Bombing Range Near Here

Reports from Alamogordo said today that ranchers have been notified to remove all livestock from the wide area west of the Carrizozo-Tularosa road so that it may be used as an Army bombing range.

Fort Bliss officials said they know of no plans to make the area available for Fort Bliss planes, but that the range may be used by the Albuquerque air base.

It was understood a strip of land about 60 miles long by 30 miles wide would be affected. It was estimated that livestock in this area totals about 15,000 goats, 3,000 cattle, 500 horses and a considerable number of sheep.—El Paso Herald-Post.

We understand the Greer Goat ranch in the San Andres mountains will be taken over by the army bombing range.

Daniel D. Tiffany

Mr. Daniel Delos Tiffany, well-known, retired railway conductor passed away last Monday, October 27, 1941 and funeral services were conducted at the Kelley mortuary last Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 by the Rev. L. D. Cochran. Services were simple and beautiful. A world of flowers surrounded the casket, and the mortuary was filled with the friends of many years.

Mr. Tiffany was born in the state of New York July 3rd, 1859. He came to New Mexico in 1907 and was an employe of the railroad company until his retirement a few months ago. He had been in failing health for several months, but was able to be up most of the time, and spent his time working with his flowers and ornamented shrubbery. Mr. Tiffany was very quiet and unassuming. He was punctual, careful and faithful to his duties; he was a kind and devoted husband and a loyal friend. He will be missed by every one.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Anna Tiffany, to whom deepest sympathy is extended. He is also survived by one brother who resides in New York. Interment was in the local cemetery.

THIS matter of expecting even the stronger football teams to win all of their games...

There are too many strong teams in the field today for old grads to keep expecting one victory after another.

On this basis where would the Dodgers have been last spring when even the Giants beat them three straight to open the season?

Accidents, tough breaks, injuries and other details can often make a difference of two or three touchdowns in a game.

The main answer is that any team playing a first-class schedule can look back on a good season if it can win a majority of its starts.

That's the way football is. One or two breaks, especially in the passing game, can raise an abnormal amount of old-fashioned Cain.

The 'Next Year' Job

Messrs. MacPhail and Durocher of Brooklyn's Dodgers are not thinking at the moment of any revenge on the Yankees next fall.

Sam Bredon and Branch Rickey both believe that said Cardinals will be much harder to hold in check next spring and summer with so many crack young pitchers on hand.

"You might also add that we can't be expected to have another such run of terrible luck," Rickey said.

The 1941 World series is now back with the dust-gathering archives, but they are still talking about Joe Gordon, the Oregon Flash.

Gordon did something more than bat .500 in the series and reach first 14 times in five games.

The Yankees slipped at least four hits to the right of second that Gordon would have been waiting for—or at least would have handled without breaking his neck.

The Yankee star is remarkably quick starting in either direction, and he is even quicker with his hands. As a freshman at Oregon he was the most promising-looking young football player the West coast had seen in years.

Gordon has less tension on his big days than any other ball player in the game. There is no situation that can tighten him up.

A Call for Help

"Now that the World series is over," writes a fan, "how about helping out a few of us duffers? Some time back you wrote something about 'live hands' in golf.

Dead hands and dead wrists are usually the result of leg and body tension. This tension tightens up both hands and wrists, and leaves nothing left but a shoulder or a body lunge.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

WHEN Ted Williams, the willowy wallpaper of the Boston Red Sox, won the 1941 American league batting title...

Duffy has been called the greatest hitter of all time. Back in 1894 he was fashioning a truly great batting average, hitting well above .430.

Williams boasted a .403 average this year when the Red Sox pulled into Philadelphia for the final three-game series of the year.

The Hard Way

Like Duffy years before, Williams said no. He went up the first day and collected only one hit in four trips.

The next day they played a double header. Ted stepped up to the plate for the first time and belted out a point winning hit.

In the matter of style, Williams reminds one of Shoeless Joe. The latter, like Williams, was on the tall, loose and lean side.

SHADOWY figures in a cavalcade of American history—such as the men behind the names of the great army cantonments scattered all over the United States...

If, for many years, Uncle Sam's soldiers have been the best cared-for of any in the world, much of the credit for that fact belongs to the man for whom Camp Holabird, near Baltimore, Md., is named.

S. B. Holabird Point in 1849 and after several years' service on the frontier was appointed captain and assistant quartermaster soon after the outbreak of the Civil war.

Camp Guild near Wakefield, Mass., is named for a journalist and soldier, Curtis Guild, (1860-1915) who was born in Boston and succeeded his father in the ownership of the Boston Commercial Bulletin.

Camp Callan, near San Diego, Calif., bears the name of Maj. Gen. Robert Emmet Callan, born in Maryland in 1874 and now retired.

Heroes of World War I, both officers and enlisted men, have provided names for numerous training camps. There is Camp Sibert near Boulder City, Nev., which recalls the services of Maj. Gen. William Luther Sibert (1860-1935).

There is Camp Edwards near Forestdale, Mass., named for Maj. Gen. Clarence E. Edwards (1864-1931), commander of the Twenty-Sixth ("Yankee") division of the A.E.F., who was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for having organized that division and commanding it with distinction during all but 18 days of its active service.

THE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Ma— I got your clipping about 200,000 jeeps two be released by Christmas and you are, no more anxious about me being one of them than I am.

All I could get down on paper was these three cases:

1.—Once about three years ago when pop was sick ten days I took care of the furnace and chipped in about $4 to help pay family expenses.

2.—In 1938 or 1939 I forget which when he was on a auto trip we had a blowout and I did not let you and dad get out and change the tire. I did it myself.

3.—Last year the radio went on the fritz just when you and dad wanted to hear some favorite program and I fixed it for you.

I do not think this is enuff to get the army to send me home as a dependency case, so if you can think of anything let me know and you better make out an affidavit and have it sworn by a notary public as the officers is very suspicious.

The paper says some units will lose 30 per cent of their men through releases but if all the boys in my unit who are trying to get out are successful mine will lose at least 99 per cent.

Otto also says his family is suffering without him as his mother can't carry up coal and wood three flights like she used to. He also says his sister has arthritis and can't mow the lawn, wash the flivver and do all the washing and ironing.

Another boy in my outfit says he is needed right away at home as two new saloons have opened up near his house and his old man is less a help than ever.

Of course if I was married I could get out of the army in the Christmas releases and I am now convinced that early marriage is a good thing for every boy.

If I was anywhere near 25 I might stand a show of getting out, but unless you made a mistake in the birth certificates there is no hope that way.

Well this will have to be all for now and do not worry as I am beefing just because it feels good and life in an army is not so bad when you get used to it.

P. S.—I hear Mildred Donaldson has moved back into our neighborhood. Do you know her address?

AGRICULTURE IN INDUSTRY

FARMERS LOSING RICH TOP SOIL

Valuable Land Nutrients Are 'Going With the Wind.'

By LINDLEY G. COOK (Extension Soil Conservationist, New Jersey College of Agriculture, Rutgers University.)

Suppose someone drove into your farm and asked you to give him 10 tons of top soil from each of your best acres of land?

Take the losses caused by one severe storm in August, 1939, as an example. The run-off plots at the Marlboro Soil Conservation Research station were all in tomatoes and the vines were luxurious, spreading over at least 50 to 75 per cent of the ground.

In this particular August storm, the plots having fertilizer alone lost nearly one-half ton of soil to the acre, the ones having had an annual winter cover crop lost less than a quarter of a ton to the acre.

Not only do storms carry away more valuable top soil than most farmers realize, but they also carry away a lot of valuable fertilizing elements. Carefully kept records of losses of nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash on these same tomato plots during 1939 showed that the plots which annually received commercial fertilizer alone lost these three elements at the rate of $12.81 worth per acre, while the corresponding losses on the plots which also received annual treatments of manure and winter cover crop amounted to only $0.81 per acre.

These losses of valuable top soil and plant nutrients can be greatly reduced by simple conservation measures. Your county agent or the supervisors of your local conservation district will be able to give you more detailed information about ways and means of establishing adequate conservation measures on your farm.

FUR ANIMALS

People in almost every state make money trapping and selling furs.

The new industry is now a permanent part of our agriculture which has developed within the last 20 years. Most important is fox farming, which thrives throughout the northern half of the United States from New England west to Washington.

Studies have been made in the raising of Karakul sheep for their fur, and this may open a profitable market. So far many of the practices used in growing fur animals are hit or miss methods which are costly to the farmer.

AGRICULTURAL NEWS

Prices and income received by farmers in early summer were about one-fourth higher than a year earlier, according to department of agriculture economists.

In a decade, the farm population of the United States has increased only one-tenth of 1 per cent. The population of the country as a whole increased 7.3 per cent.

STAGE SCREEN RADIO
By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

JANE WYMAN and Regis Toomey have teamed to shatter all records for the screen's longest kiss — it lasted three minutes and five seconds, and you'll see it in Warner Bros. "You're in the Army Now." The former record was held by Ann Sheridan and George Brent. Jane and Regis, seated on a hard piano bench, were told just to keep on kissing till told to stop, while Donald McBride, playing Jane's father (as well as an army colonel), discussed military problems. First thing they knew, they'd set a new record.

Old-timers may remember "Humoresque," which was filmed way back in 1920 with Alma Rubens, Vera Gordon and Gaston Glass. It's coming back to the screen, this time probably with John Garfield in the Gaston Glass role, that of a violinist whose career is cut short by military conscription.

Fred MacMurray was too young for the last war, so he didn't know what it feels like to crawl through barbed wire entanglements till just the other day. He had to plunge through chicken wire for a scene in "The Lady Is Willing," the new Columbia comedy he's making with Marlene Dietrich. The wire merely surrounded some rabbits, but when he got out he felt as if he'd been through several wars.

Margaret Hayes isn't wearing backless evening gowns just now; probably won't for some time. As the female spy in "The Lady Has Plans" she had to have the design of a radio-controlled torpedo drawn on her back. Theoretically, according to the script, the ink is removed with a chemical which makes the plans invisible till another chemical agent causes them to reappear. Margaret was told by the prop man that she shouldn't worry, but she has no faith in trick chemicals.

Of course you'll want to see "Mr. Bug Goes to Town," the feature-length cartoon on which Dave Fleisher and his staff of 700 animators and artists have been working for the past 10 months. Here's some inside information on it. Fleisher figures that an entire painting of a scene or character must be made for every one twenty-fourth of a second the feature is being projected on the screen. Breaking down his budget of $1,000,000 in terms of running time, that comes to $9 per frame, or picture. "Mr. Bug Goes to Town" is a drama of insect life.

Incidentally, Miss Dietrich would like to make it very clear that the jewelry she wears in that picture doesn't belong to her. The $500,000 worth of gems were shipped from New York, and half an hour after they were sent from a jewelry store to the studio the shop was robbed. So the glamorous Marlene hired a couple of body guards and let it be known that when it's not before the cameras it's in a bank.

Radie's Fibber McGee and Molly are about to lose their privacy. As Mr. and Mrs. J. Jordan they haven't got a single rise out of an autograph board. But with millions of screen fans seeking them on the screen in "Look Who's Laughing," along with Edgar Bergen and Lucille Ball, they're sure to be recognized wherever they go.

Critics of dramatic schools say that they're no place to learn to act. Paramount's "Gun for Hire" has three answers to that. They are (1) Veronica Lake, (2) Robert Preston, (3) Alan Ladd. All three went to dramatic schools.

ODDS AND ENDS—Victor Mature will be seen as a gangster in Fox's "Highway in Hell" with Pat O'Brien. . . . When George Brent was ill recently Ann Sheridan sent him roses frequently; he had them made into perfume, which he sent her. . . . Harold Lloyd has picked Key Keyser to star in "My Favorite Spy," his new production. . . . Orson Welles has signed Dolores Costello for the leading role in "The Magnificent Ambersons." . . . Richard Barthelmess, once a screen favorite, returns for an important role in RKO's "The Mayor of 44th Street." . . . Melvyn Douglas stars in "Two-Faced Women" and Norma Shearer in "We Were Dancing."

SIN AND ITS CONSEQUENCES

LESSON TEXT—Galatians 6:7, 8: I John 1:8-9.
GOLDEN TEXT—If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.—I John 1:9.

Sin is an appalling reality, hideous and horrible in itself, and bearing with it the gravest consequences both in this life and in the life to come. Man does not find it pleasant to face that fact, and so he makes light of sin and even may go so far as to deny its existence. Obviously such an expedient does nothing to solve the difficulty or to meet the gnawing distress of a heart facing and fearing the judgment of God.

Far better to meet the reality of it, admit its awfulness, and seek God's way of full deliverance. Sin, which came into the world when man listened to Satan and disobeyed God in the Garden of Eden, has gone on to mar and to mark all mankind. We note that

I. Sin Brings Corruption (Gal. 6: 7, 8).

Seedtime is followed by harvest. This is the law of nature, the law of God. The farmer who sowed wheat in the spring looked for wheat when the harvest time came. The same principle holds in the spiritual realm. Just as the one who sows to the Spirit reaps eternal life, the one who sows to the flesh reaps corruption, and death.

A life of self-indulgence (which is sowing to the flesh) brings moral decay. The weakened will yields to desire, and it "bringeth forth sin; and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death" (James 1:14, 15). This death is spiritual, bringing separation from God, a loss of fellowship and communion with Him. Spiritual death as well as physical death came upon mankind through Adam's sin.

II. Sin Leads Darkness (I John 1:5-7).

There is not a bit of darkness in God. He is light. When Jesus came into the world, He came as the Light of the World. But "men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil. For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved" (John 3:17-21).

The corollary of that truth is that a man who says he has fellowship with God, but continues to walk in darkness, brands himself a liar (v. 6). Compare Revelation 21:27-28 for what God thinks of liars.

The light still shines, and the one who is walking in darkness has only to step over into the light (v. 7) where he will find fellowship with all God's people and know the cleansing of the blood of the Son of God.

III. Sin Is an Undeniable Fact (I John 1:8-10).

It seems impossible that a man who knows himself and knows the life he lives would ever deny sin, for it is one of the most evident of all facts. Yet men have denied it, or sought to explain it away, calling it error, or a "fall upward," or a step in man's development, or the evidence of man's self-consciousness and desire to learn.

There is no hope for a man as long as he assumes such an attitude, for he not only lies himself, but he makes God a liar. He denies the truth of God's Word about sin, makes meaningless or wicked God's dealings with sin, and reveals that God's Word is not in him. Those who make such statements declare that they do not belong to God and do not accept His Word. It is evident that they ought never to be permitted to teach such things in the church, or in the name of Christianity.

IV. Sin Calls for a Saviour (I John 2:1-6).

Christ the propitiation, the mercysent covering for our sins, is the only Saviour. He paid the price, and made it possible for God to be just and at the same time a justifier of the ungodly. The sinner needs such a Saviour.

Sin in the life of the believer also calls for a Saviour, one who will cleanse us (1:9) and who will in His own blessed name plead our cause "if we sin." He is our Advocate (2:1) pleading His righteousness in our behalf when we do fall.

This does not mean that we may then become indifferent or careless about sin. If we say we know Him and do not keep His commandments, we lie about our professed relationship to Him. The mark of a true child is a spirit of obedience. . . . God's children prove their love to Him by keeping His commandments. Talking about our devotion to Him, giving our service for Him, or sacrificing for His cause mean nothing if we do not obey Him. We only pile evidence upon evidence of our untrustworthiness by making claims and doing things which are negated by our disobedience.

Beloved Singer Pleaded For Mercy, Not Justice

The beloved Madame Schumann-Heink was a woman of rare charm and geniality. She was the first to make fun of her own shortcomings, and was often heard to comment good-humoredly on her decidedly matronly figure.

On one occasion, a fashionable portrait painter asked her to sit for her portrait. The plump opera star hesitated for a long while before making her decision.

"Don't be afraid," Madame," said the artist teasingly. "I'll do you justice."
"Ah," replied the prima donna, "it isn't justice I ask at your hands; it is mercy!"

Red Cross, OCD Look to Volunteers For Civil Defense

Washington, D. C.—To the question, "What can I do for America?" the Red Cross is providing an answer for hundreds of thousands of men and women who want to do their part on the civilian defense front.

For women, the Red Cross is providing an 80-hour training course to recruit a corps of 100,000 Nurse's Aides. It is the Red Cross' newest project, undertaken at the request of the U. S. Office of Civilian Defense to relieve the current pressure on nursing facilities.

With thousands of nurses being taken into military service with our armed forces, civilian nursing has suffered a direct blow, the Red Cross points out. Moreover, the defense program has created additional health problems which has heightened the need for civilian nursing.

Red Cross Nurse's Aides will serve as assistants to registered nurses, performing scores of important duties which will enable nurses to care for more cases. The Red Cross stresses that Nurse's Aides will not take the place of the registered nurse, but will serve in an auxiliary capacity.

On the more dramatic side of civilian defense, the Red Cross is gearing its far-flung disaster fighting machine to handle mass feeding, housing and clothing of ex-cases under wartime conditions. In cooperation with the Office of Civilian Defense, chapters

Are Banks Meeting the Country's Credit Needs?

A short while ago the answer to this question was largely guesswork, but now it can be answered by facts. The American Bankers Association has completed a nation-wide survey revealing that 6200 answering commercial banks (43 per cent of the country's total) made over 13,500,000 credit extensions involving over 20 billion dollars, in one recent six-month period. Obviously, there is no "bottleneck" in America's financial machinery.

U. S. Destroyer Kearny Makes Port Under Own Power After Torpedoing; 11 Crew Members Reported Missing; Japanese Form Militaristic Cabinet

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

KEARNY:

Major Incident:

Impact of the torpedoing of the destroyer Kearny near Iceland had been terrific. First reports of the incident indicated no loss of life but when the ship made port (under its own power) 11 crew members were listed as "missing" and 10 more as seriously injured.

The full report of Commander Danis had been awaited with eagerness, particularly after Nazi sources called the entire story a "flat lie" and stated that the Kearny had probably run into an American mine.

The denial had been expected, and the senatorial and congressional comment had been along expected lines. Nye said it was just the sort of thing the country could have looked for, in following the administration's foreign policy.

Most members of congress, however, took an extremely serious view of the situation, many permitting themselves to be quoted that "this might well be the spark needed to explode us into war."

The incident occurred when the house was debating the ship-arming bill, but was not believed to have had any particular effect on the debate, and the passage of the measure had been a foregone conclusion.

Chief among reactions to the torpedoing of the Kearny had been sur-

TOJO:

A New Regime

Another blow of shocking impact had been the sudden resignation of the Prince Fumimaro Konoye cabinet in Tokyo, and the prince's replacement by General Tojo, thus forming a frankly militaristic government.

It had been reliably reported that the Konoye resignation had been on a basis of "this government is unwilling to accept responsibility for a severe breach between the United States and Japan."

Japan's terms admittedly had been received, studied in Washington. Washington admittedly had been discouraged at the prospects of agreement. It may or may not be that this attitude had been conveyed to Konoye through the Japanese ambassador.

At all events, it was plain that the prince must himself have believed that agreement on the Pacific with the United States was impossible—and hence his resignation.

His successor—General Tojo. And one of his first utterances had been that his cabinet would make early and final "decision" as to what measures to take to end the crisis.

Coupled with this had been a strong and unequivocal affirmation of Japan's complete loyalty to the Axis.

Most observers had been watching Nazi Germany whipping Tokyo into action in the Pacific, obviously to create a new front, to divide the U. S. fleet, to lessen our aid to Britain, and to involve in a near-at-hand struggle the powerful continent of Australia.

These seemed plain facts and watching the developments, those who wished to avoid war with Japan were becoming gloomy indeed.

SUPPLY RACE:

In North Africa

British and German armies faced each other on the relatively quiet desert front, and military correspondents believed each was afraid to start a general attack unless the reserves of supplies guaranteed a fairly certain success.

Therefore, back of the front lines a race had developed, and trained watchers believed it might be weeks or months before one side or the other would gain a sufficient lead.

General Auchinleck commanded the British, while General Rommel was the German commander. It had been four months since the last real battle on the desert front, wrote one correspondent.

The British are receiving enormous quantities of goods via American ships calling at Suez. They were said to be arriving faster than they could be handled.

The British now have, it was said, thousands of motor-trucks, and enough light, fast tanks to make several motorized units. There are hundreds of new fighters and bombers of the latest types.

These developments, it was felt, would, within a few weeks, or a couple of months, be reflected in a terrific British drive in North Africa.

But the Germans and Italians are not idle, and the British Mediterranean fleet, harassed constantly from the air and by submarines, has been hard put to it to make a serious dent in the shipping lines from Europe to Africa, constantly laden with military supplies for Rommel's forces.

PANAMA:

Takes Step

The expected aftermath of the abdication and overthrow of President Arouffo Ariles of Panama followed when the little country in which hundreds of American-owned ships are registered, decided to permit the arming of merchant vessels.

This putting of ships in Panamanian registry was a device used by this country because of the neutrality act which forbids the vessels to enter belligerent ports.

Helping Hands

DES MOINES, IOWA.—Jim Harlan, Iowa state conservation commissioner, and Jane Wilson were on hand to see an egret begin its flight back to the South by means of artificial wings. The bird was fixed up with man-made "flappers" and sent from the Des Moines airport after its feathers failed to grow fast enough following an injury. It was to be released at New Orleans and will be out of the northlands before winter sets in.

PRICES:

No Action Yet

While congress debated the setting of ceilings on wages and prices and rents, without taking any definite action, Canada stepped into the breach and moved to halt inflation.

Prime Minister King said "the government has decided to halt the rise in prices, to undertake the control of all prices, and where necessary, take any other steps to control civilian consumption in fair and equitable ways."

He said that ceilings would be set on prices. He admitted it was going to interfere with business, would impose irksome restrictions. Then he announced that all prices would be frozen after November 17 on the basis of prices charged for that merchandise during the four weeks from September 15 to October 11.

He followed this with a system of controlling wages. Wages also were to be "frozen" at the same level, but employers would be required to pay bonuses in amounts that would vary from time to time according to nation-wide conditions.

The first step in prevention of inflation had been thus taken by our neighbor to the north.

WILLKIE:

Again to Fore

Though the isolationists and non-interventionists constantly were pointing to President Roosevelt as the "big, bad wolf" that was leading this nation into actual warfare, it was Wendell Willkie, former Republican candidate, who "beat the gun," and in an address urged the country to "face war."

A coincident reaction with Willkie's announcement was that congressional leaders began to think in terms not of passing the ship-arming bill, but of scrapping the entire Neutrality act.

"Let's kill the whole darned thing," many of them seemed to feel. Willkie told his listeners:

"Let us stop deluding ourselves. Berlin, Tokyo and Rome are irrevocably linked by the dangerous dream of world conquest. Victory for one is victory for all. Their aim is world domination, the destruction of liberty and the end of democracy."

"Our ships will continue to be torpedoed and sunk if we don't arm them fast. Axis victories will not end unless we deliver the goods."

"But even this is not enough. We must remove the show and deception of hypocritical neutrality laws. We must abandon the hope of peace."

"We can no more negotiate a peace with the war lords of Tokyo than with the conquering dictator of Berlin. On any continent, in every ocean, we can only stop these partners in piracy."

"They are winning now. Unless we act soon it will be too late."

RUSSIA:

A Defense

Though the defenders of Moscow had been putting up a brilliant and tenacious battle, it had become evident that only a military miracle could save the city.

Perhaps a weather miracle might, but though there was snow on the battlefields, and more was falling from time to time, there seemed no diminution in the ferocity of the German assault, or the man and machine power with which it had been delivered.

Of special interest to men interested in military maneuvering was the Nazi method, aided by its marvelously mechanized forces, in shifting the pressure suddenly from one front to another.

Moscow was assailed from three—from the northwest, along the road from Leningrad, from the west, along the historic "Napoleonic highway," and from the southwest, following the route from Orel.

Discounting wild rumors (there even had been one report that the Russians had recaptured Orel and Kajiin, two vital points lost at least a week before) it was apparent that the Germans had been able to make two lines out of the three—roughly called the right and left wings of the assault.

There could be little question that the cost to the invaders in men and material was heavy, but also there was little doubt that the retreat of the Red armies had of necessity been swift and a heavy drain on the Soviet material.

Grandiloquent Nazi claims of the smashing of Timoshenko's "eight armies" and the collapse of Russian resistance were perforce discounted as wishful thinking on the part of the Germans as daily gains dropped from a score of miles to a matter of hundreds of yards.

The Russian defenders on one day would be calling on their reserves to battle smashing assaults on the right, and then just as suddenly, be compelled to meet the same sort of action from the left.

Diplomats moved out of the city; the report was circulated that the government had moved to Katan.

Ivan Maisky, Soviet spokesman, asking for a complete pooling of British and Red resources, pledged the nation to fight on "regardless of . . . Moscow"—showing that the "we need a miracle" spirit was paramount even in the highest circles.

Riders of Buck River

THE STORY SO FAR: Ellen Carey seems interested in two men, Jeff Brand, a dashing rider, and Calhoun Terry, ranch manager. Four rustlers had been mysteriously killed and suspicion fastens on Terry and the ranchers, it turns out to have been the work of Jack Turley, a spy for the big ranchers about whom Terry had known nothing. Terry also protested, bringing in an army of Texas ex-peace officers to march upon the rustlers and kill them without trial. Terry and his foreman, Larry, are attacked by the "army," being mistaken for rustlers, and they rush to cover in a small cabin. There, too, Jeff goes thinking to aid fellow rustlers, Jeff is wounded.

CHAPTER XXX

Terry and Richards came into Round Top after dark. As they rode along the railroad tracks they became aware of unusual activity in the town. In the shadow of a loading chute they drew up. A man with a rifle in his hands cantered past. He shouted at them, "We aim to get a second troop of the boys off inside of an hour." He did not wait for an answer.

"This town has gone wild," Larry said. "I reckon maybe we'd better scout around here a little before we show ourselves. We're not exactly popular."

Cautiously they advanced toward the town square. A light gleamed from the back window of the Gazette office.

Calhoun Terry tapped on the window and Horace Garvey slewed round his parchment-like face.

"Who is it? What you want?" he snapped.

The Diamond Reverse B manager tapped again. He did not want to shout his name aloud. Garvey grunted impatiently. He peered out of the window.

"Don't you know I keep this back door locked with piles of paper in front of it?" he called out. "Who is it anyhow? Go round to the front door."

Calhoun's face came out of the darkness close to the window.

"Goddemighty!" Garvey exploded. "Haven't you got any sense at all?"

He began to haul bundles of paper from in front of the door. Presently he opened to let them in and led the way to a dark corner back of a press.

"What's the idea of coming to Round Top after your friends have pulled such a crazy outrage as this invasion?" he demanded.

Larry told the story of their adventures for the day. Garvey's eyes gleamed. "Good for you," he said. "Since you have broken with Ellison and his crowd it ought to fix you up with your old friends, as soon as I can get the Gazette out with the story. They will be glad to shake hands and make up. But I think you boys had better get out of town as soon as you can. Folks don't yet know your new position."

"We came in to see a cattleman about buying a bull for the new firm of Richards & Terry," said Terry. "Probably he has been waiting for us all day at the Holden House. We wouldn't think of going without a confab with him."

"Well, I'll bring him down here. I'll not have you crossing the courthouse square. Some fool would probably take a crack at you."

Terry discussed the matter of sending telegrams to Washington to induce the President to order troops from Fort Garfield. Garvey admitted that he thought it would be a good idea. Before morning, he told them, four or five hundred armed men would have left town to engage the invaders, and as many more would pour in from the ranch country to join them.

"I'll sign with you," Garvey said. Inside of thirty minutes the appeals for troops were on the way to Washington, and the story was spreading through the town that Calhoun Terry had wired the President to send government troops to fight with the big outfits and their hired Texans against the settlers.

Garvey brought the cattleman to the office from the hotel, and inside of five minutes of his arrival Terry and his new partner were the owners of an imported pedigreed Hereford bull. The editor hovered over them while the bargain was being struck, like an anxious hen with one chick.

"All right," he sputtered. "Now you've made your deal it's time to get out of town, Calhoun."

But they had waited too long. An irruption of angry citizens poured into the office through the front door to ask Garvey what he meant by signing a telegram requesting that troops be sent to help the invaders.

"It had Lane Carey's name on it too, and that scoundrel Terry's," Lee Hart yelled.

Horace Garvey felt goose pimples run down his back. The Diamond Reverse B men were in the shadowed semi-darkness back of a press. They had slipped out of sight as the first of the group showed in the doorway. But at any moment they might be discovered.

"You're getting this all wrong, Lee," the harassed editor insisted, his voice shrill with excitement. "Maybe you don't know that Cal saved Jeff Brand's life today when these Texans had him lying wounded on the ground."

"Who told you that fairy tale?" demanded a rough, unkempt nester who had a Winchester in his hands.

"Why—ask any of the boys who came down from Black Butte with Jeff."

"What? Which one? Put a name to him."

Garvey felt the sweat drops standing on his forehead. He did not know who had brought Brand to town.

"I didn't get it direct," he admitted weakly. "But I've heard talk, same as some of you must have done."

"Sure we've heard talk. We've heard these hired killers have rubbed out eight or ten of our friends and that you are trying to get the troops in to side with Ellison's men now they are getting in a jam."

"Not to side with them," Garvey explained desperately. "To stop a war where dozens of you boys will be killed. I'm not throwing you down but trying to stop a terrible slaughter. Can't you see where you are heading for if you don't keep cool? We don't want—"

"Cut it," interrupted Hart harshly. "We don't want any more guff from you. How come you to sign Terry's name on that telegram? Talk, fellow."

The nester with the Winchester in his hands craned a long scrawny neck forward. "Someone hiding in the back of the room," he announced. The rifle leaped to his shoulder. "Come outa there with yore hands up, whoever you are."

"Read nothing," Hart snarled.

Terry and Richards came out, not with their hands up.

The Diamond Reverse B manager answered the question Hart had put. "My name was on that telegram because I'm the man who sent it," he said quietly.

CHAPTER XXXI

There was a shift in the half-circle of men who fixed their attention on Terry and Richards. Lee Hart had been in the foreground, crowding the editor with snarling questions. Now he was back of the big nester with the Winchester. Over the shoulder of his shield he flung a triumphant shout at his enemy.

"Got you at last, you damn fool!" Looking round on the grim faces of these men, all armed, most of them ready to start out on a long ride to exterminate their foes, Terry guessed that never in his turbulent life had he been in more deadly peril.

"Larry and Horace are not in this," he said quietly. "Garvey has not thrown you down. He's on your side still. Larry is a hired rider. He is not responsible for what the Diamond Reverse B has done. I'm the manager."

"If Larry Richards claims he's not on yore side he keeps mighty bad company," jeered a red-headed rustler.

"I'm not claiming it, Red," Larry cut in coolly. "My chips are on the table alongside those of Cal."

Shrilly Garvey begged a chance to talk. "For God's sake, don't make a mistake, boys!" he cried. "Listen to me. Calhoun Terry is our friend. Take time to find out—"

"He's your friend, but not ours," Hart interrupted savagely. "We don't need any more time. I say, right now."

A man had walked in the front door and joined the group. He was Sheriff Hart. One sweeping glance was enough for him to size up the situation.

"Don't push on the reins, Lee," he said evenly. "These two men are my prisoners."

"How do you mean yore prisoners?" his brother blustered. "Ellison's warriors aren't taking any prisoners. That goes with us too."

The hard, unwinking eyes in the long-jawed, bony face of the sheriff looked almost contemptuously at his older brother. "Come out from back of Houck if you have anything to say, though it won't be important anyhow. I'm the law, and I'm arresting these men. Don't any of you get the wrong idea about that."

Terry knew that the sheriff had no friendliness for him, but he had no doubt that Nate Hart had interfered to prevent him and Larry from being killed.

"What are you arresting us for doing?" he asked. It did not matter what pretext was offered by the officer, but as a matter of form Calhoun made a protest. "We're peaceable citizens going about our lawful business."

"For conspiring to bring about an armed insurrection in the territory," the officer answered.

"Hmp! We came here to buy a registered bull from Mr. Murdoch here," Larry said. "We have done bought it. Now we're ready to leave and go back to the ranch. Looks to me like these gents who were working themselves up to bump us off when you sashayed in are doing the insuring."

"No use littering up the jail with them," Lee Hart urged. "I say hang them to a telegraph pole."

The sheriff drew a revolver. "I know all of you boys," he said quietly. "I'd hate to have to kill any of you, and I don't want to be killed myself. But I'm going to take these men to jail. If anybody interferes there will be trouble."

The cowboy Red threw in the hand for his group. "All right, Nate. If you want these fellows, take 'em. But be sure you don't let 'em go. We'll be hearing from the hills soon as to whether any of our friends have been murdered. And if they have, hell and high water can't keep us from busting into yore calaboose and hanging these birds high as Haman."

Red and his allies followed the arrested men to the jail, to make sure the sheriff did not release them. They posted a guard at both the rear and front doors. The leaders adjourned to the Crystal Palace and the Red Triangle to drum up sentiment in favor of a lynching.

Calhoun put the matter bluntly to the sheriff.

"Getting down to cases, Hart, what is your idea in locking us up?" he asked. "Are you holding us here till your friends are ready to lynch us?"

"I'm holding you here for your own safety. If I turned you loose you would never get out of town alive. You wouldn't get fifty yards from the jail door." Impatiently he added, "Why in hell did you come to town now?"

"Why shouldn't we come?" Terry wanted to know. "We have nothing to do with this crazy invasion. Ellison's men attacked us today and almost killed us. We rescued your friend Jeff Brand."

"The Diamond Reverse B is being cut up into small ranches, of which Larry and I are buying one. What have you against us except that we won't stand for having our stock rustled? The trouble with this town just now is that it is seeing red and can't think straight."

"If I could get Red and some of the other hotheads to go up to the house where Jeff is and talk with him they might get some sense thumped into their heads. But no chance of that now. They figure you are one of those who paid that two thousand dollars to Turley to ambush their friends. You may have been, at that. Even if you have quarreled with Ellison since then, that doesn't prove a thing, and far as that goes they only have your own say-so that you're not hock deep in this invasion." The sheriff slanted a suspicious look at Terry.

"Looks like you are, when you get off a telegram to the President asking him to send troops to support the big ranches in this business of killing settlers."

"That's not what I asked him to do," the Diamond Reverse B manager said. "Since the operator was in such a hurry to give out a private message he might at least have done so correctly."

Larry tossed a question at Hart. "Let's know where we're at, sheriff. Is it yore intention to ask us to give up our guns and wait in a cell for these galoots outside to break in and send us west? Because we have other views."

Nate Hart was a harassed man. "I didn't get you in this jam, Larry," he said. "You didn't have to come here and drop a match in a barrel of powder. I'm trying to save you, but I'll tell you straight that if any bad news comes to town the boys will attack the jail. It's only a flimsy shack. You know that. I aim to protect you if I can, and if it comes to a showdown I'll give you back your guns to help me stand them off. More than that I can't promise."

He added after a moment, "If I could get a chance to let you slip away I would."

"Since we're not prisoners you'd better let us keep our guns," Larry suggested. "You might be where you couldn't get them back to us when we have to have them."

The sheriff recognized the force of the argument. "All right," he said. "Keep them. I don't need to tell you if you begin shooting you are sunk."

Sound Films Available

Several 16 mm sound films are available to schools, civic clubs, farm groups and other organizations through the Farm Security Administration.

Films immediately available include "The River", "The Plow", "The Army in Overalls", "Power for Defense", and "Farmers and Defense".

Schools in Lincoln County could possibly use these films in teaching social studies.

"The River" has been acclaimed as one of the most important films ever produced. It is beautiful, impressive, cogent, poetic and emotionally moving. The other films are exceptionally timely because of the National Defense program.

Anyone interested in obtaining one or more of these films for showing in this county should contact Mr. John Paul Jones at his office in the Paden Building.

Mr. W. N. Hightower, age 78, ranchman, and retired water service man passed away at his home at Alto last Saturday, Oct. 26 and funeral services were held at Alto, followed by interment there. He had lived in Lincoln County for more than sixty years.
