Nazis' Paris Parade Recalls Days of 1871

A field artillery regiment of the conquering Nazi army parades through Paris following the capitulation of the French forces. In the background is seen the famous Arc de Triomphe, landmark of the captured city on which are inscribed the military triumphs of the French armies under the Emperor Napoleon. Once before—in 1871—a conquering German army occupied Paris, following the Franco-Prussian war.

Kindergartners Wear Gas Masks at Play

Toddlers at a British nursery school who learned to play while wearing their grotesque gas masks have become so accustomed to them that they no longer want to take them off for greater freedom under exertion. This fact may save their lives some day. The tots are proud of their ability to don the masks in a jiffy.

Running Mate

Sen. Charles L. McNary of Oregon, Wendell L. Willkie's running mate on the Republican ticket. The candidate for the vice presidency has been a Senate leader for a number of years and a strong advocate of farm relief. He is said to have been Willkie's own choice for second place and is expected to be a strong running mate.

COW 'ON PASTURE' REQUIRES GRAIN

Constant Ration Aids the Production of Milk.

By DR. GEO. E. TAYLOR

Discontinuance of grain feeding of cows on pasture is somewhat akin to the action of the man who killed the goose that laid the golden egg. Yet many a dairy farmer stops grain feeding as soon as his cows increase their milk flow under the stimulus of luxuriant pasture rich in protein, minerals and vitamins. To make so radical a change in the ration is to make a costly mistake. Dairy cattle on good pasture will maintain increased production without grain for possibly three to four weeks, but they will lose weight in the process. This loss of body weight will be followed by a reduction in milk production. Even with renewed grain feeding, it will be difficult to restore production once it has been allowed to slump.

Continued feeding of grain and a limited amount of hay until the cows just turned on pasture are accustomed to the change in their ration is recommended. Amount of grain to be fed will depend upon the quality and amount of available pasture and the level of milk production.

Good pasture alone will provide sufficient nutrients for body maintenance and the production of 10 to 20 or more pounds of milk, depending upon the per cent of fat in the milk. New Jersey experiment station trials demonstrated that the feeding of one pound of grain to 8½ pounds of milk maintained the 1½ per cent production during June. Under average feeding conditions, however, a more liberal allowance of grain is usually recommended for the entire pasture season. One pound of grain to every five or seven pounds of milk produced should be sufficient. The higher testing breeds require the more liberal allowance of grain in proportion to the amount of milk produced.

Since the protein content of green pasture is higher than the protein content of roughages fed during winter, the protein content of the summer grain mixture can be reduced. A concentrate grain mixture containing 12 per cent crude protein will supply ample protein for cows on excellent pasture, usually high producers excepted. A mixture of such home grown cereal grains as corn, barley and oats contains about 12 per cent crude protein.

"During summer, cows should have free access to a mineral mixture of equal parts salt and steamed bone meal.

Novel Device Checks

Field Contour Lines

Technical assistance in laying out contour lines on farms has long been an expressed need of conservation-minded farmers. L. H. Schoenleber, Iowa agricultural engineer, has attempted to meet this need with a device which enables farmers to lay out contour lines for themselves, without surveying equipment or technical assistance.

His invention is called a grade meter. It has not yet been placed on the market, but it has demonstrated its merit in a wide variety of tests. Schoenleber has received a public service patent on the grade meter but plans to subject the device to further tests before offering it to farmers throughout the country. Contour farming is a basic part of the farm-planning program.

The grade meter consists of a pendulum connected to an indicator arm through a train of gears. This is mounted rigidly on the tractor in front of the operator. As the pendulum swings it causes the indicator arm to move over a scale which shows deviations from zero. The operator of the tractor endeavors to keep the meter reading zero at all times.

If you want to insure pastures for all summer, use moister soils for pasture seedings and divide large fields into small lots.

Most cows will drink from four to five pounds of water for each pound of milk they produce. They should have access to all the fresh, clean water they can drink.

The newest transparent food wrappers developed by scientists are made of tightly stretched rubber that will encase products in a skin-tight, air-free container.

4-H club work hit a new high last year when more than 1,300,000 boys and girls held membership in 79,500 clubs in the United States and territories.

Good cows change almost two-thirds of their feed into milk and butterfat.

Rabbit Foundlings Adopted by Spitz

"Doing nicely, thank you!" is probably what Teetie, eight-year-old Spitz, would say if she could, commending these six wild rabbits she found in the back yard of her mistress, Mrs. Valeria Lewis of Washington, D. C. Letting her maternal instinct have full sway, Teetie took charge of the foundlings, washed them and fed them.

GET VITAMINS YOU NEED...

AS YOU REFRESH YOURSELF!

Oranges can help you to feel your best. When you want refreshment, eat an orange! Or help yourself from the big family pitcher of fresh orangeade! "Hits the spot!" you'll say.

But that's not all. Oranges add needed vitamins and minerals to your diet. And fully half of our families, says the Department of Agriculture, do not get enough of these health essentials to feel their best!

The best way to be sure of getting all the vitamin C you normally need is to drink an 8-ounce glass of fresh orange juice with breakfast every morning. You also receive vitamins A, B₁ and G and the minerals calcium, phosphorus and iron.

There's nothing else so delicious that's so good for you. So order a supply of Sunkist Oranges right away. They're the pick of California's best-ever crop of wonderfully juicy summer oranges. Corp., 1946. California Fruit Growers Exchange.

Coronado
and the Seven Cities of Cibola

IN 1540 Don Francisco Vasquez de Coronado left Mexico, leading a band of fellow-adventurers north into the unknown wilderness to extend the Spanish empire by half a continent. Before the English Pilgrims first landed at Plymouth Rock, Coronado and his successors had built a royal palace in Santa Fe.

Crossing southern Arizona, New Mexico, visiting the Grand Canyon, Taos, and on across the Texas panhandle into Kansas, Coronado and his army failed to find the fabled "Seven Cities of Cibola," and considered their expedition a failure because they did not find gold.

But the brave exploits of Coronado and his men will be celebrated in a score of communities in New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, and other states in 1940.

Today these and hundreds of other communities in the mountain states are united by telephone wires which speed your voice in a split second over mountains, deserts and plains... vast expanses which Coronado's band needed months to traverse. Although Coronado did not discover the "Seven Cities of Cibola," today your voice may be hurled over the seven seas. Telephonic pioneering and research have blazed trails to bring you a service which connects with 93 per cent of all the telephones in the world.

Supervision and Examination of Banks

The federal or state governmental body which charters and supervises a bank has power to examine it at regular intervals—usually twice a year. In addition to the examinations required by state law of state banks and by the National Bank Act of national banks, both the Federal Reserve Banks and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation are authorized to examine their members. The purposes of the examinations are (1) to ascertain that the bank is solvent, (2) to determine that it is operating within legal limitations, and (3) to ascertain that sound policies are being pursued. Through such examinations we obtain a review of our operations, and receive expert suggestions and advice on our policies and practices whereby we may improve our service to our customers.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY ROGER SHAW

Russian Drive Into Rumania Alters European War Picture; G. O. P. Picks Wilkie, McNary

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

King Carol of Rumania is pictured here inspecting one of his army's tanks. This particular machine is one of a number made for Rumania in England while that country was still on the allied bandwagon.

III RUSSIAN WAR: Bessarabia, etc.

This so-called World War is a peculiar affair—a war of in-and-outers. Russia, for instance, is always popping in and out of it.

G. B. S. added that he wished he was prime minister, in order to deal with the French in proper style.

Mr. Balbo

In the hot summer days of 1933, your commentator stood on a Hudson river pier, and watched an Italian aerial squadron form and reform over his head.

Balbo's American flight made him too popular in Italy. There was only room for one man on the stage.

WILKIE: McNary

The Republicans met at Philadelphia and nominated liberal, able Wendell Wilkie on the sixth ballot.

II GERMAN WAR: Mr. Shaw . . .

George Bernard Shaw made some really pertinent remarks on England, France and Germany. G. B. S. said that anybody who introduced 100 per cent military communism, a la Hitler, could not fall to beat anybody who didn't introduce it.

NAMES . . . in the news . . .

At its thirty-sixth annual convention in Chicago, the Advertising Federation of America selected as president Elton G. Borton, advertising director of La Salle Extension university, Chicago.

Moreover, Wilkie did not differ much from Roosevelt on matters of foreign policy. The Republicans had adopted an elaborate "peace" plank in their platform.

Roosevelt was late to a press conference, and apologized by saying that somebody had turned off his elevator's electric power.

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Ellis and small daughter were visitors from Capitan Sunday evening.

Late Sunday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Cudo Najar went out for a little outing and incidentally, took along a .22 rifle to shoot at an occasional rabbit. When Mrs. Najar started to step out of the car, the gun went off, the ball striking her in the small of the back. She was rushed to the hospital where it was found that she had only been grazed. Her slight wound was dressed and she went home.
