Ranchmen's Camp Meeting Great Success Beginning with Thursday, Aug. 1 and ending Sunday, 4th, the Ranchmen's Camp Meeting, particulars of which we published on July 19, was carried out to an extent which surprised the promoters. The attendance on the whole, was exceedingly large and as an evidence of that fact, over 700 people were served at the dinner on Sunday, last day. On March 28, a committee of ranchmen met at the White & Murphy ranch home and formulated plans for holding the above named meeting. They visited different places over the Lincoln Forest and finally decided on a beautiful spot on the Indian Divide, which commands an unobstructed view of the level lands far below and from which point, Carrizozo and Nogal may be plainly seen. Many people of our locality took along tents and made the camp their abiding place for the four days. Religious services were held mornings, afternoons and evenings, F. L. Sherman, Joe M. Evans and others conducting the same, all of which were non-sectarian, making the atmosphere at all times free from the airing of religious views or forms of worship. At the business meeting Sunday afternoon, a general committee was formed consisting of members and also an executive committee composed of Messrs. Lon Merchant, S. Dewey Stokes, R. M. Clayton, Pat Murphy and B. L. Moore. This committee will attend to the business of the association, such as taking in names of new members, accepting subscriptions to the project, adding to the beauty of the site, etc. The olden time method of the chuck-wagon type was put into operation and at the Sunday dinner, over 700 people were served with all that was needed for a wholesome meal topped off with delicious coffee such as only our ranchmen can make. It certainly made us feel good to meet the many old friends with whom we have resided for the past 23 years. We welcomed the absence of pomp, pride and earthly greatness as we felt the glad handshakes and the warm words of welcome on every hand. From the highest point on the Divide, it furnishes a peaceful view of the distant mountains and the quiet forest as far as the eye can reach. As we listened to the sacred singing and beheld nature's scene in all its splendor, the familiar lines came to our minds: "The heavens proclaim the glory of God and the firmament declareth the works of his hands." The people of Lincoln County should get behind this unselfish project, which has become a permanent fixture to our community. We hope the movement will grow until it becomes a county shrine, where each summer, people may gather, relax and engage in worship unfettered by strife and worry and where one may lose the dust and turmoil of city life and for a spell, enjoy the ATTENTION, MASONS All Master Masons are invited to a Regular communication at Masonic Temple, on Wednesday night, Aug. 14. Don English, W. M. R. E. Lemon, Sec'y. Diego Salcido

Mr. and Mrs. Andy Padilla, who have been residing at Albuquerque for the past year, are moving back to their home in Carrizozo this week. Glad to have the folks with us again. Mrs. Pearl Barnovsky of Capitan visited friends here Saturday of last week.

Ride 'em Cowboy! Aug. 24-25 On the above named dates, a big rodeo will be staged here by Messrs. Dewey Stokes, Claud Brannum and Jim Cooper. This will be an affair that will put "pep" into things in general around here. We have been too busy with griping about the slow condition of business, so let's get out of that rut and all join with the boys and have one of the best rodeos we have ever had. The gentlemen who are sponsoring the coming event is a safe guarantee of its success. The big calf roping purse and other particulars will appear next week. In the meantime, get ready for a good time — and we do mean YOU!

Southwestern CHAMBER OF COMMERCE All affiliates of the Association are invited to meeting at the Navajo Lodge on Aug. 12 and 13, next Monday and Tuesday. The sessions will open Monday morning at 10 a. m.; Chris P. Fox, Sheriff of El Paso county will be the Toastmaster; Address of Welcome, Gov. John E. Miles; Response, Mayor M. C. Ulmer, Midland, Tex. The following outstanding speakers will appear on the program: Joe Thompson, Director, Conoco Travel Bureau, Denver; Judge R. L. Babbitt, Texas State Hi-way Com., Austin, Tex.; J. M. Proctor, Chm., Arizona State Hi-way Com., Phoenix; Karl Barfield, Pres. C. of C., Tucson; Dr. D. M. Wiggins, Pres. College of Mines, El Paso; D. M. Wooten, Manager, Rock Island Vocational Travel Bureau, Chicago; Mr. Thielig, Tourist Promotion, American Air Lines, New York; Dr. Morelock, Pres. Sul Ross State Teachers' College, Alpine; Joe Bursay, Mgr., N. M. Travel Bureau, Santa Fe; Mr. Birdsye, Gen. Adv. Mgr., Santa Fe RR, Chicago; Mr. West, Vice Pres., Continental Air Lines, Denver; Mr. Wilke, Ext. Sec'y, El Paso County Board of Development, El Paso. We hope to see many Carrizozo and Lincoln county people at this meeting. This Association was organized to promote the development of the entire Southwest territory within its boundaries.

Lincoln County Chamber of Commerce Carrizozo Business Men's Club. Byrd Parks, son of Mrs. Lou Fink, who is in the Navy, is home on a short leave from San Diego. Byrd likes the Navy and is one of the boys who will profit from the education it gives to young men who seek the material advantages of the training, rather than to make the course one a rollicking round of pleasure. Good luck, Byrd; that's the spirit!

Geo. A. Titworth of the Titworth Co., Inc. and Jack O'Malley, of the New York Life Insurance Co. were here from Capitan and attended a meeting of the Carrizozo Business Men's Club. Mr. A. H. Harvey of the Harvey Service Station was surveying in the Three Rivers country the latter part of last week. Alvin Carl, clerk at the Paden Drug Store, who sustained an injured arm last week, is recovering. Marvin Burton of the Burton Fuel Yard spent several days the first of the week in Albuquerque. Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Ashby of their ranch across the Malpais were visitors here this Wednesday. Wm. Sultemeier of Vaughn is relieving R. E. Lemon at the Citizens Bank. coolness of the retreat, and have the wholesome freedom and liberty which belongs to the children of God.

In our column of political announcements you will find the name of Diego Salcido, who announces himself for the nomination for County Commissioner from Dist. 1, subject to the action of the Republican Primaries on Sept. 14. Mr. Salcido has been engaged in the goat raising and ranching industries in the Hondo valley all his life. Having served the county with much credit as commissioner for two terms, he is well acquainted with the office and the needs of the taxpayers in general. He respectfully solicits your support.

The Leandro and Nick Vega families and Mrs. Josefa Vega were Capitan visitors last Sunday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Bryan, sons W. C. and Sam, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Burke Poole of Cedar Hill, Tex., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Wilcie Copeland of Capitan and Mrs. S. H. Hendricks and son Bryan of Carrizozo. Mesdames Bryan and Hendricks are sisters. Mrs. J. F. Petty and daughter Miss Ruth have returned from an enjoyable visit with relatives in Shattuck, Oklahoma.

NOTICE—Saturday, Aug. 10, will be the last day for the Special Price on Permanents at the Virginia Ann Beauty Salon. Mr. and Mrs. Phil Bright and small sons were Roswell visitors this Wednesday. Big Firemen's Open Dance at Capitan tomorrow night, Aug. 10. You are invited and if "Jupiter Pluvius" sees fit to interfere, the dance will be held at the Capitan Gymnasium.

Fourteen members answered the roll call at the meeting Wednesday night at the S. P. Hotel. The small attendance was due to so many members being on vacations, or sojourning at the mountain resorts. Sec'y Adams was instructed to write to the executive committee of the Ranchmen's Camp Meeting, commending them on the spirit of the movement and offering the moral support and assistance in every manner possible to the maintenance of that worthy project. The invitation to attend the meeting of the Southwestern Chamber of Commerce to be at Ruidoso Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 13 — 14 was read and the membership, as far as possible, will attend.

Flourescent Lights The Carrizozo Hardware Co. wishes to announce they are the agents for Flourescent "Day-light" lights. Notice them at the Rolland Drug Store and the Carrizozo Hardware Co. P. S.—They use only half the juice, believe it or not.

Norman Walker and John Purcell of the circulation department of the Roswell Dispatch, made this office a friendly call yesterday afternoon. The boys were returning from their vacations spent in Colorado, Wyoming and Utah.

The Three Commissioners Under the head of Republican announcements will be seen the names of the present County Commissioners, who announce themselves for re-nomination to the offices they have held for the past two years. Messrs. Wm. Gallacher, Corbin Hester and George Kimbrell have served the people of this county faithfully and unselfishly for the past two years, during which time they have made improvements over the county in a wise manner as far as the funds would permit. The new courthouse and school are projects which are due to the work and efforts of these three gentlemen. As the above projects are now under way, construction of the courthouse already begun and the school to start soon, the board should be returned so that they may finish the good work they have already planned. The books in the office of the county clerk are open to public inspection and the board stands on their record in the interest of the taxpayers. They solicit your support, which will be highly appreciated.

Mrs. Clesta Prior of the Gardner Hotel, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Purcey, small son Ted, Jr. are in Flint, Mich., visiting Mrs. Prior's mother, relatives and friends. Ted, Sr. is Mrs. Prior's son. M. C. St. John will leave for Albuquerque tomorrow afternoon and will return Sunday, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Andy Padilla. Marcial is the Democratic candidate for Probate Judge of Lincoln County.

Lincoln County Chamber of Commerce Carrizozo Business Men's Club. Byrd Parks, son of Mrs. Lou Fink, who is in the Navy, is home on a short leave from San Diego. Byrd likes the Navy and is one of the boys who will profit from the education it gives to young men who seek the material advantages of the training, rather than to make the course one a rollicking round of pleasure. Clayton Hust In the name of the young man who announces himself this week as a candidate for the nomination for County Clerk, subject to the Republican primaries Sept. 14. Clayton is well known over the county. He was born here and attended our schools, after which he studied bookkeeping and also underwent a general business training while in the service of Uncle Sam in the U. S. Navy. He possesses every necessary qualification that would be needed to handle the duties at the county clerk's office. He solicits the votes of Republicans at the coming primaries.

The Sisters of Mercy are visiting at the Loreto Academy in Santa Fe for a week or ten days. Mrs. Walter Krohne, Jr., and Miss Ellen Ruth Skousen came over from Albuquerque last Saturday, Mrs. Krohne visiting at the Joe Romero and Ted Purcey homes, while Miss Skousen is a guest of Miss Ida Greer. Walter has been transferred to Tatum and Julia left for that place Wednesday, but Miss Skousen is remaining for the week. Attorney George Shipley was here from Alamogordo Saturday on some legal business. While in town, he made this office a friendly call. Yardmaster and Mrs. Jesse Snyder left the latter part of last week on their vacation.

Each 'X' Marks a Future Pilot for Uncle Sam

The straps of their parachutes form an "X" pattern on the backs of these flying cadets at Randolph Field, Texas, the "West Point of the Air." Each cross likewise marks another of the 7,000 pilots to be added yearly to the expanding U. S. air corps. Several of the cadets are shown heading for their planes for their daily flight training. Others are seated awaiting their turn to go aloft. A concentrated course of training is preparing these cadets for service in a minimum length of time.

British Navy Mans Warships Taken From French

With German air raids and submarine attacks on shipping convoys threatening serious shortages of vital supplies, the British navy has put into active service a number of French war craft taken under control after the French-German armistice. British crews aided by French volunteers are manning the craft. Typical of the ships in service are those above, left to right, an escort vessel, a destroyer and four sub-chasers.

Subterranean Wonders Hidden for Ages Discovered by Guides at Mammoth Cave

By JOHN MAC DONALD (Released by Western Newspaper Union.) THE eyes of scientists and sightseers the nation over have been turned toward Mammoth Cave, Kentucky. For there the National Park service has just announced the discovery of a far-flung network of galleries, avenues, streams, subterranean gardens and geological formations that for countless centuries have lain hidden from the eyes of man.

The new discovery is said by park authorities to be the greatest find since Mammoth Cave itself was first entered by pioneers in 1799.

News of the first penetration of the hidden labyrinth of limestone caverns has been a closely guarded secret, known only by a few cave guides and officials and park service employees. On October 10, 1938, four excited cave explorers, exhausted and coated with mud, came up out of the depths to report that they had just gone "through Purgatory to Paradise."

The four discoverers were Carl Hanson, his son Pete, Leo Hunt and his cousin, Claude Hunt. Their find developed out of an expedition up the black recesses of Roaring river under Lee Ridge to catch eyeless fish for display.

Years of Search . . .

For 20 years explorers had sought in vain to get beneath Lee Ridge. Because of its proximity to Mammoth Cave ridge and its similarity in size and topography, they were certain that beneath it lay a network of channels like those of Mammoth cave.

Years of disappointment in this search made the guides cautious about announcing their find. They confided first only in Martin L. Charlet, cave manager, a veteran of nearly 40 years' experience at Mammoth cave.

Their complete story, revealed for the first time, is an amazing account of hardship, of underground rivers which threatened to trap them hundreds of feet underground, of tortuous crawling, stooping and twisting through narrow crevices, past gaping pits, into towering domes and finally of stumbling into a yawning cavern which stretches for miles into a new world never before trod by the footsteps of man.

Since then park and cave officials and engineers have followed the twisting trail of the four explorers. For months every main avenue in the new discovery has been explored, surveyed and checked by these men, who today verify it as the greatest find at Mammoth cave in 140 years.

Above, a view of one of the passageways in the vast, newly-discovered network of caverns, domes, avenues and pits found by guides at Mammoth Cave, Ky. Said to be the greatest find since the discovery of the cave itself in 1799, this subterranean wonderland has lain for ages unseen by man. Below, across a crystal and sand "carpet" hitherto untrodden by man, the explorer plods his way, figuratively leaving his footsteps on the "Sands of Time."

While public showing of the new treasures unearthed by the discovery will be a comparatively simple matter, it has been determined to "make haste slowly" in preparing the new scenic wonderland for sightseers' eyes, according to R. Taylor Hoskins, acting superintendent of Mammoth Cave National park.

It will probably be about two years before the work is completed. This, he says, is because of the intricate engineering problems and development of protective devices. Before a single shot of dynamite was fired at the site of the proposed work entrance, observations were made above and below the surface to detect any possibility of disturbance to any of the delicate formations from concussion. The construction of trails, entrances, exits, placement of lights, and scores of other matters that contribute to the safety and comfort of visitors must require care and patience, Mr. Hoskins says.

Gypsum Paradise.

The guides who made the discovery consider its outstanding spectacle to be the great profusion of gypsum found in one section which they have called Paradise, and another which they identify as Little Paradise. Here for hundreds of feet one may walk through a garden of gypsum flowers that decorate walls, ceiling and floor. Great bursts of gypsum simulating every floral pattern found in nature hang in clusters of buds and rosettes, some with petals 18 inches long.

Mineral deposits on some of the crystalline gypsum blend into a variety of pastel colors to create the effect of a fairy-castle-built-of-candy. One grotto covered with formations like rock candy, pink honeycomb, peppermint stick and taffy, particularly appealed to the discoverers who call it the Candy Kitchen. Snowball Formation.

In one section of the cave white ovals of gypsum cling to the walls like hundreds of snowballs, while others, forced off by the thrust of new crystals forming underneath, clutter the cave floor.

Flaked gypsum covers part of the cave like a white sheet. Here and there it has peeled back into folds and curves, creating patterns of every description. Thin banded lines in a variety of colors are etched into the white background.

Crystal gypsum on the floor of the cave, mixed with red sand, makes the walk-way sparkle like a jeweled carpet. Sand banks for hundreds of feet are covered with crushed gypsum like a show drift caked by a hard wind. Below this crust is the pepper-red sand.

Three Main Avenues.

Three main avenues constitute the major part of the newly found cave network, though dozens of smaller channels spread fan-wise in every direction.

Largest of the three, which the guides call simply Big avenue, extends fully 7,000 feet. It is unequaled by anything previously known, being comparable only to the great Broadway avenue of Mammoth cave, except that it is more evenly cut, in straighter lines, and holds to its vast dimensions more consistently. Throughout its length it maintains an average width of 50 feet and a height of 30 to 35 feet.

Walls and ceiling for hundreds of feet in Big avenue are glistening white with flaked gypsum or studded with gypsum crystals. Frequently the ceiling has been water-cut in the shape of great capitol domes, rotundas or cones; the creamy-white limestone fringed with a web-like tracery in red, rust, black or brown.

Fossil avenue, so called by guides because masses of crustaceans are imbedded in its walls, is distinctive for the uniformity of its curving and coloring. It runs for nearly a mile at right angles to Big avenue. A thin layer of sparkling gypsum gives this limestone channel the appearance of a white-washed tunnel.

Another link in the network is tentatively called "Onyx" avenue because of its stalactite and stalagmite formations. Although only about 1,200 feet long, 12 feet high, and 15 feet wide, it is in many respects the most beautiful cave in the new discovery.

Here at one time swirling currents of water etched out intricate patterns in the chalk-white limestone to leave an endless array of grotesque contorted shapes. The bed of a pond here is encrusted with simulated cave pearls.

Of the travertine formations, the most unusual is a solid rimstone wall, 42 feet long and 4 feet high. It forms a natural dam across one large avenue where for centuries it had held back an underground lake.

The former water bed rises up in a series of crystallized terraces to another strange formation called the Mushroom, though it looks more like an inverted cocktail glass of gigantic proportions. A five-foot red stalagmite stem hangs 15 feet from a dome. Near the floor the stem is attached to a bowl-like stalagmite, 40 feet in circumference—one of the largest of its kind anywhere.

The area below the bowl was once filled with water, and now the entire stone mass seems suspended from the ceiling.

Single Factor Seldom Causes Auto Accident, Expert Reveals

By EDWARD DUNCAN BRAKES shrieked. The car skidded dizzily, then left the pavement to hurtle against a tree. Not long before, its driver had taken a few drinks and stepped out into the rain to race for home. He was driving all right until he failed to make that curve.

Newspaper stories of the accident would probably attribute the driver's death to "driving while drunk." But enforcement officials and highway engineers who must work to prevent such accidents regret that the explanation isn't as simple as that.

"An automobile accident is a lot like a winning poker hand—or a losing one," according to J. Stannard Baker, traffic safety consultant with the National Safety council.

"Suppose you're sitting in a game and draw a straight flush. You win the pot. Did any one card contribute more to the winning hand than the rest? Of course not. It took all five cards to complete the flush.

"The same test should be applied to a traffic accident," Baker explained. "Darkness, rain, intoxication, a curve—if any one of these circumstances had not been present, the accident probably would not have happened."

This fundamental analysis will be one of those presented by Baker in the course he is teaching at the National Institute for Traffic Safety Training at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville from August 12 to 24. The course will be one of nine to be taught at the institute by the nation's outstanding traffic authorities.

"Now let's look at our sample accident again," said Mr. Baker. "The circumstances—darkness, rain, intoxication and a curve—are familiar." It is possible, even probable, that the darkness, rain, the curve or the car's speed had as much to do with the accident as the driver's degree of intoxication.

"If we keep statistics on that same curve for a year, we may find that 20 drivers missed it and piled up in accidents, and that of the 20, only 4 had been drinking.

"So we put a safety engineer to work on the curve. He studies all the statistics on the accidents that have occurred.

"Perhaps the curve will be straightened out a little, or obstructions to the view may be removed. Possibly the engineer finds that the crown in the surface around the curve gives a reverse bank which throws into a ditch any car taking the curve at more than 45 miles per hour on the right half of the road. This is changed.

"The following year we find that only five drivers missed the curve, and that four of these had been drinking. The number of drivers who can't negotiate it safely has been reduced to a minimum—to those who are grossly careless or quite drunk."

"It is true," said Mr. Baker, "that one factor alone seldom causes an accident. But it is equally true that if any single factor which contributes to motor vehicle accidents can be called a joker or wild card in our poker game analogy, it is intoxication.

"The car and the highway can be improved for the safety of sober drivers, but when a joker or wild card is introduced in the form of a drinking driver, things can go wrong anywhere any time."

Coming Events on America's Calendar

• The 150th anniversary of the first trip of Old Glory around the world will be marked on August 10. The ship Columbia which sailed from Boston September 26, 1791, flew the American flag. It completed a voyage around the world in 1795.

• The General Council of the Congregational and Christian Churches of the United States will be held in Berkeley, Calif., from August 23 to August 29.

• Pan-American friendship will be promoted at the International Girl Scout Camp at Camp Andree, N. Y., from August 14 to 23. Girl Scouts from all parts of North and South America will attend the camp.

• Seven thousand Indians of the Southwest will gather at Gallup, N. M., August 14 for a three-day ceremonial in which religious dances, chants, games, handicrafts and arts will be exemplified.

TRAILER GIRL

By VERA BROWN

WNU Service

THE STORY THUS FAR

Lynn Morrow, beautiful blonde New York girl, abandoned in Palm Beach in her bathing suit with only 50 cents when her employer, Mrs. Helen Warren, disappears with car and trailer from a camp where she, Buddy, her son, and Lynn had been living. A note from Mrs. Warren advised Lynn to call at her New York attorney's office for her clothes and wages. She is rescued by Terry McNeil, whom she met at the beach. She goes to his home, where he has a maid provide her with some of his sister's evening clothes. They then go to a beach club. His sister appears and a quarrel ensues. Lynn accepts the help of a stranger to escape. He takes her to his home where he identifies himself as Raymond (Wild) Austin. He accuses her of trying to blackmail him. Greatly incensed, Lynn flees. Stopping at a coffee shop, she meets a young artist, Rene Boucher, who is returning to New York by trailer and offers to take her there. They enjoy roughing it along the road. She finds Rene to be a decent sort of a fellow. Lynn tells Rene her story. He knows McNeil and Austin as moneyed playboys. The car breaks down. They are forced to stay at the Lovell farmhouse during repairs, the Lovells believing them newweds. The Lovells discover they are not married and insist a marriage take place. There being no way out, Lynn and Rene agree. They decide their marriage is to be one in name only, with a divorce to follow. The wedding takes place.

Rene went out to settle up with the garage man and Mrs. Lovell began bustling about.

"Now, my dear, since you're not staying for dinner, I've got some things together for you to take along. There's pie and plenty of fresh eggs and take along some of this canned fruit, and there's homemade bread."

Mrs. Lovell carried the food down to the trailer, while Rene hitched on the rejuvenated automobile. They said their good-bys, and with deep relief the newlyweds started on up the road north.

Hardly were they on to the road when Rene grabbed her hand, took off the wedding ring and threw it out into the ditch. "Damn them!" He pounded the wheel of the car with his fists. "How could they be such fools!" He kept his eyes straight ahead. "They should have known by looking at you, you're not that kind of person!"

Lynn felt sorry for Rene, for she knew he blamed himself for their difficult position.

"You're a swell kid, Lynn. If I have to steal the money, I'll see you get a divorce. There isn't anybody you want to marry now, is there? It may take a little time for me to get the cash together."

"No, there isn't anybody, Rene." It was while they were eating their "wedding dinner" that they talked, for the last time in many a day, about the forced marriage.

"I haven't an idea of one word that old parson said, Lynn," Rene said suddenly, his mouth full of Mrs. Lovell's homemade bread. "But I'm making a vow to you right now." He held up his right hand: "Never will I tell anybody about this whole silly thing! It's between you and me. If you find a chap you want to marry, step out and marry him. He'll never know from me that you and I were virtually stood up at the point of a gun and married!"

"I promise the same to you, Rene." "It might break some boy's heart if he fell in love with you and then learned about all this. How'd you make anybody understand? We do, but nobody else could!"

"I don't suppose so. I'm a little vague about it myself," and they went off into gales of laughter.

"If I'd only had sense enough to say that you were my brother!" Rene laughed. "Yes, we look so much alike!"

They were moving north, rapidly and both of them found they were suffering from the sudden cold after weeks of warm sunshine. They dug up all the clothes which the trailer offered and wore most of them, but even so, they found it cold.

"Well, we've got a little cash left, enough for ground rent for the trailer. I'm going to stay in a new camp at the edge of the Bronx for the time being," Rene explained his whole financial difficulties. "I figure if I have rent paid, I can go and try to peddle some of my pictures. There's a lot of food aboard, thanks to the Lovells. Although that's all we have to thank them for."

"You'll sell your things, I know!" Lynn said positively. "They're fine."

"Wish I had your optimism. But, at least, there'll be a roof over my head—and yours, too—until you get on your feet, if you need it."

"Thanks, Rene. You're kind. I'll see Mr. Mortimer the first thing. Then when I get clothes, I'll go job hunting."

"You've got a place to live as long as I have one," Rene answered. As they came closer to New York both of them were excited and thrilled. It was "home."

That night they decided to drive on after dark. They were only 100 miles from New York.

"We'll push on. I want to get this over with!" Rene said. "There's no use our both freezing. You go back and lie down. I'll drive through if I can. Then we can pull ourselves together and start going places."

She should marry some nice guy who'd be kind to her, give her a fine home. It was while Rene so dreamed along that a late comer, hurrying into the city, pushed Rene off on to the icy shoulder of the road. Rene acted quickly. There was a squeak of brakes, a clatter of dishes and away they went. The other driver was far down the road. He did not stop.

The rear end of the trailer was in the ditch and the car at right angles across the road. Rene, swearing softly, struggled out of the car and rushed back to the trailer to rescue Lynn. He found her in a pile of blankets, dishes and loose oranges, struggling to sit up and rubbing a bump on her head.

"Oh! Oh!" Lynn was a bit dazed. "What happened?"

"I don't know. But we're in the ditch. Are you all right?"

"I guess so. I bumped my head."

"Thank the Lord it's no worse!" Rene tried to see whether any damage had been done to the trailer, but the deep snow hid the rear wheels. Then he heard Lynn call out to him: "Rene! Rene!"

CHAPTER VIII

Rene put his head into the trailer door. "All right, Lynn? There's a car coming. I'm going to see if I can get help."

A truck came along, and the driver got out.

Together the two men looked over the situation. Finally the truck driver got out a chain from his tool box, hooked it on to the front of Rene's car. There was much pulling and struggling. Finally, with a big plunge, up came the trailer on to the road.

Suddenly Lynn gasped. The check was for $200.

It was not until then that he stopped and went back to see how Lynn fared in the trailer. He found her sitting on the couch, rubbing her ankle.

"I think I hurt it," she said, sticking out her ankle. It was already puffed up to twice its size.

"Why didn't you tell me?" Rene demanded in dismay.

"I didn't realize I'd hurt it until I tried to stand on it," she said apologetically. She also had a big lump on her forehead.

As they came nearer New York, he stopped at a drug store, bought some two-inch bandage and took it back to Lynn.

Rene, chilled to the bone, his trousers wet with snow by his knees, set his jaws grimly and drove on.

It was a sadly bedragged couple who limped into the almost deserted tourist camp up in the Bronx about 2 o'clock that morning. Rene unhooked the car and took it over to a nearby garage, for he was afraid the car would freeze in the bitter cold.

Lynn managed to get a fire built in the little stove, and the trailer was cozy and warm. But the ankle was painful, and there was no more sleep for her that night.

It must have been 9 o'clock when Rene finally roused. When he opened his eyes his head felt heavy and his throat sore. He was burning up.

But he called to Lynn: "How's your ankle?"

"It's pretty sore. But I can hobble around here."

"Then find me some aspirin."

"Are you sick?" she asked in terror.

"I've got a terrible cold."

It was not a cold, but a severe attack of influenza that Rene had. The next week was difficult for Lynn. She, herself, could hardly walk, but she had to care for Rene somehow.

The second day he was delirious and she tried to arrange to get him into the city hospital, but the wards were full and they refused him admittance.

The man who operated the trailer camp was kind, and his wife helped Lynn all she could. They ran errands, and together they managed.

"This is homecoming," Lynn thought bitterly as she sat beside Rene the first day he was delirious. Their money was running dangerously low, but Lynn was quite unable to go to Mr. Mortimer's office.

Lynn hunted through Rene's pockets and found all the money she could. He had paid the rent for a month on that first day before he got so ill, but they had only $10 left. There were medicines to buy, Mr. Arthur, the manager of the camp, had got his family doctor for Rene. Lynn paid him for his two visits and the money disappeared.

On the sixth day Rene was much better. Lynn was still hardly able to walk, but they had only 50 cents left.

"I'll go downtown tomorrow. I'll have to," she said as she gave Rene an accounting of how she'd spent the last $10.

"I've got a surprise for you, Lynn. Go get my belt," Lynn brought it to him. "See this?" he said as he opened up a little pocket on the under side. There were two $1 bills.

He tossed them to Lynn.

"You've been a brack. Don't try to go until you feel equal to it. Or better yet, take a taxi."

Lynn was horrified at such wild extravagance. "You could drive my car down but you'd have to pay the garage rent to get it out."

The next day Lynn was able to get down to a drug store and she telephoned Mr. Mortimer's office. His secretary made an appointment for the next day.

Lynn came home and began to check over the clothes available. Mrs. Lovell had given her a dark gingham dress, and she decided to wear that, one of Rene's heavy sweaters and a blue beret.

"I look like a ragamuffin," she said as she dressed behind the gingham screen.

"You'd look all right in anything," Rene assured her. "I've got to hurry and get well so I can get down to some of the magazines and peddle some of this stuff."

Rene was still very weak and sick. The doctor spoke to Lynn about it. "You should take your brother back down South," he told her. To go back to Florida was impossible. Lynn told the doctor. If that was the case, he warned, Rene must be very careful for a long time.

"He should stay in bed for another two weeks," was the ultimatum.

"If I can get that money and my clothes, we won't have to worry," Lynn said as she put the finishing touches on her scant costume.

The whole place smelled of shoe blacking, for Lynn had tried to black the white sandals she wore in Wild Austin's Palm Beach house, what seemed to her, ages ago.

"They look pretty bad," she said in a discouraged voice as she brought them for Rene to see.

"I don't care how they look," Rene remarked, eyeing her handiwork, "but I hope you don't get pneumonia. There's nothing to the thing."

When Lynn was finally dressed, she pulled aside the gingham curtain.

"How do I look?" she demanded.

"Fine," said Rene, but his throat contracted as he saw her in the too-large blue sweater, the thin Summer dress and the makeshift shoes.

"Well, anyway, I'm respectable. Now for Mr. Mortimer."

"Be sure and take the bus over from the subway at Thirty-fourth Street. Don't try and walk in those so-called shoes and buy yourself some when you get the money."

There was a long wait for a bus at Thirty-fourth Street, but soon she was being shot up to the fortieth floor of the Empire State Building. When she came into the reception room of Mr. Mortimer's big office, she was almost overcome at its grandeur. A gorgeously dressed woman in silver foxes was sitting there.

Lynn asked for Mr. Mortimer and gave her name to the pretty girl receptionist.

She was ushered into a high ceilinged office with many windows, and deep chairs. A man sat at a mahogany desk.

"Here is Miss Morrow, Mr. Mortimer."

"How do you do?" Mr. Mortimer held out his hand, took in Lynn's shabby, inadequate clothing. His conscience smote him, but there was nothing else he could do.

"Sit down, Miss Morrow. My secretary will bring your suit case. I'm sorry I had to put you to all this inconvenience, but at the time you wired I was not sure Mrs. Warren owed you any money. I had not had her letter."

Lynn nodded. None of this seemed strange to her.

"Where are you living?" he asked.

"In a trailer up at a Bronx tourist camp."

"Will you remain in town?" Mr. Mortimer handed her a check. Lynn did not look at it at first.

"I am giving you this on one condition—that you keep me informed where you live. Mrs. Warren liked you and wants to get in touch with you when she comes back North."

"Yes, but I hope to get something besides housework to do."

Mortimer's face remained unchanging. "Maybe I can help you to get a job." He was frankly surprised at the girl's apparent beauty, and he had sudden misgivings. Was everything as it seemed?

Then suddenly Lynn gasped. She looked at the check. It was for $200.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

True Love: Squire Bob and Betty Weeks, whose yard up at Old Greenwich has become a bird sanctuary, told me of the cardinal whose wife, to whom he was deeply devoted, had put him in the doghouse for a reason not ascertained. After she had disappeared, the cardinal flew around voicing the most mournful sounds and ending with what sounded exactly like, "Oh, dear." When hunger drove him to the Weeks' bird cafeteria, he would eat only a seed or two and then fly away still continuing his threnody. Then the wife, hard-hearted wench, would fly from the tree in which she had been hiding and gorge herself. Just when Betty, Bob and Pop, as well as friends who dropped in, had reached a point where they felt that something had to be done to avert tragedy, the wife re-appeared. Now all is sweetness and light and Mr. Cardinal, his heart wound healed, is getting fat.

Times Square: Frank Singiser, news commentator, coming out of the building that houses the studio with a "cat swallowed the canary" grin. In reality, a little while before, a fly had flown into his mouth and knocked him off the air almost a full minute. At five in the morning, front of a Forty-seventh street bar, a drunk, with a chip balanced precariously on his shoulder, seeking a fight. After a recent midnight show at the Hurricane, Al Mack, promotion wizard, reading in the original French, Hugh Panassie's "Hot Jazz". Lyle Talbot and Adrian Rollini in the Piccadilly Circus Lounge, trying to identify the author of the statement, "Folks, we couldn't live without a little swing now and then—mostly then" and learning later it was Louis Armstrong. A beggar, looking to be in his early twenties, alleging that he lost his arm in the last World war and producing a discharge as proof.

Lost Motion: A member of the Russian nobility of the Czarist era is interested in an upstate barn theater. An enterprising Broadway press agent, learning that the noble had a bank roll, arranged an appointment. He was duly met at the railroad station by a uniformed chauffeur who didn't have much English. So, seeking to make a good impression, the press agent struck up a conversation in which he used all the Russian he knew—not much—but enough to get by, he thought. To his surprise, the chauffeur made not the slightest response. As he left, without a contract, he learned why there had been no appreciation of his linguistic accomplishments. The chauffeur is an Italian.

Names: The foregoing reminds me of a recent experience of Frankie Masters. Learning that Myron McCormick, star of "Fight for Life," was in town on his honeymoon, Masters decided to look him up since once they had played a Chicago vaudeville engagement together. So he phoned the hotel and was put in touch with Myron McCormick.

"Hello, Myron," said Masters. "I caught you today and you were swell. A great play."

"What's this, a rib?" asked McCormick. "You know I wasn't in the game today."

Masters had been connected not with Myron McCormick, actor, but with Myron ("Milke") McCormick of the Cincinnati Reds.

Street Scene: A young couple sitting closely together on a Riverside drive bench. Pedestrians now and then turn and stare back but they have eyes only for each other. Children playing about them do not distract them. The boy pulls the girl closer and for an instant their lips meet. A silvery-haired man pauses, then somewhat shyly slips his arm about the waist of the wrinkled and bent woman who is walking with him. Traffic flows by in unending and unceasing streams.

End Piece: Philip Wilkie, son of Wendell L. Wilkie, who failed to graduate from Princeton, finally found a job. He staged the Polish wedding at a benefit at the Promenade cafe. His pay? $400,000. (Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

Fabric Off Plane Wings

Makes Meal for a Horse

CAMBRIDGE, OHIO.—A horse, kicked around long enough by technological unemployment among his species, grounded Henry Kachel, an aviator, who landed in a pasture near here.

Next morning he found the horse had eaten much of the fabric off the plane's wings and fuselage. Possibly he liked the flavor of banana oil used in doping the fabric.

Dog House Costs $100; Husband May Use It

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA.—Bill O'Neill, a tavern proprietor, is the envy of all the married men in Council Bluffs.

O'Neill built for his dog, Axel, a $100 dog house.

The house, 8 by 10 feet, has brick walls, a concrete floor, an asbestos shingled roof, and is well insulated.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Grip the screw top of a jar with a piece of emery cloth or sandpaper, and you will soon have it loosened.

Wooden spoons are desirable for candy-making because they do not become uncomfortably hot to handle.

One tablespoonful of sirup sweetens as much as two of sugar.

Store chocolate and cocoa in a cool, dry place to prevent important oils from deteriorating.

If you have been painting woodwork, the best way of removing the smell is to leave quarters of a large onion in the room until they have absorbed it. Be careful to throw away the onion immediately it has done its work.

TEMPTING HEALTH AIDS!

Oranges give you refreshment—plus vitamins you need!—Nothing else is so delicious and so good for you as oranges!

They give you vitamins and minerals needed for the best of health. Fully half our families get too little of these essentials, says the Department of Agriculture!

So make oranges your family's summer refreshment. Peel and eat them. Keep a big pitcher of fresh orangeade handy. Or better yet—

Have 8-ounce glasses of fresh orange juice for breakfast daily. This gives you all the vitamin C you normally need each day. Adds potassium, A, B₁, and G and minerals calcium, phosphorus and iron.

KNOW YOUR BANK
We Ask Your Cooperation

Because of the tremendous number of checks used in the conduct of business there is a tendency to regard them as money. A check is merely an order for a bank to pay money and as such has no intrinsic worth. It must be converted into cash to be of use. Thus when a check drawn on another bank is deposited, we must send it to that bank to convert it into cash. The depositor therefore should not draw on a deposit of checks until we have had time to collect them. If we pay a check drawn on uncollected funds we actually make a loan without interest. This obviously is unfair to our other borrowers and depositors. We will be glad to tell you how long it takes to collect checks drawn on different points so you can know when you may draw on your deposited items.

Coronado and the Seven Cities of Cibola

IN 1540 Don Francisco Vasquez de Coronado left Mexico, leading a band of fellow-adventurers north into the unknown wilderness to extend the Spanish empire by half a continent. Before the English Pilgrims first landed at Plymouth Rock, Coronado and his successors had built a royal palace in Santa Fe.

Crossing southern Arizona, New Mexico, visiting the Grand Canyon, Taos, and on across the Texas panhandle into Kansas, Coronado and his army failed to find the fabled "Seven Cities of Cibola," and considered their expedition a failure because they did not find gold.

Dark Sheer Print to Keep You Cool and Chic on a Summer Day

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IF YOUR summer clothes collection lacks a frock of dark sheer print (cloque organdy is particularly good buy for it neither wrinkles nor needs ironing) you are losing out on a friend in need and indeed that will faithfully serve on a blazing hot summer day. During the torrid mid-summer season the big problem is to dress so as to keep cool and fresh looking and smartly styled in appearance all at the same time, and the gowns that will do it is the one made of a handsome dark gaily patterned sheer print.

Once get the habit of having a dark cool sheer print frock within calling and it will become a tradition with you. It is not only that the comfort of a dark sheer keeps your disposition sweet giving you poise reflected in a self-satisfied expression on your face, but a dark print this summer ranks among the highest in style prestige.

The way to get the most out of your dark sheer frock is to fortify it with several sets of accessories. We know of a superbly chic dark print recently acquired by a young sophisticate that thrilled with possibilities. The coloring happened to be deep wine, light green, with a sprinkling of white on a deep rich moxy green background. What interchangeable accessories did for this frock in the way of chic and charm and imparting a different look tuned to occasion is a lesson in color well worth noting.

A cunning trick about this gown was its rather wide belt of self print, across the front of which were several vertical slashes finished like bound buttonholes. The idea was to thread an inch wide ribbon in and out of these openings to tie in loops and streamers at one side. The ribbon picked up a color in the print and this keyed the color for the entire accessory ensemble. Gloves and draped turban of matching wine-red jersey added the touch supreme.

A prime favorite this season, according to reports from fabric centers, is the attractive cloque organdies, beloved because they stay fresh in that their permanent crinkle gives them a natural resistance to wrinkling. Think of the joy and satisfaction in a dress you can dabble out easily as a handkerchief, give it a good shake, hang it up to dry and presto in the morning a look-alike new dress awaits you. Being dark in general tone you can wear it almost anywhere, shopping, traveling and where you will, knowing that your gown will fit into the picture perfectly.

The two gowns pictured are just the sort of dark prints that doll up valiantly with versatile accessories. Dainty rosebuds are scattered over a dark sheer for the attractive dress to the right. The fine washable swiss voile that makes it is cut on slim one-piece lines with smart all-around pleats in the skirt and repeated in the tiny pleats flaring the lace trimmed neck. Perky little velvet bows and crystal buttons are pleasing highspots. The beautiful draping qualities of fine swiss cloque fast-color, flower-printed organdy has inspired the winsome frock shown to the left. Here you see the new elongated bodice line with style emphasis on sophisticated simplicity. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger B. Whitman
(© Roger B. Whitman—WNU Service.)

Hot Upstairs Rooms.
QUESTION: Upstairs rooms in my house have slanting ceilings, and in summer the heat is so intense that the rooms cannot be used. How can I cool them without any great expense?

Answer: Your best move will be to create full circulation of air in the rooms. If there are windows that provide a through draft, put a large electric fan in one of them, blowing outward to draw a continuous current of air through the rooms. If there are not enough windows, there will be no great expense in cutting an opening in a high point of the roof, through which air can escape as fast as it becomes heated; the opening to be closed by a scuttle in bad weather. Heat in an attic is likely to be due to the overheating of stagnant air; when the heated air is allowed to escape, cooler air will enter, and the air current will give the effect of coolness.

Floor Finish.
Question: In a bungalow that we have bought, the floors were not protected, and are weatherbeaten. I want to have bare floors without rugs. How can I bring the wood back to its original beauty?

Answer: If the flooring is at all rough, you should have it smoothed with an electric floor machine, which will also restore the beauty of the wood. If this is not possible, you can clean the floors by bleaching with oxalic acid in the proportion of a pound dissolved in 1 1/2 gallons of hot water. (Wear old clothes and rubber gloves, and be very careful.) Apply liberally, and allow to remain for several hours. Follow by thorough rinsing with clear water. After drying, you can finish the floors with two coats of top quality floor varnish.

Crack Filler.
Question: A space of from one-quarter to one-half inch developed between an inside door jamb and the wall. I filled this first with strips of newspaper and finished with caulking compound. After six weeks the compound has shrunk from wall and jamb and cracked every two inches. How can this be remedied?

Answer: Good caulking compound differs from putty in always remaining slightly soft. Putty, on the other hand, hardens and is likely to crack. From your description I think it likely that possibly through error you were given putty instead of caulking compound. Dig out the hardened material and replace it with caulking compound that you know to be of good quality.

Storing Kerosene.
Question: A correspondent asks if it is safe to store two five-gallon cans of kerosene oil in the cellar. The cans will be about five feet from the oil fired water heater, enclosed in a brick and tin compartment.

Answer: This sounds quite safe, but I would advise that you get in touch with your insurance agent and get the fire insurance company's approval. It will also be advisable to check with the local regulations.

Oil Film on Furniture.
Question: I have an oil burner and steam system in my home. I find that since installing the oil burner, I get a very fine coat of oil film all over my furniture. Is this common of an oil burner so installed?

Answer: This is not common with all oil burners, but may occur if the combustion of oil is incomplete. Your oil burner man should be able to adjust the burner and correct this condition.

Casein Paint.
Question: I am thinking of painting my library with casein paint. I am told, however, that should I ever want to use oil paint, which is possible, all of the casein paint would first have to be removed. Is this so?

Answer: No; for good quality casein paint, such as you plan to use, forms an excellent first coat for oil.

Bloodsuckers in a Pond.
Noting a recent inquiry on the removal of bloodsuckers from a pond, a correspondent suggests trying a few ducks on the pond; for in several cases this has given successful results. "They will eliminate same in a very few weeks. Keep the ducks on the pond to prevent the return of the bloodsuckers."

Meaning of Veneer.
Question: What is veneer? Is it a thin layer of real wood applied over an inferior wood, or is it a stain?
Answer: The former is about correct. A fine wood, such as mahogany, walnut, etc., is applied over a less expensive wood, giving the finished article the appearance of a fine wood finish.

Exposed Pipes.
Question: Hot water pipes to upstairs rooms are exposed in my living-room. How can I conceal them before repapering?
Answer: The simplest thing would be to enclose them in a framework of 2 by 2s, covered with plaster-board or wallboard, which can be papered with the rest of the wall.

Potassium Permanganate.
Question: How can potassium permanganate stains be removed from a porcelain wash basin?
Answer: You can take them out with either oxalic acid or peroxide of hydrogen.

Smart Frock That Accentuates Youth

DECIDEDLY young, and just as fresh-looking as a spray of apple-blossoms, this frock (8680) will be lovely in silk print or flat crepe, with airy white frills. Notice how cleverly the frills are used to accentuate the torso which is not only the newest news in silhouettes, but potent to give you the long, limber look for which we're all striving. The full skirt, little pairs of buttons down the front and sash bow add to the youthful charm of this frock.

With your big hat and patent shoes, it will make you look as if you had stepped from the pages of the latest fashion book—and it proves once more that to get real individuality as well as newness, you'll be wise to make your own. A step-by-step sew chart makes the easy pattern even easier.

Pattern No. 8680 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires 3 1/2 yards of 39-inch material without nap and 2 1/4 yards of ruffling. Send order to:

Reveller Had Had Enough To Do With the Stranger

The reveller came home with a wicked-looking eye. His wife was perturbed. "Oh, dear!" she exclaimed. "How did you get that awful black eye?" The man parked himself in a chair. "It's an odd story," he sighed. "I was standing on a street corner, minding my own business, when a perfect stranger walked up and clipped me right on the eye." "That's ridiculous," frowned his wife. "A perfect stranger walking up and giving you a black eye! Did you ask him why he did it?" The husband shook his head. "Of course not," he returned. "Why should I butt into a stranger's business?"

Cottons Are an American Fashion

There is no need to ask yourself, Shall I wear cottons? You'll be far too busy deciding just which ones to wear. For cottons this season are so necessary in a well-rounded wardrobe as are lingerie and stockings.

Paris takes some of the credit for the enormous acceptance of cottons, and rightly so, but in the main they are basically American. They fit perfectly into the American ideal of freshness and cleanliness. Most cotton costumes are born and reared in this country, from the planting of the seed to the last stitch put into the gown.

For That New Look Follow These Tips

Your hair in a pompadour, your beret or wide brimmed hat or bonnet-like toque worn far back on your head giving accent to the pompadour. Your suit in the very smart narrow lines that are coming in ready for fall. Follow this formula and you will look "new" as new can be in fashion.

Copycat Fashions Ape Men's Attire

The loose, long lines, straight back and low-placed pockets that characterize men's jackets are exactly the features that college girls are demanding this season in casual sports coats. Either they go to men's stores to buy these jackets or have them copied in their favorite fabric and styles.

Western Atmosphere
A scarf clip with a distinctly western air is the Barce-looking bull's head cut out of leather.

Attractive Belt

Include in your collection a belt of the type pictured and we'll wager it will be the one you like best and will wear oftenest. The present prevailing vogue for ruffles and the utterly feminine touch is reflected in the styling of this belt. The artistry and originality that distinguishes this model is apparent at first glance. Wear it and you will find it is especially slenderizing. To achieve this clever effect Criterion molded the belt and its engaging little ruffled tabs from velvet-smooth capeskin with a hidden adjustable clasp, which assures a style that will fit to perfection.

Persian Toques to Be Autumn Style

Persian toques, intricately draped and twisted, are among the first new models shown by Legroux Soeurs for autumn. They are made of printed velvet, printed jersey and a cashmere print.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—J. B. Priestly and the U. S. A. got along nicely together until his play, "Time and the Conways," began to make trouble in 1937. In this play, Mr. Priestly went metaphysical and conjured time into fourth dimensional unreality. Perhaps because they had long felt the urgency and reality of a newspaper deadline, the American dramatic critics didn't quite get it and scored the play as just so-so and maybe not even that. Mr. Priestly said they were rude and boorish about it and challenged not only their time sense, but their sense of propriety and their fitness for their jobs.

That must have gone deeply under Mr. Priestly's skin, since, as the "Voice of England" at a moment when time, at any rate seems to be real, he takes a short-wave, short jab at radio commentators in this country. He thinks that "people who are not prepared to fight anything, anywhere" should mind their manners and not belittle others who can and will fight. While that may not necessarily make "Time and the Conways" a good play, it reveals Mr. Priestly, and no doubt England, as ready to meet all comers, and that seems all to the good. Perhaps when television comes, we'll be saying, "Smile when you say that, pardner."

This reporter, having once talked with Mr. Priestly, can testify that he has a nice smile. While his estimate of our present or potential belligerency may have been somewhat tactless, in his novels and magazine articles he has shown much more sound discernment of the American scene than the writings of certain other visiting Britons, who kiss and run and thereafter engage in long-distance smearing. He, at any rate, said his say while he was here.

Mr. Priestly, 46 years old, took honors in literature and history at Cambridge, went to London from his native Yorkshire and found the literary ladder just an escalator. His novel, "The Good Companions," was his first big success. This reader thought there was deep insight in his "Midnight in the Desert," written after his stay in Arizona, with his family. In his routine short-wave address, he stresses the common cultural ties of England and America, without being oily about it and has seemed to this hearer an effective special pleader. But he does seem to look on our critics as alien parachute-jumpers, or even something less admirable.

THE professor who pieces out the dinosaur from a single bone has a distinct advantage over interpreters of world events. Nobody can dispute him.

This writer has just finished reading a magazine article of 1934 about Lieut. Gen. Eiki Tojo of Japan, in which it is made clear that he is typical of the headstrong army caste, sure to destroy itself, and that quickly.

But here today is General Tojo named war minister in the new army cabinet which seems bent on destroying anybody or anything rather than itself. In the short view, at least, the dinosaurs of totalitarianism are subject to laboratory observation—but only in the short view, close to a deadline.

Little is known about General Tojo in this country, but available data indicate that his rise to power will not be reassuring to those who look for peaceful, pleasant solutions of world discord. His betes noir are the U. S. A. and Russia.

Like Pericles of Greece, he advanced himself by kicking up war scares. He agrees with the doctrine of Adolf Hitler, expounded in "Mein Kampf," that all alliances are push-overs and that the only tough and durable nation is the one that stands alone. He is smart, hard-boiled, resourceful and contemptuous of theories, sentiments, and negotiations. He is of an unreconstructed feudal family, and has been in the army since his early youth.

Stubby, bespectacled little Yosuke Matsuoka, Japan's new foreign minister, is cut out of the same cloth. At the University of Oregon, he was an easy conformist in superficial matters, picking up sports-page tidbits and playing poker cleverly—never caught bluffing. After he led Japan's contemptuous walk-out from the League of Nations in 1933 he made no further gestures toward Occidentalism. They call him Japan's Clive of India, signaling his long industrial outreach on the mainland.

FROSTY FOODS FOR SUMMER
(Recipes Below)

When you're "eating out," and you wonder what to order for the grand finale of your meal, how often do you decide on a delicious-sounding parfait? There's something very special about this tall, imposing and delectable dessert. And there really is no reason at all why having parfaits for dessert should be confined to our "eating out" days. A parfait may be a culinary creation, but with modern ice cream freezers, improved freezing in mechanical refrigerators and commercial mixes to help produce smooth, creamy, frozen desserts, there's no reason why you shouldn't serve them often at home!

Make a variety of ice creams and sherbets too, and serve them with cookies or dainty cakes. You'll find a grand assortment of cookie and cake recipes in my cookbook, "Better Baking."—crisp cookies, chewy cookies, and light feathery cakes that are just the right accompaniment for foods and drinks that are cold and frosty.

Ice Cream Freezer Ice Cream.
(Makes 1 quart)
2 cups milk
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 egg yolks
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1 cup whipping cream

Scald milk, reserving 1/2 cup. Mix and blend the sugar, flour and salt and mix to a smooth paste with the cold milk which was reserved. Add this mixture to the scalded milk and cook, stirring constantly until thick, in a double boiler for 15 minutes. Add egg yolks (well beaten) and cook, stirring constantly, three minutes longer. Add vanilla and chill. Fold in whipping cream (whipped), place in ice cream freezer and freeze, using three parts ice to one part rock salt. This is a good standard recipe to use as a "pattern" for many tasty variations.

Chocolate Angel Parfait.
2 egg whites (beaten stiff)
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup water
1 square unsweetened chocolate (melted and slightly cooled)
1 cup cream (whipped)
1 tablespoon vanilla extract
1/4 cup candied cherries (quartered)
1/4 cup blanched almonds (chopped)

Beat egg whites stiff. Cook the sugar and water to the soft ball stage (234 degrees). Pour syrup in fine stream over egg whites, beating constantly. Continue beating until mixture is cool. Fold in melted chocolate, whipped cream, extract, nuts and cherries. Pour into trays and place in freezing section of mechanical refrigerator. Freeze. No stirring is necessary. Nuts and cherries may be omitted, if desired.

Mocha Freeze.
Make strong coffee in the usual manner, and pour over crushed ice to chill. Pour into tall glasses and add a generous spoonful of vanilla ice cream to each glass. Top with whipped cream.

Chocolate Mint Parfait.
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk (scalded)
3 eggs (beaten)
2 squares unsweetened chocolate (melted)
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
1 cup whipping cream (whipped)
Blend sugar, cornstarch and salt. Add scalded milk slowly, stirring well, and place in saucepan or double boiler. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick. Remove from heat; add beaten eggs; then cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Blend in melted chocolate. Cool. Then add vanilla extract and fold in whipped cream. Place in freezing container of modern ice cream freezer, and freeze, using 2 parts ice to 1 part rock salt. Serve in tall parfait glasses, alternating with layers of peppermint sauce. Top with whipped cream and a cherry. Peppermint sauce:

1/2 cup sugar
4 teaspoons cornstarch
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 cup cold water
1/2 cup boiling water
1/4 teaspoon peppermint extract
Few drops green coloring
1/4 cup whipping cream (whipped)
Combine sugar, cornstarch, salt and lemon juice. Mix with cold water to form a paste. Add hot water and cook, stirring constantly until thick and clear. Add flavoring and coloring, and chill. Just before serving, fold in whipped cream.

Lemon Sherbet.
(Serves 8)
1 1/2 cups granulated sugar
1 quart water
1 tablespoon gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
3/4 cup lemon juice
Yellow food coloring
2 egg whites
2 tablespoons powdered sugar

Combine granulated sugar and water and boil for 5 minutes. Soak gelatin in cold water and dissolve in the hot syrup. Cool. Add lemon juice and a few drops of yellow food coloring. Pour mixture into freezing container of ice cream freezer. Cover and surround with a mixture of chipped ice and salt (3 parts ice to 1 part salt, by volume). Freeze.

Lemon Iceberg.
To each glass of lemonade, add a scoop of lemon sherbet. Garnish with mint and a fresh strawberry or raspberry. Slip a lemon slice over the edge of each glass.

Iced Chocolate.
(Makes 4 large glasses)
4 tablespoons sugar
4 tablespoons cocoa
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup boiling water
2 cups milk (scalded)
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
Crushed ice
Whipped cream

Combine sugar, cocoa and salt. Add boiling water and cook for two minutes. Remove from fire, and combine with the scalded milk. Pour into glasses filled with crushed ice, and serve with a spoonful of whipped cream garnishing each glass.

LAST week Marty helped to talk Grandmother out of her old buffet. The Martindale family were in a dither when she told them that she was going to furnish a combination guest and sewing room with the mirror and two legs of the old buffet; plus some spools, a butter-tub, unbleached muslin, some old rags and other odds and ends.

The rags were used for the hook rug in this sketch of a corner of that new guest and sewing room. Directions for the rug and for making the spool tables shown her are both in Sewing Book 5. The mirror was hung end-wise and is marvelous for fitting dresses. The muslin drapery was used to cover the irregular edge of the mirror and makes just the right background for the blue spool tables. You can see in the sketch how the lamps and stool were made. Next week the bottom shelf of the buffet will be used and

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD
Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes. More people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—test weak, nervous, Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

A PROPHECY?
 Coming events cast their shadows before and it would seem that the Democrats are blown up to the extent that Mr. Willkie is going to win.

The shadow casting events:
 1. Jim Farley was kicked out much to the disgust of thousands.
 2. New Dealers with left wing cans on their tails ran the Chicago convention.
 3. The New Deal is relying on the unsavory ring politicians to put Roosevelt over.
 4. Mr. Roosevelt's third term obstacle is too great to surmount.
 5. Democrats are deserting the party in droves.
 6. The Gallup poll shows Mr. Willkie with most electoral votes.—El Paso Herald-Post.
