A. L. Burke

"The Rose of Sharon"

As the newspapers, radio and even to the general run of conversation these days are mostly about war, pestilence and heart-breaking episodes of what is happening in the old World, brings to mind the sad story of the case of James Pendleton, who lived in a humble farm home near Jersey City. When the first World War came on, James was drafted. Being the sole support of his widowed mother, she requested that he be kept at home on that account, but the request went unheeded. James loved his mother with the implicit fondness of a little child, but he was patriotic and wanted to do his part and he did.

At their last parting and after weeping on his shoulder, the loving mother brought him a pocket Testament and a brilliant rose, saying: "Darling, I am giving you this Testament and in it, I am placing this Rose of Sharon, spoken of in the Bible. Keep it tightly as I have sealed it until you land on a foreign shore. By that time, it will be pressed enough so that you will not disturb it when you read, which I trust you will."

He kept it on an inside pocket of his uniform near his heart, not opening it until he crossed overseas. Every evening, while other boys were seeking pleasure in other channels, James would spend a part of his time in opening the Testament and reading a chapter before retiring. Time went on and James shared his portion of duty with the other boys. His resolute manner and calmness on the field of battle, won him the admiration of his mates in the service in which there was never a mark of discredit.

At last, in one of the battles somewhere in France, James Pendleton was numbered among the slain. In removing his uniform, tender hands unbuttoned the pocket and removed the little Testament and, turning the leaves, watchers beheld the Rose of Sharon, which had never been removed from between the pages where it was inserted by that loving mother's hands. On one of the pages, these words were underscored: "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

D. B. Tennis, formerly of this place, but now of Long Beach, Calif., spent the week here, visiting old friends. Mr. Tennis is a carpenter and was a master mechanic in his line before his retirement. He erected many residences here during his stay in Carrizozo. While on his trip, he visited his old home in Tennessee and saw a sister whom he had not seen for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Troth and daughter Darlene of Montrose, Iowa, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hall of Malcolm, Iowa, will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Kerr and son Bill for a week-end.

Arnold Farris and Doble Blenkenship were here from Alamogordo last Sunday.

AUXILIARY NOTES

The regular monthly meeting was held at Community Center last Saturday. The members served dinner to the Legion at seven o'clock.

The business meeting thereafter consisted in the reports of various committees. The Benj. I. Berry Post No. 11 Unit of the Legion and Auxiliary were the first in the state to submit the quota of members to the state headquarters.

Reports were made on various donations by the Auxiliary to the music department of the High School and to needy families during the recent flood in Ruidoso.

After a general discussion of various activities, the meeting adjourned. All meetings in the future will be held at the Community Center.

On October 9, Mrs. Dewey Stokes held a tea in honor of Mrs. Roy L. Cook, Past National Vice-Pres., Western Division. The Auxiliary ladies attended and spent an enjoyable afternoon with Mrs. Cook, discussing problems pertinent to the work of the Legion and Auxiliary.

Edith McKinlay,
Publicity Chairman.

Capitan Firemen's Dance
Saturday, Nov. 1

Justice of the Peace P. E. Christiansen, the Fire Chief and Mrs. Joe Wigley of Capitan were here Wednesday in the interest of another big dance to be given by the Capitan Firemen Saturday, Nov. 1 at the Capitan Grade School Gym. The Capitan Firemen have earned a merited reputation on their dances; anyone who attended one is anxious to attend another. A good time is always assured to their patrons.

Mr. and Mrs. Seldon Burks of Capitan were here yesterday.

SCHOOL NEWS

Grade teachers issued grade cards Wednesday. In high school cards are issued by class sponsors as follows: Freshmen, Mr. Brewster; Sophs, Miss Cavener; Juniors, Miss Collins; Seniors, Mr. Martinez.

Parents are invited to visit the school. The students' work would greatly improve by the co-operation of both parents and teachers in planning the work.

Minnie Pino, a popular sophomore, is seriously ill at Ft. Stanton. We hope for her speedy recovery and return to school.

School will be dismissed for the State Educational Association. Miss Collins represents the classroom teachers of Carrizozo.

Sister Mary Pauline and her first grade pupils of the St. Rita School presented a program Monday, commemorating the coming of Columbus to America.

The All-School Carnival is taking definite form and will be held Nov. 30. The committees are securing the finest of goods for the event.

Our Music Dept. was called upon Wednesday evening by the Business Men's Club, and this afternoon by the Woman's Club.

CAPITAN AUXILIARY

The American Legion Auxiliary of James W. Hipp Post No. 57 met Thursday for their regular monthly luncheon with Mrs. T. Laramie of Lincoln.

14 members were present, among whom were our Gold Star mother, Lucy Hipp and the Legion baby, Jane Cozzens.

A delicious luncheon was served first, each number bringing a covered dish, after which business of the organization was in order. The afternoon was spent in sewing of Red Cross garments.

A supper will be served at our next meeting at the Community House, Fort Stanton, Wednesday, Nov. 5, at 6:30 p. m. A small charge will be made for this supper, proceeds of which will be used to help fill Christmas baskets for needy families.

The Auxiliary aims to aid all those less fortunate in the community and especially families of Veterans.

—Ethel L. Howard,
Publicity Chairman.

Our stockmen are beginning to ship cattle to eastern markets at a fairly good price.

Conductor Ralph M. Jones of Tucumcari was here yesterday on his regular run.

Mr. and Mrs. George Goodson of Ancho were visitors in town yesterday.

Eddie Long, popular salesman, representing the Titaworth Co. of Capitan, called on local retail merchants this Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Helms and son Arthur of their ranch across the Malpais were here Saturday.

Business Men's Club

The Club entertained the teachers of the Carrizozo schools Wednesday evening at the S. P. Hotel. The roll call found 18 members present and 25 visitors, all of whom were teachers with the exception of Daniel Brenton, who was the guest of A. L. Burke. G. T. McQuillen was toastmaster. John E. Hall made the welcoming address and Mrs. Ella Cayon made the response for the teachers. The meeting opened with the singing of "America," led by Clyde Brewster with Miss Lou Collins at the piano. After club members presented their guests, a quartet of school girls, Jerry Dixon, Dorothy Hoffman, Elizabeth Jordan and Dorothy Ferguson, sang "School Days" and "Little Red School House," with Mrs. T. E. Kelley at the piano. The singers were arrayed in pink costumes with cute little pink sunbonnets. That number was followed by a trio of singers, Joy Kimbrell, Bristina Vigil and Mary Vidaurri, bringing the popular "Maria Elena" and "Las Chapanecas," with Miss Collins at the piano. The singers were clad in Spanish costumes.

Taking the singers collectively, they were very good and performed their parts with excellent ability and expression. Much credit is due the committee, Messrs. McQuillen, Smoot and Vidaurri, for the success of the evening's entertainment. Much credit is due Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Dodge for splendid service and table decorations.

Report on Highway 54

According to press reports, 54 has been included in the state program for grading and drainage of 33 miles, between Carrizozo and Tularosa at a cost of $400,000. Highway Engineer B. Dwyre said that bridge construction where much steel is required, would probably be curtailed. Under a proposed distribution of $213,600,000 by the F. R. A., as announced Monday, this state would receive $3,600,000 for strategic roads projects. The government would provide approximately 90 percent of the cost in states where public lands still exist.

This is the time to act if we are to get our share of that sum for the improvement of 54. All civic organizations should contact the proper officials or write letters stressing the advantage of 54 as a strategic access road.

Dr. R. E. Blaney.

Chief Clerk of the Quartermaster's Corps Jack Harkey of Ft. Bliss spent the week-end here visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Harkey, Mr. and Mrs. Fay Harkey and other relatives and friends here.

Star Dust

By VIRGINIA VALE

Wendy Barrer and George Sanders were sort of rocked back on their heels recently on the set of RKO's "A Date With the Falcon." They were introduced to Michele Morgan; the French actress who makes her screen debut here in "Joan of Paris," and promptly acknowledged the introduction in fluent French. Then they went on from there. But Miss Morgan shut up like a clam; not even a "Gee, out" did she utter. Finally, when they'd about decided that their French was all wrong, she explained that she was trying so hard to be completely American that she wasn't even thinking in French!

John Boles is returning to the screen in Monogram's "Boy of Mine." Remember John? He used to be one of the screen's most popular singing stars. He's been doing concert tours and sort of resting on his laurels, during his vacation from the screen.

Robert Preston, who recently was chosen by vote of the nation's exhibitors as one of the top leading men in pictures (and that's the kind of selector that counts in Hollywood) has been named by Paramount as the third member of the co-starring triumvirate of "This Gun for Hire." The other two stars are Veronica Lake and we're told that she'll change her hair do and Alan Ladd Ladd to a young character actor, of whom not much has been heard as yet. He won the role with a remarkable screen test.

Movie goers will get their first glimpse of the technique of the underground revolt against Hitler, now spreading through Europe, in the newest March of Time film, "Norway to Revolt." It also includes scenes of combined Norwegian and British naval raids on the coast of Norway which resulted in the destruction of valuable Nazi war supplies.

Bette Davis is "The Most Regular Star" on the Warner Bros. lot, according to a poll conducted by the studio's 22 police officers. The honor was awarded because of her thoughtfulness, cheerfulness and her being, in general, "a regular guy."

Those who have forgotten that Bob Hope started his theatrical career as one half of the heading team of Hope and Byrne are going to be surprised when they see his song-and-dance version of the Irving Berlin number, "You Can't Brush Me Off." Paramount's "Louisiana Purchase" does a dance routine with a colored kid band and quartet that almost make Rochester look to his laurels.

Did you know that Mickey Mouse was 19 years old the other day? Walt Disney named him Mortimer Mouse, but Mrs. Disney suggested the change to Mickey. He made his debut in the cartoon comedy, "Steamboat Willie," and was an instant success.

Everyone who enjoyed those radio presentations of outstanding pictures is delighted now that the Playhouse is back on the air. Dramatized versions of successful pictures are heard Monday through Friday in quarter-hour episodes. The cast is headed by Virginia Field, and includes Donald Briggs, who has appeared in many of the Dr. Kildare and Andy Hardy pictures.

ODDS AND ENDS: When she was in New York recently Joan Fontaine drove her car slightly mad by moving on downing fishing trips instead of London and pictures. Joe E. Brown has recovered from his latest accident in that automobile accident and has checked in at Columbia for "Country Joe." ... The New York World is coming right along; the general franchise issue is being handled with a "Radio News" ... and about that is doing all right too; Warner Bros. give a new contract and plan to give her a "Blonde Bombshell." ... Barney Google and Andy Hardy will see from the beach within two corners of Monogram pictures.

Soviet Economy Geared for War

Rich Territory Is Lost, but Provision Already Had Been Made for That

MOSCOW.—Faced with the prospect of a long and bitter war, the economic system of the Soviet Union is now busily adjusting itself to the conditions resulting from the German invasion and the initial German successes, including the conquest of certain extremely rich areas like White Russia and the Southern and Western Ukraine.

For many years the Soviet government has been preparing for the eventualities of war by building up in the Urals new centers of industry, based on such relatively new cities as Sverdlovsk or Magnitogorsk. Recently it was announced that considerable plant equipment from the steel manufacturing center of Dnepropetrovsk, which was captured by the Nazis, had been salvaged and moved eastward across the Dnieper dam road before the dam was blown up.

See Supply Ahead. It is in this basis for continued manufacturing that is expected to supply Russia during the anticipated prolonged struggle. It is hoped that Anglo-American aid will counterbalance the initial losses to the German offensive.

Of especial importance is the gathering of a harvest sufficient to feed the army and the rest of the population during the severe Russian winter. The Soviet is fortunate this season in having unusually good crops in certain large producing areas unaffected by the conflict so far. The increasingly cultivated Siberian regions, North Caucasus and Central Russia all benefited from better-than-average weather, and collective farmers are being urged on to a military tempo in harvesting to build up large reserves.

One of the most interesting features of the crop situation is the problem confronting farmers just behind the active fighting front. The press prints a dispatch from a region near Smolensk that was occupied by the Germans but from which they have been ousted. Russian peasants there now are gathering grain, the dispatch stated.

Crops Ahead of Last Year. An official preliminary grain crop survey says that as a result of the "military tempo" introduced in most regions the harvest is between 10 and 16 per cent ahead of last year's. Especially good results have been noted, it is said, in the Tashkent, Crimea, Kazakhstan, Krassnodar and Tambov regions and in the North Caucasus, where, as the writer was able to witness a month ago, the outlook is extremely favorable. Even the usually dry Chkalov area in the Southern Urals has a good crop.

Other crops also are reported to be exceptional this summer—flax in the Moscow region, tea in Georgia, cotton in Southern Kazakhstan, and sugar beets in Voronezh. The Donbas grain elevators are filling up and the Kharkov harvest now is being threshed with trains moving daily toward state granaries.

Civilian Deaths Highest in Belgian Battle Toll

VICHY, FRANCE.—The civilian population of Belgium suffered greater casualties in the 18-day battle on her territory in May, 1940, than her armies, according to official figures issued in Brussels.

There were 10,000 civilians killed while the number of military dead was 7,500, according to the figures. Soldiers wounded numbered 18,533 and approximately 300,000 were taken prisoner, of which 153,000 have since been released.

A million and a half Belgian citizens took temporary refuge in France, most of whom have now been repatriated. Among those who fled overseas, 23,000 went to Britain and 5,000 to French Morocco, Portugal and the United States.

Pie Plates Subdue Bees, Help Defense Workers

WILMINGTON, ILL.—Construction work proceeding on schedule at the government's Kankakee ordnance works thanks to W. E. Driscoll and his pie plates. Driscoll defends the defense workers—from bees.

When the government acquired the plant site, departing farmers left their bees behind. Bees react to the clutter of pie pans like farm hands respond to the dinner bell, but they also respond to the din of air handlers and automatic riveters. When they come, Driscoll wearing mask and gloves beats his pie pans. Once he gets the queen in the hive he has the whole swarm.

London Assumes Control Over British Railways

LONDON.—The British government has taken over full control of British railways.

Direction of Britain's four main-line railways and London's vast system of subways, buses and trolley cars are placed under the management of the London transport board. The first big railway are the Great Western, London Midland and Southern, London and North Western and the Southern.

Camp Cavalade

SHADOWY figures in a cavalcade of American history—such are the men behind the armies of the great army cantonments scattered all over the United States, where young Americans are learning to be soldiers in order to defend their country when the need arises.

Camp Toombs, near Toccoa, Ga., is named for one of the most remarkable men ever produced by that state—Robert Toombs (1810-1885), soldier and statesman. His first military experience was as a captain of volunteers against the Alabama Indians in the 30s, followed by a political career that took him to the United States senate from which he was expelled in 1861 because of his advocacy of secession. He could have been president of the new Confederate States of America, but he declined that honor, just as he had declined the offer of cabinet offices under President Taylor and Fillmore. He did consent to serve briefly as secretary of state under President Jefferson Davis, then was commissioned a brigadier-general in the Confederate army in which he served throughout the war. At the close of the conflict he fled to Cuba, lived for a time in England, France and Canada before returning to the United States. His last years were spent near his birthplace, Washington, Ga.

Not long after David Sloan Stanley (1828-1902), a native of Ohio, was graduated from West Point, he was sent to the Western Plains as a lieutenant of dragoons and started on the career which made him one of the best-known Indian fighters of his day. But before that, there were four years of service in the Union army during which he rose from captain to major-general, and rendered conspicuous service at the battles of New Madrid, Island No. 10, Corinth, Iuka, Jonesboro, Nashville, Spring Hill, Stone River, Resaca, Ruffs Station and Franklin, where he was desperately wounded but refused to leave the field until the battle was won. After the war, he served against the Indians in the Dakotas, led the famous Yellowstone expedition of 1873, fought the redskins in Kansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and brought peace to the Texas frontier by suppressing Indian raids in the Lone Star state. That's why he is remembered gratefully in Texas and why the camp near Leon Springs bears his name.

Robert Toombs

D. S. Stanley

The name of another great cavalry leader is preserved in the name of Camp Wheeler, near Franklinton, Ga. It honors the memory of Joseph T. Wheeler (1836-1906) the "Georgia gamecock" who was assigned to the dragoons immediately after his graduation from West Point in 1859. When he entered the Confederate army he was first made colonel of an infantry regiment and commanded a brigade at the Battle of Shiloh. But the next year he was transferred to the cavalry and from that time on he was one of the South's most daring and successful raiders. After the death of "Jeb" Stuart in 1864, he was the senior cavalry general of the Confederate armies and rose to the rank of lieutenant-general. After the war, he studied law and was repeatedly elected to congress. At the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, "Fighting Joe" was again in the saddle as a general of cavalry sent to Cuba to fight the Spaniards.

Camp Haan near Riverside, Calif., is also named for a veteran of the Cuban and Philippine campaigns—Brig. Gen. William George Haan, a native of Indiana and a West Point graduate in the class of 1869, who was three times recommended for brevets for "conspicuous conduct in action" from 1866 to 1901.

Clara May Olney, Southern gal who made good in the big city, gives the secret of being a charming hostess in one lesson—simply the old adage of a soft answer turning away wrath. British Women Will Man Barrage Balloons

LONDON.—Thousands of women will be assigned shortly to barrage balloon duties, thus releasing additional manpower for the R. A. F. Experiments have proved, it was said, that women are as capable as men in handling the big balloons, which are used chiefly as a defense against dive bombing.

Farm Notes

Milk cows on farms in the U. S. increased nearly three per cent between 1940 and 1941. One hen normally will eat about 80 pounds of feed a year, of which approximately one-half should be mash and one-half grain, in order to obtain best results. An inexpensive and efficient home-garaging machine for small dairies, operated by a quarter-horse-power motor and weighing only 137 pounds, is now on the market. The 1941 United States lamb crop probably is the largest on record. The 1941 U. S. hay crop of 94,000,000 tons is expected to be the largest harvested since 1937 and the third largest produced in the last 30 years. July 1 estimates on corn in the United States indicate a harvest of 2,245,700,000 bushels, which will be 4 per cent more than the 1940 crop and 16 per cent above the average crop in the period 1934-39.

British Women Will Man Barrage Balloons

LONDON.—Thousands of women will be assigned shortly to barrage balloon duties, thus releasing additional manpower for the R. A. F. Experiments have proved, it was said, that women are as capable as men in handling the big balloons, which are used chiefly as a defense against dive bombing.

FARM TOPICS

SWEET POTATO HARVEST TIME

Growers Cheat Jack Frost' By Digging Quickly.

By LEWIS F. WATSON

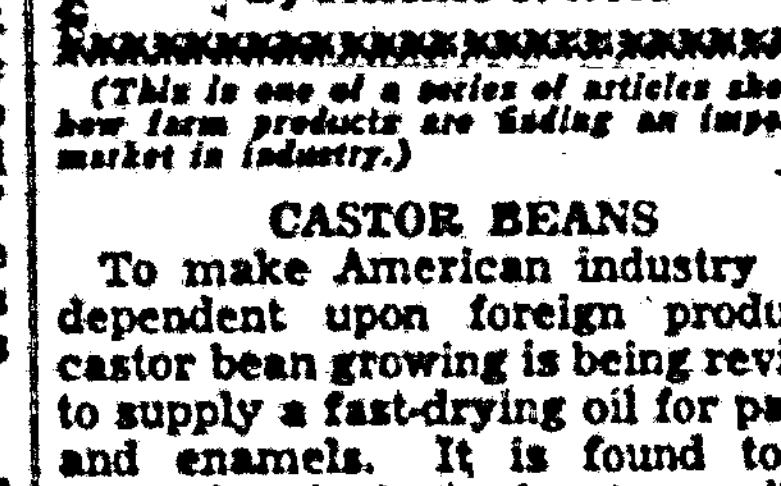

Shortening days and cooler nights herald the arrival of fall and harvest time for sweet potatoes, one staple in the diet of many farm people. Potatoes keep best when they are allowed to mature before harvesting and before frost kills the vines. If the vines are killed by frost, they should be removed immediately and the potatoes dug soon. Use a vine cutter, attached to the beam of the plow, when vines are not removed before harvest. This attachment should be constructed so as to prevent the blade which cuts the vine from going deep enough to injure the potato. One of the most important rules at harvest time is not to bruise the potatoes. They should not be thrown from one row to another. Three rows can easily be placed together without throwing the potatoes. Bruised yams not easily in storage, and dark spots caused by rough handling lower the market value of the crop. As the potatoes are removed from the soil and piled in the heap row, they should be graded carefully. All cut or broken yams should be piled separately from the No. 1s and fed to stock as soon as possible. For curing and storing, a regular storage crate has many advantages over the bushel tub. Besides conserving room, the crate allows a better circulation of air. Potatoes should be stored and cured in a thoroughly cleaned and dry house immediately after harvesting. Proper temperature and moisture conditions are essential factors in keeping the crop.

AGRICULTURE IN INDUSTRY

By Florence C. Wood

CASTOR BEANS To make American industry less dependent upon foreign products, castor bean growing is being revived to supply a fast-drying oil for paints and enamels. It is found to be a good substitute for tung oil, a product of China which has been extensively used in the paint industry. Since the Japanese invasion, this foreign oil is both costly and difficult to get and the domestic supply is not being produced in large quantities. Castor bean growing is not new to this country for it thrived in a half dozen states around 1850 when 23 oil mills were operating, most of them located around St. Louis. After the Civil war, production increased until Kansas glutted the market with a boom crop of 766,143 bushels in 1879. Prices fell and interest in the castor bean declined. Last year test plots were grown in 33 states from coast to coast, in the South and as far north as New York. New seed was imported from Java, Brazil and India by the National Farm Chemurgic council in an effort to find a new market for the farmer. It included shatter-resistant varieties which do not require a prohibitive amount of hand labor, since they are less likely to eject their seeds as they start to ripen, and can be harvested in two or three operations. One of the first commercial uses of castor oil is in lacquer for lining cars in which food is preserved. By treating it with sulphuric acid, an oil is obtained which is used for softening textiles. It is also used in the manufacture of soap, aniline inks, and non-brittle tire cement.

THERE are three major factors in competitive sport—apart from such superior physical assets as speed and power.

As some sporting philosopher once remarked—"the race may not be to the swift—nor the battle to the strong but that is where to look."

Usually—but not always. For the three major factors referred to play a big part in naming the winner, no matter what the sport.

These three leading elements are Form—Technique and Tactics. They are the big winners, whereas so many are so well matched on the physical side. They write most of the headlines.

And they are the least understood by the vast majority of those who play various games.

What They Are

Just what is Form—what is Technique and what are Tactics? I put the matter up to P. Hal Sims, bridge player, and golfer, who has put in much careful thought along these lines through 40 years of competitive effort.

"Form," says Mr. Sims, "is really style—the correct physical way of doing things. It is the popular current style, which often changes as new champions come along with different ways of playing games."

"Technique is the best mathematical execution of form. I should say that technique is eliminating as much as you can the margin of error. It demands that you give more consideration to the percentage side."

"Tactics is the handling or direction of form and technique together."

"Many times the failure to observe technique puts on added pressure. All the mistakes you make increase pressure. In bridge for example the first mistake you make in bidding or playing the hand will increase the pressure enormously. The same is true in golf, which opens with the tee shot. If you miss this stroke, you wade right out in the middle of increasing pressure."

The Many Angles

"I have always thought," P. Hal continued, "that Walter Hagen was always a master of technique and tactics. Hagen's angle is this—a golfer plants his tee shot into the rough, partially stymied by a tree. In place of accepting the penalty he has incurred by a bad shot, he tries to save himself by some miracle attempt. The odds against this attempt may be 10 or 15 to 1. If he would play out safely and then gamble on one pitch and one putt, the odds would be much less. And the penalty much lighter."

"How many average golfers you see trying to play a wooden club from the rough. You'll see it often. They merely move from one trouble to deeper trouble, as a rule. By using the right technique they might still get a 4 on the hole or almost surely a 5. But overlooking the percentage matter completely, they wind up with a 6 or a 7. Most golfers could take away 5 or 10 strokes from their average rounds by using better technique."

The Case of Conn

"When Billy Conn met Joe Louis, Conn's boxing form was brilliant. His foot action and his hand action was all that any one could ask. He made you think of style—just as Jim Corbett once did."

"But Conn's technique in the thirteenth round suddenly blew up. He had taken the lead because he kept moving around, giving Louis a shifting target. But in the thirteenth round he suddenly turned flat-footed and began exchanging punches with a much better puncher."

"Many will tell you Conn became flat-footed through the body punishment he had taken in earlier rounds. I don't agree with this for the simple reason in the twelfth round Conn was at his best, swarming all over Louis. It was this round that made him so badly overconfident that he forgot all about technique and tactics. He overlooked Old Man Mathematics or Old Man Percentage completely. You couldn't blame him too much for this. It was the first time he had ever been within two or three rounds of a heavyweight championship. He lacked at this point the coolness and the experience needed to carry along a winning plan, which he actually had."

He Had the Odds

"There are those who say that Louis would have caught Conn anyway. Perhaps. But against much greater odds. Louis was almost sure to beat Conn in a toe to toe slugger match. The odds at slugging were 4 to 1 on Louis. The odds at longer range boxing were 3 to 1 on Conn. See what difference this makes? Things like this happen in sport every day—in every game. Better form can't win alone. It must have help from technique and tactics."

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

By ROBERT McSHANE

Released by Western Newspaper Union

Fighting Man

JOLTING JOE LOUIS may not be the greatest fighter who ever stepped into the ring, but there's one thing on which boxing experts agree. He is the greatest fighting man of our time.

The "greatest in history" label has been pinned on just about every heavyweight champion of the past. John L. Sullivan, James J. Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons, James J. Jeffries, Jack Johnson, Jess Willard, Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney—all have been granted this enthusiastic honor. No one can say who is truly deserving of it.

One thing is certain, however. Louis has been the most active of all champions. He has defended his title 19 times—an almost unbelievable figure when compared to the "frequent" fighters of a past era. Johnson and Dempsey each went to the post seven times in defense of their title.

Since 1934, Louis, a Golden Glove champion, has had 55 professional fights. Of those opponents, 47 were unable to go the route, Louis was forced to go all the way in only seven matches. He was beaten once during that time, when Max Schmeling knocked him out in 1936.

Quantity Over Quality

Even the most ardent Louis supporter will concede that many of his challengers were far from dangerous. Indeed, many of them would have had to improve considerably before they could climb into the ham and egg division. But Joe wasn't responsible for this sorry lack of worthwhile competition. He fought the best men available. Pretenders to the throne made up in quantity what they lacked in quality—which was slightly colossal.

Joe's willingness to stand the grind of training for such long periods of time is perhaps the major reason for his long reign. Few champions in history would submit to such a routine. That is why most of the other title holders fought so seldom after reaching the top. Even Dempsey took a three-year rest between the Firpo and Tunney fights. Most fighters hate to train. They dislike the road work, the dullness of camp life, the absence of bright lights and the unvarying routine. Louis has been extraordinary in this respect. He trained as thoroughly for one fight as for another, regardless of his opponent.

Louis' willingness to work hard for victory will remain one of the high spots of his career. He deserves his triumphs. With something like a million dollars on hand, it's not easy to turn away from the places where at least part of it can be spent.

Bowling—the Right Way

By LOWELL JACKSON

(This is the first of a series of bowling lessons by Lowell Jackson, one of the country's leading bowlers. Mr. Jackson has won 500 games to his credit and has a 12-year league average of 210.)

INTRODUCTION. There are over 16,000,000 men, women and youngsters in the United States who bowl regularly, according to figures of the American Bowling Congress.

Most of them can improve scores through concentration, practice and strict attention to the "correct way." The purpose of these bowling lessons is to start the beginner on the right road to pin-spilling accomplishment; improve the game of the mediocre bowler by calling attention to what might be faults in his game, and coach the average bowler in pointers that will help eliminate his failings.

In the following articles I shall endeavor to show you what I believe you should know and practice to improve your game. As you apply these instructions, remember that experiment and practice are essential to good bowling.

Concentrate on your form and the basic fundamentals. Having mastered them, your game will improve.

• A tie may be broken this year when Northwestern and Minnesota football teams clash. In the past seven years each team has won three games, one contest was tied, and each team has scored 51 points.

• A total of 233,376 fans saw night baseball games in Cleveland this season. Brooklyn, with 190,400, was second in after-dark attendance.

THE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Ma—

I am inclosing a clipping which has given me the biggest lift since I was drafted. It is from Camp Stewart down in Georgia and it says that a colonel named Ralph Tobin of the 207th Coast Artillery came out against potato peeling in the army. He said he didn't think a soldier should ever wash a dish neither as both take time that could be used in learning how to fight. Well this man Tobin is my choice for top general in the U. S. A. If this clipping gets read much he will be the hero of the army in no time.

This colonel says the German army used a separate organization of kitchen workers to peel potatoes and wash dishes and, ma, that is the key to the way they Nazis fight I guess. With a guaranty that they won't never never have to do no work as kitchen canaries no wonder there morale is so good. He gave a hint that the American army would organize a trained division of kitchen help soon and I hope he is right. It would improve the spirit of the whole army and me so much that you wood never no we was the same fellows.

I do not no if there is anything except talk behind this idea but I wish you would mention it in your prayers every night as I am sure the army wood be in better shape to win a war if it could get potatoes, dishes, cooking and general housework off its mind.

I also wish ma that the army wood organize a division of street cleaners and bath room attendants two on account of that is no work for a soldier neither. It is awful hard for me to feel like a 100 per cent fighting man when I am walking up and down a camp spearing old papers and picking up general rubbish. And I certainly do not feel like no important cog in the arsenal of the democrats when I am in a scrub bucket brigade in the men's room.

They call this fatigue duty in the army and the man who first thought up this name for it had a great sense of word values. It fatigues me to even think of army housework. I do not get half so tired on an all day hike as I do just thinking of peeling another barrel of potatoes or washing dishes.

If I was not a private I wood write a letter to Colonel Tobin saying he is the first smart general the army ever had and that I was for him for President, Secretary of War and the hero of the next Sergeant York picture, but it might get me into trouble like most of my letters do. I wish you and pop wood write him and get all the neighbors to do it. Believe me it has puzzled me how the Heinies could take all those Maggient lines and forts so quick but the hole secret is out. They could concentrate on it instead of on potato peeling.

Well, this will half to be all for now now.

Lots of love,
Oscar.

P.S.—Could you find out the address of Myrtle Atwood for me.

GOOD-BY FOREVER
Vacation friendships warm the heart

So much that, when you come to part

With people you have known a day,
"Be sure to look us up," you say,
And they in turn insist that you
Look them up when you're passing through.

They wring your hand, and you wring theirs,
No other parting's pang compares.
So great your joy in having met them,
It's strange how soon you can forget them.

—Richard Armour.

SONG FOR A GAS SHORTAGE
Just a song for twilight,
When the gas is low;
Fill your tank to brimful
As you watch it flow.

Though your tank be heavy,
With a heart that's light
Comes the call at sunset,
"Fill'er up tonight!"

—Milton Mohr.

'ALL RIOT ALONG THE POTOMAC'

Hi—There was a serious accident in Washington yesterday. Six busloads of eastbound co-ordinators collided with four buses full of westbound federal administrators. Six trucks carrying defense program allocators, priorities fixers, etc., following the eastbound buses then crashed into the wreckage. It is believed the defense program will be greatly speeded up, due to the crash.

Rather Far-Fetched Was This Relationship

"You say, madam," said the barrister to the woman in the witness box, "that the defendant is a sort of relation of yours. Will you explain what you mean by that—just how you are related to the defendant?"

"Well, it's like this. His first wife's cousin and my second husband's first wife's aunt married brothers named Jones, and they were own cousins to my mother's own aunt. Then, again, his grandfather's on my mother's side, were second cousins, and his stepmother married my husband's stepfather, and his brother Joe and my husband's brother, Henry, married twin sisters. I've always looked on him as a sort of cousin."

A reader is killed by someone unknown—shot in the back! This is the beginning of a cattle war in the Buck River country—a war which required U. S. troops to stop. But before the troops arrived, events piled upon each other with dramatic swiftness, and it began to look as though Calhoun Terry, manager of the Diamond Revere B Ranch, was slated to go. However, he lived through all the shooting to marry Ellen Casey, daughter of the postmaster—Ellen Carey, who had so seriously misunderstood him! Riders of Buck River is a story that will keep you guessing. Be sure to read it.

Unrest in Nazi Dominated Nations Results in 'Front-Behind-Front'; Hitler's 'Victory' Speech Is Puzzle As Russia Claims Important Gains

GEORGE'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Reichsführer Adolf Hitler is shown in the Sportsplatz in Berlin as he made his speech to open the annual drive for winter relief. He used the opportunity to tell the German people that his armies on the eastern front have scored great victories and that Russia is "already broken and will never rise again." He again predicted complete Nazi victory. In the seats of honor at the gathering were a number of wounded, soon at the left front in the above picture.

The old quote that "there is nothing new under the sun" was fairly routed by the advent of all wars when the concept which had been boiling for centuries in countries occupied by Nazi Germany had begun to flare into strange and more open warfare.

And it was a queer warfare, with ultimatums being back and forth, and nations in exile passing decrees on conquered peoples with the threat of "death if we ever get back in our countries again."

It was no laughing matter, either, for the era of mass executions had been reached with the possibility in some quarters that Germans would be massacred wholesale, just as the Nazis were slaughtering victims in other quarters.

In Jugoslavia

Guerrilla bands operating in the Serbian mountain districts, swooping down by night, had been capturing small detachments of Nazi soldiers, sending them away as captives, and they had amassed somewhere between 600 and 1,000 men, whom they were reported holding prisoners.

Came an ultimatum from guerrillas to the Nazi occupational officers to the effect "Continue to shoot Jugoslav hostages, and we shall execute our prisoners."

The German answer (requiring the use of a considerable force which presumably had been taken from the Russian front) was the reported sending of a panzer division of 20,000 men and to head it toward Belgrade, the former capital of former Yugoslavia, to deal summarily with these guerrilla bands.

In Norway

King Haakon (in exile in London) signed a decree providing the death penalty for crimes against the Norwegian state.

A counter attack against this move had come from Josef Terboven, the Nazi's commissioner in Norway, who said "Accept Germany's new order and regard Germany's demands as yours, or face obliteration as a national state, and perhaps starvation."

This ultimatum was backed up, it had been reported, by the fact that more than 2,000 Norwegians were in concentration camps, many of them held as hostages.

The "new order" was the Quisling government, against which an underground and sometimes open revolt had been going on for two months or more.

And against this stood Haakon's decree, held a warning to any "bonds" of the Nazis who might exert themselves to help the German authorities that if Norway regains its freedom they will face the death penalty.

In Bulgaria

While not occupied formally, as a result of warfare, Bulgaria was officially considered to be an Axis partner, and reports had emanated from Sofia, in the form of a victory dispatch, that Greek forces which had swooped over the borders into Bulgaria with rifles and machine guns seeking to organize a revolt among the Greek citizens.

BRIEFS:

Berlin: (By radio heard in New York) The world famous broadcast of "Lord New News, Nazi-minded Englishman, had been banned from the air."

Cape Town, S. A.: Gen. Jan Christian Smuts again had called for America's entry into the war "hands and feet" to insure a quicker victory and save the world from exhaustion.

zens of the country, had been "annihilated."

In Belgium

A bomb explosion, it had been reported, in Brussels, had killed Jean Oederkerke, secretary of the Rexist (Fascist) forces.

In Czecho-Slovakia

The wholesale executions in Bohemia and Moravia (home of the Czechs) followed revelations that there had been operating there schools for saboteurs and for learning improved methods of slowing down factory production.

And these evidences of the widespread revolt were in addition to similar events which had resulted in executions in occupied and unoccupied France and in Holland.

NEUTRALITY: Change Expected

Although it was recognized that President Roosevelt's request for changes in or repeal of the neutrality act would meet with determined opposition in senate and house, a poll of the chambers showed definitely that some modification, notably that of permitting arming of American merchant ships, would receive a congressional O. K.

This poll had been taken as Secretary of State Hull warned the Axis powers that American-owned ships (presumably wearing the Panamanian or other flag, were armed and had orders to defend themselves.

This statement itself had closely followed the sinking of a former American tanker 430 miles east of Recife, Brazil, with the loss of several American lives.

The tanker had originally been American, had been transferred to the British service, and was operating under the Panamanian flag with a crew largely composed of American citizens.

Between 12 and 20 such ships had already been armed, Mr. Hull said, and he characterized the sinkings of these vessels or of those of this type as a German effort at "frightfulness designed to drive us out of the Atlantic."

The senate poll showed 29 in favor of repeal or change; 20 opposed to any change, and most of the rest undecided, wanting more time to study, or out of the city and unavailable for comment.

HITLER: Puzzle

The first formal address by Hitler in 103 days of warfare with Russia rather left the world puzzled—for he claimed a total victory over the Reds at a time when Moscow was claiming the Leningrad push stopped, and continued advances in the center.

Also, the favorable report of the chancellor on the war situation came at a time when unrest behind the lines was assuming the proportions of a front, and at least one whole division had to be sidetracked to take care of one small sector of conquered territory.

Even more puzzling was his statement that he had ordered production of war materials restricted, because the Russians were no longer able to be a menace and that the war was, in effect "in the bag."

This was followed up by a warning in the Berlin Press to British and American mission members in Moscow to get out of the Russian capital because a head-on attack upon Moscow was planned.

It came at a time when Moscow itself was informing the British and Americans that there no longer was doubt that Russia could hold out through the winter, but that quantities of munitions and the machinery of war would be needed next spring.

It was hard to reconcile facts with speech or speech with facts.

It's All Over

Here is George Hopkins, with his parachute, in which he landed from an airplane atop Devil's Tower in Wyoming. After the better part of six days he was rescued by a crew of eight expert mountain climbers. His parachute drop was made to win a $50 wager and as a publicity stunt for a parachute jumping contest. Devil's Tower, a 1,280-foot peak, jutting straight up from the surrounding plain can be seen in the background.

DEATH:

To a Liberal

Louis Dembitz Brandeis, noted liberal jurist, and former Supreme court justice, died in his Washington home just on the night before a new Supreme court was meeting for its first 1941-42 session. He was 84 and had retired from the Supreme court on February 13, 1939, because of ill health. It was suffering from a heart ailment that led him to retire and a severe attack of this trouble that resulted in his death. Named to the high bench by President Wilson in 1916, Brandeis had no experience as a judge before that time but he was widely known for his activity as a lawyer on behalf of labor unions and against "high finance."

SPENDING:

Will Triple

During the first World War, American spending at the height of the struggle reached something like $50,000,000 a day. Great Britain is way past that point now, and the expectation in Washington had been that within this fiscal year America's spending will come to about two billions a month, or about $70,000,000 a day.

That was the figure which U. S. Budget Director Smith estimated, and the bill would be 24 billions in the year, with an income of close to 12 billions from taxes and a deficit of about the same amount.

In this amount was included the lend-lease aid, but not the direct purchases by Britain, Russia, China or other sources.

The difference between the American and British rate of spending, Smith pointed out, was this—that two billions a month is about $135 a year for all the citizens of the nation, whereas Britain's spending constitutes about 40 per cent of the national income.

Smith went on to state that considering better employment conditions and the busy state of the nation, probably more dollars would be left for civilian use than in pre-defense years.

CHURCH:

And the Reds

President Roosevelt had rammed himself into a hornet's nest with his discussion of Article 124 of the Russian constitution, which gave religious freedom guarantees to the people.

Churchmen of several faiths and congressmen took the President to task and later the President qualified his statement or explained it in the light of a hope that movements now on foot would bring religious freedom, under the constitution of Russia to her people.

This put a somewhat new light on the controversy, and the head of the Russian Orthodox church came forward to give the President support and to reveal his opinion that the days of church repression and antagonism in Russia were numbered.

The people were "turning to God," he said, and the government was not planning to prevent this uprising of the spirit in the face of the danger of death in war.

Myron Taylor was back from his visit to the Pope, and more light on the subject of religious freedom was expected from this source.

RUSSIA:

Has 'Dunquerque'

Moscow had published the dramatic report that a large Red army unit reported trapped by the Finns on the shores of Lake Ladoga north of Leningrad had been saved by a "Dunquerque" retreat engineered by lake vessels.

The hero of the escape from the trap was Colonel Bondarev, who, with his men, had been battling for 45 days.

Rider of Buck River

By WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINES

THE STORY SO FAR: Over Calhoun Terry's protests, the big rancher have imported a large number of Texas peace officers to round up and kill suspected "rustlers." Several killings preceded this, and Jeff Brand, a rustler

CHAPTER XXVI

From the Box 55 to Lee Hart's place it was eight miles across the hills. Jeff rode fast.

Before he had covered half the way to the hill ranch he heard the sound of firing far to his left. First a single shot, and perhaps a minute later two more. Though he listened for more, no popping reached his ears.

To Jeff there seemed something sinister in these breaks disturbing the silence. His imagination pictured a man peacefully hoeing a potato patch or mending a fence. From the direction of the report it might have come from Wade Scott's place. If so, Wade would probably have been whistling, his mind on a girl in Cheyenne who worked in the railroad restaurant, one he was expecting to marry in a few months.

Instead of taking the gulch he followed the rim, keeping to cover as he came close to the edge. Looking down, his gaze swept the clearing and picked up details. He saw two men crouched back of the barn. Evidently there were others in it, for as he stood there a puff of smoke came from the window opening in the hayloft. At least one man was stationed in the bed of the creek a hundred and fifty yards from the house. A shot from that point told him so.

There was a small alfalfa field to the left of the house. It ran to the draw leading up to the ravine. He could see the ditch crossing it in the direction of the house. A wild idea jumped to his mind. Why not get into that ditch, crawl along it till he was close to the cabin, and make a dash to join the defenders?

Near the top of the ravine he picked his horse, then moved down it cautiously. As he came round a bend in the gulch, he looked down into the little basin which held the ranch. Thirty yards below him a man crouched behind a large boulder, a rifle in his hands. He was watching the log cabin, evidently hoping to get a glimpse of one of the defenders. Lower down in the draw and fifty yards to his right another marksman was also waiting behind cover for a shot.

Jeff tiptoed forward, revolver in hand. He had not been a big-game hunter for nothing. No perceptible rumor of his movements reached the lank Texan toward whom he was soft-footing. Unwittingly the sniper helped at his own undoing. Intensely preoccupied with the job in hand, his mind was following a single track which led straight from him to the quarry in the cabin. When Brand was about ten strides from him he drew a bead and fired. As the rifle cracked Jeff flung aside caution and took the last stretch on the run.

The Texan whirled, too late. The long barrel of the .45 smashed down on his lifted forehead. His body swayed, and collapsed.

Nobody had noticed what had taken place. Jeff helped himself to the man's rifle and cartridge belt. He moved to the left and stepped down into the dry ditch he had seen from the bluff above. Crouching low in it, he crept forward. The alfalfa hid him pretty well.

Crossing the field was a slow business. He went on all fours, dragging the rifle beside him. He was near enough to the cabin to see lead fling splinters from the logs.

He called softly, "Hello the house," and when no answer came back to him he called again, more loudly. It was after his fourth attempt that somebody inside answered.

"Who is it? What you want?"

"Jeff Brand. I'm gonna make a run for the door. Fling it open for me when I give the word."

There was a perceptible silence before the man in the house replied. "How come you there—if you're Brand?"

"Don't talk, you fool. Do as I say."

Jeff came out of the ditch running. From the edge of the valley he heard a shout. Somebody had discovered the Texan he had knocked out and was spreading the news. The guns roared.

He bowled over, all the power knocked out of him in an instant. That he had been hit he knew, though he felt no pain. Still clinging to the rifle, he tried to clamber to his feet. The ground tilted up at him, and he went down again. Still conscious, he crawled forward a foot or two.

The cabin door was flung open. Two men showed at the entrance. One ran toward Jeff, in long, reaching strides. The other covered the rescue, firing at the figures which had come into the open to get Brand. It was a matter of seconds, but they stretched interminably. The man reached Jeff, gathered him up, and plunged back toward the house.

INSTALLMENT THIRTEEN

himself, traces them to Jack Turley, a "spy." Nor does Jeff like Calhoun, foreman of one of the Big ranches. Ellen Terry seems interested in both of them. Lee Hart, a rustler-rancher, reports of the mobilization of the Texas invaders across country to hit Johnson's Prong and take the short cut down Box Canyon.

They traveled at a road gait, not pushing their horses, for there was a long journey ahead of them.

When they talked it was mostly about a new enterprise in which they were to be partners. They had made an arrangement with John C. Powers to buy the old Terry Ranch once owned by Calhoun's father, and with it a fine stretch of river land adjoining. Larry had lately inherited some money. This was to make part of the initial payment.

They came to the lip of a small mountain park and dipped down into it. Terry pulled up his cowpony and pointed to the opposite slope. A large body of men on horseback was moving down it.

"The Texas invaders," Larry said. "Yes, and we'd better get away from here," his companion decided.

Too late, they wheeled their horses. The sound of a rifle shot roared across the park. Larry's horse went down and flung him. His friend raised the palm of his hand to give the peace sign, but the answer was a splatter of bullets.

"Come a-running, Larry," called Terry.

Richards vaulted to the back of the horse, and they were on their way.

From the ridge they headed down into a country of huddled hills and ravines where outlaws had their abode. The roan gelding did its best, but when Larry looked back he knew the race would be a short one.

Jeff tiptoed forward, revolver in hand.

"They're coming hell-for-leather," he said. "We won't reach the hills."

He held up his hand in the peace sign, but it did not stop the crashing of the guns.

"We'll have to hole up at Lee Hart's till we get a chance to explain we're not the men they want," Terry said.

"Yep. There's Lee down there with his stock. He isn't waiting to ask questions either."

"Don't blame him. He's on their list."

They reached the clearing, flung themselves from the horse, and raced for the cabin by the creek. Once inside, they slammed and bolted the door. From the window Larry saw the leader of the regulators disposing of his men.

They could hear bullets thudding into the logs. One shattered the other window.

"We'd better move back out of sight," Larry suggested. "Have to dig holes between the logs to shoot through."

"I'll try a white flag," Calhoun said. "If they'll hold back long enough to listen to us we'll be all right."

He found an empty flour sack, opened the door a few inches, and waved the white sack. He called out his name to Ellison. The noise of the guns killed the sound of his voice. Lead tore into the door.

"Quit that foolishness, Cal," his friend snapped. "You'll get shot up, first thing. The damned fools are crazy with the heat."

A foreman of the Circle C ranch, a big, blustering fellow who rode his men hard, was gesticulating violently and pointing toward the cabin. Apparently he was urging them to a charge. Terry shot him in the arm, and he took cover behind the barn. A few seconds later Calhoun's rifle scored another hit. A lumbering Texan behind a cottonwood tried to improve his position by running to another tree closer to the house. He stopped before he reached it, lurched sideways, and fell to the ground. With scarcely a moment's delay he began crawling back to his original position.

and how they chased two men into his cabin. He himself managed to see without identifying them. The two men were Calhoun Terry and his partner. But Jeff did not know this when he decided to aid them.

idea that they haven't been invited to come any nearer."

"Some folks can't take a hint unless a Methodist church falls on them," Larry said lightly. "Wish I had a rifle too. My six-gun won't carry that far with any accuracy. Looks like I'll have to be an innocent bystander until they begin to crowd us."

Both of them knew there could be only one ending to the battle if it went to a finish. But they were cool, game men, used to danger, and they could take whatever was in store for them without weakening.

The attackers grew more wary of exposing themselves. Presently the firing died down except for an occasional shot.

"Something's up," Calhoun said. "Probably getting ready to rush us." He laughed sardonically. "I never was in this kind of a jam before. All we have to do is let them know who we are and they would let us alone, but as soon as we poke a nose out to tell them they blast away at us."

Larry was watching the attackers through his peephole. "They are getting their horses." His voice grew excited. "By the jumping horned frog, they're riding away. They figure it would cost too much to dig us out of our hole. Seems too good luck to be true."

It was too good to be true. More than forty men took a trail into the hills, but enough were left to keep up the attack on the cabin. Terry tried again, during the lull in the firing, to let Ellison know who they were; but he was fired upon the instant he opened the door.

At the end of an hour another plan was tried to dislodge the besieged men. Two horses were taken into the barn. A few minutes later they came out drawing a wagon with a hayrack on it.

The wagon was driven into a meadow of wild hay. Near the center of the field was the remains of a stack of hay, most of it weeds tossed aside as unfit food for stock. Men began to gather this trash with pitchforks and load it on the rack.

At first Calhoun was puzzled, but the purpose of this jumped to his mind. "Ellison is going to burn us out," he said.

Larry caught the idea. "Sure. They aim to get behind the hay and push the wagon by the tongue up against the house. Then they will set fire to the hay."

After a moment Larry spoke. "You've been favoring these fellows, Cal, and that was right so far. But no longer. They mean to kill us, even if they have to burn us up. It's them or us. I won't let them rub me out without fighting back."

Calhoun nodded agreement. "Nor I. But maybe the time hasn't quite come for that, Larry. The thing is to delay them all we can. Help is on the way to us by now, I expect. Hart could not have recognized us. He thinks we are some of his outlaw friends. When he reaches Black Butte he will start gathering men to save us. That will take some time, but not very much if we are lucky."

Terry was watching the wagon and the men with it. They had loaded the refuse hay and were picking up brush to pile on the top of it. The driver swung the team round to return to the gate. He was nearer the house than at any time since leaving the barn.

Calhoun took careful aim and fired. One of the horses sank to the ground.

"That will hold them for a while," he said.

A voice outside, not far away, hailed the house. It came from the side Larry was defending. Richards searched the alfalfa field and saw nobody.

"Someone has worked up right close to us," he told his companion. "Sounds like he's only forty or fifty yards away."

"Ask him who he is," Terry said. "We can send a message by him and tell Ellison who we are."

Larry shouted the question. The answer astonished him. He passed it on to his friend.

"Claims he's Jeff Brand and is going to make a run for the door. He must have crawled up the ditch." Larry demanded more information from the man outside. A moment later he cried in excitement: "Hell, it's Jeff, all right! He's coming on the run. . . They've hit him. He's down."

Terry ran to the door and flung it open. He thrust the rifle into the hands of Richards and raced toward the man on the ground, who was crawling toward the house.

Stooping, Calhoun picked up Brand, the rifle still in his hand, and hurried back to the house. He reached it in safety and Larry bolted the door.

Terry put the wounded man down on the bed. "Where did they hit you?" he asked.

Jeff Brand did not answer. He stared at his rescuer in vast astonishment.

"They got him in the ankle," Larry said, pointing to a hole in Brand's boot.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE HOLY SPIRIT OUR HELPER

LESSON TEXT—John 3:5-8; Acts 1:8; Romans 8:26-28; Galatians 5:22-26.
GOLDEN TEXT—As many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God.—Romans 8:14.

Nothing could be more practical or blessed for and in the life and service of the believer than an understanding of the person and work of the Holy Spirit; yet it is a subject concerning which most Christians are woefully ignorant.

Before taking up the work of the Spirit as it appears in our lesson, we should understand that the Holy Spirit is a person, not an influence which may exert itself upon a service, or a power which a man may obtain and use. He—the Spirit—is one of the Trinity, with the attributes of a person, doing the work of a person and always referred to as a person in Scripture. (When "it" is used of the Holy Spirit in the A. V. it will be found to be corrected to "him" in the R. V.)

What then does this divine person do? The work of creation was His as one of the Godhead. He regenerates, He teaches, He comforts, He leads, He calls and qualifies Christian workers; He is the divine author of the Bible. These and many other things He does, this One who indwells the believer as the ever-present Guide and Counselor. The Christian is

I. Born of the Spirit (John 3:5-8). The new birth is indispensable to entrance into the kingdom of God. We either enter that way or we do not enter at all. Let's be clear about that. "Ye must be born again" is not the edict of a church or the plea of a preacher; it is the plain statement of our Lord Himself (v. 5).

The Holy Spirit is indispensable to regeneration. We must be born of the Spirit. How it takes place we can no more explain than the coming or going of the wind, but just as the power of the wind is known to us by clear evidence, so the regenerating power of the Spirit, mysterious though it be in operation, is known to us by the evidences of redeeming grace in a man's life.

II. Empowered by the Spirit (Acts 1:8). Spiritual birth calls for service for Christ. For that we must have the power of the Holy Spirit. A man may do many ordinary things in the strength of his own body and mind (although even these ought always to be under the Spirit's control), but when he comes to witnessing for Christ, teaching or preaching God's Word, he must have Holy Spirit power or he is utterly ineffective.

III. Directed by the Spirit (Rom. 8:26-28). The guidance of the Holy Spirit, especially in the matter of prayer, is stressed in these verses, but they are a part of a longer passage dealing with the indwelling, enabling, and guiding power of the Holy Spirit (read vv. 9-14). Every detail of life in the home, at business, or in social relations should be in conscious submission to His leading.

It is in the realm of the spiritual, however, that we find ourselves peculiarly infirm (v. 26), and this shows itself especially in prayer—"we know not how to pray as we ought." Then the Spirit in the Christian makes intercession. How blessed! "The practical meaning of these profound words seems to be that the divine Spirit, by His immediate influence in the saint's soul, which becomes as it were the organ of his own address to the Father, secures the rightness of the essence of the saint's prayer. To our understandings such intercessions with groanings which cannot be uttered, take the form of desires of ours, inspired and secured by Him. In any special case of prayer, the saint may or may not use words; but anyway the root-desires that underlie the prayer, being the Holy Spirit's promptings, are unutterable to the full. In the heart the Father sees below the surface of our ignorance the sacred longings which are the expression of the Spirit's influence" (H. C. G. Moule).

IV. Walking in the Spirit (Gal. 5: 22-26). Being born again of the Spirit, living daily by the Spirit, it is right that (as v. 25 puts it) "if we live by the Spirit, let us also walk by the Spirit." The works of the flesh, horrible in their wickedness and lust, are listed in the verses preceding (vv. 19-21), and then by striking contrast we have the fruit of the Spirit in the life of the Christian. Note the distinction: Work is something we produce; fruit is something that grows.

Walking in the Spirit the Christian finds in his life the inward graces of love, joy, and peace. These then express themselves outwardly in long-suffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, and self-control. The Spirit-filled man is not only a good man; he lives a good life.

Ton of Scrap Iron

According to an estimate by army ordnance officers, a ton of scrap iron collected in this country could be made into: One 75-millimeter field-gun, or the carriage for such a gun, or 12 machine guns, or nine 500-pound demolition bombs, or one 2,000-pound, 10-inch battleship-piercing shell.

If you have a relative or friend in the service and have any doubts about what to send him as gifts, your problems are over. The service men have solved it for you by naming tobacco as their first choice in gifts. Actual sales records show the favorite cigarette with men in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard is Camel. Prince Albert is the popular smoking tobacco. With these preferences in mind, local tobacco dealers feature Camels by the carton and Prince Albert in the pound tin as ideal gifts to the men in the service from the folks back home.—Adv.

Testifying before the House Banking Committee, Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board, said that inflation could not be prevented if wages and salaries, which constitute the main factor in establishing prices, are allowed to rise indiscriminately.

Mr. Eccles' views are reflected by most economists. The fast-rising wage trend has been a strong and growing influence for price inflation in all fields.

So far as the work week is concerned, it is ridiculous to suppose that we can keep defense production to schedule while working on a peace-time basis.

Labor, like all other groups, must make some sacrifices, too. Mr. Eccles simply pointed to the inevitable. The period of "business as usual" and "politics as usual" is over for the duration of the emergency.
