Frilled Curtains Give Glamour to Windows

ber of smart new accessories for her living room.

She discovered that a diagonal dart, which took up the curtains at the back; threw more fullness to the front, thus giving the new high drape a smart line. Tie-backs and valance were made of flowered chintz in rose and plum tones, lined with plain plum colored chintz. One yard of each kind of chintz was required for each window.

NOTE: The chintz covered lamp shade and the spool table also add interest to this window. Full directions for making a shade like the one illustrated are in SEWING, Book 1. Directions for the spool table are in Book 5; also descriptions of the first four booklets in this series. There are 22 home-making projects in each number; for which there is a service charge of 10c each to cover cost and mailing. Send order to:

"All the Traffic Would Bear"

There was a time in America when there were no set prices. Each merchant charged what he thought "the traffic would bear." Advertising came to the rescue of the consumer.

Sportlights of GRANTLAND RICE

THE Cincinnati Reds are obstinate fellows and refused to believe what they were told, especially about themselves.

Grantland Rice give way to either the Dodgers or the Cardinals.

But here they are with another series under their belt. I asked Bill McKechnie if he had any trouble bringing the Reds back from the big crash.

"None at all," he said. "They knew just how bad they looked but instead of being depressed about it, they simply were fighting mad."

"And Lombardi?" "He brushed the series off," Bill said. "I've never heard him refer to it except lightly and I know he didn't do any brooding about it."

This Team Came Back

A game crew, the Reds believed in nobody but themselves and so escaped the fate of other clubs that had been run over by the rolling Yankees. No other club beaten in four straight games by the Yankees, ever came back to win the following year and that was more than a coincidence. The morale of the victims had been shattered by the defeat and the criticism and abuse that followed it.

McKechnie himself was a victim of one of those debacles, losing his job when the Cardinals cracked in 1929 after the Yankees had flattened them in the fall of '28. But this time he had a stronger sbered bunch and they hammered back from the ragged edges of ruin.

The Big Three

Barring that one slump early in August, when Lombardi and Gene Thompson were out with injuries and the whole team rocked under the tragic fate of Hershberger, the Reds have given such a smooth performance that it is difficult to pick out this man or that and say that if it hadn't been for him, they wouldn't have rushed to another flag.

But I'll cite three men without whom the Reds would have had much harder going: Lombardi, Joe Beggs, and Bill Werber.

Beggs' case illustrates once more that a capable relief pitcher is indispensable in modern baseball.

Those Eighteen Games

McKechnie credits Beggs with saving at least eight games that do not appear in his record. Since his record was 10 victories and only two defeats, you can chalk up 18 games the Reds would not have won without him. Take those 18 games out of the victory column and put them on the other side of the ledger and the Reds would have been whittling for a pennant, much less a World Series.

Beggs has the two qualities that are most essential to a relief pitcher," Bill said. "Control and faith in himself. A fellow moving in to check an enemy assault must be able to get the ball around the plate—and must take no account of the odds against him. Beggs has wonderful control and I never saw a pitcher who, without being in the least conceited, never has the slightest doubt about himself."

Series Power House

Werber, this year as last, was the key man in the infield which, by the way, made fewer errors than any in the league. Challengers in 1938, the Reds cracked in the infield and faded as the Cubs went on to win. Last year Werber, at third base, worked a startling improvement in their first line of defense, pulling it sharply together and holding it.

This year he not only kept a tight grip on the defense but on the attack he slammed the ball in the pitcher's

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

By ROBERT McSHANE Released by Western Newspaper Union

WITH the World Series of 1940 already written into the record books, American league fans still are wondering how it all happened.

Deacon Bill McKechnie, pilot of the world-champion Cincinnati Reds; knows most of the answers. He knows, for instance, that the Red pitching staff was superior to anything the Tigers faced during the current season. Derringer, with his smartness and control—with that famed side-arm curve—was a man to be depended on, despite a weak start. The Kentucky sharpshooter handed out very few gifts.

The Old Master

Twice, with Hank Greenberg on base, Derringer blanked Rudy York in the final and decisive game. In three innings, with the Tiger lead-off man on base, "Oom Paul" took a notch in his belt and held the damage to one unearned run. When it was over, Paul had allowed exactly as many hits as did Buck Newsum—seven—but he held the winning ticket in the matter of runs. It was the third time in 10 years that a World Series went seven games, and the fourth National league victory in the last decade. When the Cards last won, six years ago, two pitchers, like Derringer and Walters, each won two games. Those two pitchers were Dizzy and Paul Dean.

As one baseball writer put it, the series was a matter of pitch and punch. It was a duel between the salary whip of Cincinnati's pitchers and the war clubs handled by the Tiger sluggers. Cincinnati called the turn by hitting at a better clip than the Tigers. That, plus superb pitching in the clinches, put the National league on top after a long span of desolation and sadness.

BILL McKECHNIE

The Reds were ripe for a series victory this year. The team paid no attention to the fact that it was beaten four straight by the Yankees in 1939. That fact alone was supposed to spell defeat. Instead of being disheartened, the Reds proved to be a better ball club than they were last year. Much of the credit goes to Bill McKechnie, one of the most popular managers of the present baseball era.

No Forgotten Man

Del Baker, however, hasn't been forgotten in the rush. Early season dopsters had the Tigers resting in fourth place at the season's end. Many of the baseball-wise gentry had them fighting for top billing in the second division. How the Tigers managed to win a pennant still baffles most old-time baseball players. The infield was slated to fold when the going got tough. York, Gehring, Bartell and Higgins weren't names to conjure with. But they did have the courage to carry on through days that meant real physical suffering on the ball field.

It was a spot where experience made up for the lack of youth. That experience came very close to carrying the Tigers through to victory.

Dozens of reasons have been advanced for the Reds' victory. Some of them undoubtedly were contributing factors. But the principal reason for Cincinnati's grip on the world championship rests in the pitching arms of Paul Derringer and Bucky Walters. They helped prove that a easy, capable pitching staff is more to be desired than an array of sluggers.

Deacon Bill McKechnie is the authority for that statement.

Three other men who should not be overlooked for their share in the Reds' success are Joe Beggs, Lombardi and Bill Werber. While they weren't outstanding in the series, their consistent work throughout the season made it possible for Cincinnati to compete for the crown—and that's just as important.

Sport Shorts

THE Georgia Tech-Notre Dame game on October 12 was Notre Dame's 400th. Last year the South Bend team opened its season against Purdue with victory No. 300.

Several members of the 1919 world champion Reds, victors over the Chicago Black Sox, were on hand to cheer the Cincinnati team to victory this year. The Minneapolis club of the American Association will train for the 1941 season in New Braunfels, Texas, next spring.

AXIS CONFERENCE

Mussolini—Well! Von Ribbentrop—You took the word out of my mouth!

Mussolini—What explanation has Hitler to make to me? Von Ribbentrop—Explanation for what?

Mussolini—He was to have licked England by August. I had his word for it.

Von Ribbentrop—Everything in a war can't be done according to schedule.

Mussolini—This is a fine time to tell me!

Von Ribbentrop—Germany can't help it if the British fail to give up in accordance with our expectations. Their slowness in surrendering is very disturbing to Herr Hitler.

Mussolini—If it disturbs Hitler, what do you think it does to me?

Von Ribbentrop—But there is nothing for us to worry about.

Mussolini—Did you ever try standing for any length of time with one foot in the middle of a desert, one in the middle of the sea and the other foot in the middle of Europe?

Von Ribbentrop—You are giving yourself too many feet.

Mussolini—Before I get through I may need 'em. I don't like the looks of things.

Von Ribbentrop—Why did you come into the war?

Mussolini—You know very well why I came in: You gave me a complete scenario, showing that France was finished and that England was as good as sunk.

Von Ribbentrop—Everything will come out as we promised. All we need is patience and a new plan.

Mussolini—Why can't you mop up England the way you did all those other countries? There must be traitors, fifth columnists and quitters there, too.

Von Ribbentrop—Yes, but England has 'em all in jail. Now listen, Der Fuehrer says you have got to take Gibraltar. Are you ready?

Mussolini—Who? Me!

Von Ribbentrop—We must have the co-operation of Spain. We must move fast.

Mussolini—My troops never moved faster than they did when they were in Spain.

Von Ribbentrop—This time it's got to be in the right direction.

Mussolini—There are moments when I think maybe we are biting off more than we can chew.

Von Ribbentrop—You have my assurance this will be done on a 50-50 basis.

Mussolini—What do you mean by that?

Von Ribbentrop—Germany will do the biting; you can do the chewing.

Mussolini—The more you talk the more nervous I get.

Von Ribbentrop—Bace up! Don't you know Germany and Italy are super races? Don't you know they are the two greatest Powers on earth? Don't you know they are nations with a destiny? Don't you know they will rule the world?

Mussolini—I know it, and you know it... but does the world know it?

Trouble Looms in Balkans as Russia Masses Troops on Rumanian Border; Nazi Air Raids on London Continue; Political Campaign Enters Final Stages

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Reports from the Balkans indicate that Russian troops have massed on the Rumanian border and are keeping a watchful eye on the activities of Hitler's troops who have entered that country. This picture would bear out these facts for here is none other than that seldom photographed Deputy People's Commissar of Defense, Marshal S. Budenny (mustache), looking across the Russian border into Rumania from a Soviet observation post in the Odessa military district. Two army aides are shown with him.

THE WAR: Boiling Balkans

Always a question mark in the intrigues of European politics, the Balkan states again are claiming their share of the world spotlight. When Adolf Hitler's troops marched into Rumania to "protect" Rumanian oil fields and "train" Rumanian soldiers, military experts wondered what effect this would have on the attitude of Soviet Russia toward the axis powers. For Russia, too, is interested in Rumania. More than this Russia is vitally interested in any eastward expansion of the Hitler regime.

At first Berlin reported that Moscow knew and approved of this infiltration. Then news began to come in that the Soviet troops were on the march toward the Rumanian border. Two Rumanian patrol boats on the Danube were reported sunk by the Russians. In the strategic area around the mouth of the Danube both the German and Russian forces were reported to be speedily strengthening their military positions.

Just what Hitler's plans in the Balkans are remained, of course, a closely guarded military secret. There was much speculation centering around two possible motives in addition to the avowed aid in training Rumanian troops and the protection of the oil fields, so vital to the German war machine. These speculative motives were: (1) perhaps the axis powers were attempting to draw attention away from the British Isles in order to launch some sort of a surprise tactic against England, or (2) Germany was using the Balkan route for a march to drive the British out of the eastern Mediterranean regions.

CAMPAIGN: Home Stretch

As the 1940 campaign entered its final stages it continued to follow the outline established following the major party conventions. Willkie continued to make most of the speeches for his party and Henry Wallace was the busiest political speaker of the Democratic party.

Willkie's speeches grew more vigorous as the campaign drew toward a close and Roosevelt's fare "political" appearances still possessed the same pattern of 1932 and 1936.

Public opinion polls came in for their share of the praise and abuse. When the Gallup poll showed that Candidate Roosevelt would more than likely carry the election, the Republicans countered with the Dunn survey, reputed to show Candidate Willkie out in front.

BIG FOUR: No Like?

There was increasing talk of a vast four-sided alliance between the British Empire, the United States, Soviet Russia and the China of General-Dictator Chiang Kai-shek. It was intended to thwart the axis of Germany, Italy and Japan. Thus would the world's seven big powers line up, it was stated by some rail-birds.

The state department was undoubtedly wooing the Soviets, to counterbalance the rising sun of Nippon. Stalin liked the axis combine no better than did Roosevelt. It was true, objectors said, that British investments in the Far East were 10 times as large as those of the Yankees, and that the Far East was 7,000 miles away, and that we were scheduled to get out of the Philippines anyway, and many Americans did not like Moscow at any price whatsoever.

Some of the British were pleased, but others were gravely worried. Some of them said that the more we pointed far eastward, the less we could do for the British Isles in time of stress, strain and the beating hammer of Thor. Certain military men grumbled about quarreling on two fronts at the same time—a basic army axiom, anywhere, any time. It was all on the knees of the gods—yellow, red, and white, alike.

DEFENSE: Registration

First step in national conscription was completed with the registration of some 16,500,000 young men between the ages of 21 and 36. Reporting to more than 120,000 polling places throughout the country they listed personal information about themselves and now await the results of the lottery in Washington which will decide in what order they may be called into service.

PLANES: Estimates

According to one conservative British estimator, the Germans have lost close to 6,500 planes in the second world war. This is a whole of an estimate. The planes would be worth around half a billion dollars, which is a lot of money, and in marks is astronomical.

Not only that. There was more to it. The same estimator estimated that the Germans had lost 13,500 pilots. Pilots are much harder to replace than mere airplanes, be they Messerschmitts, Heinkels, Junkers, or Dorniers. It was figured that the Germans had lost three times as many bombers (Heinkels, Junkers) as they had fighters (Messerschmitts made in Augsburg). Most of these planes had Mercedes-Benz motors, built in the old Zeppelin works on Lake Constance, at Mannheim, and Stuttgart. The Mercedes plants have been badly bombed by the royal air force.

Germany was supposed to have an air force of approximately 20,000 planes and 25,000-30,000 pilots. The sensational British figures were probably topheavy, as is usual in aerial warfare.

'Kinder'

Germany might have lost those 6,500 and 13,500, but the Londoners didn't take it to heart. The London county council advised all mothers, in its complete 29 areas, to evacuate themselves and their children in toto. In addition, everybody of 65 or over, and the infirm of body, were told to get out and stay out. These provisions had previously been applied only to the 14 worst local areas, and the spread-over to 26, made the whole matter "totalitarian." Health Minister Malcolm MacDonald, son of the late-lamented famous Ramsay, was in charge of the women-child-aged-air-raid trek to the sticks.

Smuggled Refugee

HOBOKEN, N. J.—Franz Werfel, refugee author, is pictured aboard the Greek liner "Nea Hellas" as it arrived in this U. S. port recently. He was sneaked out of France via "underground railway" methods. Werfel is the author of "The Forty Days of Musa Dagh" and 35 other volumes.

ITALY: Indifferent

Virginio Gayda, Mussolini's journalist stooge at Rome, denied that the so-called Axis was out to defeat Mr. Roosevelt. Gayda said that Italy was indifferent. Just the same, Italy was touchy. The local authorities ordered the expulsion of the famous Herbert Matthews, New York Times correspondent, because "he falsely stated that Italy and the Axis would interfere in the United States' presidential election." The Romans claimed that Signor Matthews tended to disturb relations between Italia and Columbia.

Signor Matthews knows all about pauper Italy-at-war. He was in the Ethiopian war, as a correspondent, and also in the Spanish civil strife, where Italians were rife. He is considered tops, professionally, as well as honest and objective, plus a conscience. He wrote an exceedingly good book on Spain & Ethiopia.

STYLES: Anti-papal?

The pope addressed 10,000 Italian young women. He objected vigorously to up-to-date fashions and cosmetics. He also warned against bad novels (some say they're all bad nowadays), plays, movies, and amusement hotspots.

Said the pope: "You should ask your conscience, before putting on a frock, how Jesus Christ would judge it." He also spoke for peace, and repair of the fruitless devastation of the fat-lamented past year. The Vatican showed anxiety lest England and America start wooing atheist Russia, as a counterweight to Musso-Mikado-Hitler. World Catholicism still regards Stalin as the No. 1 foe, and perhaps not without reason. But Earl Browder, the bad redboy, had another viewpoint altogether, for he suggested a triple Chinese-Russian-American alliance—to "win through, out of the present dangers and chaos."

BERMUDA: Sidelight

There was a curious little appeal from New York out of Bermuda. It was just this. The retreat at Dunkirk was covered by two heroic Highlander regiments—the Black Watch and the Camerons. (Other Highland outfits are the Gordons, the Seaforth's, the Argyll & Sutherlands. They all date back close to 200 years.)

Some 200 of the shattered Cameron veterans were sent to Bermuda for recuperation. Most of them were wounded, and had been decorated. Many were under 20 years of age. Their pay was only $3.75 per week, and they couldn't afford to sight-see in carriages, or travel by train.

So an appeal went out from New York for old bicycles, that these boys-veit could get around and have some fun. The appeal aroused considerable interest. The committee was ready to collect and dispatch the bikes free of charge.

MISCELLANY:

One hundred fifty years, eight months and five days after the first U. S. Supreme court assembled in New York city to begin the writing of U. S. judicial history, the nine present justices of that body gathered in Washington for the first session of the 1940-41 term.

Axis diplomacy was read into the Italian honor which was extended to Spain's General Franco, whereby he was made a "cousin of the king." He was decorated with the Collar of the Supreme Order of Santissima Annunziata.

A serious New York truck strike was averted, when after a 36-hour walkout, drivers and employers agreed upon terms proposed by Mayor LaGuardia.

In Cuba, 38-year-old Fulgencio Batista was inaugurated as president of that country.

Princess Elizabeth Alexandria Mary, elder daughter of King George of England, broadcast an international radio message to all the children of the British empire in which she appealed to them to be brave and have courage during these "days of trouble."

F. B. I. Agents Put On Exhibition Students

Federal Bureau of Investigation agents giving a night-firing exhibition with Tommy guns, using tracer bullets, at their Quantico, Va., range. They also demonstrated quick-draw pistol shooting from the hips. The exhibition was given before the National Police academy graduates.

Royal Family of Luxembourg Is Reunited

Vincent Sheean and H. P. Knickerbocker (right), famed war correspondents, shown in New York after leaving the Pan-American clipper. They are scanning the map of their separate lecture tours, during which they will give the public an account of the Battle of Britain. Both were in London during weeks of incessant bombing raids.

Father Edward J. Walsh of Brooklyn; Paul O'Connor, chairman; Dr. Everett K. Geisler, conference director, and Rabbi Samuel Goldson, of New York.

Rare Bird

Victor W. Von Harpe, naturalist, brings a pycnonotus quercal from Guatemala to the New York zoo. The quercal is said to be the most valuable bird in the world.

NAMES in the news

Claire Booth, wife of Henry Luce, the Time-Fortune publisher, and a playwright and author herself, spoke as follows, in the presence of Mrs. Wendell Willkie: "When it is necessary, Willkie would lead it easier to lead us into the war, because people are not so suspicious of him." The Luce periodicals have been supporting Willkie, too.

The great old pianist, Jan Fiedorowicz, nearly 80, got to Lisbon, Portugal, with his sister, 85. They had come in from Switzerland, en route to America. Once the great musician was president of ex-Poland. "Thank God," he said, "my hands are still as strong as ever." He could not walk, unaided. He was a 60-year-old man.

Hidden Ways

By FREDERIC F. VAN DE WATER

SYNOPSIS

David Mallory, in search of newspaper work in New York, is forced to accept a job as switch-board operator in a swank apartment house, managed by officious Timothy Higgins. There David meets Miss Agatha Paget, a crippled old lady, and her charming niece, Alicia. One day, talking with Higgins in the lobby, David is alarmed by a piercing scream. David finds the scream came from the Ferriter apartment, not far from the Pagets. The Ferriters include Lyon and Everett, and their sister, Iona. Everett, a genealogist, is helping Agatha Paget write a book about her blue-blooded ancestors. Inside the apartment they find a blackbearded man—dead. No weapon can be found.

CHAPTER II—Continued

Hoyt had brought down a thick-shouldered person with an unlighted cigar clamped in his jaws who advanced and tapped Higgins on the shoulder so that the superintendent jumped.

"Higgins?" his accoster asked. "C'm on. Captain wants you."

My employer cast a look of appeal over his shoulder as he was marched away. It puzzled me. I could not imagine him a murderer, yet he had asked me for an alibi.

An elderly young man in a Chesterfield overcoat, with a cane hooked over his arm and glasses tethered to a black cord, approached the policeman at the door, stood for some minutes, in argument but conversation with the sentinel, and then pushed past him, undeterred.

Something in his cocksure swagger irked me and woke foggy recollection. As he spoke, I recognized him. He had strolled through the anteroom of the Sphere's offices that noon while I had waited for the scornful office boy to tell me once again that Lomax, the city editor, could not see me.

"Evening," said the intruder briskly. "I'm from the Sphere. Duke, Larry Duke."

It was childish to vent my grievance against Lomax upon his reporter; but my nerves were jangled and I had had no lunch, thanks to my fruitless journey to the Sphere's office.

"Yes?" I said. Duke leaned against the switch-board and lit a cigarette. That made me angrier. I needed one so. "Had a little killing upstairs, eh?" he asked. "Know anything about it?"

"Plenty," I told him. "I found the body."

That shook him up. He jerked so that his eyeglasses fell off. He hauled copy paper from his pocket. "Ain't," he grinned, "ain't this somepin? First, let's get your name right."

I gave it to him. He printed it carefully at the top of the page. "Now," he gloated, "tell me all about it. How did you know there'd been a killing? When did it happen?"

"Easy," I said. "I'm not working for the Sphere."

He put on his glasses again and stared at me.

"I don't get you," he said at last. "Sure you don't?" I told him and I loved it. I was landing a punch at last after being hammered all over the ring. "You don't get me—or a word out of me."

He looked at me harder. "Now wait," he wheedled. "Don't be that way. If you can give this to me exclusive, there'll be a piece of change in it for you."

"I can," I said, "but I won't, and I'll tell you why."

It felt so good to get a little of my own back that I wanted more. And besides I never saw a man with a black tie-ropes to his glasses whom I liked. In my mind I combined Duke and his boss, Lomax, retaining the worst features of both.

"Believe it or not," I told the reporter, "I used to be a newspaper man myself. I came to this town with a letter to Lomax from Doc Gilchrist. When Lomax didn't have two nickels to rub together, Doc gave him a job and taught him all he knows. I sent in the letter. Lomax was busy; came back in a week. In a week he was still busy. And the week after and the week after that."

"Boy," said Duke, "there are a lot better newspaper men than you'll ever be looking for work in this town and not finding any."

"Maybe," I granted. "If you knew the story I could write at present, you'd change your mind. Not getting a job isn't what grieves. Your boss is too important even to give old Doc Gilchrist's friend a hand-shake and wish him luck. Doc read me his letter to Lomax. Which is one of the reasons why I say hell with him and with you."

The thick man stood beside me; he had chewed an inch off his cigar since I had seen him last.

"Hi, Larry," he said to Duke and turning to me:

"If you've finished the lecture, mug, the Captain wants you upstairs. As a matter of fact, he wants you anyway. On your feet."

"Hey listen, Jake," the reporter begged, "give me a steer, will you? What's going on? Is it big?"

"Colossal," the other replied, pushing me toward the elevator. "You'll see you boys later. I can't stop now."

He glared at me all the way upstairs. I glared back. I felt better somehow. They had cops like him in my own town and besides, for the first time since I reached New York, I felt I was important to somebody.

CHAPTER III

The patrolman still stood before the Ferriter door. It was open and I could hear men inside talking and furniture being moved and I saw the short white glare of a flashlight. Jake pushed me off the elevator and I kept from asking him how he'd like a sock in the nose, remembering just in time that this wasn't my town.

"Whoa," he said as I turned toward the open door. "Not there, sap. In here."

He jerked his head toward the Paget apartment, turned the door-knob and waved me in before him. It was dark by now and all the lights were on in the workroom. Three men were there. The ember head, who I learned was Captain Malachi Shannon of the Homicide Squad, kept walking up and down before Higgins who sat and sweated in a chair by the desk where a greasy little dick took shorthand. In the corner, calmly alert, Miss Paget occupied her wheel chair. She seemed more out of place, yet even more wholly enjoying herself, than a bishop in a crap game.

I must have showed what I thought for in the moment's silence, while Shannon walked up and down the rug again and Higgins perspired more, the old lady said:

"The Captain's associates are still busy in the Ferriter flat, David. So I put my own at his service."

The grin, that lent her withered face youth, heartened me. Shannon turned on Higgins again, started to speak, bit his lip, rumped his hair and said at last:

"All right. You can go. But not far. I may want you later."

"Yes, sir," Higgins grunted, heaving himself up. The chair I took was warm from the superintendent's stewing. Jake stood in the doorway, and chewed his cigar. Shannon rumped his hair some more and then wheeled on me.

"Now get this," he stormed, "I want the truth out of you."

Partly, it was the presence of the old lady; partly, it was because I hadn't liked being pushed around by Jake. My squabble with Duke had boosted my morale, too.

"And get this," I told Shannon and he gaped: "I'll tell you just as much more if you don't yell."

His eyes were clever for all the Irish obstinacy of his freckled face. "Tough, eh?" he asked at last.

"With tough guys," I thought I saw traces of amusement on his face. I did not know whether Miss Agatha coughed, or snorted. Shannon hesitated. I said:

"To save us both time, my name is David Mallory, twenty-nine, employed since last Saturday as a hall-man here, living in the superintendent's flat in the cellar."

"Ah," Shannon purred, looking at me hard, "one of these wise birds?"

"I passed for one," I replied, "in my home town. Even the cops said so."

"Cops knew quite a lot about you, eh?" I granted. Shannon asked politely:

"They did," I admitted. "I was a reporter on the News, in Omaha. You can check up on that, though I'd rather you wouldn't."

"I see," said Shannon in a deceptively mild voice, "then what are you doing on a job like this?"

"I have a yen for food," I answered and wished that Miss Paget were somewhere else. "I just can't get along without it. I came East for work I didn't get. I ran into Eddie Hoyt—he's on the elevator—last week. His father had worked for mine. Eddie got me this job. We were kids together."

"And if you were so hard up as that," the Captain went on and I felt something tense behind his pleasant manner, "why didn't you go back to Omaha?"

"I drew a breath. "I'll make this," I said, trying to be jaunty about it, "as short and as cheerful as I can. Hunter, who was city editor of the Sphere, liked my work. He sent for me to come on. Hunter was canned the day I'd planned to come and a so-and-so named Lomax took his place."

"I know him," Shannon nodded. "It's nothing to boast about. They gave me a farewell dinner on the News and a gold watch. I haven't either of them now. My boss in Omaha, Gilchrist, raised Lomax from a pup, but not very far. Gilchrist gave me a letter. He was certain it would get me the job Hunter had promised. Well, it didn't. Or it hadn't up to noon today, which was the last time I called at the Sphere office."

"I won't crawl back home, whipped. That's why I'm in this handsome, second-hand uniform. It lets me stay alive here, and I make the rounds of the papers in my spare time. Every office boy in town now locks the city room door when he sees me coming."

I hated the shaky quality of my laugh.

"You can check up," I invited, "through the Omaha chief of the News—but you can see why I'd rather you didn't."

He nodded, thought a minute and then sat down with a sigh.

"All right, fella," he said with the comradeship cops can always show when they need newspaper help. "Here's what we know so far."

He rattled through a catalogue of unrelated details:

Blackbeard had been stabbed through the heart. No one knew how he got into the Morello, for there was no entrance to this main building except the foyer or by elevator from the basement. No identification had been found in his clothes, though there was money in his pocket. No one knew whether the Ferriters knew him. Iona was still too hysterical to be questioned. Neither of her brothers had come in. Everett had gone out at four o'clock. No one had seen Lyon, the older brother, since he left the apartment house that morning.

"That," said Shannon, "is as far as we've gone. What have you got to add?"

I was so slow in answering that his eyes grew hard again. Astonishment silenced me. In the confusion before and after the finding of the dead man, I had forgotten that last telephone call from the Ferriter flat. Memory of it, flashing back now, blew my mind about.

"Sorry," I told the Captain and gave a weak grin. "I just remembered something. I took a phone call from Three B a half-hour—maybe twenty minutes—before Miss Ferriter began her screaming. Perhaps I heard the man killed."

Even the oily little stenographer stared at me.

"What time was this?" Shannon asked hoarsely.

"Just before Miss Paget's chair broke down. That made me forget."

I told of the phone call from the Ferriter flat, of the comment in a thick, foreign tongue, apparently to someone else in the apartment and of the muffled thump that followed.

"What number was it?" Shannon asked.

"I shrugged. "Spring—something. It's on the pad downstairs."

"Jake," the Captain snapped. The detective clumped down the hall. Shannon ran fingers through his hair again and squinted at nothing.

"Know anything about these Ferriters?" he asked suddenly.

"No. I've been here only a week."

"Never heard why the three of them came here?"

Miss Paget cleared her throat and then spoke precisely.

"It was through me, Captain. Everett Ferriter, as I told you, is a genealogist of some reputation. He has been helping me with a book I'm compiling. When Mrs. Reynolds wished to rent her apartment, I told Everett about it. They are apparently genteel folk, if that means anything."

"Not much, begging your pardon," Shannon retorted.

Miss Agatha nodded. "I quite agree," she said.

Amusement puckered the Captain's eyelids. He turned to me.

"When did this other one, this Lyon Ferriter, go out?"

I thought and shook my head. "I haven't seen him today at all. The others on the hall—"

Shannon's angry grunt cut me short.

"They didn't see Blackbeard come in; they didn't see this Lyon go out. Yet he is out. And Blackbeard is across the hall. And you say someone made a phone call from that apartment and, unless he was talking to himself, there was another guy with him."

He rumped his hair further. I asked Miss Agatha:

"Are the Ferriters foreign born?" She shook her head.

"I believe not. They speak excellent English."

"Then," I went on, "it was Blackbeard who telephoned. A thick voice that sounded as though it might be German."

Jake entered with the call sheet. The half-devoured cigar wobbled in his mouth and his finger, shook as he handed the page to his chief and pointed.

The Captain said no word but looked for a long minute before he held the paper out to me with his thumbnail indenting its margin.

"That the call?" he asked in a voice I felt he kept so mild by great effort.

"Yes," I said. "At three-thirty by the clock on the switchboard, I don't know whether it was complete or not. I plugged in and then—"

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for October 27

CHRISTIAN MOTIVES FOR ABSTINENCE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 1:13-16; 3:40; 4:4; 11:27, 28. GOLDEN TEXT—For the Kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost.—Romans 14:17.

Life is our most precious possession. No intelligent person will waste its fleeting moments, nor defer to a later season the living of his life to the best advantage. We live now—today.

Nor is any thoughtful one ready to let life slip by without its finest and richest return of usefulness and blessing, not only to himself, but to others. International Temperance Sunday affords us an opportunity to show our young people that those who indulge in intoxicants cannot live such a life.

We suggest that a satisfying life is I. Useful (Luke 1:13-16). John was to be born into a life of such blessed usefulness to God and man that he was to be a "joy and gladness" to his parents, "great in the sight of the Lord," and instrumental in turning "many of the children of Israel . . . to the Lord."

Such a life is worthy of emulation on the part of every young man and woman. What is the secret of it? Undoubtedly, fine Christian parentage had much to do with it. We note that God began preparing this great character a generation before he was born. Other elements also entered in, such as rearing and training, but most important of all was the fact (v. 35) that he was not to be driven by the false stimulants of this world, but by the inflating of the Holy Spirit of God. No "wine nor strong drink," but being "filled with the Holy Ghost"—there, young people, is the secret of a happy and useful life.

II. Normal (Luke 2:40). These words stress the fact that Jesus developed normally—physically, mentally, and spiritually. Let us emphasize the need of letting children develop and grow normally, for we live in a day of constant high pressure, when even the life of a child is not permitted to grow in its God-intended peace and according to the normal processes of nature. Give your boys and girls time, and encourage them to grow normally. Obviously, the use of strong drink can only hinder, make abnormal, or destroy such normal growth. Let's rule it out altogether and let our people grow and wax strong in the Lord.

III. Well-Balanced (4:4; 6:21, 25). Making a life is more important than making a living. The bread of this world is not enough; we must have the satisfying portion of fellowship with God. This we find in His Word. Nothing material, social or mental will fully satisfy the soul of man. His heart cries out for a message from God. Intoxicants make men to laugh when they ought to weep, give them a false satisfaction which is followed by an inexpressible hunger. They are unbalanced individuals. Why not be among those who, knowing God and His Word, are intelligent enough to laugh at the right time, weep at the right time, and who know how to choose that which truly satisfies for time and eternity.

IV. Fundamentally Right (6:43-45). There is a false optimism which would have us think we can sow to the wind and avoid reaping the whirlwind. Men are encouraged to think they can waste their time and their substance, taking into their bodies the destructive elements of intoxicating liquors, and somehow come out all right. Young people are lured by clever advertising to think it is socially correct and smart to indulge, and that there will be no evil effects. Such an obvious falsehood should not fool any keen young man or woman.

The roots of an evil life bring forth corruption, for the heart of a man who follows after sin cannot bring forth that which is good. The kind of a person you are in your heart, the things you do when no one sees, the seeds you sow in indulgent and profligate living—these determine character and destiny for time and eternity. Just so, fine, noble and upright thoughts and actions will bring forth gloriously fine and useful lives—a delight to God and man—well-balanced—normally developed—not only without a regret at the end of life's road, but finding there God's approval.

He Did—Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions. Now the king spake and said unto Daniel, Thy God whom thou servest continually, he will deliver thee.—Daniel 6:16. Think It Over—For what is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul; or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul.—Matt. 16:26.

Star Dust

STAGE SCREEN RADIO By VIRGINIA VALE (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

ACTORS usually dread working with children on the stage or in pictures because children, like animals, invariably "steal" scenes. One cute gesture, one little smile from a child can make an Academy Award winner look like a piece of furniture, so far as audiences are concerned.

Nevertheless the members of the cast of "Shepherd of the Hills" were delighted to have four-year-old Virita Campbell in their midst while they were on location in the San Bernardino mountains. On location hours are usually very long, the rule being to shoot from daybreak to sunset to take full advantage of the natural light. Which means that actors, stars and all, get up at 5:30 or thereabouts.

But in the eyes of the state labor law Virita is an infant, so she can't start to work until 8 a. m. Consequently the actors who worked with her got two extra hours of sleep every morning. They brought pressure to bear on Director Henry Hathaway to extend her part so that it would last for the entire six weeks.

Deanna Durbin's new picture, "Spring Parade," is a honey, chiefly because she, S. Z. Sakall and Henry Stephenson are in it. The story is just another of those Old Vienna things, but Henry Koster did a good job of directing, the entire cast—it includes Allyn Joslyn, Reginald Denny, Robert Cummings and Franklin Pangborn—is good, and there are some lovely new songs. The grown-up Deanna is charming and sings beautifully, of course—and as the setting is what old Vienna always is in the movies, she sings an arrangement of the "Blue Danube."

Practically all the men stars in Hollywood were fired from perfectly good jobs before they turned to the movies. Preston Foster suspects that Nelson Eddy got the one he lost. Foster was working on a Philadelphia newspaper, selling classified advertising. He got extra jobs singing in the chorus and in minor roles in the La Scala Opera company. One day the boss dropped in at a matinee, and there was Foster singing when he should have been out selling advertising!

Meanwhile Nelson Eddy was working as a shipping clerk for an iron works company in the same city. He had a habit of bursting into song when he was working hard. The foreman couldn't stand it, so he fired the singer, who promptly got a job on the Philadelphia paper that hadn't appreciated Foster's singing—the job was selling classified advertising.

Robert Taylor was washing the inside of a windshield in a service station in Beatrice, Neb., when the rag slipped out of his hand and into the lap of a lady. He fled, not waiting to be fired.

One of the nicest stories ever told about Hollywood has as its hero the late Grover Jones, author of many a successful movie scenario.

Some years ago he and his wife, who were childless, went to The Cradle, in Chicago, to adopt one. The superintendent showed them hundreds of babies.

"How about that one?" asked Jones, pointing to a child with crossed eyes.

"That poor baby," said the superintendent. "He's been here longer than any of the others. Nobody wants him."

"We'll take him," said Jones. "Today the child, after being given every advantage of medical treatment, is straight-eyed. And three years ago the Joneses had a little girl of their own."

The popularity of a radio program can be judged by its Crosley rating, or by the price tickets to its broadcasts bring. They're not supposed to be sold, of course, but there is a well-organized group of neat, polite young men who beg people going into the broadcasts for their extra tickets. Westinghouse's "Musical Americana" is now in the top rank, along with a few other regular, sponsored shows; its tickets bring 75 cents. Tickets to Testerman's first broadcast brought as high as $50.

UNUSUAL TIMES Require Men of Unusual Ability

DENNIS CHAVEZ
For United States Senator

CLINTON P. ANDERSON
For Representative in Congress

JOHN E. MILES
For Governor

These are unusual times. They require men of unusual ability. It is especially important that in the Congress of the United States we have men who are trained in government... men who are experienced and who know their way around.

In times of crisis, men who have proved their ability under fire are vital to our security. The Democratic party offers such men. United States Senator Dennis Chavez may well prove, during the next few years, to be the most important man in the Congress in our national effort to bring about unity and solidarity among the Americas. Senator Chavez is the only man in Congress of Latin-American descent. His long service makes him invaluable at this crucial time.

This year friendship among the Americas becomes of paramount importance. It is vital to our economic security. Senator Chavez is one of the most valuable men in the United States to help cement this friendship.

Clinton P. Anderson, Democratic nominee for representative in congress, has, over a period of years, established many important contacts in Washington. He is no newcomer in that field. He knows the key men in the various departments in Washington. He is personally acquainted with most of them. He will lose no time in taking up his important duties and in getting results for New Mexico.

Mr. Anderson has repeatedly demonstrated his ability as an executive, a business man and an administrator. He will take talent, determination and the priceless gift of leadership to his important job.

THE ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF UNSELFISH LEADERSHIP

The present state Democratic administration has been the most efficient and economical in the history of New Mexico. It has worked closely with our president and our congressional delegation and with the national administration to get things done.

As a few examples of what capable, unselfish leadership can do, we cite the following:

Cost of government in New Mexico has been reduced by $2,157,000 annually.

Cost of highway construction has been cut almost in half.

Roads are built today for approximately 50 per cent of what they previously cost. This great saving means that New Mexico will complete all primary highways during 1941 and 1942, years ahead of schedule.

Strict adherence to a policy, inaugurated by the Miles administration, of letting all highway contracts only by open, competitive bidding has made this tremendous saving possible.

The leadership of Governor John E. Miles has been chiefly responsible for the great economies gains which the present administration has made.

On the basis of their records, these men deserve your full support.
