Charles H. Thornton

On Monday, Dec 5, Chas. H. Thornton, 72, rancher and farmer of Oscura, died following an illness of but a few days.

Charley Thornton was born at Rockford, Ill., Feb. 7, 1866. In July 17, 1890, he was married to Miss Mary Ann Relston, to which union three children were born, two of whom are living.

Arthur W. Moore of El Paso and Herbert Edwards of Niles, Mich. Besides his wife and daughters, he leaves to mourn his loss, six grandchildren, Arthur and Shirley Moore, Thornton, Howard, Robert and Mary Edwards, two brothers, Dr. Thornton of Chicago and Edward of Hunter, Ill.

Mr. Thornton came to this section of New Mexico thirty years ago. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church and also a member of the Masonic order, holding his membership at Elk-horn, Wisconsin. Living on his ranch and farm near Oscura, he made frequent visits to Carrizozo with fruit and vegetables which he raised. He was always cheerful. A good citizen, a loving husband and father, his many friends will regret to learn of his passing.

The new McDaniel Store at Nogal is almost completed, according to Leandro Vega, who is doing some carpenter work on the building.

Can riches buy happiness?

Casper Kneeland, self-made man of wealth, thought so. But all the while the people closest to him plotted for his riches. Against the background of a Long Island summer estate is played this game of deep intrigue.

BUSINESS MEN'S CLUB

The attendance at the club Wednesday evening was 24, including two visitors. As that was the meeting for the annual election of officers, they were chosen by being elected by acclamation, as follows: President, James M. Carpenter; Vice-President, Geo. A. Titaworth of Captain; Secretary, E. M. Brickley. Eugene Calkins of the New Mexico School Supply Co., guest of Mr. Phil Bright, gave a brief talk containing things of interest to the club.

Mr. Bloodworth, secretary of the El Paso Chamber of Commerce being present, he offered the services of his organization to assist us in our road matters and other laudable undertakings. The next meeting will be held at the Carrizozo High School, when the club members will be guests of the Home Economics Department.

Dewey Stokes, Chairman of the Board of Commissioners, gave a talk about the easements on Highway 54 and among other things of interest, he stated that there were some property owners on the survey route who have not signed up and all such property will be condemned. Mr. Stokes stated that as the county did not have the funds with which to conduct the condemnation proceedings, the state has promised to loan us the money, which will be forthcoming soon.

Wires Crossed

The Western Newspaper Union at Denver, from which supply house both Carrizozo papers receive their ready-prints, had the bundles changed in some manner and the same went unnoticed until too late to make the change. Readers of the serial stories will have to exchange copies with their neighbors in order to keep up with the installments; in other words, if you are reading our new story, "The Life of the Party," you will have to see a copy of the Lincoln Co News. To the reverse, if you are reading "Crucible," you will have to read it in the Outlook.

But don't be alarmed, folks! The error in our wholesale supply office has not changed the politics of either paper. We assure you that the mistake will not happen again.

Mr. and Mrs. John House have purchased the cottage better known as the one formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Sam Allen from F. A. English.

Gunther Kroggel, manager of the New Mexico Mechanical Equipment Company returned Thursday from a business trip to Santa Fe and Albuquerque.

Guffey Goes "Goofy" on Third Term For Roosevelt

We have been waiting patiently for the Guffey bubble to burst and on Dec. 5, it burst. That Senator Guffey (D. Pa.) would soon pull something out-of-the-ordinary, we were quite certain; but chaining the Pennsylvania Democratic organization to a third-term for Roosevelt, we hardly thought was coming so soon.

It must be borne in mind that Senator Guffey was one of the New-Dealers, who was foremost in advocating the change in our constitution, so as to make it fit into the Guffey Coal bill, which would have made him dictator of the coal industry of the United States; but it died by its own weight.

He also headed the NRA movement, one of the relics of the dark ages and in fact he was one of the leading lights in all movements in which the people's interest was of no consideration. He championed every move of the President in all his alphabetical rantings, until the great and glorious Supreme Court knocked the entire un-American nuttiness into a cocked hat.

Such has been the career of Senator Guffey, but pledging the Democratic organization of the state of Pennsylvania to Roosevelt for a third-term, is decidedly different from the will of the people of that commonwealth. The election of a Republican governor for that state in the recent election is an answer to that end.

He said and we quote: "The one man to justify the Roosevelt record, is Roosevelt." If that be the case, why did all the new-dealers on whom he bestowed his "blessings" suffer defeat at the polls in November? In those acts, he stood out as the one man in the seat of the chief executive to stoop to such low procedure and branded himself as a common ward-heeler and mud-slinger.

As a result of the recent election, Senator Guffey is the only Democrat in his state remaining in a major elective office and in 1940 he will sink into oblivion with other New-Deal money changers in the temple.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank James of Santa Fe were in town last week, visiting Frank's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. G. James and their many Carrizozo friends.

U. S. Appeals For Vigilant Pan-America

Lima Conference Opens Amid Trade Overtures of Dictator Lands.

By JOSEPH W. LABINE

For several thousand miles south of the Rio Grande lies a chain of nations whose political and economic experience is minimized in the average United States mind. This is Latin America. With the United States itself, these nations of the Western hemisphere, of both North and South America, form what men have chosen for years to call Pan-America.

Right now the leaders of Pan-America are meeting in Lima, Peru, for their eighth conference, designed to solidify the Western hemisphere into a solid bloc of friendly nations. In 1933, when last they met, these men could discuss their subject calmly, sincerely and without fear. This year it is different because the dictator nations of Europe and Asia are threatening Latin America's security.

This threat has been growing with every month, and to a large group of American citizens it makes the United States' Pan-American policy, as voiced by President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull, seem selfish and unrealistic. These are strong charges.

Selfish? Unrealistic?

Under the Monroe doctrine, Washington has promised to defend any Latin-American country from European or Asiatic aggression and to exercise a parental interest over our younger "democratic" neighbors to the south. This was no more than any smart business man would have advocated, for by guaranteeing South America's integrity we protected our own commercial interests in Pan-America and eliminated the danger of aggression from the south. Some men called this selfishness and "dollar diplomacy."

President Roosevelt's policy is substantially the same but it is not selfish. Since the rise of Hitlerism and Fascism, since Japan became a dominant world power, South America has been infiltrated with propagandists. Our trade with Brazil, for example, has dropped below that of Germany. The dictator nations are attempting to loosen an economic grip in the Western hemisphere and this would almost certainly have a political influence. As a world power the United States has a right and obligation to defend both the principles of democracy and its trade with foreign nations.

But there may be some truth in charges that the Roosevelt-Hull policy is unrealistic. We claim to be defending the "democratic" nations of South America, yet democracy has already flown from several of these countries. Mexico, which has never been active in Pan-American affairs, lives under a communistic dictatorship that has seized American farms and oil lands. A fascist regime has recently taken possession of Chile. Brazilian and Dominican governments both exhibit dictatorial tendencies of one sort or another.

RIGHT OR WRONG?—One of the greatest statesmen of his day, Cordell Hull now bends his efforts to winning Pan American friendship. Critics, fearing inroads already made by Germany, Italy and Japan in the lands to our south, charge Mr. Hull's policy is "unrealistic."

Just how such nations can be banded into a Pan-American union for defense of democracy is hard to understand, yet the results are sincere. Mr. Hull is striving for that very objective. Though admittedly idealistic, he has accomplished great things with the reciprocal trade treaty program under which 20 pacts have already been signed. The Hull aim is to break down international trade barriers and bring about greater stabilization of world currency.

U. S. Seeks Hemisphere Defense.

Unlike most conferences of its kind, this year's Pan-American meeting is not dealing with generalities and platitudes. It will settle, among other things, the boundary disputes between Peru and Ecuador.

In this connection the union can gloat over its successful arbitration of the Gran Chaco dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay, settled only a few weeks ago.

But the bulk of interest will center around developments following in the wake of Germany's Sudeten aggression and her persecution of Jews. As an upshot of this threat to world security, President Roosevelt plans to ask congress for funds to throw a ring of defense around the entire Western hemisphere, an $2,000,000,000 rearmament program that would require five years for consummation. He proposes that Central and South American countries shall co-operate in providing operation bases for United States naval and aviation units.

Hull Stresses Diplomacy.

Mr. Hull, who leads the American delegation to Lima, has not committed himself definitely on this rearmament program. In fact he is not expected to mention military preparedness, preferring instead to urge amendment of the Western hemisphere "consultation pact" adopted at the Buenos Aires peace conference of 1930. Under the Hull plan, a permanent committee of foreign ministers from each Pan-American country would be empowered to consult immediately by telephone, telegraph or meeting at any time a threat to American peace is imminent.

Though idealistic, Mr. Hull has suffered enough disillusionments from treaty breakers the past few years to know that signatures and pledges mean very little in themselves. But he does know that the United States has seldom been forced to reprimand another Pan-American nation for violating its solemn pledge. Hence he believes the Western hemisphere peoples have a common bond and are willing to live together peacefully.

Unrealism Again.

But this, say his opponents, is where Mr. Hull uses the wrong tactics. It is fine to shake hands, smile and make speeches about brotherly love, but is it a sufficiently aggressive policy to counteract propagandizing and the economic encroachments of dictators? One of the state department's chief critics in this respect is Carleton Beals, whose "The Coming Struggle for Latin America" was recently published by J. P. Lippincott company of Philadelphia.

Most South American nations, says Mr. Beals, believe Germany is the coming world power because it has gone to every corner of the earth to tap markets and make alliances. There are today more Germans than Americans in South America, and the Germans are more popular. This situation has resulted from propaganda, formation of bands and activities of the dreaded German Gestapo or secret police. Every day South American nations are deluged by world press reports emanating from government radio stations in Berlin. These reports lose not a single opportunity to glorify totalitarian states to the discredit of democracies.

Yet Mr. Beals' proposed solution is not far from that of Mr. Hull. The barrier to dictator propaganda will not be American counter propaganda, our countertrade drive nor our sale of American munitions in the name of peace. Instead, he says, the barrier lies in "the natural patriotic resistance of the Latin American people and governments to outside meddling . . . the real bulwark in Latin America against alien ideologies, including our own, is the people themselves."

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses the Child Who Has a Lagging Appetite; Tells What to Do for the Finicky Eater

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

IT HAS been well said that with the knowledge of nutrition now at the command of practically every mother, there should not be one ill-nourished child in our land. Unfortunately, statistics show that possibly one-half of the children in this country are either underweight, undernourished or malnourished.

Many factors may be responsible for this state of affairs. Some children are fed incorrectly owing to the fact that the family income is small and the mother has not learned how to utilize low-cost foods that are rich in protective minerals and vitamins, in place of those that are higher priced. In other families, the mothers do not realize the importance of providing a well-rounded diet for growing children. But the problems of these homemakers are more easily remedied, perhaps, than those of mothers who plan a well-balanced diet, but find that their child lacks interest in, or even refuses to eat the food that has been prepared so carefully.

lacks interest in, or even refuses to eat the food that has been prepared so carefully.

Developing the Right Attitude

Strange as it may seem, such difficulties often arise because a mother fails to give the necessary consideration to developing in the young child a proper attitude toward food. Some children need to be taught that they must eat enough food for their body requirements. It is part of the training they should have in early childhood, so that they develop a willingness to eat what is put before them, to try new foods when offered, and to become increasingly independent in making a wise selection at mealtimes.

If a child has been properly conditioned in these respects from his earliest years, mothers will seldom find themselves faced with a "child who will not eat."

Problem of Anorexia

All normal children will, at times, exhibit a lack of appetite. We are not concerned here with occasions when a child who usually eats well feels no desire for food. Such lack of appetite may mean the beginning of a cold or some other illness and should be carefully investigated. Unfortunately, however, many mothers of young children are faced with a chronic lack of appetite in their children—a condition that physicians describe as anorexia. In order to correct this condition, it is necessary to understand its causes and to use wisdom in helping to remove them.

Find the Causes

When a child chronically lacks interest in food, the mother should set about systematically to learn the reasons why. Possibly the co-operation of your physician will be required, for sometimes obscure physical causes may be responsible, such as faulty elimination, diseased tonsils or teeth or some other focal infection. On the other hand, it frequently occurs that a changed attitude on the part of the mother in presenting food is all that is necessary to alter completely a child's attitude in regard to his meals.

It is interesting to note, however, that in studying a large group of children with poor appetites, one investigator found that 22 per cent of the children were more than average in height and narrow in body build.

Faulty Diet May Destroy Appetite

Frequently, a child's lack of interest in food may be traced directly to poor choice among the foods presented to him. It has been repeatedly demonstrated, for example, that when the diet lacks vitamin B, appetite decreases, so that there is less desire for food of any kind. Then, too, when a child's diet contains too much fat, digestion may be delayed and this in turn may interfere with the appetite for the next meal. While some children thrive better with a between-meal feeding, in others it seems to destroy appetite for the meal that is to follow. And with some children, "fussiness" at mealtimes may be due to the fact that their diet contains too many concentrated foods, too few crisp raw ones that stimulate appetite.

Fatigue a Factor

Occasionally, a child does not eat well merely because he is too tired. Even though he obtains adequate sleep at night, too much or too prolonged exercise or excitement may result in fatigue during the day. If a child spends too much time with adults, overstimulation may be the result. And in the case of older children, their school work may be troubling them.

Another frequent cause of lagging appetite is the constant nervous tension to be observed in some households. If a child is allowed to become unhappy, angry, or worried over some uncompleted school assignment, it may interfere seriously with his nutrition. With younger children, the fact that they are able to attract favorable attention from adults by refusing to eat often stimulates them to repeat their refusal as long as mother shows concern over their antics.

Parents' Attitude Important

This brings us to perhaps the most important factor in dealing with the young, finicky eater who eats sparingly and whose dislikes usually far outnumber his likes. Such a child must be encouraged tactfully to eat a wide variety of foods, but mothers must not be over-solicitous, nor must they become obviously angry or irritated when the child refuses food. Scolding, punishment and threats of punishment should be avoided, as they defeat their purpose. Remember, too, that precept is a powerful teacher, and that a child's dislike for certain foods may have been instilled by a none-too-guardedly expressed dislike of a similar food on the part of an adult.

Some Helpful Hints

It may be necessary for the entire family to live more quietly, in order to give the finicky eater a chance to be quiet and relaxed. There must be regularity of meals and mealtimes must be peaceful. Keep the table conversation general and impersonal in character before older children. See to it that younger ones eat by themselves.

Often a short rest before meals will help a child to become relaxed completely. And frequently, a new method of presenting foods will result in a changed attitude on the part of the child.

Foods for young children should not be seasoned too highly. In general, condiments should be avoided. Strong-flavored vegetables, as a rule, are not well liked, and if introduced in the young child's diet should be combined with some familiar, and mild-tasting food. In cooking vegetables, keep the pieces large enough so that the child can identify what he is eating. Include a crisp food in each meal.

Finally, remember that a child's eating habits cannot be changed overnight. Changes should be introduced gradually, so that he is scarcely aware of what is going on.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Bones for Soup.—When buying bone roasts be sure the butcher sends you the bones even if they have to be removed. The bones can be used for making soups and stock for stews.

Sagging Chair Seats.—To tighten the cane on cane-bottomed chairs, brush to remove all dust, then wash with salt water and place in the open air to dry.

Colored Soap Bubbles.—A drop of prepared vegetable tinting added to the water used for making soap bubbles will give them a different color and thus delight the children.

When Cords Wear Out.—Worn extension cords on lamps or other electrical fixtures should be replaced promptly. The cost is small compared to a burned down house or a severe shock. When the wires bend too easily where they enter the connections or when the outside silk covering wears out, it is time to buy new cords.

Enough Power to Run Denver Used by Broadway 'Flashers'

NEW YORK.—If the Broadway of 15 years ago was a "Great White Way" it seems dim by comparison with the sea of twinkling, dancing lights that greet a spectator today. In the 27 blocks between Times square and Columbus circle are 111,000 incandescent lamps and 22 miles of neon tubing, all used for advertising displays. When all these signs are flashing, blinking and spinning at once, they use energy at the rate of 3,250,000 watts an hour, enough power to light a city the size of Denver.

The first major electrical display was erected in 1892 on New York's Flatiron building, and signs were much the same until 1912 when Frank C. Kelly of Chicago constructed a "running" sign which told a constantly changing story in letters which moved across the lamp field. This device worked much like a player piano. Later the system was improved by placing electrical elements in the individual letters. Neon tubing was given one of its first commercial uses in December, 1925, when it lettered the words

"Ben Hur" above a Times square theater. Today an estimated 80 per cent of all New York electrical advertisements are neon, many of them combining neon with bulbs.

Meanwhile a new field has been developed for electric bulbs in animated "flashers." The pioneer of this business is Douglas Leigh, a 28-year-old southern "boy wonder" who acquired rights on a European invention. One of his signs is a cigarette advertisement which runs a full five minutes, while another advertises chewing gum by depicting a colorful group of fish.

Frames for these huge animated ads are designed in checkerboard fashion. For each change in movement—even the slightest raising of an arm—some of the squares in the checkerboard must be "knocked out." All these motions are photographed on a motion picture film when the sign is planned. After the "spectacular" has been erected the film is projected on a battery of photoelectric cells in the control room. These cells relay the impression to the sign itself.

Lonely North Carolina Town Marks Christmas January 5

RODANTHE, N. C., easternmost town in America, celebrates Christmas twice each year. "New" Christmas comes December 25 but just as regularly on January 5 the inhabitants of this isolated town observe "Old" Christmas, a carry-over from the days before our current calendar was generally accepted. Christmas trees must be imported, for Rodanthe has only one tree (see below), a gnarled oak. But the kids enjoy this plan, because Santa Claus visits them twice. Their parents, fishermen and coastguardsmen on an island that is little more than a shifting sand dune, participate enthusiastically in both celebrations. But around Old Christmas centers most of the tradition.

Bostwain's Mate P. A. Tillett, biggest man in the coast guard service, is Santa Claus for Rodanthe's Old Christmas party. They had to send to the mainland to get red cloth spacious enough for his suit. Each Old Christmas celebration is held in the school building where the only "furriner" is the school teacher.

To the present teacher, a girl from Virginia, Old Christmas is the world's most puzzling custom. But seasoned residents of Hatteras Island don't look at it that way. To them, Old Christmas is no more unusual than the Fourth of July. On their isolated island the event has been celebrated by generation after generation, and will probably continue for generations to come.

Rodanthe children believe in "Old Buck," an ogre with horns and hoofs who comes at Old Christmas to punish the naughty boys and girls, just as St. Nicholas rewards the good youngsters. None of the islanders remember how "Old Buck" originated, but he's definitely a part of the celebration.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

THIS Christmas it is not just the children who will receive dolls as gifts. Doll collecting is becoming a popular hobby for grown-ups. The most valued dolls are of whatever materials may be at hand and reflect the individuality of the person who made them. Rag babies of all kinds have an important place in such a collection. You will enjoy making the one shown here. Book 2 offered herewith also offers many suggestions for making and dressing dolls from scraps of materials.

If you want to make the stocking doll, clip these directions and keep them as this doll is not in either of the books offered here. The head and body are made of the foot of the stocking cut off where the heel begins, as shown. Stuff this part with cotton or bits of soft clean rags, sew across the bottom and then wind a thread around so that the toes of the stocking will form the head. Fold the leg and arm pieces lengthwise, stitch, turn and then stuff. Wrap thread around to make divisions for hands and feet. Sew the legs to the body, then add the skirt. The arms are sewn on top of the sweater piece and the sweater collar is turned over this sewing.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears' Book 2—Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery, has helped thousands of women to use odds and ends of materials and their spare time to make things to sell and to use. Book 1—Sewing for the Home Decorator is full of inspiration for every homemaker. These books make delightful Christmas gifts. Mrs. Spears will autograph them on request. Crazypatch quilt leaflet is included free with every order for both books. Order by number, 25 cents each book. Address: Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

New Dresses for Holidays

THESE two designs bring you brand new fashions for mid-season dresses—you'll thoroughly enjoy wearing to all the luncheons and festive afternoons of the holidays. They're so easy and simple to do that you can finish them in plenty of time.

Drape-As-You-Please Dress. This is not only new—it's the very newest, a real sensation, and so easy to make! It is made with a straight back and bias cut front that you can wear with the fullness at the sides, fullness all round, like a dirndl, or fullness concentrated in front, as the picture shows it. Then fasten the belt around your middle, creating a soft, bloused line above! The shirred shoulders and square neckline are just as flattering and smart as they can be! For this, choose silk crepe, velvet or thin wool.

Girdle-and-Panel-In-One Dress. Of course that midriff section isn't really a girdle—it just looks like one, and the way it is extended into the front skirt panel

Smiles

No Time for That Mother—O, Bobby, you wicked child. How on earth did you come to fall with your best knickers on? Bobby—Couldn't help it (sobs). When I began to fall (more sobs) I didn't have time to take my knickers off.

Knee-tid! Boogy—Where did you absorb those few fine principles of yours—at your mother's knee? Woogy—No, over my father's.

A naturalist says ants can talk to each other. Trying to get even with the spelling bees?

Just His Dish! "They tell me he's a wonderful after-dinner speaker." "Yes, you should hear him argue with the waiter about the bill."

Wise and Otherwise

Walkers are saying that a pedestrian crossing is a dash between two dotted lines. Shopkeepers call it "sales resistance." The rest of us think it's the triumph of mind over matter. Even Solomon with a thousand wives must have wondered at times if he wouldn't have been happier if he had married somebody else.

NEVER SLEEP ON AN "UPSET" STOMACH

Neutralize excess stomach acids to wake up feeling like a million

To relieve the effects of over-indulgence—escape "acid indigestion" next day—do this: Take 2 tablespoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water—AT BEDTIME. While you sleep, this wonderful alkalizer will be sweetening your stomach... easing the upset feeling and nausea... helping to bring back a "normal" feeling. By morning you feel great. Then—when you wake—take 2 more tablespoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia with orange juice. That is one of the quickest, simplest, easiest ways to overcome the bad effects of too much eating, smoking or drinking. Thousands use it. But—never ask for "milk of magnesia" alone—always ask for "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA IN LIQUID OR TABLET FORM

666 COLDS relieves first day's Headaches and Fever. LIQUID, TABLETS, SALVE, NOSE DROP. Try "Rub-My-Throat"—a Wonderful Linctus

BARGAINS

YES! You find them announced in the columns of this paper by merchants of our community who do not feel they must keep the quality of their merchandise or their prices under cover. It is safe to buy of the merchant who ADVERTISES.

1. What country claims the land at the North pole?
2. Who wrote the lines, "Oh, what a tangled web we weave, when first we practice to deceive"?
3. How large was the maple leaf that won the prize in Canada?
4. How long did Huey Long once talk in congress?
5. From where do we get the word gospel?
6. What is the correct pronunciation of Daladier?

The Answers

1. There is no land at the North pole, consequently no country has made any claim to it. Robert Edwin Peary on April 6, 1909, hoisted the American flag on the ice there.
2. They are from Sir Walter Scott's "Marmion."
3. In the national maple leaf contest held last year the winning leaf measured 21 by 22 inches.

5. Gospel is the Saxon "God's spel"—that is, "God's story."
6. It is pronounced Dah-lah-dyay, the last syllable accented.

30 "MAKIN'S" SMOKES FREE

IF THEY'RE NOT THE GRANDEST YOU'VE EVER ROLLED!

Roll yourself 30 swell cigarettes from Prince Albert. If you don't find them the finest, tastiest roll-your-own cigarettes you ever smoked, return the pocket tin with the rest of the tobacco in it to us at any time within a month from this date, and we will refund full purchase price, plus postage. (Signed) R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, North Carolina

IT'S SO RICH-TASTING, WITHOUT BITE—I KNOW P.A.'S BETTER TOBACCO

And Karl Haller (right) adds: "One taste of Prince Albert's mellow, ripe richness and you'll say what I did 20 years ago—'It's P. A. for my 'makin's' smokes from now on.'"

SEE HOW FAST, NEAT, AND FIRM P.A.'S SPECIAL CUT MAKES 'EM

Ken Metz (left) goes on with: "Say, Prince Albert's special cut makes roll-in's quick and easy, I could spin up a jimdandy cigarette even in the dark."

DON'T delay on that special offer to "makin's" smokers—just march up to your dealer's counter and say, "Prince Albert." You'll get choice, ripe tobacco, made milder and smoother by P.A.'s special "no-bite" process. It's "crimp cut" too—to assure fast rolling, slow burning, and a cooler, mellow smoke. And P.A. has a fresh, fragrant aroma all its own. There's no other tobacco like it.

70 fine roll-your-own cigarettes in every 2-oz. tin of Prince Albert.

PRINCE ALBERT THE NATIONAL JOY SMOKE

Prince Albert's America's favorite pipe tobacco, too—area-burning, cool, mild, mellow, and extra tasty.

You Can't Spend It Twice
 By RAYMOND PITCAIRN

The next Budget Message to Congress will again be written in Red Ink. This forecast from informed sources at Washington comes, of course, as no surprise to the American people. The habit of reckless spending by government during the past few years has made deficits running into the billions inescapable.

But, as recent events have demonstrated, it has not succeeded in making such deficits popular. Clearly and emphatically the people have shown their understanding and resentment of the fact that it is they who must foot the bill.

For the National Deficit, like the National Debt, adds, in the end, to the great burden of taxes which only the people can pay.

And, as the people realize, every dollar commandeered for taxes, whether directly or indirectly, means a dollar taken out of their earnings and savings. They realize also that they cannot spend those earnings twice. The dollar taken for taxes is gone—it cannot be spent again for food, or clothes, or rent, or enjoyment by the man or the woman who toiled for it.

Instead it is spent by office-holders and politicians. The workers and earners of America understand that government must look to them for support. But they understand, too, that when the money they contribute to this support is squandered, not only they, but the nation as a whole, is hurt. For money spent by the workers to supply their needs creates new production and new employment, while money wasted by politicians helps only the politicians themselves.

Economy in government may prove a brake on the ambitions of bureaucrats—but it will also prove an accelerator to the progress and the well-being of America and all her people.

BANKING LOOKS AHEAD

Our Land of Opportunity

A mechanic builds a giant automobile empire, a coil winder rises to the top of a great electrical concern, on all sides men of humble origin achieve outstanding success. The American system holds rich rewards for initiative and ability. And in like manner these traits bring rich rewards to our nation through the progress they make possible. This bank, as an important phase of its service, stands ready to extend financial cooperation to sound business men who see new opportunities and are able and willing to grasp them.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK—The other day, a brisk, dapper little old man stepped into a big Wall street investment banking office and asked for the top boss, W. C. Durant, twice head of General Motors, once the master of $100,000,000, and that, at the age of 77, Mr. Durant was scouting new capital for another big tourney in motor finance. My friend couldn't learn whether he got it, but said he had heard there was a deal on which might put Mr. Durant on the main line again. He said the little Napoleon of early day auto finance looked as if he were about to merge all companies and skim the cream.

It was in 1910 that the bankers crowded Mr. Durant out of the presidency of General Motors. He was back in 1915 and out again in 1920, in the post-war crash, in which he jettisoned $90,000,000 of his own money, trying to stop the downside of the stock. He took his losses casually and was busy for years in daring market forays, but never quite converted any of his passes. An acquaintance of this writer, who knew Mr. Durant well, told me how he laughed off his second relinquishment of his motors kingdom.

"I built the greatest automobile building in the world, at Detroit," he said, according to my informant, "and when I did it, I fixed it so they won't soon forget me. Hidden somewhere in every column and every capital and big stack of that building there is a deeply chiseled D. There wasn't anything known-yous about that job, and I took good care to leave my mark on it."

So did the king in Kipling's poem, when he was pulled off his big palace building job, when "They said thy use is fulfilled." He "Carved on every timber and cut on every stone," and the poem concludes, "After me cometh a builder, tell him I, too, have known."

For several years, Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and one of the nation's greatest scientists, has explored the no man's land between an expanding government and an expanding technology. He thinks they ought to get together but he is no advocate of bureaucracy or extreme federalization. He doesn't like the idea of the government getting on anybody's neck. He thinks the government, with its vast resources, might be an invaluable collaborator with science, and should be, in fact, but he advances this idea warily, as he finds creativeness and social progress in the old American free-for-all, without elaborate governmental trimmings.

He never claimed an Ivory tower, and sees the problem in its simple social components of jobs, a rising standard of living, social progress and security. He notes the job-killing potentialities of the machine, in certain individual instances, and assesses industrial management with finding a corrective.

This qualified admission is in sharp contrast to the view of Dr. Robert Andrews Millikan, another distinguished scientist who has wrestled with the same problem. Doctor Millikan is for throwing the throttle wide open, with the certainty that machines ultimately will make more jobs than they destroy. Both, however, prescribe as a cure for our technological ills more of the hair of the dog that bit us. The difference in view is that Dr. Compton urges certain collective rationalizations and judicious self-imposed controls by industry and management.

For many years Dr. Compton has been blasting at the inner citadel of the atom to seize there the hidden golden key of unlimited power which has long been the "pie in the sky" of the great physicists. He batters down a rampart now and then, and, in the long view of the scientists, thinks that we may some day tap reservoirs of energy so vast that all our present ills will be easily soluble therein.

He has headed M. I. T. since 1930. Now rounding 50. He was head of the department of physics at Princeton before 1930, one of the most richly garlanded men of his profession in honors and records of achievement.

Glacier Priest Returns From Alaskan Trip

Log Cabins House 32 Duke University Lawyers

Log Cabin Quadrangle, on the edge of the 5,000-acre Duke forest, is the home of 32 students at the Duke university law school. The buildings are of log and concrete construction. There are four of the cabins, with a recreational hall in the center. Cabins are lined together by a covered walkway. Accommodations are at a premium, and those who live there are pleased with the atmosphere and advantages for study.

Dietitian's Advice Is Most Important

Menus for Patients Call For Careful Planning

By EDITH M. BARBER

LIFE expectancy has increased materially in the last few years. Many things have contributed to this. Among them are better sanitation, better control of communicable diseases and better understanding of the place of food as a protective factor against disease.

Recently, I read the biography of the great Malbran, a famous opera singer, who died at the age of 28. Her death was hastened doubtless by the medical treatment to which she was subjected after a collapse on the stage. As was customary less than a hundred years ago, she was bled and thus deprived of nutrients. Today the theories of treatment are generally the direct opposite of this.

It is now possible for the doctor to call in a dietitian to assist him in home treatment. Dietitians, as you know, of course, are not diagnosticians and work only under directions of a physician. Recently a dietitian was of great aid to a friend of mine in helping her with the technique of giving insulin and preparing the weighed diet necessary for the diabetic. She has also been of assistance to a mother whose children are allergic to certain foods which must be completely avoided, although the daily diet must be adequate in every respect. Dietary treatment in some instances is now as important as good nursing.

Baked Potatoes With Cheese.
6 large baked potatoes
1/2 pound cheese, grated or strained
1/2 cup hot milk
2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon paprika
Cut potatoes in half lengthwise and scoop out the centers. Mash thoroughly. Add cheese to hot milk and beat with egg beater until smooth. Mix with the potatoes, add seasoning and whip until light and creamy. Refill the potato shells, return to a hot oven and bake until brown on top.

Baked Oysters Casino.
3 dozen oysters in the half shell
Lemon juice
Minced green pepper
Bacon
Pepper, salt
Wash and open oysters. Over each oyster put a few drops of lemon juice, one teaspoon of finely minced green pepper and a square of bacon. Sprinkle with pepper and salt. Set in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) for 10 or 12 minutes or under the broiler for five minutes. Shallow, fireproof dishes with the half shells imbedded in rock salt are excellent for this purpose.

Corn Sticks.
1/4 cup butter
1/2 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 cup milk
2 cups flour
1 cup corn meal
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
Cream butter; add sugar and beaten eggs. Stir in milk alternately with the mixed and sifted dry ingredients. Beat well and pour into greased iron corn stick pans. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) for about 20 minutes.

Baked Oranges.
4 seedless oranges
3/4 cup white corn syrup
2 cups sugar
2 cups water
Grate oranges slightly to break the oil cells in the rind. Cook in boiling water 30 to 40 minutes until tender. Drain and cut into halves. Mix corn syrup, sugar and water together and cook five minutes. Pour this syrup over oranges which have been placed in a casserole. Cover and bake at 350 degrees Fahrenheit 1 1/2 hours. If used as a salad mix cream cheese with some of the syrup and spread it over chilled orange sections. Place the oranges on a salad green and decorate with slices of avocado pear.

Broiled Grapefruit.
Cut grapefruit in half, crosswise, remove center core and loosen sections. Place in a pan and sprinkle each half with two tablespoons of brown sugar and dot with one-half tablespoon butter. Add one tablespoon wine, if desired. Broil 15 minutes under a very low flame.

Potato Croquettes.
2 cups hot riced potatoes.
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon celery salt
Paprika
1 teaspoon onion juice
Yolk 1 egg
Bread crumbs
1 egg (diluted with water) for dipping
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley

Mix the ingredients in the order given and beat thoroughly. Shape, dip in crumbs, egg, and crumbs again, fry one minute in deep fat (385 degrees Fahrenheit) and drain on brown paper.

Coffee Jelly.
2 tablespoons gelatin
1/2 cup cold water
3 cups clear, strong coffee
1/4 cup sugar
Salt
Soak the gelatin in the cold water five minutes and dissolve in the hot coffee, add sugar and salt; stir until dissolved. Turn into a mold; chill until set. Serve with whipped cream.

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

"WE'RE informal folks," writes Jean P., "and we lead a jolly life with lots of hurry-up snack parties and excursions on the spur of the moment. So we've chosen maple furniture because it seems to suit us best. Now the problem is to plan our home on a small allowance. We have purchased so far a large easy chair and settee with a maple frame and green plaid cushions, a cricket chair in a green calico pattern with maple arms and legs, a secretary and a maple lamp. I'd like a color scheme for walls, lamp shades, rugs."

"I'm also furnishing the bedroom and dining room, and they should blend with the living room since all open together. I have a walnut table (inherited from my grandmother), an unpainted stand for the radio and another odd piece to paint. I have beautiful china and silver from my family.

"I have to do all this on a very small budget and am too inexperienced to do it alone. If I had a plan I could carry it through. I want the effect to be comfortable and not crowded."

Why not have the walls of the living room and dining room in pale green with lightish green plain rugs throughout. The bedroom walls I'd have in white, but I'd like to see the light green rug here too—have white-sheer curtains in all the rooms with draperies for living room and dining room of terra cotta chintz in a colonial sprig design. In the living room introduce accents of terra cotta in lamps and accessories and add notes of beige in extra cushions. In the bedroom have garden flowered chintz for spread and draperies.

In the dining room, play up your beautiful silver and china. Have open shelves—maybe your husband could build them and paint them to match the walls. Since you have the walnut table to begin, I'd add walnut chairs of simple Nineteenth century lines with beige seats. Later—perhaps you can add an open shelf cupboard of walnut. Paint the odd pieces in green the color of the rugs.

So much soft light greens in the room will create a very restful uncrowded effect. And keeping your rugs the same will make it much easier to fit them into another larger place later.

A Small Colonial House.

"We're building a small colonial house," writes Mary L., "and I would appreciate your advice on the color scheme for my living room. I have a sofa in brown with white fringe, a club chair in brown cretonne with an orange and white design in it, a rug in light rust.

"The fireplace will be paneled and painted off-white and the other walls papered. Do you think yellow paper would be effective? Should the other woodwork be painted white like the fireplace wall? What colors would you use for another chair? The only window in the living room will be a large bay. I favor wide ruffled white curtains, but maybe you have a better suggestion.

"The dining alcove will be wainscoted in off-white panels. Should I use the same paper as in the living room? Would a dark paper be more distinctive here, and if so, what color?"

I'd like yellow a lot for the three walls of your living room, but I believe I'd have all the woodwork white. I agree with you about white ruffled curtains for the bay window, but maybe side draperies and a valance of soft turquoise might add a nice finish. The extra chair could be in turquoise too. And you might repeat the turquoise in the accessories.

Personally I'd use the same yellow wall paper in the dining alcove. And yet, since you mention it, a dark paper could be as dramatic as everything in a room like this. Rust or brown to repeat important tones in the living room. In that case, why not have a turquoise rug in the alcove. Or else have turquoise walls in the dining alcove and continue the rust rug here.

RESIGNS JOB

Raymond Kennedy of Cleveland, Ohio, didn't believe that he was earning the salary paid him by the government, so he resigned. His duties called for inspection of equipment valued at $1,500,000. He felt that taking the manufacturer's word would be incompatible to his oath of office, and unable to inspect all of the equipment, resigned.

CRUCIBLE

Professor Brace continued his testimony under the questioning of Mr. Flood:

"What time was it when you came out of the Tunnel?"

"Quarter past twelve."

"And what happened then?"

"A car passed us, then slowed down."

"Did you observe the number?"

"Yes, Miss Sentry said—"

"Never mind what she said. What was the number?"

Mrs. Sentry thought: They take so long to say such a simple thing. Why doesn't he just say, "I saw Mr. Sentry leave his office and drive home?"

But question and answer went maddeningly on.

"What did you do?"

"Followed the car to the Sentry home."

"Where did you last see it?"

"It turned into the Sentry drive."

"What did you do?"

"Miss Sentry and I stayed in my car, in front of the house."

"Hear anything?"

"Steps on the gravel from the garage toward the house."

"See anything?"

"I saw the light from the hall as the door opened."

"Anything else?"

"After about five minutes an upstairs light was turned on. About ten minutes later it was turned off again."

"What then?"

"Miss Sentry went into the house."

"At what time?"

"One o'clock, or a little before."

"Have you since seen that car?"

"Yes."

"With that number?"

"Yes."

"Where?"

"In the Sentry garage."

"Did you at any time that night see who was in the car?"

"Yes, a man."

"Did you know him?"

"No, not then."

"Did you see his face?"

"Yes, when he first passed us. I had to put on the brakes to avoid hitting him, and a street lamp was shining on his face."

"Do you now know who he was?"

"He was Mr. Sentry."

Mr. Flood turned to Mr. Falkran. "Your witness, sir," he said.

Mrs. Sentry looked breathlessly at Mr. Falkran, fearing on the one hand that he would allow this deadly evidence to go unchallenged; on the other that his questions would involve Barbara. Yet even at that cost he must do something. For here was the peg upon which the State's whole case must hang.

But Falkran said, "No questions!"

And instantly, like a clap of doom: "The State rests," said Mr. Flood.

During the brief recess, Mrs. Sentry, too shaken to move, stayed in her seat. She was not suffering; but she was so tired! Professor Brace had left the court room without having looked toward them, and she whispered to her son:

"Go catch him, Phil. Tell him we know he had to do it. Tell him we understand, that we don't blame him!"

Phil nodded, hurried out. Then Falkran came to her, and behind the mask of a smile which he wore for the world to see, he said, "Mrs. Sentry, I expect you were surprised I did not cross-examine; but the hour is late, and I wish to call one witness before adjournment today, so that I can leave the jury with something to think about tonight."

She said in low tone: "I see. But isn't that the key of the State's whole case? Proving he was down there that night?"

He said reassuringly: "Be easy. Trust me. We will give them a better key."

And a moment later they rose while the Court and jury resumed their places; and then Mr. Falkran, briefly, made his opening. Circumstantial evidence, he said in calm, assured tones, was only to be trusted when the evidence in question was capable of but one explanation, or of but one interpretation. The evidence submitted by the State was elaborate, detailed, well presented, well selected.

"But you will see," he said, "how the truth which we propose to reveal to you fits into this pattern without a misfit anywhere."

And he called the dead girl's father to the stand.

Falkran dealt with the old man gently, winning his confidence with simple questions; but at length he led Mr. Wines to examine that collection of photographs which had previously been submitted to the New Jersey hotel clerk.

"I wish you would pick out all the photographs of your daughter which you find there," he directed.

The old man, after a little, selected two.

Falkran picked up from the clerk's desk those previously identified by the New Jersey hotel man as portraits of Miss Wines. "What about these?" he asked.

"They ain't her."

"Sure?"

"I'd ought to be, I wh'd think. Sure I'm sure."

"Not your daughter?"

"No."

Falkran smiled contentedly.

"Now, Mr. Wines," he asked, in a new tone, "did your daughter write to you from Boston?"

"Yes, certain!"

"How often?"

"Most generally every Sunday."

"Did she write you while she worked for the firm of Sentry and Lorant?"

"Yes, she did."

"How often?"

"Once, anyway."

"Have you that letter?"

District Attorney Flood rose hurriedly, approached the bench, Falkran joined him there. They spoke in low tones. The old man on the stand took a letter from his pocket and held it in his hands, waiting. After a moment Falkran turned and took it from him and handed it to the Judge. The Judge read it, spoke to Flood. Falkran smiled and with the letter in his hand turned back to the witness.

"Who wrote this letter?" he asked.

"She did."

"Your daughter?"

"Yes."

Falkran said to the Court: "I offer the letter." It was marked. He read it aloud, standing in front of the jury box, facing them.

The letter was for the most part without significance. The dead girl had written happily of her work, hoped that even though it was only temporary it might lead to something permanent. But one paragraph Mr. Falkran read slowly and impressively, in his fine trained tones, with a maximum effect, with his eyes upon the jury. He read:

"I don't like Mr. Sentry! He's cross if you make the least mistake. But Mr. Lorant is nice, awfully jolly. He asked me to go to dinner with him tonight. He said there wasn't any harm in it, but of course I didn't go."

A stir ran through the court. Falkran waited a moment for silence, "Your witness," he told Flood.

The District Attorney declined to cross-examine. Falkran nodded, and he said: "It is near the hour, Your Honor. Mr. Sentry is to be our next witness. I suggest a recess till tomorrow morning."

Court adjourned.

CHAPTER VIII

Dan Fisher's assignment at the trial was not to cover the actual testimony—that was recorded by reporters working in relays, using those swift abbreviations meaningless to anyone but themselves which with a good newspaper man take the place of shorthand—but to write the morning paper story. Mr. Sentry was on the stand all Saturday forenoon; and Dan wrote for the Sunday paper:

Arthur Sentry, on trial for his life and charged with the murder of Agnes Wines, on the witness stand yesterday admitted that he fired the shot which killed Miss Wines.

He testified that the shot was fired by accident, in the dark, when he surprised an attempt to rob the safe in his office.

He admitted leaving the dead girl's body where it fell. He admitted taking the money from the safe and burning it in the furnace at home. He admitted throwing the death weapon into the river behind his garage where it was subsequently found by the police.

He denied any misconduct with Miss Wines. He testified that it was another woman who spent two nights with him in a New Jersey hotel last August.

Mr. Sentry's testimony created a sensation. The court officers had difficulty in keeping order with Judge Stanton warned the spectators that if there was further disturbance the court would be cleared.

Fruit Juices Essential to Sound Teeth

By PATRICIA LINDSAY

"MANY savage tribes have wonderful teeth in spite of the fact they never clean them and do not know what a tooth brush is. It is largely due to the plentiful use of fruits, the juices of which have a valuable cleansing effect."

"In recent years," a medical book goes on to state, "some dental authorities have advocated cleaning the teeth with fruit juices or food acids; such as diluted cider vinegar, instead of the usual alkaline tooth powders. It is claimed that fruit acids promote the increased flow of saliva and in this way bring about a greater alkaline condition of the mouth within a few minutes Saliva,

There is one factor in maintaining sound and healthy teeth which is commonly overlooked, especially while a child is growing. That is which foods tend to strengthen and prolong the life of teeth. If the diet is lacking in the elements for building teeth and bones, then decay and loss of teeth is almost inevitable.

Medical authorities commonly agree on certain foods rich in lime and organic mineral salts, such as whole wheat bread in preference to white bread; shredded wheat and whole grain products such as oat meal will help to build strong healthy teeth. Milk and eggs are both rich in lime. And vegetables eaten with the water in which they are cooked are strongly recommended.

Children and adults alike should eat natural foods, calling for exercise of the teeth and supplying all the elements provided by nature.

And every child should be trained early in life in the care of the teeth and in mouth hygiene.
