

Photography, Not 'Star Gazing,' Is 1939 Astronomer's Method

Huge Glass Eyes Peer Into Space, Solving New Riddles.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

The "eyes of the world," the great telescopes that peer out from the turning earth to explore the far reaches of the universe, are increased by one more in the new 82-inch mirror of McDonald observatory on Mount Locke in the Davis mountains of western Texas.

The completion of this giant "eye," which can photograph stars only a millionth as bright as any that can be seen by the unaided human eye, brings to a total of at least 40 the number of telescopes of two feet in diameter or more now in use in the world.

The McDonald observatory telescope is the second largest in the world in actual use at present, being exceeded only by the 100-inch telescope at Mount Wilson observatory, Pasadena, Calif. Both, however, are being surpassed by the 200-inch telescope set up on Mount Palomar, Calif., under joint auspices of California Institute of Technology and Mount Wilson observatory. The McDonald observatory is operated jointly by the Universities of Texas and Chicago.

Each Has Its Job.

The increasing size of telescopes does not mean that the various instruments will compete with one another in exploring the heavens, however, nor is a smaller telescope made out of date or useless by a larger one. There is work enough for all in probing secrets of the vast universe, and the task of exploration is divided among the various instruments.

Astronomers nowadays seldom "look through" their large telescopes. They do most of their exploring of the heavens by photographing sections of the sky. The great telescopes of modern times are primarily giant cameras. Their huge mirrors or lenses act as funnels for light, making it possible to concentrate a large quantity of star light in one spot.

By exposing a sensitive plate for several hours, or even for several nights, to light concentrated by a telescope, an astronomer can photograph stars and galaxies of stars so distant that he could never see them with his own eyes through the same telescope if he looked a lifetime. This is because the effect of light on a photographic emulsion is cumulative, which is not true of the human eye.

Here is a replica of the 15-million-dollar Mt. Palomar observatory and 200-inch "sky mirror," largest in the world. The replica is one-twenty-fourth the size of the original dome, which is 14 stories high. Every movement and function of the observatory is reproduced faithfully. Samuel Orkin, who constructed the replica at Pasadena, Calif., is shown examining it.

Photographic Processes Improved.

The "seeing" ability of telescopes grows greater also as photographic emulsions are improved and made more sensitive. Better emulsions make the 100-inch telescope at Mount Wilson considerably more efficient today, for example, than when it was built 20 years ago, though its mirror remains the same size.

But astronomers still would know comparatively little about the universe, if they merely looked at stars and photographed them, even with the largest telescopes. The light that is concentrated by the giant mirrors and lenses is not only photographed directly, but is also broken up into its spectrum of different wave-lengths. By analyzing the spectrum of a star, astronomers in many cases can learn an amazing number of things about it—its distance, mass, brightness, temperature, size, speed of rotation, and even sometimes the approximate number of atoms it contains.

SOLOMON: A RULER WHO BEGAN WELL

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 3:9-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—Give therefore thy servant an understanding heart, that I may discern between good and bad.—I Kings 3:9.

Success or failure in life is determined by the measure of a man's devotion to God and obedience to the will of God. We speak now of real success, not according to the ideas of the world. We are concerned with what a man is and what he does for God, not with what he may happen to possess.

An excellent outline taken from Points for Emphasis, by Dr. Hight C. Moore, most effectively presents the lesson.

I. Wisdom Offered (v. 5).

Solomon had properly opened his reign by going to Gibeon to offer a thousand burnt offerings because he "loved the Lord" (v. 3). Having returned from his day of worship, he had fallen into a deep sleep when God spoke to him saying, "Ask what I shall give thee." It was an unusual offer, a kind of blank check that God gives only to those whom He can trust to fill it out right, as MacLaren suggests.

Sometimes we wish God would give us such an opportunity. "That is just what He has done. He has appeared to you not in dreams, but in broad daylight and by His Son Jesus Christ has said as plainly as He could, Ask and it shall be given you." He has repeated it three times, saying, ask, seek, find. And then He has returned to say, "Everyone that asketh receiveth, and he that seeketh findeth, and to him that knocketh it shall be opened." We have no right "to say that Solomon was more favored than we. We are more-favored than he. If we have not, it is because we ask not. If we lose peace and joy, happiness and heaven, it is all for want of asking" (Joseph Hammond).

II. Wisdom Chosen (vv. 6-9).

The noble and intelligent choice of Solomon has been much admired and rightly so. For he chose the greatest gift that could come to any man, an understanding heart. He might have asked for money or power, but with the lack of wisdom to use them properly they would have been a curse to him and to others. Long life is but a continued blight to a foolish man because it only extends the time of his folly. All things in the way of possessions must be outside of a man, therefore they may be lost or misused. But what he is and what he has in his heart, these are what make a man worth while. Solomon showed the beginning of wisdom when he chose, above all things, an understanding heart.

III. Wisdom Granted (vv. 10-14).

There can be no higher word of commendation than to say that a man's choice "pleased the Lord" (v. 10). To have that attitude of mind and heart which expresses itself in words and actions so exactly in conformity to the will of God that the Almighty Himself is pleased, is to be ready for God's unlimited blessing. Solomon asked for wisdom, and because he received that gift from God, he was ready to receive riches, honor, and power. We may by God's grace go the same way and take from His blessed hand numberless gifts.

Note the qualifying word "if" in verse 14. Solomon failed God in his later years as king. The tragic results are written for all to read. That way none of us should ever go. The lesson is plain—faith takes blessing from God; unbelief brings failure and sorrow. Let everyone that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall.

IV. Wisdom Exercised (v. 15).

When Solomon awoke from his dream he showed his faith in God's promise and in fact demonstrated the wisdom which was now his possession, by returning to his capital city, Jerusalem, to stand before the ark of the covenant in reverent worship, then to lead his people in a public service of confession and consecration, which was followed by a great religious feast which drew the king and "all his servants," the people of Israel, into a blessed unity before the Lord.

One could wish and pray that all the rulers of the earth whether in democracies or under dictatorships might have the wisdom and humility of Solomon. The world is in utter confusion and really confesses that it does not know the way out of its difficulty. It has not yet turned to God. If rulers and people would fall upon their faces before Him in contrition and supplication, it would not be long before we would see both spiritual and material peace and prosperity.

Make It Positive

Scripture seems to make it positive that every soul has everlastingness, but Scripture also seems to make it positive that for Jesus' kind of everlastingness every soul has got to qualify.

The housemaid was under notice to leave, and her mistress summoned her to tell her a few truths. "So I'm a flirt, am I?" demanded the maid, after a few preliminaries. "Well, I know them as flirts more than I do. And another thing, I'm better-looking than you. Your husband told me." "That's enough!" snapped her mistress. "Oh, no, it ain't," the girl went on. "I can kiss-better than you can, too. Do you know who told me that?" "Don't you dare to suggest that my husband—"

Head Hunters of New Guinea Are Particular About Child Training

HEADHUNTERS of New Guinea, going without clothing, yet very particular about training their children in habits of cleanliness and modesty, were the subject of study by Dr. John Whiting and S. W. Reed, graduate students of Yale university, who lived for seven months among a small primitive tribe of less than 400 persons in a mountain range far up the Sepik river.

Spankings and rewards are the basis of child discipline among these primitives, the Yale investigators discovered, but early in life the child learns to recognize a word of praise or a scolding as an effective substitute for physical punishment or caress.

Food taboos and cleanliness are taught early in childhood and these "morals" are almost never neglected in after life, they found. Sexual and aggressive activities are controlled primarily at adolescence and later, and the restrictions in these matters are never so binding—they are quite often violated.

The tribe still hunt human heads and Doctor Whiting participated in a spear dance which the natives performed before setting out on a raid against a neighboring tribe. No male is accepted as being fully adult and manly unless he has accomplished the feat of spearing an enemy and bringing back his head as a trophy, Doctor Whiting said.

The tribe live on the produce of their yam gardens, the boiled pith of the sago palm, and the roasted meat of the wild pig. Snakes and lizards also form part of their diet, and roasted white grubs are considered a delicacy. Doctor Whiting and Mr. Reed found it difficult to overcome their own food prejudices when the grubs were served them, but were surprised to find that they were "indeed excellent."

By Number

Several American towns are named with numbers, such as Six, W. Va.; Seventy Six, Ky., and Ninety Six, S. C., according to Collier's. A species of fish in South Africa is named Seventy-four after the 74 guns on Nelson's flagship, the Victory; and a toilet water is named 4711 after the street address in Cologne, Germany, where it was first compounded.

Britain Mans Old Fortress On Alderney

'Second Gibraltar' Lies In Mid-Channel, Nearer France.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

Already tagged as a "second Gibraltar" is Alderney, of the English channel islands, as reports from London indicate that plans are under way to fortify this little island which is closer to the coast of France than to the coast of England.

Sixty miles from England at its nearest point, less than ten miles from the Normandy shore, Alderney was once described by Napoleon as "England's shield." During the Napoleonic wars and after, it was heavily and expensively militarized by the British, who also launched considerable construction on a great breakwater that was to make the island's principal harbor safe for the British fleet. This haven is on the north coast facing England.

A Rock-bound Coast.

Only about three and a half miles long and with an average of one mile in width, Alderney is something of a natural fortress in itself. With high precipitous cliffs on its south and west coasts, it looms in many spots from 100 to 200 feet above foaming seas below.

Rocks surrounding the island make navigation extremely hazardous on all but the northeast side. Between Alderney and the French mainland is a dangerous strait known as the Race, where currents and wind combine, in bad weather, to churn the waters into wild, breaking seas. On the other side of the island, some seven miles west, is the still greater hazard of the Casquet rocks on which many a ship has gone down. Swinburne, the English poet, once wrote a poem called "Les Casquettes," which described a storm battering at the rocks and mentioned a girl, who, it is claimed, actually did live there.

Map shows Alderney island and its strategic position in the English channel.

Fortresses Still Usable.

Adding to the grim look of the island are the old forts and military works, most of which have long been dismantled. Fort Albert east of the Harbor, Fort Tourgis on a northwestern shoulder of the island, and Fort Essex on the southeastern side, are still good, however, for barracks. The latter, named for Queen Elizabeth's favorite, the Earl of Essex, was turned into a military hospital, with facilities of wards, dispensary, and kitchen.

Toward the interior, Alderney's fertile plateau displays a more inviting aspect. Almost in the center of the island is located the only town, St. Anne, with its well-paved streets, postal telegraph office, hotels, and shops.

Notable for Royal Tombs Hue, Indo-China, is notable for its royal tombs where rest the former emperors of the province of Annam. One of the principal tombs, that of Emperor Khai Dinh, took ten years to build. Like other royal burial plots this one rises in a series of terraces flanked by gardens, moats and patterned retreats. Inside a great temple, that tops a hill, is a figure of the emperor seated on a gold replica of his throne in the imperial palace. The walls are decorated with hunting scenes made of bits of inlaid colored glass.

“God is the Lord which hath showed us light.” —Passage: “Paul saw in Athens an altar dedicated ‘to the unknown God.’
Referring to it, he said to the Athenians: ‘Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, Him declare I unto you.’

An Inlet, Not Outlet
The straight of Gibraltar, often considered the Mediterranean’s chief outlet, is technically an inlet.
Due to evaporation, the level of the Mediterranean is a little below that of the Atlantic ocean, so that fresher ocean water constantly flows in through the strait. This is true in spite of the large volume of water poured into the Mediterranean by such rivers as the Nile, the Rhone, the Ebro, the Po and through the Dardanelles. The Mediterranean extends over an area of more than a million square miles, equal to a third of the area of the United States. It washes the shores of Europe, Asia and Africa.

Beauty Hints

By Jane Heath

HOT days—work days—play days are here. What’s the news on summer make-up?
“As little as possible,” answer the beauty experts. “The idea is to look healthy and natural. Let your skin warm to the sun. Let your hair blow free. Discard rouge and powder if you like. But, even if you’re rusticating back on the farm, you’ll still accent two features—eyes and lips.”
Eyebrows should be kept groom-ed and free of stray hairs at all times. This is quickly done with the convenient tweezers with accessory handle, sketched above. Keep to the natural hairline and avoid any artificial look which is now definitely “dated.”
Luxuriant lashes are another beauty aim which may be achieved, as you tend your garden, with care and cultivation. Kurlene, a fine eyelash dressing made of rich, natural oils, will do the trick. Applied with the tip of the finger or an eye beauty brush, it leaves the lashes silky and pliable.
And now comes the final touch, a wide starry-eyed effect, produced with a clever eyelash curler that trains lashes upward with no heat or cosmetics. In selecting a lipstick, choose one with clear, warm blood tones, lighter than you’ve been using.
Accent your eyes and lips this summer, to look healthy and natural. But the wise girl will use just a bit of art to aid Nature.

The "Rich Port"
Porto Rico, one of the earliest of Spanish American colonies, has endured since its settlement by Ponce de Leon more than four centuries ago, as the "Rich Port," the name that Christopher Columbus gave it on its discovery. Its history in the development of the Americas is shared only by the Dominican Republic, where the early Spanish settlers established their first governmental base.

Bird's Mentality
Comparing a bird's mind to that of a man, one naturalist says: "A human being who possessed the mentality of a bird would be considered irresponsible, unintelligent, but gifted with inexhaustible intuitions, quite lacking in character but ready and alert, unimaginative, and entirely without any morals."

Discovered Sugar Root
The discovery of sugar in the beet was made by a German chemist, Marggraf, as early as 1747. Little progress was made until 50 years later when another German chemist, Achard, succeeded in extracting sugar from the beet root on a comparatively large scale.

Named Islands for Tortoises

Lewis Burke

—And R U Listenin'?
Little old town, good afternoon!

The voters cast their ballots "Against" rather than "For" a certain party. So it works both ways.

For instance, if Joe Apodaca or Burro Joe was the nominee for Governor, you'd vote "Against" rather than "For" him. (Even if he were running on the Democratic ticket.)

Columnist:

"I can hardly wait for the exciting 4th of July celebration at Ft. Stanton. I have been attending these affairs for many years, and always find something new. The live-wire committees should be highly commended for they are invariably having something novel and nifty. In other words, they keep us guessing what the entertainment will be."

No wonder that Russia is against joining the British Peace Pact. She has trouble with the Japanese; latest dispatches report 184 Soviet planes shot down by the Nipponese.

Russia should have an undeclared state of warfare against the Japanese — and clean them out, if you ask us. Do we hear any objections? We thought not.
