Of Much Interest To Archaeology

With other ventures of a dangerous nature in search of relics of the past ages, comes the story from Prescott, Ariz., of Berwill C. Putnam, Arizona's adventure-some postman, who has just returned from a stay of 29 days in the dangerous and unexplored Superstition mountains.

Through his love for the curious things of the past ages, postman Putnam longed for the time to come when he would be able to explore those regions where there is no evidence of it having been traversed, as far as history is concerned, for centuries.

During his stay in these mountains he found the ruins of an ancient city, which had been str-conditioned and being unmolested for centuries, is still in good state of preservation. One section of the city seemed to have been used for winter-quarters, while the other, several thousand feet above, had irrigation canals which were fed by a mountain stream and extended down a valley where the residents had grown their crops. The canals, according to Mr. Putnam, are still well preserved and the linings which were made of hard clay have resisted storms and disturbances for ages unknown. The mystery of what was known as the "Lost Dutchman Mine" with its fabulous wealth is supposed to be in the Superstition mountains, but that was not what led Putnam to dwell in those regions for 29 days. He brought back unmistakable proof of his findings, such as queer pottery, such as had not been seen for perhaps 500 years.

Mr. Putnam seeks no personal gain, other than to satisfy his ambition for the eerie and curious things of life, more especially things that will prove valuable to archaeology. His yearning was not for personal gain, but to satisfy his "hobby" for things of an out-of-the-ordinary nature, otherwise one could not separate himself from humanity, make himself a prey to wild beasts and other forms of danger for 29 lonesome days in a place which had not been inhabited by human beings for hundreds of years.

Eighty Years Ago Chicago's Wigwam Was the Scene of an Historic Event: Lincoln's Nomination for Presidency

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Chicagoan by Western Newspaper Union

"MR. CHAIRMAN, I wish to announce that the Ohio delegation transfers four votes from Mr. Chase to Abraham Lincoln."

Eighty years ago these few words touched off a thunderous round of applause and sent word speeding across the nation that Abraham Lincoln was the Republican choice to run for President of the United States.

The scene was the Republican Wigwam in Chicago, where delegates had gathered from 24 states to choose their candidates for President and vice president. Now, 80 years later, on May 18, Republicans of Chicago are holding a commemorative ceremony in the building which stands on the site of the Wigwam, to mark this momentous occasion four decades ago.

The Chicago of 80 years ago was a metropolis of 175,000 persons, according to the census taken in June of 1870. The city was out-ranked by seven others in size—New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Baltimore, Boston, New Orleans and Cincinnati. It was very much of a frontier town and its reputation was such that one of the leading candidates for the Republican nomination, William Henry Seward of New York, came to the city with a "body-guard of plug-uglies," to defend himself from the uncouth natives.

Seward and his delegation arrived with extreme confidence. They could hardly believe that a man from Illinois would stand much chance of being nominated for the presidency, despite the record of honesty, integrity and sincerity which Abraham Lincoln had built. But he was a "back-woodman" and uncouth, so the Seward crowd was not much worried.

Following two days of convention routine, the delegates got down to the job of selecting candidates. The Seward men were out parading and whooping it up on the streets for their candidate. When they reached the Wigwam they found the place jammed with friends of Lincoln and barely managed to get in.

Seward's Men Confident.

There was little abatement of the Seward confidence when the roll was called for the first ballot. The vote showed that out of the 466 votes cast, Seward had 173 1/2, Lincoln 102, and the rest were scattered among a dozen favorite sons. It took 234 votes to nominate, and the Seward supporters were confident that after the routine of voting for favorite sons was out of the way, the swing would be to their man.

The second ballot was taken and the count showed a shift to Lincoln rather than to the Easterner. Seward had 184 1/2 and Lincoln 181. The Lincoln delegates worked strenuously before the third ballot, and the Chicago Press and Tribune of that date reports that intense excitement prevailed.

The tally started and when the twenty-fourth state had voted, the count showed Seward 180, Lincoln 231 1/2. Ohio had been dividing its vote between Chase, McLean and Abraham Lincoln. A few minutes after the vote on the third ballot was announced, the leader of the Ohio delegation, a Mr. Carter, arose to announce the switch of four votes from Chase to Lincoln. Ohio had cast 39 votes for Lincoln, 15 for Chase and 3 for McLean on the third ballot.

This gave Lincoln the required majority and touched off a tremendous salvo of applause. State after state fell in line and finally the leader of the New York delegation, which had been piously behind Seward, moved to make the vote unanimous.

Lincoln followers had placed a cannon on top of the Wigwam and let go a blast which shook the structure and notified all of Chicago that Illinois was furnishing the Republican nominee. The newspaper accounts of the day report a celebration running far into the night.

Hannibal Hamlin of Maine, was Lincoln's running mate as the vice presidential candidate.

Lincoln had been building his national following for some time. The famous Lincoln-Douglas debates of 1858 had of course attracted widespread attention, and in early 1860 he had been speaking in many states on the question of slavery.

The Chicago Press and Tribune on February 18, 1860, declared that Abraham Lincoln was the peer of anyone named in connection with the nominations. A week later the paper suggested organization of Lincoln clubs to build his candidacy.

Editorially in the period from early February until April comment was made from time to time that Seward admittedly was the leading candidate, but the Press and Tribune urged that Lincoln was the better vote-getter.

When the Illinois Republican convention was held on May 9 in Decatur, Lincoln was chosen as this body's choice for President.

The Democrats Split.

Great attention centered on the Democratic convention, held in Charleston, S. C., beginning April 20. Douglas was the most prominently named candidate as the Democratic nominee, but bitter opposition to his selection was heard on all sides. The Democratic convention battled through three days and finally split into two sections. No candidate could be named. The rump section adjourned to meet in New York on June 18.

The Press and Tribune repeatedly cited election trends in many states and cities in the spring of 1860 as a trend toward Republicanism. In Chicago, the city also tions had given the Republican candidate a clear victory over his Democratic opponent.

The meeting of 1860 was the first of 16 political conventions held in Chicago to date. The Republicans have come to Chicago 11 times and the Democrats five times, to select their candidates for President and vice president and to approve platforms.

The Democrats return again this year, meeting in July at the Chicago Stadium. Located 15 blocks west and 3 blocks south of the Wigwam site, the Stadium is a sharp contrast to the structure set up 80 years ago to hold the Republican meeting.

Largest Convention Hall.

In its day, however, the Wigwam was a cause for national comment. It was the largest convention hall in America at that time and was a testimony to Chicago's energy and ambition to show the nation that the city was something more than just another frontier town located out the other side of nowhere.

When it was decided that the Republicans would come to Chicago to hold their convention, citizens immediately started work raising funds with which to build the convention hall. On March 13, during the fund-raising campaign, the Chicago Press and Tribune suggested that Republicans who won money in the recent city elections contribute their winnings to the building fund, "thus using pro-slave dollars for the purpose."

The site chosen already had a historic background. Located at the fork of the Chicago river, which in those days flowed into Lake Michigan instead of out of it in earlier times the place was known as Wolf Point.

Here had stood the Sauganash inn, the first hotel in Chicago and one of the first two frame buildings ever erected in the city. There is a dispute in the records on this latter point. Some claim the Sauganash inn was the first frame building, but others insist it was the second.

In any event, the Sauganash inn was famous far and wide. It had been built by Mark Beaubien when he came from Detroit in 1826. Beaubien is a name which occurs repeatedly in early Chicago history and still is frequently seen in the news columns of Chicago papers.

Chicago's First Election.

Here on August 10, 1837, came the entire list of qualified voters (all 24 of them) to select the town trustees for the City of Chicago; the first election held in the city's history. Here likewise was the first drama in the West produced, in late October of 1837.

Beaubien sold the building in 1834. It burned to the ground on March 2, 1861. It had been abandoned as a hostelry in the late forties, apparently, and was occupied by only one man at the time of the fire. The property in 1861 was owned by the Garrett estate, which later founded the Garrett Bible Institute and provided the foundation for establishment in later years of Northwestern university.

The townspeople who were working on the Republican convention obtained the site from the Garrett estate and started construction of the great Wigwam in April, 1860. The structure was 180 by 180 feet, with its main entrance on the street known now as Wacker drive.

A gallery was built on three sides, a stage constructed across one end. The stage would seat between 800 and 700 persons and the hall itself was constructed to seat between 10,000 and 11,000 persons.

The Wigwam was lighted by gas. Its interior was left in a rough, unfinished state, to be decorated "by the light, graceful and entirely successful handiwork of Republican ladies," to quote the Press-Tribune of the day. The ladies banked the walls with freshly cut evergreens. Seals of the states were hung around the walls, and busts of prominent men of early American history were placed on the supporting pillars. Over the stage was suspended a huge gilt eagle.

The structure cost between $4,000 and $7,000. There was a deficit to clear, so on the night of the dedication, Saturday, May 12, an admission charge of 25 cents was assessed. Between 7,000 and 8,000 persons came to the dedication, which seems to have taken care of the deficit since no further comment is found on the subject.

The Wigwam building was used for various meetings during the next few years, and was destroyed in the great fire of 1871.

Interesting Coincidence.

An interesting coincidence is noted in connection with the building now standing on the corner where the Wigwam was built. The building today is occupied by district headquarters of three divisions of the B. F. Goodrich company, which this year is marking its seventeenth anniversary. In the celebration on the Wigwam site, both the Republican and Goodrich representatives are re-enacting history-making events in which both played significant roles. Heading the delegation from Minnesota to the Republican convention of 1860 was Judge Aaron Goodrich, described as the first territorial officer ever to set foot on the soil of Minnesota.

The national committeeman from Massachusetts at the same convention was John Z. Goodrich; Aaron Goodrich, John Z. Goodrich and Dr. B. F. Goodrich were distant cousins, all descendants of William Goodrich who came to America about 1648. Another cousin, Grant Goodrich, an attorney, was prominent in Chicago early history, active in municipal affairs and it is said he at one time offered Abraham Lincoln a partnership in his Chicago law firm.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY School Lesson

JEREMIAH DENOUNCES FALSE PROPHETS

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 23:1-22.
GOLDEN TEXT—"I have no peace," hold fast that which is good.—I Thessalonians 5:22.

Ticking the vanity and pleasing the ears of ungodly people with words of flattery and false comfort, giving them the assurance of peace and prosperity in the very pursuit of their sin, did not begin with the false prophets of the twentieth century. Six hundred years before Christ, Jeremiah the prophet had to contend with such false teachers.

His manner of dealing with them is of great interest to us, for essentially the false prophets of that day used the same methods and had the same false message that characterize their descendants of today, the so-called modernistic religious liberals who are busy everywhere attempting to undermine the faith of God's children in His Word. They are revealed as being destitute of divine authority, without a real message, and under the disfavour and subject to the judgment of God. They are:

I. Without Divine Commission (vv. 21-22).

"I have not sent these prophets"—that should have been sufficient for the people of Judah. A man who is not sent by God has no word from heaven; no help for needy humanity. He is worse than an admittedly secular teacher or philosopher, for he claims to speak with divine authority and yet has only the disappointing impotence of a liar and a fraud.

The reason Judah listened to them was because they so eloquently hushed the condemning voice of their own consciences, assuring them that all was well, when, as a matter of fact, everything was wrong. Men listen to the same kind of teaching today for the very same reason.

II. Without a Divine Message (vv. 23-27).

These false prophets may delude men, but they have not fooled God. He is not a finite being, limited to this earth (v. 23). He looks on men from the far off viewpoint of heaven and judges by His own high and holy standards.

Nor can they hide from Him (v. 24). God hears the word spoken in the academic shelter of a college classroom, secretly poisoning the young person's heart against the faith of his father and mother. A day of judgment also awaits those who in their public utterances use the phraseology of orthodoxy, while in private they undermine and destroy Christian faith.

If a man is foolish enough to suppose that the dreamings of his own mind and heart will help anyone, let him be honest enough to call them just that; namely, dreams (vv. 25-28). But God will assuredly not hold those men guiltless who try to pass off their own philosophies as bearing the approval of God; who would have people honor their assemblies as Christian churches, when they are at best only social or intellectual gatherings designed to mislead man rather than Christ.

Note in verse 29 that the Word of God is like the fire that consumes and purifies, and also like the hammer, that breaks up the rocky heart of man.

III. Without Divine Favor and Blessing (vv. 30-32).

God is against every false prophet. Small wonder that there is the savour of death in their speaking and their works. There is no divine power in their message and no holy dynamic to enable people to respond to their admonitions. Prominent modernists are decrying in our day the fact that their cultured essays and polished philosophies are not reaching the hearts of men and are failing to transform lives. At the same time, humble preachers and teachers of God's Word, sometimes in hidden and remote places, are rejoicing as they see the transforming grace of God come upon lives as a result of their simple proclamation of the gospel of grace. Keep on, brethren; God is with you.

Observe what God calls the false prophets—thieves (v. 30) and liars (v. 31). Hard words, but they come from One who is all-knowing, who judges rightly and in love.

Like the Shadow

I am gone like the shadow when it declineth: I am tossed up and down as the locust. My knees are weak through fasting; my flesh failth of fatness; I became also a reproach unto them; when they looked upon me they shook their heads.—Psalm 109:23-25.

It Doth Not Yet Appear

You may see the shadow of a man, and you are not what you can be. You may rise yet, and fight a good fight yet, and be a good man once more, after the likeness of God who made you, and Christ who died for you.—Charles Kingsley.

True Work Sacred
All true work is sacred; in all true work, were it but true hand-labor, there is something of divineness.—Carlyle.

Effort Counts
Although strength should fail, the effort will deserve praise. In great enterprises the attempt is enough.—Properius.

A BIG HELP TO HEALTH!

See how you're helped by delicious oranges!

Hardly one family in two now gets enough vitamins and minerals to get and retain good health. So enjoy oranges liberally—daily! Just peel and eat them for healthful refreshment. Or keep ready a big pitcher of fresh orangeade.

An 8-ounce glass of fresh orange juice gives you all the vitamins C you normally need each day—and one-third of the vitamin B; it also supplies vitamins A and G, and the minerals calcium, phosphorus and iron.

Are Women Better Shoppers than Men?

GRANTING a woman's reputation for wise buying, let's trace the methods by which she has earned it. Where does she find out about the advantages and details of electrical refrigeration? What tells her how to keep the whole household clean—rugs, floors, bathroom tiles—and have energy left over for golf and parties? How does she learn about new and delicious entrees and desserts that surprise and delight her family? Where does she discover those subtlest of dresses and make-up that a man appreciates but never understands?

Why, she reads the advertisements. She is a conscientious, thoughtful reader of advertisements, because she has found that the can believe them—and profit thereby. Overlooking the advertisements would be depriving herself of one continuously useful in her job of Purchasing Agent to the Family.

For that matter, watch a wise man buy a car or a suit or an insurance policy. Not a bad shopper himself! He reads advertisements, too!

KNOW YOUR BANK

This Bank Is Eager To Make Loans

The money we have available to lend is our stock in trade and, like a progressive merchant, we are anxious to keep that stock in use. Sound loans are an important source of bank earnings, so we naturally welcome opportunities to make them. Unlike the merchant, however, the funds which we lend belong to our depositors and must be returned to them upon demand. Consequently, before making a loan we must make sure that this money will be safe during the life of the loan and that it will be paid back promptly when the loan matures. A loan helps the borrower, puts money to work, stimulates business and keeps men employed—all resulting in earnings and savings which help the community and help the bank. Your loan application will find a welcome here.

Old Custom
Some sweethearts in Rio de Janeiro follow the old custom that the man in the case must not enter his sweetheart's house until they are engaged. Up to that happy time they must conduct their courtship at a suitable distance from each other, usually talking over the garden hedge, he three feet from it, she one side, she three feet away on the other.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY ROGER SHAW

Allied Troops Leave Norway As Spotlight Turns on Italy; Germans Hold Vital Air Bases

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.
Released by Western Newspaper Union

THE LONGEST WAY AROUND was the shortest way home for British ships in Italian waters when England, fearing Italy was getting ready to enter the war on the side of Germany, ordered these vessels to head for home ports via the Suez canal and Cape of Good Hope. This route, indicated by the broken line on the above map, is a distance of 15,000 miles. Normal route, indicated by solid line, is only 2,000 miles.

WOTAN WINS:

In Norway

Following Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland, came poor Norway. Said one neutral statesman, nervously, "The kiss of England is the kiss of death." Frightened Swedish, Netherlands, and Balkan leaders were inclined to agree. Norse writers and generals denounced John Bull, while the English cabinet was tottering.

The Allied troops debarked from Andalsnes and Namsos, in the strategic Trondheim area, and sailed away, under a terrific hammering from the German bombers. Much of their equipment was abandoned, and the Norwegian troops, poorly armed and trained, as is natural in a small democracy with no imperialist intentions, did not make much of a stand in isolated sectors. The English expeditionaries in Norway had been out-shot, out-flown, and out-generated. Raw London militia, and half-trained regulars, had to face toughened German veterans of the 10-day Polish war, last fall.

The British marines, too, were not trained for landing operations, to be followed by a land war of maneuver. Good men all, their duties had been aboard ship, and as brass-buttoned garrisons in far-flung colonies. U. S. marines have had exactly the right training for a "Norse" operation, and would have given the Germans a far more telling battle, according to American army and navy men. This was a technical matter of opinion.

Anti-Italics

English and French battleships were concentrated in the faraway eastern Mediterranean, and the British merchant marine was ordered out of the blue Mediterranean waters. The English itinerary to India—the imperial lifeline—was rerouted around the African horn, the Cape of Good Hope, to escape Italian submarines, seaplanes, and seasleds. For Italy has the third best air force in Europe, and perhaps the world's best submarine flotilla. And Italian sealed torpedo-carriers are a tested-Roman specialty.

Roosevelt's ambassador to Rome, William Phillips, pleaded with Mussolini to keep out of the war, and Moscow accused Rome of blackmail (Finland is so easily forgotten). The Aegean sea loomed up as a possible location for Italo-Allied warfare, but some observers believed that the badgered French might cede Mussolini their African Tunis (just below Sicily), in order to keep the Iron Duke quiet. There are roughly an equal number of Italians and French living in the predominantly Arabic colony. "France must learn to give," remarked a worried U. S. official.

One minor school of thought held that the English battleships were moved to the eastern Mediterranean, to get them away from "doomed" Scapa Flow, and the pestiferous German flyers.

THAT '40 ELECTION:

Nomination Notes

Tom Dewey, dashing Wunderkind of Manhattan, appeared to talk himself into indigestion out west, and was laid up pro tem. He lost some Republican convention delegates, too. Massachusetts primary voters plumped for an unpledged decision, instead of for Tommy. In Florida, a stop-Dewey campaign began.

Elliott Roosevelt, described as "talkative," said his father might not run for a third term. The father of the son said nothing.

Boss Green of the A. F. of L. accused Boss Lewis of the C. I. O. of presidential aspirations on a third ticket. Third term versus third ticket?

New York's Mayor LaGuardia was rumored to be considering himself either as a Republican, or as a Democratic, vice president!

There was, too, a lot of talk about a Farley-Garner, or Garner-Farley, ticket, and a lot of wishful thinking about Roosevelt's being tired.

Rep. Tinkham

Meanwhile, third terms aside, the President's mother became ill from food poisoning on her way to the World's fair, and had to be treated in a local drugstore for two hours.

SEEING RED:

Protection

Clarence Hathaway, editor of New York's community "Daily Worker," was convicted of criminal libel after a trial of three weeks. He faced a maximum penalty of a year in the concentration camp, like his party chief, Earl Browder, who got into trouble over phony passports, and the America-Nazi chief, Fritz Kuhn, whose followers Uncle Sam "protected." Hathaway, 46 years old, is younger than Browder.

CALL THE G-MEN:

Kidnaping Notes

The president of the professionally peaceful Carnegie Institute, Sam Church, showed himself as the war's No. 1 belligerent. He announced that fifty reeking-rich Pittsburghers had offered a million dollar prize for the kidnaping of Adolf Hitler. Hitler must be alive, and he must be taken by the end of May. Pacific New Yorkers appeared to be astonished by Church's boner, and some Allied sympathizers counter-offered rewards for the kidnaping of Churchill or Chamberlain. Apparently, they thought Old England could get along better without the pair. This, however, was debatable. And while a few Americans talked glibly about kidnaping, like bad little boys and girls, another 7,200 Americans were killed in automobile accidents in the first three months of unpleasant 1940.

POTOMAC PICKINGS:

Laboritis

Not only is there a Dies committee. There is also a Smith committee, and its purpose is to investigate the heavily slammed-around National Labor Relations board. The so-called "Smithsonians" went to work with a will and discovered that the well-known Harry Bridges (from Australia)—much debated president of the International Longshoremen's union—ever, apparently, in hot water—had been in the genial habit of consulting with the labor board when he "took steps." It also turned out that certain labor board members helped the C. I. O. organize the steel industry back in 1936.

The Supreme court held that a group of seven "Little Steel" corporations had no standing in the courts. Justice Black wrote the decision, and Justice McReynolds—"that mean old man"—as usual dissented.

U. S. Commerce Chamber

Former Vice President Charlie Dawes (you remember his pipes) told the chamber that our next President would have to fight, not Germans, but a huge army of government spenders, wasters, and patronage-peddling politicians, to save America from chaos and ruination. The chamber adopted a program to keep the country out of war, and to arm it faster, on a pay-as-you-go basis. Twenty-two other points were also espoused by the nation-wide, business-minded gathering at its annual meeting.

U. S. Aviation

General Arnold, top-kick of the U. S. army air corps, said in a talk that our flyers had learned several tricks from the European mess. The general listed them: German-type leak-proof gas tanks are essential; military planes must be well armored, like tanks or armored cars; bigger machine guns must be used as anti-aircraft; bigger guns must be installed in aircraft; bombers, for defensive safety, must be equipped with guns in the tail; bombers must go farther at a hop; American Legionnaires listened to the general with rapt attention.

SMALLER FRY:

Yet Notable

The national assembly of the Fillpines slapped down an immigration quota of 500 per nationality, per year, despite howls of rage from the Japanese—who are perhaps, Trojan-horse-minded in the Philippines.

Maj.-Gen. Bernard Paget, redhead son of the late Bishop of Oxford, was especially praised by Prime Minister Chamberlain, for his skillful retreat from Norway. He got troops, wounded, and supplies away by sea, under the very nose of German aircraft. Prior to this feat, he was almost unknown. He has a crippled left arm, a souvenir of the First German war. He gets a No. 1 hero rating.

Giovanni Ansaldo, Italian news writer who is the mouthpiece of Count Ciano, Italian foreign minister, Mussolini's son-in-law, predicted that as a result of its Norse (and other) victories, Germany would successfully invade Great Britain. "1940 is not 1936," replied an English journalist, in haste.

Go west, young man, applies now to staid old Harvard! That university will erect, in the Rocky mountains of Colorado, the world's highest nest observatory, to study the sun, with exclusive equipment of ultra-scientific value.

France's Foreign Legion Aids British Troops

A detachment of the French Foreign Legion from North Africa pictured marching through the streets of Marseilles, France. Troops of the famous "legion of forgotten men" were reported thrown into action in Norway during the third week of the war to help bolster the British after their defeat at Stettkjer. Legion troops are reported to have been in France since the 150th anniversary of French independence on July 14.

Senate Chaplain Observes Double Anniversary

With German Troops in Copenhagen

Released by the German censor, this photo shows Danish seamen and German soldiers fraternizing after the invading Nazi troops entered the Danish capital. Little Denmark offered no opposition to the invaders as they established control of Copenhagen, capital city.

Where Raiders Downed Nazi Planes

Object of at least 24 air raid bombings during the first three weeks of war was the city of Stavanger, Norway. It was here that British air squadrons wrecked numerous Nazi fighting planes and killed many members of the German aircraft personnel in raids on the German-held airport.

Stands Aloof

The American Federation of Labor will not join any movement for either a third party or a Roosevelt third term, according to William Green, A. F. of L. president, in a Pittsburgh, Pa., speech.

'Wanted—A. Hitler'

A reward of $1,000,000 to anyone who will capture Adolf Hitler "alive and unharmed" has been offered by Samuel Haddam Church, above, president of Carnegie Institute, in behalf of a group of Pittsburgh residents.

NAMES

... in the news

Alfred Duff Cooper, formerly England's secretary of war, and also her secretary of the navy, called the German governmental leaders a gang of "money-making murderers." Duff Cooper's wife is the beautiful Lady Diana Manners, who starred in America in the "Miracle" long years back. Duff Cooper, himself, has been a special student of that shifty old French statesman, Talleyrand, whose biographer he is. Declared old Knut Hamsun, great Norwegian novelist and Nobel prize winner in 1920, "England is incapable of helping us, except with small socks here and there, roving about our valleys, and asking for food." In Newark, N. J., a man got a divorce. He said he had been compelled to move 27 times in six years. His name was Allan MacFee. He told the judge he never knew which bus to take home at night. "My wife was the moving man's friend," said he. Mrs. MacFee got the divorce, on grounds of desertion. Mr. MacFee did not contest.

It is but 30 minutes' flight by plane across the English Channel and the Nazis could bomb the principal cities of Britain, then go back and get more missiles of destruction, thereby forming an endless chain of terror.

SINGIN' SAM

Is heard over Radio KOB dur-excellent bass voice, which he makes a person thirsty to hear him. P. S. — Geo. Harkness is

HOW OLD IS THE MALPAIS?

How old is the Carrizozo lava flow? asks H. S. Hunter of the El Paso Times. This flow is 45 miles long and 9 miles wide. The volcanic eruption must have occurred 5000 years ago. This would place it before the time of the earliest men in New Mexico," according to an authority.
