Now Is The Time To Show Our Colors

A movement has been started in the east and is spreading rapidly over the country from coast to coast. The movement was started by Wm. Randolph Hearst and it is a good one.

The plan is for every American home to keep on display, the grand old flag of our country. In these times of war and bloodshed in the old countries, it is fitting and worthy that we love peace under the flag and abhor war.

As we already know, there are secret organizations operating in this country and using the freedom of our land as a cloak under which they are seeking to overthrow our form of government for the benefit of other countries which are operating under dictatorships.

To see a flag floating over the great American home is an evidence that those who reside under its roof believe in "God, Home and Native Land." It also shows that we are enemies of war, strife and bloodshed among the brotherhood of men. It means that our beloved sons shall not again be taken across the seas to lose their lives or to be returned to us worse than dead.

Under that plan of Americanism, those who are not in accord with our form of government, can show themselves by failing to display the colors. Thus may we be able to separate the wheat from the chaff. The above movement is but in its infancy, but it will soon prevail over the entire land. Good work—may it grow and prosper.

U. S. Army Plane Makes First Totally 'Blind' Flight

The first totally "blind" flight in the history of aviation was completed recently by a United States army air corps 22 1/2-ton bomber as it landed at Langley Field, Va., from Mitchell Field, N. Y. Pilots W. A. Matheny and Carl McDaniel, shut off from outside vision by a canvas, relied solely upon instruments. Left: Crew of the huge Boeing fortress preparing for the historic flight. Top right: Diagram shows how radio signals sent out from two special trucks guides plane to a landing. Bottom right: The plane in which the experiment was made. Instead of following a radio beam, the plane was "on instruments" from take-off to destination, landed by signal broadcasts from the two radio trucks.

ISAIAH GIVES GOD'S INVITATION

LESSON TEXT—Isaiah 55:1-11. GOLDEN TEXT—Seek ye the Lord while he may be found; call ye upon him while he is near.—Isaiah 55:6.

Thirsty? A thousand signboards will tell you what to drink to refresh yourself. Most of the suggestions are there only to get your money, and often their proffered lift is a push downward and their refreshment is only a prelude to destruction. But they do declare that thirst is universally present. Throughout the Bible thirst is used to express man's need of and longing for God. He is a spiritual being made in the likeness and image of God and intended for fellowship with Him. Never will he be fully satisfied until he comes to God and meets his hunger and thirst with that "which is good."

The invitation of Isaiah is presented under the figure of a purchase, "Come ye, buy." In carrying out that thought we suggest that there are four steps in buying and using anything.

I. Listen (v. 1). "Ho, everyone that thirsteth." This is as Spurgeon says "the cry of a salesman at a fair." Amid the confusing sounds and disturbing sights surrounding his customer the salesman must make himself known and catch the interest of his customer. The latter must listen to the offer and the recommendation of the things for sale.

This is an unusual offer. Isaiah invites the buyer to make his purchase "without money and without price." Does that mean that the thing for sale is cheap or worthless? Far from it, for it is priceless. Salvation is free for the sinner, but it cost God the price of His only begotten Son. It is because Jesus paid the price of redemption that we may have it freely without cost.

II. Compare (vv. 2-5). A good shopper compares values lest he make a bad bargain or buy that for which he has no real need. What is the situation of the one who is invited to buy what God offers? He is a sinner who has been foolishly seeking to satisfy himself with what the world has to offer. With money he has tried to buy happiness, contentment, recognition. The bread of this world will never satisfy and the water of this world only increases one's thirst. (See John 4:13, 14.)

Compare what God has to offer, "that which is good," that which "delights the soul" (v. 2). Here is life (v. 3) assured by the promise of One who made an "everlasting covenant" with David, assuring him of His "sure mercies." It results in ultimate glory (v. 5).

The one who honestly makes such a comparison is quickly satisfied that the time has come to

III. Buy (vv. 6-9). Penniless, the sinner may "buy" without money. He may call upon God, for God has already called him. He may seek God, because He like the good shepherd has been out seeking the lost sheep (Matt. 18:12).

While man can certainly not save himself, there are things which God expects the sinner to do. First, he is to "seek the Lord." Where? Right at your side, sinner, for "he is near" (v. 6). Then when the sinner meets the Lord he is at once conscious of his sin. What shall he do with it? Forsake it in both thought and deed (v. 7) and God will "abundantly pardon." Observe that men may by their sinful rejection of Him bring themselves to the place where they not only do not listen to God's call, but actually do not want to hear it. "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found" (v. 6).

IV. Enjoy (vv. 10, 11). Some foolish folk buy things, and put them away where neither they nor anyone else can enjoy them. Some worry so much about the price they paid or are so concerned about the preciousness of the thing purchased that they find no pleasure in using it.

Salvation is not a thing to be hidden or put on a shelf. In fact, it is not a thing at all, but a life. It is to grow, to bud, to blossom and to bear fruit. How? By being ready to receive God's Word which comes down like the rain from the heavens, refreshing, encouraging, and fruitifying the life of the believer.

God's Word never returns to Him void: He prospers it to accomplish His own purpose. But pray tell me, if we never study it or even read it, how can it help our lives? We "grow in grace" only as we grow "in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ" (III Pet. 3:18). We grow in knowledge as we study God's Word. Thus we come to enjoy our Christian life.

Healing Powers. There came also a multitude out of the cities round about unto Jerusalem, bringing sick folks, and them which were vexed with unclean spirits and they were healed every one.—Acts 4:16.

Star Dust

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO By VIRGINIA VALE (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WHEN Columbia decided to film "The Tree of Liberty"

they decided to give the public more than good value. Many of the scenes of the book are laid in Williamsburg, Va., at the time of the Revolution, and just afterward. And since the Rockefellers have obligingly restored most of the buildings of the town so that they look as they did then, Columbia sent the company to Williamsburg.

They also invited newspaper writers down to see Cary Grant, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Richard Carle and others working, under the very able direction of Frank Lloyd.

Students from William and Mary college acted as extras; in a scene made in wind and rain in front of Raleigh tavern you'll see them, dressed as students of the college were in the seventeen hundreds. The wind and rain were artificially produced on a beautiful spring evening.

The next afternoon Grant was to be photographed riding up to the door of a famous old plantation. The governor of Virginia and crowds of enthusiastic fans assembled to watch. When you see that scene, imagine the governor and the rest of us shivering in a chilly wind from the James river, waiting for the sun to come out, while Grant patiently rode his horse up and down until somebody pointed a camera at it at close range, making it so nervous that it ran away. Grant lost his hat and got his wig rumpled, and by the time order was restored the sky was too cloudy for any pictures to be made.

The following day a mob was to storm something or other, and a torchlight parade was to be held. So it rained. The picture people were patient; they're accustomed to that sort of thing. The newspaper people were not, so they went home. The only news was that the title had to be changed to "The Howards of Virginia," because the other one sounded too much like a Warner Brothers patriotic short, and that Martha Scott, instead of Joan Fontaine, would play the lead.

It's going to be a swell picture, one of Frank Lloyd's best—that's recommendation enough for any movie.

Director John Stahl, who has been connected with only two studios—Metro and Universal—during the past 25 years, has broken away, along with such producers as Walter Wanger and Frank Capra, to enjoy the freedom of making his own picture selections. You must remember his "Back Street," with Irene Dunne, and "Only Yesterday," with Margaret Sulavan, to mention just a few of his successes.

He's chosen "The Life of Daniel Webster" for his first free picture, and has signed with James Roosevelt to direct "The Boy Grew Older" for him.

Spike Jones, drummer in Oscar Bradley's orchestra on the CBS "Screen Guild Theater," refused an offer of $200 for a drum head recently. The original cost of the drum head was only $10—but it's covered with signatures of famous Hollywood stars who have appeared on the program, from Shirley Temple to Bette Davis.

Lany Ross was recently nominated as the perfect date by a group of pretty girls who act as professional fashion models. To show his appreciation, he invited four of them to be his guests at a very smart—and very expensive—night club. When the night was over, Lanny, who was selected as the perfect date because he knows just what to do when escorting a woman, found that he couldn't pay the check—because he'd left his wallet at home.

Many commentators will air their views on the forthcoming presidential campaigns to be held this summer. To one, however, it will hold special interest. Many years ago Edwin C. Hill, "America's Star Reporter," covered the Theodore Roosevelt convention. From the time Teddy became President, Hill was referred to by the Rough Rider as "the unofficial member of my cabinet." This summer Hill will again cover a Roosevelt convention providing Franklin Delano Roosevelt runs for a third term.

But, I had promised our father on his deathbed that I would see that Gladys got everything until she was old enough to look out for herself. I was faithful to that promise. Gladys was beautiful, popular—and in spite of my efforts—wild. And she envied me the man I loved. Honor Memory of a Country Girl Who Founded America's First Settlement House in the Slums of a Great City

Hull-House as it looked in the year of its founding, 1889.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

ONCE upon a time, a little girl from the country watched some children playing in the dirty, narrow streets that criss-crossed the "shanty town" of one of Illinois' thriving industrial centers, whereupon she said to her father beside her in the carriage, "When I grow up I'm going to have a big house with a big yard and I'm going to ask all those children to come over and play."

"That's a fine plan, Jenny," her father agreed. "I hope you will carry it out some day." And she did, for that little girl was six-year-old Jane Addams who, 23 years later, founded Chicago's Hull-House, America's first and for 50 years world-famous settlement.

Although Hull-House is, after the stockyards, a Chicago visitor's first stopping place, Jane Addams is remembered for more than Hull-House. Her efforts in behalf of laboring men and women throughout the state and the nation, and for world peace combine with her Hull-House work to earn her top ranking in the field of social science and, as a scientist, she is to be honored with a commemorative postage stamp.

The Jane Addams stamp, one of the "Famous Americans" series, is having its first day of sale on April 26 at the Hull-House post office, Chicago's first sub-postal station and where Miss Addams served as postmistress for 38 years.

Golden Jubilee Celebration. This first day sale of the Jane Addams stamp opens a month-long celebration of the settlement's golden jubilee. In that celebration, Hull-House neighbors from along Chicago's crowded Halsted street will join with the city's civic leaders and with many of the nation's best-known men and women. At its climax, on May 23, members of the 18 nationality groups the settlement now serves will hold a neighborhood festa, to be followed by a national broadcast, with Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York city, Gerard Swope, former president of the General Electric company and new chairman of the New York Housing authority, and President Robert Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago, as speakers.

Thus, America will pay tribute to the country-bred girl who devoted her life and the small fortune left her by her prosperous miller-father to the alleviation of hardship and suffering and to teaching the principles of democracy among the immigrant poor of the nation's second largest city.

Jane Addams was born on September 6, 1860, in the little village of Cedarville, six miles northwest of Ercport, Ill. In September, 1877, just after her seventeenth birthday she entered Rockford seminary.

In her freshman Latin class, Jane Addams met Ellen Gates Starr. Emotional Ellen, always close to laughter or to tears, and calm Jane were to be life-long friends. It was to Ellen that Jane first told her plans to find a house among Chicago's poor and settle down to be a good neighbor there, and it was Ellen who cried, "Why, Jeannie, how splendid! I'll live with you. We'll do it together."

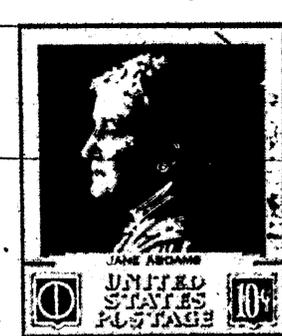

But that was many years later. During her college days, Jane, a brilliant and popular student, was planning to study medicine and to become a doctor and work among the poor. After her graduation she enrolled at the Woman's Medical college in Philadelphia. Just as she was finishing her summer vacation and planning her trip East, her father died. It was a cruel blow to Jane, but she determined to carry out her plan, so the family moved to Philadelphia. The nervous shock of her father's death brought on an old illness and she spent the spring in a hospital. Doctors recommended an ocean voyage, so Jane and Mrs.

Addams sailed for Europe, where they stayed for two years.

But Jane did not visit only art galleries and ruins on her tour of Europe. In London, she went into the East End slums and watched the hungry and homeless battle for rotting vegetables and fish in the Saturday night auction which disposed of food too spoiled to be saved for the Monday market.

Growing deep within her was a burning desire to be of service to humanity, although she knew by now that she could not endure the rigors of a medical course. Having returned to the United States, Jane set out again two years later for another visit to Europe. This time, she met her friend Ellen Gates Starr and they toured together.

On her way home, Jane Addams visited Toynbee Hall, established in London as a memorial to Arnold Toynbee, the Oxford tutor who had died at 31, worn out by his work for social reforms. Here came the little milliners, the furniture polishers and clerks, and the silk weavers of East London. Young university men lived at the hall and taught them French or carpentry, music or shorthand, boxing or literature. There were a library, an athletic field and a hall for parties.

The Old Hull Mansion. Jane Addams wanted the same thing for herself in the midst of the poor in an American city, and, in the spring of 1889, she went to Chicago to look for a place for her "house." On Chicago's West Side, in a colorful patchwork of races - Italians, Russian and Polish Jews, Bohemians and Irish, Scandinavians and Rumanians, Germans, Swiss, French and French Canadians - she found the old Hull mansion, at Polk and Halsted streets.

A furniture factory was using the first floor for storage and the second floor was let to lodgers who thought the attic was haunted. Jane and Ellen rented the whole second floor and a part of the first, and set a corps of carpenters, plasterers and paper-hangers to work to make it livable. Jane spent all the savings from her income of the legacy left her by her father and Ellen donated the remains of her teacher's salary.

The night of September 14, 1889, was the first they spent in the house. There were three of them, Jane and Ellen and motherly Mary Keyser, who came to do the housekeeping and ended by caring for half the neighborhood children. Going to market, Miss Keyser invited the wives of the butcher, the baker and the saloonkeeper to tea, and they came, first out of curiosity and again out of liking.

Then the girls from the furniture factory were supper guests and decided they would like to have a class in literature. So people began to trickle in and tell around that the young ladies treated them well. They didn't seem to want anything out of you but just to be sociable and to give you a good time, and perhaps to teach you something.

Tired mothers heard about the house and left their babies when they went to work, black-eyed girls with gold hoops in their ears shyly asked to play the piano for dancing. Soon Jane Addams and Ellen Starr were deep in the stream of neighborhood life, dressing new babies and closing the eyes of the dead.

Higher Civic and Social Life. When this neighborhood venture was incorporated, some time later, the charter gave the objects of incorporation as follows: "To provide a center for a higher civic and social life; to institute and maintain educational and philanthropic enterprises and to investigate and improve the conditions of the industrial districts of Chicago."

Those "objects" are put, whether by accident or design, in the chronological order in which they had appeared. It was to provide a center for social life that the young women rented the old mansion. When within two weeks a dozen young women of the neighborhood were invited to a "reading party" in the evening - and when soon afterward a kindergarten was started in the drawing room, the first "educational and philanthropic enterprises" were instituted. And before the end of the year, the residents had begun to "investigate and improve the conditions" in their own neighborhood.

So, Hull-House grew and Jane Addams' interest and influence grew with it in ever-widening circles. As she sought to help the neighbors with their problems, she campaigned for improved and more sanitary living conditions for the community, and became involved in labor legislation and organization. Long before the World War, Jane Addams firmly believed in arbitration as the settlement of difficulties between nations and organized the women of the world in an effort to accomplish it.

For her efforts for world peace, she shared the Nobel peace prize of 1931 with Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler. She was the first woman to be awarded an honorary degree by many universities, among them the conservative Yale. In numerous polls, she was named America's leading woman citizen, the nation's "uncrowned queen" and other complimentary titles.

In Europe, Jane Addams was even more famous than in her home country, and, in 1935, the year of her death, the Turkish government honored her with a special postage stamp.

Jane Addams died on May 21, 1935. Plans for the anniversary celebration are directed by Miss Charlotte Carr, now the settlement's resident director, who points out "It behooves us, in planning for Hull-House's second half-century, to live up to Miss Addams' reputation, not on it."

Physically, the Hull-House of today is a far cry from what it was that autumn day in 1889 when Jane Addams, Ellen Gates Starr and Mary Keyser took up their residence. Before the end of that first year, other like-minded women had joined them there. From all over the city, men and women interested in social service came to offer their help to Jane Addams. As in Toynbee Hall, these people opened classes to teach the lesser privileged.

Hull-House now occupies two full city blocks, has 13 buildings and, in addition, maintains a 72-acre summer camp, out in the country north of Chicago. During last year, more than 350,000 persons attended Hull-House classes and participated in Hull-House activities. In 1939, more than 30,000 visitors came to Hull-House from all parts of the world.

Indeed, in the past 50 years, almost 2,000,000 boys and girls and their fathers and mothers have accepted Miss Addams' invitation to "come over and play."

ELMER AND THE 1940 CIRCUS THE circus is on the way again, and this department is afraid. It is filled with grave misgivings. It is apprehensive. It fears the modernistic trend will be continued and that there will be further attempts to make an elephant glamorous, give "footph" to a camel, and envelope the big tent as a whole in an atmosphere of silks, satins and "it."

For the last three or four years this influence has spread to a point where the customers have been coming home a little confused and declaring that they have just been to the "Barnum and Billy Rose Circus" or "The Forepaugh and Shubert Combined Shows."

"Old P. T. Barnum had the right idea about a circus," declared Elmer Twitchell, chairman of the National League to Preserve the Flavor of the Big Tent. "It should look like a circus, not like a circus and smell like a circus. Last year they even advertised that it would be air-conditioned and perfumed. I thought the elephants and camels noted very depressed about it all summer."

"The circus was really a circus when you could smell it a mile away. The smells made it. Air-conditioning is all right in its place, but the circus should be left untouched by it," continued Elmer. "However, that's all done and over; what I'm afraid of is that the Foliea decorative influence will spread, especially in the opening pageant."

"The opening pageant has always made a hit with me, but especially so before George White, the late Flo Ziegfeld, Earl Carroll or any of those boys could touch it. I warmed up to the pageant when you could tell that Sir Galahad was just a bum, that Ben Hur was a hustler who needed a shave and that Cleopatra and her ladies were just a lot of faded women."

"For the last few years the idea has been to put an Errol Flynn on every horse and a Hedy Lamarr on every elephant. It softened up the whole show. I can stand for one of those Winter Garden ensembles and for those Hollywood super spectacles from the Arabian Nights, but I like my circus parades straight."

"I'm just hoping for the best," concluded Elmer, "but I fear the worst. One more yard of lace in that opening pageant, however, and I'm through!"

"Democracy is greater than cynicism. Decency will prevail over trickery. A people of integrity will insist upon a government of integrity." - Mr. Dewey.

VICIOUS CIRCLE Demosthenes Dowd was a shyster. With an outlook exceedingly blue. So he soap-boxed his way into congress. By shouting the country was through.

He speaks of himself as a liberal, Denounces reaction as dross; He raves of the virtues of labor, And rants at the sins of the boss.

Yes, he speaks of himself as a liberal, Not knowing the hokum he spouts Was reaction way back before Nero; And oft turned the "Ins" into "Outs."

With the G. O. P. it's a case of when a feller needs "a trend."

Let's Be Fair, Girls! "Wife Forgives Husband Who Set Her Afire." - headline. That's the spirit, lady! It's a humdrum world at best, with the average man finding little opportunity for self-expression, adventure, excitement. He works all day in a humdrum office, goes home in a humdrum subway and reaches a humdrum home to find everything in the same pattern. No zest. No novelty. At last he breaks under the strain. Any good wife should understand. Keep some matches and kerosene around.

HERE'S one to begin on, if you've never done any sewing. Pattern No. 1927-B consists of just three pieces that go together to become the most practical and comfortable of pinafore aprons - and it is a pretty thing to look at, too, slim-waisted and bright with braid. It buttons on the shoulders and slips on over your head. And then it stays put! No fumbling over complicated cross-buttoning effects, no slipping and sliding. It protects the top as well as the skirt of your dress. Three or four aprons like this, in percale, calico or gingham, will

THE HONORABLE UNCLE LANCY
 BY ETHEL HUESTON
 It was in all kindness that Aunt Olympia Slophire, wife of Senator Alaxcon Delaporia Slophire (properly, but rarely pronounced "Slupahur") invited her three orphaned Iowa nieces, the wise Helen, the beautiful Adale, and the joyous Lumpy, to live with them in Washington. But it was not in Aunt Olympia to overlook the glorious political asset which these three debutantes offered in time of dire need.
 • That's where the trouble started. And that, too, was the start of the gayest, maddest tale of American political nonsense that you ever read. A laugh to every line! A fun arcade of love, laughter and politics!

Billy the Kid drama planned at Lincoln. The noted Lincoln County Court House is to be a stage for the featured show at the coming Coronado Centennial. The pageant will be "A Day in Old Lincoln, staged at that place June 22.

Billy the Kid, sometimes described as the Southwest's "Robin Hood" first killed to help a friend, later for gold, and finally to avenge the slaying of J.H. Tunstall, a wealthy Englishman and a friend of the Kid.

The day's events will include church services, displays of Spanish arts and crafts, a Mexican wedding and festivals.

P.S.: Billy the Kid's gun was a .41 calibre 6-shooter and history says that there were 21 notches in its handle.

(He didn't notch his gun whenever he killed an Indian.)

Billy was an adept in fancy-work; strange as it seems.
