Another Ticket

Morgan Lovelace, Village Clerk, Carrizozo, N. M. Sir:

We, the undersigned, hereby certify to you that our names are to be placed on the official ballot for the municipal election to be held in Carrizozo, N. M., on April 5, 1938...

Jeremiah Dalton

Sunday morning, when members of the William Norman family went to call Grandpa Jerry Dalton, they received no answer and going into his room, they found that he had died peacefully, during the night...

The funeral was held Monday afternoon with services at the Baptist Church and conducted by Rev. Vandiver. A choir composed of Mesdames R. E. Lemon, Louis Adams, Messrs. Colonel Jones and Murel Burnett sang two selections and Burnett sang a solo.

Jeremiah Filmore Dalton was born in Polk County, Mo., on June 23, 1857. He was married to Hannah Hust in 1882, to which union four children were born, one boy and three girls. The son, George, died Aug. 3, 1900, at the age of 17 years.

"Jerry" Dalton, as he was affectionately called by his many old friends, was a man who in spite of his advanced years, kept fully abreast of the times. He was a constant reader of choice literature and also kept himself well posted on current events, religious and political.

Mr. and Mrs. Clint Branum and small daughter came over from Las Cruces, accompanied by Clint's mother, Mrs. Nellie Branum, who had been visiting her son's family for a week. They returned to Las Cruces on Monday.

Mmes. J. S. Collins and Sterling Fisher of Capitan were Carrizozo visitors the latter part of last week.

School Notes

The annual Lincoln County Track and Field Meet will be held in Capitan Apr. 9. At the same time there will be several contests in music and scholastic affairs.

The Senior Class has set the date Apr. 14 for their annual play "Bertie's Cave Woman." The cast is working hard on this play under the direction of Miss Della Ward.

The 6th and 7th grade pupils, under the direction of Mrs. A. V. Swearingen and Miss Marie Cole are preparing an operetta "Aunt Drucella's Garden" to be given soon. Effective costumes and stage settings are in the making.

Mrs. J. M. Snyder and Miss Marie Cole were Albuquerque visitors over the week-end.

The Home Economics District Club Meeting will be held in Carrizozo Saturday, Apr. 8. We hope to have a pretty day.

The booklet entitled "Aims of Carrizozo Schools" is having a wide circulation. There is a greater demand than we can supply; hence anyone having read their booklet if they will return it so another may read it they will be conferring a favor on the school.

Book reports for extra credit is the center of attraction for several English classes.

Local Postoffice Ranks Eight in Selling Bonds

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has announced that the total value of United States Savings Bonds sold through the close of business March 7, 1938, amounted to $1,584,875. This total was purchased by more than 1,260,000 investors and represents an average sale for each business day since March 1, 1935, when these bonds were first sold of $1,720,875.

A record for one day's sale of saving bonds was set on Monday, January 10, of this year, when $10,029,775, maturity value of these bonds were reported sold on that single day. Sales by postoffices throughout the country on that day represented $9,025,850, maturity value of bonds and direct by-air mail orders were received in Washington for savings bonds of a maturity value of $1,004,425.

The sale of Savings Bonds for the calendar year 1937 was 34.2 per cent greater than 1936, exceeded the ten months' sale of these Bonds in 1936 by 82 per cent.

The total maturity value sale for the Calendar year of 1937 amounted to $585,419,175, with approximately 600,000 purchasers, and an average sale for each business day of $2,090,200.

The majority of the registered owners are small investors who are buying their bonds out of income. Purchases by individuals represent approximately 85 per cent of the amount of Bonds sold. Of the remaining 15 per cent, 9 per cent was purchased by Banks and trust companies, 3 per cent by Corporations, and approximately 3 per cent by associations.

The $100 Bond unit is the most popular denomination and has accounted for 39.88 per cent of the number of the Bonds sold. The $25 unit ranks next with a sale of 28.71 per cent. The $50 unit is next with a sale of 18.49 per cent. The $1,000 unit follows with 18.19 per cent; while the $500 unit accounts for 9.23 per cent.

It will be interesting to note that among the 3rd Class post-

The Other Side of Jim Fisk

The picture shown at the Lyric Theatre Wednesday - Thursday, "Toast of New York" and featured by Edward Arnold and Frances Farmer, brings us back in Memory's Lane, to the days of Jim Fisk and Coal Oil Johnny. Fisk was one of the most out-of-the-ordinary characters known to the world, before his career of since the dramatic ending of his remarkable life.

Springing from a soap peddler and ward healer to one of the most mighty of grafting financiers, he astounded the entire world and defeated the most cunning money Kings of finance. On the stock market he worked schemes that surprised not only his adversaries, but his friends and co-workers as well.

After his death, when he was shot down by Stokes, a song was composed, which began with these words, "Jim Fisk was a man with his heart in his hand and he never went back on the poor." The song had a good run and its contents were true. At times, his associates would miss him and finally he would be found in some lonely hovel ministering to the needs of poverty-stricken people, seeking no word of praise and his charity, which knew no bounds, was never brought to light until after his death.

At his funeral, even his enemies attended, stopped to drop a tear and lay a bouquet on his bier. The picture failed to give Jim Fisk credit for good deeds and we were surprised at that important part of his life omitted. Up to the time of his death, he seemed to bear a charmed life, for while the big money Kings whom he had outwitted in financial deals and on the stock market would have gladly had him out of the way, he went about unguarded. Many schemes were planned to kill him, but even the underworlders could not be induced to put him out of the picture, for they admired his nerve. He was a "foeman, worthy of his steel" and the only one since his day, who has ever been able to defy and defeat, the entire financial Wall street combination, until killed by one of his victims, who shot him from ambush. His murderer barely escaped lynching.

Porfirio Chavez arrived today from Hot Springs where he visited his mother and family.

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"The Door of Death"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Well, boys and girls, this is the pay-off. A bird who had an adventure—in church. I've always known that Old Lady Adventure was no respecter of persons. Now it seems that she doesn't respect the cloth either.

Henry B. Willson of New York city is the lad who found adventure down at the end of the old sawdust trail. "An a boy," Henry says, "I had more than my share of particular escapes, but one in particular has left such a scar on my memory as time will never efface. Anything even today, that represents confinement—anything from a small room to a tight collar—throws me into a panic."

Well, there's a curious reaction. The minute I started reading Hank Willson's letter—the minute I hit that opening paragraph of his, I wanted to know what sort of a scare it was that would make a man go nuts over a tight collar. And I guess you boys and girls will want to know, too. So here's the story.

Hank Used Kerosene to Start the Fire.

Hank was raised—as they say down South—in a little village in Georgia that went by the name of Cedartown. And like most kids, did in small towns in those days, he worked around at various odd jobs to earn his spending money. Hank's dad was the pastor of a church in town, and one winter Hank had the job of taking care of the church furnace.

Now there are probably a million ways of starting a fire, but Hank's plan was to throw a bunch of paper in the furnace, chuck a lot of wood in on top of that, and then saturate the whole business with kerosene. It's a darned good way to get a blaze going quickly, but some horrible things have happened to people who used kerosene too freely in places where it was never meant to be used.

In fact, a very horrible thing DID happen—to Hank. Hank built fires in the old church perhaps two dozen times—always

The Fire Blazed Up on the Instant.

In that one particular way of his. And then he built one that brought Old Lady Adventure down on him like a ton of bricks.

Early one Sunday morning, Hank got up, put on an old sweater, and started out to do his job. He tossed in an armful of crumpled newspapers, and followed that with a couple armfuls of wood. He poured the kerosene on, giving the furnace an exceptionally liberal dose. Then, with a box of matches in one hand, he stuck his head and shoulders in through the furnace door to arrange the wood so that it would be sure to take fire quickly.

Caught in a Blazing Trap.

So far, everything was all right. But it was the matches that did the damage. You know, when you've got a box of matches in your hand, it's the most natural thing in the world to light one. You do it automatically—absent-mindedly.

Well—Hank doesn't know what got into him, or where his wits were at the moment, but before he knew what he was doing, he had lit a match and—WITH HIS HEAD AND SHOULDERS STILL STICKING HALFWAY THROUGH THE FURNACE DOOR—applied that match to the kerosene-soaked wood and paper.

The fire blazed up in an instant. Hank's first reaction was to jerk his head and shoulders back out of the furnace door. He tried to do just that—but it didn't work. His sweater had caught on the catch of the furnace door, and though he fought like mad to draw back out of the way of the spreading flames, he couldn't work himself free.

Hank screamed. But his screams were so muffled by the furnace that no one in the street heard him. Meanwhile the fire was getting hotter—and closer. Hank's face was beginning to cook. His sweater caught fire and broke into a blaze. Death was leering at him through the flames that licked and lapped at his body.

"It was the most horrible fate I could imagine," Hank says.

"And it was happening to me."

Fox Terrier Gave the Alarm.

About that time, though, Hank became conscious that there was some sort of commotion going on behind him. A little fox terrier had come wandering in through the open cellar door, and the dog seemed to know that something was wrong. He started to yelp and whine, and run back and forth between the furnace and the cellar door.

Early on a Sunday morning, when no one was about, that yelping little dog might easily have gone unnoticed. But fate had decreed otherwise, it seems, and down the street came an old negro. The old fellow was curious to see what strange happenings would make a dog act so at a time when most dogs are asleep, and he stuck his head in the cellar door.

That old fellow got the shock of his life. For what he saw was a furnace burning merrily, and a half portion of an eight-year-old boy sticking out of the door. He grabbed Hank by the legs, yanked him out, and slapped out the fire that was consuming his sweater.

Hank's hair was all braced off, and his face and hands were in a well-cooked condition. Two minutes more, and it wouldn't have been any use bothering with him.

That's why he doesn't like confinement. Even a tight collar reminds him of that furnace door.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for April 3

SERVING OTHER RACES

LESSON TEXT—Mark 7:24-27.
GOLDEN TEXT—God is no respecter of persons.—Acts 10:34.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Lord of All.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Lord of All.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Showing Good Will to Other Races.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Practicing Christian Brotherhood Toward All Races.

"God is no respecter of persons" (Acts 10:34). He who by reason of His infinite knowledge might well draw lines of distinction between them is loving and gracious toward all, not willing that any should perish, extending His mercy to men of all conditions and all races. But men, whose knowledge is so limited that they cannot even rightly judge the thoughts of their own hearts, are quick to discriminate against their fellow man because he is of a different race, color, or social position.

A leader of the Southern Baptist church recently pointed out that the number of heathen in the world has increased about two and a half times as rapidly as the number of Christians, which means that at the rate of progress of missions during the last generation the world has become more heathen at the rate of six million a year, and now we are retarding the process still further. Because of financial depression we are recalling missionaries. When the world is ablaze with sin and God-denying political theories we withhold the gospel it needs. It has well been said that such strategy is like closing the hospital because an epidemic is in progress.

Jesus had gone into Syrophenicia and the region of Decapolis (look them up on the map) to rest. But the need of the Gentile people (to whom He was not at that time called to minister) impelled Him to help them also. Note how they were stimulated to believe, how their faith was tried, but triumphant.

I. Faith Encouraged.

The Greek woman and the man of Decapolis were led to believe in Christ—in two different ways.

1. By hearing about Jesus. The woman "heard of him" (v. 25). Paul says, "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Rom. 10:17). Are we diligent in season and out of season, telling the story of Jesus and His love? If so, men and women of our acquaintance will hear of Him and be ready to call on Him in the day of their trouble.

2. By a personal meeting with Jesus. The man was deaf; he could not hear about Jesus, but he could see Him. To him the Lord came in person, and by the sign language, related in verse 33, He stirred his heart to believe.

II. Faith Tested.

1. By obstacles. The woman met what seemed to be a sharp rebuke (v. 27), although it was no doubt much tempered by the tender voice of Jesus, and by the fact that He did not use the word "dogs" as the Jews did in speaking of the Gentiles. He spoke kindly, and He talked of the "little dogs" which were the pets of the household. But her faith was greatly tried, just as ours often is, not that it should fail, but that its strength might be demonstrated.

2. By natural handicaps. Jesus put no impediment in the way of the man, for he was already hindered by nature. How often do we not feel that in our very personalities and bodies are those things which hinder our full apprehension of the grace of God. Shall we then give up in discouragement? No. The man believed—right through the barrier of unhearing ears and a speechless tongue. We can do likewise by the grace of God.

III. Faith Rewarded.

1. By deliverance from the devil. The woman's daughter was set free because of her faith. Men and women around us need to be delivered from the devil. Perhaps you who read these lines are in need of such deliverance. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house" (Acts 16:31).

2. By deliverance from personal limitations. The man's "ears were opened, and he spoke plain" (v. 35). What is the unfortunate trait of personality, the handicap of body or mind that holds you back from accepting Christ as Saviour, or, having done so, from the full and free development of your spiritual life? Faith in Christ cuts right through the hindering inability. He said to Paul, "My grace is sufficient for thee; for my strength is made perfect in weakness."

Temper.

We are told, "Let not the sun go down on your wrath," but I would add, never act or write till it has done so. This rule has saved me from many an act of folly. It is wonderful what a different view we take of the same event four-and-twenty hours after it has happened.

WHAT TO EAT and WHY

E. Houston Goudiss Describes the Precious MINERAL SALTS

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
8 East 29th Street, New York.

That You Must Have in Order to Build Strong Bones, Sound Teeth, Healthy Nerves, Rich Red Blood

THE human body is often compared to a machine, but it is far more wonderful, far more complex, than the most intricate machine ever designed to run without stopping, day in and day out, for upwards of 70 years, is also a fully equipped chemical laboratory. For if a chemist should grind a man to bits and analyze the pieces, he would find at least 18 chemical elements, and possibly traces of several others.

In addition to oxygen, carbon, hydrogen and nitrogen, the body contains a wide variety of mineral materials, which are necessary to its proper functioning—and even to life itself. The list includes calcium, phosphorus, potassium, sulphur, sodium, chlorine, magnesium, iron, manganese, iodine and copper. All these substances must be furnished to the growing child—through food and drink—and generous amounts must also be supplied daily in the diet of adults, to replace the minerals that are constantly being used up.

Minerals Necessary to Life

It is vitally important that the home-maker should understand the function of these various salts and where they can be found. For if certain minerals are lacking in the body, the heart will stop beating. Without others, the bones cannot form properly. Still others are responsible for the rich red blood that makes the difference between a healthy person and a sickly one. Laboratory experiments have proved that if you leave out the smallest trace of the mineral known as manganese, you destroy the love of a mother for her child. And nutritionists—but unfortunately not mothers—are well aware that less than a thousandth of an ounce of iodine makes all the difference between a normal man and an imbecile.

Calcium—Captain of Minerals

Calcium deserves its ranking position as the captain of the minerals, because it builds the bones, or body framework. And the bony skeleton is to the human being what steel is to a building. Calcium is also the chief constituent of the teeth and upon healthy teeth rests the health of the digestive system and, in turn, the entire body. For food that is improperly masticated is imperfectly digested and fails to nourish properly.

About 99 per cent of the calcium in the body is found in the teeth and bones. If the body does not receive an adequate supply of this mineral in pre-natal life and during the growing years, the bones will be porous, distorted and easily broken, and the teeth will develop cavities and eventually may fall out.

In addition to being the principal material for making and maintaining the bones and teeth, calcium increases the strength and pulsations of the heart and helps the blood coagulate in case of injury; thus keeping you and your loved ones from bleeding to death. That is why an extra supply of calcium is fed to patients just before an operation.

Calcium Builds Will Power

There is a close relationship between calcium and sound, healthy nerves. And this precious substance likewise helps us to concentrate mentally—it strengthens our will power—and assists us in acquiring that "do-or-die" attitude toward life, which is essential in an age when we must all struggle or go under.

Yet despite its importance, it is estimated by that outstanding authority, Henry C. Sherman, Professor of Nutrition at Teachers College, Columbia University, that one-half of the American people—even those with plenty of money—are literally starving for calcium, because they do not know the food sources of this vitally important mineral.

Where to Obtain Calcium

The foremost sources of calcium are milk and cheese, which is milk in concentrated form. It is chiefly to provide adequate calcium that homemakers must follow the rule of a quart of milk daily for every child, and a pint for each adult.

Vegetables, such as spinach, lettuce, celery, asparagus, string beans, cabbage, carrots and cauliflower are also a good supplementary source of calcium. And some fruits, such as oranges, figs,

An Invaluable Aid To the Housewife

IN THIS issue you will find the fourth of the series of articles written by C. Houston Goudiss, famous food expert whose books, radio talks and lectures have made him known all over the country.

In this article Mr. Goudiss discusses the vitally important subject, "Mineral Salts." He shows the necessity of these materials in the diet, and their relation to the building of a strong heart, healthy nerves, rich red blood, strong bones and sound teeth. He also gives the food sources of these salts.

Read each one of these articles as they appear weekly in this newspaper. They will prove invaluable to the housewife in assisting her to keep the entire family mentally and physically fit.

grown near the sea. In inland regions, where soil and water are poor in iodine, health authorities frequently add it to the drinking water. And the use of iodized salt is also recommended. By these simple measures, thousands of growing children can be saved from the disastrous results of iodine deficiency.

In general, it can be said that if the minerals calcium, phosphorus, iron and iodine are supplied in adequate amounts, the other minerals will be automatically furnished.

But every homemaker should make it her solemn responsibility to provide these four in abundance. For only in that way can you insure optimal growth in children, develop vigorous health in adults, and maintain the highest possible tone of every organ in the body.

A Splendid "Service" for Floors

Floors receive rougher treatment than any other part of the home—and it is floors that show up to poorest advantage when neglected—best advantage when properly cared for! Up to now, attractive floors have required some little time and attention, but this is no longer necessary. For into the field of domestic preparations has come "self-polishing wax"—liquid, smooth, simple to apply, lovely to see. This remarkable preparation goes on—easily, quickly, and dries in 20 minutes! Its results are 4-fold: The floors are protected—they are preserved—they stay freshly clean longer—and they are beautified! A quality self-polishing wax protects and preserves, by forming a film over the surface—hard enough to withstand friction and grinding wear—and tear. It induces floors to stay clean longer, because dirt and grease cannot become imbedded in the wood. It beautifies, because it is shimmering, transparent, and brings out the natural beauty of the wood. And what more could the home-maker ask for? There are, however, various qualities of self-polishing wax available. Only the best should be used, for both the appearance and condition of the floors. But the finest self-polishing wax is a joy to use—its lasting results a joy to see!

FLOORS POLISH THEMSELVES

...with O Cedar Self Polishing Wax. No rubbing—simply spread it on and let it dry—then watch your floors sparkle! Non-slippery, long-wearing—eliminates scrubbing—dusting alone keeps floors clean. Full quart, only 35¢.

DIZZY DRAMAS

By Joe Bowers

Speed of Birds

The Baltimore oriole makes 33 miles an hour, as does the black duck. The sharp-tailed grouse makes 33 and the robin 30 miles an hour. Pigeon fanciers will be interested to know that an authority puts the speed of the homing pigeon at 45 miles, but the starling makes 51. The eagle flies a mile a minute and so does the mallard and the Canada goose. The pheasant is in the same class, but the canvasback, that prime prize of sportsmen, must be taken at 72 miles on the wing.

Early Prize Fighting Rules

Under the London ring rules a round in prize fighting ended when a man was knocked, fell or was thrown to the ground. Some rounds lasted many minutes, others only a second or two.

Tropaeolin, a Drug

Tropaeolin is a drug having the general anesthetic and myriatic qualities of cocaine. It is an alkaloid and is extracted from a small-leaved variety of coca growing in Java.

Time Affects Ancient Pyramids

Of the seven wonders of the ancient world, the pyramids of Egypt alone have defied time and the destructiveness of conquering armies. There is probably no other man-made structure in existence that will outlive these sanctuaries of the Pharaohs which were built by master engineers. The largest pyramid, Khufu or Cheops, contains 2,300,000 blocks of stone, each weighing about 2 1/2 tons. Originally it was 481 feet high, but due to age and long exposure to the elements its height has been cut to about 450 feet.

Jed Tunkins' Idea of Fame

Jed Tunkins says fame just naturally comes to some people. George Washington got more credit for chopping a cherry tree than anybody else could get for breaking up a cord of wood.

Chronometers Corrected at Sea

The Old Man

THE reflected rays of the noonday sun flash from the panes of the great factory.

A siren sounds. The whir of machinery stops. It is the lunch hour. From his office window, the "Old Man" looks out at the smoking chimneys—across the tarred roofs of the far-flung plant whose products are shipped by rail and sea to every nation.

A boy brings a tray with a raw apple, a bottle of milk and some crackers. The "Old Man" is lunching at his desk.

As he watches the workers swarming out of the factory, he sees a crowd collecting at the gate.

Presently a man who is standing on a packing case begins to wave his arms. He is a swarthy little man with a black mustache. The "Old Man" can't hear what he is saying—but he can guess. The "Old Man's" salary was published in yesterday's newspaper. His income runs into six figures—more than the salary of the President of the United States.

The man speaking from the packing case is a professional agitator. It is his job to make the workers discontented with their lot.

"Soak the rich," he cries. He doesn't care how much the "Old Man" pays out in taxes.

"Down with capital!" he is shouting. "Down with the 'Old Man'!"

At the fringe of the crowd a young man is eating a sandwich from his dinner pail. The "Old Man" recognizes the young man. He is the son of Charlie Pedersen, a foreman in the tool room. He has been studying mechanical engineering at night school.

Young Pedersen is not paying much attention to the man on the packing case. As he munches his sandwich he is thinking excitedly—"A salary like that is something to work for! The 'Old Man' started at the bottom just like me. It's ability that counts. I have ability. Some day my pay check will be as big as that!"

The "Old Man" did start at the bottom, and he is proud of it. Five thousand men and women work for the great company and he holds the helm. Their trust, their hopes are in his hands.

The "Old Man" never went to college, yet his laboratories are filled with graduates from the best schools in the land. His alma mater was a backwoods schoolhouse where he trudged through the snow in copper-toed leather boots, McGuffey's Reader in his hand.

With most of the men and women who work for the company, "Old Man" is a term of genuine affection. They are puzzled when they hear the agitator on the packing case describe him as an octopus.

There are white-haired men on the pay roll who can remember way back when the plant was a little one-story building and the "Old Man" was a tow-headed boy who carried water for the foundry.

As the "Old Man" looks out the window he is not worried about the man on the packing case or what he is saying. He has met his kind many times before.

He is worried more about what is happening in America today and about the eager, bright-eyed son of Charlie Pedersen.

He is worried lest the sickness that has seized upon the rest of the world spread its infection through America; worried lest all the isms and insidious doctrines of alien places destroy our greatest heritage.

Land of the free, and home of the brave!

He thinks of Washington and Patrick Henry, of Jefferson and Lincoln.

He thinks of the thousands of brave Americans who have faced the wilderness, who have laid down young lives on Freedom's altar.

He thinks of his own father walking beside his creaking wagon, crossing the Alleghenies, with a rifle in his hand.

He thinks of his birthplace, an humble cabin on an Ohio farm chopped out of the hardwood.

He reviews his own life, from its lowly beginning to his present proud position in industrial America.

"Isn't the essential difference," he asks, "between this America of ours and all the polyglot nations of the earth, that this has always been a free land where men of ambition may scale the dizzy heights?" The social register of American business is filled with the names of men who came into the world with empty hands.

Is the man on the packing case right? What does he offer in exchange?

There must be bosses under any system. Isn't the better boss a man who has worked his way from the bottom to the top, a man who is a good boss because he understands the problem?

It would be too bad, the "Old Man" thinks, if the son of Charlie Pedersen should miss the opportunity that is his by heritage. It would be too bad if America should become like other countries, so regimented and politician-ruled that it would no longer be possible for a man to toil and climb and pluck the prime fruits of reward.

For then this country would cease to be—America, sweet land of Liberty.

Health and the Weather

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.

A PHYSICIAN with an extensive hospital practice both in private and public ward patients, stated that at one time he much disliked visiting his rheumatic patients during cool damp weather as practically all of them would be feeling "low." He later found that other patients besides those afflicted with rheumatism felt worse on the damp days.

Dr. J. Kuhman in an article in the Journal of the American Medical Association taken from a Leipzig medical journal says, "Everyday experiences show that noticeable reactions of the human organism take place only in case of weather changes. The manner in which weather changes influence the body or-body processes is extremely complicated. A part of the effect of weather changes on the body—drastic changes of the moisture in the air, temperature and rate at which the wind blows—can be explained by the sudden demand on the body-processes that regulate the body's temperature.

What the Weather Does. The weather changes seem to affect that part of the nervous system not under control of the will such as the beating of the heart, breathing, and digestion. Children and slender adults are often irritable and restless in cold and damp weather, but drowsy and sleepy during a warm spell.

The weather in these sensitive individuals affects the blood pressure, the rate at which body processes work and also affects or changes the chemistry of the blood itself. The knowledge then that weather changes affect the body processes in weather-sensitive individuals should make us more patient with them. It should also help these individuals to understand that as the weather changes affect the body processes, they must expect to have some bad days.

Why So Many Colds? You have friends and acquaintances who seem to have colds very often and others who seldom have a cold; yet as far as you can see, the ones with colds seem just as robust and healthy as the ones who seldom if ever have a cold.

Research physicians are now of the opinion that some individuals are susceptible or more likely to have colds than others, and so the reason for this is being sought. Dr. I. G. Spiesman and Dr. L. Arnold, Chicago, in the American Journal of Digestive Diseases and Nutrition, tell of their experiments with, and observations of, 63 patients over a period of three years. These cases were selected from outdoor clinic patients after having been treated by various methods for a long time previously.

These physicians report that "the individual suffering with repeated colds between October and April was found to have an altered action or condition of lining (mucous membrane) of the nose and throat when heat or cold was applied to the skin. When their skin is chilled there is a slow, gradual closing (or frightening) of the little blood vessels in the mucous membrane of the nose and throat which lasts for from several minutes to two hours. This means that the little blood vessels in the lining of the nose and throat are not adjusted properly to the needs or protection of the body. You can understand that if these little vessels close up and do not supply the necessary blood to the mucous lining for any length of time, the organisms that cause colds and other ailments get a good chance to cause trouble. And, unfortunately, these organisms are in the nose all the time, anyway, ready, as it were, to attack when they find this protective lining of the nose unfit to fight them off."

Drs. Spiesman and Arnold tell us that by the use of hot and cold applications (hydrotherapy) and cutting down on certain foods—wheat breads, pastry, pies and cookies—not only were the number of colds reduced in these patients but when the colds did occur, they did not last so long.

Cat-Catching in Japan

Cat-catching is a means of livelihood for the Japanese poor. They sell the cats in Tokyo and elsewhere to makers of musical instruments for manufacture of catgut strings. With a fluttering sparrow as bait and a club for a weapon the cat-catcher starts his work at day-break. Spotting a cat, he pulls a string attached to the bird's legs. The sparrow squeaks, attracting the cat, which is hit on the head by the stalker hard enough to end all nine lives. There is one hazard. The cat-catcher is liable in damages for destruction of private property if caught with an animal belonging to someone else.

TIPS to Gardeners

Young Garden Care

THE value of a garden plant, vegetable or flower, depends greatly upon the start it gets; so give the seedlings ample care.

Begin cultivation as soon as rows are visible, if the soil is not wet. Work close to the small plants, cultivating shallower as they grow to avoid injury to root growth.

Cultivate at least once a week.

Watering should not be necessary the first week or ten days after seeds have sprouted. Later, young plants may be watered one of two ways: Mark a shallow trench about four inches from the row and run it full of water. Or, using a fine spray, apply water from directly above plants. Watering is most effective when it closely follows cultivation.

Small plants should be thinned, as directed on packets, to allow proper development. Certain vegetables may be used as thinned. For instance, onions thinned may be used as green onions, and lettuce may be picked for immediate use, leaving smaller leaves to develop.

Our Government

THE governmental functions of the United States fall into the legislative, executive and judicial divisions.

The members of the President's cabinet are appointed by the President, with the consent of the senate.

There are 10 cabinet officers. Each state has two senators. The representation in the house is apportioned on the basis of population.

The membership of the house is elected every two years.

One-third of the senate is elected every two years.

- How many parts of speech are there?
- What part of what state is farther north than any other in the Union?

The Answers

- The state of Delaware has only three counties. It has only one city (Wilmington) with a population of over 100,000.
- The recognized record for circling the bases is 13.4 seconds, made by Evar Swanson of the Cincinnati Reds, September 15, 1929.
- In 1690 by the Massachusetts Bay colony. It was gradually issued by other colonies until in general use by all.
- It is so called in the sense of its being normal, regular, conformable to a recognized standard type.
- No.
- The vertical clearance at the center of the bridge is 220 feet above mean high water, so boats can easily pass under it.
- An turkey is American by origin, it seems incorrect to associate this job with the ancient Hebrew. Poor, of course, refers to a thin and weak fowl, not to the lack of money.
- He was his grandnephew. Edward Everett Hale's father, Nathan Hale, was a nephew of the Nathan Hale who was hanged by the British as an American spy.
- Eight: Nouns, pronouns, adjectives, verbs, adverbs, prepositions, conjunctions and interjections.
- Lake of the Woods county, Minnesota.

Very Smart New Fashions

A HOUSE dress with long slender lines, a dress and apron for little girls, and a popular bolero frock for slim young figures!

You will certainly want one of these, and more likely will want all three. With each pattern, you receive a complete and detailed sew chart specially planned to help beginners, so that the making will be easy, and save you money besides.

Popular Bolero Frock. Make it up of silk crepe or a pretty print, and see how expensive, how flattering, it looks! The short bolero and wide shoulders make the slim lines of the frock even more graceful. Notice how cleverly the dress is shirred into the front panel at the waistline. This is one of the prettiest afternoon dresses you could choose for this spring.

Dress and Apron for Tots.

Your little girl will be so proud of having this heart-shaped apron to put on over her best dress when she plays house! And the puff-sleeved, square-necked dress is adorable. You can make the two of them in no time. For the dress, choose dimity or organdy for dress-up; gingham or percale for every day. Dimity or lawn for the apron.

House Dress for Large Figures. This is such a becoming, comfortable, good-looking dress to work in, round the house. The lines are so straight and unhampering, and pleats in the short sleeves give plenty of room for stretching and reaching. It takes inches off the figure, top. Make it up in seersucker, gingham, linen or percale printed in small designs.

The Patterns.

1478 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 6 1/2 yards of 39-inch material. 1468 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 years. Size 4 requires 1 1/2 yards of 35-inch material for the dress, with 6 yards of narrow ribbon to trim and 1 yard wider ribbon for the belt. Size 4 requires 1/2 yard of 35-inch material for the apron, and 2 1/2 yards of ruffling. 1476 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 5 yards of 35-inch material without nap.

Spring-Summer Pattern Book.

Send 15 cents for the Barbara Bell Spring and Summer Pattern Book which is now ready. It contains 109 attractive, practical and becoming designs. The Barbara Bell patterns are well planned, accurately cut and easy to follow. Each pattern includes a sew-chart which enables even a beginner to cut and make her own clothes.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 102D, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

Twin Foes of Democracy By RAYMOND PITCAIRN National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

With shocked amazement America has been reading the tragic tale of what is happening under Communism and Dictatorship abroad.

Trials that are travesties, wholesale executions, widespread death by bomb and gunfire, reckless disregard of treaty rights, of national rights and of human rights—so run dispatches from Europe and Asia.

What are the purposes behind all this? What brought it about?

Essentially both Dictatorship and Communism, whatever their pretensions, are twin foes of representative democracy, as we have always known it in America.

Their aim is to subordinate the individual to the State. Their theory is that the citizen is incapable of running his own life, thinking his own thoughts, choosing his own religion, producing his own and the nation's goods under his own direction.

These things, they believe, can be better directed by the politicians in power.

The men who founded America and built it into a great nation established a different pattern. They held that government was of, by and for the people, and that the politicians were the servants of the people, not the masters.

They believed in the intelligence, the enterprise, the ability and the freedom of the individual citizen, and planned a government to encourage those virtues. The American epic proves how right they were.

But there are among us theorists and bureaucrats who disagree with the founders and builders of America. They would discourage initiative and enterprise, by virtuous attack, by confiscatory legislation, by destructive schemes of taxation. They seek to stifle enterprise by law. They prefer to see the politician in power, the individual citizen submerged.

That isn't the American ideal of representative democracy. It approaches the way of the totalitarian state.

If Americans want to know where that path can lead, let them study the headlines from abroad, then route our own course to avoid it.

Production Creates Employment By RAYMOND PITCAIRN National Chairman Sentinels of the Republic

Employment, as every American knows, depends on production.

When production booms, jobs and purchasing power flourish. When production is curtailed, jobs decrease and relief rolls mount—as is happening in America today.

Obviously then the way toward increased employment is to encourage production. And, conversely, the way to swell relief rolls is to discourage production.

This is no new idea. America has realized it throughout her history, and has progressed in general well-being as sound production has increased. Out of this process have come great cities, great areas of cultivated lands, great industries, great states, a great nation.

Every American of voting age can remember the part played by three young and growing industries—the automobile, the motion picture and the radio—in helping to lift us from the post-war depression of the early twenties to new heights of production, employment and general prosperity.

That was because the production and employment which such activities represented were widely encouraged. The progress they assured would have been impossible under a barrage of punitive taxes and abuses against which the group of small business men who met in Washington recently voiced their protests.

Neither then, nor in other days of prosperity, was America wealthier in lands, in equipment, in resources, or in the intelligence and ability of her people, than she is today.

Wider education and scientific advancement have opened still farther the door to progress.

America can go forward, and is straining to do so. What she needs is a readiness at Washington to strike off the shackles with which unreasonable taxes and bureaucratic regulations have bound her giant limbs.

Let this be done and the road to increased production, increased employment, increased purchasing power and greater national well-being will be opened again.

Singing at Corona

The first 1938 tri-annual all-day singing convention for Lincoln County began on Saturday night, March 26, at 7:30 in the Corona gymnasium, with F. E. Meek of Fort Stanton presiding. A large crowd was in attendance to enjoy the program of singing as arranged by the president. The Sunday session was attended by about 400 interested persons. The convention was honored by the presence of many visiting singers, among whom were Messrs. Vaughn of St. Vrain, Head of Clovis and Peipelman of Melrose, president, vice-president and secretary, respectively, of the New Mexico Singers' Association; the Farwell, Texas Quartet, composed of Ed Eason; Harold and Myron Hillock and Miss Julia Ruldrill; Jim Garrison of Mountainair, president, Mrs. Lizer, secretary of the Torrance county association.

The program recorded many participants, respectively, Quay, Curry, Gusdabue, Torrance and Lincoln counties, as well as our neighboring state of Texas. Special numbers given by the young people of Corona, under the direction of Paul Forgy, were greatly appreciated. Supt. Grissom delivered the welcome address, which was responded to by Joe Head of Clovis. A delicious basket dinner was spread at the noon hour.

Broke His Pick

Just as L. A. Jolly of the Carrizozo Cleaners was getting up last Saturday morning, a Weary Willie hurled a rock through his front window and dashed away with a hat. Jolly gave chase and as he gained on him, he threw a rock at the fleeing man, who ducked and dropped his own bonnet, but he kept traveling and Jolly after him. Finally, he dropped the other hat and that ended the chase. Jolly came out the winner with a hat and his guest, we presume, must be following the latest fad with a handkerchief wrapped around his dome. The hat belonged to Harry Gallacher.

Taxation Problem

Washington.—It is often the trick of political spokesmen to let their real feelings become known by a statement that makes no definite reference to the broader policies in which they are interested. Such a statement was that made lately by Sen. Pat Harrison, Mississippi Democrat, with reference to what the senate will do on the pending tax bill. At least, nearly all of the observers here who know the lovable Pat Harrison were quite convinced that, when he said the senate would grant business relief from unfair taxes, he actually was proclaiming congressional independence of President Roosevelt.

In the course of the tax bill debate in the house, there was a curious disclosure, a rather biting piece of debate. Representative Treadway, who would be chairman of the ways and means committee if Republicans were in the majority instead of being only a handful, told the house that the father of the surplus earnings tax had never come before the committee since the time he laid out the silly scheme which led to its enactment. Professor Oliphant has been so silent about his sponsorship of the plan that it has become almost thunderous. And Mr. Treadway thought it was unusual that a parent should shrink from acknowledgment of parenthood. He obtained no answer or explanation. The surplus earnings tax, in a modified form, was still in the bill as reported to the house, however, and there was sufficient New Deal strength in the house to hold it there. It will be different in the senate, and the speech by Senator Harrison simply is an announcement in advance.

This question of taxation is one with which the New Dealers are gravely concerned; they are just as much concerned as is business and the country as a whole. But they are concerned for a different reason. Same minds throughout the country long ago began to beg congress and the administration to make changes in the tax laws to permit business to go forward with employment and production. New Dealers attacked anyone who said that as an "economic royalist" or "lory" or some other one of the various things that the New Dealers profess to hate. After so long a time, however, the New Dealers conceded some changes were necessary—and then began the greatest face-saving maneuvers yet to be tried by the wishful thinkers.

Healthy Sign

It has been interesting to me to review these facts because I am inclined to the opinion that the situation in congress is more or less a reflection of the opinion in the entire country. The November elections lie ahead. Mail from home is pouring in, and the character of that mail is always closely studied by the politician seeking re-election. That is to say, the average house member or senator is keeping very close tabs on what the feeling is back home. They were not put to that necessity during the first four years of Mr. Roosevelt's administration. All that was needed was for a member to say that the President wants this or that, and vote that way. So clearly has all of this been made apparent that few who so desire are afraid any longer to assert themselves—to say what they think even if that is in administration opposition. It is a healthy sign.

When word went to the house ways and means committee that it could make modifications in the two New Deal tax laws, the aging Chairman Doughton, of that committee, followed instructions. Of course, there were seventeen Democrats and seven Republicans on the committee and that enabled the New Deal to carry out its plans for "modification" of tax laws—and to save faces. Regular Democrats and Republicans in the committee membership still were in the minority in the house of representatives, and the New Dealers had their way. The tax bill debate in the house nevertheless told of more steps at the administration that lay ahead.

So clearly has all of this been made apparent that few who so desire are afraid any longer to assert themselves—to say what they think even if that is in administration opposition. It is a healthy sign. It means that congress, while going along with Mr. Roosevelt many times, will put more and more checks on his proposals that have had their birth in the little red house of Georgetown's section of Washington, where all of the New Dealers congregate. It means further—in the opinion of some of the real Democrats—that the New Deal has played out. They are, therefore, getting back into their harness as Democratic leaders.

At this point in the developments, Senator Harrison enters upon the stage. He is chairman of the senate committee on finance. His statement, therefore, that the 1938 tax bill is going to give some basis upon which business can break even, at least, can be taken as indicative of the final form of that law when it emerges from congress. The house, under the lash of White House lobbyists, managed to hold part of the ways and means committee draft in its original shape while losing other parts of it. Thus, when the senate has acted and the bill is sent to conference committees for adjustment of the differences, it is rather plain to see how Democrats and Republicans are certain to override New Deal face-saving.

And, in this light, there has been another development that should not be overlooked. I refer to the collapse of Robert H. Jackson's candidacy for governor of New York. When Mr. Jackson, who lately was made solicitor general of the United States, was "going to town" as the expression is, left wing press agents had him all but elected in New York. A big banquet was tendered him in New York city. Mr. Roosevelt was quite instrumental in that banquet plan. He lent aid in stirring up attendance. It was notable, however, that the banquet created no excitement. That is, there was no excitement of importance, and just there the candidacy began to sag.

Harrison Speaks Out

I have written much in these columns about present tax policies heretofore. There is a little need to repeat the facts which continue to be important factors in the development of the Roosevelt depression.

I do not know what the real reason was for Mr. Jackson's subsequent statement that he would not seek the New York governorship. It is just possible, however, that the absence of Postmaster General Farley from the banquet sponsorship had something to do with the flop—for the dinner and candidacy surely did. Now, everyone around Washington knows that Mr. Roosevelt no longer takes the postmaster general into the executive confidence, even though Mr. Farley is chairman of the Democratic national committee. Indeed, it was printed in several widely read columns that Mr. Roosevelt actually distrusted Mr. Farley. I would not be able to report on that detail, but I can not overlook the fact that left wingers, especially the long-haired group, have been sniping at Mr. Farley for months. It is just possible, then, that they have persuaded Mr. Roosevelt to the point of conviction. He has listened to that group a very great deal and they may have made him feel that Mr. Farley is undermining the President.

The politics of the situation is another matter. That phase is equally important and significant. Senator Harrison would not have spoken out a few years ago, or even a year ago, as he has done lately. The house a year ago would never have rejected what has been called the "third basket" of taxation. (The so-called third basket was a new type of tax that would have made the rates sky-high on corporations held by only a few stockholders, family-owned corporations like thousands of small companies usually are.) No, the house would not have killed that a year ago, but it did this year. And, when Senator Harrison dared to say congress will do this and so, Senator Harrison was simply voicing a fact. He was saying, in effect, "Whether you like it or not, Mr. President, we will write the tax law in the interest of the country as we see it."

Ignore Farley

Farther up the lake's eastern shore is the ancient village of Garda. Its age may be inferred from a local legend which assures you that the adjacent waters cover the remains of a Roman city. Indeed, old fishermen aver that you can glimpse its submerged temples if your eyesight—or perhaps it is your imagination—is sufficiently strong.

So, when Senator Harrison spoke out boldly that something was going to be done to eliminate some of the obstacles which wishful thinking New Dealers have built up in their experimentation, it means, I believe, that Senator Harrison proposes to do just that. The politics of the situation is another matter. That phase is equally important and significant. Senator Harrison would not have spoken out a few years ago, or even a year ago, as he has done lately. The house a year ago would never have rejected what has been called the "third basket" of taxation. (The so-called third basket was a new type of tax that would have made the rates sky-high on corporations held by only a few stockholders, family-owned corporations like thousands of small companies usually are.) The Story of Garda's Tower.

On a more substantial basis rest Garda's lonely, rock-cliff donjon tower and its associated story. It is an episode of Tenth-century times, long before "Convey the captive maiden to my castle!" had become a mere literary expression, or "Non ti scordar di me!" was sung by Verdi's tower-immured lover. It seems that Adelaide, daughter of the duke of Burgundy, very properly declined to wed the son of Berengarius, prince of Ivrea, who had procured her husband's murder. Berengarius therefore sequestered the lady in Garda's lakeside tower, from which she was freed by a friar, who carried the news to Otto the Great of Germany. Otto moved on Berengarius, defeated him, and liberated the lady. Poetic justice was felicitously fulfilled when Otto fell in love with Adelaide and caused her to be crowned with him as joint sovereign of the Holy Roman Empire. Still farther up the lake you skirted the lovely Gardone Riviera, with its crowded bathing beaches and its curving promenades where rows of big umbrellas shelter holiday-makers from the warm October sun. Then the western shore shot up lake flat-faced cliffs—the back-

Feast Day Parade on Lake of Garda.

North Italy Garden Spot Replete With Beauty and Historic Interest

LAKE of Garda, an hour's drive west of Venice, is one of the garden spots of northern Italy, its blue waters perpetually mirroring lofty mountains, quaint lakeside villages and picturesque castles. Desenzano, at the foot of the lake of Garda, is the gateway to two of the most picturesque castles that ever faced snow-clad peaks from across deep-blue waters, whose shores gleam with oranges and lemons against a background of olive orchards, cedar groves, and scented bay trees. In this semitropical garden of the Alps, with its curiously mild air, one feels like those happy Hyperboreans who lived forever sheltered behind the north wind. Cactus, camphor trees, palms, hibiscus, oleander—the sight of these, cradled within the Alps' encircling foothills, startles one like some paradox of Nature. Shelter and warmth—the mountains' screen, the lake's unusually high temperature—explain the anomaly. Once only, two centuries ago, has this lake of Garda been known to freeze. Divers' descents reveal that its warmth increases at its lower depths. Hot springs are scattered through its area of 143 square miles, and at Sirmione you may enjoy a warm sulphur bath in water piped from one of these springs, the Bolola, that bubbles up from the lake.

As the little steamer steers eastward from Desenzano, you sight a low peninsula which stretches far into the lake; you set foot ashore and find yourself in a tiny fishing village. It has only a few cobbled streets and a simple inn whose lake-skirting terraces are arched by a profusion of flowers.

Castle of Sirmione.

Dominating every approach, and with its fortified bridge bestriding the lake's inlet, towers the castellated specter of a Scaliger stronghold. Lake-washed on two sides, and with lake-connecting moats to complete its isolation, the castle of Sirmione is unforgettable in its lone austerity. Few visitors pass. The netmakers ply their tasks along the sunny banks of the moat, which has become the local fishing fleet's haven. Sirmione's school children play at bowls with the smallest size of the Scaliger's stone cannon balls. The once-terrifying Titan of feudalism has become as those prehistoric monsters whose skeletons are biological milestones, even as castles are milestones in man's social evolution.

Farther up the lake's eastern shore is the ancient village of Garda. Its age may be inferred from a local legend which assures you that the adjacent waters cover the remains of a Roman city. Indeed, old fishermen aver that you can glimpse its submerged temples if your eyesight—or perhaps it is your imagination—is sufficiently strong.

It is an episode of Tenth-century times, long before "Convey the captive maiden to my castle!" had become a mere literary expression, or "Non ti scordar di me!" was sung by Verdi's tower-immured lover. It seems that Adelaide, daughter of the duke of Burgundy, very properly declined to wed the son of Berengarius, prince of Ivrea, who had procured her husband's murder. Berengarius therefore sequestered the lady in Garda's lakeside tower, from which she was freed by a friar, who carried the news to Otto the Great of Germany. Poetic justice was felicitously fulfilled when Otto fell in love with Adelaide and caused her to be crowned with him as joint sovereign of the Holy Roman Empire. Still farther up the lake you skirted the lovely Gardone Riviera, with its crowded bathing beaches and its curving promenades where rows of big umbrellas shelter holiday-makers from the warm October sun. Then the western shore shot up lake flat-faced cliffs—the background of terraced lemon groves—while from the opposite bank, rising over a vast expanse of olive trees, jutted a rocky headland whose profile culminated in the lofty outline of Castle Malcesine. The Scaliger's heraldic "ladder" must have resembled the modern extension ladder of fire companies, to have carried the Veronese despoils up Malcesine's sheer rock frontage, which they captured and castellanied. Indeed, this eagle's nest of a stronghold is eloquent of how the Italian word, "rocca" (rock), assumed the secondary meaning of castle. The Lake Has Two Saints. Far below the castle's swallow-tailed battlements lies blue Garda. Less lovable than austere, it is a mountain-crowned "king" among lakes, with its fishing smacks' golden sails bejeweling its breast. Looking inland across Malcesine's rooftops, you glimpse the tiny town's embankment, along which its wood-carrying fleet ties up. Malcesine has a feast day for a pair of patron saints who preside over the welfare of vessels on the treacherous Lake of Garda. On that day, skirting the castle's base and issuing on the little quay, moves a procession of priests, fishermen, sailors with their wives and children. Bearing church banners and lighted candles, they pass under the anchored smacks' bowsprits. And then there appears the feast emblem itself—a standard bearing a miniature fish boat, flanked by the patron saints' effigies. Now Christian saint has blessed pagan mermaid and trident-bearing Neptune. All is well as the pageant winds churchward once more. And as dusk falls, the surrounding mountain sides glow forth into a fairyland of little lights. It is the Lake of Garda's lantern feast in honor of this blessing of the bowsprits. One wonder if this same pair of saints presided over the safety of the Venetian fleet when it rested high among the Lake of Garda's surrounding mountain peaks in 1438. The spectacle of galleys issuing over the Alpine foothills was beheld by the discomfited lake fleet of the Viscontis. Those Milanese despots, being then at war with Venice, had seized the commanding positions on the Lake of Garda. Fleet Was Over Mountains. Then, one day, there appeared before the distracted Venetian senate a simple Greek sailor, Niccolò Sorbolo, with a plan for transporting war galleys from the Adige across the Alpine passes and down to the Lake of Garda. Instead of incarcerating him as a madman, the desperate senators acquiesced. By utilizing 2,000 oxen and a host of laborers, a unit of the Venetian fleet was actually hoisted up across 15 miles of Alpine wilderness through a pass, almost 1,000 feet high, between Mori and Torbole. The galleys were then lowered by capstans into Torbole's little harbor.

Same Old Four Will Fight for National Flag

By GEORGE A. BARCLAY
WHEN the front runners of the spring baseball season have petered out and the morning glory rookies who looked like the reincarnation of Ty Cobb have folded, the National league pennant race will settle down to a dog fight among the same contenders who battled it out in 1937. Four teams—the New York Giants, Chicago Cubs, St. Louis Cardinals and the Pittsburgh Pirates—again will hold the balance of power in the senior circuit. How they will rank in the final standings is anybody's guess, but all four will hold berths in the first division, leaving the Boston Bees, Brooklyn Dodgers, Cincinnati Reds and the Phillies to scramble for positions in the second division.

The race will probably be close, as usual, but not in the sense that powerhouse ball clubs will be involved. The standard of play should be about the same as last year, and that wasn't anything to brag about considering what happened to the National league team in the All-Star game and later to the pennant-winning Giants in the world series when they met the Yankees.

No Rookie Wonders.

Reports from the training camps and the spring exhibition games indicate that there will not be any radical change in the personnel of any of the four leaders. Here and there a newcomer may break into the regular lineup, but the freshmen probably won't be sensational or numerous. The champion Giants will be shy of strength in the infield, with first base still a problem, with the aging Mel Ott on third and Whitehead away from his post at second because of illness in the opening weeks. Still, Bill Terry won a pennant last year with a makeshift inner-defense.

Remembering the Cubs' dismal flop in August of 1936 and 1937, it is difficult to muster enthusiasm about them as a pennant winner. Yet they cannot be dismissed. Undoubtedly Charlie Grimm has the best-balanced team in the league. It is still a young team, comparatively speaking.

Charlie Grimm

The Cub outfield will be the vulnerable spot last year, but it looks as if this might now be solved with Joe Marty doing a smart job in center and Carl Reynolds standing ready to help Demaree and Galan. Spring reports indicate an improved pitching staff. The presence of Tony Lazzeri should help.

Diz Is Question

The league's big question mark is the St. Louis Cardinals and the biggest question mark on the team itself is Dizzy Dean. If Dizzy makes a comeback and his brother Paul is able to pitch at all, Frankie Frisch's Gas House Gang who are tough enough to win some games on sheer nerve may wind up on top. Dizzy was a chastened athlete in the early stages this year and his effort to make people forget his 1937 flop may result in some gilt-edge pitching. The Pirates will be shy of grade A pitching; but they should have a powerful attack once more. The Waner brothers aren't getting any younger, but they're still effective. There isn't much future ahead this year for the Bees, the Reds, the Dodgers and the Phillies. Bill McClellan, one of the most resourceful managers in baseball may get results at Cincinnati, but it would be too much to expect him to work any wonders in a single year.

Casey Stengel has inherited a scrappy team in the Boston Bees, but there isn't much punch there. The Dodgers may have helped themselves in getting Dolph Camilli at first and with Larry McEnhill in the saddle as general manager there may be further efforts at improvement. The case of the Phillies looks rather hopeless. There are a number of weak spots and not nearly enough strong ones to all them.
