Legion And The Public After 21 years of faithful service, the American public has just finished showing its appreciation for the American Legion and its partnership organization, the Auxiliary, by turning out in numbers exceeding 3,000,000 to witness the greatest spectacle of peace time history, where over 20,000 Legionnaires and Auxiliary members paraded the streets of Boston from morning till night, during the National Convention Sept. 23-26. This display of loyalty is accepted as a stamp of approval of the efforts and activities of the 1,500,000 paid up members, who through work and unselfish policies have pumped millions of dollars into the life lines of building better Americans. Citing the efforts of the Carrizozo Post alone, which are generally known to our citizens, we have, under the direction of Mr. Lou Fink, maintained a school of music, where for almost a year between 20 and 30 students have received teaching each month, free of charge. Our child welfare program has come in for hundreds of dollars, spent to relieve defective eyes, bad tonsils and other ailments, which have seriously retarded our youths' progress, intellectually and physically. The Legion and Auxiliary believe this to be the direct route to the building of better Americans. To that aim, we have dedicated our lives and we wish to thank our citizens for the wonderful co-operation in patronizing our entertainments and programs, through which we acquire the necessary funds. —Dan Conley, Adjutant.

The Fishing Industry of New England, Founded by Basques in 1500, Is Oldest And One of Most Colorful in U. S. Today

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THEY say that in this machine age there is little romance and adventure in modern business. Yet, amid many of the nation's great industries which have lost much of their "color" through mechanization, there is one that is still largely hand operated and in which the individuality of those who follow that trade remains intact. That is the great New England fishing industry.

It is probably the oldest continuously operated industry in the United States today for it goes back nearly 400 years to that sunny day about the year 1500 when a small group of Basque fishermen set out from a little coastal town in France in their small fishing boats. They had little tools or their own fishing grounds and as the days went by recruited for their crew and other men from the area. However, even today many Basques and their descendants still speak the French language and they still have the same old fishing grounds which would yield them a good harvest today if they were to be harvested.

The Basques were the first to use the fishing boats and their fishing gear. They used a special kind of fishing net which was made of twisted rope and was shaped like a large funnel. They used a special kind of fishing hook which was made of twisted rope and was shaped like a large funnel. As an industry of the past the fishing industry of the United States has long been a colorful and interesting one. It is one of the few industries in which the individuality of those who follow that trade remains intact. That is the great New England fishing industry.

By 1500 the Basques were fishing regularly along the New England coast. In 1521 they were fishing along the coast of New England. In 1533 they were fishing along the coast of New England. In 1545 they were fishing along the coast of New England.

have a mind to collect what became known as the "fish tax" during the year 1833. When Charles G. of England became disappointed because he was not given a share of the profits, Massachusetts promptly sent a commission to the town of Gloucester to investigate the matter.

In the beginning of the 19th century cod fishing was in a prosperous condition. The annual production was about 100,000 quintals and the value of the fish reported was about $10,000,000. There being 400 fishing vessels of about 10 tons each in Massachusetts alone. By 1870 more than 1,000 men were employed in the New England fisheries. A report of the Massachusetts fishery board in 1887 shows that at that time the industry was making the best of its way and the number of vessels employed had increased to 1,000.

France, the New England fishing industry has reached such proportions that the annual catches amount to 100,000 quintals in round figures with a value of $10,000,000. Products manufactured from the catch amount to an additional $5,000,000. Center of the great activity is Boston where the "fish exchange" of the New England industry has headquarters and where the great fish market, the "fish pier," handles all fresh fish annually.

Another of the Boston fish pier is the fish market. It is a large and busy place where the fish are sold. The fish are brought in from the fishing boats and are sold to the merchants. The fish are sold in large quantities and the prices are high. The fish are sold in large quantities and the prices are high.

When a man of the catches has been completed the work of unloading the boats begins. Each boat on its way out takes on a load of seaweed in which to pack the fish as soon as caught. This seaweed keeps the fish from spoiling as they are carried to the pier. Included in large barrels and transferred to carts, the fish are carried to the packing and distribution plants. Here they are made ready for shipment.

LUKE AND HIS GOSPEL

LESSON TEXT—Luke, 1:1-4; Acts 1:1; Colossians 4:14; II Timothy 4:11.

GOLDEN TEXT—It seemed good to me also to write... that thou mightest know the certainty of those things, wherein thou hast been instructed.—Luke 1:3.

Reading a book is a privilege and should be an illuminating and stirring experience. What a pity that so few read good books in our day! To study a book is a far more fruitful and interesting experience. Few are the books worthy of prolonged and repeated study. Therein do we find one of the great differences between books of men and God's Book—the Bible. Again and again we turn to its pages and find its truth inexhaustible, ever interesting, inspiring, and soul-stirring in its beauty and power.

In reading any book, we want to know who wrote it, what kind of a man he was, why he wrote, what he wrote about, and what kind of a book he wrote. We recognize that the Holy Spirit is the real author of the Word (II Tim. 3:16; II Pet. 1:21), but he chose and used human writers. As we begin a six-month study of the Gospel according to Luke, we properly ask about both the author and his writing.

1. The Writer—Luke. Our information regarding Luke is found in the New Testament, in the introductory words of the books he wrote (Luke and Acts) and in the writings of his friend and co-worker, Paul. There we learn of his

1. Naturally and rightly, his name, "Luke," is a contraction of the Greek name "Columbanus" and since we know from Colossians 4:14 that he was not "of the circumcision," we know he was a Gentile and certainly a Greek. When, where and by whom he was born to Christ, we do not know. We do know that this intelligent Greek, versed in all the philosophies of the gentile world, found in Christ the fulfillment of all his desires and dreams.

2. Professions—a Physician (Col. 4:14). See also medical terms in all his writings. Luke wrote scholarly Greek; he was familiar with the life of a soldier (Acts 27); he judged with his scientific accuracy an excellent culture often revealed in his writings.

3. His Friends. A man's friends indicate his character. Luke had a close friend and possibly a patron, "his evangelist" Theophilus (Acts 1:1; Luke 1:3), evidently a man of standing and ability. He was also a close friend and fellow laborer with perhaps the greatest man of all time, Paul the apostle.

4. His Activities. Luke's main work was with Paul (Acts 16:17, 20, 27, 40 and elsewhere), physician, preacher of the gospel, and author.

5. The Book—the Gospel by Luke. To have written a book may be a doubtful distinction, but to have been used of the Holy Spirit to write such a book as this Gospel, what an honor and privilege! Following Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, we write

1. The Subject—"The Word" (Luke 1:1). He writes about the perfect personality of Jesus Christ, but he writes about the "Word" which was with God in the beginning and which became flesh in the person of humanity of Jesus Christ.

2. The Sources. Luke did not read what many had written (Luke 1:1). He also talked with "eye-witnesses" (Luke 1:2) and "ministers of the word" who had known the Lord. His sources were excellent and trustworthy.

3. The Method. He "traced the course" (Luke 1:3) of the life of the perfect personality of Jesus Christ, but he writes about the "Word" which was with God in the beginning and which became flesh in the person of humanity of Jesus Christ.

4. The Purpose. Luke wanted Theophilus (and others who read his Gospel) to know with "certainty" (Luke 1:3) those things in which he was already instructed by word of mouth. Important matters must always be written down, carefully and in order. The passing of oral word of mouth inevitably results in change, omission or untruthfulness. So, especially vital in matters of our eternal salvation, Luke wrote down, carefully and in order, those things which he had seen, heard, and comprehended. Luke, who had a knowledge of all these things, was moved by the Holy Spirit to write, and those who have this glorious Gospel which we are so happy to read from now until the end of the world, 1944.

CANNIBALISM IS CURED BY SALT

Remedy for Costly Poultry Vice Is Discovered.

By L. M. BLACK (Extension Pathologist, New Jersey College of Agriculture, Rutgers University)

Some poultrymen have a lot of trouble with cannibalism among their chickens, especially during the growing period. But here is a simple remedy—common salt. This remedy is so simple that to many poultrymen it may seem almost ridiculous—they've tried so many other impressive remedies. However, none of the others has ever been entirely satisfactory. Cannibalism has become more and more common in recent years.

And, of course, it's important to stop this costly vice. Many chickens may be lost. Others may look so unsightly they do not sell to best advantage. And if the pullets are kept through the laying year, cannibalism may continue and affect egg production.

Harry W. Tinsley and Ralph B. Nestler of the U. S. Department of Agriculture discovered the effectiveness of salt combined with cod liver oil in feeding experiments with quail. Quail generally are more quarrelsome than chickens, especially when two or more cages are mixed. In the experiments, cannibalism had become a serious problem.

Back in 1933 J. H. Pringle reported in the Journal of the Ministry of Agriculture for Northern Ireland the results of a study of the role of salt in the nutrition of the laying hen. He stated that a lack of salt in the diet of hens causes them to lose weight and become subject to cannibalism. On reading Pringle's observations, Tinsley and Nestler tried adding salt to the diet of their quail. It worked.

The remedy was now being tested on chickens, and found to give excellent control of cannibalism. There is an old belief, of course, that salt is poisonous to chickens. However, moderate amounts of salt and cod liver oil. And experiments show that chickens can stand considerable salt for several days without permanent injury.

Thus eggs only a small percentage of salt is needed to stop cannibalism. Standard diets usually contain about 1/2 per cent of added salt. An additional 1 or 2 per cent added to the diet for four or five days usually stops cannibalism.

The effectiveness of salt seems especially logical. Some feed experts caution have been getting less and less salt in poultry diets in recent years, and during the same time cannibalism has been on the increase.

8. The Method. He "traced the course" (Luke 1:3) of the life of the perfect personality of Jesus Christ, but he writes about the "Word" which was with God in the beginning and which became flesh in the person of humanity of Jesus Christ.

9. The Purpose. Luke wanted Theophilus (and others who read his Gospel) to know with "certainty" (Luke 1:3) those things in which he was already instructed by word of mouth. Important matters must always be written down, carefully and in order. The passing of oral word of mouth inevitably results in change, omission or untruthfulness. Give a Thought to MAIN STREET

IT MAY seem odd to suggest that the Rt. Hon. Dr. John Bain Sutherland, better known as Jock, is lacking a new sort of job. The job is still coaching a football team, but this time it is the Brooklyn Dodgers and not the Pittsburgh Panthers.

"This is my first shot at pro football," Jock tells you, "and I'll have to admit it may be something entirely different."

"For example, there's the matter of forward passing. As you know we liked to hang onto the ball at Pittsburgh as long as we could, I used good passers when I had them; but I didn't like to throw the ball around too much when I didn't have them."

"It is different with the Dodgers. We have the passers, one of the best in Ace Parker, and we'll do our full share of air work. I know also that pro crowds demand a more open or more spectacular game. College football is full of spectacular play, but no fireworks are demanded by the crowds."

Big crowds still remember those slashing Panther backs who ran and blocked with an offensive that was hard to stop.

Speed Before Weight

"Being new at this pro game," Jock continued, "I may be entirely wrong, but I still don't believe weight is as important as some others do. I'd rather have a fast 190-pound lineman than a slower player at 230 or 240. I still believe in speed far above bulk. That extra yard or two in moving around means more than you might think."

"What about a big, fast man?" I asked Jock.

"As for instance?" Jock asked.

"Well, Cal Hubbard?"

"How many Hubbards do you see around?" Jock said. "I mean 240 or 245-pound players who are just as

(Released by Western Newspaper Union)

WHEN the 1940 gridiron wars have ended, fans of the Big Ten conference will be able to look back on a season as thrilling as any in the history of the Western circuit.

That prophecy doesn't require the services of a soothsayer. It's as inevitable as a hangover. There are too many evenly matched teams to afford anything but a maximum of excitement, upset dope and ruined calculations. The decision of the University of Chicago to forsake football has led to a better balance within the conference. No team this year will romp over Chicago for a pathetically easy victory and another meaningless mark in the win column. They'll fight for every victory.

Early season dope has Ohio in first place, closely followed by Indiana, Michigan and Minnesota. Northwestern and Iowa may double-cross the experts, Illinois can cause plenty of trouble and Purdue and Wisconsin have their quota of howling adherents.

Buckeyes Well Balanced

The Buckeyes from Ohio State have excellent balance—a veteran, well-oiled, smooth performing backfield and a rugged, wall-like line. In addition, they have an individual star who ranks with the nation's greatest—Don Scott, rangy 210-pound quarterback who can kick, pass, run and block. Last year Scott was teamed with left half Jim Strausbaugh, right half Frank Zad-worney and fullback Jim Langhurst. The combination easily was the best in the Middle West.

Coach Bo McMillin's Indiana team is a definite championship threat. In Harlin Hal Hursh the Hoosiers have one of the ablest forward passers in the business. They also have 10 other experienced backs, four veteran ends, five experienced tackles and six guards and two centers who won their spurs in 1939. However, Indiana faces Nebraska, Iowa, Northwestern and Ohio State on consecutive week-ends. That schedule may lick the Hoosiers.

The Two-Man Gang

Tommy Harmon and Forest Evashevski, Michigan's Two-Man Gang, are the mainstays in the Wolverines' bid for conference laurels. Their schedule calls for conference games with Illinois, Minnesota, Northwestern and Ohio State. One thing in Michigan's favor is the veteran talent available for both ends, both guards and center. John Nicholson and Ed Fruitig will be on the flanks, Bob Fritz and Milo Sukup at guards and Bob Ingalls at center.

Minnesota relies on power again this fall with two new boys regarded as more than helpful additions. They are Dick Wildung, 210-pound tackle, and Leo von Sistine at end. Though graduation caused severe losses, Minnesota's backfield is in fine shape. George Franck and Bruce Smith will awaken deep respect.

Tough Schedule for Iowa

Iowa's tough schedule tests the ability of Coach Eddie Anderson's three stalwarts, Right Tackle Mike Enich, Quarterback Al Couppee and Fullback Ray Murphy. Murphy is expected to be the offensive sensation of a Hawkeyes team which will meet—Indiana, Wisconsin, Purdue, Illinois, Minnesota, Notre Dame and Nebraska. It is improbable that Iowa will duplicate last year's showing of six victories, a tie and a defeat—the schedule is against it.

Northwestern may be the conference dark horse. Loaded with backfield power, the offense likely will be offset by lack of experience in the line. Here, too, there is the matter of a tough schedule. In addition to six Big Ten games, the Wildcats clash with Syracuse and Notre Dame.

Wisconsin, Purdue and Illinois were hard hit by graduation. Much of their success depends upon the development of reserves. However, it's safe to say that they will ambush more than one of the first division teams.

Sport Shorts

Teddy Lyons, 39-year-old veteran hurler of the White Sox, names Al Simmons, the "Pulverizing Pole" from Milwaukee who pounded the Athletics to three pennants, as the toughest guy for him to get out in his 18 years of pitching in the American league. Ray Ehill, Notre Dame 200-pound left end and hopeful, spent a good part of his summer 3,000 feet underground in an ore mine in Ironwood, Mich. Chuck Failer, Marquette university tackle, is a licensed airplane pilot.

Rest in Bed Important in Influenza Cure

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

DURING the 1918 and 1919 'flu epidemic I happened to be senior medical officer of a large military hospital and was in a position to watch the effect of different types of treatment—the use of re-educating drugs, the use of various heart stimulants, the effect of getting patients to bed the first day of the attack (and also three or four days after the attack first occurred), the effect of removing blood from patients who had recovered and injecting it into others, particularly those with a high temperature or where there was a complication of broncho-pneumonia or pneumonia.

TODAY'S HEALTH COLUMN

Our records showed that our death rate was much lower than the average for the general population and this was believed to be due to the fact that every soldier was checked over daily and those with influenza were placed in hospital a day or two sooner. It was this getting the patient into hospital "a day or two sooner" that brought about early recovery and prevented the dangerous complications—broncho-pneumonia and pneumonia. These two ailments, not influenza, were responsible for most deaths.

The 'Rest Theory' Proved.

That early rest in bed is more important in preventing complications than the form of treatment is shown by a report by Dr. Alfred M. Glazer, Cincinnati, in the Ohio State Medical Journal. There were four groups of patients.

Group 1 was given aspirin compound, phenobarbital, bed rest, forced fluids and light diet.

Group 2 was given the same treatment as group 1 plus 15 grains of soda bicarbonate—baking soda—every four hours.

Group 3 was given same treatment as group 1, but quinine was used instead of aspirin.

Group 4—no medicine of any kind, except rest in bed, was given, but a gelatin capsule of glucose (sugar) every four hours.

The results of these methods showed that the temperature, the stay in hospital, and the complications were not any higher, longer, or more numerous in the cases where rest in bed was the only method of treatment.

Prevention of Dementia Precox

THERE is a mental ailment that should receive the most earnest consideration of parents, teachers and physicians, which, if treated in its early stage, may result in a cure in the majority of cases. Undiscovered or neglected, this mental ailment sends more patients to mental hospitals than any other single ailment. I am referring to dementia precox, the ailment where the individual lives really two lives, one life amid those about him and the other life "in a world of his own."

'No Favorites' at Home.

What must parents, teachers and physicians do to prevent the development of dementia precox in children and young adults?

The clinic of Drs. Edward A. Srecker and Francis J. Braceland, Institute of the Pennsylvania Hospital, in the Philadelphia number of Clinics of North America, says:

Prevention must be intensively cultivated during childhood, and every child who presents dementia precox symptoms—"good," "queer," "shy," "reserved," "difficult," "unsociable," "seclusive," etc.—should be suspected.

In the home "parents must play no favorites," either in rewards or punishments. The extra ability or sociability of brothers or sisters should not be pointed out.

Personally I believe the biggest factor in preventing dementia precox is group games, where the youngster has to "give and take." There is no "royal" road for him to tread when he is playing or mixing with others.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—What causes ringworm on the head or face?
A.—It is due to a vegetable parasite. The treatment is to use preparations to kill this parasite.
Q.—Can arthritis be caused by food?
A.—Lack of vitamin B1 in food is now considered a cause or partial cause of arthritis. Foods rich in vitamin B-1 are liver, bacon, leafy vegetables, butter, milk, yeast tablets and peanuts.

Hitler's Emblem

The swastika, used by Hitler as a symbol of German might, has been used all over the world from time immemorial. The emblem originated in India, where it is still used by Hindus, who mark it on their foreheads as a sign of their caste. The word "swastika" comes from "Suvastika," which is Hindustani. The symbol has been found in High Asia, northern Europe, in Buddhist Mongolia, North America and even in such far-flung places as the Andes and Peru.

The swastika originally represented the Aryan Fire God, Agni, and the direction of the transoms (the "arms" of the swastika) signified the procession of the sun through the heavens. It meant blessing and good fortune. Christians have always denounced the swastika as a Pagan emblem.

SCHOOL girls will love to wear this pretty frock—and it's so very becoming to all of them! Flared at the skirt, wide at the shoulders, design No. 8763 fills them out, at the age when they shoot up like beanpoles. And the "One member has an interesting collection of pitchers and would like to make a corner whatnot for them," the letter continued. Well, here it is ladies! With the collection of pitchers all in place. The sketch gives all dimensions and instructions. The triangle shelves are cut from one board as shown at the left. The second shelf from the bottom needs six holes. All the others have three holes each. The design may be varied by using larger spools at the bottom for the first spool above and below each shelf. Use extension curtain rods to fit the holes in the spools. A little glue between spools makes the whatnot rigid. Stain or paint.

A HOME Demonstration Agent wrote me the other day to say that many of the women in her group had made the spool shelves described in SEWING BOOK 3 and the end tables of spools in Book 5.

Loquacious Conductor Aimed to Make Self Clear

"Fare, please! Fare!" The passenger paid no attention. "Fare, please!" Still no response. "By the ejaculatory term, 'Fare,'" said the conductor, "I imply no reference to the state of the weather, the complexion of the admirable blonde you observe in the contiguous seat, nor even to the quality of the service vouchsafed by this philanthropic corporation. I merely alluded in a manner perhaps lacking in delicacy, but not in conciseness, to the monetary obligation set up by your presence in this car and suggest that you liquidate." Then the passenger paid his fare.

New York Failed to Vote

New York failed to cast its vote for President in the first election, which made Washington President. As the Constitution provided, each state was to appoint presidential electors "in such a manner as the legislature thereof may direct." In some states electors for the first election of 1789 were chosen by popular vote; in others, the legislatures appointed them. The New York legislature could not agree on the manner of selecting the electors. As a result, none was chosen, and New York failed to cast any vote for President—Pathfinder.

fast on your backs and ends? We haven't seen many Hubbards in football. Or Fat Henrys either.

The 1940 rush may break all records, both among the colleges and the pros. Sport remains the big mind distractor and football leads all other competitions in this respect.

I can't recall when the college game had so many strong teams—scattered all over the map—Cornell, Princeton, Fordham, Tennessee, Alabama, Tulane, Texas A. and M., Southern Methodist, Ohio State, Minnesota, Michigan, Notre Dame, Southern California, Washington, Duke, Oklahoma, Missouri, Nebraska, L. S. U., Texas, T. C. U., Georgia Tech and Santa Clara. And even this list is only a partial roll call.

There should be at least 35 exceptionally strong college teams this year and they cover all known and explored sections of the map.

The Football Phenomenon

Pound for pound, one of the great football players and one of the most amazing is 150-pound Dave O'Brien of Bert Bell's Philadelphia Eagles.

Little Dave has one record that is almost beyond belief. As I recall the vital statistics O'Brien's slight frame has never left a football game through injuries in five years of college and pro play. He finished three years with T. C. U.'s hard schedule minus a dent in his small but solid system. And he was always between a 50 and 60-minute man.

He was supposed to be too small for the pro game. But in place of being rumped into a shapeless mass Little Dave went along passing and running and kicking without any trouble.

You might ask Steve Owen of the N. Y. Giants about him.

"One of the best I ever saw," Steve said, "smart running his team, a fine ball carrier and one of the best of all passers. And above all as tough as green hickory when it comes to taking his share of being knocked about."

O'Brien completed 40 passes in his last two pro games a year ago. That ought to be a record—and I think it is.

Star Running Backs

A group of football coaches were talking about the star running backs of football, apart from the powerhouse delegation.

In the discussion my top nomination was Cliff Battles, and no one cared to dispute the pick. Cliff Battles and Red Grange were two of the first nominations.

Cliff will tell you he was rarely even jarred. Extremely fast and slippery, he had a way of avoiding any shock tackling. No one could pick an opening quicker.

KNOW YOUR BANK

Do Credit Requirements Change?

In general, credit requirements are rather constant. It may seem that when times are bad, particularly during depressions, that requirements are more severe. This perhaps is because loan applicants' own affairs have taken a turn for the worse and so they are unable to meet credit requirements which they were able to meet during better times. Thus is created the mistaken impression that requirements have been tightened. Also, during bad times there may be a greater demand for cash by bank customers who are forced to draw out their savings to meet emergencies, and hence the bank does not have as much money available to lend as in normal times.

WENDELL WILLKIE MAN OF ACTION

Republican Candidate for President, Like, Thomas Jefferson, Has Wide Interests.

In the two and one-half months since his unprecedented and spectacular nomination for the Presidency, by the Republican National Convention, Wendell Willkie has demonstrated to the country his dynamic personality and driving energy as well as his quick and clear mind.

Few men have ever been nominated for the Presidency who have as wide and universal an interest in many fields of endeavor as Wendell Willkie. In that respect he has been compared to Thomas Jefferson who was as well versed in architecture as he was in the law—knew as much about farming as he did about political philosophy.

Born 45 years ago in the small town of Elwood, Indiana, Wendell Willkie was educated for the law. But before he received his degree in that profession, he taught history in the high school at Coffeyville, Kansas; drove a bakery wagon; worked as a barker for a tent hotel in Aberdeen, South Dakota, as a field hand in harvesting wheat in Oklahoma and as a laborer in California. He has labored in steel mills and sugar fields.

Once embarked on the practice of law, Wendell Willkie defended labor unions with his father; enlisted in the army the day this country declared war on Germany in 1917; became a lawyer for a rubber company; and finally went to New York, first as counsel for Commonwealth and Southern Corporation and then, when the sick company needed re-organization, as its president. Even critical New Dealers always have paid tribute to Willkie's candor, honesty and ability.

Nurtured in a home filled with books, Wendell Willkie throughout his life has been a constant reader of books—all kinds of books. He reads rapidly and, with a photographic-like mind, retains what he has read. He demonstrated his rich background of information on the "Information Please" programs on the air and in motion pictures. He is a qualified authority on English

Constitutional history and writes much better than many professional writers. Had he not been a great lawyer, he would have been an outstanding newspaperman.

Though Willkie has sat among the great and learned, he has never lost his touch with his Indiana origin. Though he likes books, he likes people more. He is as much at home in conversation with a truck driver or farm laborer as he is with an industrial tycoon or college President. Typical of the man is the fact that his faith in American agriculture is so great that he placed the savings from his salary in Indiana farm land. Operating these farms on a 50-50 basis with tenants, Willkie now knows as much about farming as he does about law.

Indeed, like the Roman of old, Willkie might say "nothing human is foreign to me." But that thought would never occur to Willkie because he believes that when a man commences to compare himself to a Cleo or Napoleon, people had better look out for him.

KNOW YOUR BANK

Do Credit Requirements Change?

In general, credit requirements are rather constant. It may seem that when times are bad, particularly during depressions, that requirements are more severe. This perhaps is because loan applicants' own affairs have taken a turn for the worse and so they are unable to meet credit requirements which they were able to meet during better times. Thus is created the mistaken impression that requirements have been tightened. Also, during bad times there may be a greater demand for cash by bank customers who are forced to draw out their savings to meet emergencies, and hence the bank does not have as much money available to lend as in normal times.

WENDELL WILLKIE MAN OF ACTION

Republican Candidate for President, Like, Thomas Jefferson, Has Wide Interests.

In the two and one-half months since his unprecedented and spectacular nomination for the Presidency, by the Republican National Convention, Wendell Willkie has demonstrated to the country his dynamic personality and driving energy as well as his quick and clear mind.

Few men have ever been nominated for the Presidency who have as wide and universal an interest in many fields of endeavor as Wendell Willkie. In that respect he has been compared to Thomas Jefferson who was as well versed in architecture as he was in the law—knew as much about farming as he did about political philosophy.

Born 48 years ago in the small town of Elwood, Indiana, Wendell Willkie was educated for the law. But before he received his degree in that profession, he taught history in the high school at Coffeyville, Kansas; drove a bakery wagon; worked as a barker for a tent hotel in Aberdeen, South Dakota, as a field hand in harvesting wheat in Oklahoma and as a laborer in California. He has labored in steel mills and sugar fields.

Once embarked on the practice of law, Wendell Willkie defended labor unions with his father; enlisted in the army the day this country declared war on Germany in 1917; became a lawyer for a rubber company; and finally went to New York, first as counsel for Commonwealth and Southern Corporation and then, when the sick company needed re-organization, as its president. Even critical New Dealers always have paid tribute to Willkie's candor, honesty and ability.

Nurtured in a home filled with books, Wendell Willkie throughout his life has been a constant reader of books—all kinds of books. He reads rapidly and, with a photographic-like mind, retains what he has read. He demonstrated his rich background of information on the "Information Please" programs on the air and in motion pictures. He is a qualified authority on English

Constitutional history and writes much better than many professional writers. Had he not been a great lawyer, he would have been an outstanding newspaperman.

Though Willkie has sat among the great and learned, he has never lost his touch with his Indiana origin. Though he likes books, he likes people more. He is as much at home in conversation with a truck driver or farm laborer as he is with an industrial tycoon or college President. Typical of the man is the fact that his faith in American agriculture is so great that he placed the savings from his salary in Indiana farm land. Operating these farms on a 50-50 basis with tenants, Willkie now knows as much about farming as he does about law.

Indeed, like the Roman of old, Willkie might say "nothing human is foreign to me." But that thought would never occur to Willkie because he believes that when a man commences to compare himself to a Cicero or Napoleon, people had better look out for him.

83 English Refugee Children Perish As Ship Is Torpedoed in Mid-Atlantic; Kidnaped of 3-Year-Old Lad Captured And Boy Returned, Unharmd, to Home

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union

CRIME:

California Kidnaping

Three days after Marc de Tristan Jr.'s abductor seized him from the street near his home in Hillsborough, Calif., he was returned to his nobleman father, Count de Tristan, in San Francisco.

The child was rescued unharmed from the kidnaper, identified as Wilhelm Jakob Muhlenbroich, a 40-year-old German alien, by two woodsmen at Pine River, in the Sierra foothills 200 miles from Hillsborough.

For this elaborately plotted and boldly executed crime, the kidnaper, a German alien, received no $100,000 as demanded in a beautifully phrased ransom note of 600 words, but he got a black eye, a gashed head, a bruised body, and he faces almost certain imprisonment for life. The kidnappers, Cecil Wetzel and Ellis Woods, violently manhandled him when they found him and the child in an automobile on a dead-end road.

THE WAR:

Aerialistics

The British said it would take Hitler 40 years to wipe out London, at the present rate of progress. But at the same rate of progress, the German air force might be wiped out in 40 weeks.

For the first time, just the same, a funny thing happened. The British and Germans both admitted that the other side had outshot them. The British said they had lost at a ratio of 7 to 4. The Germans said they had lost at a ratio of 3 to 1. This was completely unprecedented, not only in the checkered annals of Anglo-German warfare in the clouds, but also in Sino-Japanese, Jap-Russian, and Spanish civil conflicts. Nobody could quite figure it out. It seemed peculiar.

The big question, which vexed the critics, was whether the Germans would actually try a land invasion of England this fall. There were all sorts of stories. The royal air force bombed alleged German troop concentrations along the channel coast, and in Norway. They damaged flat-boats and similar equipment. Whether this equipment was merely a blind, or not, remained to be seen.

There was a yarn that 200,000 Nazis were massed in Norway, for a drive across. Some critics declared that the light German tank had proved utterly vulnerable to the two-pounder British anti-tank gun. This, they added, had caused Hitler to delay his invasion, and might postpone it indefinitely. That, again, remained to be seen.

... in the news

Ellott Roosevelt, son of the President, applied for a commission in the U. S. army air corps. He is 30 years old, and it was reported he might be assigned to the "specialist reserve."

Mayer LaGuardia of New York city told a United States conference of burgo-masters that the U. S. has an 80 per cent chance of escaping war, with the acquisition of the new Atlantic naval and air bases. The conference was held in N. Y.

Martia ("Buggay") Goldstein and Harry ("Pittsburgh Phil") Strauss were convicted of murder in the first degree for the Brooklyn, N. Y., murder-syndicate killing of Irving ("Fuzzy") Feinsteln, a fellow mal-factor.

Westminster cathedral got into the news. A Nazi dive-bomber just missed the dome, 244 feet high. It dropped a 250-pound bomb in the asphalt playground, adjoining Westminster cathedral in the Roman Catholic headquarters in England, a sort of rival to the Anglican (Episcopal) Westminster Abbey.

Just Kids

A very large number of the Nazi fliers up over England were young kids in their teens. They had been raised under the totalitarian system, and had the reckless fanaticism of utter youth. Their only enthusiasm was Hitler. They almost courted death. The Nazi regime seemed to be deliberately exploiting these amateur wild-men. Their bombs might almost be termed: gifts to the school-children of London, from the high school boys of Berlin (or Breslau, or Augsburg, or whatever). No regime in history, said one historian, had ever sacrificed youth in this completely cold-blooded manner—that is, its own youth. The Goering flying circus might well be renamed the Goering suicide squad.

More Kids

The London press screamed "murder" at the announcement by the British government of the sinking of an English refugee ship with a toll of 293 persons, 83 of whom were children en route to Canada.

The ship, her name not disclosed, was torpedoed 600 miles west of England and sank in a stormy sea within 20 minutes after she was attacked.

Of 400 men, women, and children aboard, only 113 were brought back alive by a warship which reached the scene at dawn—almost eight hours after the torpedo struck. Stories of heroism and horror told by survivors of the disaster indicated that many lives were lost in the terrific explosion which ripped the vessel. Many others were swept from lifeboats or died of injuries and exposure.

The children were from 5 to 15 years old, and were the first lost in the child evacuation movements which have been under way ever since the war began.

The attacking submarine was not identified, but the tragedy was described by government officials as "another example of the barbarous methods associated with Nazi Germany."

CAMPAIGN: Spirit of 1776-40

The drums beat. The bugles blared, the files tooted, the crowds cheered, the urchins ducked in and out, while women fainted, and candidates kissed babies, and wrapped themselves in the old red, white and blue bunting. The electoral campaign of 1940 still was in progress.

The latest Gallup poll galloped all over Mr. Willkie's chances. It told the following sad tale—that is—for

CANDIDATE McNARY

Republican Vice Presidential Nominee McNary is pictured as he spoke at Aurora, Ill., opening his midwest campaign. He engaged in a bitter attack on the Hull reciprocal trade agreement. Henry Wallace, Democratic candidate for the same post, has already toured this section of the country and is busy elsewhere upholding his party's cause.

the Grande Olde Partisans. According to Gallup, Roosevelt would get 37 states and 433 electoral votes. According to the same Mr. Gallup, Willkie would get 10 states and 78 electoral votes. This did not look any too encouraging for the Willkist. Said an old cynic: "This is one golf game where the caddies are going to beat the country-club members." The Republicans, of course, failed to agree with this estimate. Sam Pryor, director of the eastern division of the Republican national committee, couldn't endorse the Gallup estimate. Pryor thought that Willkie would get 300 or more electoral votes, leaving Roosevelt with 231 or less. Pryor added that about two-thirds of the country editors were for Willkie, and that these editors conceded Willkie more than half of the popular votes in their editorial districts.

Etc., Etc.

Each side accused the other side of dictatorial ambitions. The Democrats said the Willkist were planning a "fascist" big-business dictatorship, while the Republicans said the Rooseveltians were scheming a personal sort of "war" dictatorship. Earl Browder wanted the dictatorship of the proletariat, and that left only Norman Thomas, whom one prominent literary critic described as a 1944 streamlined Jefferson. But nobody expected many votes for Mr. Thomas, and perhaps he didn't either.

Mrs. Chips

MRS. ELLA DONAT, wife of Robert Donat, famous English actor, who has just arrived in the United States from their home in Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire, England, with their three children, stated on her arrival that she believed England would emerge from the war victorious and that she would ultimately return to her green-hilled home to rejoin her actor-husband, best known in the U. S. for his starring role in the motion picture, "Goodbye, Mr. Chips."

RUMANIA:

Transylvania

Rumania was settling down, under the anti-Carol dictatorship of Gen. John Antonescu, who had been locked up in a monastery until recently. Antonescu helped to chase Carol out of the country, with his hated, red-headed girl-pal Lupescu. Then it turned out that Carol and Lupescu were married, and had been since perhaps 1929. This news cheered the Mrs. Grundy's of the entire world.

Antonescu's new Rumania was pro-Nazi and anti-Jewish. It had lost about two-thirds of its territory: Bessarabia and Bukovina to Russia, Transylvania to Hungary, and the southern part of the Dubruja province to little Bulgaria. Antonescu didn't care for all this. The Rumanians accused the Hungarians of committing all sorts of atrocities in Transylvania province as they marched in. The Hungarian-Rumanian tension seemed scheduled to go on forever.

The Germans and Italians had forced Rumania to cede territory to Hungary and the Bulgarians. Now, the Rumanians began to talk about Germany and Italy forcing the Hungarians, etc., etc., to cede territory back to them. Meanwhile, Rumanian oil exports to Germany were soaring. The best high-test airplane gas comes from the Rumanian wells and today one can consider Rumania as General Goering's "kept" filling station.

CHALLENGE:

Duelo

General Goering, flying chief of the Third Reich, was up over London in his own Junkers 80 bomber. Goering was the former commander of the Richthofen flying circus in the first world war, and an ace of great renown. Like many an old war horse, in the second world war he couldn't keep his hands off the controls. It was the first time, in a very long time, that a general led his own troops into battle.

Goering may be the black eagle of Germany. But Harlem—New York city's Negro section—has a black eagle, too. His august name is Col. Hubert Fauntleroy Julian. Julian had just finished reading Hitler's book, "Mein Kampf." Julian's blood boiled over, at Hitler's remarks on the colored race. This is what happened:

Colonel Julian issued a challenge to General Goering, to meet him in a single, solitary combat. The place was to be up over the English channel. The weapons were to be Messerschmitt planes. Colonel Julian inferred that General Goering was a "fousy 0 divided by 0." Goering was to have 30 days in which to accept the Julian challenge. The challenge itself read as follows:

"Therefore challenge and defy you, Herman Goering, as head of the Nazi air force, to meet me at 10,000 feet, to fight an aerial duel to avenge the cowardly insult to my race. Neutral correspondents must be the referees." Colonel Julian added that he would buy a Messerschmitt from the British government, which had two captured ones up for sale. Colonel Julian overlooked one detail. General Goering is probably too fat to get into a Messerschmitt.

Julian was Haile Selassie's only flier in the Ethiopian war.

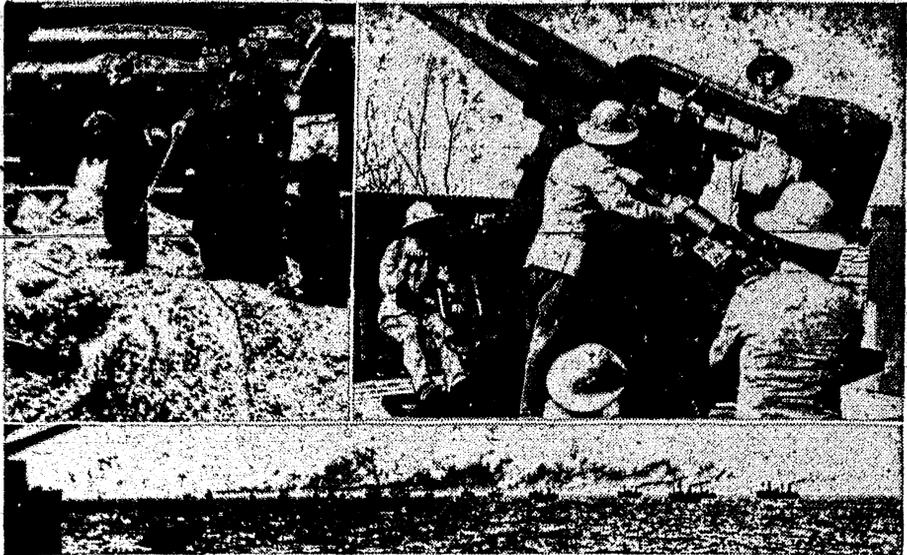

BRITISH TROUBLE:

Egypt

The Italians came out of Tripoli-Libya, and started to invade Egypt, up the long coastline. Already, they had conquered British Somaliland down in East Africa. The British in Egypt were slowly retreating along the coast before Mussolini's Marshal Graziani.

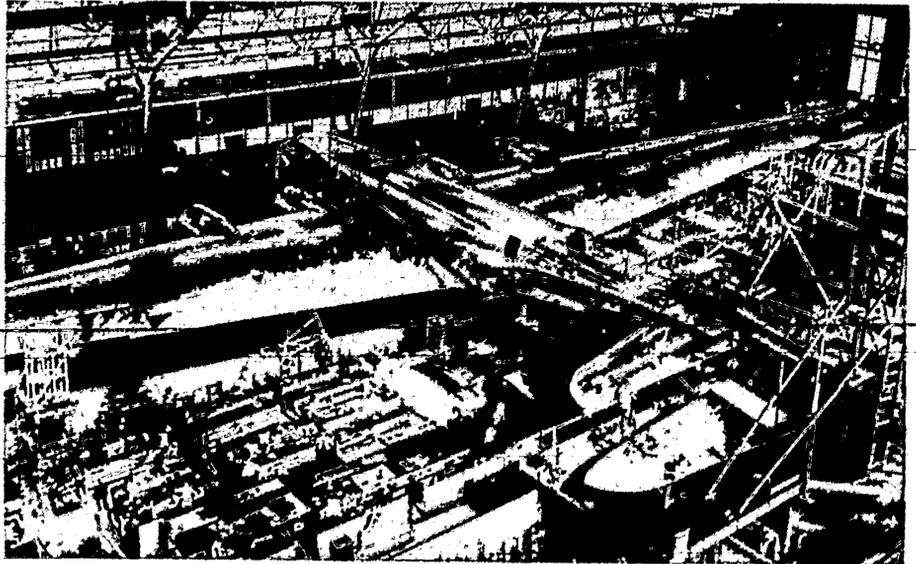

The object of the Italian high command was to cut the Suez canal. This would sever the imperial lifeline of England to India.

Off on his left, southward, a new ripple of gunfire sounded, and Walt heard unmistakably the fog-horn voice of Horsethief Fisher, and another that was like the baying of a Texas bloodhound. The C C riders had come! Bailey too, and his bunch!

He drew down, resting his winded horse, with a hollow feeling all at once, and he sat spent, alone as far as his gaze could penetrate the prairie top, while the ripple of guns moved on west and the thunder of cattle grew more and more distant.

Morning grayed at his back. Someone was coming. He wheeled and saw Paul Champion loping toward him.

The boy came up. "Why didn't you let me in this? Look!" He held up his forty-five. "I ain't fired a shot!" Gandy reined over to him and grinned. "That's all right, boy. Who's come? Everyone?"

"Sure. The boss got back, too. He's somewhere."

"Did Helen . . ."

Paul turned quickly in his saddle as if just remembering something. "Helen was—there she is." He pointed into the gray dawn. "Wait, if she'll be all right with you I'll go find me some trouble!"

"Go ahead," said Gandy. "If there's any left." He swung to the ground and was standing braced against the black horse when Helen Cameron reined and dropped beside him.

"Wait!" she cried. "Listen, do you know? Lavie told me. I made him talk. It was . . . Wait . . . it was Stoddard!"

"Wait a minute," he calmed her. "Wait now. Then tell me just one thing. Did Stoddard kill Ranger Powell?"

"Yes! And Chino Drake!" She choked, staring up.

"Wait," said Gandy, putting out a hand to her.

In a moment her words came evenly, in full control: "I'm all right now. When I told Bent Lavie that Bill Hollister was not going to live, he talked. It's too terrible, but he has been so jealous of dad, and Bill too, that when he knew Chino Drake was playing traitor, he wouldn't tell us. Wait, it was Drake who took Bill's rifle from the rack and gave it to Stoddard. And Stoddard shot Powell with that gun! After that he couldn't let Drake live. Don't you see? He killed Chino and then put the gun back in our house himself and the whole thing looked like the C C's doing."

She broke off; going on then with effort. "All this time Sheriff Battle has had the cast of some tracks. They were Stoddard's! But Battle was trying to prove they were Bill Hollister's."

"I know," said Gandy. "Bill laid himself open to suspicion by having those boot tracks flooded out. You know by this time, don't you, that he felt he was shielding your father?"

She nodded. "I knew that only last night—there at Outpost cabin. Oh, if Dad and Bill had only talked! Each thinking his silence was protecting the other! I felt that Bent knew too much. But I thought it was something against Bill Hollister. I've been trying night and day to get it from him. He is so deaf he couldn't have heard any of those Drake or Powell shots, but he has eyes that never miss a thing. Wait, I had every reason to believe he held information against Bill Hollister, and had turned that information over to Jeff Stoddard."

She finished in a sudden rush of breath, "Stoddard can't get away! We can't let him slip out now!"

Gandy held her. "He won't. You stay here. Don't leave. I'll not be gone long." He turned and gathered the black's reins and had drawn himself up into one stirrup, when from eastward across the prairie came the rolling vibration of a pistol shot. One, no more.

Helen blanched, gasping, "What was that?"

Walt stared into the gray morning; it was a minute before he said, "Couldn't mean anything much. But I guess if you'll get on your horse, we'll ride back together. We'll find Fisher, and he can pick up the loose ends here. Then you and I can go on in."

CHAPTER XXII

THEY came under the towering wall of the Emigrant Mountains toward mid-afternoon, miles ahead of the cavalcade that moved more slowly behind them. In the wind-break of timber, Helen leaned heavily on her saddle horn.

"I guess I'm tired," she said.

Gandy looked at her. "It's high time you stopped! I've thought we could rest here."

There was much more that he had been thinking, filled with compassion these hours of watching her cross the winter-swept bench, riding knee to knee with him, uncomplaining. But these other thoughts he could not tell her.

Avoiding weight on his left leg, he was already sliding to the ground, and then stood near while without reply she dismounted.

He pyramided three dry pine cones, crossed sticks over them and had an instant fire. Helen came beside him and they hunched down together, backs to a sheltering tree.

It was she who spoke first. "I don't know where to begin, Walt."

"Why begin at all?" he asked, staring at the blaze. "No need."

She shook her head. "I've got to. I feel so guilty. It's Bill Hollister I want to talk about, of course. Do you mind?"

"It's Bill I'm thinking of," he answered.

"If only I could have loved him enough to marry him," she said bitterly, "this wouldn't have happened, and he would be living!"

Gandy stopped her, covering her hands with his and turning her toward him. "You can't say that. This range war has been brewing a long time. Bill saw what was coming, even saw what would happen to him. He told me."

"You mean he knew?"

"Absolutely. That's why he called me into this country."

Freeing her hands, Walt Gandy stared out across the gray flat of the Emigrant Bench, groping for what he was to say next.

"Helen, I've been thinking it all over since last night. Bill wanted the C C and the rest of us to pull out of this hole more than he wanted anything for himself. He'd be satisfied to quit now. Do you see? I never had much religion of one sort, so I don't know how to explain it exactly, but it's like—well, maybe you know what I mean about Bill Hollister."

So falteringly had he spoken, and so from the depths of his feeling that the girl drew her eyes from him; and then impulsively turned and lifted both hands to his face.

"You're fine, Walt Gandy; you're the finest that ever could be, and I know now why I waited."

He held her close, cheek against her hair; and could hardly believe this way in which his life was to go on.

WILLKIE IS TRYING TO GET ROOSEVELT BEHIND THE DE-

Backtrack

By RICHARD HILL WILKINSON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WOLFE PETERS came to a dead stop. Premature twilight had settled over the northland. Black clouds had begun to pile up in the western sky.

Ahead Wolfe made out a pin point of light, blinking at him through the bared branches of hardwood trees. His evil features broke into something that resembled a smile.

"Well, Mr. Mountie," he soliloquized, "you've mused your last trail. It's a pity, too, you bein' the cream of the Northwest police. Smart, they said you was. Smart enough to outfox Wolfe Peters. He fooled all the others, so they picked on you. Tough luck, old boy, 'cause you're gonna join your buddies in hades!"

Wolfe kicked off his snowshoes, unslung his rifle and stepped off the trail. Crouching low he circled the campfire until he could get a clear view of it without having his vision obstructed by low-hanging branches.

The drama about to be enacted was the culmination of six months of relentless trailing on the part of Lefty Small, R. N. M. P., and Wolfe Peters, present victim. Peters, most notorious outlaw that ever roamed the north woods, had, following a series of daring crimes, including two murders, successfully outwitted the mounties for more than two years.

Man after man had been sent into the woods to get Wolfe Peters, only to meet with a horrible fate—death at the hands of the outlaw himself. It was uncanny the way Peters evaded capture, incredulous the way he outsmarted seasoned policemen, inhuman the manner in which he dealt with his victims.

In desperation Sergeant Harrigan, in charge of the Bear River patrol, sent for Lefty Small, veteran mountie, a crack shot, experienced woodsman and honored and loved by his companions. Small, who had more than a hundred captures to his credit, had retired from active service.

Sergeant Harrigan's appeal had stirred something inside of him that was a reflection of the thrills he received in his younger days while on the trail. He had heard rumors of the activities of the outlaw Peters, and almost welcomed this opportunity to go after him.

Peters, too, had heard of Small and his prowess. And for a time he became more cautious in his movements when he learned that the old man had taken up his trail.

Soon Peters became aware of his pursuer's proximity. It was then that he put into execution the craftsmanship that had outsmarted Small's predecessors. Cleverly manipulating his snowshoes the outlaw confused his trail in a manner that would fool the most seasoned woodsmen.

Then he crossed the smooth surface of the Little Bear, concealed himself on the opposite shore and waited. An hour later Small appeared for a moment on the other side and vanished into the woods.

Wolfe smiled to himself, waited thirty minutes and took up the pursuit.

There would be a good deal of satisfaction, thought Peters as he crawled toward the brightly burning fire, to send his flower of the Mounted to join his younger brothers. No fool like an old fool, he grunted.

Wolfe brought up behind a fallen log and rested his rifle on the surface. He sighted along the barrel at the figure crouched over the fire, twenty feet away. He paused an instant. Vaguely he knew a certain vain pride at thus having outwitted the smartest man that ever wore the red and gold of the Mounted.

It was in that moment of evil elation that a twig cracked just behind the outlaw. Peters glanced over his shoulder, to find himself staring into the muzzle of Lefty Small's service pistol.

"Don't move, Wolfe. I'm in no mood for trifling and I've half a mind to shoot anyway, just to even up in a small way for what you did to Higgins and Fitzpatrick."

"My God!" Peters jerked full around, but dropped his rifle as Small made a threatening movement with the pistol.

"Tricked at your own game," the policeman taunted. "Kind of hurts the vanity, eh, Wolfe?"

Peters cast a frightened glance behind him. The figure was still crouched over the fire 20 feet away. Small laughed and produced a set of handcuffs.

"Kind of wondering what it's all about, eh, Wolfe? Well, this is one trick you haven't learned yet, smart as you are. Just to satisfy your curiosity I'll tell you that I happened to know what you were up to when you balled up your trail back there. I let you think I swallowed the bait and then rigged up this plan of my own. Haven't you ever heard of the trick of building a fire and then backtracking to see what happens, Wolfe? No, I guess you haven't. That man up there isn't a man at all. It's my parka, thrown over a log of wood."

Small snapped on the handcuffs and resheathed his revolver.

"Let's go up to the fire, Wolfe. I'm an old man and can't stand this cold without my parka. What's that saying about no fool like an old one?" He grinned and prodded Wolfe Peters toward the fire.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

For a little variety bake your pies in square or rectangular-shaped pans. Often they are easier to cut into equal portions from such a shape.

To keep marshmallows moist, store them in the bread box.

Fat burns easily. It should therefore be handled carefully during the cooking. Even a small amount of fat in a frying pan will ignite if it is over-heated. A kettle of deep fat can quickly produce quite a blaze.

A novelty container which will hold several of the handsome vine plants is a clear glass bowl about five inches in diameter. Plants such as the ivy or philodendron will take root in such bowl filled with clear water, and the effect is stunning.

Where Wendell Willkie Once Washed Dishes

Wendell Willkie, Republican candidate for president, washed dishes as a youth in this Aberdeen, S. Dak., restaurant, using experience he gained when working his way thru college. When asked about his job as a dish washer Willkie said he worked in the Aberdeen restaurant "long enough to get a raise." Candidate Willkie has returned from a campaign tour during which he visited 18 western states. As a young man he worked as a harvest hand on farms in several of these states, an experience which contributed to the sympathetic attitude he holds toward the problems of the farmer and the laboring man.
