

CARRIZOZO OUTLOOK

BUSINESS MEN'S CLUB

At the meeting of the Club Tuesday evening at the S. F. Hotel, 13 members answered the roll call of the secretary.

A. L. Burke made a motion, seconded by Dr. R. E. Blaney, that the Club pay a visit to some neighboring town in the near future, accompanied by the band. Mr. Burke was appointed chairman of the committee with Dr. Blaney and F. A. English as other members of said committee, to arrange such a trip and transportation for the band and club members.

Mr. Gray of the Forest Service at Captain is to be a guest of the Club on the night of April 2. Mr. Gray is arranging a program to present to the club members and their guests on the subject "Fire Prevention."

All members are urged to be present at that meeting and bring a guest, as this program will be very interesting from the viewpoint of fire prevention.

Frank Adams, Secretary.

Friday night at the El Coyote Queen's dance at High School, Georgine Carothers, five-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George N. Carothers and Roland Corp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Po-Corn took the parts of Miss Liberty and Uncle Sam, in the patriotic ceremony. These two children of high school faculty members, are of the same age, being born a few hours apart, on July 5, five years ago—Roswell Dispatch.

Claud Brannum and son C. A. Brannum, left this morning for El Paso to attend the meeting and rodeo of the Southwestern Livestock Association. They have reservations at the Del Norte and when they return, young C. A. will be able to tell us all about the big show.

How the heavenly housewife's arrest barred the Nazis new ugly spy system. The British could hardly believe that dummy Mrs O'Grady was a traitress, but now they know the Germans are hiring unattractive women for undercover jobs because pretty ones are more liable to get in trouble. Read of the astonishing way they discovered this and what they are doing about it.

Also—How the rocky romance of the love-smitten heiress was saved by the stroke of a pen. Louis Sobol, popular Broadway columnist, tells how nothing but trouble pursued the lively glamour girl after she eloped with the Rhumba expert, and it even looked like her hubby was a bigamist, till a sympathetic judge extricated them from their predicament. Don't miss this up-to-the-minute, illustrated feature in the American Weekly, the magazine with next week's Los Angeles.

Mrs. M. O. Langley of Hachita, is here to spend the week-end with her father, Jet Roalin and cousin, Mrs. Claud Brannum.

Tommy Cook is in Kansas City and is assistant bookkeeper at Witte-Koler engine works.

C. E. Degner is making an examination for Eastern interests on remaining properties in the Jicarilla District this week.

Dr. M. G. Paden was a visitor from White Oaks Monday. Dr. looks well after being ill.

Local Mention

Gunther Kroggel of the New Mexico Mechanical Equipment Company, mechanics, J. H. Howry and J. K. McCann, m a d e a business trip to Kansas City this week, attending to some important business for the above company, dealers in Diesel Engine products. They returned Wednesday evening.

Frank Adams, bookkeeper at the City Garage and Secretary of the Carrizozo Business Men's Club, m a d e a trip to Midland, Texas, the early part of last week, accompanied by his little daughter Frances. Leaving Frances at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. W. J. Allen, Frank went on to Dallas to attend to some business matters. On his return trip, he picked up Frances and the grandmother, bringing them to Carrizozo, where Mrs. Allen will visit at the Adams home for several weeks.

Mrs. F. E. Richard left yesterday for Tucuman to visit her daughter Mrs. George Cooper and the grandchildren for a week. There will be a big school program there tomorrow night in which the grandchildren will take part and naturally, Mrs. Richard is desirous of being present on that occasion.

The seven boys mentioned in the Net of Alibi for selective service, left by bus Monday for Santa Fe to enter the induction station, after which they will be sent to a training station somewhere in the United States. The School Band played several stirring numbers as a send-off to the boys going in for the year of training.

Virgil Jones of Nogal was here last week from Alamogordo, where he is with the S. P. water service.

S. P. Operator Elvia Harkey is receiving treatment in the company's hospital at San Francisco, we understand.

The two youths who stole the car at Corona last week and wrecked it, were given from 7 to 9 months in the pen. The boys accused of stealing gas and oil at Corona, will be tried in Carrizozo shortly. Les Cruces officers came over and returned with the two men and two women, who stole a car at Cruces and were nabbed here by immigration officers.

Wm. Sultemeier of Vaughn is assisting at the local bank during R. E. Lemon's absence, who is in Roswell for a week.

A. S. McCamant, Mr. and Mrs. George Clements, Jr. were business visitors from Corona this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Tino Lopez were Alamogordo visitors yesterday.

A. E. Huntsinger of the local Citizens Bank, came over from Vaughn last night and will remain over the week-end with that popular banking institution.

The Town Council has installed a pipe system with which to irrigate the Town Park, the pipes being run from the storage tank out over the entire park, so that water can be turned on at any place over the area. Caretaker John Scharf supervised the work of laying the pipes.

JUAN ROMERO

Mr. Juan Romero, aged pioneer of Lincoln County, passed away at his home in the east side Wednesday night after a short illness. Father Salvatore will conduct the funeral this afternoon and interment made in the local cemetery. Mr. Romero resided in Lincoln for many years, coming to Carrizozo in the early days. From here he moved on a homestead near Ancho and after selling it, he and his family again moved to Carrizozo about 11 years ago, where his wife died shortly after. Mr. Romero was an honest citizen and a good neighbor and his friends were many. To his foster son, Nathan Adler and other relatives, the sympathy of this community is tendered.

LEADERSHIP IN ACTION

Leadership is the pinnacle of every competitive enterprise. Frigidaire has been the leader in the refrigeration business for many years—far too many for anyone to call it luck! Last year, the crowning achievement of these many years of leadership was exemplified by the building and sale of the six millionth Frigidaire. Frigidaire has the exclusive Quickcube trays, ice cubes released instantly and the famous Mater-Mixer, simplest refrigerating mechanism ever built. Super-powered, whisper-quiet, permanently sealed, never needs oiling. Cuts current cost. If a refrigerator does not bear the Frigidaire name plate, it is not a Frigidaire. Be sure you get a genuine Frigidaire. See the Lincoln County Utilities Company for arrangements.

Pleasure Riding Horses At Aguayo Ranch

Daniel P. Branton, who recently purchased the Aguayo ranch in Tortolita canyon has placed 4 of what are known as the Tennessee Walking Horses, considered by experts to be the greatest pleasure riding horses on account of their tame disposition and easy gaits.

These horses have three gaits, the flat foot walk, the running walk and the easy canter. By the name, walking horses, it means that they are trained in that manner to insure safety, and comfort for sight-seers. These horses, as we understand it, are to be used for the benefit of Mr. Branton's eastern guests and the ranch as a whole, will be overhauled and new buildings are now being erected for the convenience and comfort of the tourists. The horses now here, are Hartbrook Allen, Lady in White, Copper Princess and Patty Walker. They are young, full of life, yet gentle as lambs, Charley Page is the ranch foreman and the selection was well made, for Charley certainly knows the ranch business to a "tyt."

'Aguinaldo Is Captured!'

Forty years ago this month America had a new national hero. He was Frederick Funston, a native of Ohio and a soldier of fortune who had aided the Cubans in their struggle to throw off the yoke of Spain, then organized the Twentieth Kansas Volunteers at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war and arrived in the Philippines with his regiment in time to help Gen. Wesley Merritt capture Manila in November, 1898.

Meanwhile Emilio Aguinaldo had declared himself president of the revolutionary government of the

GEN. FRED FUNSTON

Philippines and started an insurrection against the new rulers of the islands.

There was constant fighting throughout 1899 and 1900 but always Aguinaldo, the leader of the insurgents, eluded capture. During 1900 he apparently gave up the struggle, but in January, 1901, he ordered the insurgent forces in southern Luzon to join him at his rendezvous in the province of Isabela.

However, the messenger to whom he entrusted this order, surrendered to the Americans in February and, upon securing the information as to Aguinaldo's whereabouts, Funston determined upon a daring plan to capture the Filipino leader.

Taking with him Captains H. W. Newton and Russell T. Hazzard, Lieutenants Oliver P. M. Hazzard and Burton J. Mitchell and a company of 60 Macabebes, who spoke the Tagalog languages, he was landed on a beach south of Casiguran in the province of Principe on March 13, 1901. Aguinaldo's messenger also went with the expedition and he and the Macabebe scouts were to pass themselves off as a detachment of insurgent Tagalogs who had captured the five Americans and were taking them as prisoners to Aguinaldo. After marching seven days and nights, the party reached a point eight miles from Palanan, Aguinaldo's hiding place.

A message, stamped with the seal of General Lacuna, was sent forward to Aguinaldo and a prompt response was received, welcoming the party. The Americans and their take Tagalogs hastened forward.

Funston entrusted the actual capture to a Spaniard, Iazaro Segovia, and a detachment of the scouts. The story, as Funston told it later, follows:

"Running up the bank toward the house, we were met by Segovia, who came running out, his face aglow with exultation and his clothes spattered with the blood of the men he had wounded. He called out in Spanish: 'It is all right; we have him!'"

"We hastened into the house and I introduced myself to Aguinaldo, telling him that we were officers of the American army, that the men with us were out troops, and not his, and that he was a prisoner of war. He was given assurance that he need fear no bad treatment."

The One Over

AIR TRAVEL ON CREDIT

Seventeen air lines have announced an installment plan for air travel. No down payment is required. You get a ticket to go up if your credit rating proves you are the sort of person who will come down and make good.

The idea should bring many more customers. Lots of people would fly if they knew it wouldn't cost them a cent until after they had landed.

This is the first time in flying history that it has been possible to risk your neck on a credit basis.

It is almost like hoping, collect-on-delivery.

And it is going to seem strange, but highly satisfying to get out of a clipper and just say, "Put it on my bill."

This credit idea has already been introduced by some railroads. You can take a transcontinental choo-choo-ride now on the so-much-down-and-so-much-a-month basis, and the idea is proving popular. Americans like to travel on the cuff, and there is something highly satisfying in being able to owe a railroad money.

When you have to plank down your money before you even get by the iron gates at a railroad terminal it takes something out of the trip. No matter how good the scenery is you discount it on the ground that it ought to be better for that much money.

If you are jerked out of an upper berth by a green engineer or bad brakes it is all the more exasperating when you know the discomforts have been paid for in advance.

But if you owe the railroad for the trip it's not so annoying.

The same will be true of airplane travel. Your hair may stand on end at the thought of a cross-country flight, but it becomes much easier to handle with a brush and comb when you know the company can't take a dime of your dough in advance.

And if you are dropping down by parachute, think of the satisfaction of knowing that it's all being done on the deferred payment plan!

There will be the kick, too, of getting a bill from the air line company with a "please remit" notation and dashing off a little note: "Gentlemen: Your bill for flight to Chicago received and in reply I beg to state that I did not enjoy the trip. It was very bumpy, the plane was two hours late and it was so cloudy that I did not see half the scenery I was entitled to. I was not satisfied and hope there can be an adjustment."

"P. S.—The hostess wasn't good-looking, either. I should say she wasn't within $10 of the good looks of the hostess on my previous trip so you can take something off my bill for this, too."

Defense workers are being housed in trailers in some parts of the country. After a night in a trailer a man must be pretty glad of a chance to go to the shop where he can get a good rest.

The horse seems to be finished in the army, but it requires a lot of imagination to picture anybody shouting: "A tank, a tank, my kingdom for a tank!"

Two hundred thousand workers in the printing trades want radio advertising curbed. In this they have the hearty support of at least 99 per cent of the radio audience.

In this department's opinion radio advertising is, most of the time, offensive, annoying and a darned nuisance. Elmer Twitchell, for instance, is so bothered by it that he lists all the products ballyhooed on the air waves so he will remember what NOT to buy.

"Hellzapoppin'" was performed for the draftees recently. This gave the boys a chance to laugh at the jokes that cheered their fathers up 25 years ago.

We can't be very close to war yet. George Cohen hasn't written a song for it.

An average of $80 was spent by every family in the country for entertainment last year, mostly moving pictures. That's a lot of money to spend for cinematic soap operas.

Star Dust

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

ERNEST LUBITSCH recently signed a contract with 20th-Century Fox that promises us something special in the way of movies. He will choose and direct his own stories. Some will have the celebrated Lubitsch touch applied to tales that he feels are particularly suitable. He has one more picture to do for United Artists before he starts out on his new contract.

Merle Oberon says that she knows it's silly, but she can't help being affected by the roles she plays. For instance, after a day of "Wuthering Heights" she'd go home and cry herself to sleep, because she was so depressed.

"In 'The Cowboy and the Lady' I was somewhat of a spoiled brat and I had to watch myself to keep from being as demanding off the screen as I was on," Miss Oberon continued.

"With a good many innocent bystanders the effect was just the reverse. After they saw 'Wuthering Heights" they rushed out and demanded more pictures as good as that one, but 'The Cowboy and the Lady' sent them weeping to their corners because it was so bad.

MERLE OBERON

Anyway, Miss Oberon jumped at the chance to play a modern, witty young wife in "That Uncertain Feeling," opposite Melvyn Douglas, because she felt that it had something very special for her—a chance to be just herself. It's a Lubitsch picture.

Martha Scott won a horse in a raffle the other day—it cost her all of a dollar, and it's called Red Ember. Then the producer of "They Dare Not Leave," in which she is co-starred with George Brent, saw the horse and announced that it was exactly what he needed for William Holden to ride in "Texas," which he is also producing. So Red Ember was signed up, and will earn $25 a day when he works.

If, when you see Margaret Hayes' face on the screen, it looks familiar, it will be because you've seen it before. She was a model for New York artists and photographers, and a well known one, before she went to Hollywood, and her name in those days was Dana Dale. She has the second leading feminine role in "The Night of January 16th," supporting Ellen Drew and Robert Preston, and look for her in "Sky-lark," with Claudette Colbert.

Rita Rita has had quite a career during the last two years as a band leader, singer and dancer; she's appeared on Broadway and at theaters throughout the United States. Paramount signed her up to appear as the tropical rival of Dorothy Lamour in "Aloha of the South Seas"—and promptly changed her name to Rita Shaw! It was a case of necessity, though. Metrol's just bought the screen rights to the musical, "Rita Rita," from RKO and will give us a new version of it.

It's simple enough to make a fortune these days. First, you write a play that's a success on Broadway; second, you sell it to the movies. Recently Paramount paid $225,000 for "Lady in the Dark," in which Gertrude Lawrence gives a superb performance—Irene Dunne is probably the only motion picture actress who could handle it. Columbia liked "My Sister Eileen," an amusing play, well enough to buy it for $225,000.

William Holden's dispute with Paramount was settled very satisfactorily; he got a new, seven-year optional contract, at double his former salary. You'll see him before long starring in Columbia's "Texas."

ODDS AND ENDS—George Tobin sets a new record by playing in four Warner Bros. films at the same time. Abbott and Costello have signed up to make four more comedies for Universal. Metrol's acquired quite a menagerie—200 deer and 12 horses—for "The Tracker." Bud Robinson, star of "The Red Doctor," is collecting assortment of surgical instruments from doctors and medical men. Some—such as those in England, where there's a shortage. Somebody's started a rumor that there will be no more Cross Keys and Sticky Beavers, which seems a fantastic rumor for Hollywood, where practically anything can happen.

Boy Choir Class Proves Popular

Incentive Needed for Good Work Is Provided in Singing School.

COLUMBUS, OHIO.—A school where classes daily start 10 to 15 minutes early with pupils "rarin' to go"—that's Columbus' unique boys' choir school.

The 48 pupils are a bunch of live-wire, red-blooded boys, each with a distinct personality, but all have one burning desire in common—to sing. And sing they do. The first thing every morning, and that's why everyone's always on time.

Like tardiness, truancy is no problem—says Headmaster Harry C. Marshall, who reports the boys are better than average students although they're selected for their musical talent rather than scholastic proficiencies.

Good Grades Required. But like college athletes, who must maintain good grades to engage in their favorite sports, the 11 to 15-year-old choir school boys must do well in the classroom or they're ineligible to sing.

Except for the singing classes, which occupy about an hour and a half each day, the school is operated much like any other. Because it's non-denominational and has no church affiliation it's the only school of its kind in the nation, according to the organizer, Herbert Huffman.

The youngsters are the kind you'll find in any neighborhood. They're rough, but black eyes are of minor importance. A good fight and even a broken tooth are accepted by the faculty as inevitable.

Almost uncanny, though, is the quiet that surrounds their play. Because they're proud and careful of their voices, yells and shouts are rarities.

Four grades—fifth, sixth, seventh, and eighth—make up the school. Its curriculum is closely coordinated with that of the public schools. Headmaster Marshall formerly was principal of the city's largest junior high school.

Can't 'Buy' Entrance. When a boy's voice changes he leaves the school choir and returns to the public school from which he transferred.

Parents can't "buy" their son's way into the school, as all the pupils are selected on the basis of voice and musical aptitude. The 48 were chosen from 300 applicants and many are from poor families.

Musical and civic-minded individuals contribute toward the $150-a-year pupil cost. Tuition is paid only by those families who can afford it.

The school opened last September, growing out of a choir project sponsored by the Kiwanis club.

"We decided to organize the school because the choir singing was interfering with the boys' regular school work," explained Organizer Huffman. "As it was we were continually asking principals to excuse the boys whenever the choir had an engagement."

"Now we have the entire choir available at noon or any time we need it. We're also able to give the boys more personalized supervision and break up the choir rehearsals so they won't be too long."

Youth, 16, Outstanding Fly Caster in Country

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Sixteen-year old Colin Samuelson, Minneapolis high school youth, ranks as one of the greatest bait and fly casters in the nation.

A member of the All-American fly team and rated as one of the five best rod and reel experts in the nation, Colin began practicing with a rod in 1934.

Discouraged by lack of strikes while fishing near Fort Dodge, Iowa, Samuelson began trying to hit objects floating in the water. A month later, he purchased a rod and reel of his own and began practicing on regular casting targets.

Tighten Rules on Visitors To Army and Navy Offices

WASHINGTON.—Drastic restrictions have been imposed on visitors to the army and navy departments to lessen the possibility of espionage and sabotage.

Special badges have been issued to all officers and employees, bearing their names and photographs, to permit their passage by guards in both buildings. All persons without badges must establish their identity before entering either department and will be escorted to and from the offices of officials they wish to see.

Peddling and loitering have been banned. No large packages may be carried out of the buildings without permission.

Son Gets Mess Kit His Dad Used Back in 1911

PETERSBURG, IND.—World war memories were revived for Lane Lang, a gardener, when his son, Lane Lang Jr., wrote that he had been issued a mess kit carved with his father's name and a skull and crossbones at the Phoenix, Ark., CCC camp.

Partners. They have been in the hotel business for many years. At first they were close friends. What came between them my informant could not say. But for some time they have so disliked each other that they do not speak. That means of course that their business transactions are carried on through a third party, a capable woman secretary who transmits questions and answers and makes records of decisions. A stipulation is that the firm that handles the advertising and publicity for the hotel must see that if the name of one partner appears in a story, the other's does also. One week the name of only one partner was mentioned. The other refused to O. K. the bill and as checks must bear both names, there was an impasse until the partner who had been publicized gave his personal check. Curiously enough, through the years the hotel has prospered.

Street Scene: An apartment house doorman in a blue and gold uniform and with silver hair, helping a mother with a perambulator through a door . . . and the woman not even thanking him for his services . . . A taxi swings up to the curb . . . The doorman opens the cab door and assists a young couple to alight . . . As the taxi goes on its way, a woman tenant comes out and petulantly informs him that he should have detained the cab because she wants to go downtown . . . He steps out into the traffic, gets a cab for her, helps her in and closes the door carefully . . . A costly car, driven by a liveried chauffeur, draws up to the curb . . . A prosperous-looking man gets out, shakes hands with the doorman and chats with him . . . The doorman was once a contractor . . . and the man in the costly car was his chief clerk.

Strictly Business: To build up business for a chain of drug stores, numbers were selected at random from the telephone book and whoever answered was informed that if he or she would go to the neighborhood store a dollar would be paid. One of the lucky ones was an attractive young woman employed as a secretary. She went to the store and collected and the next day told fellow office workers what had happened.

"I suppose you were a good enough sport to spend the dollar in the store," remarked an elderly gentleman.

"Well," replied the young woman, "I did ask the man if they had any postage stamps."

Oh, Dear: Hilda Burke, eye-filling soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, was invited to be guest soloist at the silver jubilee convention of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America. For the occasion she selected a song she felt was especially appropriate. Titled, "My Gown," the words describe in detail the various processes that go into the making of a woman's dress.

When Miss Burke arrived at Madison Square Garden, she found the place packed. After she had finished singing, the convention president approached her with a smile on his face.

"That song was beautiful," he said, "but this is a convention of men's clothing workers."

He Had the Traffic Up a Tree, Anyway

LYNN, MASS.—Max Baden thinks the poet had the wrong idea—it should have been, "Tree, Spare That Woodsman." Baden spent an hour chopping down a tree in his front yard. A miscalculation resulted in the tree falling across the street, blocking traffic. Baden spent the rest of the day cutting up the tree.

TIPS to Gardeners

GARDENING AS HOBBY

GARDENING as a hobby can be made to pay excellent dividends. As an example, a Missouri woman reports she made a net profit of $300 from her two-thirds-acre garden in a single season. Figured at market prices, food used fresh was $230; food canned, $80; and food stored, $71. Seed and sets cost her only $20.

There are two major requisites to obtaining garden profits of this kind. They are willingness to work and the use of quality seed. It is important also to devote considerable space to multiple purpose crops like beets, onions, and tomatoes—crops that can be used in a variety of ways.

Here, briefly, are the uses of principal multi-purpose crops: Onions—green, as relish; mature bulbs fried, stewed, or as seasoning; bulbs for pickle, and relish making; tops for seasoning; bulbs for storage. Tomatoes—fresh fruits for slicing or stewing, for immediate table use; for canning, or for making tomato juice, or tomato catsup; green tomatoes for frying, or for use in pickle relishes, or in pie filler (like mince meat); yellow fruits for preserves, juice, or immediate table use.

Cabbage—fresh in slaw, or salad; cooked for table use; canned as kraut, or stored. Beets—tops for greens; roots cooked fresh, canned, pickled, or stored.

Don't be a Blowhard!

Remember that your nose is not made of rubber. If you keep on blowing and blowing, it's bound to become red, sore, and swollen. So stop blowing.

The easy, modern way to clear stuffed-up nostrils due to a cold is to use Mentholatum. All you need do is insert this gentle ointment inside your nostrils—spread some outside, too. See how quickly it clears up the stuffiness and relieves irritation—how it checks sniffing and sneezing.

Once you use Mentholatum you'll say it's wonderful. It helps in so many different ways that you should always remember this: For Discomforts of Colds—Mentholatum. Link them together in your mind.

Real Necessities Necessity hath no law. Feigned necessities, imaginary necessities, are the greatest cozenging men can put upon the Providence of God, and make pretences to break known rules by.—Cromwell.

MIAMI BEACH.—The keen combination of two Dodger managers, Larry MacPhail and Leo Durocher, nominates two stars for an exceptional season. They are Ducky Medwick and Peevee Reese. MacPhail believes that young Reese will be the star infielder of the National circuit and that Medwick will be the star outfielder for 1941. This may be peering into the future with rose-tinted glasses, but that happens to be the way MacPhail and Durocher feel about it as the training season gets well under way.

"I've never seen a fellow train harder than Medwick has trained this spring," MacPhail said. "He is not only in great physical shape, but he will show you more spirit than you've seen in a long time. There'll be no tightening up as there was last summer. He is still in his prime, ready to move at top speed."

The Right Way to Train

"I've discovered," Medwick told me, "that the best way to get in shape is to keep in shape. That's what I've done all winter. I was in shape before the bunch arrived. I can honestly say I've never faced a season with the keenness I feel now.

"I'd like to bet somebody," MacPhail said, "that Brooklyn will show you the most spirit in either league. Every man on the club knows we are all shooting for a pennant, and that we have a first-class chance to win."

"What about those Red pitchers?" I asked MacPhail. "Meaning Walters, Derringer and Thompson, to mention only a few?"

"They may not be as tough this season as they were the last two years," MacPhail said. "Paul Derringer is still a great pitcher, but he isn't any rookie."

"For that matter you are going to see much better pitching this season on the Brooklyn side of the fence. Much better. Higbe alone will make a big difference. I think he'll do better than 20 wins. He may even reach 25 with his share of the breaks. Hamlin will be more than useful. So will Wyatt. Out of the lot we'll get at least four good starting pitchers, with others who can help a lot."

"And don't forget what I told you about Reese. He means a lot to a ball club."

Brooklyn is still the "people's choice." No other club in baseball has so many far-flung hamlets working along Rooters' Row, pulling for Brooklyn to win.

The answer is that Brooklyn is baseball's daffiest baseball town, with the lone exception of Detroit.

Baseball to Brooklyn is something more than a pleasant way to kill off a summer afternoon. It is a big part of the soul of the old city, where the average fanatic begins practicing quick starts for the baghouse early in March.

And now Brooklyn has a showman and a ball club that carry an even deeper appeal than usual. Both Reds and Cardinals will have to be stronger than they were last summer to keep these Dodgers from boiling over.

Their Main Problem

According to most of the master minds connected with the Dodgers, their main problem is center field.

"If we get this spot fixed up in the right way I don't think any club can beat us," one of them told me. "If we don't, the job will be a lot tougher. You know how important center field play is to any championship club. The key of winning strength runs through the middle—catcher—pitcher—second base and center. Both shortstop and second baseman are concerned with second-base play. I think we'll get this fixed up. But it is the only spot now that is giving us any worry."

Larry MacPhail has worked out a Dodger spring schedule that will keep his earnest athletes hard at work until opening day.

"It's not as tough, however, as it looks," he said. "We've split the work up among two or three teams to give everyone a chance to show what he has under fire. No one will be overworked and I don't believe there is any chance that we'll hit the old home yard tired or stale. This part of our training will be closely watched. We have enough reserve strength this time to send in relief when it is needed."

Speaking of SPORTS

By ROBERT McSHANE

A QUICK glance at the crystal ball is enough to convince most interested observers that the University of Chicago will not long remain a member of the Big Ten athletic conference. If a crystal ball isn't handy, an equally quick look at Chicago's latter-day athletic record would be just as effective.

The University of Chicago, as you may remember, withdrew from Western conference football on December 21, 1939. That move caused no end of sorrow to the university's followers.

But Chicago's sports program hadn't yet reached its depth. This year the Maroons failed to win a single conference basketball game. Taking cognizance of this alarming state of affairs, Robert Maynard Hutchins, the university's widely quoted president, announced that if a losing basketball team has a depressing effect on the student body, then Chicago will abolish basketball—at least in its present competitive form. The university, under this plan, would meet opposition less keen than that found in Big Ten circles.

With this announcement the ghostly chorus on the Midway was swelled by the more earthly cries of Western conference athletic directors. Several of those directors were quite outspoken in their opinions that the conference would be much better off if the Maroons were to withdraw from all team competition. Wendell S. Wilson, athletic director of the University of Illinois, in the most direct attack on Chicago's president since that school quit conference football, declared that "I am sick and tired of reading newspaper and magazine quotations in which Mr. Hutchins attacks our intercollegiate program."

A Wasted Chance
"I feel myself guilty, along with some other athletic director of the Big Ten, for not voting to drop Chicago from the conference. Hutchins' repeated statements are a handicap to the athletic policy in the Western conference schools."

Wilson's attitude was expressed recently when he appeared before his fellow athletic directors with a resolution calling upon Chicago to leave the Big Ten. Wilson was considerably piqued at Hutchins' frequent utterances against the intercollegiate sports program. The university president has admitted that he does not believe other schools in the Western conference conduct their athletics along ethical lines.

The resolution was tabled, the board announcing that it did not consider it within their department to take action.

The whole question should be solved with a minimum of ill feeling and delay. President Hutchins, by word and action, has indicated that membership in the Big Ten is a matter of secondary importance to the University of Chicago. Athletic directors of the remaining nine schools would be, for the most part, more than satisfied if Chicago would withdraw from team competition.

Schedule Changes

Under present conference basketball regulations every school plays home-and-home series with three "traditional" rivals and one game with each of the others. A round robin play card, with home-and-home games against every other team, is considered most desirable, but with 10 teams, the conference faculty committee will not approve 18 championship matches when there is an over-all limit of 20 games per season.

Should Chicago drop out of basketball competition the round robin would be quite feasible since only 16 championship games would be required. If Chicago continues in the Big Ten, then the conference may go back to its old schedule system under which some teams did not play others even once in a season.

Chicago already has dropped football. The school lost no students in so doing. Its academic prestige certainly has not suffered. Mr. Hutchins, spokesman of his college, expressed no deep regrets when he mentioned separation from the conference.

All in all, it might be advisable for Mr. Hutchins to announce Chicago's willingness to withdraw from conference competition. The final separation would be much less painful than any aggression action on the part of other schools.

And it would pave the way for admittance to the conference of a school whose athletic program more closely approximated those of other Big Ten members.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

ONE little, two little, three little fashions—all in one easy pattern (No. 1313-B) that even inexperienced-at-sewing mothers can make with more fun than effort. This design includes a sleeveless pinafore, a brief trifle of bolero and a sunbonnet, all as cute as a baby in a bathtub! In the flaring pinafore alone, your tot can be as carefree and hoydenish as she could wish, playing on the sands or the greensward or her own backyard. When she adds the bolero, she's as demurely dressed for a visit to grandma as you could wish. The eye-protecting bonnet, of course, goes beautifully with either or both.

This little outfit looks adorable in red-checked gingham, flowered percale, plain or striped seersucker and buttercup yellow chambray, outlined with bright ricrac braid to match or contrast.

Pattern No. 1313-B is designed for sizes 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years. Size 3 requires 2 1/2 yards of 35-inch material without nap and 8 yards of ricrac. Send order to:

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

HOUSES of glass are realities today and, if you want to give any house a modern air, try to make the windows seem important. One way is to frame them in a group by covering the wall and leaving the glass exposed. A comparison of these two sketches shows that this may be done even though the windows are unevenly spaced. The cream colored walls, glass curtains and window shades are the same in both and the same two-toned green rug and the same lamp and pictures are used. The couch and cushions are also the same but the covers are new.

An inexpensive chintz with gray-green ground and a flower pattern

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Put small cooked hamburger cakes between two hot biscuit halves and top them with a brown savory gravy or well-seasoned white sauce. You'll like these.

Wire and iron bed-springs that become rusty should be given a coat of paint.

Pillow slips iron easier lengthwise.

Meat should not be seasoned until it is partially cooked.

Put your white wash on the sunny side of the line and keep the colored clothing in the shade.

A strong railing to prevent falls and plenty of headroom are two important necessities for any safe cellar steps. When the steps are in a dark place, several coats of white paint applied to the steps will make for greater safety.

KNOW YOUR BANK

The Trend in Bank Service

The objective of banking in the past decade has been to extend banking service to the greatest possible number of people. To that end banks have made loans available to a greater number through personal loans, and through the financing of automobiles and household appliances. They have made it possible for a greater number to have the advantages of a checking account through the installation of a plan of making moderate charges to pay for the service rendered and not requiring any particular amount of balance. These and many other services are offered to the American public today. We have services in this bank which can be used by everyone. We invite you to come in and let us explain them to you.

A REPORT to America

The Ford Motor Company's business has always been to serve the needs of the American people. In providing them with low-cost transportation for the past 38 years, we have developed one of the country's largest and most useful industrial units. During a national emergency, we feel that these facilities should be devoted without reserve to our country's needs.
 Toward that end we started rolling months ago, with these results:

1 A $21,000,000 Ford airplane engine factory, started only 6 months ago, is nearly completed. Production will start with an initial order for 4,236 eighteen cylinder, air-cooled, double-row, radial engines.

2 We are building a new $800,000
 Ford magnesium alloy foundry, one of the few in the country. It is already producing lightweight airplane engine castings.

3 Army reconnaissance cars—military vehicles of an entirely new type—are rolling off special Ford assembly lines at the rate of more than 600 a month. We have produced
 Army staff cars and bomber service trucks.

4 The government has given the “go-ahead” and work is now under way for the fast construction of an $11,000,000 Ford plant to produce bomber airframe assemblies by mass production methods.

5 Several months ago work was started, on our own initiative, on an entirely new 1500-horsepower airplane engine especially designed for mass production. This engine is now in the test stage and plans are being developed for producing it in large quantities when and if needed.

6 A Ford aircraft apprentice school has been established, to train 2000 students at a time.

That is a report of progress to date.

The experience and facilities of this company can be used to do much of the job which America now needs to get done in a hurry.

Our way of working, which avoids all possible red tape, enables us to get results and get them fast. This benefits users of our products and workers who produce them.

We are ready to make anything we know how to make, to make it to the limit of our capacity if need be, to make it as fast as we can go, and to start the next job whenever our country asks us to. And to this end, we know we have the full confidence and loyal support of the workmen throughout our plants.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS. By Edward C. Wayne

U. S. Would Speed 'All Out' British Aid With Appropriation of Seven Billions; Landing of British Troops in Greece Adds Confusion to Balkan Situation

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

With the labor situation in the defense industries much in the news these prominent labor leaders called at the White House to discuss with the President the formation of a national mediation board for settling all disputes in defense production. Photo shows: (Left to right) H. C. Bates, president Brickmasons and Plasterers union; O. W. Tracy, assistant secretary of labor; Sidney Hillman, defense commission; Allen S. Haywood, C. I. O. official, and A. Johnson, locomotive engineers official, as the group left the White House.

SPEECHES:

Two Leaders

In an address that was carried by radio to all parts of the world, President Roosevelt called for an American "total effort" to provide nations resisting aggression with the war implements they need. Speaking before a gathering of the White House newspaper correspondents, the President declared in effect that the aim of the United States is "total victory" over the dictators. He said that this cannot be achieved without some very definite sacrifices on the part of the American people.

He called for a maximum output of war materials by the United States and stressed the high importance of national unity. He expressed the thought that the British people and their Grecian allies needed ships, planes, food, tanks, guns, ammunition and supplies of all kinds. He followed this with the statement that America would provide them with all these things.

Day later Adolf Hitler spoke to his countrymen and told them that no amount of outside help would permit the British to defeat the Axis powers. He did not refer directly to President Roosevelt's speech.

Germany, according to Hitler, has been preparing throughout the past winter for a final drive to victory in 1941. He predicted that this final victory would come "on land, sea, or air or in any part of the earth."

BRITISH:

First Again

The British, who have been trying their utmost to get the jump on their Nazi and Fascist opponents since Germany made hash out of French and British armies on the West Wall, apparently had beaten the Germans to the punch on the northern Greek front.

The story came, not from British sources, but from the Nazi officials in Belgrade, Yugoslavia. The move had two important objects, apparently, one to attempt the hopeless task of keeping Yugoslavia in line as a possible Nazi opponent in a drive on Greece, the other to put troops into position for a swift and powerful defense against a Nazi invasion from Bulgaria.

The story was that 100,000 soldiers, including shiploads of munitions, tanks and other mechanized equipment, sufficient for five full divisions, had been landed and were taking up positions on Greek soil opposite to the estimated 800,000 Nazis in Bulgaria.

The original informant said that official denials could be expected both from the Greeks and the British.

However, entirely unofficially, British authorities told correspondents in London that the reports of the landing of the British forces in Greece "probably were well founded."

Germany immediately denied any knowledge of the movement, and as the Greeks were not letting newspaper men into that territory, but indeed were evacuating everyone in expectation that it would be a battleground, the entire story was impossible of positive confirmation.

The same report said that Germany was wheeling her mechanized forces, and her planes into position for immediate attack.

CHINESE:

For Britain

One of the most unusual dispatches, never confirmed, but never denied, emanated from Tokyo, and told how the Chinese nationalist government was sending a million Chinese men to Britain's Malay possessions to serve as soldiers.

The men, according to this story, will be armed and outfitted for the Far East defenses by American shipments of arms and ammunition.

According to reports brought to Belgrade by neutral diplomats, five ships a day have been coming into southern ports in Greece, and have moved forward to take positions in the central part of the country, readily accessible to the northern frontier.

Die Is Cast

The move by the British meant that they had cast the die, that they were going to move in full force to the aid of Greece, and hence that if Germany wants to force a separate peace with Greece it will have to be a real military victory, and not merely diplomatic pressure.

This move, together with the landing at Salonika, was not without a powerful effect on Turkey, which, unlike Yugoslavia, seemed to have some ability to stand out against the Nazi intruders, and to hold herself in alliance with Greece and Britain, in accordance with the wishes of the government majority.

While Berlin refused to confirm the reports, and refused to comment on them in any way, it was considered ominous that the statement should be made in a Nazi communiqué that "the moment had now come for a decisive act in German-Greek relations."

ENVOY:

'Means Business'

W. A. Harriman marched up to newspaper men on the Bristol, England, airport as a special representative of President Roosevelt and said these words:

"Believe me, the United States means business in this war."

They were cheering words to the English, and at the same time in this country President Roosevelt's lease-lend plan went zooming ahead, with congressional approval of the $7,000,000,000 implementation of the law of certainty.

It was within the same week of the passage of the British aid act that the house subcommittee swept into instant action and approved the amount.

President Roosevelt already had "sold" senate and house leaders that the amount was no figment of the imagination, thought up hurriedly, but was, rather, the carefully considered amount which would take care of a sizeable aid to Britain program for the life of the bill—July, 1943.

The newspapers printed careful breakdowns of the 7 billion amount, showed how this and that had been divided out, and how safeguards had been thought out as to the question of moving funds from one category to another.

It was all placed before the public succinctly and with his usual compelling power of oratory by President Roosevelt himself in an address to the nation. Without telling any secrets, or tipping off adverse powers, the President took the people into his confidence, and just on the eve of the consideration of the measure, too.

That clinched the situation, in view of congressional leaders, who figured that in three days, at most, it would be all over, and the administration would have, practically intact, except for some dozen amendments, his fully implemented aid-to-Britain plan.

Industrial Lag Seen

So confident was the President of the outcome, based on the advice of those close to him and watching congress, that he issued an announcement even before his radio address, that he was planning to spend the whole huge sum within 18 months.

William S. Knudsen, however, the head of Production Management, hinted at an industrial lag, and said that it would probably be two to three months before the whole British aid program would really get going.

THE CASE: Of Hotteler

RICHARD C. HOTTELET "Suspicion of espionage."

It was something more than mere coincidence that close upon the passage of the lease-lend bill the Nazis arrested Richard C. Hotteler, a United Press correspondent in Berlin, on "strong suspicions" of espionage.

The D. N. B. announcement said that Hotteler was suspected of having conducted espionage in the interests of an enemy country. This, of course, ruled out the United States, and the Germans themselves said: "Naturally the United States is not an enemy power."

It was added that the espionage of which Hotteler is suspected had nothing to do with his journalistic work.

As the case went forward into the preliminary hearing stage, Americans began to wonder two things:

1. Did the arrest of Hotteler have anything to do with the arrest in the United States of Zapp and Tonn, the agents of the Transocean News Service, a Nazi outfit?

2. Did the arrest have anything to do with the passage of the lease-lend bill, and was this to be interpreted as the start of a series of Nazi reprisals which could end only in the entry of America into the European war?

The very day that the special grand jury in Washington returned the Zapp and Tonn indictments, the Nazis arrested Hotteler.

It also might be remembered by some that Mussolini closed the American consulates at Naples and Palermo, and the United States followed suit with the Italian consulates at Newark and Detroit.

TRAGEDY:

On the Prairie

Windstorm, snow and severe cold combined to take at least 66 lives in eastern North Dakota and western Minnesota as one of the most severe storms in the memory of pioneers swept across the prairie country.

When their cars stalled or were blown off the highway most of the persons who lost their lives tried to walk to the safety of nearby farmhouses but were either frozen to death before they could reach shelter or else died of sheer exhaustion in battling the terrific wind. The gale at times reached a velocity of 85 miles per hour.

SCORNFUL:

Are the Greeks

The "Greeks have a word" for Mussolini, following the episode in which Il Duce took personal charge of the Fascist troops on the Albanian front.

They called him "bogus Caesar." The story is that Mussolini took charge about the first week in March, and that after a short time at the front he told his generals they'd have to produce something in the way of a victory at the "Ides of March."

The generals, so they said in Athens, did their best. Fresh troops were rushed into the Topoloni battle, troops well equipped with all the arms of war, and each attack they launched, the Greeks said, was beaten back with heavy losses.

Among those killed were two members of Il Duce's cabinet. The defenders of Greece claimed that Mussolini had failed as had his armies, for Benito had hoped to build up their morale, but the men in the front lines still showed, it was claimed, the "spirit of despair" and the "criminal indifference" to fighting that had marked the long series of defeats in Albania.

In the final five days of the fierce Italian drive, the Greeks claimed, they killed 15,000 of the Fascist soldiers, decimating entire battalions, and reducing the strength of five divisions to about one-half.

MISCELLANY?

LANCASTER, PA: A member of the Dunkard sect, whose religious convictions against killing people in war were so strong that he was a conscientious objector to the draft for religious reasons, was given a life term for slaying his rival in love.

LONDON: That Britain is leaving no stone unturned in preparation for a Nazi invasion attempt was seen in the announcement that leaflets were being distributed among the populace telling them not to flee and clog the roads if the invader comes to their very doors. "Stand firm and help the troops," the message read.

STANBUL: Former British Minister to Bulgaria George W. Rendel, on whom an assassination attempt was made when he arrived here, insisted on a search for bombs being made in his luggage before setting out for Ankara.

INSTALLMENT 3 THE STORY SO FAR:

Dusty King and Lew Gordon were joint owners of the vast King-Gordon range which stretched from Texas to Arizona. When building up this string of ranches, they continually had to fight the unscrupulous Ben Thorpe. Thorpe rivaled King-Gordon in power.

CHAPTER IV

They buried Dusty King five miles south of Ogallala, beside the Great Trail which he himself had pioneered. They thought he would want to rest out there in the open plain, near enough to the cattle trail so that the rumble of hoofs would sometimes come to him through the ground.

Over his grave they piled boulders, after the fashion of the prairie men. Bill Roper himself fitted a cross of railroad ties, the most durable and massive timber available at Ogallala.

After that was all done, and night had come on, and everybody had gone back to town, Bill Roper went back to that lonely cross and squatted on his heels against the pile of stones.

After a while a ridden horse came toward the cross at a walk, and Bill Roper remained motionless, unseen against the stones, as the horse-man came up.

The rider stepped to the ground and walked slowly toward the cross, the reins of his pony on his arm.

"Quien es?"

Roper said, "Oh, hello, Dry Camp."

Dry Camp Pierce came and sat down beside Bill at the foot of the stones. "Find out anything, in the town?"

"Hell, no."

"No," Dry Camp repeated after him. "No, and they won't."

"You talk mighty sure, Dry Camp."

"I talk mighty sure because I am mighty sure. Nobody saw Dusty killed except the three men that done it; and one other man."

Bill Roper's hand shot out and caught Dry Camp's lean arm in a grip that bit like a trap. "Who was that?"

"Me."

There was a silence, sharp and hard, before Bill said, "How is it you haven't told anybody this?"

"Haven't had any chance to talk to you," Dry Camp said. "I'm telling you now, ain't I?"

"Who was it?"

"Cleve Tanner; and Walk Lasham, and Ben Thorpe."

Dry Camp took a match out of the pocket of his cowhide vest and chewed the end.

"You see—" he searched for his words painfully, after the manner of men who are much alone—"Dusty, he tied his horse out back of the Lone Star Bar, in the angle of a corner there, like you can't see into it from any place, hardly; and what with it getting dark—"

"Where were you?"

"I was in Bailey's Harness Shop, next door. I saw Dusty turn off the walk, and walk back between the buildings. I'd been watching for him, because I wanted to speak to him a minute. I went back through the harness shop, and I was just going out the back door. And then hell bust in the wagon shed angle."

"The time it happened," Bill Roper said, "there must have still been a little light."

"Enough to see by, all right. These three varmints steps out of the shed quick and quiet. Dusty knew what he was up against, all right. His gun come out; but Walk Lasham grabs his gun arm with his left hand and bears down like he was wrestling hell. Then the whole works seems to blow up, as all three of 'em let loose. They just stood and throwed it into him, and it seemed like he was never going to fall. Ben Thorpe pumped two more shots after Dusty was down, and dead."

That was all the story. Both of them seemed to recognize that there were no questions to ask, nothing to add.

"I promise you this, Bill," Dry Camp said at last. "I can't go up and testify against these men. You know why. If I let it be known that I'm here, that's the finish of me. But that would be all right. Only, what court, that we got, would believe me against them?"

Bill Roper said, "There isn't anything you can do, I don't suppose."

"Oh, yes, there is. There's one thing I can do. I'll have to kind of bite my time, and make it sure; but—I'm going to get me these three men."

"No, you ain't," Bill Roper said. "We're going to go at this thing a different way. Trouble with you, you're figuring these three men as just three men. They ain't. They got the biggest string of tough outfits in the country, and they spread all the way from the Rio Grande to the Rosebud, and beyond. We got to rust up the whole works; if we want to get any place."

Dry Camp was silent for several minutes. "What you aim to do?"

"I aim to start in Texas, where Cleve Tanner runs Thorpe's breeding outfits in the Big Bend; I aim to tie into him piece by piece, till Ben Thorpe is smashed out of the West."

"Lew Gordon will never stand for it."

"Then, by God, King-Gordon has come to its split-up!"

Silence again before Dry Camp said, "And I suppose I'm expected to just kind of stand aside and stay out of it and see how you work it out, huh? Well, I won't do it, Bill."

"You're in this, Dry Camp."

"How am I in it?"

"I've got to have me an outfit. It's got to be made up of boys that aren't afraid of Ben Thorpe or all hell; boys that haven't got anything more to lose. I'll need near fifty men. But to start off with I want Lee Harnish, and Tex Daniels and Tex Long; Nate Liggett—Dave Shannon—"

"Wow!" said Dry Camp. "You get those four or five in the same bunch, they'll eat each other alive."

"That's the kind I want," Bill Roper said. "I want a wild bunch such as the West has never seen before."

"And me—what am I supposed to do?"

"You—you're heading south. You're going back to Texas and you're going to start rounding 'em in."

"What you offering these boys?"

"Horses and grub, and what other stuff we'll need. Not another thing."

They sat silent for a long time more.

"All right," Dry Camp said. "I'll go."

In the starlight Bill Roper swung down in front of the little shack which served King-Gordon as a loading-foreman's office at their Ogallala pens. Within, Bill Roper found Lew Gordon sitting alone.

"I just talked to a man," Roper said, "that saw the killing."

Gordon was instantly alert. "Who was it?"

"He's a man that can't come forward, because he's already an outlaw in his own right. But Dusty was killed by Ben Thorpe, and Walk Lasham, and Cleve Tanner, the three working together. Walk Lasham bore down Dusty's gun."

They looked at each other for a long moment.

"This man that told you this—we've got to get hold of him; his story has to go to the authorities, Bill."

Roper shook his head. "He'll hang if they lay hands on him. Anyway, nobody would believe him against these three."

Lew Gordon made a gesture at once impatient and weary. "Whenever we turn we hit some snag of lawlessness," he said. "There's too many men afraid to stand forward and face out the law. Seems like nothing is done open and above-board any more."

"Never was, since I remember," Roper said. "I've got a couple of ways in mind right now. I'm going on the warpath, Lew."

Gordon had been fiddling with a pencil, and now he threw it on the table in front of him. "We're figuring you to take over the Crying Wolf, Bill. Dusty's half of King-Gordon naturally will stand in your name now; Dusty never paid any attention to any other kin. But the Crying Wolf was where he figured for you to go and work; and there isn't any call to change that, now."

"You can count me out of the Crying Wolf, Lew."

"What do you want to do?"

"We're going to branch out a new way," Roper said. "We're going to have a warrior outfit. And I'm its new boss."

"I don't get you."

auction, but King bid high to beat out Thorpe. Bill Roper, King's adopted son, raced home to tell pretty Jody Gordon the good news. The two happy lovers were in each other's arms when a rider soon brought the news that Dusty King had been killed.

"We're going to carry the war into the other camp, Lew. For every outfit that Ben Thorpe has grabbed by force of arms, he's going to lose two; for every head that has come into his herds by rustle and raid, two head of his are going to be missing when he makes his roundup count. First thing, I'm going to break Cleve Tanner down in Texas. After that—"

Lew Gordon looked Bill Roper hard in the eye, smiled a little, and shook his head. His voice was slow and deep, stubbornly emphatic, as a granite cliff is emphatic. "No, we've never gone outside the law yet, and while I live we never will. We play the straight game always; and if we lose—that's in the hands of things beyond us."

Bill Roper angered. "I know how you feel about it," he said, keeping his voice down. "You swayed Dusty that way always. If you'd looked at it different, the guns would have been out years ago—and it would have been Ben Thorpe that went down. As it is—Dusty King is dead. Now you want me to drift on as we always drifted on, and I'm supposed to forget that Dusty's out there under a pile of stones. Well, I'm not going to play it that way, Gordon."

"While you're with King-Gordon," Lew said slowly, "you'll play it as I say you'll play it."

"If you want to buy me out," Roper said, "you can do it at your own price. Because I'm going to do exactly what I tell you I'm going to do; I wouldn't run a sneak on you, Lew."

"You figure," Lew Gordon said incredulously, "that you, one youngster on horseback, can smash up Ben Thorpe? You wouldn't last forty seconds longer than a celluloid collar on a dead gambler."

"There'll be a few go with me," Roper said.

"Who?"

"Dry Camp Pierce for one; Lee Harnish, Tex Daniels, Tex Long; in all, maybe fifty men that I think I know where to get."

Lew Gordon looked as if he would explode. "You're naming the most vicious outlaws on the plains," he said. "If you ever get those men together, it will be the most infernal wild bunch that ever—"

"By God," said Bill Roper, "I'll show you how to clean a range or break a range; I'm telling you I don't care which."

Lew Gordon slapped his hand on the table; it fell with a dull and heavy wallop, but so hard it seemed the top of the table would split.

"Not No, by God! Not under my brand. Not in a hundred years..."

"Then draw up the terms of the sale."

Gordon was silent again, for a long time. He seemed very old, very tired. "Reckon you're man enough to make your own decisions, Bill."

"Thanks, Lew."

"But do me one last favor—will you? Don't decide here and now. Take a couple of days to think it over. It's for your own good. But I'm asking it as a favor to me..."

Bill Roper dropped his eyes, and for a moment or two he hesitated.

"I'll take an hour, he decided in compromise."

CHAPTER V

Bill Roper walked slowly to the Gordons' tall house, on its rise at the edge of the town, and let himself in softly. He wanted desperately to talk to Jody Gordon; but it was nearly midnight, and he couldn't make up his mind to wake her.

As it happened, decision was unnecessary. In the fireplace some lengths of cottonwood log still burned, and before the fire Jody lounged upon a buffalo robe, wide awake.

"You've been a long time."

"I know." He stopped beside her, half-raised her in his arms, and kissed her lingeringly. Her arms and her lips clung, making it difficult for him to think of the road he had chosen. But presently he sat beside her on the buffalo robe, and turned his eyes to the coals.

"There's some stuff we have to talk about, Jody."

"I can think of better things to do with freight than just talk."

"Jody—King-Gordon is splitting up."

Jody brought herself up on one elbow. "Why, Bill—what do you mean?"

"Dusty's share comes to me, as you know. I—I'm taking it out."

"You're—Bill, you must be loco!"

"Maybe. I'm going against Ben Thorpe."

"But—but—" Jody was at a loss for words.

"Since the trail began, he's stood for everything we're against. Four of the biggest rustling gangs in the country are directly hooked up with him; if it could be proved, he's stopped at nothing, and where he couldn't force his way he's bought his way. But now—he's gone too far."

IMPROVED UNIFORM-INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

CHRIST'S COMMISSION

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24:36-53.
GOLDEN TEXT—Behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you.—Luke 24:49.

Calvary and the darkness of the tomb gave way to the glory of the resurrection morning. Jesus had appeared to the two on the Emmaus road, and when they hurried back to Jerusalem to tell the eleven disciples, who were gathered behind barred doors, they found that He had already appeared, not only to the women, whose story they did not believe (see v. 11), but also to Peter (v. 34). While they were excitedly discussing this great wonder, apparently torn between belief and unbelief, joy and sorrow, suddenly Jesus appeared, coming through the barred door and greeting them with a blessed message of peace.

I. A Risen Christ for Fellowship (vv. 36-43).

The disciples were bewildered and slow to believe. Perhaps we would have done no better. Note how patient and gracious He was in dealing with these frightened—and, in a sense, stupid—disciples. He might have been so discouraged by their unbelief as to be short and sharp with them, but He was not. We need to learn of Him. There are weak brethren even in the church of Christ who need our tender and patient consideration (see Rom. 15:1; I Thess. 5:14). Christ died for the weak brother too (I Cor. 8:11).

What a blessed time of fellowship the disciples and the Lord had together. Such times are greatly needed for our mutual encouragement. Let us not forsake the assembling of ourselves together (Heb. 10:25). In a day of need and trial those that fear the Lord should speak often with one another and with the Lord (Mal. 3:16; I John 1:7).

II. A Dependable Book for Guidance and Instruction (vv. 44-46).

Jesus gave His own endorsement to the Old Testament as a dependable record of the prophecies concerning His person and His work of redemption. The critics of God's Word must face the fact that their man-made theories are in conflict with the testimony of the Son of God. Of the two, we know whom we will believe!

Notice that an important part of the Lord's fellowship with His disciples was devoted to opening their minds so they could understand the Scripture. The word "opened" might be translated "disentangled." He took out the prejudices, the wrong ideas, and set them free to understand and appreciate the Scriptures.

III. A Great Message for Proclamation (vv. 47-49).

Fellowship with Christ and a knowledge of God's Word which does not result in an aggressive witness for Him is quite useless. We meet Him and learn His truth that we may carry it out to all nations, not forgetting (note it!) to begin at the wicked Jerusalem which is right at our doorstep.

The business, and the only business, of the Church is that witness. We need to renew our commission, get it clearly in mind, and then proceed to carry it out. "But," someone may say, "we are not able for this great task." Of course not; but He is able, and will enable us.

"Power from on high" is the portion of God's witnesses. This world worships power—mechanical, political or military power. The greatest power of all is spiritual power, and God is ready to give it to His faithful witnesses.

Note that the message is one of repentance and remission of sins "in His name." The gospel of Christ is the primary need of men and women, boys and girls, in your community and mine; yes, and to the very ends of the earth.

IV. An Ascended Lord to Worship (vv. 50-53).

The ascension of Christ is not often made the subject of a sermon or message in the church, but it is an important doctrine of Scripture. It marks the completion of the work of Christ, and His return to the place of honor at the right hand of the Father. There, before the Father's throne, He is the advocate of every believer, the pledge and assurance of a perfect and eternal fellowship between God and believing man.

The worship which the disciples gave to Christ as He ascended went on as they returned to their appointed place of witness, for they continually praised Him. Such should be the attitude of every true believer. In the temple of his own heart there should always be the joy of the Lord as He is there worshiped and adored.

Now we have completed our study of Luke, but we cannot stop here, for the Gospel, according to Luke's own statement in Acts 1:1, was only the story of what Jesus began both to do and to teach. The continuation of that account is found in the book of Acts, which we begin to study next Sunday.

DAIRY CATTLE NEED ROUGHAGE

Constitute Important Part in Balanced Ration.

By DR. W. E. NEVENS

(Chief in Dairy Cattle Feeding, University of Illinois College of Agriculture.)

One of the new developments in dairy cattle feeding is the discovery, made in recent investigational work, that the roughage portion of the ration is by far the most important part. If dairy cows are supplied with liberal amounts of well-preserved, high-quality legume roughages, the balance of the ration is of little importance from the standpoint of the character of the nutrients.

One of the facts which has led to this conclusion is the finding that dairy cattle require vitamins A and D in large amounts and that these are supplied by the roughage or sunlight, the concentrated portion of the ration supplying little or none of either vitamin. As a rule, either the other vitamins are supplied in adequate amounts in the ration or dairy cattle have means of synthesizing sufficient amounts.

Not only has vitamin A been found to be of tremendous importance in the health of dairy cattle, but dairy cows have the ability to convert a considerable portion of the carotene of the ration into vitamin A and to secrete this vitamin in the milk. In view of these facts, it has become increasingly important to make sure that roughages fed to dairy cattle contain large amounts of green color and that they are in excellent condition—that is, not moldy or musty—so that they can be completely consumed.

Sunlight obtained by dairy cows while at pasture or in their exercising yards or sun-cured hay are ordinarily the sources from which vitamin D is supplied. However, even during early spring, sunlight is very low in its power to impart vitamin D.

Sun-cured hay is probably the best source of vitamin D for dairy cattle large enough to consume at least 2½ pounds of hay daily. Small calves, as a rule, do not consume this amount of hay and it has been found advantageous to supply them with one teaspoonful of feeding grade of cod-liver oil in the milk each day.

Woodland Makes Poor

Pasture, Foresters Claim

"Divorcing" the woods from the pasture and the pasture from the woods, has been recommended by foresters for many years. One reason is that there's more danger of live stock being poisoned from plants in a woods pasture than in an open pasture.

Woodland offers poor pasture to cattle. Bluegrass pasture should yield 3,000 pounds of dry matter an acre, while woodland pasture yields only 450 pounds.

The productivity of the woodland for wood crops is also impaired, and after several years the area is devoid of trees or contains only undesirable species such as persimmon and hickory.

For these reasons, the combined value of both woodland and pasture doesn't approach what the site would have produced either in woods or pasture separately.

Grazed woods can be restored to their original productivity by complete removal of live stock, Carroll concluded.

Advise Special Care

For Orphan Lambs

Orphan lambs should be fed milk from a recently freshened cow if possible, but warm drawn milk from other cows will do, according to P. A. Anderson of University Farm, St. Paul. If it is necessary to heat other milk, do not let it come to a boil. About 98 degrees Fahrenheit is right. The cow's milk should not be diluted with water.

For the first three or four days feed the small lamb one tablespoonful every two hours. Increasing the amount and reducing the feeding hours until at the end of a week or 10 days three feedings per day are sufficient.

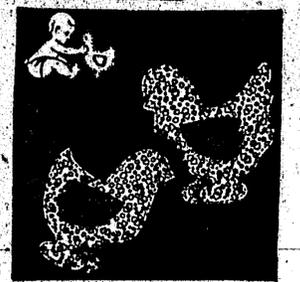

Overfeeding may cause scours. Induce orphan lambs to eat grain and fine hay. Place them in a lamb creep where crushed oats, bran and some corn meal are available and provide a rack for hay.

Tobacco Worms

Small worms which up-root tobacco plants in beds can easily be controlled by an application of naphthalene flakes applied at the rate of 1½ pounds to each 100 square yards of bed. Frequently one application is sufficient.

When more than one treatment is necessary, the applications should be placed about a week apart. If a strong wind comes up shortly after the flakes are applied, the treatment should be promptly repeated.
