WAR and LOVE in the CATTLE LANDS

● A rustler is killed by someone unknown—shot in the back! This is the beginning of a cattle war in the Buck River country—a war which required U. S. troops to stop.

But before the troops arrived, events piled upon each other with dramatic swiftness, and it began to look as though Calhoun Terry, manager of the Diamond Reverse B Ranch, was slated to go.

However, he lived through all the shooting to marry Ellen Carey, daughter of the postmaster—Ellen Carey, who had so seriously misunderstood him!

Riders of Buck River is a story that will keep you guessing. Be sure to read it.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

Greer Incident Is Believed Nazi Test Of American Foreign Policy Position; Japanese Paper Sees Defeat for Germans; General Winter Nears Eastern Front

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

One Was Attacked; One Sailed Safely

Almost at the same time that a Nazi sub attacked the U.S.S. Greer near Iceland, the safe arrival at Vladivostok was announced of the 5,420-ton American oil tanker, Associated.

GREER: A Test by Nazis

The encounter of the U. S. Destroyer Greer 200 miles northwest of Iceland with a German submarine turned out to be an incident of the utmost importance in defining America's position in the world war.

It was not so much the nature of the battle, but the wording of the German announcement concerning it that increased its significance to Americans.

For the Nazis had merely admitted that it was a German submarine which was involved. They placed the blame squarely on President Roosevelt, not only because of the President's general foreign policy, but because they charged that Mr. Roosevelt had given general orders for the American navy to start shooting.

The Germans asserted that the Greer was the aggressor in the fight, had not merely contacted itself with an uncertain position of the submarine, but had begun the shooting, and that the German craft had defended itself without being in a position to know the nationality of the U. S. craft.

The President took the attitude that the Greer was a proper U. S. business on the high seas, that he saw no reason to consider a German blockade zone as having any effect on the freedom of the seas for American vessels.

In many quarters it was believed that the prime purpose of the U. S. attack on the Greer had been to create an incident which would test the strength of the President's foreign policy, and perhaps create a national temper to have American troops withdrawn from Iceland, and the naval vessels ordered to keep out of the eastern parts of the Atlantic.

Perhaps, if the Germans had said "We are sorry, but the torpedoes were launched from a considerable distance, and we had thought the Greer was a British destroyer," the furor over the incident would have died in a day or two.

No bones were broken or armor plate dent. But the Germans decided instead to charge Mr. Roosevelt with having ordered the American ship to attack the U-boat, and the reaction, as far as could be seen, was quite the reverse of what the Germans had planned and hoped for.

One congressman said "I'd believe Roosevelt against Hitler any day in the week." And that about summed up the general public reaction. Most interesting was the excitement of certain super-isolationists, who immediately, following the encounter, had said that the Greer was attacked by a British submarine in a gigantic plot to get the United States into the war.

The acceptance by Germany of the submarine's identity deflated these arguments abruptly.

BRIEFS

GLASGOW: Four American pilots joining the British air forces were drowned and seven survived the torpedoing of the vessel on which they were crossing from Canada.

JAPAN: Sees Defeat?

Arrival of a second tanker-load of oil at Vladivostok, without Japanese interference was accompanied both by a stiffening of the British-American attitude toward Japan and a sensational article in Japan News-Week practically predicting a Nazi defeat in this, the third year of the war.

No attempt was made to suppress the publication in a paper which often reflects the views of high government circles.

At the same time a national newspaper poll disclosed that Americans had voted 70 per cent in favor of a curbing of Japan even at the cost of war.

Japan's News-Week said: "The situation ushering in the third year of war is such that although it does not indicate that the Nazis and their ill founded plans have been defeated, it does mean that by the end of the third year the finish of the horrible carnage should be within the grasp of the Allies.

"However, well Hitler may have thought he planned his march to world domination, it is now quite apparent that even he is fallible."

Regardless of the official or unofficial character of the publication, observers saw in the permission to circulate this article a powerful sign of a milder Japanese viewpoint toward the world situation, and a doubt in thinking circles as to the wisdom of the Axis tie-up for Japan, an affinity which the United States and Britain were doing all in their power to break down.

LENINGRAD: Defense of City

Despite conflicting reports about the status of the battle for Leningrad, it was evident that the defense of the city already had started, and that once again the Russians were surprising the world with the tenacity of their resistance, and their willingness to make huge sacrifices for eventual victory.

Early in the German invasion of Russia it had been stated that if the Russians were willing to make the necessary sacrifices, and were willing to fight on even though forced into retreat that might cost them Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev, the Germans would find them as tough a nut to crack as the Japanese had found the Chinese.

France had the same opportunity, but had failed. Would the Russians really fight.

The answer to that question already had been written in the history of 2 1/2 months of warfare on the eastern front, and the Russian defense of their homeland was challenging the admiration of skeptical England and even more skeptical America.

The end of September was going to bring the end of favorable blitz weather for the Germans, and most military observers believed the Nazi army was in for a tough winter in Russia.

Claims were still conflicting, but the admission by the Germans of upwards of 1,500,000 casualties on their own side spoke volumes for the real character of the Russian defense.

The Finns were claiming "confusion" in Leningrad and the "city in flames," while Moscow reported the defense intact, and counterattacks on the borders of the city succeeding. The German communiques claimed only that her longer-range guns had found the city's industrial plants, but told of severe resistance "by men, women and children."

Round Leningrad

The map shows the area in which the battle of Leningrad was bitterly fought. (a) Schluesselburg, 25 miles from Leningrad; (b) Kronstadt, Soviet naval base and fortress; (c) Jerizhki, which witnessed some of the grimmest fighting.

CRUISERS: Pair Take Water

At Kearny, N. J., and at Quincy, Mass., two more cruisers took the water to add strength to America's two-ocean navy, and a third's keel was laid the same day at Philadelphia.

The Kearny ship, a 6,000-ton speedster, was reported to have a speed of 43 knots, equal to the fastest destroyer. Many secret features give her this speed, it was said. The other vessel, the San Juan, launched at Quincy, was of similar characteristics, but all information about her in detail was withheld.

The launchings brought the total of ships far past the 330 figure on August 1, which did not include the new battleships North Carolina and Washington, floating but not yet in actual service, also many smaller craft.

The fleet actually in service included 15 battleships, 6 aircraft carriers, 37 cruisers, 108 destroyers, 112 submarines.

FORTRESS: Plane of the Hour

Although there are only a few "fortress bombers" in Britain taking part in the air blitz of Germany and occupied points, the work they were doing was bringing much commendation that many styled them "America's outstanding contribution to warfare."

There was little mystery about the new ships, for they were simply a translating of the "stratoliner" into a warplane.

And the United States, recognizing the favorable reaction to this air weapon in actual use, immediately implemented it by giving a $337,000,000 order to Boeing and designating two other factories to make them in volume, giving Douglas a $2,700,000 contract for a few, and ordering the Vega factory to get ready to put them out on a basis of interchangeable parts with those made by Boeing and Douglas.

What the Fortress plane, as Britain called them, could do was being demonstrated almost daily in warfare. The usual communique was that a bombing had been carried out, and "all our planes returned." A jaunt from Britain to Berlin was just a short hop for these planes, carrying a huge load of bombs and moving high above accurate anti-aircraft fire, often not seen or heard until their explosives started hitting the ground.

Yet at least one had returned partially damaged after an encounter with seven Nazi fighter planes, which were forced to attack it from down under. The usual technique of fighting a bomber is to swoop on its tail from above.

The planes are four-motored, of excessively high speed, capable of flight, fully loaded, at 40,000 feet altitude, carry a big crew, heavy armament, and a tremendous load of large-caliber bombs.

It is known that a navy plane of similar proportions is soon to be launched and tested in this country. It is even larger than the Fortress bombers.

PLOT: To Fuel U-Boats

Baltimore, a port-of-call for the German submarine Deutschland during the last war, got a thrill out of the revelation that a Portuguese freighter, the Mello, was seized at Norfolk, Va., after loading in the Maryland city a cargo of 1,000 gallons of lubricating oil, believed destined for German submarines at sea.

The Mello put into Norfolk, and during a routine customs examination, the supply of lubricating oil, which the ship was not licensed to carry, was found, and it was listed simply as "stores."

The U. S. attorney at Baltimore issued a warrant for the arrest of the captain, J. C. Martins. He was charged with violating two presidential proclamations which listed certain items which could not be exported without license.

A customs investigator said: "We believe this sort of thing—you might call it a racket—has been going on for some time." He explained that with 75 ships loading at once, and only 25 customs investigators to examine them, many vessels are "getting away" with large quantities of unlicensed material.

World's Biggest Locomotive Takes to Rails To Head U. S. Mission

"Big Boy" the largest and most powerful locomotive ever built. It was constructed by the American Locomotive company for the Union Pacific, to handle increased traffic resulting from defense orders. It is 132 feet long. In inset is shown the Seminole, built 75 years ago for the Union Pacific, whose total size was about equal to the tender of "Big Boy."

W. Averell Harriman will head the U. S. Mission to the joint conference at Moscow with Soviet and British authorities, looking to a co-ordination of greater resistance to the German threat. Picture shows Harriman at White House after conferring with the President and Harry Hopkins.

Captain Mountbatten Inspects His Crew

Capt. Lord Louis Mountbatten, left, and Capt. G. Seymour Taak, center, inspect the crew of the aircraft carrier, H.M.S. Illustrious, shortly after Captain Mountbatten took command of the ship in an American shipyard. The Illustrious is the ship that was "sunk" many times.

Old Custom
Some sweethearts in Rio de Janeiro follow the old custom that the man in the case must not enter his sweetheart's house until they are engaged. Up to that happy time they must conduct their courtship at a suitable distance from each other, usually talking over the garden hedge, or three feet from it on one side, and three feet away on the other.
