Each day's use of the pump without a gasoline meter attached as herein provided, shall constitute a separate offense.

Section 5. That all such tax so collected shall be covered into the treasury of the Village of Carrizozo to be used as the Trustees shall hereinafter deem necessary and proper.

If attorneys are employed to collect such delinquent tax, 10 per centum of the tax, penalty and interest shall be added thereto as part of the costs of collection.

Section 7. Any distributor or retail dealer who shall fail to make reports and remittances as required by this Ordinance or who shall knowingly sell or distribute any gasoline or motor fuel, as provided in this Ordinance, without paying the tax thereon due to the Village of Carrizozo, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than one thousand dollars for each offense.

Sec. 8. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Letter To Dr. Blaney

Acknowledgment is made of your letter with regard to Highway 54. I have investigated the matter and am assured by the Highway Dept. that it is their intention to put '54' on the primary system in the near future. This road is, as you say, a very vital highway in connection with possible troop movements, etc.

I have urged that action be taken in this connection at the earliest possible time and have been assured that it will be.

In connection with the airport facilities to be considered as a part of the national defense set-up, I am asking that New Mexico be considered favorably, both from the standpoint of training facilities and as strategic positions with regard to the border.

You may be sure I will not overlook any opportunity to do everything I can in that regard.

Most sincerely yours,
John J. Dempsey.

EZEKIEL TEACHES PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY

LESSON TEXT—Ezekiel 33:7-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God.—Romans 14:12.

Personal responsibility is a subject well worthy of careful and repeated consideration. We talk so much about social, national or racial responsibility that we are prone to forget that the social order, nations and races, are made up of individuals. The Bible, while recognizing the relationship and responsibilities of nations and social groups to God, rightly stresses individual responsibility. It is man who is made in the likeness and image of God. He is the one who has fallen into sin, and he needs the regenerating grace of God in the Lord Jesus Christ. It is man who stands responsible to God, both as an individual and as God's representative in carrying His message to others.

I. Man's Responsibility for the Lives of Others (vv. 7-11).

Ezekiel had the official responsibility of a watchman sent by God to his own people in their captivity in Babylon. His was a special calling, and yet it is not true that, according to the teaching of the New Testament, every Christian is called to be a witness, a winner of souls, and a watchman?

1. The Watchman's Commission (v. 7). His appointment is by God, and the warning words he is to speak are given to him by God. Every true preacher and teacher of the gospel should be a God-called man, presenting the Word of God. Otherwise, his ministry will have little meaning and no real power. The same is true of every Christian; a personal touch with God must precede his efforts to win others to God.

2. The Watchman's Responsibility (vv. 8, 9). Being a watchman is not a duty that one bears lightly, for it has grave responsibilities. Lives are dependent on the vigilance and faithfulness of the watchman. Even those who watch over worldly goods or who guard the safety and comfort of others are held by us to a high measure of responsibility and are liable for misfeasance or carelessness in office. What about those of us to whom the destiny of eternal souls has been committed? Read the solemn words of verses 8 and 9.

3. The Watchman's Message (vv. 10, 11). The Jews who were in captivity because of their sin and failure were despondent. They saw no ray of hope; they were under the overwhelming burden of their sin. The message of God's watchman was one of hope to the repentant people. God is gracious toward the sinner and has no pleasure in punishing him. "Why will ye die?" places the responsibility squarely where it belongs—on the sinner himself.

II. Man's Responsibility for His Own Life (vv. 12-16).

Whatever may be our responsibility for the lives of others, certain it is that we must each one answer to God for our own lives. Ours is the glorious opportunity of living our life—and ours is the responsibility for it.

1. Consistent Living Required (v. 12). This verse evidently does not mean that a righteous man overtaken in a moment of defeat is lost. It rather refers to the one who has made an outward show of being righteous. Confident of himself, he has then fallen into careless living, and all at once his true character is revealed in outright wickedness. That man cannot then draw on his past record as though it were a bank account to be used to justify him in his hour of failure. Righteousness is a matter of the heart. It is a spiritual rebirth, expressing itself in changed conduct and consistent living, not only yesterday and today, but also tomorrow.

2. Real Repentance Accepted (vv. 13-16). God was ready in Ezekiel's day to accept the genuinely repentant man and woman. Infinitely more precious and warm is the welcome that Christ now gives to sinners who turn to Him, for He, our blessed Lord, has now worked out the way of salvation on Calvary's tree.

'Is Not 'Fes'
Am I to thank God for everything? Am I to thank Him for bereavement, for pain, for poverty, for toil? . . . Be still my soul; thou hast misread the message. It is not to give thanks for everything, but to give thanks in everything.—Dr. G. Matheson.

They Shall Return to the Lord
And the Lord shall smite Egypt; he shall smite and heal it; and they shall return even to the Lord, and he shall be entreated of them, and shall heal them.—Isaiah 19:22.

Selfishness
What makes selfishness such a deadly sin is that it is such a self-deceiving one.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

A CERTAIN Miss Fixit, and that was not really her name, inherited a house full of furniture that was not old enough to be either quaint or antique. One day she sent for my little Book No. 4, and there she found a sketch showing how to plot a room color plan based on a rug, or a picture, or a piece of drapery material with good coloring. Miss Fixit had a picture that she had always loved because of its beautiful colors. Just for fun, as a sort of game, she made a room color plot based on that picture. Then she suddenly realized that, after all, color is very cheap—anyone can have all they want of it for very little money.

That was really a turning point in the life of Miss Fixit. This old rocker that she made over is merely a sample of what may happen when a clever young lady is bent upon bringing color into her life. The chair has been painted a pale turquoise blue, and the seat cushion and back are covered with an inexpensive chintz in turquoise, cherry red, primrose yellow and deep green, with red bias bindings.

I wish every reader interested in choosing colors for her home might have a copy of my Book 4. It contains an illustrated rule for making a room color plan, based on the colors in a picture; a rug; a vase; or a piece of drapery material with lovely colorings. The rule is so clear and easily understood that I am sure every reader of these weekly articles would be delighted to have a copy. To get your copy, send 10 cents in coin and ask for Book 4. By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

SPURRED on by what William T. Kerr, founder and, since 1898, national president of the American Flag Day association, calls "the affront of all the forces of un-Americanism, those groups who support Athelism, Communism, Bolshevism, Nazism, Fascism and other foreign isms," the association is urging every community in the United States to celebrate Flag Week this year with patriotic programs and is suggesting a new Flag Week feature—the observance of a Citizenship Recognition Day.

The plan for this observance is as follows: On the Saturday preceding Flag Day, that is, on June 8, each community will hold a patriotic parade with the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Boy Scouts and all patriotic, fraternal, civic and service organizations participating. After the parade there will be a meeting at which will be assembled all the young men and women who have become or will become of voting age this year and all adults who in 1940, prior to or on June 8, have become American citizens through naturalization.

During the program, or at its conclusion, every one present will repeat the pledge taken by the new citizens or "The Pledge to the flag" used in the public schools—"I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all." In this public recognition no distinction is to be made between the youth born on American soil and those who will become citizens by naturalization of themselves or their parents. The spirit of the occasion will be "We are all Americans."

The recognition of naturalized new citizens is not a new thing, since federal judges in various communities, notably in the East, have done it with small groups in their courts at the time the former aliens became American citizens. But a general community assembly of newly made, foreign-born citizens and the youth of voting age, particularly associating it with Flag Day, is an innovation. In presenting this plan for a Citizenship Recognition Day, the president of the American Flag Day association points out that no other time seems so appropriate as during the celebration of Flag Week with its climax of the nation-wide observance of Flag Day.

"Native Americans who become of voting age are accustomed to taking their voting privilege as a simple matter of course, a kind of inheritance," says Mr. Kerr. "They do not seem to realize that they have, perhaps through no particular merit of their own, received the highest American privilege, making them the political equal of the most favored person in the land. Holding a Citizenship Recognition Day offers an opportunity for emphasizing their responsibilities as citizens which so many of us overlook."

A Greater Significance.
In view of the present situation in Europe—the extinguishment of human liberties and the oppression of smaller nations by the armed might of totalitarian governments—citizenship in a nation "with liberty and justice for all" should mean more than ever before. For this reason the celebration of Flag Week this year has an even greater significance than in years past and 1940 seems an appropriate time for inaugurating an observance of Citizenship Recognition Day as an integral part of it.

If, as has been suggested, it is observed on Saturday, June 8, it will be the opening event in the celebration of Flag Week along with the patriotic-religious services in synagogues on that day, to be followed by similar services in churches on Sunday, June 9. Chief among the latter is the annual service held at one of the principal Revolutionary war shrines—the chapel at Valley Forge in Pennsylvania. Many Sunday schools will also hold loyalty Flag Week programs in connection with the observance of Children's Day on June 9.

The American Flag Day association, the proponent of a nationwide Citizenship Recognition Day, is the pioneer organization formed to popularize the observance of the birthday anniversary of our flag. It was founded in Pittsburgh in the midst of the Spanish-American war and Mr. Kerr was elected its president, an office he has held ever since. An employee of the freight traffic department of the Pennsylvania railroad, he has devoted all of his spare time to promoting the observance of Flag Day and to having it designated as a national holiday.

When Mr. Kerr was a young boy, a railroad engineer told him the story of Betsy Ross and the early history of our flag. Inspired by this and aided by his mother and his father, a veteran of the Union army in the Civil war, he began making plans for a movement to recognize officially the birthday of the flag on a nationwide scale. The eventual result was the organization in 1898 of the American Flag Day association, a non-partisan, non-sectarian, non-racial, non-profit association, devoted solely to the patriotic work of honoring the Stars and Stripes on its birthday.

A Legal Holiday?
Since that time it has worked persistently to popularize the custom of displaying the flag on June 14 and to have Flag Day made a legal holiday. Some resistance has been encountered, according to Mr. Kerr, because some business men think that we have too many holidays in this country. They point out that June 14 lies between Memorial Day on May 30 and Independence Day on July 4 so that two legal holidays within a little more than a month should be sufficient.

However, Mr. Kerr and his associates believe that the observance of the birthday of our flag is justified by its historic significance—the formal adoption of the Stars and Stripes as the emblem of the new nation on June 14, 1777. "We are learning a new understanding and new appreciation of the flag," says Mr. Kerr. "We are not looking upon it as a waving banner that leads us into battle, nor an emblem of war, but more as a symbol of achievement, progress, helpfulness and friendship. In the light of events in recent years the waving of our flag has come to signify the glories of peace and the joys of friendship rather than the accomplishment of war."

As the result of the efforts of this association, in 1938 Flag Day was made a legal holiday in Pennsylvania, the state which, because of the action of the Continental congress 163 years ago, can be regarded as the "birthplace of Old Glory." Massachusetts and Connecticut have statutes requiring their governors to issue Flag Day proclamations but these two and Pennsylvania are the only commonwealths which officially recognize Flag Day.

The national observance of the day—though not as a legal holiday—is due to President Woodrow Wilson who on May 13, 1916, issued a proclamation designating June 14 of each year as Flag Day. It has been so observed since that time. Although various persons have, from time to time, been designated as the "originator" of Flag Day, it is doubtful if that title can justly be awarded to any individual, since several Americans have contributed to the idea. Undoubtedly the work of Mr. Kerr, since the founding of the American Flag Day association in 1898, greatly stimulated popular interest in the celebration and he, therefore, has a claim to some share in the title.

Where Statues Wore Hats! Mystery of Easter Island

Science Finds Creators of Intricate Script Were 'Long-Eared' Artists.

ON EASTER DAY, 1722, the Dutch Admiral Roggeveen landed on a small Pacific island, which he named after the day. And the whole island was literally covered with statues! They still stand there today.

Later visitors made further odd discoveries. It seemed that the inhabitants had suffered a devouring national passion for sculpture. Hardly a boulder or an outcrop of rock had not been turned into an enormous bust, a fantastic head

Then science took a hand. First of all, local legends were investigated, and the islanders told of a migration in the past from a distant island in the west. Proof came from one of the Gambier islands, over a thousand miles away, in the form of another legend. It told of a defeated chief setting sail to find a new home for his people. Local legend also told of two distinct races inhabiting Easter Island, the "long ears" and the "short ears." And here again, science found the proof; for skulls found on Easter Island show

LESSON TEXT—Ezekiel 33:7-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—So then every one of us shall give account of himself to God.—Romans 14:12.

Personal responsibility is a subject well worthy of careful and repeated consideration. We talk so much about social, national or racial responsibility that we are prone to forget that the social order, nations and races, are made up of individuals. The Bible, while recognizing the relationship and responsibilities of nations and social groups to God, rightly stresses individual responsibility. It is man who is made in the likeness and image of God. He is the one who has fallen into sin, and he needs the regenerating grace of God in the Lord Jesus Christ. It is man who stands responsible to God, both as an individual and as God's representative in carrying His message to others.

I. Man's Responsibility for the Lives of Others (vv. 7-11).

Ezekiel had the official responsibility of a watchman sent by God to his own people in their captivity in Babylon. His was a special calling, and yet is it not true that, according to the teaching of the New Testament, every Christian is called to be a witness, a winner of souls, and a watchman?

1. The Watchman's Commission (v. 7). His appointment is by God, and the warning words he is to speak are given to him by God. Every true preacher and teacher of the gospel should be a God-called man, presenting the Word of God. Otherwise, his ministry will have little meaning and no real power. The same is true of every Christian; a personal touch with God must precede his efforts to win others to God.

2. The Watchman's Responsibility (vv. 8, 9). Being a watchman is not a duty that one bears lightly, for it has grave responsibilities. Lives are dependent on the vigilance and faithfulness of the watchman. Even those who watch over worldly goods or who guard the safety and comfort of others are held by us to a high measure of responsibility and are liable for misfeasance or carelessness in office. What about those of us to whom the destiny of eternal souls has been committed? Read the solemn words of verses 8 and 9.

3. The Watchman's Message (vv. 10, 11). The Jews who were in captivity because of their sin and failure were despondent. They saw no ray of hope; they were under the overwhelming burden of their sin. The message of God's watchman was one of hope to the repentant people. God is gracious toward the sinner and has no pleasure in punishing him. "Why will ye die?" places the responsibility squarely where it belongs—on the sinner himself.

II. Man's Responsibility for His Own Life (vv. 12-16).

Whatever may be our responsibility for the lives of others, certain it is that we must each one answer to God for our own lives. Ours is the glorious opportunity of living our life—and ours is the responsibility for it.

1. Consistent Living Required (v. 12). This verse evidently does not mean that a righteous man overtaken in a moment of defeat is lost. It rather refers to the one who has made an outward show of being righteous. Confident of himself, he has then fallen into careless living, and all at once his true character is revealed in outright wickedness. That man cannot then draw on his past record as though it were a bank account to be used to justify him in his hour of failure. Righteousness is a matter of the heart. It is a spiritual rebirth, expressing itself in changed conduct and consistent living, not only yesterday and today, but also tomorrow.

2. Real Repentance Accepted (vv. 13-16). God was ready in Ezekiel's day to accept the genuinely repentant man and woman. Infinitely more precious and warm is the welcome that Christ now gives to sinners who turn to Him, for He, our blessed Lord, has now worked out the way of salvation on Calvary's tree.

'Is Not For'

Am I to thank God for everything? Am I to thank Him for bereavement, for pain, for poverty, for toil? . . . Be still my soul; thou hast misread the message. It is not to give thanks for everything, but to give thanks in everything.—Dr. G. Matheson.

They Shall Return to the Lord And the Lord shall smite Egypt; he shall smite and heal it; and they shall return even to the Lord, and he shall be entreated of them, and shall heal them.—Isaiah 19:22.

Selfishness

What makes selfishness such a deadly sin is that it is such a self-deceiving one.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

A CERTAIN Miss Fixit, and that was not really her name, inherited a house full of furniture that was not old enough to be either quaint or antique. One day she sent for my little Book No. 4, and there she found a sketch showing how to plot a room color plan based on a rug, or a picture, or a piece of drapery material with good coloring. Miss Fixit had a picture that she had always loved because of its beautiful colors. Just for fun, as a sort of game, she made a room color plot based on that picture. Then she suddenly realized that, after all, color is very cheap—anyone can have all they want of it for very little money.

That was really a turning point in the life of Miss Fixit. This old rocker that she made over is merely a sample of what may happen when a clever young lady is bent upon bringing color into her life. The chair has been painted a pale turquoise blue, and the seat cushion and back are covered with an inexpensive chintz in turquoise; cherry red; primrose yellow and deep green, with red bias bindings.

I wish every reader interested in choosing colors for her home might have a copy of my Book 4. It contains an illustrated rule for making a room color plan, based on the colors in a picture; a rug; a vase; or a piece of drapery material with lovely colorings. The rule is so clear and easily understood that I am sure every reader of these weekly articles would be delighted to have a copy. To get your copy, send 10 cents in coin and ask for Book 4. By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

SPURRED on by what William T. Kerr, founder and, since 1898, national president of the American Flag Day association, calls "the affrontery of all the forces of un-Americanism, those groups who support Atheism, Communism, Bolshevism, Nazism, Fascism and other foreign isms," the association is urging every community in the United States to celebrate Flag Week this year with patriotic programs and is suggesting a new Flag Week feature—the observance of a Citizenship Recognition Day.

The plan for this observance is as follows: On the Saturday preceding Flag Day, that is, on June 8, each community will hold a patriotic parade with the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Boy Scouts and all patriotic, fraternal, civic and service organizations participating. After the parade there will be a meeting at which will be assembled all the young men and women who have become or will become of voting age this year and all adults who in 1940, prior to or on June 8, have become American citizens through naturalization.

During the program, or at its conclusion, every one present will repeat the pledge taken by the new citizens or "The Pledge to the flag" used in the public schools—"I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all." In this public recognition no distinction is to be made between the youth born on American soil and those who will become citizens by naturalization of themselves or their parents. The spirit of the occasion will be "We are all Americans."

The recognition of naturalized new citizens is not a new thing, since federal judges in various communities, notably in the East, have done it with small groups in their courts at the time the former aliens became American citizens. But a general community assembly of newly made, foreign-born citizens and the youth of voting age, particularly associating it with Flag Day, is an innovation. In presenting this plan for a Citizenship Recognition Day, the president of the American Flag Day association points out that no other time seems so appropriate as during the celebration of Flag Week with its climax of the nation-wide observance of Flag Day.

"Native Americans who become of voting age are accustomed to taking their voting privilege as a simple matter of course, a kind of inheritance," says Mr. Kerr. "They do not seem to realize that they have,

perhaps through no particular merit of their own, received the highest American privilege, making them the political equal of the most favored person in the land. Holding a Citizenship Recognition Day offers an opportunity for emphasizing their responsibilities as citizens which so many of us overlook."

A Greater Significance.
In view of the present situation in Europe—the extinguishment of human liberties and the oppression of smaller nations by the armed might of totalitarian governments—citizenship in a nation "with liberty and justice for all" should mean more than ever before. For this reason the celebration of Flag Week this year has an even greater significance than in years past and 1940 seems an appropriate time for inaugurating an observance of Citizenship Recognition Day as an integral part of it.

If, as has been suggested, it is observed on Saturday, June 8, it will be the opening event in the celebration of Flag Week along with the patriotic-religious services in synagogues on that day, to be followed by similar services in churches on Sunday, June 9. Chief among the latter is the annual service held at one of the principal Revolutionary war shrines—the chapel at Valley Forge in Pennsylvania. Many Sunday schools will also hold loyalty Flag Week programs in connection with the observance of Children's Day on June 9.

The American Flag Day association, the proponent of a nationwide Citizenship Recognition Day, is the pioneer organization formed to popularize the observance of the birthday anniversary of our flag. It was founded in Pittsburgh in the midst of the Spanish-American war and Mr. Kerr was elected its president, an office he has held ever since. An employee of the freight traffic department of the Pennsylvania railroad, he has devoted all of his spare time to promoting the observance of Flag Day and to having it designated as a national holiday.

When Mr. Kerr was a young boy, a railroad engineer told him the story of Betsy Ross and the early history of our flag. Inspired by this and aided by his mother and his father, a veteran of the Union army in the Civil war, he began making plans for a movement to recognize officially the birthday of the flag on a nationwide scale. The eventual result was the organization in 1898 of the American Flag Day association, a non-partisan, non-sectarian, non-racial, non-profit association, devoted solely to the patriotic work of honoring the Stars and Stripes on its birthday.

A Legal Holiday?
Since that time it has worked persistently to popularize the custom of displaying the flag on June 14 and to have Flag Day made a legal holiday. Some resistance has been encountered, according to Mr. Kerr, because some business men think that we have too many holidays in this country. They point out that June 14 lies between Memorial Day on May 30 and Independence Day on July 4 so that two legal holidays within a little more than a month should be sufficient.

However, Mr. Kerr and his associates believe that the observance of the birthday of our flag is justified by its historic significance—the formal adoption of the Stars and Stripes as the emblem of the new nation on June 14, 1777. "We are learning a new understanding and new appreciation of the flag," says Mr. Kerr. "We are not looking upon it as a waving banner that leads us into battle, nor an emblem of war, but more as a symbol of achievement, progress, helpfulness and friendship. In the light of events in recent years the waving of our flag has come to signify the glories of peace and the joys of friendship rather than the accomplishment of war."

As the result of the efforts of this association, in 1938 Flag Day was made a legal holiday in Pennsylvania, the state which, because of the action of the Continental congress 163 years ago, can be regarded as the "birthplace of Old Glory." Massachusetts and Connecticut have statutes requiring their governors to issue Flag Day proclamations but these two and Pennsylvania are the only commonwealths which officially recognize Flag Day.

It has been so observed since that time. Although various persons have, from time to time, been designated as the "originator" of Flag Day, it is doubtful if that title can justly be awarded to any individual, since several Americans have contributed to the idea. Undoubtedly the work of Mr. Kerr, since the founding of the American Flag Day association in 1898, greatly stimulated popular interest in the celebration and he, therefore, has a claim to some share in the title.

In Old Lincoln

A representative group of citizens met in the Penfield Store in Lincoln and made final plans for a "Three Days in Old Lincoln" celebration, June 20-22, featuring a "Billy the Kid" drama on the opening night, as their part in the Coronado Quarts Centennial. Other events include: Bronco riding, cattle branding, adobe making, Spanish dancing, serving of Spanish foods in the local homes, a cowboy orchestra from Ft. Sumner, Spanish street musicians, street shows, Spanish "habe" chuck wagon parties, and in all seriousness and with every authentic detail in ceremony, a Mexican wedding. Luminaries are to be used in the scheme of decorations for the village.

KNOW YOUR BANK

The Logic of Service Charges

A bank has two commodities to sell—credit and services—and compensation for these is essential if the bank is to operate soundly. Every service rendered costs the bank money. These are direct expenses such as the cost of the actual time spent in handling checks—examining them to guard against forgery and alteration, sending those deposited to other banks for collection, bookkeeping entries, filing, postage, stationery, forms and records. There are indirect costs such as rent, light, heat, depreciation, salaries, insurance, taxes. If a depositor's loanable balance is not large enough to produce sufficient earnings to offset the costs of services rendered, then a charge is necessary. This, you will agree, is simply sound business practice.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY ROGER SHAW

Surrender by Belgium Marks New Phase in the World War; Germans Hold Channel Ports

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

A strange refugee problem has arisen in Paris, France, because of the current war. While thousands of Parisians have fled to outlying sectors to avoid possible bombing raids by the Germans, still other thousands of refugees have been pouring into the city from all over France, Holland and Belgium. Just as in the World War of 1914-18, the French government is providing food and shelter for these people. In the above photo, a family of Belgians, saddened, is being fed in a Paris center.

THE WAR:

Belgian Surrender

Probably one of the most epochal days in history occurred when King Leopold of Belgium ordered his troops to lay down arms and surrender. How long would France and Britain continue to wage war, was the question immediately raised. The whole war's outcome was thus thrown into the balance.

The mechanized, motorized, and air-geared German army continued its channel sweep in a wheeling semi-circle, which began at Cambrai and Bapaume, and took in Abbeville, at the channel mouth of the Somme river, and then coastal Boulogne and Calais. Calais is exactly across from English Dover, and only 20 miles distant. Boulogne was Napoleon's headquarters when he tried to invade England in 1805.

German flyers came more and more to dominate the channel, making the work of English troop transports exceedingly difficult. For reinforcements from England, or retreaters to England, were bombed mercilessly from the air, as at least half a million allied troops appeared caught in a horrible steel trap of Nazi manufacture. At the other end of the channel drive, the Germans were in Antwerp, leaving the allies only the channel ports of Dunkirk (French) and Ostend (Belgian). Paris, pro tem, had been left "neglected"—for the Germans were said to be considering a separate peace with France, a peace some Frenchmen were reported as not unwilling to accept.

V COLUMN:

In England

While Sir Anthony Eden's anti-parachute "sharps" had increased to half a million game-keepers, unemployed, flaming youths, and Colonel Blimps, Scotland Yard cracked down on the so-called English Fifth Column. Sir Oswald Mosley, World War flyer at 18 and son-in-law of the late foreign minister, Lord Curzon, had headed the British fascist organization, and opposed the II German war. Five Yard detectives took him in. The Yard also grabbed off Archibald Ramsay, Eton Conservative and aristocratic member of parliament, and John Beckett, a former M. P. who loves a roughhouse.

Parliament passed a tough Treachery Bill, but the Irish Republican army merely smiled. This dangerous secret society has been actively anti-British, and definitely fifth-columnar. The I. R. A. made England feel that Ireland might be a base for German invasion of the British midland, even though Ireland's Premier De Valera vigorously opposes the "bomber-boys." Also, it was expected that the new English dictatorship would launch out against the English communists. British Labor appeared especially enthusiastic over Churchill's mailed fist in a kid glove. Nevertheless, Churchill's niece and Mosley's present wife are sisters. A third sister is Hitler's English girl-friend, Valkyrie.

FORODDS & FORENDS:

The British government kicked the women and children out of Gibraltar, that "firm" imperialist rock at the western gate of the Mediterranean. The liner President Roosevelt got off for Ireland, to pick up stranded American refugees from England. The state department warned the belligerent powers to let it alone. The state liner President Harding, sold to Belgium, had recently been bombed to the bottom by German flyers.

U. S. DEFENSE:

Billions

The critics went to work on Roosevelt's plan for 50,000 airplanes, and an extra appropriation of a billion dollars. How much would 50,000 airplanes really cost? And how many men would it take to staff them, and operate them? The experts began to figure.

They discovered that at the price England and France pay for aircraft, 50,000 planes would cost at least six billions. The American aviation professionals backed up this astonishing sum. Then our air chief put it at seven billions. But this was not all. It takes thirty men per plane, to keep it properly conditioned and piloted. Hence, it would take 1,500,000 men to run our 50,000-plane aerial armada.

These, plus the force of 750,000 regulars now talked about, would make for an army of over 2,000,000 men, mostly air force. And there came the rub—for an army of 2,250,000 (minimum) would mean nothing less than universal, costly conscription. But, asked the critics, didn't Roosevelt know that a mere billion dollars would buy and equip comparatively few airplanes?

Meanwhile, America's three best practical military critics, Lindbergh, Rickenbacker (our No. 1 ace), and General Smedley Butler of the marines, expressed the belief that the United States was quite safe, and endeavored to allay current hysteria, most evident in the U. S. on the eastern seaboard.

PUTTERINGS:

On Potomac

The senate appropriated nearly two billions for the war department, by 74-0. Also, it appropriated nearly a billion and a half for the navy department, by 78 to 0. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau talked with a hundred representatives of the country's aviation plants, but it didn't seem to amount to much. The navy department then clapped on a 45-hour week in its naval yards, and hired 15,000 additional civilian workers.

Chairman Dies, of the Dies committee, shuddered over the fifth column work in the United States. Dies primarily assailed Russia and the communists, whom apparently he still dislikes more than Germany. Roosevelt is inclined to prefer Russia, but for once he said something nice about Dies & Co. Roosevelt had asked congress to approve the transfer of the immigration-naturalization service, from the labor department to the department of justice, in order to "deal" with fifth-columnar extremists.

Roosevelt said that a coalition Republic-Demo-cabinet was simply "cock-eyed." But he had talked to Landon and Knox, last-time Republican candidates, and Landon asked him to give up third-termite aspirations—which, carpers said, led to a Roosevelt-Republican deadlock and the "cock-eyed" verdict. Weather prophets predicted an unusually dirty presidential campaign for 1940, and some people accused Roosevelt of exploiting the European war to promote third-termite.

RELIGION:

The Lutherans

America's third biggest Protestant denomination is that of Martin Luther, with well over 4,000,000 adherents. But more than 90 per cent of the world's Lutherans are now under Nazi rule. It was divulged. This includes Germany proper and Germany "improper." Germany "improper" takes in the Lutherans of Norway, Denmark, Moravia and Poland. Holland is Calvinist, Belgium is Catholic.

By VIRGINIA VALE

WHEN Count Theo Rossi, the speedboat champion and "vermouth king," took a flying trip over South America with his bosom friend, Tyrone Power (before Annabella became Mrs. Power), they were hailed everywhere as "the world's two most eligible bachelors." The count, still a bachelor, made quite a dent in the Hearts of the Hollywood girls last summer, but, like J. Edgar Hoover, he preferred Shirley Temple.

More recently he has left his mark on the movie colony by designing some square glasses. Almost the first person to get some was Dolores Del Rio; Hedy Lamarr, Joan Bennett, Rudy Vallee, and Peggy Moran followed suit, as did a number of the smart restaurateurs.

And now Perc Westmore, Hollywood's ace make-up expert, claims that those square corners fit into a girl's mouth more naturally than does the edge of a round glass; he declares also that, as they create less pressure on the lower lip, they help to preserve the natural form of the lips.

Hollywood's smuggest girls are Ann Dvorak, Helen Mack and Lola Lane, who are featured in Columbia's "Girls of the Road." The script calls for them to work in mud and muck throughout the film, wearing soiled clothes and even dirtier faces. Mary Booth, great-granddaughter of Edwin Booth, makes her movie debut in the same picture.

Ann Dvorak

Recently at a baseball game a bewildered six-year-old boy in military uniform found himself so besieged by autograph seekers that he missed an entire inning of the game. He was Gary Crosby, eldest son of Bing, attending the game with his grandfather, and he'd like to choke the fellow who recognized him and pointed him out to the crowd.

The announcement that major radio networks are planning to use name stars from stage, screen and radio during the annual summer slump has created a wave of mental depression among Grade B performers, who had banked on filling in as summer replacements.

Kathleen Burke, the famous "Panther Woman" of the movies some years ago, is now playing the part of "Rebekah" in "Light of the World," the daytime radio show based on the Bible. Miss Burke has been absent from the screen for the past four years, during which time she married a Spanish dancer, Jose Fernandez and had a daughter.

A source of delight to the production men and engineers who handle Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt's Tuesday and Thursday NBC informal talks is the absolute ease with which she goes through her routine. A seasoned veteran of the air, the First Lady knows all the hand signals for speeding up and slowing down her speech, and is proving exceptionally easy to work with. Finishes right on the nose, too.

Eleanor Roosevelt

Mary Martin came home exhausted the other day, for a scene in "Rhythm on the River" she'd been working in front of the cameras in a heavy beaver coat and the temperature under the lights was 77! Arrived at home, she was confronted by the immediate need for buying a house for her mother, Mrs. Martin being one of the few people in this country who doesn't want to be alone in a house in which Greta Garbo used to be alone, and like it.

The lovely Mary took the house for herself and her mother before she married Richard Halliday. After her marriage she moved out, and her mother and the servants rattled around in the mansion. She has a six-room bungalow now, and likes it much better.

On a recent "Vox Pop" program Parks Johnson was doublecrossed in his efforts to lead into a natural ad lib commercial. Parks asked one of the men he was interviewing "What do you do after a fast run up the stairs?" The answer he expected was "I puff," whereupon Parks was all set to hand him a complimentary tin of his sponsor's tobacco and then launch into a recital of its merits. But the man stopped him. "Oh," said he, "I always wonder why I did such a foolish thing!"

THE breaks in baseball can have two sides, just about the same as a plank. They can be good—and they can be much worse. It isn't all a matter of milk and honey.

There is the somewhat melancholy case of my old-golf-bridge and fishing partner known as Dizzy Dean. Diz was as goofy as a coot in many ways, especially when it came to popping off, but he was a great pitcher and a grand fellow with whom to fish or play golf, which is no bad task. And he brought more color to the game through a comparatively brief span than anyone since Babe Ruth.

Grantland Rice

Thinking of his recent somersaults in the box I turned back to his better days. From 1933 through 1934, a matter of four major league years, Old Diz won 182 ball games, an average better than 25 a year through four consecutive seasons. That was far away and long ago for Old Diz.

The Glory That Was Dean's

In 1935 he was only 25 years old, six feet three inches in height, and weighed 169 pounds. With that free, easy motion of his, an almost perfect pitching motion, Dean apparently had at least 10 good years left. He couldn't miss. In addition to blazing speed, a sharp-breaking curve, and a change of pace, Diz had a cool, smart pitching head and his full share of heart.

He had about everything a great pitcher needs. He couldn't miss. Then the tragedy of 1937 came along when he first picked up an injured toe. A short while later, lacking his full follow through, he blew a fuse in his pitching shoulder. Uncle Charlie Moran was sampling the game that day when Diz developed the kink that has been called many names, from bursts on down through the list of ailments and ills.

Bought by Chicago, Old Diz won only seven games in 1938 and only six games in 1939, pitching almost exclusively with the old bean. His fast ball couldn't break the cuticle of a custard pie. The wonder is that he could win any games at all.

From the Cotton Fields

Being naturally lazy, Diz then began to put on weight and this was no great help. He moved from 189 to 220 in two years. Diz came up the hard way—maybe too hard a way. He told me once that he and Paul and his father, after picking cotton from "sun to sun"—sunup to sundown—had only a can or two of sardines and crackers for their daily and only meal.

The odd part is that Paul Dean collapsed about the same time as Diz. They came up together, an inseparable pair, and they blew the helms together. There was an unusual family hookup between these two brothers that carried along through big years and bad years.

I've been with both when Dizzy argued that Paul had more "stuff" than I ever had. "And Paul would come back, 'I never was in Dizzy's class.'" Dizzy never minded being called Dizzy—but Paul, a quiet, shy, retiring fellow, never liked to be known as Daffy. That was a nickname Paul resented bitterly.

The average fan likes Dizzy Dean. The average fan likes color. Dizzy gave him a whirl of excitement and fun for several years.

I've been asked many hundreds of times whether or not Dizzy had anything left, how much he had saved.

What Will Happen?

I don't know. His wife, Pat Dean, has been smart enough. But Dizzy was never any too careful with his money. I've seen Babe Ruth take him for $100 a day on the golf course, giving Dizzy all the hand-cupped Old Diz asked for. I know others have taken him for much more. Dizzy has much more confidence in his golf swing than the Dean swing ever justified.

In fact, his golf game depended far more on cool nerve and vast determination than it ever depended on a bad swing, which started from a flat-footed stance and usually ended in a terrific slide. But he could pitch, chip and putt. And he never quit or gave up hope.

Dizzy, the four-year headliner, now has a nice home and a small farm outside of Dallas. Unless some form of miracle takes place his main pitching days seem to be over. Three years is a long time to rest an arm that shows no signs of coming back. Once in a while the kink disappears, as it did in the case of Lefty Grove. No one can make me believe that Dizzy isn't giving all he has at every start, for I never saw a competitor who drew a bigger thrill out of winning—and who was quite as low after a defeat.

Speaking of Sports

Yankees Face Tall Hurdle in Pennant Race

By ROBERT McSHANE (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THE most frequently asked question in sports today—"What's happened to the New York Yankees?"—is one of the hardest to answer. It's difficult to realize that the once-proud Yanks, quoted as 7-20 favorites by betting authorities when the season opened, now are not even money against the field. Those 3 to 1 odds, the shortest price in all baseball history, are now a thing of the past. The big change came when the Yankees dropped to the American league's tall end position by losing eight games in a row.

Bill Dickey

No experts, self-styled or real, are saying, "I told you so." And for a good reason. Most of them were on the Yankee bandwagon—it was only natural. The few who picked other clubs to assume command at least placed the Yanks in a near-top position.

Now comes word that Manager Joe McCarthy has called on the American league, in the best interests of baseball and the circuit, to kill the new rule which prevents the Yankees from making a trade. McCarthy explained that he plans on making his fight with the team which won last year, but that if last year's combination proves ineffective, it will be time to "do something drastic."

McCarthy refused to elaborate on his "drastic" measures, but it is held likely that, if the club can't get back in 1939 form it will be shaken up and replacements brought in from the club farm system.

No Yankee Alibis

Admitting that he has never seen anything like the Yankee slump in baseball before, McCarthy offers no alibis. The Yanks had a cold spring on the way north—but so did the other clubs. Then, however, the world's championship team went into a slump.

Sad to say, a slump feeds on itself. It can begin with one man and spread to a greater part of the team. But it's not in the cards for men like Bill Dickey, Joe Gordon, and Charlie Keller to fall when the chips are down. Players like these usually snap out of it in a hurry—one or two good days and they're back in hitting form.

McCarthy doesn't expect to have to take any unusual steps. He won't be satisfied with a two or three-week winning streak. He wants the Yankees to climb on top and stay there. He knows they're a team that can do it. It's about the same club that ran away from both leagues last year, with superlative players in every department.

A Three-Way Jinx

Dickey, Gordon and Keller agree with McCarthy that their troubles were in trying too hard. They agree, too, that the slump will wear itself out and the Yanks will be on their way.

Through the middle of May, Dickey was hitting slightly more than .100. That was a mark to break the heart of one of baseball's deadliest racial hitters. Joe Gordon wasn't doing much better, and the "second year jinx" apparently had visited Charlie Keller.

Keller finished the 1939 season with a batting average of .334 and blasted out three home runs in the World Series against Cincinnati, hitting a .438 clip in the fall classic. This year he visited the sidelines, benched by McCarthy for weak hitting after chalking up a .231 mark in 21 games.

McCarthy can't understand why left-handed pitching should play a very important part in the Yank's slump. They beat southpaws 36 times last year and lost only 14 decisions to them. But while the Yanks were at their worst they dropped their tenth game to left-handed Al Smith of the Cleveland Indians, being on the short end of a 10 to 2 count.

A slump is hard to explain, whether it hits one man or the whole team. The Yanks don't intend to do any explaining. They're out to win ball games. Knowing they're a first-place ball club, they intend to climb into that position.

TRUTH

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must have been accepted as evidence of their efficacy. And favorable public opinion supports that.

These physicians, too, approve every sort of advertising you read, the advice of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function, and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys are not working properly. Doan's Pills would be sure to relieve the pain and worry it causes.

Doan's Pills. It is better to try one as a medicine that has won world-wide fame, than to experiment with inferior brands. Ask your neighbor!

Olympia was pushed into the rear seat of the big car. The Senator elbowed her and looked her in the arms.

"Be brave, my dear, be calm," he said, through clenched teeth, and the cameramen got a very good flash of them, the Senator looking stern and noble, with Olympia in his arms, weeping like Rachel for her lost children. Police cleared the way. The big car rolled off.

The crowd was a little surprised to hear the roaring of motors as the car went off. But they waited. Five minutes, with the lovely young girls in tow. But when Jim Allen, slowly rallying, struggled to his feet, wiping blood from his face, they rose instinctively. If that blood wasn't heat juice, this was real drama. Jim Allen was helped to the platform.

"Ladies and gentlemen!" he roared, still mopping blood. "That's our candidate! That's the man we Democrats stand for! What's an election to a man whose home has been ravaged? What are votes to a Democrat whose most sacred feelings have been profaned? That's the candidate we give you—one who will knock down his state chairman to go to the aid of his children! Ladies and gentlemen, do what you like with this rally. I'm going to help our candidate rescue our children!"

Evidently, then, it was no plant. As the constituents streamed out of the auditorium following Jim Allen, whose nose continued to bleed with theatrical profusion, their resentment rose. These were their orphans—who had been subjected to this outrage.

"Call the police!" "Get out the G-Men!" "Give us our children!" "Down with Wilkie!" "Were the police asleep?"

A pandemonium of cars swept away in the wake of the Senator. The wind-up rally joined the rescue. A dozen busses, hastily filled, followed more slowly. Only those luckless ones remained who had come on foot or by train and had no emergency conveyance. These, left behind, eventually clustered together and burst into noisy imprecations of the Opposition, interspersed with cheers for Sloppy, boos for Wilkie, and finally fell into a sustained chant:

"We want our orphans! We want our orphans! We want our orphans!"

Unfortunately, the Senator and Aunt Olympia were unaware of this loyal demonstration. They had retired from the campaign in a dead silence, over the prostrate form of good old Jim Allen, the state chairman; followed, so far as they knew, by the unbending indignation of an offended constituency.

For twenty noisy miles, Olympia was satisfied to sob on the Senator's breast, in which burned a volcano of suppressed passion. Finally she found voice.

"I only wanted them—to rest a little, Del," she said humbly. "I left Ben to bring them. I thought of course they would be safe."

"Be calm, my dear, be brave," said the Senator, patting her shoulder with a hand that itched for Brother Wilkie's throat.

"If they've harmed a hair of those children's heads," moaned Olympia, "I'll choke him with my bare hands, and what's more, I'll sue him."

"Be calm, Ollie, be brave," crooned the Senator, between set teeth.

So it was Aunt Olympia and the Senator with a belligerent police escort, who roared into the Republican rally at Lancaster.

As soon as the car came to a halt, the Senator crawled over Olympia's feet and started to get out.

"You stay here! This is no place for a woman! This is going to be a knock-down, drag-out engagement!"

His ferocity terrified Aunt Olympia. She was as mad as he was, and just as determined to fight it out. But she wished he would leave it to her. After all, her first responsibility was the Senator. She grabbed him with both hands. After the wear and tear of the long campaign, at his age, in his state of health, he was not physically able to cope with a set of blackguards who would stoop to such depths of lawlessness. He must not impair his dignity by engaging in a common street brawl with ruffians. Besides, he would get his glasses broken. So she hung on and was drawn with him from the scene.

And the first thing she saw was Len Hardesty, standing with both arms outstretched against the rear door of the sound truck, from which the police had gradually edged the crowd away.

"Len Hardesty—you give me my children! You let them right out of there this minute or I'll call the police!"

"Shut up, Olympia," he said. "They can't come out. They haven't any clothes on!"

"They haven't any clothes—" Suddenly Aunt Olympia remembered. She had forgotten to take the suitcase from the trailer. "Dell!" she cried. "They'll catch their death of cold!" And would have collapsed, had she not been supported by the Senator and a couple of policemen.

The girls, watching from the narrow little windows at the top of the rear door, had seen the beloved and sheltering, though agitated, figures of the Senator and Aunt Olympia.

Limpy opened the door defiantly. "Len Hardesty!" she screamed. "You give me my Uncle Lancy, this minute! You give him right here!" This defiant voice then rose to a familiar wail. "Aw, Uncle Lancy."

When had Uncle Lancy heard that appeal in vain? He did not hesitate a moment. He relinquished Olympia to the arms of the policemen with all the dignity of an old Roman, in smart fall coat instead of toga, and bore down on the truck. He didn't say a word. He waved his arm and Len Hardesty stood aside. The Senator stumbled up the steps.

"My poor children—" he began. But Limpy interrupted.

"Come over here to this mike and give them a piece of your mind," she ordered. "They said the most outrageous things about you. They said you were a hopeless inefficient and turned the lights on us to prove it. Tell them, Uncle Lancy!"

"My dear—" he remonstrated gently.

"Here's the mike," said Limpy. There was only one thing to do in the presence of a microphone. Uncle Lancy cleared his throat.

"Ladies and gentlemen!" he roared. The bands, which had been instructed to stop playing when the speeches began, stopped at the first syllable. The musicians wanted to get over to the truck themselves and see what was going on.

"Ladies and gentlemen of the Opposition!" went on the Senator. "This is Senator Sloppy addressing you from my own sound truck which was in dastardly fashion stolen by one I have loved and trusted for many years. I shall neither love nor trust him again. . . . So I am accused of inefficiency, eh? Well, if to put trust in a man at whose pulpit I have sat for spiritual guidance, who has blessed my food—which I gladly shared with him—if to put trust in that man is inefficient, then I plead guilty! Yes! I am a hopeless inefficient! I did trust him!"

"This is the closing night of my campaign for re-election. Thousands had gathered at Trenton to hear my final message and my summary of the issues of this campaign. But the instant I heard that these children of mine had been ruthlessly snatched from the swimming pool and dragged away on this chilly autumn night in this bathing suits, still wet from swimming—when I heard that, I stopped in the middle of a sentence. I waived the issues. I relinquished the campaign. I sacrificed any votes to be gained there and rushed here at full speed to save my children. If that is inefficient, yes! I am a hopeless inefficient!"

"Crouched beside me, here in my sound truck, are these three girls, three American children, bereaved young orphans. They are still in the wet bathing suits they wore when kidnapped, they are shivering and blue with cold. Their very lives have been endangered by this despicable act. I could stand here for hours expounding the issues of this campaign; it is a great opportunity; but I relinquish that opportunity. I sacrifice any votes to be gained here. I go to take my children to warmth and comfort; I go to see them safe in their little beds, with what precautions may be taken to save them from the danger of this terrible exposure they have suffered. If that is inefficiency, ladies and gentlemen, yes! I am a hopeless inefficient."

"Give them some Bible," said Limpy grimly. "They used Bible on you."

The Senator hesitated briefly. He hadn't been brought up on the Bible like Brother Wilkie and the girls. He had a special clerk to handle his quotations. He tried desperately to remember something.

"As ye sow, so shall ye reap," he finally roared. "I thank you."

"Come on, girls," he ordered and immediately left the truck. Again cameras were grinding, lights flashing. The Senator saw nothing, heard nothing. As he told Olympia afterward, he was so burned up he didn't even remember making a speech.

"Come on," he thundered to the girls from the bottom of the steps. They hung back shyly, fearing the crowd, the cameras, the lights.

"I'll go first," said Helen bravely. "Stop crying, Limpy. Keep your head up! We've nothing to be ashamed of."

Very pale, unsmiling, with young head high—dignified, even with wet curls clinging to brow and cheeks—Helen went down. Adele followed, looking straight ahead of her, eyes wide, lashes unlowered.

"Oh, my darling," groaned Len Hardesty as she passed, but she did not turn her head.

She was shivering; more from nervous excitement than from cold, for their heated emotions had warmed them. But the crowd did not know that. Angry cries went up. Opposition though they were—

"Disgraceful!" — "Disgusting!" "Poor things!" "Isn't she lovely?"

A lady took off her fur scarf and placed it on Adele's shoulders. "Take it, darling," she said sympathetically. "I'll come and get it some time."

Limpy came last, looking small and woebegone, with childish, tear-stained voice. She could not raise her eyes, she could not see. Uncle Lancy was waiting for her. As she stumbled weeping on the step, with grand gesture he took off his smart fall coat and put it about her, picked her up in his arms and carried her to the door of the car.

Aunt Olympia tried to take her away from him, but the Senator was firm about that. He held her tightly. There was a little confusion getting into the car. Helen and Adele had hurriedly crept into the rear seat, but since both Uncle Lancy and Olympia wanted to sit with Limpy, they got out, huddled now in warm automobile robes generously contributed by tearful sympathizers and got in the front seat with the driver. Martin was at the wheel. Ben Baldy being so wrought up over the occurrence he could not be trusted to drive carefully.

Limpy at last was warmly encooed between uncle and aunt, each with an arm around her and trying to pull her away from the other.

"Leave her alone, Ollie," said the Senator, with unaccustomed acerbity. "I'm trying to warm her up."

"I'm warmer than you are, Dell!" she said angrily. "Her place is in a mother's arms!"

Limpy diplomatically continued to weep bitterly and submitted to pulling from both sides.

"Home, Martin, fast!" said the Senator.

"But drive carefully," said Aunt Olympia. "An accident would make them nervous."

For many miles the car sped along in complete silence except for the screaming sirens of the biggest police escort accorded any candidate in any state in the 1938 campaign. Finally, in a small voice, Limpy spoke.

"Uncle Lancy, perhaps I'd better make a clean breast of it," she said humbly. "You may as well know the worst. I—I made a sort of a speech."

Uncle Lancy patted her knee with his free hand. "Did you indeed?" he said heartily. "That was nice of you, Limpy."

"It wasn't so hot," she confessed. "I'm afraid it was a little too—extemporaneous. . . . I didn't seem to have much to say."

"I have the same trouble myself," said the Senator encouragingly. "I often wonder how I can talk as long as I do when I have so very little to say."

"What did you say, Limpy?" asked Aunt Olympia, jealously edging into the conversation.

"Oh, I didn't say much," admitted Limpy. "I—I just said Uncle Lancy is—a swell guy."

Uncle Lancy was so touched that he started to reach for his glasses but remembering just in time that Aunt Olympia would get Limpy away from him if he did, he resigned himself and settled back in the fog. "A very commendable sentiment," he said approvingly. "I've often wanted to say the same thing but I never could find just the opportune moment for it. You have to get a good break to work in a thing like that. I congratulate you, my dear."

"Be quiet," said Olympia rudely.

"The girls are too tired to be talked to."

Hilda, though she had not expected them for hours, received them dourly but without surprise. She did not even raise an eyebrow at sight of the girls, in swim suits, swathed in automobile robes. It was not easy to surprise Hilda.

"Where are the prizes?" she inquired, with irritable interest.

"Prizes!" boomed Aunt Olympia. "Wasn't it a beauty contest?" said Hilda. "Seems as if to me they're dressed for it."

She helped Aunt Olympia give them hot-baths and rub them down with rough warm towels; gave them all the hot lemonade they could drink and warmed their beds with hot-water bottles. Uncle Lancy telephoned the doctor to find what preventive measures should be taken and was relieved to learn that everything that had been done was the right thing, and that they need only be kept warm and quiet until they had thoroughly recuperated.

"And if they catch anything, we'll see what to do next," said the Doctor, which Uncle Lancy faithfully retailed to Aunt Olympia.

As a final precaution, Aunt Olympia made each take an aspirin and five grains of quinine. Hilda closed the windows and lowered the blinds.

"Now, just calm down, my dears, and go to sleep," said Aunt Olympia soothingly. "If you feel wakeful or nervous or a chill coming on, ring immediately for Hilda and she'll give you more hot lemonade and quinine. And thank God it's over. You've been to Waterloo and now you are safe and warm in your little beds on St. Helena. Don't get up tomorrow. You can have your meals in bed. There'll be quite a rumpus and more reporters nosing around, but keep your door shut and I'll strangle a few, if necessary. Stay in bed a week if you want to. I'll very likely stay with you. And don't worry. I'll bring you Len Hardesty's head on a platter first time I get my hands on him."

Then she turned off the lights and closed the door.

She headed at once for the room she shared, rather grudgingly, with the Senator.

"Another pitcher of hot lemonade for the Senator," she said to Hilda over her shoulder.

The Senator was already in night-shirt and bathrobe and warm slippers. He was smoking a cigarette.

"Did you take their temperature?" he demanded. "Did they have a chill?"

"I wish you'd be more grammatical, Del," she said irritably. "How can three girls have one temperature and one chill? Did you change to your flannel nightshirt?"

"My dear, it's a very mild night. You know I never change to flannel till the first snow."

"It's a chilly night, or I miss my guess! I've got trouble enough without pneumonia." She fished roughly about in a drawer and produced the thermometers. "Change," she ordered briskly. "And be quick about it."

The Senator made the exchange rather than start an argument.

"Did they seem feverish?" he asked.

"If Limpy caught cold—and she's still shivery—I'll sue that louse," said Aunt Olympia, to whom suing was a far more menacing procedure than a mere wringing of necks. "In fact, I'm not sure but I'll stand on my constitutional rights and sue the American system. You'd better get in bed, Del. Here comes Hilda with your lemonade and whisky. You'd better take these two quinine, first."

"You only gave them one quinine," he remonstrated.

"More grammar. One spiece," she reproved him severely. "Anyhow, you're older than they are and have less reaction. . . . You don't feel anything coming on, do you?"

The Senator got into bed. "Yes, I feel a fade-out coming on," he said, with a smile that was not rueful. "And it was worth it. Did you hear me take the hide off Brother Wilkie?"

"If he just manages to trip over that carpet they blackmailed me into buying and breaks his neck, it'll be cheap at the price. . . . Give him two jiggers, Hilda."

"You've had a pretty easy summer, so it won't make any difference if you lose a little sleep to-night, Hilda," she said. "I want you to keep an eye on the girls and if any of them seems to be catching anything, you call me immediately and phone the doctor. And don't disturb us. Don't ever disturb us again as long as we live. If anybody calls up, you say the Senator's running for chief shiek of the United Mohammedans and is in a conference with Allah. If reporters come, give them rat poison. We don't want to see anybody or hear anything for the next six months. If you need help, call the police."

"Won't you be wanting coffee?" asked Hilda, almost hopefully.

"Yes. We'll be wanting coffee when we ring for it and that's all we will be wanting. Be sure to keep an eye on the girls and let me know if they start chills or fever. . . . Coffee, nothing else."

"Won't you be wanting the morning papers?"

"Heavens, Ollie!" ejaculated the Senator, and the unwonted profanity showed how wrought up he was. "I forgot the press. Do you suppose they got pictures?"

"Well, thank God the girls have straight legs," said Olympia. "No, Hilda. No papers! Never any more papers as long as we live! Good night, Hilda. Go and look in on the girls, will you? If they need anything, let me know."

"Be quiet," said Olympia rudely.

KALSEN-LAMAY

On April 6, at Las Cruces, Miss Mary Helen Kalsen and Roy Lamay, both of the eastern portion of the county, were united in marriage, but the matter was kept as a secret until after Mary Helen's graduation from the Capitan-High-School. The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. Fred Pfingsten of Lincoln. She is an accomplished young lady and her friends are legion over the county. She comes from a long line of pioneers who were among the first settlers of these regions.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Lamay of the Nogal-Mesa. Like his esteemed wife, he can trace his ancestors back to the early periods when this section of the state was in its infancy.

Last Sunday, Mrs. Wm. Ferguson, aunt of the groom, gave a bridal shower at her home on the Nogal-Mesa. They will make Lincoln County their home and the best wishes of their many friends will attend them.

MARKED MAN by Harold Channing Wire

Walt Gandy rode into Nevada knowing that trouble awaited him. A call for help from his old range partner, Bill Hollister, told him that. He didn't know, however, that he would be called upon to solve a double murder, defend a mysterious ranch against its unknown foe, and above all, to take part in a vicious range-land war. Gandy finally matches all the pieces of the puzzle, and his solution makes "Marked Man" one of our greatest serial stories.
