Funeral of David Finley

The funeral of David Finley, beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. M. U. Finley, who died last Friday at his home in Midland, Texas, as a result of an explosion, was held Sunday with Rev. Oliver C. Cox of the Trinity Episcopal Church of that city conducting the services and attended by a host of friends of the Finley family.

The accident which caused his death was as follows, according to the Midland Reporter - Telegram:

Mr. Finley had been taking a nap in the servant's quarters of his home and on awakening, went to light a cigarette, which caused the explosion. It seems that as he slept, gas escaped from a nearby stove and on lighting a match, the explosion occurred.

Mr. Finley came to Midland in 1928 and was connected with the Continental Oil Co., as head of the land department in West Texas and New Mexico and since severing connection with that company four years ago, had been in business for himself. He was a world war veteran and had many friends not only over Texas, but surrounding states as well. In the oil industry, he was strongly identified.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. U. Finley of this place, two sisters, Mrs. E. E. Piant of Midland and Harry Lyman of Clovis. Mrs. Piant has been residing at the home of her brother since the death of his wife which occurred last May. Mr. Finley was well known here and his friends were many. He was a kind and courteous gentleman and one who made friends wherever he went. The writer knew him well and was always glad to meet him. The survivors named above have the sympathy of our entire community.

J. H. Fulmer Auctioned Off

At the Ladies' Aid dance at White Oaks last Saturday night, the receipts totalled nearly $100. A man was raffled off, he being J. H. Fulmer and was bidden in by Mrs. Dan Conley, who paid the handsome sum of $125,000 for him. W. W. Smith and daughter Kathleen won the prize for best waltzers. Richard Dow and LaWana Conley won the jitterbug prize. Dan and Mrs. Conley won the prizes in the schottische contest. Mrs. Lulu Lewis won the quilt.

"Lincoln Town"

(Words and Music written by Marguerite Merchant, for the Quarto-Centennial Fiesta at Lincoln, and dedicated to the school children of Lincoln County.)

Here is a place I like to come to, Where 'dobe walls shine in the sun. Here is a town that all our State knew, Back when New Mexico was young. "Riistras" are hanging by the door-way - Smoke curlin' from the chimney-top, Trav'lers on the highway, When they reach here like to stop. Corn being ground in a "metate" "Tortillas" cooking for a meal, Children laughing, laughing, at their play For that is just the joy they feel.

CHORUS: Town of Lincoln, Now we sing you a song! We've been thinkin' Of the days gone so long. But your time of war and hate is past, You are peaceful and content at last. Lincoln, Lincoln! We're all thinkin' of you.

You have a schoolhouse that is streamlined, You have a fine Museum, too. Where in this valley can a man find Such an enchanting mountain view? Strolling along the path at sundown, We hear the strum of a guitar. Lincoln, you're a rare town, But we like you as you are. Now all your friends are here to greet you, Here's where we like to celebrate. Some of us are real old-timers too - New Mexico is our fair State. (Repeat Chorus)

Useless Mission of The Peace Envoy

In the wake of Americanization Week, when we gave out the advice that our first President, George Washington gave, when he said to keep free from foreign entanglements and let them settle their own differences, comes the incident of the President sending under-secretary Sumner Welles over to interview the powers of belligerents and neutrals with the view of settling the differences between the countries now involved in war. We believe that we can picture the report of the under-secretary when he submits the same to the chief executive on his return. It will contain nothing more than we already know, and that is that both Hitler and the Allies will be doubly willing to enter into peaceful negotiations, provided that each has its aims and objects satisfied. Hitler, we feel certain, will say that all will be well, if all of Germany's possessions taken from it at the end of the world war be restored with an additional amount of plums. That will be Hitler's answer. Britain's answer will be as she has always declared that Hitlerism must be abolished and other things for which she has contended all along, before she will listen to peace negotiations. If the belligerent nations had requested us to send an envoy over there to lay out plans for a peaceful settlement, there might have been some excuse for us to allow him to make the trip and spend the money, but such is not the case. In that light then, are we not sticking out our necks for someone to take a punch at us? Is it not wasted effort to try and force those countries to accept our views as to when and how they should settle their troubles? Sumner Welles' trip together with his mission will come to naught. If anything, it will result in some kind of trouble and cause ill-feeling perhaps where we are now on a friendly basis. George Washington once said in a letter to a friend touching on foreign affairs of that nature, that we should let them alone for even if we succeeded in getting them out of trouble, they would soon be into it again - and that is as true now as it was then. It is simply meddling in other people's affairs without their consent or request. It reminds us of the fellow, who jumped into a fight between a man and his wife, neither of whom had asked the assistance of anyone and for his pains, they ganged on him and beat him up. We may be wrong, but it is our belief that we had better stay at home, attend to our own business and follow the advice of the Father of our Country, when he said, "keep out of foreign entanglements."

Mrs. Floyd Graves of Roswell is here this week visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Sneathen.

Miss Erma Poage is in El Paso doing practical nursing.

SCHOOL NEWS

Coch Coach and the basketball boys attended the tournament at Roswell last week, in which Roswell won the district championship. Other sports who went along were the Gallachers, Shafers, Beckers, Swearingens and George Joyce.

The Annual Home Ec. Dinner for the Board of Education and Faculty will be given Thursday, Mar. 14, at 6 p. m., in the Home Economics Rooms.

The State Agricultural College is sending its Music Dept. on a tour over the state, and will give a concert in our auditorium Mar. 12, 3 p. m. All are invited.

The grade school tournament will be held at Community Hall March 29-30. Prof. Phil Bright is director and expects a large crowd.

Carl Degner is improving rapidly from a lacerated finger.

Due to an error last week, Tommy Haskins' name was omitted from the honor roll, Tommy stands at the top of the scholastic list of seniors.

The grade school is receiving some first-class experiences in corresponding with grade school students in many other states and distant lands.

The All-School Carnival will be given Friday night, April 5. This event is looked forward to with great joy by all good sports.

Skinner-Rickerson

In the city of Roswell last Saturday, with Judge Emmett Patton performing the ceremony, Miss Pinkie Ruth Skinner and Winzell H. Rickerson were united in marriage. The attendants were Miss Vernon Ruth Peckham and Wayland Hill.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Skinner of Angus. She was born and reared and received her education here. She is a modest, attractive, becoming young lady, and one of whom any and the very best of young men should be proud to receive her favor. After finishing her school course, she accepted a position with Attorney John E. Hall as stenographer in his law office, which position she still holds.

Concerning the groom, he is a member of the Tokay CCC Camp and will, as we understand, finish his term about July 1. The young couple, as we also understand, will reside here and will be located in the English Apartments. The best wishes of their many friends are extended.

Mrs. Osborne Wood Here

Mrs. Osborne Wood of La Luz was here Monday in the interest of the coming big Republican meeting at Alamogordo which will take place tomorrow, Saturday, March 9. Mrs. Wood was accompanied by H.G. Rank and P. H. Holt of New Jersey, who are vacationing at La Luz. In the course of the conversation, Mr. Holt assured us that in his district in New Jersey it is useless to put a Democratic ticket, for the votes were few and far between. In justice to Mrs. Wood, we pause to remark that she is one of the best and most efficient campaigners it has been our pleasure to meet for many moons.

Mrs. J. E. Frame and Mrs. Lawrence Rowland spent yesterday attending to business at Amarillo. - Tucumcari News.

RICE

LOS ANGELES.—I read recently that Old Mose Grove had signed his contract with the Red Sox. That's Old Mose's sixteenth major league contract. He signed his first one with the Athletics away back in 1925. He was 25 years old then and had come up to the big show after five years in Baltimore. The late Jack Dunn had kept him in Baltimore for five years because in those days the Orioles ruled the International league as the Yankees rule the American league now. It was good business for Jack to hold onto his ball players for a few years. They pulled in the crowds at the turnstiles, they won pennants and Little World Series—and the longer they remained in Baltimore the more eager the major league club owners were to buy them and the bigger the price they brought.

Grantland Rice

Jack Bentley—Joe Boley—Max Bishop—Grove—all brought box car figures when Dunn, one of baseball's shrewdest traders, sent them to market. Grove brought $100,000. I don't know what the $600 was for. Amusement tax, possibly.

Offered to McGraw

At the time the story was—and so far as I know it may have been true—that John McGraw had turned Dunn down when he offered the big left-hander to the Giants.

That happened in 1925. The price was $100,000—with, perhaps, a little off for the Giants. But McGraw wasn't paying $100,000 for a pitcher in 1925. He had just won four pen-nants in a row—thereby cracking an all-time record for the major leagues—and it looked as though he might go on from there. So he wasn't interested.

At any rate, that's the story.

The Yankees' Cousin

Meanwhile, Dunn had some sort of agreement with Connie Mack that called for him, in the natural course of events, to send his better players over the short line from Baltimore to Philadelphia and in the spring of 1929 Grove arrived at the training camp of the Athletics.

He was young, eager and tireless. He had a strong back and a rubber arm. But he wasn't a pitcher. He was a thrower. He won 10 games in 1925, 13 in 1926 and 20 in 1927.

Those were the years in which he was a first cousin to the Yankees. In the ball players' argot a cousin is a pitcher that the hitters like to face—and there wasn't a pitcher in the American league the Yankees liked any better than Grove. All they had to do was wait him out—or hurry him—and then slug him.

As he acquired poise, he became more effective, not only against the other clubs but against the Yankees as well. His figures in the victory column mounted. He won 24 games in 1928, slipped to 20 in 1929, rose to 26 in 1930, and to 31 in 1931. He won 25 in 1932 and, although he dropped to 24 in 1933, he led the league again—as he had in 1928, 1930 and 1931.

In the winter of 1933 he was sold to the Red Sox for $125,000. In 1934 he had trouble with his arm and won only eight games while losing as many—and it was right after that that he became a real pitcher. He was forced to out-think the batters, and in doing that he became one of the greatest pitchers in the history of baseball.

Learning How to Pitch

The time had come when he had to do more than just rear back, stretch out and whip that fireball at the hitters. The old blaze had died out in his fast ball. He couldn't feel the hitters with it any more. He had to do something he hadn't done before. He had to stop and think—to study the hitters and develop a curve ball, a change of pace ball and a slow ball, and brush up on his control. And when he had done all that, he was a pitcher—a real pitcher.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Wives Who Constantly Complain Become Pests

(Well Syndicate—WNU Service.)

"When you have a husband who sleeps until the very last moment," she said, "and rushes through breakfast, nothing you can say affects him."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

ALMOST any woman would be very much happier if someone else was just a little different. Usually it is several someones else who make the trouble.

Her mother-in-law, her children's teacher, her kitchen assistant, her friends at the club all fall her in various small ways. She spends a good deal of time wishing they would see things as she does.

As for the husband and the children; well, their faults keep her nervous and fretful. She spends countless hours in trying to make herself beautiful, but she forgets the worried little frown that is permanently between her eyes. She wants to be considered a woman of culture, a woman other women envy, admire and secretly copy, but she never thinks of the tones of her rasping, critical, dissatisfied voice.

In a New York bus the other day I sat next to a well-dressed woman of perhaps 35 or a little less; she had met a friend and she was telling the friend all about matters at home.

"My dear, when you have a husband who sleeps until the very last moment," she began, "and then rushes through breakfast, nothing you can say affects him! I could until even the boys are taking George's part, but what good does it do? He simply goes on scrambling through the paper. The children stop eating, of course, and then their breakfasts are cold. Perhaps some women can get their children to concentrate on eating when they're at the table; I never can. Who are they with this morning? Oh, his mother. I never leave them with Carry, she has a beau and her one idea is to keep her hair curled and one ear on the telephone. Not that she ever gets a message of mine straight.

"George's mother is a darling and the children adore her. But she is a real farmer's wife, and she drops all her 'g's' and says she's going to lay down, and the children pick up her expressions, of course. She spoils them, too; Junior always cries to go back with grandma when she goes.

A Stupid Day Ahead.
"Where am I going? Well, I've got the stupidest day ahead of me that you can imagine. In the first place I'm taking that hat back. I left the tag in, but you know how they are about changing a hat. Then I'm going to the Lost and Found bureau, I'm still convinced I left that purse at the glove counter. Afterward the dentist; my filling came out. I do think they could put in fillings that would stick, and I'm going to tell him so. Then Larry's shoes, he goes through a pair about every six weeks, and then I pick up George. He was to have the car fixed and he didn't—trust George!—so we have to go out to the club with the Greenwoods; and even if she was my bridesmaid, that giggle of Harriet's simply gets me down. I ought to have had my hair done, I'm a sight!"

We had reached her corner; I heard no more. But I had heard enough to know that living with this woman, despite her pleasant appearance, and her evident devotion to home, husband and children, would be heavy going. She wanted everyone to change, apparently it never occurred to her that she herself is the one who should change.

She never really has faced the fact that her husband, being a human being, has minor faults. He is late; he is hurried; he is negligent. If he wasn't these things he might be a martinet who trotted her to death about details and hammered

DON'T BE A PEST

When there is trouble within the family circle it isn't always the husband's fault, according to Kathleen Norris. Friend husband may have his faults, to be sure. But after all—he's only human. And a human without faults, just wouldn't be a human.

Sometimes it's the little wife who must make a few changes in her manner of living. Checkup and find out where the trouble is. Don't just keep blaming it on someone else.

all-happiness-out-of-his-children's-lives.

She doesn't know that all elderly women, unless they are social automata, get a trifle aliphoid in grammar as well as in house shoes, and that spoiling grandchildren is one of the legitimate rewards of a mother's life.

She is the Real Pest.

She won't concede that a "general" servant, a young creature who washes dishes and sweeps floors and answers the door and the telephone, has a right to be pretty and to encourage a sweetheart, and that if this girl was the mental force that her employer evidently expects her to be she wouldn't be working in anyone's kitchen.

The little flaws of dentist, salesman, old friend, the loss of a purse, the delay in repairing a car, the sturdy wear a small boy gives his shoes—all these and a thousand other matters she exaggerates into serious troubles; her shrill complaining voice makes so much of them that in the end she herself becomes much more of a pest than any of these annoyances, or all of them put together.

Seeing her go off on her complacent, competent way; pretty and brisk and with a head full of plans and a purse full of money, I wondered what sort of drilling through marble it would take to convince her that she herself is the person to change; that a little common-sense and self-control on her part would make the difference between dark and dawn to husband, mother-in-law, house-maid, sons and friends.

What an amazing surprise for them if suddenly Jean became an altered woman! If lenience and good nature took the place of that eternal criticism and impatience. If the nervous equipments stopped, and an amiable tendency to live and let live took their place. If Jean began simply to make allowances for Carry's young vanities and giddiness, for Junior's stamping little feet, for George's absent-mindedness, for grandma's indulgences to the adored grandsons.

Husbands Won't Change.

For husbands will continue to gulp breakfast to the end of time. Dentists will sometimes insert fillings that don't stay in. Friends will giggle, or develop some other trying trait. Maids will decline to become deeply and passionately absorbed in the welfare of the family that is paying them $35 a month, to the exclusion of all other interests. Purse and rings and tickets will get lost; repairs on the car will take longer than the garage man originally suspected.

Why not take all these things as the inevitable little roughnesses of living in the complicated and imperfect world of today? The astonishing thing is that matters aren't infinitely worse. It's only the very fortunate woman of the world who can afford to carp at these trifles. For the more real and the more desperate our troubles grow, the more silent and heroic we women become.

GETHSEMANE: TRIUMPH THROUGH SURRENDER

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 26:39-46.
GOLDEN TEXT—Not as I will, but as thou wilt.—Matthew 26:39.

Surrender brings victory!

The world would say that our statement is not true; surrender is the mark of defeat. It is the final chapter in a story of struggle against impossible circumstances, against a stronger power, and finally of giving up to accept the bitter sorrow of subjection and sometimes destruction. But again we say, the way of strength is through surrender, for we speak of the spiritual realm and of our relationship to God. Here there is no victory until there is surrender. In fact, the measure of victory is the degree of surrender. Full submission to Christ means complete triumph for the Christian. The Lord Jesus does not ask His disciples to walk a way which He has not trod Himself. He went the way of full surrender to the will of God in the garden of Gethsemane. We observe five things about this way of "triumph through surrender." It was

I. A Way of Sorrow (vv. 37, 38).

He was exceedingly sorrowful unto death. It was not an easy thing that the Saviour did as He fulfilled the will of God the Father in the garden. We know that no man ever sorrowed as He did on that day; for only He bore the sins of the world. There is, however, a lesson here for us who are His disciples. If this is the road the Master trod, should not His servants tread it still? The way of victory for us is through surrender.

II. A Way of Self-Denial (vv. 39, 42, 44).

Self-denial does not consist in depriving one's self of some little cherished luxury. It means the denial of self, namely, that self-will is put aside and God's will is supreme.

It was no "easy thing for Jesus to carry out the Father's will and to go to the cross. He was submissive to that will; yet in this hour of anguish in the garden, when the unspeakable horror of what lay ahead almost overwhelmed His soul, it means much to say, "Not as I will but as thou wilt." (Dr. B. L. Olmstead). It may be a hard thing to do, but by His grace we too may say, "Thy will be done."

III. A Way of Loneliness (vv. 36, 37, 40, 41, 43).

There were three disciples with Him as He entered the garden, and their very presence reminds us how very much alone Jesus actually was. There were twelve with Him in the upper room, but one went out into the darkness to betray Him. Eleven came with Him to the gate of the garden, but only three came into the garden with Him. Even they could not go all the way with Him. He prayed and agonized alone, and the three who were near at hand failed Him and slept through the dark hour when He most needed their fellowship in sympathy and prayer.

Alone? If the Master had to walk the way of surrender alone, let no Christian expect that it will be otherwise for him. Let us thank God for every blessing of true fellowship, but let us not be surprised if we are often called to walk alone with God.

IV. A Way of Betrayal (vv. 45, 46).

"He is at hand who doth betray me" "into the hands of sinners." One feels that the cup of the Master is already overflowed without adding betrayal by one of His own, but there it is, a dark and tragic reality. Note with what peace and assurance Jesus goes to meet it. The victory has already been won in prayer, in communion with the Father, and in submission to His will.

No one of us will ever know such a betrayal as that of our Lord, but we do face similar crises as we go on in a life of devotion to God's will. We do well to remember the experience of Christ that we be not overwhelmed by the treachery of men and that we prepare ourselves to meet it with the power and grace of our God.

V. A Way of Divine Fellowship and Blessing (vv. 39, 42).

The way of surrender is a glorious and delightful way to go. But, some one may ask, have we not been talking of sorrow, self-denial, loneliness and betrayal? Yes, but even these things may become the means of blessing if God is in them. Though no man stood by our Lord in His experience in Gethsemane, the Father was there. Jesus talked with Him, prayed to Him, trusted Him, yielded fully to His will, and the result was peace and blessing. We read in Luke 22:43 that an angel also came and strengthened Him.

Springs of Water

And the parched ground shall become a pool, and the thirsty land springs of water; in the habitation of dragons, where each lay, shall be grass with reeds and rushes.—Isaiah 35:7.

Star Dust

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO
By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

BETTE DAVIS has always made it very clear that she had the courage of her convictions. She's prepared to back one of her pet theories with coin of the realm right now, and John Garfield, James Cagney and Pat O'Brien are ready to string along with her.

She believes that Hollywood could be made a theatrical center, since there is all sorts of talent on the coast, and she and her partners are prepared to form an organization for producing plays—and also to act in them. Plays that succeed will be sent along to Broadway.

Olivia De Haviland hadn't much more than settled her differences with Warner Brothers than she got into hot water again by refusing to work in "Flight 8," and was suspended again. Virginia Bruce was free, after cancellation of her Metro contract, so you'll see her as the heroine, opposite Ralph Bellamy. This lovely Olivia seems to know what she wants—the dignity lies in getting it.

Metro is prepared to shoot the works and give the public a treat in "Boom Town"; Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert and Hedy-Lamarr will have the leading roles, Jack Conway will direct, and John Lee Mahin adapted the story for the screen.

If you've tried to get "Swiss Family Robinson" at your local library lately you've probably been out of luck. Translated from the Swiss in 1820, the book is said still to be a best-seller, ranking second only to the Bible in gross sales. It had never been screened until RKO offered it to the public, and the picture has made the book more popular than ever.

Small boys—and their fathers as well—are likely to want to camp out in the theaters showing RKO's Pathe's Sportscope reel on baseball. It features the tactics and technique of such experts as Gabby Hartnett, Dizzy Dean, Joe Moore, Merrill May, Joe Medwick, Arky Vaughan and Paul Derringer. It's called "Pennant Chasers."

It's reunion on "Big Sister" for Alice Frost and Zasu Pitts.

Alice Frost and Zasu Pitts, Alice broke into radio years ago by doing impersonations of Zasu, as taught her by Miss Pitts, a friend of the family.

Erin O'Brien Moore will appear as Empress Carlotta, the role created by Bette Davis on the screen, when she is heard on the Star Theater in "Juarez and Maximilian" on March 13. Ahrens will play Maximilian, as he did in the picture.

Anyone who says a magpie bit him, in explanation of a gash under the eye, can't expect to be believed.—Al Pearce can swear to that. He has an aviary in his yard, and among the birds is a magpie. Pearce was holding the bird—which he calls Arlene Harris—and it snapped at him. That's his story, and he's sticking to it; but his gang, however, is enthusiastically giving him "the bird!"

ODDS AND ENDS

An eastern syndicate is negotiating with Lum and Abner for the right to portray their adventures in a newspaper cartoon series. Don Wilson is now plugging eleven different products on the air—and never getting them mixed!... Bill Powell was determined not to do "Cyrano de Bergerac"—which Metro bought for him—but he refused to sign his new contract until a clause was inserted that protected him against it... Spencer Tracy accepted it without protest... "Pinechick" is so good that it's hard to see how Walt Disney and his talented crew can ever do anything better.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Use Dry Holder.—Never use a damp or wet cloth or holder in removing a hot dish from the oven or stove. A dry one prevents the heat from penetrating and scorching the fingers.

Hooked rugs will lay flat if they are dried properly. Place them, top side down, on papers spread over the floor. Allow them to dry thoroughly.

Coconut Marshmallows.—To roll marshmallows in coconut, shake them one by one in a bag of shredded coconut.

When cleaning celery, use a vegetable brush. It gets into the grooves and cleans the celery better than it can be cleaned otherwise.

Relief At Last For Your Cough

Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to loosen germ laden phlegm, increase secretion and aid nature to soothe and heal raw tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membrane. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding that you are to like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

Dizzy Dean, No. 1 holdout, was conspicuous by his absence.

Finn Troops View 'Gift' From Invaders

White-clad Finnish soldiers give a "stolen" machine gun a thorough examination before putting it back in commission against its former owners. A foreign military observer estimated that 100,000 Russian soldiers lost their lives in bending the Mannerheim line far enough to threaten the city of Viborg. Finnish newspapers report that Russian material losses so far have amounted to 476 planes, 1,183 tanks, 392 field guns, 299 guns, 630 motor tractors, 117 field kitchens, 1,500 horses and much other miscellaneous equipment.

Southward bound for the wastes of Antarctica, the Byrd expedition held appropriate ceremonies while the U. S. North Star was crossing the equator. Under the guidance of Dr. Alfred M. ### Dalai Lama

New spiritual and temporal ruler of Tibet, the world's only theocracy, is a six-year-old Chinese peasant boy, Ling-erg La-Mu-Tan-Chu, whose elaborate enthronement recently took place. He is accepted as the reincarnation of the thirteenth Dalai Lama, who died in 1933. Until Ling-erg is 18, a regent will perform administrative duties.

Pictured at work in the office of his Farl Wayne, Inc., laboratory is Philo T. Farnsworth, who was recently designated one of the "ten outstanding young men of 1939." Farnsworth, who is now 34, had filed a patent application on a complete television system, before he was 21.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Belligerents Tighten Pressure On Lesser Neutral Countries; Rumania Veers Back to Allies

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union

EUROPE:

Pressure on the Neutrals

Of all the lesser European states whose princes and presidents were straddling fences, none was busier than Rumania's King Carol. The Rumanian peepulium, which for six months has swung from pro-Nazi to pro-ally and back again, took a definite swing to the allies again. But it was all a result of pressure. First Carol had levied a 25 per cent export tax on oil. When Germany had disapproved, Carol had ron was said to be blockading Murmansk, key Russian port. In London the admiralty would neither confirm nor deny the report, but such a blockade was understandable. German ships, which heretofore have used Norwegian territorial waters in carrying war supplies to and from Murmansk, will thus be cut off. It was also a pointed notice to Norway that Nazi ships had best be shooed away.

Both Adolf Hitler and Neville Chamberlain made name-calling speeches which cancelled each other off. Mr. Chamberlain listed, for the umpteenth time, Britain's "war aims," which include a new German government, and liberation of Czechs and Poles. Herr Hitler varied it, stating his "pre-war aims," namely, living space and return of German colonies.

U. S. AND THE WAR:

First Train to Berlin

Arriving at Rome, Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Welles began his duties as Franklin Roosevelt's special peace emissary to Europe. He called on Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, next on Premier Benito Mussolini. Then, unexpectedly, he packed his bags and hiked off for Berlin to talk with Adolf Hitler and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop. Noting this unexpected development, observers wondered if Il Duce had whispered Der Fuehrer's peace terms into the ear of Envoy Welles.

POLITICS:

'Another Martha'

Stamping up and down the land in late February was a politician's wife whose campaigning was more effective than her husband's. She was Mrs. Robert A. Taft, who for the moment came back to her native Minnesota to be introduced as "another Martha from the White House." Growing in stature much faster than her able, though slow-moving husband, Mrs. Taft served notice that the exciting type of Firat agreed to ship 41 per cent of his 1940 oil production to the Reich. The allies, which own 50 per cent of Rumania's oil wells, disapproved that time, putting the screws on Rumanian imports.

He hoped for the best.

In desperation, Carol took a final step which appeased the allies but left him facing Germany's renewed wrath. Banned were exports of all vital war materials, including the aviation gasoline which Germany covets. Meanwhile Carol called 1,000,000 men to the colors and hoped for the best.

To the southeast, Turkey ordered an accumulation of war supplies and placed itself on war footing, while newspapers warned the public that Europe's war might soon spread to the near east. Turkey was ready to march the instant an invader set foot in the Balkans.

Equally jittery were the Scandinavian states. Norway continued protesting to Britain over the Almark incident, and Swedish wrath rose over Russian bombing of Pajala, a border town near the Finnish frontier. Meanwhile the foreign ministers of both these nations met with Denmark's foreign minister in Copenhagen, expressing cautious hopes that they might remain neutral and that the wars might soon be ended. Of the three Scandinavian states, only Denmark had a really good chance of staying neutral, for Russia was moving closer.

In the North: Death

A fierce struggle for Viipuri, key city on the Karelian isthmus, seemed ending when the invading Russians captured Koivisto island fortress, guardian to Viipuri bay. Meanwhile what was described as the war's "biggest battle" was reported developing in the far-north Petsamo region.

Fighting a game but losing battle in the south, the Finns were mowing down 2,500 to 3,000 Reds a day. Not announced were their own losses, which, because they were defending instead of attacking, probably were not so great.

In the West: Speeches

Unrestricted marine warfare continued between Britain and Germany, but the biggest naval development was reported from the Arctic, where a French-British naval squad-

MARTHA TAFT
Growing faster than her husband.

Ladyship founded by Eleanor Roosevelt will not be forfeited if the U. S. names Bob Taft as its next President.

Other political news: Presidential primaries were proving a disappointment to both parties. Democrats found that Franklin Roosevelt's reluctance to announce his third term intentions was keeping other candidates out of the primary contests. Republicans were grumbling because leading candidates were reluctant to enter decisive candidates. Only exception: Wisconsin, where Democrats Taft, Dewey and Vandenberg will fight it out.

G. O. P. National Committee man Joseph Martin resigned, thus intimating he has no presidential ambitions. Reason: His duties as G. O. P. house minority leader require his full attention.

CONGRESS:

Battle's End

For three months the administration had held its breath over the greatest congressional battle Franklin Roosevelt ever anticipated. When it came, the battle turned out to be a dud. Passed 216-168 by the house was a resolution to extend for three years Secretary of State Cordell Hull's reciprocal trade program. The resolution was then forwarded to the senate, where victory was generally predicted. Western senators would certainly fight to regain ratification power over the treaties, but observers gave them no chance for success.

Also in congress: The house banking and currency committee okayed a $100,000,000 boost in the Export-Import Bank's capital, providing funds for non-military loans to China and Finland. Inserted were amendments (1) permitting loans for purchase of commercial (non-military) planes, and (2) denying loans to any nation in default of debts to the U. S.

The senate refused overwhelmingly an effort (sponsored by Massachusetts' Henry Cabot Lodge) to withhold funds for the U. S. ambassador at Moscow.

Princess Frock Is Simple, Charming

CHARMING and changeable are the words for this very simple princess frock (1898-B). Charming, because it is so slim-waisted and flare-skirted, with wide shoulders gathered at the top. Changeable, because you can make the neckline two ways—either with the round, tailored collar, or with the collarless square neckline. As a matter of fact, if you once get it on, and see what nice things it does to your figure, you'll want it both ways, and make it up time and again, in street materials as well as in day-time cottons. It's a very adaptable style—becoming to misses and women's sizes alike.

For home wear, choose crisp cottons like gingham, percale or calico. For street or office wear, faille, flat crepe or gay silk print will be pretty, with collar and cuffs of pique, linen or shirtings.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1898-B is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 (34) requires 4 1/2 yards of 39-inch material without nap; 1/2 yard contrast. Send order to:

Here's amazing way to Relieve 'Regular' Pains

Dr. J. H. Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion is supported by the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions.

For over 70 years, countless thousands of women, who suffered functional urinary pain, have taken Dr. Doan's Famous Prescription and have been relieved. I took Dr. Doan's Famous Prescription for a while, and it relieved me and was greatly relieved of these pains.

FOR over 70 years, countless thousands of women, who suffered functional urinary pain, have taken Dr. Doan's Famous Prescription and have been relieved. I took Dr. Doan's Famous Prescription for a while, and it relieved me and was greatly relieved of these pains.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good, reliable, and effective medicine for the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

It is now people were aware of how the kidneys work, and that suffering people who cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys are, and that the medicine would be more often employed.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide success than to try any other remedy. Ask your neighbor!

SYNOPSIS

Left orphans by a tragic automobile accident which claimed the lives of their mother and father, three sisters, Helen, Adele and Limpy, are visited by their Aunt Olympia, politically minded wife of Senator Alencron Delaware, Delaware.

CHAPTER I—Continued

"Girls," began Aunt Olympia, in a voice that had gone up two tones in pitch. In her emotional condition she alternately jabbed her wet eyes with her fingers and then fell, from habit, to a furious massage of her under-chin, quite unaware that she did either. "Girls, you know your mother and I were sisters. We were closer than sisters. We were almost like a couple of sections of one soul. When we were young, that is. We haven't been much of each other the last twenty years, but we never changed. Now, you know, girls, I have things pretty nice with the Senator. And Washington's a lovely town, full of buildings, and—saddle paths and—golf courses—a very nice town! . . . We haven't any children of our own. And no fault of ours, either, though it's thrown up to us plenty during campaigns that the best we have done for posterity is a couple of pedigreed pups. . . . But it's always been a great grief to the Senator and me, and if you girls would come and make us a nice long visit and—live with us a while—you might get to like it, in time. Limpy could go to a girls' school right there and live at home. They've got good schools in Washington and it isn't as if we couldn't afford it. Helen could get rested up after her operation as her father wished, and you could all take time to get over this terrible shock—and get your feet on the ground again. Washington itself is an education. Everybody says Washington is a liberal education. Too liberal some say, but an education anyhow. Think what an experience it would be for you three young things to live for a while in the town where great national figures like Andrew Jackson, Grover Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson lived, and did, and died for their country, and sent their voices ringing down the corridors of time!"

"Del, I want to ask your advice about something." The Senator coughed faintly over the telephone. He knew what that meant. Olympia had made up her mind. She never asked his advice until she had reached a conclusion. "Del, what do you think of my bringing these poor dear little children back to Washington to live with us a while?" "The Senator cleared his throat. "Wait till I wipe my glasses," he said. "He's so tickled he's crying," she whispered loudly to the girls. "That's the way he cries—he wipes his glasses." "Olympia," the Senator said, and he spoke brokenly, for he was deeply moved, "that's the best idea you ever had in your life. Of course, our home is their home. Of course they are our children from this on. Who has a better right to them by magic under her ample curves. Her hands clenched and her dimples disappeared into knotty knuckles. The left corner of her mouth tightened and curled upward. The lid of her left eye went down until the lashes touched her cheek. The girls, amazed, almost frightened, stared in speechless wonder for a moment. Then Helen found voice. "You must be very tired, Auntie. Let's go to bed. We can talk it over tomorrow." "Yes, let's go to bed," said Aunt Olympia. Later the girls came to know and to fear—but excitingly—this look of Aunt Olympia's. It signified that she had suddenly turned Machiavellian, had begun to play politics. Even the Senator quailed before that look.

CHAPTER II

On the next morning, the girls were shocked to see that Aunt Olympia retained the tense rigidity that had come upon her so suddenly the night before. She was quiet all morning. Not until they sat at luncheon did her expression change. Slowly then her features relaxed. The left corner of her mouth went down, her left eyelid went up to normal. Her pale blue eyes became childish, bland and slightly vacuous.

"Since when," she inquired presently, in a voice of studied nonchalance, "have grocery boys in Iowa begun making deliveries in neckties and gloves?" For all the mild unconcern in her eyes, she did not overlook that a sudden electric wave, almost of warning, flashed briefly among the girls. It was Limpy who answered. Later, when Aunt Olympia knew the girls better, she would have known at once that because it was Limpy who answered, Limpy was least involved in the query. It was an act of unstudied teamwork, a defense mechanism, entirely sisterly and natural, unmentioned even between themselves, that the girls had developed for their mutual good. "Oh, you mean Brick! He isn't the delivery boy! He owns the store!" said Limpy. "He doesn't really make the deliveries. He leaves things here as a favor on his way home to luncheon. He lives out this way."

"Are they too big for sleds?"

"Than we have? I'll get things ready for them right away. I'll call Hilda. After all, what is a home without children?"

Aunt Olympia began to cry, sniffily from pure joy.

"Well, that's all right. You bring them right along, Ollie. I'll go down first thing in the morning and get them some tennis rackets and bicycles."

"Since when, you idiot, do young ladies play tennis and ride bicycles in the dead of winter?"

"That's so, too," he admitted feebly. Then he brightened. "Skates! That's what I'll get them skates. Are they too big for sleds?"

"Del, you get nothing till I get home. You get nothing and you do nothing. You leave this to me. They just wanted me to find out if you want them! They don't want to impose on you!"

"Want them!" he ejaculated. "Impose on me? Why, the very ideal! Let me speak to them," he said, in his sternest senatorial voice.

"Helen, here, Helen," said Aunt Olympia triumphantly. "You can see he wants you! He wants to speak to you. . . . Del are you there, Del? This is Helen, she's the oldest. This is Helen!"

"Helen, my dear child, are you there?"

"Yes, Senator."

"Helen, my child—my children, for I am speaking to you all. You don't know how happy your aunt and I are to have you come and live with us. You come right along. What train are you taking?"

Helen turned to her aunt. "He wants to know what train you're taking?"

"Give me the receiver," Olympia charged back into the conversation. "We don't know what train we're taking. The girls can't come for a couple of weeks."

"Why not?" he demanded testily. "Why put off till next week what should have been done long ago?"

"Because Limpy flunked her math—I'll send you a telegram, Del!" And she hung up the receiver with a triumphant air. "You can see he wants you."

"He sounded very nice," said Helen.

"Yes, he's nice. As senators go, I think he's particularly nice. If he could just break himself of that silly habit of coughing instead of making a remark, and wiping his glasses instead of bursting right out into manly tears, it would be an improvement. But he's nice. You'll like the Senator."

"They have a lovely house," said Helen belatedly. "They hired a florist landscaper to lay out their grounds."

"There's still money in groceries, darling," concluded Limpy.

"How old are you, Limpy?" asked Aunt Olympia again, with more pronounced casualness.

"Seventeen," came promptly.

"Sixteen and a half, says the Bible," corrected Adele.

"Why, Auntie?"

"Oh, I just wondered!"

That evening, when she again brought up the subject of their going with her to Washington, there was nothing nonchalant, nothing casual, about her. She was taut, in the throes of politics. She listened intently, sitting motionless, with unchanging expression, to Helen's half-hearted recital of the difficulties in their way. In the first place, they could not make any move at all until Limpy had finished this last term of high school.

"That's soon enough. You can come then," said Aunt Olympia agreeably.

In the end, it simmered down to two facts: that while Helen was obliged honestly to admit it was a marvelous opportunity for Adele and Limpy, who were young and whose lives were still unplanned, her own future lay right there in Iowa where she already had her teacher's certificate; and that her sisters would not go east without her.

"But there's a future beyond teaching school," said Aunt Olympia. "There's the real future—marriage: every woman's real career. What eligible men have you in a one-horse town like this? You girls have the looks and the style and the personality to marry anybody—anybody at all; diplomats, millionaires, senators—anybody at all!"

Again she noted the faint flash, half-questioning, half-warning, that glinted from girl to girl.

"Even though I dread separation from the girls," said Helen, "I see the advantages for them and—I wish—I even urge them to go without me."

"That's out," said Limpy.

"Together we stay or together we go," added Adele.

"To tell you the truth, girls," Aunt Olympia began guardedly, "while I love you devotedly and want you to come with me for yourselves alone, still—to tell the truth—I really need you. It may be that you three girls, young, innocent, pretty, can be the Senator's salvation. The Senator's salvation and my salvation. Politically you can be of great help."

The girls stared at her in startled silence. Then:

"We don't know a thing about politics!"

"I'm the only one old enough to vote, anyhow, and it will be my first," said Helen.

"The Senator comes up again this fall and he's got a tough fight on his hands." She warned to her subject. "And do you know who's doing the Senator all this dirt? It's a man the Senator made! He simply made him! He was a small-town preacher until the Senator persuaded him to go into politics! There was a split in our party and the Governor was trying to get control and naturally the Senator couldn't support him. So he made a deal with the Republicans and promised to support Brother Wilkie for governor if they would run him, and they did and he was elected. The Senator planned his entire campaign for him. He even put up the money—most of it himself and got his friends to contribute the rest. He taught him all the tricks. He lent him our own publicity man, the best campaign man that ever lived. And what happened?"

"What did?" asked the girls, breathlessly, in one voice.

"Well, two years ago, when the Senator had pledged himself to somebody else and asked Brother Wilkie—the Governor, that is—to withdraw like a gentleman, he wouldn't do it. He ran again. He used all the tricks the Senator had taught him—and our publicity man—and won!"

"But if he's Governor, that doesn't interfere with the Senator, does it?"

"Ah, but now the bug's really got him! He wants to be senator. He aims to be President some day, we all know that. He doesn't even deny it. He's come out against the Senator and is putting up the fight of his life to beat us at our own game."

"But what could we do about it, Auntie? Not even I could vote in your state!"

"You don't have to vote. Your looks will turn the trick; your looks and your innocence—and—and your general pathos. Brother Wilkie, the Governor, that is, the snake-in-the-grass, has seven of the most unspeakable little brats that ever lived. He campaigns with them. The Senator put him up to it in the first place but he's running it into the ground. He takes the whole kit and boodle of them right along with him and has them sit on the platform and eat peanuts and shout, 'Vote for Papa!'"

The girls tried considerably but unsuccessfully to repress their laughter.

"Not being satisfied with the seven brats, last campaign he dug up some old hag from someplace, calls her his great-aunt, a wrinkled, gnarled, crippled old beldame who hobbles around on a cane and pre-tends she can't hear without an ear trumpet. He takes her stumping with him, too, and she bangs on the back of the chair with her tin trumpet and shouts through it, when he makes a good point, 'That's my neevy! Tell 'em, Neevy!' In my opinion, it's a megaphone to shout through and no ear trumpet at all. And what's more, I don't believe she's his aunt. I think he—or that devil, Len Hardesty—dug her up out of some graveyard or old ladies' home, for she's never around except during campaigns, and she certainly doesn't look like him—or any of the seven brats."

"Oh, I see what you're getting at," said Limpy brightly. "You want us to hobble around on canes and shout through tin trumpets and take the shine off the beldame."

"Oh, no I don't. Not by a long shot!" Aunt Olympia relaxed then and leaned back in her chair, regarding them with a smile of blissful contentment. "I just want you to be three dear sweet innocent little orphans—pretty ones!—that the Senator and I have taken into our home to live with us." Her eyes narrowed suddenly. "You'd better stick to mourning, I suppose, though in the main I'm against mourning. I don't consider it religious. . . . Yes, mourning, all right. But we'll soften it. We'll make it black and white, and white and black."

"I wonder if I'm getting color-blind," said Adele. "They sound just alike to me."

"Not a bit of it. It'll be mostly black with touches of white for Helen, because she's the oldest; and mostly white with touches of black for Limpy, because she's no more than a child. And it'll be about half and half for you, Adele, because black and white is very becoming and will set off your good looks."

"You'd better stick to mourning."

A NAME FOR THE MOTHER-IN-LAW

"Did you see," asked Senator Dummer, "where a group of women recently voted for a change in the term 'mother-in-law'?"

"I did," replied Representative Dummer. "They voted to change it to kin-mother, the big sillies."

"The foolish season is here ahead of time," said the senator, "and winter must be nearly over. There are many names I could call the old girl, but kin-mother is not among 'em."

"What was the big idea, anyhow?" asked Dummer. "Were the mothers-in-law complaining?"

"Mothers-in-law are always complaining," snapped the senator. "Do you see this bruise over my eye?"

"I do," said Dummer. "How come?"

"From walking up to my wife's old lady and saying, 'Hello, kin-mother; that's how I got it. She thought I said something else, and when I tried to explain she said mother-in-law was good enough for her, and it would have to be good enough for me."

"I noticed that there were many other names suggested before the final vote," said Dummer.

"One of 'em was 'Blitzkrieg Mother,'" laughed the senator. "I rather liked that one. It will linger in my memory long after I have forgotten all about 'kin-mother.' But do you know what I think is called for now?"

"No."

"A new name for mothers-in-law to call their sons-in-law and daughters-in-law."

"Haven't our mothers-in-law enough names for them already?" asked Dummer.

"I mean something printable; something that can be used in polite society," argued the senator.

"How about asking her to call you a 'kin-son'?" asked Dummer.

"She would retaliate by calling me a kin-dum-and say she mis-understood me," barked Senator Dummer.

"Couldn't she just call you a kin-guy or a kin-a-p?" asked Dummer.

"She might be glad to," said the senator.

"Will anything come of the whole business?" asked Dummer.

"Nothing whatever," declared Senator Dummer. "A man never refers to his mother-in-law as his mother-in-law, anyhow. He either calls her 'that woman,' 'old iron-sides,' 'the crackdown' or 'the family static.'"

"Do you know what I call mine?" asked Dummer.

"What?"

"The Roman Galley," declared Dummer.

"Why?" asked the senator, a bit puzzled.

"Because she is always putting in her oar," concluded Representative Dummer, dodging a chair.

FSA NEWS

Farm boys and girls in Lincoln County will be able to participate in 4-H Club and future Farmers of America junior educational and demonstration farm projects during '40 with loans advanced by the FSA. Young people enrolled in these farm groups, whose parents are FSA borrowers, may secure loans of not more than $75 for purchase of a calf, sow, poultry or other young livestock, as well as seed, plants and fertilizer.

Mr. Waters explained the new loan plan will enable county agents and agriculture teachers to broaden their activities and reach a larger number of rural people who heretofore had been unable to participate in such projects because of limited funds.

Loan applications must be made to the county FSA supervisor and approved by the project leaders. Security on loans will include a note signed jointly with parents and chattel or crop mortgages, with interest at 5%. "This is another case," Mr. Waters said, "where the FSA is seeking to broaden its facilities to help low-income farm families in co-operation with other agencies."

The FIRESIDE PHILOSOPHER
BY ALFRED SIGGS

If you think you're faultless, you're a fool.
Would you be popular? Be a good listener.
The only failure to fear is failure to be right.
Sincerity comes from the heart, not the tongue.
The earth seems like an institution for the money-blind.
You can learn more in your garden with a microscope than by going around the world.
