only since 1915.

New Mexico, a million or so years ago, had a volcanic lake in the Valles mountains similar to the present Crater lake in Oregon. This crater, which is the largest explosive crater known, was 17 miles long and 13 miles wide.

One Wire Carries 12 Radio Phone Messages

New York.—A peek into the future of long distance telephonic communication was given at the meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers here. Developments in the use of existing telephone wires as guide paths for carrier waves has made it possible to have 12 messages going over the same wire without interference.

Two engineers from the Bell laboratories, C. W. and E. I. Green, disclosed new details of the carrier system for toll cables.

The new advances are the culmination of a long range program of applying high frequency waves to wires. Early developments utilized special wires but the new work has succeeded in using existing cables, both aerial and underground.

"Plans already under way call for the application of large numbers of these systems to meet the rapid growth in long distance traffic," said the engineers.

Cesium, Electric Eye Retina, Should Be Pure

New York.—Cesium, rare earth that makes the electric eye see, will not work if it contains more than one ounce of impurities in three tons of metal, reports Dr. J. J. Kennedy of the Maywood Chemical works, describing the cesium mining and purifying industry to the American Chemical society.

Mined in the Black Hills of South Dakota, pollicite, the dull and gum-like ore of cesium, worth fifteen dollars a pound, contains from 1 to 30 per cent of cesium oxide. Purified by successive stages, and reduced to a metal that burns in air and explodes in water, cesium is used as the sensitive metal in photoelectric cells—the "electric eyes" of industry—and as a "getter" in radio tubes. A radio tube "getter" burns up the last bits of oxygen that the vacuum pump couldn't catch.

Man an Articulate Ape

Philadelphia.—Man owes his brain and his hands to his zoological kin, the apes, Dr. Earnest A. Hooton, Harvard anthropologist, states in Frontiers, a publication of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia. "Man himself is but an articulate ape with acquisitions, notably language and material culture," concludes Dr. Hooton. "Only the acquisitions are human, the rest is a simian legacy."

New Dental Filling

Berlin.—A new dental filling that works like the cement and concrete used for building under-water structures in that it requires the presence of moisture in order to harden, has been developed in Germany. Saliva is a hardening agent for the new cement, which is colorless and, it is claimed, does not injure the pulp or the nerve of the tooth.

New Slenderizing Dresses

IF YOU'RE in the size-34-and-up class, here are three brand new fashions designed especially for you! Everyone of them is extremely smart and everyone is designed to give added charm and dignity to full figures. They are easy to make. The patterns are carefully planned to help beginners, and each is accompanied by a detailed sew chart. So start in tomorrow, and have at least two of them ready for Easter.

Princess House Dress. It's a sure way to start the day right, having a dress as becoming and pretty as this one to put on first thing in the morning. It takes a woman with some plumpness to do justice to that fitted, long line. Made up in printed percale, gingham or chambray, with rows of ricrac braid, this dress will be so successful that you'll use the pattern time and again.

Graceful Afternoon Frock. An especially charming style for luncheons, bridge parties and club meetings. The full sleeves make your arms look small, and are very graceful in themselves. Gathers at the shoulders create necessary bust fullness. Make this dress for now in silk print or chiffon. Later on, in voile or summer sheer it will be your coolest dress.

Dress With Lengthening Panels. The plain neckline, the slim waist, snugged in by gathers, the long panel, front and back, are all beautifully slimming in effect. All in all, this dress is so smart that it's certain to be one of your favorites. This design adapts itself to so many materials—silk crepe, small-figured silk print and, later on, linen.

Simple Patch Makes This Quilt Block

Get out your scrap bag and get ready to start your Calico Cat quilt. Each cat patch measures about 4 by 8 inches and is so easy to apply. You'll be delighted with its colorfulness. Use it on a pillow too; it's very effective. Pattern 1583 contains accurate pattern pieces; a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials; complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart; diagram of quilt to help arrange blocks for single and double bed size.

Send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) for this pattern to The Sewing Circle, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Ave., New York, N. Y.

TIPS to Gardeners

Plant With Care EXERCISE care in planting and also in preparing to plant. Though soil may be rich, it will not produce as it should unless it is prepared thoroughly.

A primary consideration in planting is to have the soil favorably moist; damp, but not wet. If circumstances demand that you plant when the ground is dry, moisten trenches or drills before dropping the seed.

To retain moisture after planting, cover seeds immediately with fine earth and press down firmly. Harold Coulter, vegetable expert of the Ferry Seed Institute, advises that temperature be considered at the time of planting. Too high a temperature is often as detrimental to seed germination as one too low. A temperature between 65 and 75 degrees is most favorable.

Soil must be loose so seedling sprouts can push through, and roots develop. Where the soil forms a heavy crust, it may sometimes be broken sufficiently to let seedlings through by gently pricking the soil with a rake.

Two Extremes

Some men are so covetous as if they were to live forever; and others so profuse, as if they were to die the next moment.—Aristotle.

2 Steps in Fighting Discomfort of COLDS

1 ENTERS BODY THROUGH THROAT AND INTESTINES TO EASE PAIN.

2 RELIEVES THROAT PAIN RAWNESS.

All it usually costs to relieve the misery of a cold today—is 3¢ to 5¢—relief for the period of your cold 15¢ to 25¢. Hence no family need neglect even minor head colds.

Here is what to do: Take two BAYER tablets when you feel a cold coming on—with a full glass of water. Then repeat, if necessary, according to directions in each package. Relief comes rapidly.

The Bayer method of relief is the way many doctors now approve. You take Bayer Aspirin for relief—then if you are not improved promptly, you call the family doctor.

"SNUGGLES DOWN IN THE PAPER —SMOKES TASTY AND COOL"

says Jimmy Bateman, praising this fast-rolling, meekow "makin's" tobacco . . .

70 fine, roll-your-own cigarettes in every 2.5 oz. tin of Prince Albert.

THERE'S NO TIME in a busy newspaper press-room to fool around with slow-rolling "makin's" tobacco that spills all over. Pressmen want to twirl their "makin's" smokes fast—but trim and neat, too. And their smokes have got to be full-bodied and tasty, yet mild! Bob Etter, Jimmy Bateman, and Joe Brown check on this as they roll up Prince Albert "makin's" cigarettes. P. A.'s the favorite, all right. (That's what pipe-smokers say too!)

Seeds of Tyranny
By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

During the past few weeks Americans have watched with a sense of apprehension the ominous shadow of despotism lengthening across the map of Europe.

To many students of government, however, neither the latest coup nor its predecessors came as a surprise. It was the inevitable outcome of a willingness to let group hatreds and group ambitions overwhelm and supplant the spirit of free and constructive patriotism.

In the case of virtually every nation that has accepted the dictator's yoke, such students can recall a preceding period of internal strife, of warring blocs and pressure groups, each intent in gaining for its adherents special advantages at the expense of the people, or the nation, as a whole.

Out of the turmoil caused by the multiplication of such blocs, and the accompanying encroachment of hatreds among the people themselves, has emerged the man or the group that seized all power.

Sometimes the turmoil was stilled—at the cost of all individual liberty. Sometimes it developed, instead, into tragic civil wars. Daily the headlines from abroad repeat the story.

In all this there is an obvious lesson for America.

Here is a country that in a century and a half of national existence achieved a growth in territory, in population, in resources, in tolerance, and in influence unsurpassed throughout history. Here is a nation that through concerted efforts of all its people established a standard of living unequalled elsewhere on earth.

This advance was not achieved through the process of class warring against class, or group crowding out group. It was achieved through methods—sometimes interrupted—of progressive cooperation.

Here is something for the preachers of dissent to ponder as they scatter the seeds of tyranny. Here is something for the American people to remember when they are asked to relinquish a policy of cooperation for one of class hatreds and domination by political pressure groups.

To such demands, whatever their source, there is one conclusive reply. It runs:

"See what has sprung from such seeds abroad."

We believe in strict non-partisanship in Municipal affairs. We do not presume to take any credit for accomplishment, nor do we apologize for anything that has not been done.

Taking Vaccine for Colds

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

THERE has been much written the last few years about "colds" because colds not only cause many absences from school or from work but are the starting point for more serious conditions such as bronchitis, asthma, broncho-pneumonia and pneumonia.

That colds are due to the entrance into the body of a tiny organism and its products is the belief of many physicians, but there are many "head colds" that can be traced to foods, pollen of plants, lack of vitamins, tiredness, moisture in the atmosphere and infections (teeth and tonsils) which so drain the patient's vitality that a cold has no difficulty in starting up in the nose and throat.

That the use of a vaccine-cold vaccine has been helpful in preventing or lessening the number of colds cannot be denied, but the results vary from 10 per cent prevention with some physicians to 40 to 50 per cent with others. Also, most of these cases have been treated by injecting the cold vaccine under the skin. It is interesting therefore to learn of results of taking these cold vaccines by mouth instead of by hypodermic injection.

Cold Vaccine by Mouth.
Dr. George E. Rockwell and Herman C. Van Kirk, M. Sc., Cincinnati, in the Journal of Laboratory and Clinical Medicine, tell of their studies of 101 patients afflicted with colds, treated by cold vaccine taken by mouth.

The patients came from various walks of life—boys in an institution, office workers, medical students, factory workers and school children. In each of these groups half the persons took the vaccine and the same number acted as controls (did not take the vaccine). The patients using the vaccine took one capsule with a half glass of water at least one hour before breakfast every morning for seven mornings, after which one capsule per week was taken throughout the season. One hundred persons took vaccine and 100 did not (controls). All had suffered with about the same number of colds each year in the past.

Results: During the experimental year the controls (ones who didn't use the vaccine) had 376 colds, whereas the ones who took the vaccine had a total of 94 colds—a decrease of about 75 per cent. There was also a very marked decrease in days of illness from all causes among the vaccinated group as compared with the controls.

For those who suffer with frequent colds the cause of which cannot be found, the cold vaccine by mouth treatment should be worth trying.

Dementia Praecox.
When it is realized that practically two of every three cases of dementia praecox—schizophrenia—or persistent dream state as it is usually described, have their beginning before the boy or girl has emerged into manhood or womanhood it certainly gives us all food for thought. That an apparently average everyday normal boy and girl can develop into "day dreamers," is hard to understand. Sometimes, however, as parents or friends think back a little, they will remember that the individual was just a little "odd," had peculiar notions about some things, seemed always satisfied in his or her mind that the way they did things in school or in the home was the right way even if it was different from the way it was usually done by others. Thus today we find parents, teachers and physicians watching more closely for any of these signs in their children, pupils, or young patients.

Just how the youngster or sometimes the adult got started along this line of conduct can often be traced to certain circumstances of early life—even before the school age—whereby the youngster, by withdrawing into himself instead of mixing, perhaps fighting with, or studying with, others, could satisfy himself or be contented in his own mind, instead of going out among others and being not the hero-heroine pictured in his dream state, but just one of the crowd and perhaps not even up to the average in mental or physical ability.

Dr. Benjamin Pollack in the Psychiatric Quarterly says that the main point is that to this patient his dream world is the real world, not the world others live in. In his own world (the dream world) success or gratification is easy to attain and so he is satisfied, and he doesn't want this idea disturbed.

National Topics Interpreted By WILLIAM BRUCKART

Washington.—There is a strange similarity between certain things that are going on in Russia at this time and phases of events right here in the United States. So much alike are these things, indeed, that one hears a great deal of comment on the circumstance.

Most persons are familiar, of course, with the fact that the dictator, Stalin, and the clique at present, and for the moment only, that is in his favor, are engaged in "liquidation" of opposition in Russia means death at the hands of a firing squad. It means putting that opposition under the ground for eternity. This is accomplished in Russia under Stalin by the simple expedient of a so-called military trial. The farce that is called a trial is nothing more nor less than an exposition of charges against the accused who are, without exception, tortured until they "confess." That is to say, a torture in jail, a physical maltreatment, is administered until the accused would rather have death than a continuation of the physical suffering.

This thing is resorted to in Russia wherever and whenever Stalin or the clique then holding his favor believes it advisable to instill some more fear into the millions which fate placed in Russia. That is to say, as always in the case with human beings, Stalin makes a mistake or his plans go awry, somebody must be the goat. In a land where the government has absolute power over life and death, the easiest, simplest way of solving the problem is by shooting off a few extra "counter revolutionists." Lately the purge in Russia has been directed at "counter revolutionaries" amongst the army officers. A few newspaper correspondents and government officials have been included just to make the propaganda effective on the proletariat.

The mock trials and the "liquidation" in Russia are being carried on at this time because it is charged, there are elements in Russia that are seeking to bring back Leon Trotsky. Trotsky has a different type of dictatorship for the proletariat in mind. He has to hide out in Mexico, or get shot himself. Anyway, the Stalin group announces boldly that Russia is going forward (whatever that means) and will brook no interference with its plans—even if it has to shoot off all of its army officers and most of its government officials.

So much for the Russian system.

Now, in calling attention to the similarity of conditions here, I have no notions of comparing them on the basis of the actual results. I want to deal with fundamentals, with principles. It seems to me this can be done without animosity. We will start, therefore, with one small and rather insignificant matter.

A few weeks ago, President Roosevelt named Stanley Reed to be an associate justice of the Supreme court of the United States. Mr. Reed had been solicitor general of the United States. The appointment cannot be criticized in any way, because Mr. Reed will lend dignity to any job he undertakes. I think the country is fortunate in that appointment.

But when Mr. Reed was promoted, the President named Robert H. Jackson to fill the vacant place.

Well, most people were rather glad to see Mr. Jackson placed in a job where he has to do legal work instead of being a political mouth-piece. Their satisfaction was short-lived, however, because who should be named to succeed Mr. Jackson but Professor Thurman Arnold of Yale university. It is an appointment that is worse, if that is possible, than that which placed Mr. Jackson in the job originally. For Professor Arnold is not a man to breed confidence at any time. Particularly is this true when it is considered that he manages a job that has to do with governmental relations with business. Which is to say that if business could have no certainty or assurance or guidance from Mr. Jackson, it will be like looking for needles in haystacks to learn what Mr. Arnold's ideas are on business practices. Maybe I should say, it will be like chasing a very small insect that has a habit of biting—and is equipped with a voracious appetite.

Thus we are come to the point of comparison. What does it mean that Messrs. Jackson and Arnold should be given those posts? The answer is comparatively simple, albeit quite significant. It means that President Roosevelt has taken control of the Department of Justice out of the hands of Attorney General Cummings. It means that he has yielded again to the left wing, the radical, advisers who have managed time after time to get the presidential ear and whisper convincingly into it. It means, as well, that Attorney General Cummings who was at first one of the great admirers of President Roosevelt is no longer among the presidential insiders and that he must be classed again as a Democrat as distinguished from the New Dealers.

But, you ask, what has that got to do with Russia, with Stalin, with liquidation of "counter revolutionaries," etc? Again, it seems to me that the analogy is plain. President Roosevelt has been convinced by the radicals and long-hairs that he has no great need any longer for the breed of simple, sound, sane thinkers, or the practical politicians. The advisors who are clinging to him like ivy to a wall have seen their plans go down in the crash of the depression and have to blame somebody. They argue that if their plans had not had interference from such as Mr. Cummings, or Secretary Roper or the Department of Commerce, or "Jim" Farley's practical politics, surely, the wishful thinkers would have succeeded. They could not line up the "counter revolutionaries" to be shot in this country, but they can destroy their political influence.

To carry the fundamental thought to its ultimate and logical conclusion, therefore, it is necessary only to explain that the great liberal group (which boasts by mouth or by print) has yet ever to agree among its own numbers. They seldom agree to start with, and they never agree at the finish. It is always—the "other fellow" that is to blame. "If my plan had been followed we would have succeeded," etc, and so on. There is that counterpart in Russia, I insist. It proves beyond a shadow of a doubt that no one can define "liberalism."

I mentioned Postmaster General Farley as being on the outs with President Roosevelt. It would not be surprising if Mr. Farley quit his job. Observers in Washington know that he is pretty much disgusted by the refusal of the President to be guided by advice from the party's national chairman. It is possible, of course, that Mr. Farley will prefer to continue in the job as postmaster general and be quiet rather than expose the rupture. I understand he is giving that matter considerable thought these days, because, first of all, Mr. Farley believes in playing practical politics up to the hilt.

There is another rumor running around Washington about Mr. Farley. It is said in many places that Mr. Farley may decide to remain on the job so that he can be more effective in helping to restore control of the Democratic party machinery to the Democrats. That is to say, Mr. Farley knows, as every one else who understands politics knows, that the New Deal theories will fall of their own weight in due time. They will fall because so many of them are contrary to human nature and to American traditions. Being immensely practical, Mr. Farley holds that the Democratic party is a party which is a natural opposition group to the Republicans. It will live, as it ought to live, and will continue to be a factor in American government long after the New Deal has burned itself out. Mr. Farley, therefore, is anxious to lend a hand in rebuilding the Democratic party for the Democrats.

To that end, it is understood by many observers, there is a likely alignment between Mr. Farley and the gang, politically wise, "Cactus Jack" Garner, the Vice President. Undoubtedly, there is a strong and growing group in the house and senate which has turned away from the President. Recent votes have shown an increasing number of Democrats that are willing to stand on their own bottom. A very recent illustration of this was the vote on the New Deal scheme to tax corporations owned by a small number of persons at a higher rate than those whose shares are widely owned. There are thousands of these, all small corporations. To have kept that provision in the new tax bill would have saved the face of a small coterie of presidential advisers and even the President, himself. But half of the Democrats joined with the Republicans to kill off the plan.

From this and other circumstances, it is plain to see how the rumored Farley-Garner alignment would be backed up by such political powers as Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi. Senator Harrison, it will be remembered, was rewarded for carrying New Deal buckets by having the President urge selection of Senator "Dear Alben" Barkley, of Kentucky, to be Democratic leader of the senate. Senator Barkley since has run into a fight for re-nomination in his own state. Senator Harrison is said to have a following of thirty-odd or more senators.

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses CARBOHYDRATES and FATS

Foods That Provide Motive Power For the Body Machinery

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
8 East 29th St., New York.

THE human body might be compared to a framework filled with machinery. It takes food to build the framework, food to run the machinery and food to keep it working efficiently and this food must be of the proper type.

Last week, I discussed the body-building proteins and explained how to distinguish between those which build and repair body tissue, and those that are adequate for maintenance, but not for growth. It is equally important that you should learn something of the fuel foods which are necessary to fire the body engine and furnish motive power to propel the body machinery.

Fuel Foods Keep Us Alive

The body could not function in the absence of fuel foods any more than a machine could run without power, or a car without gas. Every breath requires an expenditure of energy, and so does every movement—from the beating of the heart to the blinking of an eye.

Even in repose, the body machinery is kept functioning only by an ever-present supply of fuel. For, as long as life continues—even when you are lying perfectly still—you need fuel to carry on the internal work of the body.

Activity Demands Energy Foods

Every type of daily activity, including work and exercise, requires additional fuel. If you walk slowly, you expend twice as much energy as when you sit still. And when you walk fast, you may use up four, five or six times as much energy.

The chief fuel, or energy producing foods, are the carbohydrates—that is, the starches and sugars; and fats. Protein also has some fuel value, but its primary function is to build and repair tissue.

Carbohydrates are quick burning. They might be compared to the flare of a match in a dark room, which gives bright light for an instant, but is soon extinguished. Fat, on the other hand, burns slowly, like a lamp whose wick is turned low.

Danger of Inadequate Fuel Supply

Recently there has been a tendency to minimize the importance of the fats and carbohydrates, due to the craze for dieting. Some of the results of disregarding the absolute necessity for these foods are extreme irritability, and a greater susceptibility to fatigue, nervous diseases, tuberculosis and other infections.

Too Much Fuel Causes Overweight

It is true, however, that an excess of fuel foods will tend to produce overweight. For if we assimilate them, and do not utilize their potential energy in muscular effort, they will be stored—as fat—usually in most inconspicuous places.

Your Food Is Your Fate

THE third of the series of articles entitled "What to Eat and Why," written by C. Houston Goudiss, the eminent food authority, author and radio lecturer, appears in this issue.

In these articles Mr. Goudiss tells how you can be strong, beautiful, wise and rear healthy children by combining the right food materials in the diet. He points out the vast influence which food wields over one's life.

The housewife and mother who desires to know what foods will benefit her family the most will do well to read these articles week by week and make a scrapbook of them for ready reference.

the person who allows himself to become upset continually withdraws the fat reserve from his body. Such persons could profit, perhaps, by taking more of the fat-forming foods.
But whether the members of your family are good natured, or irritable, young or old, they need a constant supply of fuel foods—at every meal, every day. Fuel foods produce energy—and energy is the motive power of life—and work and thought.

"Home-Wrecking" Qualities of Poor Furniture Polish

How often a houseful of fine furniture and handsome woodwork is spoiled by the use of a poor furniture polish! There are many polishes on the market today—some fair, some good, others excellent for luster and long life of the finish! The best is non-greasy, because made with a fine, light-oil base! In time, furniture and woodwork can be ruined by the persistent application of a cheap, poor polish! Such polish will contain kerosene, harsh abrasives and harmful acids—destructive elements, that are unseen and unsuspected! The housewife may use one of these polishes, feeling that she is economically keeping her furniture polished—but this is poorest economy, if she values her furniture (and what housewife does not?) The furniture in a home constitutes the largest part of the furnishings—and will show up like "sore thumbs" when dried out, cracked or checked. This is just what occurs, when other than a reputable oil polish is used! Too, a quality oil polish is less expensive! Less is used at one time—for it's undiluted. The resultant glow is deeper, richer, more lasting! Best of all, the finish of the furniture and woodwork is properly "fed" and kept in prime condition! So beware of harsh, "bargain" polishes—for through them, the furniture suffers!

More women use O-Cedar Polish than any other kind—for furniture, woodwork and floors. It cleans and polishes.

SYNOPSIS

Joyce Sewell, on the eve of her twentieth birthday, rebels at her lot, dependent on her detested stepmother, Irma, and full of tragic memories of her mother's murder twelve years before and her father's death six months ago. Irma calls in Helm Blackkadder, an admirer, to help her persuade Joyce to marry rich, young Michael Kirkpatrick. Mike, sent up to Joyce by Irma, makes a proposal, and a rejected. Joyce realizes that La Barranca, a Mexican hacienda which her father had owned; legally belongs to her. She receives a warrant on the United States for $10,000,000—compensation for her mother's murder at La Barranca. She confers with Mr. Bradley, a banker and only remaining friend of her father's. She decides that she wants to make a secret journey to Mexico. Bradley arranges all details for her. She departs by plane undetected. Dirk Van Suttart, second secretary of the American embassy in Mexico City, gives Joyce a chilly reception and she loses her temper. She finds a Mexican woman lawyer, Margarita Fontana, who takes her to General Onelia, right-hand man to the Mexican minister of war. Margarita reminds Onelia that the murderer of La Barranca is his dangerous enemy, General Dorado. The two make plans to send Joyce with a few picked men under Pancho Buenaventura to drive Dorado out of El Tenorio. A young man who runs El Tenorio, a rebel, tells Joyce Dorado's present whereabouts, so they take Joyce there that night, where she notices a general Dorado arrives and the lights go out and Joyce is left alone. Adan Arnaldo whisks her out and takes her home. The following morning Joyce drives off to Toluca with Pancho. Back in El Tenorio, Joyce's disappearance has been discovered. Blackkadder, upbraids Irma, but succumbs to her helpless charm and plans to marry her. Blackkadder gets the secretary of state to make a secret journey to Mexico City to locate Joyce. Dirk is delegated for the search. He goes to El Tenorio and interviews Arnaldo. Arnaldo bids Dirk follow him. Meanwhile Joyce and Pancho reach La Barranca and Pancho and Eusebio, one of his band, leave her and at dawn climb the wall. Suddenly shots ring out and at sight of a sorely wounded man, Joyce runs inside and finds the dread Dorado there, terrified. Pancho and Eusebio, who had escaped, running out again. Joyce is caught by a murderous hand and cries out, "Luz!" Dirk and Arnaldo go to Margarita's apartment, where they are told Joyce's destination and Dirk makes ready to follow alone. Meanwhile at La Barranca, Joyce's cry brings Luz and the other old servants of her childhood, led by Don Jorge Maximilian, now blind.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

"Then the thing becomes simple," said Don Jorge slowly. "I don't mean I can fathom the thought back of Onelia's action, but at least I know where we stand—you and I and all our people. You're here, Luz!"

"Si, Senor."

"Call Leonardo."

"What are you going to do?" asked Joyce as Luz clipped from the room.

"I'll tell you, chica," said Don Jorge, sitting very straight with his hands clasped over the head of his staff. "I'm told five or six of Dorado's followers lie dead. Owing to the suddenness of the attack no doubt his private arsenal is still intact. That gives us plenty of rifles and ammunition, and all the rest becomes easy."

Leonardo entered the room. "Senor, al-servicio-deusted."

"We stand a siege, Leonardo," said Don Jorge, "certainly for weeks, perhaps for months. Call in all our people, corral the stock, close the gates and man the towers with your best shots. You will find the necessary rifles and ammunition where they lie. At present the moon is at the full. Shoot anybody who comes within range by night or by day whether it's friend or foe."

"Oh, Maxie," interrupted Joyce, "why?"

"Since we ourselves are our only friends," said Don Jorge, "whoever comes from without must be a foe."

CHAPTER VIII

Years of peace and months of inaction had caused routine to lay its grip on the American embassy. Routine decreed that the second secretary's waking duty was to epitomize the local papers and lay before his chief by ten o'clock all such items as were worthy of his attention. But fate ordained that on this morning at the said hour Dirk van Suttart should be contemplating with astonishment one bullet hole through his radiator, still another through a front tire and a third that had shattered his non-shatterable windshield, fortunately on the side away from the driver.

Coincidentally the embassy butler murmured in the ambassadorial ear: "The minister of war on the telephone, sir—the minister in person."

Ten minutes later the ambassador was being shown into the most private room of the very private residence of the minister of war. It was strictly an unofficial visit—no official that the minister had done the necessary telephoning without bothering to mention the matter to his secretary. Furthermore, a meal without food, certainly the last word in informality.

"Excellency, how can I express my gratitude that you should decondescend to come to my humble abode for a mere sip of coffee?"

"Mr. Minister, I am delighted to be here. I've already had my coffee but I'll gladly accept another cup."

"Permit me to help you to it myself since our privacy is such that no servant is in attendance."

The ambassador, though a diplomat of the first water, felt enough time had been wasted on preliminaries. "I take note of the privacy, Mr. Minister, and see no reason why you should postpone telling me what is troubling you."

The minister's eyebrows went up. "It doesn't trouble you also, Excellency?"

"I must know what we're talking about," said the ambassador, startled. "Forgive me, Mr. Minister, but it happens, I haven't done my usual reading of the news this morning."

"Ah!" said the minister and pushed forward a newspaper, folded and marked.

"Raid at La Barranca," he read. "We give space to an extraordinary rumor from our correspondent in Toluca not by reason of its fantastic interest but because should it prove true it may develop into an event of colossal import. Some years ago General Dorado, whose services to the republic require no epitome, took possession of the abandoned hacienda of La Barranca and has been doing his best not only to restore it to usefulness but to put into effect the fundamentals of agrarianism on which the future happiness of our people depends. Now word has come to us from a reliable more aspect, but perhaps encouraging. What is his mission?"

"I'm not sure but I gather he is determined to take the girl home at once."

"Good. If she still lives we must help him by every means in our power."

"Mr. Minister," said the ambassador gravely. "I wish to assure you that if disaster overtakes Miss Sewell it will shake the present pleasant relations between our two countries to their very foundations. Don't misunderstand me. I'm not implying that Miss Sewell's life is of greater importance than that of any other American living abroad. I'm merely taking into account that for the last ten days every man, woman and child in the United States has been reading about her and in my country such a flood of publicity automatically transforms her into a colossal bomb."

"At last!" murmured the minister, sinking back in his chair. "Now we can talk."

"In my opinion she should be rescued at once."

"An excellent idea—but how?"

"By sending a government force."

"Do what?"

"Bring her back to Mexico City, hand her over to her stepfather and bid them both farewell and good-bye."

"Excellency, have you ever visited any of our major haciendas—especially La Barranca?"

"No; my duties—" began the ambassador vaguely.

"Of course," interrupted the minister. "La Barranca happens to be a fortress more easily defended than any castle existing in Scotland today. At this season it has stored within its walls enough provisions to keep a small army for five years to say nothing of unlimited water. With six high-powered rifles and plenty of ammunition I would guarantee to hold it indefinitely against a force of a hundred regulars. The only answer to La Barranca on its guard is artillery. Now let's see what your dream amounts to. You suggest that the Mexican government send a battalion against a young girl in whom your whole people happens to be particularly interested in order to kick her off her own property?"

"I withdraw the suggestion," said the ambassador gloomily. "I admit I spoke too hastily, but the possibility of resistance had not occurred to me. The whole thing is fantastic. Are you convinced all this has really happened? Remember the papers speak of it as a rumor."

"I happen to know it isn't a rumor—at all," said the minister promptly. "My source of information is unimpeachable. There are certain elements of mystery which threaten my official neck, but the facts themselves are unalterable. The story is so true I regret I happen to be minister of war at the present juncture."

"Strange," murmured the ambassador with a wan smile. "I was thinking the same thing about my ambassadorship! What is your plan, Mr. Minister? I listen."

"Subterfuge and cash. I have no illusions about the senorita Joyce Sewell. I consider her as a fortress. The question now arises how shall she be taken? The answer is so simple it's classic. By an emissary bearing gifts, preferably a sack of gold. We'll find the gold, you find the emissary."

"I have it," exclaimed the ambassador. "My second secretary of the embassy."

The ambassador reached for the telephone, called his own chancellery and a moment later was asking the counselor of embassy what explanation Van Suttart had given for his late arrival.

"None, sir. He hasn't arrived."

"What?" cried the ambassador. "Telephone him at once. Send around to his house. Tell him—"

Interrupted in the midst of his instructions he leaned forward, gripping the apparatus tighter and tighter. When the murmuring voice at the other end finally ceased he hung up and turned to face the minister.

"I regret the young gentleman I had in mind is not available since we don't know what has become of him."

"No clue?" asked the minister, frowning.

"Unfortunately there is," said the ambassador, "and I'm ashamed to be obliged to mention it. He was last seen at about two in the morning in the most questionable night club in town seated alone before a magnum of champagne. Needless to say, my first action upon returning to the embassy will be to recommend his immediate dismissal from the service."

The minister, who had knotted his fingers together, began to crack his knuckles one by one. "Be patient, Excellency."

"There's still this Blackkadder fellow," the ambassador muttered hopefully.

The minister was thinking of certain matters he had not voiced. Somebody was out to get him—perhaps had already got him! A phrase used casually by the ambassador hovered in his thoughts. What was the most questionable night club in town? El Tenorio. A gleam lit in his eyes.

"Ah," he half sighed with relief, "you can put your trust in step-fathers, Mr. Ambassador; I'll send a young friend of mine."

"Who?"

"His name is Arnaldo—Adan Arnaldo."

The shots which had so astonished Dirk Van Suttart stirred Joyce Sewell to swift action. She rushed down into the patio, ascertained they had been fired from the two eastern towers, dispatched Luz to the northern one with a categorical order to lay off and hurried herself up the spiral stone steps of the bastion overlooking the southeastern gate. There she found Leonardo with head and shoulders thrust into an embrasure, looking out.

"We stopped a car in its tracks," he announced, "and it's almost a kilometer away!"

"That's fine, Leonardo," said Joyce, her face white, "but we'll have no more shooting until I say the word. Let me look, please."

Almost at once she discovered the distant car, a shining mark under the rays of the morning sun. It was a roadster and presently she saw emerge from its single seat a huge bear-like figure. Instantly Helm Blackkadder came to mind, for who else could it be? Well, she was ready for him. What could he do besides talk? Let him come, and the sooner the better. The man stood for a moment as still as a pillar staring at his car, then he opened the rumble, dragged out a duffie bag and what looked like a gun, threw them over his shoulders and started to walk toward the hacienda.

He had gone less than a hundred yards when he came to the barranca and the rope bridge and he hastened his steps. At that juncture her attention was diverted to a cloud of dust moving across the prairie far to the east. She saw it had been caused by a troop of horsemen and the next instant she realized they had dismounted and were emitting strange puffs of smoke. What could they be shooting at? At her? She was about to draw back instinctively when she saw the bear-like figure leap into the air, come down on all fours and scurry for cover. Leonardo wedged himself into the embrasure next to hers.

"Dorado!" he yelled. "Dorado y su gente!"

Her Attention Was Riveted on Something Else.

source that a certain Joyce Sewell, said to be the daughter of the 'do-camping' former owner of La Barranca, suddenly appeared on the scene accompanied by 18 of her fellow countrymen, popularly known as gringos. Disguised to look like our own campesinos, by artifice these men introduced themselves into the innermost recesses of the hacienda. Opening fire without warning they are reported to have massacred the few Doradistas on guard and driven the general himself into the nearby hills. That he should have escaped is only one more proof of the astuteness and bravery with which—

The ambassador read no more. "A bad business," he murmured. "I can see various complications."

"They are innumerable," said the minister in a tone of exasperation. "No sooner do I estimate them from one angle than another slant presents an entire new crop. I doubt whether you can mention any aspect we should consider before all others."

"I certainly can," said the ambassador promptly. "The matter of the 18 Americans supposed to have accompanied the girl. I don't believe it. I don't believe there was even one American with her."

The minister threw out his hands and let them fall in a despairing gesture. "Excellency, please! It is of no consequence whatever whether they were Americans or not. Personally—I'm inclined to agree with you. But the public has been led to believe there were Americans—18 of them—and as long as it continues in that conviction it's exactly as if there had been."

"I admit it," said the ambassador grimly. "Nevertheless, I intend sending a declaration to the papers that no American accompanied Miss Joyce Sewell. Her disappearance has been causing considerable commotion not only in my country but throughout the English-speaking world. It was thought she was penniless, consequently her parents were mystified as well as worried."

"Her parents? Are you speaking in the Spanish or the English sense of the word?"

"The English. She has a stepmother and a prospective stepfather who is expected to arrive here today."

"Ah," breathed the minister "one

Age Limit of Earth Fixed at 3,000,000,000 Years by U. S. Chemistry and Soils Expert

Ever since it was discovered that the heat emitted by radio-active substances in the earth was sufficient in amount to have an important geological significance, efforts have been made to calculate the effect of these substances and to use them as a key to determining the age of the earth. The study of the effects of uranium and radium, the heaviest radio-active substances, gave ages of the earth ranging from 1,200,000,000 to 2,000,000,000 years. Dr. A. Keith Brewer, of the bureau of chemistry and soils, Department of Agriculture, has studied the effect of potassium, one of the lighter elements which is also radio-active, and has found that it has played an important role in the history of the earth.

The amount of radio-active potassium varied during the succession of periods of the earth's processes of change, and when the earth was 1,000,000,000 years old it produced sixty times the heat produced by the heavy radio-active elements

The minister, who had knotted his fingers together, began to crack his knuckles one by one. "Be patient, Excellency."

"There's still this Blackkadder fellow," the ambassador muttered hopefully.

The minister was thinking of certain matters he had not voiced. Somebody was out to get him—perhaps had already got him! A phrase used casually by the ambassador hovered in his thoughts. What was the most questionable night club in town? El Tenorio. A gleam lit in his eyes.

"Ah," he half sighed with relief, "you can put your trust in step-fathers, Mr. Ambassador; I'll send a young friend of mine."

"Who?"

"His name is Arnaldo—Adan Arnaldo."

The shots which had so astonished Dirk Van Suttart stirred Joyce Sewell to swift action. She rushed down into the patio, ascertained they had been fired from the two eastern towers, dispatched Luz to the northern one with a categorical order to lay off and hurried herself up the spiral stone steps of the bastion overlooking the southeastern gate. There she found Leonardo with head and shoulders thrust into an embrasure, looking out.

"We stopped a car in its tracks," he announced, "and it's almost a kilometer away!"

"That's fine, Leonardo," said Joyce, her face white, "but we'll have no more shooting until I say the word. Let me look, please."

Almost at once she discovered the distant car, a shining mark under the rays of the morning sun. It was a roadster and presently she saw emerge from its single seat a huge bear-like figure. Instantly Helm Blackkadder came to mind, for who else could it be? Well, she was ready for him. What could he do besides talk? Let him come, and the sooner the better. The man stood for a moment as still as a pillar staring at his car, then he opened the rumble, dragged out a duffie bag and what looked like a gun, threw them over his shoulders and started to walk toward the hacienda.

He had gone less than a hundred yards when he came to the barranca and the rope bridge and he hastened his steps. At that juncture her attention was diverted to a cloud of dust moving across the prairie far to the east. She saw it had been caused by a troop of horsemen and the next instant she realized they had dismounted and were emitting strange puffs of smoke. What could they be shooting at? At her? She was about to draw back instinctively when she saw the bear-like figure leap into the air, come down on all fours and scurry for cover. Leonardo wedged himself into the embrasure next to hers.

"Dorado!" he yelled. "Dorado y su gente!"

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

SPRINGS in furniture seldom break. The twine that holds them does break and webbing wears out throwing the springs out of position.

To set the springs you will need a ball of twine and a needle such as used by the upholsterer, enough webbing to replace the old, tacks 1/4-inch long with large heads, a block of wood for stretching the webbing, a tack hammer and a tack lifter. Remove the cover from the seat carefully so that it may either be used again or serve as a pattern. Most of the padding may also be used. Observe how each layer of material is fastened in place, so that you may put it back the same way.

Remove the springs and all old tacks. Tack the first strip of webbing to one edge of the bottom of the frame, letting the end extend 1/4 inch beyond the edge, then fold the end over the first tacks and tack again as at A. Draw the webbing across the frame using the block of wood as a lever to stretch webbing taut as at B. When all the strips have been stretched and tacked across the frame one way, stretch strips of webbing across the other way weaving these over and under the first ones as at C. Now, sew the bottom of each spring to the webbing with the upholsterer's twine and curved needle as shown in this diagram.

Next, turn the frame right side up, drive tacks part way in along the edges; then tie the springs across each way with upholsterer's twine as shown in diagram C. The twine is tied to the tacks and to each spring and regulates the height of the springs—the outside edges usually being lower than the center to make a rounded top. When the springs are regulated evenly, drive the tacks in; then replace burlap or muslin coverings and padding.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Sugaring Doughnuts.—To dust doughnuts with sugar place the sugar in a paper sack and put in six doughnuts at a time. Hold the top of the sack together and shake it. The doughnuts will then be quickly coated with sugar.

Stuffed Cabbage.—Par-boil the prepared cabbage for five minutes. Roll about one tablespoonful rice, add to it about one cup cold chopped ham or bacon. Flavor with ketchup, season and add a little gravy. Stuff the cabbage with this mixture and bind round with tape. Put in a saucepan with a little boiling salty water. Cook steadily about three-quarters of an hour.

Lemon Slices in Punch.—Lemon halves and slices are apt to give a bitter taste to punch if they are left in it. It is best to wait until serving time to add them.

Brightening the Closet.—If the walls and woodwork of the dark clothes closet are painted white it will make it much lighter and easier to find things.

Measuring Flour.—Wheat flour is one of the easiest ingredients in baking to mismeasure. For best results always sift flour and measure by spoonfuls into a cup, being careful not to shake the filled cup.

When Cooking Cheese.—In cooking anything with cheese use a low temperature, because intense heat makes cheese tough and stringy.

Washing Blankets.—Do not crowd the washing machine full of blankets or other woollens. Allow plenty of space for the articles to soak. There will then be less strain on them.

Delicious Peppers.—Green peppers are delicious when stuffed with minced chicken and chopped mushrooms.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets made of May Apple are effective in removing accumulated body waste.—Adv.

Proper Diversion.—Of all the diversions of life, there is none so proper to fill up its empty spaces as the reading of useful and entertaining authors.

Austrian Troops Give Allegiance to Hitler.—News headline. Wildly cheering, adulation-drunk mobs of Viennese shout themselves hoarse as they greet "the Saylor."

Since Lithuania has been compelled to bow before the demands of Poland, we might not be surprised to see Hitler annex Czechoslovakia, Poland, Prussia then Lithuania to his Nazi "empire."—Of course, this is merely a personal opinion, so don't quote us.

We note that Dr. Townsend has a plan to create employment for 25,000,000 people. Sounds good. Mr. President, why don't you give him — what you say in English a "break?"

With all the experimental forms which you, my friend, are fully aware, why don't they give this plan a chance?

OLD LINCOLN

Where the Canyon of the Bonito Winds around the mountain base, And a tumbling little river Ripples on, and apace, Lies the gray old town of Lincoln Slumbering through her peaceful years, Dreaming in the summer sunshine.

Long forgotten are the tears That were shed when the days of carnage Tore her heart and wrecked her homes, And the deadly crack of the bullet Echoed through the mountain domes.

When the Murphy-Dolan faction Matched their wits against Mo-Sween.

And along that mile of highway History grew in tragic men. —Annie Sporf.

Lincoln is about 38 miles from Carrizozo, over an excellent highway.

Bonifacio Padilla

Tuesday afternoon about the hour of 6:30 Bonifacio Padilla passed away at his home in the east side, after an illness of a short duration. Mr. Padilla made his home in Carrizozo for the past eighteen years, during which time he was employed as a railroad section hand under Foreman C. O. Davis, who, with the rest of his crew, thought well of him as a faithful worker and true companion. He leaves a brother, Pedro of El Paso; his foster son, Ramon Ventura, Carrizozo, three nephews, Rudy of Carrizozo, Rene and Carlos of Tucumcari, to all of whom the sympathy of this community is tendered. Funeral services were held yesterday at the Santa Rita Church, with Father Salvatore officiating and interment made in the local cemetery.

The usual good attendance was apparent at the weekly meeting Tuesday night. The second degree was conferred on Lawrence Drago. Several new applications are in evidence, and will appear on the secretary's desk at the next meeting.

Local P.O. Ranks High

M. M. Johnson, government postoffice inspector, was here last Friday, and checked up the local postoffice. After his work was finished, he complimented Mr. Kelt and his assistants on the manner in which the records were kept, and ended by saying that the grade was 98, which makes it rank among, if not the first in his district, which is that of Clovis. That serves to verify repeated statements in this paper of the good service the local office has been giving to the people of Carrizozo.
