To the Editor:

Letters to the editor contain many a grain of sound common sense. Once in a while one reaches the point of genius. Of that kind there is an example in the Christian Science Monitor of last Monday, from a Natick, Mass., correspondent who signs himself—or herself—"A.B.G." It reads:

"IF A CANDIDATE FOR PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES PROMISED TO:

- "Double the national debt; "Reduce the value of the dollar; "Plow under 25 per cent of the crops; "Pay $5 for each pig not raised; "Create class hatred; "Scare business into cutting down, thereby continuing unemployment and endangering everyone's job; "Attempt to pack the supreme court; "Try to make over the country into a one-man government; "Set an example of evading laws; "Ignore his party platform; "WOULD HE GET YOUR VOTE?"

Andy's Place Robbed

Thieves broke into Andy Padilla's Place Wednesday night and got away with his cigarettes, candy, chewing tobacco and gum. The smoking tobacco, a box of pinon nuts, the stove, the big clock and pool table went unharmed. But what gets our best sleuths in town is that they did not bother the music box, which was jammed full of nickles.

Just Before The Battle

With only three days to go before the great American battle of ballots will begin, the forces are already lined up and ready for business. On the National ticket we are to choose between Wendell Willkie, business man, patriot, ex-service man, unflinching exponent of the rights of free speech, free press, American liberty, and unflinching foe of the THIRD TERM, and Franklin D.

Roosevelt, Supreme Court picker, upholder of such criminal machines as the Kelly-Nash of Chicago, Tom Pendergast of Kansas City, Frank Hague of Jersey City, the Guffey coal political machine of Pennsylvania, the Memphis machine and others too numerous to mention which were born and have prospered under the New Deal with the Third Third candidate as their leading factor.

These machines have bought their way in before. Let us see that they can't this time.

Here we have the true pictures of the two candidates—and the Judge, which is the vote of the people of the Great United States of America, will sit in judgment. As a last appeal before the vote is cast, let us forget and dishonor the memories of Washington, Jefferson, Jackson and Lincoln, let us think while on the brink of dictatorship and national disaster and vote down this attempt to destroy our liberty.

COUNTY CANDIDATES

Now, about the situation in this County. The Republican Ticket is made up of the best material. In six places, three County Commissioners, W. W. (Bill) Gallacher, Corbin Hester, Geo. Kimbrell, School Superintendent Mrs. Nelle W. Day, County Treasurer Ernest Key, Probate Judge John Mackey, Surveyor A. H. Harvey, stand on their records as good officials and should be returned with nice majorities. Reports from the field are extremely encouraging, but much effective work is yet to be done.

NEW CANDIDATES

The new candidates, Allie Stover for Sheriff, Vega for Assessor, Clayton Hust for County Clerk, S. E. (Ben) Greisen for Representative are well-qualified and worthy of support to which they are entitled.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Stevens of Hermosa Beach, Calif., are visiting at the Stearns home in Nogal Canyon. Mrs. Stevens is a cousin to Miss Erma Poage.

Several of our stockmen shipped cattle to eastern markets this week.

Mr. E. A. Bellinger, owner of the local B & M store, was a business visitor in town yesterday. While here, he made this office a friendly call.

Mayor and Mrs. John Bell, accompanied by Mrs. Wm. Secrest, were here from Jicarilla yesterday.

DICTATOR'S MENU

("Correspondents could see the dictators dining in the train, but could not see what they were eating."—News item.)

Benito—I'll bet they'd like to know what we're eating.

Adolf—Public curiosity is a queer thing.

Benito—Maybe we should announce the menu.

Adolf—Let 'em guess. What kind of soup is this?

Benito—English beef soup.

Adolf (indignantly)—Now, look here.

Benito—You'll like it. I had two Englishmen boiled in it especially for you.

Adolf (skeptically)—You and who else?

Benito—You'll like the fish course.

Adolf—What kind of fish?

Benito—Brenner Pass pickerel.

Adolf—I thought we were going to have man-eating shark. I love it.

Benito—Some of my best friends are man-eating sharks. What about that Suez shad I asked you to get?

Benito—Ahem. It was out of season.

Adolf—Now for the meat course. What is it?

Benito—Lamb.

Adolf (excitedly)—Lamb! Lamb for Adolf Hitler?

Benito—I ordered lion, of course.

Adolf—Take it away! It's a wonder you don't serve breast of dove.

Benito—How about a little turkey?

Adolf—I've been after that all year.

Benito—Do you care for tripe?

Adolf—It depends on who prepares it.

Benito—Well, if anybody can prepare tripe I can.

Adolf—Haven't you any frogs' legs?

Benito—If anybody has frogs' legs you should. How about a helping of spinach. It is full of iron and is great for your strength.

Adolf—Spinach may be all that it's cracked up to be, but I wish I knew what vegetables those British were eating.

Benito (suddenly)—Ah, I forgot! We're having lobster. I love lobster. It looks so warlike. Do you like it boiled or broiled?

Adolf (sternly)—I eat it shell and all!

Benito—Do you really like it that way?

Adolf—No, but it makes me seem tough.

Benito—Now for the dessert. Do you like cake?

Adolf—Me, a cake eater!

Benito—Do you care for raspberries?

Adolf—No, but you and I stand a swell chance of having to stand for 'em!

LEGUMES RAISE SOIL FERTILITY

Nitrogen-Rich Crops Need Special Handling.

By C. B. WILLIAMS

(Head, N. C. State College Agronomy Department)

Legumes plus proper fertilization hold the key to fertile, productive soils.

The most practical method in building up the productive power of soils calls for the proper growth and handling of suitable legume crops in rotation with properly fertilized major crops.

The mere growing of legumes does not assure added fertility unless these crops are handled properly.

If the legumes are removed from the field, leaving on the land only the stubble and roots, their use in this manner alone will prove a delusion so far as being an effective means of increasing the producing power of the soil in a permanent way is concerned.

Effective methods of increasing the fertility of soils must be those that will leave the soil at the end of each year fairly well supplied with thoroughly decomposed organic matter and an increasing amount of readily available plant foods. This will be the effect which the proper growth and handling of legumes will have on the land.

Anyone at all familiar with the simple principles of soil management knows that fertility cannot be maintained when the crops removed take off the land more plant foods than are returned to it. That's why it's so important to turn under some of the legumes.

The best time to apply ground limestone is from three months to one year before seeding legumes. This gives the stone sufficient time to contact acid in the soil particles and counteract it.

The application of lime to cultivated land should be made after plowing, and the material should be mixed with the topsoil. Little benefit may be expected if lime is plowed under before being properly mixed with the topsoil. On pastures it is only necessary to scatter the lime on top of the sod; however, better results will be obtained if it can be worked in by light harrowing.

Good Laying Hens Do Not Die Young

The hen that lays the golden egg, and lays it regularly, can live as long as her less productive sister, according to a five-year study made at the Pennsylvania State college by Dr. Dean R. Marble, associate professor of poultry husbandry.

"Many poultrymen believe that the high mortality of laying hens is due to breeding for standards of egg production which are so high that the bird's physique is weakened," Dr. Marble stated.

"However, during a five-year period we cut the mortality of selected poultry in half and proved that we can breed longer-lived poultry without any loss in egg production, egg size, or body weight. Selecting and breeding for all these characteristics is practical."

During the past decade mortality has been increasing, Dr. Marble claims. He believes that careful breeding could help to solve the problem.

Sheet Erosion Destroys Fertility of Farm Land

That crop yields decrease as soil erosion increases is shown by tests made on farms last summer by the Soil Conservation service.

In tests made on five farms, it was found that fields with less than 25 per cent of the topsoil gone produced 51 bushels of oats or 47 bushels of barley per acre; fields with 25 to 50 per cent of the topsoil washed away yielded 42 bushels of oats or 28 bushels of barley per acre; fields with 50 to 75 per cent of the topsoil gone produced 35 bushels of oats, or 23 bushels of barley, and land with more than 75 per cent of the topsoil washed away yielded only 23 bushels of oats and 17 bushels of barley.

"There is an evident relation shown here between topsoil losses and crop losses," says M. A. Thorntson, soil conservationist. "Sheet erosion removes the top, or most productive layer of the soil. With each inch that washes away, there is left a material that is not only less productive, but that is more subject to erosion."

New Worm Treatment

Phenothiazine, a new and powerful drug which is now being used experimentally for treating sheep and goats for worms, has been giving splendid results on flocks around Columbia. Flocks that have been treated twice have been doing splendidly. It takes about five days after treatment to clean the animals of worms, and all worms are killed, except possibly some tapeworms. Even the nodular worms are killed.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

To frost windows make a very strong solution of epsom salts and vinegar. Apply it with a paint brush and when it is dry go over it with white varnish if you wish it to remain on for good.

Always add a little melted butter to uncooked frosting. It improves the flavor and also prevents cracking.

If the juice from an apple pie runs out into the oven, shake salt on it. It will burn crisp on the bottom of the oven and may easily be removed.

A small quantity of leftover pie crust may be rolled thin, cut into squares, sprinkled with sugar and cinnamon and baked until crisp. These are very good served with lemon sauce for dessert.

Apples stuffed with mincemeat and baked make a delicious winter dessert. Wash, peel and core the apples and stuff them an inch from the top. Bake as usual. Lemon sauce goes well with this combination.

This Example of 'Art Serves Commerce' Linked Together the Names of Two Men, Both Famous in Annals of the Frontier

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

RECENTLY a New York art gallery held the first public exhibition of a collection of paintings of unusual historic interest. Not only were these canvases the work of George Catlin, the famous painter of Indians, but associated with them is another man's name, well known on the frontier. He was Col. Samuel Colt, inventor of the six-shooter which played such an important role in the winning of the West.

The linking of the names of these two frontier notables came about in this way: At the beginning of the Mexican war a detachment of American dragoons was ambushed by a Mexican patrol and the only man who escaped was a Captain Thornton who shot his way to freedom with a brace of Colt revolvers.

When Gen. Zachary Taylor heard of this, he was much impressed and asked for more information about these weapons. Capt. Sam Walker of the Texas Rangers, who was guarding Taylor's lines of communications and who had influenced Colt to develop a .44-caliber revolver in addition to the .34-caliber which he had been manufacturing, told the general that the only thing wrong with the revolvers was that there were not enough of them.

Thereupon Taylor sent Walker to Washington to make known to the President the need of his soldiers for more weapons of this sort. The result was an order on Colt for 1,000 of his guns, which he at once supplied. More than that, Colt, who was an early-day "super-salesman," put over as clever a publicity campaign as any modern press agent could have devised.

"It was not the sales of his revolvers to the army that made Sam Colt," writes Jack Rohan in his "Yankee Arms Maker: The Incredible Career of Samuel Colt" (Harper and Brothers), "it was the manner in which he capitalized the victories of the Americans over numerically superior forces. The revolvers in use at Resaca de la Palma, Monterey and Buena Vista were few and far between. But those few, when Sam Colt got to spreading the story around the world, accounted for the defeat of the Mexicans. And the latter, glad of any excuse for their humiliation, cheerfully corroborated his claim!"

Soon after the close of the Mexican war came the discovery of gold in California. Emigrant trains began streaming across the Western plains, heading for the new diggings in California or for the rich lands of the Oregon country. The result of this epic migration was the inevitable clash with the Indians who had already learned to fear and hate the land-hungry white men. Sam Colt, the Yankee arms-pictures of village and hunting scenes, of Indian games and ceremonies, of the scenery of the plains and mountains. Although Catlin went among the Indians on this peaceful mission, it was still a dangerous business. So "just in case"—he went armed, and the guns which he carried were made by Sam Colt.

Catlin's "North American Indian Portfolio," published in London in 1844, was proof of his ability to make the kind of pictures of wild life in the West that would appeal to men likely to purchase Sam Colt's product. So he commissioned the artist to paint some pictures for him in which Colt guns would be prominently displayed in scenes illustrating their usefulness in hunting or Indian fighting. The result was a dozen such canvases, painted between 1834 and 1837, which Colt used for display and from which lithographs were made for advertising promotion.

After they had served that purpose, the paintings were hung on the walls of Colt's residence, "Armsmead," in Hartford, Conn. Later they were relegated to an unused room on the third floor of another Colt home in Newport, R. I. It was only recently that they emerged from this obscurity and were placed on public exhibition in the New York gallery, there to be hailed as a rediscovered "find" of American "primitivist" art.

For with the passing years the fame of George Catlin has grown. Before his death he presented to the Smithsonian institution more than 500 of his paintings. Some of these were destroyed or injured in a fire which swept the institution in 1865 but the remainder of the collection now housed there is valued at more than $1,000,000. There is no way of estimating what the paintings which he made for Colt are worth but some clue may be obtained from this fact:

Some time in the sixties the English firm of J. M'Gahey made lithographs from the six paint-ued at $250 it is safe to estimate that the original paintings are worth easily ten times that amount.

No doubt George Catlin would be surprised if he could know what a high value is placed upon his work today. Born at Wyoming, Pa., in 1796 the son of a lawyer-father, his boyhood, according to his own statement, "was whittled away, apparently, somewhat in vain, with books reluctantly held in one hand, and a rifle or fishing pole firmly and affectionately grasped in the other."

His father was ambitious for him to become a lawyer, too, so he obediently studied for that profession and began practicing in Philadelphia. But, being a lover of the outdoors, he found his office duties irksome. He began painting as a recreation but had no idea of making it his life business.

Then one day on the streets of Philadelphia he saw a party of Indians who were en route to Washington for a conference with the "Great White Father." He was delighted with their picturesque dress and their splendid physiques and then and there was born in him a determination that "the history and customs of such people preserved by pictorial illustrations are themes worthy the lifetime of one man, and nothing short of the loss of my life shall prevent me from visiting their country and of becoming their historian."

Although Catlin was married by this time, neither the opposition of his wife nor arguments of other relatives could dissuade him from his purpose. He set out for the Indian country and lived among the Indians for eight years during which time he sketched or painted 3,000 full-length figures, made 33 portraits in oil and gathered together a collection of Indian costumes "and other manufactures from the size of a wig-wam down to the size of a quill of a rattle."

With these pictures and curiosities which he had acquired at such a cost of time, work and danger he traveled throughout the United States and exhibited them in all of the leading cities. Everywhere he went he attracted crowds. Then he crossed the Atlantic and exhibited in England, Belgium and France where King Louis Philippe was so much interested in his work that he proposed to buy the entire collection for the French nation. Then came the Revolution of 1848 and, fortunately for America, the sale fell through.

Catlin returned to the United States and later visited South America and Central America to paint the Indians of those countries. Although his last years were spent in poverty, he presented to the Smithsonian his entire collection, so that future generations of his fellow-Americans might enjoy the record of an era that was rapidly passing. He died in Jersey City, N. J., on December 22, 1872, at the age of 76.

Old Gent Didn't Suspect Child Was in Duplicate

A young wife was aboard ship, sailing from New York to Panama, there to join her husband. Just before the ship was to dock, she missed her little twin daughters and set out to hunt them.

"Have you seen my twins?" she asked a crusty old gentleman in a deck chair.

"Twins?" he repeated. "I didn't even know there were any on board."

She was just going to remark that it was odd he hadn't noticed, when she spied a pig-tailed head peering around a corner. "There's one now," she told him.

"Oh, that child!" said the man. "I've seen her all over the place!"

By demonstrating the superiority of his revolver and the repeating rifle, which he had recently invented, over the Indians' bows and arrows he could sell large numbers of his weapons to the westward-faring emigrants. In commenting on these prints Goodspeed said: "Until recently the set of six drawings which George Catlin made for the Colt Fire Arms Manufacturing company was known to us by title alone. We had never owned a set and we remember seeing only one listed by another dealer. These six lithographs are, by all evidence, very rare and this is the only set we have offered in 40 years of book and print selling." If the lithographs are val-

Do Credit Requirements Change?

In general, credit requirements are rather constant. It may seem that when times are bad, particularly during depressions, that requirements are more severe. This perhaps is because loan applicants' own affairs have taken a turn for the worse and so they are unable to meet credit requirements which they were able to meet during better times. Thus is created the mistaken impression that requirements have been tightened. Also, during bad times there may be a greater demand for cash by bank customers who are forced to draw out their savings to meet emergencies, and hence the bank does not have as much money available to lend as in normal times.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Roger Shaw

Election Day Holds National Spotlight; Tension in Balkan States Increases As Axis Demands Greek Concessions; British Carry Air War to German Soil

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THE WAR: Aerial

There were rumors and counter-rumors about the total evacuation of London, in the face of Goering's aerial bombardment. Old people over 65, school children, and active mothers were advised to leave as soon as possible, taking with them all sick or invalided souls.

About half a million children—more than 50 per cent of the school population—were out of town, and 500 expectant mothers were departing weekly for parts unknown. It was not a cheerful picture. The British government still refused to leave, although an emergency parliament house had been prepared in readiness, at Cheltenham, in the extreme west of England. The board of trade already had announced the removal of its business offices records to the Grand hotel, in an unpronounceable spot in central Wales. The spot was, actually, Llandudno. The British board of trade corresponds to the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Reports from London, Berlin and Rome indicated that the British air force had launched a major air offensive against the axis powers in reply to the constant bombings of London by the Nazis.

While the RAF had by no means been idle during the preceding weeks, this current drive seemed to take on more force than heretofore. Invasion ports on the French side of the English channel were severely bombed and shipyards at Bremen were reported blasted. Industrial cities of northern Italy came in for their share of the beating, according to the dispatches from British headquarters.

Disease

The worst news of all was this: Spinal meningitis had broken out. This was due to the fact that nearly 3,000,000 people had been sleeping in unsanitary subways, crowded into unhygienic surroundings. Nerves were wearing out, and so was physical resistance, with an average of only four hours' sleep per night. The "cerebro-spinal fever" was blamed on a nose and throat germ, presumably air-borne. There was further danger of typhoid, influenza, a higher than normal rate, and other attendant ills. It will be remembered that epidemic disease is one of the four grim horses of the apocalypse, and perhaps the worst of the grisly team.

The Balks

When it came to the Balkans, there was increased tension. Rumania was further occupied by the German invaders. Bulgaria headed straight for the Axis orbit, while British citizens began to decamp from both Bucharest and Sofia. Jugoslavia, squeezed between Italy, Germany, Hungary, Bulgaria, and Italian Albania, signed a new trade and political pact with Hitler, which tied up the Jugoslavs in the German continental system, at least for the time being. Greece was threatened by the Bulgarians and Italians, and was backed up by Russia and Turkey. Greece and Turkey, along with Egypt and Portugal, were still nominal British allies. The Soviets

NAMES in the news

Old Marshal Petain was warned by his fellow politico, Mareel Deat, against any attempt to restore the monarchy in France. The so-called count of Paris, Henry VI, is the candidate, a funny looking little creature. Petain himself would make a better king, if any. The duke of Orlens, father of the present pretender, died last August.

were moving increasingly to the anti-Hitler viewpoint, for a Germanized Balkans did not appeal to the Kremlin at Moscow. The actual military value of the Red army was under constant discussion. Had it found itself, in the last month of the Finnish war? Was the Red aviation any good? Were there any suitable Red generals left alive after Stalin's purges? These were the most questions, and even the left-eye monocles of the Prussian general staff were in some doubt about Marshal Voroshilov's warblats and warboys.

Reported demands upon Greece by the Axis powers included: (1) immediate severance of economic relations with the British, (2) cession of territory to Italy and Bulgaria, (3) use of Greek air bases by the Axis, (4) abdication of King George of Greece, (5) grant of a right of way to Italy for construction of a major military road.

DEFENSE: Draftees

Thirty thousand draftees were to be put into the army by November 18, and another 800,000 by June 15. There had been a total of 17,000,000 young men that registered, which topped the forecasts. In reference to these young men, War Secretary Stimson declared: "Only God and Hitler know what will happen to the United States." The army, it was stated, plans to train 900,000 annually for the next five years, which is the life-length of the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill recently passed by congress. The B-W bill provided that an annual 900,000 was to be the maximum number called up per year.

With America re-arming to the full, the women's touch is used as the Frankford Arsenal, Philadelphia, Pa., to feed these 50-caliber cartridge cases into the machine that tapers them. These cartridges are used in anti-tank guns.

Western

One southwestern Indian was found who claimed to be a member of the German Bund, and didn't want to register. He said he was waiting for Hitler to come and "free" him from the white man, the White House, and the great white father. Some people said that this aborigine was red in more ways than one.

POLITICS: Wind Up

As the politicians all over the nation were busy winding up their blasts of campaign oratory, American voters were preparing to go to the polls to cast what was expected to be the largest ballot in the nation's history. Major candidates were completing their pleas to the electorate and latest public opinion polls indicated a close presidential race.

On Mr. R.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt did not try to predict the result of the 1940 campaign, which was coming to a peak. She said she simply didn't know, and implied she could take it or leave it. Said Mrs. Roosevelt, who is popular even with the foes of her husband: "As far as the polls go, they mean very little to me. They are so often too much one way, or the other. When you've been the wife of a politician long enough, you learn not to express anything one way or the other, but just go along and see what happens."

Duello

Meanwhile, Clare Boothe and Dorothy Thompson disagreed on the election. Miss Boothe wrote "The Women" and other things. She stood firm for Willkie. Miss Thompson, N. Y. Herald Tribune or no N. Y. Herald Tribune, plumped for Roosevelt. Miss Boothe razzed Miss Thompson, and the Herald Tribune held up Miss Thompson's stuff. There was quite a to-do about it all, with Miss Boothe apparently wounding Miss Thompson in this blitzkrieg of hairpins and cat-calls.

Aircraft Award

In recognition of his "contributions to aeronautical development and the production of many types of aircraft of high performance," Glenn L. Martin (above), president of the aircraft company that bears his name, has been awarded the Daniel Guggenheim medal for 1940. Mr. Martin, shown in his Baltimore office with a model of the first airplane he ever built and in which he learned in 1909, is currently working on two new bombing planes, said to be the largest aircraft of their kind in the world.

A. C. L. U.: 'Reforms'

The American Civil Liberties union used to be called radical. It defended Communists, Nazis, Negroes, trade unions and other varied causes, which was certainly an American way of doing things, but its leaders were sometimes accused of leftist tendencies.

Eleven new members were added to the national committee of the A. C. L. U. They were certainly of an orthodox, and even conservative, type. The new members included Mr. Roosevelt's headmaster of aristocratic Groton school, Dr. Endicott Peabody, also, interventionistic Robert Sherwood, the famous playwright. Van Wyck Brooks, the blue-blooded author and critic, was another, and so was Pearl Buck, the "Chinese" novelist. Dean Christian Gauss of conservative Princeton university was on the list, and Dr. Frank Kingdon, director of the citizenship educational service. Also, William Draper Lewis of Philadelphia, director of the American law institute, William Allan Nelson, president emeritus of Smith college for women, Bishop Bromley Oxnam of the Methodist church in Boston, and Professor Sophonisba Breckinridge of the University of Chicago.

NATIONAL: Socialism

Certain gloomy political scientists were maintaining that the blight of national socialism was spreading round the world to all the major countries: Germany, Italy, England, France, Japan, America, etc. In each country, they declared, it varied its pattern, but the basic essentials were always there.

Sad

They said that national socialism now combined the aggressive militarism of the political right with the aggressive socialism of the political left. This united left and right, and made for some sort of totalitarian state. The Churchill government, for example, unites radical labor (under Ernest Bevin) with the military mentality of Churchill himself. Chamberlain, they claimed, represented the last stand of Victorian middle-class capitalism. The Vargas dictatorship in Brazil, the Franco rule in Spain, and the Konoye regime in Japan—militarized and anti-capitalist—were additional samples.

LEOPOLD: The Belgic

King Leopold of Belgium was accused last June of grave military treachery in the Flanders campaign. They said he let the British and French troops down by making that initial separate peace. France revoked his legion of honor decoration, and the Leopoldine bust was removed from the Belgium pavilion at the New York World's fair. Then, months later, people began to renovate their opinions about Leopold of the Belgians. The Petain government of France restored his legion of honor. The marbled Leopoldine bust was restored to the World's fair exhibit. Some 700 people were specially invited to the bustal restoration. The pavilion had been open only two weeks when Leo made his peace with the Hitlerians. The weary months since that time have meant seclusion—for the monarch—in a guarded Belgian chateau, where he rules vaguely and in name only, if at all.

SNITE: Iron Lunged

About the bravest young man in America is Fred Snite Jr. of Chicago. He has lived for four years in an iron lung, and has traveled in it to distant places. He has married happily and now has an heir. Snite wanted to register for the draft, with his customary pluck and grit.

They appointed Snite senior as a special registrar, and the father registered the son.

IN THE wake of football's mid-season mark we find again one major flaw in the mental attitudes of too many supporters. It is this. When some team gets beaten the crowd swings from that outfit to others unbeaten and untied.

This is all out of focus. In the first place, most teams have certain objectives for which they must later on be ready. In the second place, schedules play a big part in any season's final roundup—a terrific part.

Pennant-winning teams in the National and American baseball leagues are only supposed to have a .660 average—about two out of three. Few coaches have the reserve strength on hand to get keyed up for every game. It can't be done unless the reserve material is exceptional or the schedule is full of weak spots.

Why should a team that plays eight or nine hard games be judged against a team that plays four hard games and four or five setups?

Take Your Choice

I recall a good many years ago when Major Daley was coaching Army. His two main assignments were Yale in October and Navy in late November.

"I can win either game," he said to the Army staff. "I can beat Yale in October or Navy in November. But I can't win both. Which is your main objective?"

We'll take last fall. Ohio State won one of the hardest conference championships football knows—the Big Ten. Yet Ohio State lost two major games—to Cornell and Michigan.

Southern California won the Pacific conference title and the Rose Bowl windup. Yet Southern California was tied by Oregon and outplayed by Washington, both of whom were beaten and outplayed by U. C. L. A.

Shining Examples

The two best teams in football last fall were Cornell and Texas A. & M. They were neither tied nor beaten. Nor was Tennessee until it hit the Rose Bowl. But in all frankness not one of these had to play a Notre Dame or an Iowa schedule—nor a Minnesota schedule.

For another example, suppose most teams had to meet Vanderbilt's current schedule—Princeton, Kentucky, Georgia Tech, Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee among others.

Let some of these mop-up winners try out that last-named menu on their piccolos.

I'll give you another—U. C. L. A. Here it goes—S. M. U., Santa Clara, Texas A. & M., California, Oregon State, Stanford, Oregon, Washington State, Washington and Southern California. Only nine or ten tough ones in a row, including six of the nation's best.

The Big Difference

Two or three setup games can make all the difference in the world, such as many high ranking teams have. They give the coach a chance to rest up any injured men and get them ready for the next hard test, while another coach, facing one tough opponent after another, has no such break.

For this reason there is no such animal as a national champion. It is a complete impossibility with so many teams playing so many different schedules.

The closest claim I recall to any so-called national championship was Knute Rockne's last Notre Dame team—1930—that mopped up East, Midwest, Southwest and Far West. The only close calls came against Southern Methodist and Army, the latter on the worst football day and the worst football field I ever saw—rain, sleet, snow, fog and ice.

Bob Zuppke of Illinois, philosopher, artist and coach, comes closer to calling the turn on football than anyone I've ever known.

"There are times you can lose 'em all, and still look good in every game you lost. There are times you can win and not look good at all."

"There is only one thing in football that is more important than winning. That is to leave the field with your opponent's respect, win or lose."

The Game's the Thing

After all, if you have left either a winning or a losing field without your opponent's respect for the main things that make up sport—we'll say courage, clean play, hard play, decency—the harvest is hardly worth while. It's tough to be a good loser, but a good loser looks better in defeat than an overbearing, unsportsmanlike victor does in his moment of triumph.

Once again I believe too many football followers expect too much from too many teams.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS By ROBERT McSHANE

Heavyweight Hopefuls

ARTURO GODOY, the South American glamour boy, is gunning for a third bout with Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis. Just why Godoy should be rematched with the champ is a matter which cannot be explained to anyone's satisfaction. The demand for this bout is just about as great as the demand that Hitler and Mussolini visit New York's east side.

Fortunately, at this writing, the bout is still in the conversational stage. And the conversation is practically all Godoy's. Uncle Mike Jacobs will think a long time before he promotes a bout with as little in its favor as this setup.

Sadly enough, Godoy epitomizes the field of defeated fighters now monopolizing heavyweight circles. That field includes Max Baer, Lou Nova, Lee Savold, Pat Comiskey and Bob Pastor, Tony Galento evidently has decided—and very wisely—that enough is enough.

The Roll Call

It is quite evident that the contenders do not fit into the championship class. Max Baer, when the right occasion arises, is one of the most dangerous of present-day fighters. But that right occasion will never come for him in the same ring with Joe Louis. Nova took a horrible lacing at the hands of Galento. It won't be easy for him to climb back even as far as his former rating. Dopesters wouldn't give Savold much of a chance on the basis of his past victories. Pat Comiskey's stock didn't climb when Baer whipped him in their recent encounter. Comiskey, nevertheless, is young enough to snap back after sufficient seasoning in the big time.

Pastor, sole remaining white hope in the list of aspirants, lacks the punch to reach the top. And his drawing power seems limited to his relatives and a few close friends.

The solution? There just doesn't seem to be any. Time will have to take its toll and some day a now unheard-of youngster will arise and overpower Ol' Pappy Louis.

The official books disclose that an all-time American league attendance record was set in the season just closed.

Will Harridge, president of the league, reported the home attendance of the eight clubs was 5,433,791. This shattered by 178,352 the 16-year-old record, 5,255,439. The 1940 total exceeded last year's figures by an amazing 1,163,189.

The season got off to a poor start due to unfavorable weather conditions. However, the lost ground was more than recovered when the Yankees failed to assume an early and definite control of the pennant situation. The open race that resulted for the championship attracted fans who weren't interested in last year's one-team marathon.

The Chicago White Sox paid attendance was 699,336—which fact caused a wide smile to crease the face of Manager Jimmy Dykes and brought untold happiness to the members of the Comiskey family, whose finances are involved to a very large extent. In round numbers the 1939 attendance was 592,699.

The seven night games played by the White Sox attracted 214,760 paying patrons, or almost a third as much as the 70 daylight contests. The average for the night contests was 30,680, highest in the league. Cleveland averaged 30,159 for its after dark games.

The league's 35 night games attracted a total of 634,225 customers, for an average of 18,121. The St. Louis Browns, who played 14 of their games under the lights, averaged 5,364. The Browns, incidentally, more than doubled their 1939 attendance. Bad news came to the St. Louis club, however, when Harridge intimated that they would be limited next year to seven night games, maximum number permitted under existing league rules.

Detroit led the list with a total attendance of 1,112,693. New York was second with 988,975. St. Louis ranked last with 239,591.

Sport Shorts

BABE RUTH, playing on seven winning baseball clubs in 10 series, collected slightly more than $41,000 in series cash.

Mike Jacobs expects to match Pat Comiskey against Buddy Baer this winter. Ernie Lombardi, Reds' catcher, refuses to wear a hat. Says it's unlucky. Pinky Higgins' full name is Michael Franklin Higgins.

Fritz Crieier, Michigan football coach, studied law in his student days at the University of Chicago.

Daisy Hot Dish Mat An Appropriate Gift

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS IT WAS the flower-handle of the teapot lid that suggested this daisy mat. I had been thinking of making a hot dish out of firmly braided strips of cotton cloth. I wanted it to be thick and sewn firmly like a rag rug, so that it would stand frequent scrubblings. The design had to be novel and gay so that it would be appropriate for a Christmas gift or would attract attention if used to sell at a church bazaar. All the directions you need to make one are right here in the sketch. Cotton flannel or heavy cotton knitted material are good to use for the braided strips. Cut the strips two inches wide if the goods is heavy or wider if light weight. Braid tightly and then use No. 8 white cotton thread to sew, as shown. A set of these mats are pretty on the table; and mats for oval dishes may be made by sewing two daisies together.

NOTE: There are directions for a hot dish mat made of cable cord in SEWING, Book 4. Books 2 and 3 also contain directions for many gifts and novelties. These booklets are service-to-you booklets and each contains 32 pages of illustrated directions for things to make for the home. Apprehensions

Let us trust in God, and not fatigue ourselves with indiscreet and unwarrantable apprehensions. Let us depend on the divine assistance for the conduct and issue of our lives, and let us not yield ourselves up to disconsolateness and despair.—Pascal.

The Pleasant Way to Correct Constipation

Why let yourself in for all the discomfort of constipation—and then have to take an emergency medicine—when you can avoid both by getting at the cause of the trouble? If your difficulty, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, the "better way" is to take Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy toasted cereal—a natural food, not a medicine—has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it every day, it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular, month after month, by the pleasant means you ever knew! Eat All-Bran often, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Hidden Ways

By FREDERIC F. VAN DE WATER

SYNOPSIS

David Mallory, in search of newspaper work in New York, is forced to accept a job as a switch-board operator in a swank apartment house, managed by officious Timothy Higgins. There David meets Miss Agatha Paget, a crippled old lady, and her charming niece, Allegra. One day, talking with Higgins in the lobby, David is alarmed by a piercing scream. David finds the scream came from the Ferriter apartment, not far from the Pagets. The Ferriters include Lyon and Everett, and their sister, Lona. Everett, a genealogist, is helping Agatha Paget write a book about her blue-blooded ancestors. Inside the apartment they find a blackbearded man—dead. No weapon can be found. The police arrive.

CHAPTER III—Continued

"It wasn't completed," Shannon replied. "If it had been we'd have been here an hour sooner. He was calling Police Headquarters when he was killed."

He plumped into his chair as though the weight of jumbled facts had pushed him over.

"From three-thirty on, there was someone in the hall all the while?"

"I think so. I left Higgins there when I brought Miss Paget upstairs. Hoyt was there when I went down again."

"And neither of them saw anyone go out," he snarled like the victim of a practical joke. "And you didn't?"

"No."

He jumped up and began to walk the room, his jaw hard. Miss Agatha, leaning forward in her chair, watched him with the interest of a spectator at play.

"Could anyone leave without passing through the foyer?" Shannon threw at me.

"There's the fire escape," I suggested, "or the dumb-waiter."

"Thanks," he said savagely. "The fire escape hasn't been used in months. I happened to think of that. And the dumb-waiter rope broke this morning and that tub of lard Higgins hasn't fixed it yet. Yet somebody stabbed that guy next door and got away. How?"

"Stabbed him with what?" I asked and only made him angrier.

"If I knew," he squalled, "I'd not be suffering here. A knife, you goof. A knife that was in this."

He darted to the desk and held a leather sheath, blackened by long wear, up before me.

"Ever see that before?" he demanded and, scarcely waiting for my denial, plunged on. "We found this under Blackbeard's armpit—empty. Where's the knife? Gone with the murderer."

The hands he ran so frantically through his reddish gray hair seemed at last to control his mind. He asked me suddenly:

"Higgins had a key to that flat?"

"Yes."

"Anyone else beside these Ferriters?"

"I don't think so."

"Higgins says not," he growled. "Higgins goes in and messes up that phone receiver with his big paws until there's not a clear fingerprint on it. Wait a minute."

His eyes sparkled.

"Where was Higgins when you took that call?"

I saw Miss Agatha shift a little in her chair, start to speak and check herself. I said:

"Upstairs on the elevator."

"Doing what?"

I kept all feeling out of my voice.

"He said he was fixing the water tank on the roof."

"You can go," Shannon decided.

"Jake, bring that big beef back here."

Miss Agatha said mildly as I rose:

"Timothy was on the fourth floor I'm certain, Captain."

"Sure he was," he agreed. "I just want to see if anyone saw him there."

He was pacing the floor again and the old lady was smiling oddly. As Jake led me out, I felt Miss Agatha would confide in Shannon when I was gone.

Hoyt was on the elevator. He looked at me hard but said nothing while Jake took me downstairs. Higgins was arguing with a half-dozen men in the foyer and getting nowhere. I could tell they were reporters and the sight of them made me homesick. Higgins looked worse than I felt when Jake led him back to the car. His face was gray and his eyes made me think of a steer in a slaughterhouse chute. I waited by the elevator shaft till Hoyt came down again. With him was a policeman who shooed the reporters off the settees and out of the door. I followed Eddie over to the switch-board.

"You don't think," I asked and the words sounded foolish, "that Higgins is tied up in this thing?"

"Be your age," Hoyt advised me and then grinned. "The big boy looks sick, don't he?"

"That's what made me wonder."

"Look," Eddie muttered. "You know that smart little trick on the fourth floor—Mrs. Arnold's maid? Well, Mrs. Arnold's out this afternoon and Mrs. Higgins is away till tomorrow. And two and two makes—"

"Ah-hah!" I said.

"Right," Hoyt agreed. "Higgins has got an alibi, all right, but I think they'll have to tear it out of him. That's why he looks so sick."

"Well," I told him, "an alibi is an alibi."

A half-hour went by. A couple of the homicide men went away with their black satchels. A few indignant tenants worked through the blockade beyond the front door and hurried along the foyer talking to themselves. Eddie turned the car over to Boone of the night shift and went home, and Fineman, my relief, had just come in when Higgins came downstairs again.

He looked sick till he saw me and then he looked hearty once more.

"Hey," he called. "You. Come here."

I had been through a lot that afternoon and I suppose my mind had slowed up. I really thought he wanted to thank me for saying he had been on the roof, so when he spoke I stood and stared. His voice sounded as if he was afraid someone would overhear, but he could have been no angrier if he had screamed.

"You had your chance," he told me. "You didn't want it, eh? All right. I don't want you. Get your things and scam."

"Wait a minute," I stalled. "If you're canning me, what's it for?"

"After what I've been through upstairs," he wheezed and his big fists were clenched, "you've got the guts to ask that. Slandered me and a poor innocent girl, so ye did. You ought to thank me I'm just kicking you out into the gutter where you belong, instead of calling a cop."

His voice had got away from him. A blond young man—one of our tenants but I didn't know which—paused an instant and stared at us before he went into the elevator. He looked so sleek and handsome and contented and so much else I was not, that the anger Higgins had kindled blazed up in me. I didn't even try to keep my voice down.

"You two-timing tomcat," I told him. "Go ahead and kick me out and we'll see who lands in the gutter first. Now get this, I never knew where you'd been this afternoon till I came down here. Now that I'm wise that leaves just one in the house who isn't—Mrs. Higgins!"

"Will you be still?" he asked in a hushed voice, and I knew from his eyes he was going to hit me.

"Go ahead," I invited. "There's plenty of reporters outside. It'll make a good story. The tabloids will have pictures, too. One of you in Wilson's uniform, maybe."

I waited. He stood still and at last opened his mouth.

I never found out what he was going to say for Fineman, at the switchboard, called:

"Hey, Mallory. You're wanted up in Three A right away."

"Don't bother to pack for me," I told Higgins. "I'll do it myself when I come down."

Boone, on the elevator, kept glancing at me as he took me up. Maybe I looked as sick as I felt. Anger is worse than liquor on an empty stomach.

They had closed the door of the Ferriter flat but there still was movement inside. I rang the Paget bell. The girl in uniform I'd seen in the hall while Miss Ferriter was screaming let me in. She led me down the hall and stood aside at an open door. I started to enter but astonishment stopped me. I could only stand on the threshold and stare without belief.

CHAPTER IV

Miss Agatha Paget laid a red ten on a black jack. A tall glass stood beside the cards on her table. A cigarette dangled from her lips. Through its smoke her eyes shone bright as the diamond pin at the throat of her black-silk gown.

She should have been knitting instead of playing Canfield. The drink, the cards and the tobacco seemed as out of place as a cuspidor in church. She blew a cloud from her nose, ground out the cigarette on a tray, and nodded toward a chair.

"Come in, David," she said. "Sit down."

I obeyed. She held a card above the layout, placed it and then looked square at me.

"If that is an air of affronted piety," she told me. "I can get along without it. When you're my age, David, you'll take to the small vices remaining, as compensation for others you've missed. Have a drink?"

She looked toward a cellarette in the corner. I shook my head. Her sharply angled, eager face made me wonder whether the vitality denied her crippled legs had not flowed upward, to invigorate the rest of her. She took a long pull at her glass and wiped her lips on a lacy handkerchief.

"Grove," she began, "tells me you've been discharged."

"I didn't know Grove but I said: 'I have. I'm supposed to have bared the amours of the basement Casanova.'"

She gave her husky chuckle. "It was I who bared them. Only a remarkable man could be wrong as often as Timothy."

She tinkled the ice in her glass, sipped it again and then looked straight at me.

"What are you going to do?"

"When you sent for me," I said, "I was just going to take a poke at Higgins."

The wrinkles about her eyes deepened.

"You quote Kenneth Graham; you want to punch Timothy. What other recommendations have you?"

I did not understand. She prompted.

"You've been a reporter. What else can you do?"

I could not see where all this led, but I answered:

"I'm a fair blocking halfback and a good fencer. I also ride, swim and know a couple of card tricks."

"College, eh?"

I wondered if this was her idea of amusing herself.

"B. A.," I told her. "The diploma is in Omaha. I also had a Phi Beta key but I haven't now—there are rules against hoarding gold, you see. I can ransom my dress clothes though, if you feel you need a butler. They're in the trunk my former landlady is keeping for me. She insisted on it."

I had begun to feel like a laboratory specimen under her regard. It bothered me. When Miss Paget asked: "Would you care to work for me?" I shook my head.

"Kind of you," I told her, "but I think not. I've got relatives in Nebraska if I want charity."

I think that surprised her. She lit another cigarette.

"My boy," she said through a smoke cloud, "I'm beginning to understand why Higgins doesn't like you. It isn't charity. People I help have to work for what they get. Is that wasn't?"

It wasn't, but I nodded. She went on:

"I'm working with Mr. Ferriter, on a genealogy of the Paget family. You've heard of the Pagets."

"Sorry," I said and hoped my denial would irk her. Instead she grinned and for an instant it seemed time had worn her old face so thin that a valiant spirit shone through the mask.

"Werren't you lucky," said Miss Agatha, "to have been raised in Nebraska? If you'll stop being suspicious, I've something to tell you."

I finished her drink. Her eyes were bright and mocking.

"Paget, David, isn't just a family name. It's a religion—a very exclusive, comfortable religion. The only reason there wasn't a Paget on the Mayflower is that the ship had no royal suite. There aren't any D. A. R.'s or Sons of the Revolution among the Pagets. You see, the patriots were rather a mixed lot. I was raised in the fear of Pagetry and I'm doing a book about my forebears by way of reprisal. I need a man, preferably one who never heard of the Pagets, who can take what the heliotope Mr. Ferriter digs up and write it. He can't—or he's afraid to."

"A genealogy is just a catalogue," I told her. "You won't need a writer."

"Wrong all the way," she told me briskly. "That's just what I do need. There's never been a genealogy like this one. I'm prying the highly polished veneer off Pagetry. I'm going to tell the story of a family that is full of cowards and scoundrels and hypocrites and cheats and sluggards—like your family, like all families. I'm going to give as much space to my ancestors' frailties as to their virtues. It'll be a big book."

Again she gave that robust chuckle. I asked, defensively, for I felt her sweeping me along:

"Who'll dare to publish it?"

"I will," she said, and her teeth bit through an invisible thread. "One copy for each of the Pagets. Most of them are too far gone for the truth to reach them, but I want my children to know all about Pagetry before they're much older. They aren't really my children, though I raised them. My brother and sister-in-law died when Grosvenor was thirteen and Allegra ten."

"Grove is working in a bond house for all he's worth—which is about half of what he gets. Allegra is too pretty to have brains, yet she has them. I want my book to keep them from going Paget. Every family should have a factual account of its ancestors, their weaknesses and follies and misdemeanors and felonies. The Pagets will be the first to get it. I don't want my youngsters to get the family delusion that just being a Paget is all that should be expected of anyone."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JESUS DECLARES HIS MISSION

LESSON TEXT—Luke 4:18-30. GOLDEN TEXT—"For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."—Luke 19:10.

Ready for service! It's an exciting and auspicious occasion when the one who has prepared for a life work is ready to set forth on his mission. Joy and sorrow mingle; encouragement and opposition both appear and become his constant companions. Recognizing God and following His Word is of greatest importance on such a day.

The mission upon which Jesus entered on the day of our lesson was important far beyond any service of man, for, while He set out upon an earthly ministry of doing good, it led to the cross where He wrought out deliverance for the captives of Satan. That day found Him back with His own people in the synagogue in His home town.

I. Prophecy Fulfilled (vv. 16-22). It is significant and appropriate that Jesus' declaration of Himself as the fulfillment of Isaiah 61:1, 2 was made in the synagogue on the Sabbath day. He met with the people in the house and at the time set apart for God's worship. He opposed spiritual deadness, the misinterpretation of the truth, the distortion of religious principles; but He was not, as some would have us believe, a religious free lance who despised the established worship of His people.

Having been prepared by the years of silence, and more particularly by the baptism and the temptation in the wilderness; He appeared at the synagogue in Nazareth to declare Himself as the fulfillment of prophecy.

Those who teach that Jesus was only a young Jewish teacher with a new philosophy of life have evidently not read the Scriptures. He knew Himself to be God's Son come into the world to bring the good news of salvation by His own blood to poor, sin-captive, blinded and bruised humanity. He is the Saviour!

Look at Isaiah 61:1, 2 and note that Jesus stopped reading before the end of the sentence. "The day of vengeance of our God" will come when Christ returns. This is the day of grace. Sinners are urged to accept God's love now, and thus to escape the terrible day of judgment.

II. Faith Recognized (vv. 23-27). The Jews gloried in the fact that they were the chosen people of God and insisted it was through the exercises of their formal worship that God's blessing must be received. Now this one whom they erroneously call "Joseph's son" (v. 22) comes to disturb them in their self-satisfaction. Seeing their rising resentment, He declares by striking words and example that the benefits and blessings of God come through faith and not because of any racial relationship.

The glory of Christianity is that its grace and power are to be received by faith and are fully and freely available to the simplest and poorest of men. Race, position, wealth, education, have nothing to do with it. All too often they are a hindrance, although they ought rather to be a help.

Every reader of these notes, regardless of age, education, wealth or any other condition or circumstance of life, stands on an equal footing before God and has a full and unlimited opportunity to take right now, by faith in Christ, all that God has for him—salvation, spiritual strength and usefulness, joy, peace, and all the other blessing of God. Will you do it?

III. Truth Rejected (vv. 28-30). Like a torch cast into gunpowder, His words set off all the explosive power of narrow bigotry, national pride, jealousy, and they were all "filled with wrath" (v. 28). They rejected not only the truth of His words, but they rejected Him who is the Truth (John 14:6). Note it carefully—in rejecting or neglecting His Word, you reject and neglect Him.

Observe that until the time had come for Him to be "delivered" (Rom. 4:25) into the hands of wicked men to be crucified they could not touch Him. There is no more majestic scene than that in verse 30 where the Son of God turned at the brow of the hill and, walking through the midst of the crowd, went His way.

What have I to fear at the hands of wicked and gainsaying men as long as I follow this all-powerful Son of God? He that is for us and in us is greater than he (the devil) that is in the world (I John 4:4). We follow the victorious Christ, who quietly but majestically walks through the ranks of His helpless enemies and goes "His way." Will you join us—today?

Be Temperate

Woe to them that rise up early in the morning that they may follow strong drink; that continue until night, till wine inflame them.—Isa. 56:10.

Star Dust

By VIRGINIA VALE (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THE question of who owns Dorothy Lamour's hair has become a burning issue. It isn't the hair that Dorothy had left when her famous long locks were removed, but the tresses that fell to the floor when she won the victory to have her hair bobbed.

She bobbed it for Paramount's "Moon Over Burma," you'll recall. Instantly the studio's publicity department requested the make-up department to save the shorn locks; they knew that thousands of requests for a lock of Dorothy's hair would pour in.

The requests poured, all right. But when the head of the publicity department sent for the hair, the make-up department replied that it was in the possession of Dorothy's mother, Mrs. O. L. Castleberry. Mrs. Castleberry had protested bitterly against the shearing, and to appease her Dorothy had taken her long and lovely locks.

Now the question is—does the studio own those locks, or are they the rightful property of Mrs. Castleberry, who refuses to give them up.

Humphrey Bogart just goes from bad to worse, so far as his work is concerned. Years ago he made a hit in his first important role in the stage play, "Cradle Snatchers," in which he played the very juvenile escort of Mary Boland. Jeanette MacDonald's husband, then known as Raymond Gulon, was another very youthful and capable member of the cast.

But the movies have turned Bogart into one of our most sinister villains. In his new picture, "High Sierra," he's more villainous than ever. One of his milder acts is to crack the heads of two "goons" who cause trouble in his "mob."

Two years ago the Song Hit guild of New York set out to prove that amateurs can write hit songs. The guild's record proves what a grand idea that was.

In less than 18 months 18 unknown authors and composers received accredited publication, advance royalties and contracts equal to those given established professionals. The list of their songs includes the popular "Can't Get Indiana Off My Mind," "I'm on the Verge of a Merge," and "What Ev'ry Young Girl Should Know," featured a while ago on the Hit Parade.

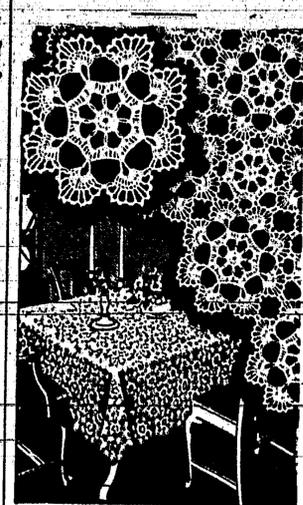

The Song Hit guild is now conducting its third nation-wide search for talent. If you're interested, send your manuscript to the Song Hit guild, 1619 Broadway, New York city, at once. An advisory board headed by Paul Whiteman, Guy Lombardo, Billy Rose and Kay Kyser passes on all songs, and writers requiring such help are invited to collaborate with hit songwriters like Hoagy Carmichael, Jimmy McHugh and others of equal note.

Radio artists are reviving an old parlor game as a means of whiling away off-time in the studios, but they play it with radio programs instead of the titles of books or songs. Turning to the radio page of a newspaper, they run the titles of radio programs together to make a story in sentences like this—"Blondie, Meet Mr. Meek, Light of the World!"

Marjorie Anderson is calling her new home on the outskirts of Philadelphia "The house that shadows built." Married, mother of a two-year-old daughter, and wife of a successful construction engineer, she commutes to New York for her work on Mutual Broadcasting System's Shadow program, and has earned enough to pay the rent for a year, landscape the grounds, and furnish the house.

ODDS AND ENDS—Bill Stern is lining up Robert Taylor, Mickey Rooney and Claudette Colbert for guest appearances on his "Sports Newslet of the Air" in his program moves to the coast for December. Bing Crosby's son Gary will follow in his dad's film footsteps, it's reported. Penny Singleton, who broke into films as a dancer, dances for the first time in four years in "Blondie Goes Latin." Fred Allen is willing to give $20 for a penny, if it's the right penny. He left an 1887 penny, valued at $20, on his desk, and the maid, needing another penny to pay the milkman, picked it up. Sir the $20 penny is now in circulation—no other penny.

Panic or prejudice has no place now—only the real issues, the real questions are worthy of consideration. This done, there can be little question of the outcome. Under a new, saner administration, we shall regain our balance as a nation — our just place in the world, and we shall regain sound prosperity.

As a candidate for the United States senate, I appeal for your support and influence that I may aid in bringing about this return to the American way. But more important, I appeal for your consideration and fair evaluation of Wendell Willkie and the New Mexico state Republican ticket from the top to the bottom.

I only ask that you vote as your inner conscience dictates. It is my personal conviction that you will vote American—vote Republican. We can save our nation as a free country. We must and we shall.

Sincerely,
Albert K Mitchell
