Here is an example for the men, many of whom would have waited for help, but not so with Mrs. Burris—she is a mouser, more especially when trouble comes.

Mr. H. W. MacMillan has been ill since Tuesday.

FOREST NOTES

Opportunities for outdoor recreation offered by the national forests, cover the entire field of the country's forest sports and diversions. For extent, variety, and interest, they are probably unequalled anywhere in the world.

National Forests under the administration of the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture, include more than 176 million acres of land, or something more than an acre apiece for every man, woman and child in the United States, because of their distribution—some 160 in 36 of the 48 states, Alaska and Puerto Rico—they are the most generally accessible large public areas adapted to outdoor recreation in the country.

Gordon J. Gray, Forest Ranger.

OUT-OF-THE-ORDINARY

At Harrisburg, Pa., recently, J. F. Hicks lost one of his pants pockets in an automobile wreck. At the hospital, he told the doctors he wouldn't have minded it so much, but the pocket contained his pocketbook and $100.00. The queer thing about it all was that he was helped out of the wreck by the sheriff and police officers.

The Roy Record steps into the limelight with the following story, which we take pleasure in putting in our collection of things out-of-the-ordinary. 15 years ago, George Ray, while making the rounds of his ranch holdings, lost a diamond ring valued at $1200. He and his workers spent many hours in search of the ring but without success. A few days ago, as he was sitting in his car, awaiting the arrival of another ranch-holder, who was to look over the property, he cast his eye to the ground, he saw a sparkle of unusual brilliancy. Stepping from his car to see what it was, and lo and behold, there was his ring.

Power now may be sent by radio, quoting the Christian Science Monitor. The device which makes this possible is the Klystron. In laboratory experiments, ordinary electric light bulbs, entirely free from wire connections, have been made to glow brilliantly in a beam of energy sent out by a model of Klystron.

The following true story can be recalled by old-timers of St. Joseph, Mo.

It was over 70 years ago that Jim Minton, 8 years of age, while wading in Blacksnake Creek, he suffered a cut in his left foot from a piece of broken glass. A physician in examining Jim's foot found 3 pieces of glass. X Rays were unknown those days and he thought he had it all out, but did he? When Jim reached the age of 22, he suffered from a severe pain in the back of his head and at that spot, there was a swelling, unbearable. Lancing the lump, the doctor found another piece of glass that had worked its way through his body for 14 years.

MOSTLY NONSENSE

Biltzberg: First Bachelor: "See how the bride is blushing!" Second Bachelor: "Blushing, nothing. That's the first flush of victory!"

Effective if Unusually: A small boy who was staying at a farm rushed indoors one day and breathlessly exclaimed: "That a mouse had fallen into a can of milk."

"Did you take it out?" asked the farmer. "Of course not," answered the boy. "I got the cat in."

Who's a Homebody? A sailor, after picking some flowers on a grave in a cemetery, noticed an old Chinaman placing a bowl of rice on a nearby grave, and asked jokingly: "What time do you expect your friend to come up and eat the rice?" The old Chinaman, smiling replied: "Same time your friend come up to smell flowers."

FIELDING HURRY-UP YOST of Michigan was 70 years old a month ago.

Grantland Rice

The game has given us only one Zuppke—and only one Yost.

It was in 1895 that a big, shaggy-haired, gawky backwoods teacher from Fairview saw and played in his first football game.

Yost was so keen about football from the start that no one university could offer him enough competition.

Yost was so keen about football from the start that no one university could offer him enough competition. So in 1895 he played with West Virginia.

"Yost wanted to play football all day long," Brink once told me. And talk it all night, he might have added.

Covering the Map

On his march across the country's map Yost coached teams at Ohio Wesleyan, Nebraska, Kansas and Stanford.

Again one university wasn't enough. While at Stanford he also coached four other teams successfully—the Stanford freshmen, San Jose Teachers, Lowell high school of San Francisco and the California

FIELDING YOST

Ukiah team. Five teams—that's what you might call putting in a full season.

Most of his teams had victorious sweeps, but it was not until 1901 when his famous battle cry of "Hurry-up—Hurry-up" arrived at Michigan that Yost came to instant fame.

"I still believe those Michigan teams from 1901 through 1903 were the greatest five consecutive football teams any university ever moved into destructive action.

Yost coached Michigan for 23 years before he took over the directorship of athletics. In those 23 years his teams won 160 games and lost but 10.

What an all-time Michigan team Yost could have put into the field from the men he coached. He turned out 16 All-American nominations through 1929.

In addition to all this, Yost directed the construction of six athletic buildings, including the Michigan Stadium that seats some 87,000 people.

A Football Life

For over 40 years football has been Yost's life. He has eaten it, dreamed it, talked it and lived it. The first time I saw him we had lunch together at one o'clock.

You have to be in ideal condition to talk with Yost. He hammers your chest with the powerful, staccato fingers of both hands.

Speaking of SPORTS

By ROBERT McSHANE

Released by Western Newspaper Union

THOSE cash customers who managed to stay awake long enough to see Billy Soose plod his way to a 15-round middleweight "championship" victory over Ken Overlin recently had a two-fold cause for complaint.

First, the fight was a dull, dreary affair with Soose, who didn't deserve it, getting the nod from both judges and the referee.

Second, the world's middleweight—or muddleweight—championship was not at stake. A lad by the name of Tony Zale, hailing from Gary, Ind., has a much better claim to that honor than either of the fore-mentioned gentlemen.

Back to complaint No. 1. Unquestionably the bout was one of the most uninteresting spectacles ever perpetrated upon a long suffering public. Soose was a favorite from the day the match was made.

The Press Doesn't Agree

But when the fight was over the newspaper men at the ringside voted 2 to 1 for Overlin. They were far from enthusiastic about the fight, but they did think Overlin won.

Donovan's card gave Soose eight rounds and Overlin seven. Monroe scored the fight similarly. Healy didn't think it was that close. He gave Soose nine rounds, Overlin five, and called one even.

The Associated Press scorecard gave Overlin 11 rounds and Soose four.

This variance in opinion might indicate that the fight was a thrilling encounter between two brawlers who gave everything they had in a brave, strong effort to whale their opponent. Sadly enough, that picture couldn't be more untrue.

Championship Dynasty

Complaint No. 2, the more serious charge, demands a bit of recent historical evidence. Tony Zale swam the middleweight championship by right of conquest. He whipped Seattle Al Hostak, the former legitimate champion. Al, in his turn, had won the title from Freddy Steele.

Yet, Soose was described as "the winnab and the new champeen" in an inspired announcement at the end of the fight.

Why? Because Mike Jacobs and the favorably inclined New York boxing commission, controllers of boxing in the East, decided by edict that Soose is the champion.

Neither Zale nor Hostak are controlled by the all-powerful Jacobs. They are not "company" men. Therefore Soose would never get permission to fight them.

Jacobs has declared that Soose is champion, so that's that. Zale's claim is very conveniently ignored in favor of one of his own boys.

New York has a peculiar claim to possession of the 125-pound title. The state boxing commission, when authority ends at the state's borders, developed a pronounced dislike for Hostak a few years ago.

California Isle Shipping Center

Immense Shipbuilding Yards Under Way in Harbor Of Los Angeles.

SAN PEDRO, CALIF.—Terminal island, wedged in the center of the man-made Los Angeles harbor, has suddenly been transformed from a strip of land serving as a base for fishermen and seagulls to a vital point in the nation's defense program.

In a few months, building of destroyers and freighters for the navy and merchant marine will begin on this amazing island as private companies and government agencies start work on almost $2,000,000,000 in shipbuilding contracts.

The newest industry to be developed on Terminal island is the huge California Shipbuilding corporation. A thousand men are working on a $4,760,000 shipyard for the firm.

Eight ships at a time will go down the ways of the new company and 7,500 men will work on the freighters. The ships will be 425 feet long, have a 57-foot beam and will have a cruising speed of 11 knots.

The company has a five-year lease on the area it will use under the U. S. Maritime commission's supervision and virtually all one end of the island will have to be re-modeled.

The navy figuratively is getting behind each pile-driver and steam-roller as work progresses on a gigantic new $20,000,000 naval base on another section of the island.

Not to be outdone, the army is reported casting covetous glances toward this future insular beehive and is said to be interested in developing a transport terminal there.

The destroyers will cost $8,100,000 each and the navy has made $2,500,000 available for yard construction work preliminary to actual shipbuilding. More than 7,500 men will be employed at the Bethlehem yards when construction of the new-type warships gets under way.

Food Shortage Dulls Zip In Spanish Bullfighting

MADRID.—The food problem dealt a blow to the Spanish national sport of bullfighting today, but the corridas will go on, albeit with weaker bulls, fewer horses and, presumably, weaker matadors.

The strict regulations of the sport long have required fighting bulls to meet certain standards of weight, strength and all-around ferocity. Fodder is so scarce that the bulls now have to be fed almost entirely on grass.

Singing Messenger Boy Halts San Francisco Trial

SAN FRANCISCO.—A messenger boy temporarily halted a murder trial here with a birthday greeting. Maurice Cronin, clerk of the superior court, was selecting a jury for the murder trial and had just asked, "Would you still be willing to inflict the death penalty?" when a messenger boy, thrusting his head through the court room, began singing.

"Happy birthday, dear Cronin—happy birthday to you." Superior Court Judge Steiger was out of the chambers at the moment, and by the time he reached his chair the messenger boy had done his duty.

Post-War Britons Seen As Shorter and Weaker

LONDON.—A post-war generation of shorter and weaker Britons was predicted by V. H. Mottram unless the pre-war rations of British children were increased.

Writing in the Lancet, British medical journal, the physiologist said more meat, milk, bacon, butter and eggs should go into children's diets, "even if it means a voluntary sacrifice by adults of their rations in favor of the young."

THE CALL FOR MORE EGGS

(Washington)—C. R. Wickard, secretary of agriculture, has announced a nation-wide drive to produce more eggs as part of the aid to England and defense plan.

The barnyards hear it, one and all; The message sweeps from east to west: "No longer, hen, your second best!"

A buzzer buzzes and it's done... A paper's signed in Washington... Stenographers rush here and there—There's action in the very air!

The wires 'cross the nation sing, An ultimatum's on the wing By horseback and by auto, too, By radio and by canoe,

The hens outside now scamper in, Their faces drawn a little thin; "We've laid one egg" say three or four;

Then looms some organizing hen (From Layers' Union Number 10); "Arise!"—her cry is loud and clear, "Demand the right to bargain here!

Then Washington by hens is stormed And hencoop picket lines are formed; Hark! Overhead the transports dive, The mediation boards arrive!

But lest this tale be far too long The hens are saved; they ain't done wrong; They sign to do the best they can But scrap the big production plan.

Then to their nests they quickly scam And give three cheers for Uncle Sam, Three lusty cheers (and shake a leg)— Three cheers, ah yes, but just one egg!

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Rambles and ruminations: A vacant store with the windows, instead of being dirty as to be practically opaque, scrubbed to shining brightness.

A man with a white mustache and Vanduyke jogging along Central-park pathways clad in a track outfit... And a youngster on a bench remarking, "Daniel Boone must think he's a Boy Scout!"

The window of an Eighth avenue pawnshop, filled with fishing tackle that looks as if it had been used... I still have a trout rod Hubert M. Long of the Grand Rapids Press gave me in Traverse City years and years ago.

A huge truck loaded with pasteboard boxes stopping in front of a wholesale dress establishment on Thirty-eighth street... Wonder what the garment center would do if there were no more pasteboard?

A red-headed lass of 10 or so, slapping the face of a big boy who joggled her elbow as she was about to bite into an ice-cream cone... and the lad sneaking away with face more fiery than the girl's hair.

Remarks: Harry Salter says it's amazing how much talent leaves New York for Hollywood—and how little gets there... Xavier Cugat avers that theaters in Chicago are so large that if an egg is thrown from the balcony it hatches before it reaches the stage.

Diner Turned the Tables On Convinving Couple

Upon receiving his bill, the diner added it up and found that he had been overcharged $1.

"How come?" he asked, looking sharply at the waitress. "Well, you see, sir," she replied, "the cashier bet me half a dollar that you wouldn't see it and I bet him you would. Just a friendly little wager."

With a smile the customer wrote something on the back of the bill, folded it, and said: "Take that to the cashier."

She did so, and on opening it the two were startled to read: "I'll bet $5 I shall not be here when you get back." And he wasn't.

A Famous Coon Story

ONE of the classics of early American humor is the story of Davy Crockett's "interview" with a coon. According to the usual version, this famous Tennessee frontiersman was out hunting one day when he spied a raccoon high up in a tree. Instantly he leveled his deadly rifle at the animal, whereupon the coon cried out: "Is that you, Crockett? Then don't shoot—I'll come down!"

Although this is readily recognized as a "tall tale" and a bit of frontier folklore, it has been repeated innumerable times as a tribute to Crockett's unerring marksmanship. But, like so many other yarns associated with his name, it is also a "borrowed story" and another man was the hero of it when it was first told.

Visit the historical museum in Bennington, Vt., and there you will see a long rifle which, according to the card beside it, is the ".50 caliber gun used by Lieut. Col. Martin Scott, native of Bennington and sharpshooter. It was made at Harper's Ferry in 1814 and first used in 1818 in the Fifth Rifle Regiment of the regular army. This gun was often used by Colonel Scott while at Fort Howard at Green Bay, Wis., where he and Captain Merrill were commandants, beginning in 1834. This is the rifle used by the man who was the original hero of the famous coon story.

Scott's reputation as a mighty hunter was established while he was still a boy. At the age of 12 he killed a notorious bear that had been preying upon the live-stock of the farmers around Bennington and young Scott was brought into town in triumph astride the carcass of the bear. During his hunting expeditions, he roamed westward into New York and it was near Lake Bonaparte in the foothills of the Adirondacks that a coon in a tree, seeing him approaching, said: "Is that you, Martin Scott? Then don't shoot—I'll come down!"

At least such a yarn was printed in a Utica, N. Y., newspaper, in 1837, and when the New York Sun and other papers reprinted it, it was given wide circulation. Davy Crockett had been killed during the Texan war for independence the previous year and, as one of the "heroes of the Alamo," his fame became even greater than it had been while he was an Indian-fighter, bear hunter and congressman from Tennessee. So it is easy to see how some of his admirers, knowing the widely reprinted story of Martin Scott's "interview" with the coon, appropriated it for their hero and attributed the incident to Crockett.

Commissioned a captain in the Fifth Rifle Regiment of the United States army, Scott's fame as a marksman spread rapidly. Once he demonstrated his sharpshooting ability by taking an ace of clubs on a tree and firing three shots at it with his muzzle-loading rifle (no doubt, the one in the Bennington museum) in a minute and 20 seconds. Col. R. B. Marcy, commander of the regiment, examined the target and announced one hit and two misses. Thereupon Scott called for an ax, chopped into the tree and showed three bullets in the single hole!

Scott's career ended in 1847 when he was killed, while leading his company in the Battle of Molino del Rey in Mexico in 1847.

Before marching away to the war in Mexico, Scott visited his boyhood home in Bennington. He had left it as a poor and obscure lad. He came back rich and famous. According to a contemporary account, he returned in a fine new gig, drawn by a superb white horse. Following him as an outrider was a Negro slave, Jack, dressed in livery and mounted on a thoroughbred, and 20 or 30 full-blooded dogs of various breeds. Scott is said to have paid $5 a pound for Jack and later freed him.

BROADENING CHRISTIAN HORIZONS: THE ANTIOCH MOVEMENT

LESSON TEXT—Acts 11:19-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek.—Romans 1:16.

Scattered abroad! As the flying sparks and embers from a fire which is wildly beaten will light many new fires, just so persecution of the early Christians sent them abroad and established new centers for the preaching of the gospel. Verse 19 of our lesson connects with Acts 8:4. The ministry of Phillip in Samaria was paralleled by that of others in Phenice, Cyprus, and now in Antioch. That great city was not far from Jerusalem, but it was far from God. A mighty city, rich in trade, it was also deep in all kinds of sin; but there it pleased God to establish a great center of Christian testimony. God loves to do new things—(see, for example, II Cor. 5:17; Isa. 43:19; Ps. 33:3; Rev. 21:5).

I. A New Church (vv. 19-21).

What a splendid church it was! Here in the midst of the most evil surroundings the sweet flower of Christian faith grew, as it so often does.

It was a church built upon a faithful testimony by God's chosen witnesses "preaching the Lord Jesus" (v. 20). Their names are not noted, but their message is, and its blessed results. It was a gathering place for all people—Jews and Gentiles. The disciples from Jerusalem preached at first only to the Jews, but God sent others (v. 20), who preached His grace to the Gentiles. Note also that the Antioch church was a living witness. "The hand of the Lord was with them"—little wonder then that "a great number believed and were turned to the Lord." Your church—and mine—might learn much by studying the church at Antioch.

II. A New Fellowship (vv. 22-26).

The genius of Christianity is fellowship. Those who have a religious belief which makes them exclusive—not willing to fellowship with other Christians—do not truly represent their Lord.

When the church at Jerusalem heard the good news, they sent Barnabas to help the new converts and establish fellowship. He was the ideal man to send, for "he was a good man." It is far more important that a man be good than that he be brilliant if he is to edify young converts. He was "full of the Holy Ghost." He was also "full of faith," and no man that is not, need undertake the work of instructing and developing young converts, especially converts from heathenism so dark as that in Antioch. He was free from the love-of-gold (4:36-37). He was free from personal ambition and jealousy in his work (vv. 25, 26). He was very sharp-eyed to see the sincerity and promise of a young convert (9:27). "When he was come, and had seen the grace of God, (he) was glad" (John W. Bradbury).

Into this new fellowship of life and service the gracious and generous Barnabas brought a new evangelist—Saul, God's prepared man for this hour.

But we have another new thing in our lesson, one of great importance.

III. A New Name (vv. 26-30).

Christian, the beautiful name of those who follow Christ was first used at Antioch. It may have held a measure of contempt (see Acts 26:28; I Pet. 4:16), but it was a remarkably suitable name for those who had come out of paganism now to live, in their old surroundings, a new life, a separated life, the Christ life.

This name "combines Jewish thought with Greek and Latin language, and thus, like the inscription on the cross, bears witness to the universality of Christianity as a religion for the whole world. The idea of 'Christ' (Messiah) is Jewish; the substantive 'Christ' (Christos) is Greek, and the adjectival termination 'ian' (-ianus) is Latin.

This new name was intended to introduce and mark the difference between Jews and Gentiles on the one hand; and those who, whether Jews or Gentiles, were followers of Jesus Christ. The term 'Christian' evidently points to the Person of Christ, and to those who are associated with Him as His followers. It implies and involves union and close association with Christ" (W. H. Griffith Thomas).

Those believers at Antioch not only bore the name, they practiced the life of Christ. Next Sunday we shall study their activity for Christ, for in that city began the great missionary movement which goes on to our day. In our lesson today we have another practical expression of their faith. They gave of their means, "every man according to his ability," to meet the need of their new-found Jewish brethren in Judea.

Star Dust

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO
By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

YOU'LL see a much slimmer Edward Arnold than usual in "Nothing But the Truth"—slimmer by 35 pounds, as a matter of fact. The reducing wasn't intentional; Arnold barked his shin in a plane, developed blood poisoning, and off went the 35 pounds. As all the action of the picture takes place during 24 hours, he had to be careful not to gain even a few ounces while it was being made. He's to have the top role in "The Devil and Daniel Webster" next—as a result of an accident suffered by Thomas Mitchell.

Bing Crosby and Bob Hope were to take the "Road to Moscow" in their next "Road" picture, but current events made it seem advisable to change the title, so instead they'll take the "Road to Morocco."

Ellen Drew's good work in "The Parson of Panamint" caused her studio to buy "The Silver Queen" as a future starring vehicle for her. She'll play a New York girl of wealth in the 1880s—the girl's father loses his fortune in gambling, and the girl becomes a spectacular professional gambler in the mining camps of the old West. Her latest film to be released is "Reaching for the Sun," in which she is co-starred with Joel McCrea and Eddie Bracken.

Bill Boyd breaks the long term screen characterization record with his present Hopalong Cassidy portrayal in "Secret of the Wastelands"—it's his thirty-seventh appearance in the part, and he's been at it for seven years.

Glenn Swann, whom you've heard on the air as the singer with Kay Kyser's band, has signed a long-term contract with RKO. She'll go right on appearing with the "College of Musical Knowledge," pausing to make pictures when she's summoned.

Jean Arthur is practically certain to play the lead in "Miss Susie Slagle's," Paramount's version of the very popular book of two years ago. She should be excellent as the charming little Southern woman with a flock of medical students as paying guests in her home.

The man who gave Bette Davis her first job in a theater is in the movies himself; he's Harold Winston, dialogue director on Frank Capra's pictures. He was directing at the Cape Playhouse at Cape Cod, Mass., and she was just out of dramatic school when she asked for a job. He didn't have one for her, but she said she'd usher for the chance to work in a theater. After several weeks the star of the company, Marguerite Churchill, had to leave for Hollywood, suddenly, and Bettie took her place.

"Look Who's Talking" is before the cameras—with a listener audience of nearly 100,000,000 radio fans waiting for it to reach the screen. It stars Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Fibber McGee and Molly. Lucille Ball, who's very good in Harold Lloyd's "A Girl, A Guy and a Gob," plays opposite her.

Metro has a new singer on its list—Anne Rooney, who is sixteen, five feet tall, and has been gathering experience as an entertainer since she was two. At five she was guest star with Al Pearce and his Radio Gang; three years later she did a year in vaudeville with her sister and parents. She's also done a stint in little theater productions.

ODDS AND ENDS—Dennis Morgan has the lead in Warner Bros. "Carnival in Rio" . . . Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy have signed with 20th Century-Fox for nine pictures; the first will be "Forsyth Maes," Al Pearce's announcer, "War Nites," will play himself in Republic's picture, "Puddin' Head" . . . The Rudy Vallee-John Barrymore program will remain on the air all summer . . . NBC's Ted Steele, singer, band leader and master of ceremonies, was an NBC boy only two years ago. Alice Faye and Don Ameche are to do "Honeymoon in Havana" for 20th Century-Fox. Alana Smith plays opposite Errol Flynn in "Dive Bomber."

MARINES NEED HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES

The United States Marines will need five hundred High School graduates each month for the next twelve months to bring their aviation units up to their authorized strength, according to Sergeant Marvin H. Manvin, NCO in charge of the Marine Corps recruiting station in Albuquerque.

While a High School diploma is not required for assignment to aviation in the Marines, High School graduates are preferred for this type of duty due to the fact that an ever increasing number of enlisted men are being trained as pilots. It is necessary that enlisted pilots have sufficient education to be able to thoroughly understand navigation and other highly technical subjects. The Marines now require that an enlisted man have two years in an aviation unit before he can be sent to their flight school for pilot's training. He must also have an excellent record, be recommended for flight training by his commanding officer, and pass the flight physical examination.

Men who are not High School graduates, but who have over two years of High School, and have some experience as an auto mechanic, electrician, welder, or similar skilled trade, also have an excellent chance for assignment to aviation duty.

Candidates for aviation are selected by a Marine Aviator stationed at the Marine Corps Base, San Diego, California. This officer interviews volunteers for aviation during the last week of their six week's training period and selects candidates on a basis of their educational qualifications, past experience, and the markings they have received from their instructors during their training period.

In addition to the large number required to service the enlarged air force of the Marines, many carpenters, plumbers, and electricians will be needed to build hangers, repair shops, and barracks for both pilots and ground crews. Then too, an Napoleon so aptly put it, "An Army Travels On It's Stomach." There are times, even in the Marine Air Corps, when the Commanding Officer would gladly swap ten good mechanics for one good cook.

I watched the Old World crumble. the former leaders of Russian and French aristocracy, who paints an intimate never-before-revealed picture of the trivialities, tragedies, and comedies of European courts and personalities. War Approaches New Critical Phase As 'Showdown' Looms in Near East; Defense Mediation Board Struggles To Avert Strikes in Vital Industries

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Marshal Petain's decision for France to collaborate with Adolf Hitler's government has made the tiny French mandate of Syria the center of unrest and a potential battleground. Here are pictured French colonial troops on parade in the streets of Beirut, chief city of Syria.

NAZIS:

Creative Pause

Although fighting continued heavily in North Africa and seemed to be stepping up on the Iraq front, Berlin talked of a "creative pause" which could be regarded as a precursor of events of great magnitude.

Berlin claimed the turning point of the war was at hand, and pointed to diplomatic spearhead attacks in France and the Near-East as the type of thing referred to in the "pause."

An Britain caught its breath for a few days after the terrific bombing of London and other cities, casualty lists were made up showing that 80,312 citizens had been killed or wounded by bombings since last June.

Yet the two worst months were September and October, not March and April, as most had thought. There were 32,000 casualties in the fall months, and only 23,000 in March and April. This showed a better defense in shelters, as there was no question but that the spring raids had showed much more power than those in the fall.

In the matter of losses at sea, there was somewhat of a drop during the month of April, and in early May, one week showing only a loss of 36,000 tons, or at the rate of about 150,000 tons a month, as against previous months when the rate hopped up to around 250,000.

This was in spite of the fact of longer days and better weather for submarines to operate in. Many believed the R.A.F. raids which held the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau apparently damaged at their docks in Brest were responsible in great measure for the fall-off in sinkings.

Reports from North Africa tended to show the British army of the Nile picking up somewhat in verve and apparently in machines, though some reports showed the supply of tanks to be so low that the British were arming trucks with cannon and sending them out into the desert in lieu of tanks.

Tanks were moving off American assembly lines, but how many were getting to Britain and especially to the Near-East and North African fronts remained a mystery.

There were increasing evidences that the British and Nazis were going to hook up in a big battle in the Near-East, and perhaps this time on somewhat more even terms.

Within a day after the Nazi planes moved into Iraq via Syrian air-dromes, a brief death notice in a Berlin paper told of the loss of a young pilot named Von Blomberg, son of the Field Marshal, also former war minister, who was ousted in 1938 when he married a carpenter's daughter.

It was not said where Von Blomberg died, but the British radio said it had been determined that he was one of the first casualties among the Nazi fliers to enter Iraq.

London did not try to minimize the importance of the Near-East flight, and official circles likened it in scope to the Battle of the Atlantic, and stated that the British control of the Near-East would be thoroughly defended.

Word came through that Nazi infantry units were moving into Syria through the Bosphorus, and would be sent to Iraq, undoubtedly well supported by mechanized forces.

From the British viewpoint, the stalemate in North Africa was a

TANKS:

And Killers.

Even as the first new tanks were moving from assembly lines, the army was concentrating on "tank-killers" and studying several methods of combating the armored weapon.

Among these were tank-traps, land-mines, posts, redoubts armed heavily, and mobile artillery, including, of course, tanks themselves.

tribute to the heroism of the under-equipped army of the Nile, and the long defense of Tobruk, backed up by the navy, showed how thin the long Italo-German rear was held.

Salum changed hands five or six times in a week, and some cases of British advances into Libya were reported, though Axis sources always claimed the British were "chased back."

MEDIATION:

Bigger Stick

American industry, geared up to its highest pitch in history, and realizing, whether the public did or not, that the call for 40 billions of dollars worth of material was equivalent to asking industry to work an American miracle, teetered along on the brink of the cliff of labor troubles, but without actually falling over.

It was evident that somebody or some agency, presumably the defense mediation board, Dr. Dykstra chief, was wielding a bigger stick than the department of labor conciliators ever did, and was wielding it to some purpose.

Strike threats, not so much strikes, became the order of the day. The soft coal strike was halted, then threatened to break out again, but the mediators were "on top" of the trouble and hoped to quell it. The hard coal miners, 100,000 of them, threatened to walk out, demanding more wages.

Nastiest threat of all was the General Motors strike, which had Knudsen of OPM up a tree when he called it the "most dangerous." The C. I. O. Automobile Workers group wanted a 10 per cent pay raise and a closed shop. The strike was set for one morning, and three hours before it was due to break a 24-hour truce was announced, and a couple of hours before it was expired the strike was settled on a basis of the pay raise but no closed shop.

The Col's strike, tying up $30,000,000 in machine-gun contracts, lasted only a day. Tanks were moving off assembly lines, 30-mm cannon for airplanes were in mass production, a 3,000-horsepower airplane motor was said to be "less than a year away."

In every way it was apparent that American industry was "catching the idea" that it was being called upon for a supreme effort in which the United States was challenging the world, and was planning to show the world that this country, supreme in machines and machine tools, could dominate the world in military affairs.

But the public still Gallup-pollled 79 per cent against active entry in the war, and Dr. James B. Conant of Harvard said "America doesn't know it's in a real emergency." Odd thing about the poll was that nearly the same per cent favored all-out aid to Britain.

OCD:

Ready to Go

President Roosevelt was calling on millions of Americans to enroll in the civilian defense group, under the banner of a new group of initials, OCD, meaning the Office of Civilian Defense. It was expected that Mayor LaGuardia of New York would lead the movement.

The plan was to line up men and women all over the nation for all sorts of duties from airplanes spotting to watching for spies or sabotage and even keeping an eye on prices of commodities.

It is planned to build an organization into which millions can be enrolled and trained.

The plan was borrowed wholesale from England, and has been Britain's most successful organization, aiding the British more than any other one thing in keeping air-raid casualties down, and thus so far stalling Hitler's efforts to knock Britain out of the war from the air.

Also of immense value in Britain has been the people-building effect of the civilian defense group, particularly the ARP workers.

Defense Bonds

Ignace Jan Paderewski, former premier of Poland and pianist of world-wide fame, as he urged all Americans to purchase United States Savings Bonds. His was one of a number of nationwide radio pleas made by nationally known persons volunteering their aid to help the sale of these bonds. Money obtained in this manner is being used to finance the national defense program.

DAKAR:

A Problem

Despite the fact that many papers, especially those with a non-interventionist tinge, were playing up convoys as a leading issue, the Vichy flop to the Nazi standard seemed to bring far more sensational issues than convoys to the public notice.

President Roosevelt immediately, when he learned that Petain had pledged France to a more complete collaboration with Germany, and that this might take a military turn, warned France that this country did not consider this as a friendly attitude, and this was followed up by the announcement by Pan-American republics that they would take over French Guiana and Martinique if there was any danger of their falling under Nazi control.

This attitude was promptly resented by French authorities, and a slight diplomatic interchange followed, apparently for the moment quieting things down, though there were Swiss reports that Ambassador Leahy would be recalled.

Then came the sudden news that the French would give the Nazis the use of their air and naval bases, especially at Dakar. And Dakar, small African port, but of mighty import to the United States and Britain, at once leaped into the center of the spotlight as the major problem.

Dakar was the very hot-off place that President Roosevelt had mentioned in the early days of the war as the probable one that Germany would use if an air invasion of the New world was attempted.

It was a clear call on the part of the President for a fuller realization by the public of the severity of the present menace to the Western hemisphere, yet talk of Dakar and its vital character brought storms of protest from non-interventionists.

The first effect of the Dakar incident was to change vitally the attitude of some "new" non-interventionists, including Senator Reynolds of North Carolina, who had whooped it up against the lease-lend bill, and now was being quoted as "not in favor of going into Dakar, but probably favoring taking over Martinique and French Guiana."

HESS:

Simmering

Hailed as one of the most terrific news stories of all time, the Hess flight to Britain simmered down somewhat when it became known that the German claim that he was flying on a peace mission and had a Messiah-complex was at least partially confirmed by the British.

However, even those who were writing the most hotly anti-British articles admitted that Germany's nose was out of joint, and hinted that a pause in cross-channel activities might be blamed on the Hess flight, and one writer said it was the "worst blow the Nazi government had suffered in its history."

The discovery that Hess had painted toenails and that he was at the very least an odd fish caused the British propagandists to moderate somewhat, and they were treading softly.

But they were teasing Germany in every way they could, and the results were beginning to show; for Berlin admitted that seven radio listeners had been apprehended, and that one had been executed, and all of these cases had occurred after Hess' capture and after the BBC had started 10 German-language broadcasts daily on the subject of Hess.

DIES:

Showdown

Martin Dies, head of the committee investigating un-American activities, announcing he was ready for a showdown on the Communist situation as it affected men and women on government payrolls was threatening an upheaval.

He claimed to have knowledge that his previous report, which earned him an official rebuke from President Roosevelt, resulted in the disbanding of one organization.

Christian Science Services

"Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias mesmerism and hypnotism denounced," is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 1. The Golden Text is: "There is no wisdom nor understanding nor council against the Lord" -Prov. 21:30.

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Be careful for nothing; but in everything, by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God." -Phil 4:10.

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy: "The Christianlike understanding of scientific being and divine healing includes a perfect principle and idea,—perfect God and perfect man—as the basis of thought and demonstration"

INCREASE NEEDED IN DAIRY PRODUCTS

State College, N. M.—The Secretary of Agriculture is asking the dairy cows of the country to step up their production. He states that prospective export needs for dairy products, particularly cheese, evaporated milk and dried skim milk plus increasing consumption demand for dairy products in this country makes it desirable that milk production in the United States be increased 6 to 8 per cent.

With the exception of certain areas where the population has increased rapidly due to defense efforts, most of the increase in production asked for can be obtained by better management, especially heavier feeding, according to E. E. Anderson of the New Mexico Extension Service. However, there are thousands of farm families throughout the nation without milk cows or supplies of milk. It is on these farms where an increase in cow population is needed for more adequate nutrition. Milk is one of the foods that should be consumed in greater quantities if we would make Americans stronger physically.

At the present time the dairy cow population of the nation is very high with considerably more than enough heifers coming on to take care of replacements. The government is supporting prices of dairy products for the next 2 years at an average level equivalent of around 21 cents a pound (Chicago basis) for butter. These several factors point to a continued increase in cow population.

While we are meeting the request of our government for greater production, we must not fail to build up soundly for the future. New white prices are good in the time to build up the quality and efficiency of the dairy herd. When this emergency is over a serious slump in consumption and prices is almost sure to follow. Then it is only the most efficient who will be able to stay in business.
