"Truth" is subject for Sunday. The Golden Text is: "O praise the Lord, all ye nations . . . For His merciful kindness is great toward us: and the truth of the Lord endureth forever." Citation from Bible: "For the word of the Lord is right; and all His works are done in truth." Passage from Christian Science text book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The statement that Truth is real necessarily includes the correlated statement, that error, Truth's unlikeness, is unreal."

Murder under the Northern Lights. How a zealous little band of Eskimos became religious fanatics when they heard about "Wars and Rumors of Wars," and marched out naked into the bitter cold to meet the "End of the World"—and how it was the end of the world for most of them. Don't miss this strange tragedy of the frozen north, graphically illustrated in a double page feature.

A fad that would make Grandma blush. It all started when a Maryland hostess needed a punch bowl and dug a crockery bedroom relic out of the attic. Now, antique dealers can't supply the demand for these intimate items of Americana. Read this amusing and surprising story in the American Weekly magazine with next week's Los Angeles Examiner.

Are Banks Meeting The Country's Credit Needs?

A short while ago the answer to this question was largely guesswork, but now it can be answered by facts. The American Bankers' Association has completed a nationwide survey revealing that 6200 answering commercial banks (48 percent of the country's total) made over 18,500,000 credit extensions involving over 20 billion dollars, in one recent six-month period. Obviously, there is no "bottleneck" in America's financial machinery.

But It's True

For the last 11 years, according to Mr. Tallman, the trout has appeared at exactly the same time. Even when the lake is ice-covered, Mr.
Tallman always knows the fish will be waiting when he hammers through the crust.
The custom of sipping glasses goes back to the days when Roman gladiators would prepare drinks for each other before fighting. They would each supply one glass of wine, and then the contents of the two would be mixed to make sure that if poison had been put in either it would get into both drinks. Through the years the formality has been abandoned, until today the mere touching of containers stands for an exchange of good will.
Mr. Koscovitch went suddenly mad one morning, rushed about the small village in which he lived, killing his friends and neighbors.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

Nazis Claim 'Break Through' Attack Against Soviet Line Is on Schedule; Knox Denies Charge of 'Shooting War' As Debate Continues on U. S. Policy

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

SENATOR WHEELER
From him—a charge.
(See Below: ICELAND—and Base.)

SECRETARY KNOX
From him—a denial.

ICELAND:
And Bases

The occupation of Iceland by U. S. troops and sailors still was an issue of highest import in Washington, and Secretary Knox found himself much in the center of investigation and censure, as well as the recipient of considerable approval, depending on what quarter one turned to.

A hitherto almost silent cabinet member, Postmaster General Walker, journeyed all the way to Butte, Mont. right into Senator Wheeler's balliwick to deliver a radio address sharply criticizing the stand of the non-interventionists, of which Wheeler was a forefront leader.

Walker declared that Wheeler and his associates among the isolationists were "talking Hitler's language."

Meantime Secretary Stimson was preparing to launch the congressional campaign in favor of the Reynolds bill to amend the selective service provision restricting the service of the army to the Western hemisphere, and there were indications that the length of service change proposed also was going to meet a hard fight.

Some of the selective service officials themselves were being quoted as saying that they felt a lengthening of the training period of draftees would be a "breach of faith."

Then came Wheeler's charge that the navy already had done some "shooting" on the high seas, and following the session of Secretary Knox before the naval affairs committee there were published, but unverified reports on both sides of the picture.

Some senators, it was said, told friends that it had been admitted that some naval vessels had "dropped depth charges," while other senators said that Secretary Knox and Admiral Stark had made a categorical denial of the whole matter. Then Senator Taft stepped into the picture, saying that he had information from sources he considered well informed that the United States was already creating bases in Northern Ireland and Scotland.

There were denials and partial confirmation of this, one story purporting to reveal that American citizens were being paid $30 a week and subsistence by the British for working on some sort of a base in Northern Ireland.

This work, however, was not identified positively as the creation of an air, army or naval base.

The whole picture was further confused when Britain announced that instead of leaving Iceland now that Americans were on the ground, as the original plan had been, the British tonies would stay.

This brought further repercussions in Washington, some holding that it would be a menace to our marines if they were on the same island with British soldiers, as the Nazis, bombing the British, might kill marines at the same time.

NAZIS:
Renew Drive

The resistance of the Russians to the fiery Nazi invasion continued to claim chief interest in the news, with the issue still considerably in doubt from a long-range viewpoint, though the Germans, having renewed their blitz technique after a considerable lull, were making important gains.

Competent observers still felt the final issue was whether the Reds could stand the loss of their principal cities and most vital territories on the fighting front, and continue to move backward, force the enemy to spread out, and absorb his power in their country's vastness.

Berlin claimed important breaches of the Stalin line at least four points, one near Leningrad; two in the central portion of the line and one at the south. In addition, asserted the German communiques, which resumed something of the authoritative note that they had assumed during the Greek and Cretan campaigns, the Russians' defense on the northern sector was generally broken, and the fall of Leningrad was deemed a certainty.

As to Kiev, the Nazi forces were on the threshold of that important Ukrainian city, and while Moscow was still far distant from the Nazi attack, the Germans claimed the capture of Vitebsk, also its occupation, and this brought the invaders' line close to Smolensk, generally regarded as the gateway to Moscow.

What observers wondered chiefly was how much the recent stalling of the German attack had been caused by Russian resistance and how much by the difficulty of long advances over the terrain and the roads the invaders were traversing.

The Russian reports were filled with stories of immense German losses, and these had been partially, at least, verified from such points as Stockholm and Berne.

It was true that the stalling of the Blitzkrieg and the assumption of the offensive by the Russian forces had been caused by determined Red resistance, then there was reason to think that it might be accomplished again.

The Russian reports spoke of reinforcements in astronomical figures, one stating that 8,000,000 men were "moving to the front." Few believed that Germany was equipped to handle 8,000,000 prisoners, let alone defeat that number of soldiers—but then there was considerable doubt whether the Reds actually had anything like that number of men in the field.

But if even a considerable part of such an army was maneuvering into a position of resistance, observers felt it was still too early to predict a certain and smashing German victory.

SYRIA:
Points 4, 5, 6

It was almost coincidental with the halting of hostilities in Syria that the press received any intimation what the British terms would be. There were some 10 points in the British demand, and of these Numbers 4, 5 and 6 were apparently most objectionable to Vichy.

It was quite obvious what Britain was after in these points, which had to do with the handling of both native and French residents who had borne arms in the campaign.

Now these points specified, in one particular, that under the terms of the peace all such persons were to be given their choice of joining with the Free French or going back to France, in the case of French citizens, or, in case of natives, joining with the Free French or being disarmed.

There was another point with regard to the French navy in Syrian waters, ordering that this be surrendered; but the French "beat the gun" on this item, all the French naval vessels, 23 of them, fleeing to the harbor of Alexandretta, under the Turkish flag, where they were promptly interned.

British Trophy

Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the U. S., and Lady Halifax, are shown inspecting a captured German Messerschmitt fighting plane which has been placed on exhibition in Washington, D. C. The exhibition is for the benefit of the "Bundles for Britain" fund. The plane is one shot down over England during a night raid.

Navy Recruits Get Thorough Training

America's "first line of defense," the navy, takes very seriously to the business of training its men. In the above photo at right naval recruits at Great Lakes Naval Training station practice landing charge with fixed bayonets. At left, simulating conditions on the superstructure of a battleship, these advance course signal corps members go through paces clinging to a steel tower at the training station.

And Ecuador

Despite the fact that the century-old border dispute between Peru and Ecuador flared into shooting violence again even as the countries were accepting mediation offers from the United States, Brazil and Argentina, it was generally believed that the squabble would finally be submitted to arbitration.

Official dispatches from Quito seemed to show that the Ecuadorians were willing to arbitrate the difference, which covers a considerable area of land, most of it wild and undeveloped by nationals of either nation.

Word came from Buenos Aires that Peru also was willing to have the subject mediated, and Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state during an illness of Secretary Hull, suggested that in the interim both countries move their armed forces to a distance of 15 miles from the border, putting twice that distance between them.

YOO-HOO:
And Army Life

This matter of soldiers "yoo-hooing" at girls in shorts on a golf course near Memphis, for which they had to march on foot 15 miles in punishment was becoming an army joke throughout the nation.

Soldiers in one camp judged a fashion show, cheered the models to the echo, and selected their favorite daytime and evening gowns; and in another camp the soldiers challenged the punished troops to a 15-mile competitive hike just to show that they could "take it" too.

Most amusing incident, however, occurred at Olympia, Wash., where a hiking outfit, traveling past some admiring young women, tied "mash notes" to stones and tossed them among the girls. And one of them read:

"Dear Miss: How lovely you are! Won't you write to this lonely soldier? Help the National Defense! P. S.—Don't tell General Lear."

MURDER:
Number One

Bermuda was shocked by its first murder mystery in the history of the islands.

The victim was a woman, member of the board of censors of the city of Hamilton.

Rewards totaling close to $5,000 were offered. The island government asked the aid of the FBI. They wanted bloodhounds, lie detectors, other scientific crime-tracking data and material.

The United States complied in one request,—sending G-men there by plane to aid in the hunt for the slayer.

R. A. F.:
And Planes

Perhaps the most serious controversy in common over the R. A. F. occurred when, at the height of the heaviest bombing campaign undertaken by the British, the question was raised as to whether all was well with the plane supply.

The disappearance of Beaverbrook from the scene of plane production had been followed by serious criticism, and one critic declared that England had many warehouses full of crated American planes, unusable because somebody had omitted to purchase necessary accessories.

The new chief of aircraft production for Britain promised to remedy the "confusion" which had existed, but had little that he could answer to accusations from members of parliament, two of whom had actually fought through the Greek and Cretan campaigns, that British had sadly bungled in getting airplanes into the proper spots where they could have been used, perhaps, to have turned defeat into victory.

The new production head said that "steps were being perfected" to have all American bombers flown to Iceland in fighting condition.

Look Again . . . You May Be Seeing Double

You'd better give this picture the twice over. It shows a few of the many twins which gathered in Chicago for the International Twin convention. Twins of all ages, from all sections of the country, were in attendance.

New Type Military X-Ray Unit

Latest type of field military X-ray unit is demonstrated in New York before being shipped to Free French forces in West Africa. It provides for speedy X-ray diagnosis close to scene of battle. Operating on a self-sustaining basis the trailer unit provides its own power.

Twin Flags

A British flag is shown atop the flagpole which flies the ensign of the royal navy and the Stars and Stripes over the Townsend, Mass., CCC camp, where 200 British sailors are vacationing.

Carrying Air War to Germans

Ground-crew men of the British R. A. F. are shown loading some of their new super-bombs into the racks of a giant long-range bomber before the take-off for a raid on German-held territory on the continent. While the Nazis busied themselves with Russia in the East, Britain claimed air supremacy in the West.

Southward Ho!

Fabulous riches of the ancient Inca is the magnet drawing noted Arctic Explorer Lincoln Ellsworth southward. He and wife are shown leaving for Peru expedition.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the news

Berlin: Columbia Broadcasting System resumed its broadcasts from Berlin, although the Nazi government was told there would be no change in the CBS policy. Germans had halted the broadcasts in protest over the way Elmer Davis had commented on an interview over the air with P. G. Wodehouse, British author interned and then released to do broadcasting.

Washington: Fifty-two D. C. motorists were arrested, charged with having "smoky" exhausts on their cars. It was the opening gun in a campaign by Secretary Ickes, controller of the oil situation, to conserve gasoline. In the national capital motorists were told that they must have their cars adjusted, or their licenses would be suspended as an enforcement measure.

A STORY TEEMING WITH ACTION

Two cowpunchers, Calhoun Terry and Jeff Brand, are in love with Ellen Carey. This, alone, would cause complications enough, but a cattle war is on, and Jeff is suspected of being a traitor.

There is many a tense situation before this tangled romance of the cattle lands is finally straightened out. If you like the staccato of galloping hoofs, the swift gunplay of the Old West, then this story is made to order for you. Read it now—
