The Conscription Bill

The conscription bill, which is shortly to be brought to the floor from the committee, is but another step towards dictatorship. Many Senators and Representatives are opposing it as an act of unconstitutional nature. Conscription is only intended as an act when engaged in war—and to put into precise an act like that in peace time, is a direct violation of constitutional rights.

Even Senator Norris opposes conscription and it is the first time he has gone against the President's wishes on anything. Posting under the cloak of being a Republican, he has supported the New Deal on everything until now. In the face of conscription he says it's the first step before war; so says Senators Vandenberg and Wheeler. If you conscript all men of a certain age, take them away from home and business, who's going to run the business? But the present administration has paid very little attention to business anyhow—so what?

State Republican Convention

The above convention held at Las Vegas the first of the week, was highly attended and returning delegates are high in their praises for the harmony which prevailed throughout, and also are very optimistic for a 'turn of the tide' in the November elections. The following expressed their intentions to file for State offices: Senate, Albert K. Mitchell, Congress, Cyrus McCormick and Dick Dillon. Governor, Maurice Miers and Seth Alston. Secretary of State, Mrs. Torres. Others will follow.

Willkie Supporters

Each day's news brings the names of more Democratic leaders throughout the nation who are expressing their determination to support Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee for the Presidency.

It must be realized that these names brought to the attention of the American public are the names of 'leaders' and as leaders they have followings to a great degree.

If it were only that a few former New Dealers and former staunch supporters of President Roosevelt had switched over to Willkie, it probably would be of little consequence. But with the leaders inevitably go the followers.

The reasons given by these former Democratic leaders (who still retain their Democratic affiliation) are not wholly with relation to Democratic policies, but rather, they have to do with a whole-hearted opposition to the notion of a third term. There is, unquestionably, an intense rebellion within the Democratic Party on this third term question.—Albuquerque Journal.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Fesperman, parents of Mrs. Harry Miller, left for Birmingham, Ala., this week.

GRANTLAND RICE

As a rule we can usually check on this date just where the leaders belong and who should dominate the remainder of the campaign. It doesn't happen to work in that direction this passing year of 1940.

When we have Max Baer and Tony Galento fighting to see which entry will be tossed in against Joe Louis, you get a general idea of the heavy-weight matter. Which means that Joe Louis is still the main stand-out, almost the only stand-out in sport today.

This goes for all sports. A year ago the Yankees were again running away with the American league pennant. But not this season.

Back in April Bimelech was picked as another wonder horse. He still tops the three-year-olds, but he isn't any wonder horse. Two defeats, including the Kentucky Derby, have cut into his laurel collection.

With Challeidon under repairs, with Kayak sick, there have been no top handicap horses. One wins, and then another. Again no stand-outs.

Some three-year-olds, maybe Bimelech, will have to hurry to save the crop.

The golfers have been in the same fix. Byron Nelson failed in his 1940 defense of the title as Lawson Little moved in. With the confidence developed from this victory Little may see another smoking pace, such as he put through in the amateur division. But he is in a much tougher league now. Anyway, the ex-amateur star has a great chance to become one of the outstanding figures of golf.

He has a tough title to defend when you must beat off 1,100 challengers in place of one or two.

This, in a way, is all the better for building up public interest.

Yanks Nois on Short End

Take up the difference shown in the American league race. A year ago we had only the Yankees—practically losing the rest of the league. Now we have four ball clubs with a chance, and the Yankees have only an outside chance. Rated 1 to 3 when the season opened, they are far from being favorites with the race about half run. This has troubled interest in Cleveland, Detroit and Boston, as well as other cities.

A race, to the mob, is always more interesting than a runaway.

Bill McKechnie's Reds represent the most consistent combination in baseball for 1939 and 1940. They were leading the league a year ago, and they are still the team to beat for 1940.

They have more opposition this season than they faced last summer. But they are still the most consistent ball club at the half-mile post. Bill McKechnie. They have the better pitching, day in and day out, to call upon.

Tennis Crop Blighted

Amateur tennis had little left when Don Budge retired. With Wimbledon and the Davis Cup eliminated, tennis had to take a rest on the point of the chin.

The game is still looking for some personality—such as McLoughlin, Bill Johnston, Bill Tilden, Ellsworth Vines or Budge. There is no such party around at this writing. So far the crop is colorless.

In baseball, the slump of DiMaggio, Dickey and others has been offset by such pitching stars as Bob Feller and Buck Newsum.

There is only a slight chance that say home-run hitter will reach the 50 mark. Feller has the best chance to pick up 39 victories and he may reach this highly desirable spot.

Bob Feller might easily be baseball's stand-out for the present year—a star pitcher hooked up with a leading ball club.

But when you turn up the list the one outstanding—the lone eagle in the sporting circle—is still Joe Louis. He is champion of the champs.

And this goes for all the sporting fields we know today, horse or man, or man or horse. Not only as a fighter but in the way he has conducted himself, Louis is practically all alone.

Only a big upheaval through the remainder of 1940 can change this rating or ranking.

Buck Newsum Rides Again

No one can say that Louis Norman ("Buck") Newsum hasn't worn his share of baseball scenery. In the last 12 years Buck has played with at least 12 different teams in six or seven leagues, and here he is today burning up the American with a varied assortment of wares.

Buck was born in Hartsville, S. C., 37 years ago. He had to wander a long time to reach his peak. His first and tallest upward lunge took place two years ago when he won 20 ball games for the Browns.

Madcap Maxie Awaits Title Go With Joe Louis

By ROBERT McSHANE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

MAX BAER, who was thought to have reached the end of his trail when he lost a bloody battle to Lou Nova last year, is now planning a return engagement with Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis.

Madcap Maxie, champion of the night club circuit, recently reached back into his misspent youth for the tattered remains of a great strength and whipped a second rate clown named Tony Galento. The fact that Tony was nothing more than a bliant, bullying, beer guzzling freak receives little consideration. He was supposed to have courage of a sort—didn't he last four rounds with Louis?

So Baer, whose claim to a championship match is based on a victory over an animated beer vat, is the next "logical" match for the merciless, coldly calculating heavyweight king.

The boys who saw Max in his dressing room last June 1, after his fight with Lou Nova, must find it hard to believe that he is getting a chance to meet the champ. He didn't look very good against Nova. And Nova never was a really good fighter. Max lasted 11 rounds that night, until the referee called a technical knockout.

Of course, the whole story's history now. The Nova fight was more than a year ago. And the recent victory over Galento revives memories of happier days—days when he whipped Ernie Schaft, Max Schmeling and Primo Carnera. It's easy to forget something you'd sooner not remember. And it is easy enough to find an alibi for that "one bad night."

No Finishing Power

But Max didn't look like a championship threat when he whipped Galento. True, he gave the fat boy a terrible beating, but he couldn't apply the finishing touches. He re-deemed himself in his own eyes, and perhaps in those of his manager, but he left a huge dent in the minds of those who saw the performance.

When the fight was stopped by the referee Tony had been taking terrific punishment. He could scarcely walk; his spirit had long since left his body, and only his patuncy frame kept him upright. Galento was fighting as a robot, a silly, meaningless grin on his bruised face.

Yes, Baer whipped him. But he didn't have the finishing power to get a knockout.

Actually, Baer is farther away from beating Louis now than he ever was. His youth has caught up to him—a youth that was devoted largely to having a good time. He bent a coxivial elbow too often, paid too much attention to the fair sex and gave very little thought to training rules and regulations.

Baer was 30 years old when Nova whipped him so soundly. He was three years younger than that when he met Joe Louis in New York in 1935. He lasted only four rounds. Now he wants another crack at a man who is twice as great a fighter as he was at the time of their first encounter.

But with the heavyweight list worn rather thin from stretching to meet Louis' demands, Baer is the sole veteran of the old school who might attract a fair gate.

The boxing game is in a poor way, however, when matchmakers are forced to dig up self-admitted has-beens to meet the champion. But as long as the public is willing to pay for them, promoters will supply a never-ending series of farcical boxing exhibitions.

Sport Shorts

Jimmy Adamick, former Detroit heavyweight, is running for sheriff at Midland, Mich. Larry MacPhail insists the lighting plant he installed in the Columbus American association park 10 years ago is better than the one the Giants have in the Polo Grounds. There are 100,000 registered softball teams in the United States this year. Sixteen promising sophomore football players have been lost to Denver university through scholastic difficulties during the last year.

HITLER AND NAPOLEON

(Hitler Visits Tomb of Napoleon—headline)

Napoleon—Stop staring at me! Hitler—I'm not staring at you; I'm looking at what I thought was a reflection.

Napoleon—Go away. I'm tired of tourists. Hitler—I'm no tourist.

Napoleon—Who are you? Hitler—I'm the new landlord.

Napoleon—You are joking. Hitler—That's what a lot of people thought. Listen, Nappie, it's time you and I met. We have everything in common. We are two of a type.

Napoleon—Do you realize you are talking to the most famous conqueror in history? Hitler—That's the very question I was going to ask you. You were good for your time, but you're out-classed.

Napoleon—By whom, may I ask? Hitler—Even if you didn't ask, I'd still tell you. By me!

Napoleon—Who are you? Hitler—I am Adolf Hitler.

Napoleon—Hitler? Hitler? I once knew a sausage maker named Hitler.

Hitler—I am the conqueror of most of Europe. In two years I have taken nine nations.

Napoleon (bored)—I wish I knew what you smoked.

Hitler—In two months I took Denmark, Norway, Belgium, Holland and France.

Napoleon—Nobody ever takes France. It's purely an illusion.

Hitler—Believe it or not, I have captured France.

Napoleon (derisively)—You and who else? Hitler—Paris is mine. This tomb is mine. I even own you. Think of it, Napoleon the Great now under the ownership of Adolf Hitler!

Napoleon (wincing)—As if I hadn't suffered enough during those years at St. Helena! Bah, the world must be softening up. You don't look like a conqueror.

Hitler—You don't look any too-hot yourself.

Napoleon—Go on with your story. You say you have conquered nine nations?

Hitler—I have the world at my feet.

Napoleon—That's what I was crazy enough to think once! Remember it's only a short trip from your feet to your throat.

Hitler—And do you know what I am going to do next? I am going to capture England!

Napoleon—Take a tip from me and forget it. I once had that idea.

Hitler—I shall capture the British Isles and destroy the British empire.

Napoleon—Would you mind repeating that?

Hitler—I shall capture the British Isles and destroy the British empire. I shall be boss of Europe and of the world, the greatest conqueror of all time!

Napoleon (beckoning)—Come on in! I'll move over!

It seems that the 24 garment workers who have been playing in "Pins and Needles," a revue staged by the garment workers' union, have retired from the garment industry and joined the Actors Equity as professional entertainers. Now if some actors would only shift to the garment business all would be well.

A correspondent telling of the flight and return to Paris of refugees tells of one man who clung to a heavy Paris telephone book coming and going. When asked why he replied, "I don't know, I just grabbed it up. I guess I might as well throw it away now." Maybe the French phone books carry those instructions "How to Get a Policeman."

Sonja Henle has been married and the Office Cynic says it is going to be a great letdown to her when her husband finds the refrigerator out of order and yells "Say, do you know anything about ice?"

CAN YOU REMEMBER?

Away back when you could boast that you were "working like a Trojan" without drawing any hard looks? Uncle Sam is going in for "Panzer Division." (Samzer divisions would seem better.) He will build tanks almost as big as Nazi ones and capable of at least 50 miles an hour. Nobody can beat him in the automotive field, and we predict that he will not only turn out super tanks, but do it in colors.

HOW to SEW

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

WHEN war came to Finland a Red Cross group to sew for refugees was started in our community. Now 14 women meet faithfully and make about 60 woolen dresses every week, in sizes 9 to 14. The group is financed through gifts of money and material which they themselves have solicited. They bought the simplest dress pattern that they could find and then eliminated every unnecessary detail. "Work for quantity—don't bother with a collar or pocket," the county Red Cross leader urged.

I have just sketched here some short cuts used to speed up production; and as I write this, looking out of my studio window over a beautiful and peaceful garden, I am trying not to think of winter.

All Could Not Be Peace And Quiet at That Gallery

"If you want to spend a quiet hour," said the solicitor native to the visitor, "there is no better place than our art gallery. You will be well repaid."

"Just a minute," replied the stranger. "I've been reading about it in the guide book. It says that the visitor, on entering, is struck by a statue of Hercules. Then he is stunned by the splendor of the great staircase. A picture in one room is full of punch, while farther on one is crushed by the overwhelming magnificence of another painting. Finally, brilliant colors run riot everywhere. No, sir, if I want a quiet hour I'll take a boxing lesson!"

Invasion of England

The last successful invasion of England by hostile soldiers was in 1066, when William the Conqueror and his army crossed the English channel from Normandy. Before that, England was invaded many times by the Saxons, Danes and Norsemen. But since the Norman conquest all threatened invasions have been beaten off by the British navy.

No attempt was made to invade the British isles in the First World War.—Pathfinder.

A Bank's Duty to its Depositors

The American Bankers' Association in its Statement of Principles of Commercial Banking says, "The safety of the funds entrusted to the bank by all of its depositors must be the foremost objective of the commercial banker." Thus banks must exercise extreme care in granting loans and making investments to safeguard deposits. It is also our duty to render a prompt and adequate checking service for the safety and convenience of our depositors in transmitting funds. To avoid discriminating against certain depositors by failing to require each account to pay for the service it receives, it is obviously necessary either to require balances sufficient to reimburse the bank for such services, or to make a fair charge for rendering them.

Here Is Clyde Tingley's Record

--It Speaks For Itself

He Gets The Job Done

Once again the people of New Mexico have demanded that Clyde Tingley become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor and again he answers their call by announcing his candidacy—basing his campaign upon his eagerness and ABILITY to build a GREATER NEW MEXICO—continuing the fine work he did for the State during two terms in office as Governor from 1935 to 1938 inclusive. The wheel printed above records the brilliant achievements of this dynamic former Chief Executive and vividly portrays his ability TO GET THE JOB DONE—and to give the State efficient and economical government while he is doing it. Clyde Tingley championed AND BUILT good roads all over the State. He demanded AND GOT better school facilities for every section. He visualized a hospital for crippled kiddies and he worked until it BECAME A REALITY. He fathered the State's present tourist advertising campaign on a large scale—AND HE PROMISES NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN THIS LINE. He co-operated with New Mexico's Senators and Congressmen in obtaining Federal funds which ran into MILLIONS OF DOLLARS for permanent benefits within the State. He drafted able citizens as members of boards and commissions to serve the public—and he did not hinder their performance by political interference. He worked WITH and FOR the laboring man, the stockman, the farmer, the business man (big and little,) teachers, and every other group. IN EVERY SECTION OF THE STATE. Clyde Tingley promises, if he is returned to office, to resume working for the progress of New Mexico and the welfare of its citizens, to protect the interests of EVERY PART OF NEW MEXICO, to raise the efficiency of State government to the high plane established by him during his first two terms in office—and to LOWER TAXES WHILE HE IS DOING IT! Never lose sight of this fact about Clyde Tingley—HE GETS THE JOB DONE!

Candidate for the Democratic Nomination For--

Governor of New Mexico

HIS PLATFORM

Clyde Tingley Pledges Himself, If Elected to Office as Governor, to Effect the Following Reforms:

A General Economy Program, including the saving of $2,000 a day by elimination of political "dead heads" and the reorganization of governmental departments to raise the efficiency of these departments and eliminate all unnecessary waste.

The immediate elimination of the forced 2% salary "contribution" now being collected from all State employees, and the "kick-back" required from all of those doing business with the State.

Strengthening of the State Primary Law which was made possible during the administration of Clyde Tingley. An advisory group would be appointed to suggest revisions in the light of present conditions to prevent its misuse in the future as is now being practiced.

Careful consideration to be given to the National Defense and full co-operation to be given the Federal Government in the present National Crisis.

To lend all possible assistance to the Federal Government to provide a network of airports throughout the State to aid in the National Defense.

Strict adherence to the Hatch Acts. The completion of Federal-aid and State Secondary roads in the State, extending them to All Communities as quickly as possible.

The unqualified removal of all State Educational Institutions from political domination of any type and the establishment of a salary scale comparable with those in effect in adjoining states.

Oil Conservation control to be continued and exploration encouraged until possibilities in 21 potential producing counties have been completely determined.

The elimination on Jan. 1, 1941 of the 26c notary fee on automobile licenses. Reduction of administrative expense in the Dept. of Public Welfare so as to increase amount available for payments of public funds to crippled children, needy blind and aged dependents with the intention of increasing old age benefits to a minimum of $30.00 per month.

Clyde Tingley Pledges Himself, If Elected to Office as Governor, to Urge the State Legislators to Pass Legislation to Eliminate or Correct the Following State Laws:

The immediate repeal of the Use Tax. Revision of the State Labor and Industrial Commission to assure better understanding and agreement between labor and employer.

A "Little Hatch Act" and Merit System to apply to All Departments of State Government. This would be done to strengthen and broaden the scope of the State's first Merit System which was set up by Clyde Tingley.

All State Departments to operate on a budget basis eliminating the huge waste of funds resulting from the percentage basis now in effect in the Bureau of Revenue.

The State Highway Department to be included in the State Depts. having to ask for bids on purchases of $200 or more, and having to advertise for bids on all purchases of $500 or more.

Preserve against any other state's claims our water rights in stream systems. Use every facility to promote conservation of water, prevention of flood damage and expansion of storage. Eliminate Salary of $1000 monthly by attorney for Interstate Stream Commission and employ able counsel on fee basis. The creation of a State Business Manager to keep expenses below income and to eliminate waste from State Government by placing all State Departments on a strict business basis.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY ROGER SHAW

Refugees Flock Across Atlantic As Battle of England Impends; 1940 Campaign Gets Under Way

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

II GERMAN WAR:
Air Murder

Terrific German air raids on eastern England went on and on in endless waves of bombers, projected by fighting ships. German losses were very heavy—at least 75 planes in a single week. But the German airmen nearly potted King George from the blue, and a rumor circulated all over England that they had wounded Winston Churchill. This proved untrue, however, for Churchill escaped, in southeastern England, into an air raid shelter. The British blasted back at France, Belgium, Holland, and the Rhineland, but were generally outnumbered. Man for man, their hard-boiled, long-service regulars were much more effective than General Goering's hot-shot youngsters, but there the British advantage ended.

The British public, under fire, was showing its usual courage and endurance. The very heart was blasted out of one English city, which remained unnamed. Ghastly time-bombs (an effective form of assassination) were being dropped by both sides, and each side blamed it on the other.

F-W-198

The Germans were producing a brand-new fighter plane, called F-W-198. It was good for 400 miles per hour, as against the 387 of the British Spitfires, and the 350 of the British Hurricanes. The new German freak had the propeller in back, to push, instead of in front, to pull. It was a "flying wing" design, with no tail, but with a couple of sticks running back to support the two rudders. It had two cannons, mounted out on the wings, and four machine-guns, stuck in the nose of the pilot's cabin. It was heavily armored, and outweighed the Hurricanes and Spitfires, the two standard types it has to fight against. F-W-198 was a monoplane worth watching.

SHIP NEWS:

Arrivals

Maurice Maeterlinck arrived at New York on a Greek liner, with his wife, and parents-in-law. He is now 78, and ferociously anti-German despite his Blue Bird philosophy. Somebody commented on "the weary calm of the Belgian Shakespeare."

President Hambro of the Norwegian parliament was also in New York. He had held the job for 15 years; then he lost it.

Also in New York was young Otto Hapsburg, Austrian pretender to various thrones; and there was talk about his imperial mother, ex-Kaiserin Zita, coming over too. Duke and Duchess Warfield-Windsor were to be on the way, en route to the duke's new bathing preserve, the Bahamas Islands. The rich Anglo-Americans were trickling home at a great rate, but their hearts belonged to Churchill.

AN ALLY:

Selassie, Etc.

One of the oddest war bits yet to evolve, came to light. England made Haile Selassie a full-fledged war ally, against Italy. London formally recognized the little exile as Emperor of Ethiopia, Lion of Judah, etc., and told him that he was now back "on" the Ethiopian throne. Mussolini was reported as enormously amused by it all, though Selassie's revival may aid native rebels against Italy, in the Ethiopian sector of Italian East Africa. England had formally and officially recognized the Italian conquest of Ethiopia by an agreement of 1936. Haile is still only 49 years old, and was said to be rarin' to go. But what?

Another British ally was the sultan of Johore. Johore is near Singapore, in the Malay peninsula. The sultan met a rude Canadian in a London air-raid shelter. The sultan

FORODDS & FORENDS:

London now has a Polish daily newspaper, transferred from the previous "Polish" capital of Angers, in France. It is London's first stab at morning Polish journalism.

The Renault automotive factory, outside Paris, was reopened by the Nazis. It employed 18,000 workers in good times. Renault cars are famous. They always carried the radiator behind, not in front of, the hood.

Sweden seemed to be fitting into the new united Europe, though without any enthusiasm. It made trade agreements with Germany, Norway, Russia, Denmark, Italy, and Hungary. Much of it will be based on goods for goods; that is, by barter, instead of via "plutocratic" gold.

The U. S. liner Manhattan brought in 1,000 American refugees from Lisbon, Portugal. The export liner Exeter brought 500 more of them. The U. S. liner Washington brought in some 1,500 Americans from Galway, in Ireland. These were considered last-minute "emergency" voyages.

said he was the sultan. The rude Canadian said: "That's nothing. I'm the king of Ireland." But the good-natured sultan laughed, and proved his point. Once the French police arrested him for photographing the Maginot line area. His sultana was Scotch, but he divorced her by saying, under Moslem law, "get out" four times. She got out, pronto.

1940 CAMPAIGN:

Phases & Phrases

Now, no doubt, begins the season of straw polls. The big political conventions are over, but the campaign has scarcely begun. The Democrats had the limelight for the past week or two. But Willkie also managed to get a bit of publicity here and there.

Battling Willkie chose Chicago for his campaign base and his national headquarters. He rented a large suite of offices in the Loop, the Chicago headquarters to be run by John Hamilton, former national chairman for the G. O. P., and now executive director of the national committee. New York was designated as eastern headquarters. Candidate Willkie made holiday in Colorado, where his breezy ways got breezy greetings.

ENIGMA

On-and-Off Molotov

MOLOTOV

Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia does not break into print often—at least not so often as some of his predecessors.

Of all of them, he has been the most enigmatic. And thus Russia's place in the European drama remains mysterious. Is it Germany's ally? Or is it preparing for war with the Nazis?

Russia's "grab" in Rumania of area formerly belonging to it does not answer these questions. Berlin's recent warning to Hungary to behave with relation to demands on Rumania only complicated the "dope" of the experts.

Whether Molotov and his Berlin "allies" are on friendly terms or off is Molotov's secret still. The situation has furnished an open season for commentators. Speculations of every fancy have appeared.

Most of them were highly conjectural.

MARTINIQUE:

What a Mess

The little French West Indian island of Martinique was still blockaded by British warships. They were after the French naval units there, including the one French aircraft carrier, loaded down with American-made planes. Anglo-French bitterness was growing apace, and a naval battle threatened, with Uncle Sam as the unhappy referee.

How to feed Martinique? That was the question. It seemed possible that American steamers might bring in supplies to the beleaguered French, who were out on a limb, and far from home. Some critics hoped the French would scuttle their ships, and get it over with, thereby strengthening neither Hitler nor John Bull.

The Monroe doctrine was being further confused and twisted every day, and wee little Uruguay appeared to be its chief Latin American upholder, while the Mexican presidential aspirant twisted Uncle Sam's coat-tails.

Chile was a perfect example of it all. Here were five communist daily papers, and four distinct Trotskyite parties. Germany was its second-best customer, and 40 per cent of the Chileans were illiterate. In Peru, two-thirds of the people were "straight" Indians, who knew and did nothing. South Americans were talking about the four horsemen of the apocalypse. The four horsemen were labeled Hitler, Stalin, John Bull, and Uncle Sam! This was exemplified in a bitter Chilean cartoon.

MORE ODDS AND ENDS

Italy banned necking and petting, believe it or not. The prefect of police, at Milan, put an end to "trivoltine activities, in contrast to the present international situation." Buggy rides, during blackouts, were a special consideration. What price romance, and the resultant birth-rate?

Lithuania "liquidated" the Zionists, and the "reactionaries." Reactionaries, apparently, were any non- or anti-communists.

The Bridle Path

BURMA ROAD:

Nippon Wins

Gen. Chiang Kai-shek has been holding out for a long time against Japan. For this, he has needed military supplies. These came to him through British Burma, and through French Indo-China, and they came in large doses. The Japanese were enraged, and the collapse of France, in Europe, threatened to halt the traffic through Indo-China. But still the war stuff passed along the Burma road to Chungking, Chiang's capital. So Japan got hard-boiled about it. Nippon threatened the British "capital" of China: Hongkong, with its billion of invested mazuza. At first the British held out and defied the Japs, but finally they gave in. They agreed to prohibit the transport of arms and ammunition, trucks and gasoline, and to allow Japanese inspectors to help enforce the air-tight agreement. This eased the Jap-British tension in the Far East, though it may prove to be a death blow to Chiang Kai-shek. But England was in no condition to take on fresh opponents.

AIR BASES:

Should We Fake?

Three members of the house military affairs committee made a survey of our northeastern coast defenses. They were Smith of Connecticut, Faddis of Pennsylvania and Byrns of Tennessee. They recommended that the United States should acquire and fortify fleet and aerial bases in Nova Scotia and Bermuda. They considered that coast defenses for the Yankee northeast were "deplorably" weak. The usual demand is for Newfoundland, Bermuda, and Trinidad, all of them British. Nova Scotia is British-Canadian. They might be traded in to us, as a part payment on the war debt from the last World war.

The three congressmen appeared to be definitely New England-minded, and they thought 18,000 mechanized troops should be stationed "down east."

At about the same time, there was up for consideration in Britain a proposal by the tobacco heiress and her husband, James Cromwell, former U. Seven American ambulance men in France were decorated by the Gallic government, for conspicuous bravery. The seven were Thomas Eaton of Massachusetts, Charles Willen of New York city, Jack Calhoun of Paris, Laurence Jump of Nantucket, Lloyd Moore of Washington, Edwin De Neveu of Paris, Draper Kaufmann of California. Jump was captured, then released, and is in Stuttgart, Germany.

King George VI got a brand-new aide-de-camp. His name is Brigadier J. C. Wickham, age 64. Wickham has the Distinguished Service Order: the D. S. O.

Gen. George Marshall, chief of staff of the United States army, urged that we adopt compulsory military training, and call a general mobilization of the National Guard. Marshall addressed the senatorial military affairs committee. The whole defense and re-armament program was getting more and more confused.

Bahamas to Be New Home for Windsor and 'Wally'

In Nassau, capital of the Bahama Islands, is shown the government house where the duke and duchess of Windsor will take up residence when the former Edward VIII of England assumes his duties as governor and commander-in-chief. The appointment of Windsor to this post was one of the most sensational moves in recent diplomatic history. The duke and "Wally" are shown above. They will arrive in the Bahamas for their new duties some time next month.

'F. D. R.' Library Becomes Museum for U. S. People

This 'Haymaker' Explosive Was No Dud

No dud was this lethal missile which Ken Overlin, middleweight boxer, explodes against the chin of Harry Balsame, his opponent, in a 16-round charity non-title bout in New York city. This fight action was caught by the 1/100,000th-of-a-second photographic speed of the camera. The bout ended in the ninth round with a knockout victory by Overlin.

'Business as Usual'

Women Pray for Future of France

In France's most tragic period since its defeat by the Prussians in 1871, women gather in tearful prayer before the Memorial to the World War Dead at Bordeaux. With complete military collapse, the French cabinet, headed by Marshal Henri Petain, formed a government along Fascist principles like their conquerors, the totalitarian states, abandoned President Lebrun.

WNU SERVICE

THE STORY THUS FAR

Summoned to the C C ranch in central Nevada, Gandy was on his way to help his old partner, Bill Hollister. Riding through unfamiliar country, Gandy is stopped short by a girl—who holds a rifle in firing position. She knows him; tells him that they will meet again. Wait is allowed to ride on. Within a quarter of a mile from his destination, Wait is stopped again. This time by a grotesque, mis-shapen man who tells him the C C crew is in Emigrant, the closest town, for an inquest. Someone has been murdered. Riding to the inquest in Emigrant, Wait leaves his horse at the livery stable. Before attending the inquest he asks a few questions. Cash Cameron, owner of the C C ranch, is in trouble. A hard but honest man, Cash has many enemies. Gandy's eye is caught by a roan horse tied near the doorway. It belongs to the girl who stopped him earlier in the day. Chino Drake, former cook at the C C ranch, has been murdered and Sheriff Ed Battle is trying to pin the blame on Cash Cameron. The girl is called to the stand. She is Helen Cameron, Cash's daughter.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

Facing the girl from his station farther along the table, Battle said: "This inquest meeting was called for one o'clock today. Seems funny that all the C C people got here on time, and you didn't show up for more than an hour, and then alone. Mind explaining why, and where you were?"

The handkerchief came away from the girl's lips. Distinctly she said, "I was not feeling well. I stayed home until the last minute." "On the C C ranch?" Battle persisted.

"I was home. I can prove that," She coughed. Her head turned. With an effort Gandy remained motionless, as for the second time that pulling look of Helen Cameron's dark eyes reached out to him. She was asking him to stand by her! Perhaps he alone knew the truth of where she was today. Was she going to call on him to . . .

His leap was automatic. It had started in the split second that he saw the handkerchief drop from her fingers. Helen was going limp, falling. She caught herself on the table momentarily, and with the release of spring steel that had hurled him forward, Gandy was the first to grab her as she collapsed.

Instantly other arms reached for her. He saw the stern face of Cash Cameron, and behind Cash, Bill Hollister.

It was Hollister who shoved through savagely, brushing aside all others as he swept the small limp body close to him. He looked into Gandy's eyes, flickered recognition, yet gave no sign of that knowledge audibly. . . . and Wait knew then that he and the C C foreman must not be connected here.

He started to back away. One arm still touched the girl, and it was then that he felt her fingers slip swiftly to his hand, grip it, press something wadded into his palm. He closed upon it and continued to back away.

Walt Gandy worked his way from the filled aisle. He stepped across unoccupied benches and had reached the jam at the entrance, when behind him he heard the bull voice of Sheriff Battle:

"Close those doors! Lock 'em!" Deputies struggled to obey, but the double doors, hinged to swing inward could not be readily closed against the thrust of men. Angriest Battle's two guards failed into the pack. In time enough of the curious crowd was beaten backward to allow the doors to be swung and locked.

Walt Gandy had taken a blow on the head, one on the side of his neck, another in the ribs. . . . but when the entrance to Gospel Hall had been blocked at last, he was among the overflow shoved outside.

He put his hand into his blue jeans pocket and felt the wadded thing. Without looking, he knew it was Helen Cameron's handkerchief, dropped upon the table, recovered. In the wad was a lump; and then Gandy needed to feel no further to know that he was carrying away the inquest's key piece of evidence—a bullet from the body of a murdered man.

With a queer cold sensation the truth came to him short-cutting across all other theories and puzzlements of this day. Bill Hollister! They were in love. And Hollister had murdered a man.

Walt gained the open street and looked around. Men had been shot for knowing less than he knew this minute!

CHAPTER V

WALT moved in a moment, going back along the street until he found the Emigrant post office. He went in and asked for a box.

"Forty cents," said the clerk, and gave him a number and a key. Leaning upon a desk that sloped from the end partition, left arm holding his weight, he addressed an envelope to himself, then bought stamps and mailed it. When he turned from the mail slot, a man was eyeing him from the post office door.

Apparently the man had stopped short in passing and stood now but half turned, balanced in a pivoting movement on cow-country boots.

The ramrod form and hard black eyes were vaguely familiar. Walt Gandy knew he had looked into that sharp and swarthy face before. It was a kind he ought to remember.

"Let's have the makings, brother." The ramrod figure had come beside him.

Their eyes met. "Brush-popper, are you?" the dark one asked. "So, so," said Gandy. "Down my way we work cattle in cover that rattlesnakes crawl into and get broken backs trying to crawl out of. Yeah, I guess I'm a brush-popper all right." He took a drag on his cigarette.

The other grinned faintly. The unceasing study of his gaze shifted downward.

No gun belt nor holster sagged at Walt Gandy's right thigh, but a worn and faded patch along the seam of his blue jeans was a plain mark to any interested observer. A revolver carried on border duty had rubbed that spot. Some men might guess at another purpose.

Abruptly this one said, "I'd like to talk to you."

"Sure," said Gandy. "Fire away."

"Not here. Over there." The black head nodded across the street.

Walt tossed away his cigarette, saying nothing; they moved together.

"I was home, I can prove that."

er across to the wide maw of the livery barn.

They had reached long covered grain bins beside the runway. He backed against one and propped himself, half sitting.

The ramrod figure faced him. "I've been ordered to hire some help," the man said openly. "That's what I'm in town for. With every-one drifting in to the hearing, it looked like a good chance to take my pick. You want work?"

"Cows?" Gandy asked.

"Moving about two thousand head," said the man.

Walt glanced past him. "Short-time job, huh?"

"Pay'll make up for it."

"I don't know," said Walt slowly, shaking his head. "I don't like this country so much. Was traveling for Utah, maybe to quit this cow business and do me some prospecting. I don't know," he mused. "More money in that."

"See here," said the stranger, short tempered, "you don't need to stall me up for higher pay! I'll be enough."

"Oh, sure," Gandy agreed. "But I don't know your country. Why don't you pick yourself some men that already have the lay of things here?"

"Good men," came the prompt answer, "are hard to find, even these days. You wouldn't think it, but they are."

Lazily Walt Gandy leaned on the grain bin, indifferent. "How many men you looking for?" His brown eyes poked into various corners about the barn.

"Ten, twelve. We won't be short-handed."

"Huh?" Abruptly Gandy's non-committal gaze returned from an inspection of the stables and narrowed into the black face before him. "Ten, twelve men to shift a herd of two thousand cows? Where I come from we'd do that with a couple of boys and a dog!"

Hands on the grain bin cover, he pushed himself upright onto his feet. The other man moved back a step. "No one's prodding you into the job," he said. "Guess you haven't got what I thought you had, brother."

Walt smiled dryly. "Suppose," he suggested, "we quit boasting each other and see what's in the pot. I've got plenty of what you thought I had, and I'm looking for work. But I don't figure to make this my last job."

"Meaning?"

"That you are going to move two thousand head of cattle. . . . and what else? Somebody's boundary line?"

parently he qualified for what this stranger wanted, and he did not know whether that fact was a compliment or discredit.

"Cash Cameron," the man answered. "But the C C is done for, everyone knows that. Cameron's tangled up with the law right now, over a killing on his ranch. That's what this inquest is about. He's in a hole and before he gets himself out of it, those money bags of his will be too flat to carry much stock on this range." And then as a conclusive amendment: "If he gets out at all."

"Cameron caught that bad?"

"Will be, Sunk, sure as taxes! That's what, and the Emigrant ranchmen know it. There's going to be one smashing scramble for public range that the C C controls. But the man I'm boss for is getting the jump. Satisfied now?"

Gandy's brown gaze hardened. "Friend," he said, "that kind of rubs me the wrong way, heaving rocks in on a man when he's at the bottom of a hole." The focus of his eyes sharpened. "Any chance that someone reached out and shoved him in?"

"What do you care!" The easy voice turned suddenly surlly. "How about the job?"

Walt measured the distance between himself and the ramrod body. He looked into the black eyes. "I wouldn't handle it," he said, "with a pitchfork and rubber gloves!"

It took a second for that to penetrate. "Why you skunk! You draw me out, then turn me down?" A hammerhead fist lashed upward.

Walt Gandy had measured the distance well. He drew his chin back only a little. The fist shaved past. At waist level his own hooked in—a short left jab and a longer drive with the right. The ramrod figure doubled. Walt slammed it upward again with an open-handed shove in the face.

And then he cut loose savagely from sheer reaction after the inquest's high pressure and from the treacherous talk he had listened to just now. His hard body leaned in behind two punches that sent the other man teetering backward.

These first exchanges had come in a moment's rush. The black one had had no time to gather himself. But now, even as Gandy followed his advantage, the man dug to a stop in the dirt floor of the runway, stiffened, and his frame seemed all spring steel. He launched from boot toes sunk into the earth. His arm had a yard-long reach and came with the explosive drive of a piston.

Gandy was rocked to the roots. He spun half around and the next blow slid from his turning body. Foot-work-carried him aside, gave a second's recuperation. Experience told him not to take his eyes from the other's quickly shifting fists. But with hat knocked off, the long sharp features of this man's face were fully exposed for the first time.

Walt Gandy looked, and in a glimpse of twitching jaw muscles, and of cold slitted eyes he read more than a passing flare of anger. This was going to reach far. He had no doubt that he faced an opponent who would kill.

In the second that his eyes shifted from the fists to the man's face, a treacherous move was begun. A right jab to his heart was in the open. He saw that. It was only from his eye corners that he caught sight of a boot toe kicked out to trip him. He half blocked the heart blow. Then all of his strength went into a sudden hooking of his leg around the other's shin.

What happened next was short. They tripped, stumbled, legs locked. Walt Gandy fell an arm around him like a steel band. The steel crushed inward. Wind went out of him. It was no longer a fight but a savage brush for survival. With abrupt relaxation of every muscle he let himself fall backward. As the man came over, off-balance, Walt stiffened again and rolled in the air.

His one-hundred-and-seventy-pound weight was on top when they hit the earth. Breath gushed from the form beneath him. He leaped up. The other lay still, his black hair stringing on the ground.

The blood was hot in Gandy's veins, boiling. He reached down and twisted hard fingers in the shirt collar, dragged the man to the nearest grain bin, raised the cover, lifted him in both arms and rolled him onto a bed of oats. The cover had a padlock. Walt snapped it.

Then he turned. The gaunt attendant stood gaping in the runway. His bony jaw worked up and down, wordless.

Gandy leaned winded and dizzy against a post. He said, "I'll take my horse now." When the attendant only stared, he rocked along closer. "What's the matter?"

"He'll kill you!" the old fellow gasped.

"Maybe," Walt said. He took his chair from the side bench and struggled into them, fumbling the buckles.

The gaunt man stood rooted. "But that was Pete Kelsol Of the 77!"

Straightening, Walt Gandy felt in his pockets for money. "Here." He tossed a silver dollar. "Can you forget Pete for a little while? He likes it there in the box."

"But that was Kelsol!"

"Sure. Will you get me' brose?"

CHAPTER VI

THE inquest was over, and Walt Gandy put his Sunspot palomino into a thinning crowd along the street. Already knots of men had formed to rehash again this thing that had descended upon the Emigrant Bench, and it seemed to Walt as he passed among them, that each group represented an individual war-camp.

Helen Cameron's roan horse was not where Walt had seen it at a post near Gospel Hall. He passed the windowed store building, now empty. A man stepped suddenly from a street corner and catopped him with an upraised left hand.

Walt Gandy looked down from his saddle. The man flipped back the lapel of his coat to let the silvered surface of a deputy's badge gleam momentarily.

"Sheriff wants to see you," he said. "Office is down there." The deputy pointed into a cross-street. He followed afoot as Gandy turned his palomino in that direction.

Sheriff Battle sat behind an ancient, flat-topped desk, slouched in a swivel chair with a back high enough to support his large head. A second man, seated on a wall bench running from the desk end, was Hollister.

The C C foreman uncrossed long legs and stood up, his weathered, studious face lighting with a grin. "This the man you mean, Battle? I know this fellow. You don't need to search him." He turned to Walt and held out his hand. "How are you?"

Bill Hollister knew nothing about the stolen bullet. Walt Gandy was certain of that as he gave back the handclasp and the grin. He looked into the face of this partner who had urged him up from the border, across two weeks of hard desert travel, and in that silent second he was aware of something. Bill Hollister had changed. How, he could not say, had no time to consider, for even as the thought flashed to him, he heard Battle snap:

"You don't need to tell me what I need to do, Hollister! Al?"

"Yeah," said the deputy at Gandy's back.

"Go through him!"

Walt jerked around. "Not so fast, you!" He looked into the bore of the deputy's gun. "Aw, put that bean-shooter away. What's the charge, Sheriff? Got a search warrant, have you?"

Battle had risen, drawing his huge weight upward and propping it stiff-armed on the desk top. "You, All! What's the matter with you? I said go through him!"

Walt laughed. He raised his arms and felt the hands move thoroughly through his pockets. Matches, money, tobacco, his watch, his knife, a horseshoe nail and his handkerchief; nothing more. He saw Ed Battle sink down like the gas going out of a big ballroom.

The sheriff glared at his deputy. He seemed to feel it was the man's fault that nothing had been found. He hesitated, cigar in his teeth, frowning with mental effort. Here away from the eyes of his voters, Sheriff Battle became less a thunderous bull, roaring for results, and seemed a human being of not too much will, easily swayed, and at this moment, baffled.

"Hollister," he launched out bluntly, "I'm giving you a chance. I want you to come in with the law!"

Hollister grinned. "You," he emphasized, "want me to come in with the law. Where do you figure I am, Ed?"

"Up a flagpole and no ladders," said Battle promptly. "It'll be for the good of the C C and the whole Emigrant Bench," he went on, solemn-faced. "If you and me can get down on the same footing. Look out there on the street. Look at those women. They and the kids are the ones who are going to suffer if our ranchmen get to gun-fighting with each other. I'm older than you—I've seen bloody times, and they didn't start from no more than what has happened here right now!"
