PERSONALS

Mrs. Henry Hoffman, daughter Dorothy and Mildred were week-end visitors at El Paso.

Mrs. Agnes St. John was here from the Sacramentos last week, visiting the home folks.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shumate of Claunch were business visitors here Tuesday.

Mayor and Mrs. M. U. Finley left Wednesday for Clovis, where after visiting Mrs. Finley's mother, Mrs. Lyman, she will go on to Dallas to visit her sisters and the Mayor will return to Carrizozo.

Mrs. Porfirio Chavez left Wednesday morning for Blaine, Arizona, to visit her brothers, Demecio, Dave and Louis and their families, for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Rolland spent Easter with the Poe Corn family at Roswell. On their return trip, they visited the Walter LaFleur family at Lincoln.

Enrique Flores of Tularosa was here last Friday, visiting his wife, who is confined in the Turner hospital.

J. A. Garner and the Straley brothers were business visitors from Ancho the latter part of last week.

Leandro Vega was a Roswell business visitor Monday. He was accompanied by Tommy Currant.

Miss Haldane Stover of Belen was a guest of Miss Marye Lewis on Easter Sunday.

Lloyd Vigil, second cook at the S. P. Hotel, spent the week-end at Deming on a pleasure trip.

Billy Kelt spent Easter with the home folks.

Isaac Marquez and Reuben Chavez were here from Tucuman to spend the week-end with the Sat Chavez family and other relatives.

Byrd Parks, son of Mrs. Lou Fluk, is on the U. S. S. Argonne, now stationed at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. Byrd says the navy is great.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Hill of San Antonio were visitors with Mrs. Nellie Peckham and family on Easter Sunday.

Judge and Mrs. Marshall St. John and children spent the week-end at Las Cruces, visiting relatives.

Harold Hoffman and Carl Freeman, Jr., who were home to spend the Easter-holiday, returned to their studies at State College Monday.

Marvin Burton is about to organize an Archers' Club here and as we understand it, he has several signers to the sport. Marvin is a very busy man, but finds time now and then to get out with his bow and arrow to practice. One man has volunteered to let Marvin try to shoot an apple off his head, but can't find an apple big enough. Let's wait for the new year and perhaps we'll find one big enough or can we? But this is all a joke. Coming down to earth, it's a good line of sport and should be encouraged.

ANCHO ITEMS

Thursday evening, April 10, pupils of the upper grades of the Ancho schools under the able direction of their teacher, I. V. Payne, staged "The Haunted Tea Room," a mystery play with an eerie plot, which held interest of the audience from beginning to end. Cast or characters was as follows: Linda Berry, Louola Haskins; Lottis Berry, Viola Johnson; Dan Smith, Richard Harkey; Claire Landon, Sally Silvers; Josephine Boggs, Gladys Jump; Snoopy Crane, Howard Harkey; Horace Witherspoon, Donald Hall; Gerald Fenwick, C. F. Underwood; Jessie Jones, Mary Payne.

Friends and admirers of Betty Jackson, who in real life is Mrs. Jackson's Jump, mother of five adorable daughters, are deeply interested in knowing that she is making rapid progress in her career as a song writer. She is a writer for the American Music Inc., Portland, Oregon. Among her songs, gaining in popularity, are, Old Pard; Rock River Valley, Rolling Stone, Chuck Wagon Blues, When the Blue Bonnets Bloom Down in Texas, My Prairie Prayer For You, A Cowboy Wadding Wandering Willie Ain't Wand'ring Any more, and Bank Holes Blues.

Ancho is proud of Mrs. Jump's career in the song writing field. She has received a folder of photographs, autographed by Paul of the Golden West who enjoy singing her songs over the radio. Representative and Mrs. S. E. (Bea) Greason arrived home this Tuesday from Santa Fe, following the adjournment of the state legislature.

The Easter Cantata

Well done and well received by a large audience. To Mr. Brewster, who directed the Cantata, much credit is due. His work and patience through the entire rehearsal, was indeed a trying task. The solos, duets and chorus numbers were all done in a very artistic manner. To me it was the finest production Carrizozo has ever had. The accompanist was Mrs. Burns, assisted by Mr. Fluk, violinist. —A Music Lover. I was surprised your Cantata was as good as many that I've heard in much larger places. I enjoyed it more than the Christmas Chorus services held in El Paso last year. I hope that I am able to hear your next one. —J. G. Frye, Border Patrolman.

I. O. O. F. ACTIVITY

On Monday night, Team Captains J. F. Tom, G. H. Dorsett, Calvin Carl and Raymond Davis, made a trip to Alamogordo and assisted in conferring the second degree on two candidates. On Tuesday night the local lodge conferred the third degree, the candidates being Sheriff A. F. Stover and Raymond Davis.

Lieut. Arthur Johnson, who for two years was commanding officer at the local Triple-C camp, passed through here last week on his way to Galveston, having been called into regular army service. Mrs. Johnson and their two daughters were enroute with the lieutenant. They stopped over for a short visit with the Lou Fluk family.

Louis Naida was here from his ranch Monday, making preparations for the lambing season, which will begin soon.

District Home Economics Club Meet in Carrizozo

Home-making Clubs from Alamogordo, Capitan, Corona, Tularosa, Hondo and other nearby towns will meet in Carrizozo at the High School, Saturday, April 19. The program will begin at 10 A. M. and will last until 3 or 4 P. M. Give them a hearty welcome.

APPRECIATION

The American Legion Post of Ruidoso wishes to thank the business firms of Capitan for their cooperation in helping us put on the State Legion Convention, to be held in Ruidoso, June 19-20-21. O. W. McElhane, Commander.

Andy Padilla has installed a soft drinks stand in his place of business on Fourth street. Drop in and try a bottle of ice-cold Dr. Pepper. It's delicious.

Poor little girls the romantic slickers tried to fool. Simple country maidens used to have a monopoly on getting taken in by a smooth line of talk, but six recent court cases show they are now getting stiff competition from their sophisticated (and sorry) city sisters. Read about their plight and see their pictures.

Also—American beauty going up... and westward? Departing from the Old Ziegfeld Stage requirements, the movies are demanding taller lovelies as show-girls, and the great open spaces are winning top honors in producing and streamlining them. Compare your own measurements with this new standard of beauty, as presented in the American Weekly, magazine with next week's Los Angeles Examiner.

U. S. Highway 54 Association

Dr. R. E. Blaney and J. H. Fulmer attended the annual meeting of the U. S. Highway 54 Association at Guyton, Okla., April 14. They were entertained by L. A. Thurston, of Santa Rosa, while there. From that place, they took the Santa Fe Trailway bus for the rest of the trip. There were 160 delegates present, 22 from New Mexico. Officers elected for the coming year were, Roy H. Smith, Secretary of the Tucuman-Chamber of Commerce, President; Mayor R. M. Krannawitter of Vaughn, Vice-President; Dr. R. E. Blaney, Secretary, Lincoln County Chamber of Commerce; Vice-President for New Mexico. The meeting was attended by men representing Governors of states through which 54 passes and legislators from each state, also members of highway commissions. Those attending expressed their opinions freely that 54 would soon be designated in the primary system of highways, after which, every effort will be made to place 54 in the military system of highways. There is better than an even break that 54 will be either a military highway or an auxiliary to the military highway system. Ivan Hilton, member of the state highway commission left Saturday for Washington for the expressed purpose of getting 54 in the primary system between Tularosa and Santa Rosa. On his return, he will report the results of his trip to the Chamber of Commerce here and the same will be published in this paper. —Contributed.

White Oaks Notes

A marriage of interest to the community and the Ladies' Aid in particular, was that of Mrs. Maggie Ward and Jet Rustin. They are well known in Lincoln County, both having resided here for many years. We extend our best wishes for a long and happy married life. Miss Opal Crenshaw is spending her vacation with the home folks here. The Ladies' Aid held their annual Easter services and egg hunt. Fred Brungardt and Robt. Armstrong won first prize and Betty Huffmeyer and Chas. Bartlett the consolation prize. At noon a covered dish luncheon was served. 45 guests sat down to the long table. Emmett Starkey and Orrie Smith were in from the ranch to help us celebrate. Mr. and Mrs. Fulmer and Bill visited White Sands on play day. Mrs. Tom Hughes & daughter have returned to El Paso.

Business Men's Club

Fifteen members present and one visitor, Rev. Drennen of Santa Rosa who was a guest of Pres. Carpenter. Rev. Drennen is here holding a revival at the Church of Christ.

A. L. Burke reported that final arrangements had been made for the Ruidoso good-will trip on the 23rd. Cars to meet at the High School at 3 p. m. and leave promptly thereafter, going by Capitan, Fort Stanton and Hollywood.

Dr. Blaney reported on his recent trip to Guyton, Oklahoma, to the U. S. Highway 54 Association meeting on the 14th.

A motion was made to have the club members' wives present at the meeting on May 21.

—Frank Adams, Sec'y.

The new Postoffice equipment and furniture has been installed and presents a nice appearance. Everything is brand new, even to the big clock. But, after May 1, you will see the same old pleasant and courteous faces in the new building, namely: Postmaster Herman Kelt, clerks Roy Harmon and Orville Dow.

Cecil Shilling is ill at the Turner Hospital, but his condition is so improved that he will be able to return home this afternoon.

W. A. Hart, Ted Johnson and J. Y. Branhan were business visitors from Ruidoso Wednesday. These gentlemen are likewise business men of that resort.

H. C. Langston of Taos passed through here yesterday on a business trip which will take him to different points in the southwest. Mr. Langston is the father of Mrs. Gunther Kroggel of this place.

BORN—Saturday, April 12, at Turner's hospital, to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Adams, a 7 lb. 4 oz. girl. Mother and daughter are doing nicely. The baby has been named Lynda Gayle.

Deputy Sheriff Nick Vega, Mrs. Vega, the children and Mrs. Josefa Vega were Picacho visitors last Sunday. On Monday, Nick, Mrs. Maria Swan and Master Willie Vega made a business trip to the Lovelace ranch near Corona.

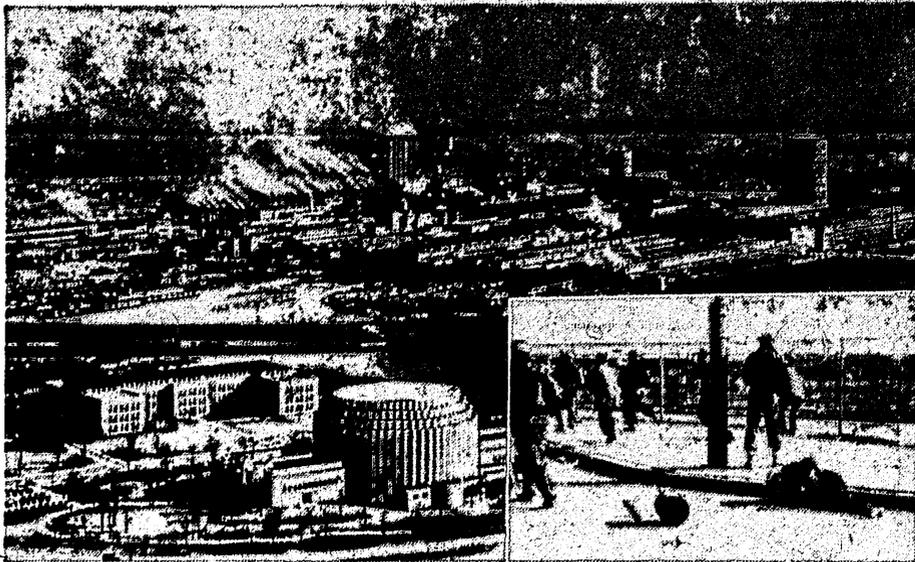

Mrs. M. J. Allen, who has been here visiting her daughter, Mrs. Frank Adams, will return to her home at Midland, Texas, this week-end.

Last week we announced that Mrs. Blanche Shilling's mother was seriously ill and the family left for Clayton. The mother died after their arrival and after remaining for a few days to arrange some legal affairs for the family, the Shillings returned here Sunday evening.

As Strike Closed Ford Plant

The gigantic River Rouge plant of the Ford Motor company at Dearborn, Mich., largest single industrial plant in the world, where from seven to eight thousand striking C.I.O. auto workers threw 85,000 employees out of work. Inset: One of the men involved in the battle between pickets and workers, shown as he tumbled into the gutter after being struck by one of the many flying missiles.

Sabotage—and Then Uncle Sam Takes Over

With dramatic suddenness the U. S. seized 69 Italian, Danish and German merchant ships in harbors throughout the country. At left is photographic proof of sabotage. The main air pump of the Italian ship, Alberta, is shown shattered and useless. Right: Chief Mechanic Alston of the Coast Guard at Port Newark, N. J., examines broken parts of the slide valve on the Alberta.

Demonstrate 'Blackout Machine' at Capital

Two New Jersey inventors demonstrating a "blackout machine" before Sen. Merris Sheppard, chairman of senate military affairs committee. The inventors said the device could shut off power in every American city. L. to R., Senator Sheppard, Col. D. Watt, E. C. Pomeroy and R. M. Franklin of the Radio Signal Products Corp., the inventors.

And Now Frenchmen Give Nazi Salute!

A year ago Frenchmen used to mock the upstart arm solists of the Fascists and Nazis, but things have changed in France. Above is shown a great gathering of French war veterans saluting Marshal Pétain, French chief of state, in a rally at Le Fay. The aged marshal is on the left in the background.

Battles Jungle

Maj. R. E. Randall of Swampscott, Mass., Albreck Field executive officer, who was forced to cut his way through 25 miles of Panama jungle after falling out of his disabled plane. He is shown here at Ancón, Canal Zone.

Jugoslav Premier

Gen. Richard Duan-Biseric, staunch friend of Great Britain and army commander, who has been named to the post of premier of Yugoslavia.

THE PAPERS OF PRIVATE FURKEY

Dear Ma—
I got your last letter and I wish you would stop worrying about me not getting enough sleep on account of having to get up so early in the morning. It won't do no good for you to write the camp general telling him that you know I need more sleep and will only make me a laughing stork. And, ma, it is silly for you to say you think maybe you can influence the general to let me sleep later mornings on account my grandfather served in the Spanish-American war. They don't even rate that as a war any more.

Anyhow I get enough sleep even if they do make me get up at day-break. I know when I was home I couldn't get to sleep when I went to bed at 9 or 10 but up here I am plenty tired and I don't have to count no sheep. But there is one fellow in my tent who has insomnia and he keeps hollering "Hail" over and over all nite because instead of counting sheep he tries to challenge 'em. I got used to this now and he don't bother me.

I guess it aint so bad being in a army today because a mess sergeant up hear who was in the last war says they had insects called cooties in it and he made me itch all over by just describing 'em. He says they were a cross between a soft shell crab and a bedbug but we never had no soft shell crabs in our house, ma, so the descripshun is lost on me partly. He says these camps are so sanctary that a soldier cant even get dirty if he wants to and he says no man can say he is a war hero until he has had cooties.

He says the reason the Allies licked Germany in the last war was the German soldiers had more cooties on 'em than the allies and he says if we get into this war it will be settled the same way.

The cooking is a lot better now that the cooks are getting out of the amachure class but how I would go for some of your griddle cakes or frickerseed chicken, ma. Somehow a frickerseed chicken is an army-looks-like-the-bird-was-still resisting up to the minitt the chef stopped cooking it. Nobody can make soup like you can either ma. The soup in a army always tastes like the cook wuzent sure if he was making a soup a chowder of a stew.

I know how to oil a gun now, ma. I always thought a gun was sell oiling. All I knew about guns was what I seen in the moving pitchers and I never saw nobody oil a gun even Jimmy Cagney. But I learnt here that a gun has to be loober cated and it is quite a job. The captain says oil is the life of a gun and I give mine plenty of oil as I want it to live to reach a ripe old age. I am glad you liked the snapshot I sent. It was taken after inspectshun. We get inspected every few minutes and they are very fussy if they find a little thing like a thread on my shoulder or a button off. The army is very particular about buttons and I guess the general thinks one button off a coat can lose a battle.

I still wish they had cavalry in war as I lov horses and I think it is more fun to train on horseback than on foot but war has got so bad that horses won't have nothing to do with it.

Well, there goes the bugle for another drill but don't worry as it is all automatic with me now and when I aint drilling I think sumthing is all wrong.

Your loving son,
Oscar.

Massacre in Modoc-Land

IN Crown Hill cemetery in Indian-apolis, Ind., stands a massive monument which bears this simple inscription: "Edward Richard Sprigg Canby, Brigadier General and Brevet Major General, U. S. Army." This grassy wooded hillside in the Middle West is a far cry from a wild and desolate region out on the Pacific coast—the Lava Beds of southern Oregon. Yet there is a connection between these two widely separated places.

In 1872 a little band of Modoc Indians, led by Chief Kei-in-to-poses, commonly known as Captain Jack, left the reservation because the Klamath Indians there refused to let them live in peace. They returned to their ancestral homes on the Lost river and when the military was called upon to drive them back, they fled to the Lava Beds, where they inflicted heavy losses upon the soldiers in several engagements.

For several months this "war" dragged along until the government, having failed to whip the Modocs, decided to try another method of conquering them. A peace commission, composed of General Canby, commander of the Department of the Pacific, Rev. Eleazer Thomas, a Methodist minister, and two former Indian agents, A. B. Meacham and L. S. Dyar, was sent to settle the difficulties. After several unsatisfactory conferences, another meeting was arranged for April 11, 1873, to be held in the Modoc stronghold near Tule lake.

GEN. E. R. S. CANBY

The commissioners, accompanied by Frank Riddle, a frontiersman, and his Modoc wife, Tobey Riddle (Wi-ne-ma, the "Woman Chief"), as interpreters, were to meet Captain Jack and his warriors, unarmed and under a flag of truce. Meanwhile a plot had been hatched among the Modocs to murder the peace commissioners. At first, Captain Jack refused to have anything to do with the scheme. But when his warriors put a woman's hat and shawl on him and taunted him for being a coward, he finally consented.

No sooner was the plot laid than it was betrayed to Tobey Riddle by one of her Modoc friends and she immediately warned Canby against keeping his rendezvous with the Indians.

His reply was that of a soldier: "It is my duty to go."

He did not believe the Modocs would carry out their purpose with so many soldiers near at hand. The other commissioners were not so sure and one of them proposed that they go to the meeting armed. This Canby also refused to do.

So they set out for the Indian stronghold. The insolent behavior of the warriors soon convinced the commissioners that Tobey Riddle's warning had been a true one. The climax came when one of the Modocs demanded that all the soldiers be removed from the country and Canby refused to grant the demand.

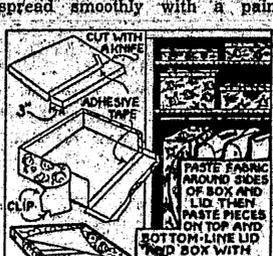

A moment later the Indians drew concealed weapons and opened fire. Canby, Thomas and Meacham were shot down. Dyar and Riddle fled for their lives with the bullets whistling around them. Tobey Riddle was clubbed to the ground but Captain Jack intervened to save her life. When a warrior started to scalp Meacham, who was still alive, she cried out "Soldiers coming!" Her quick-wit saved Meacham's life, for the murderers immediately fled. The tragedy of the Lava Beds was over.

Later Captain Jack and his warriors were captured when some of the very Indians, who had called him a coward and forced him to consent to the attack on the commissioners, turned traitor and revealed his hiding place in the Lava Beds to the soldiers. He and three others named Schonchin John, Black Jim and Boston Charley were placed on trial for the murder of Canby and Thomas. On October 3, 1873, they were hanged at Fort Klamath and 120 others were sent to Oklahoma as prisoners of war.

NEW IDEAS For Home-makers

BY RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THE pink and green chintz covered boxes on these closet shelves are lined with plain green catbric and they are hinged so that the front may be opened without taking off the lid. Any box of good stiff cardboard may be hinged and covered in this way. Library paste may be used or wall paper paste mixed with a little water as possible to make it spread smoothly with a paint.

brush. Adhesive tape or other strong gummed fabric tape will be needed to hinge the boxes.

Cut the box lid straight across with a sharp knife three inches in from the front edge. Cut out the front of the box and hinge the pieces in place. Now, cut and paste the covering pieces, as directed in the sketch. Apply the paste on both the back of the fabric and the box and smooth the material in place with a dry, clean cloth. Cover sides first with fabric straight around and about 1/2 inch over edges; then cover top and bottom; then the inner sides with the plain fabric 1/4 inch below the edges and 1/2 inch over the top and bottom; then cover the top and bottom inside.

NOTE: Complete directions for making a zipper garment bag similar to the one illustrated will be found in Book 5. You may also want to make a matching door pocket. Complete directions for cutting and making are in Book 4. If you do not have these useful booklets, send order to:

Facts of ADVERTISING

ADVERTISING represents the leadership of a nation. It points the way. We merely follow—follow to new heights of comfort, of convenience, of happiness. As time goes on advertising is used more and more, and as it is used more we all profit more. It's the way advertising has— of bringing a profit to everybody concerned, the consumer included.

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO
By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

WHEN you see "Men of Boys Town" (Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney), watch three very young men who have important roles; it's more than likely that, when they grow up, they'll be tops among leading men. Metro thinks so.

They are Darryl Hickman, aged eight; Bobs Watson, who's nine, and Larry Nunn, just thirteen. You probably saw Darryl as "Winfield Joad" in "Grapes of Wrath." Norman Taurog thinks he's one of the finest child actors he ever directed. Bobs has seven brothers and sisters who have film careers. Says Taurog, "Whenever I have needed a regular kid, I have found that I could depend on the Watsons." Bobs got his break because none of the other Watsons fitted the role.

As for Larry, he'd made a name for himself in radio before he tackled Hollywood, two years ago; "Strike Up the Band" was his first picture.

For more than a year there's been discussion at Warner Bros. about filming the life of George M. Cohan, and at last a deal has been arranged with the famous song and dance man. James Cagney will play the lead, probably getting to work on it some time this summer, after he returns from vacationing at his place at Martha's Vineyard, Mass. Mr. Cohan will supervise the production.

James Cagney

Scenario trouble has delayed work on "Babe on Broadway," in which Shirley Temple was to start her come-back, so her first picture will be "Lasybones." It's a story of the San Pedro fishing fleet, and Shirley will be seen as Wallace Brady's motherless daughter.

American people have more than a generous sense of humor; they have generous hearts as well. It's proved every Sunday on the "Double or Nothing" radio program. Walter Compton, master of ceremonies, asks each guest the name of his favorite charity; if the contestant can't answer his questions, the prize money is given to some charitable institution.

Leading figures of grand opera, the theater, the sports world and big business have tried their luck on the program, and many have given their winnings to less fortunate persons. Martha Raye and Frank Forest, the program's popular tenor, gave theirs to the Red Cross. Lylo Talbot had a question from a woman who wanted to buy her blind son a Seeing Eye dog; he gave her his winnings, and the listening audience subscribed the remainder. Frederick Jagel of the Metropolitan Opera sent his to the Hundred Needlest Cases.

Rita Hayworth returns to her home lot, Columbia, to play opposite Fred Astaire, and dance with him in a musical, "He's My Uncle"—she's just finishing a dancing role in "Blood and Sand," with Tyrone Power. The talented Rita may be just the dancing partner needed for Astaire since he and Glazer Rogers parted company on the screen.

Fenny Singleton was selected America's Number One Blonde by beauty shop owners and operators at the International Beauty Show held in New York recently. The pretty screen and radio star won out over Madeline Carroll and Alice Faye, who were runners-up; it was said that during the past year she'd done more than anyone else to make American men blonde-conscious. As "Blondie" on the screen and the air she's inspired many another young wife and mother, who've appreciated her quite as much as the men did.

For almost four years Bess Johnson has been managing the mythical orphanage around which the story of "Hilltop House" gravitated. Now the serial has come to an end, and she's to be starred in a new one, titled "The Story of Bess Johnson." Same time, same stations.

USING WITNESSING POWER

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2:1-4; 4:8-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—They were all filled with the Holy Ghost, and they spoke the word of God with boldness.—Acts 4:31.

In the right place at the right time and in the right attitude—these are unerring conditions of divine blessing.

Note also how fitting it was that on that Sunday morning—evidently in the upper room—the disciples were "with one accord in one place," ready for the great gift of power and grace for life and ministry which God had for them, and through them for the world. One wonders what might happen today if Christian people would be in God's house on the Lord's day, in complete accord and unity, expectant, looking for His blessing.

I. The Holy Spirit Poured Out (2:1-4).
"We are not to imagine that at this Pentecost He first came into the world. In all ages He had been imparting life and guidance and strength and holiness to the people of God; but He was now to work with a new instrument, namely, the truth concerning a crucified, risen, ascended, divine Saviour. For the proclamation of this truth the Church was the appointed agent. The story of Pentecost, therefore, is the first chapter in the history of the Church as it witnesses for Christ, and it embodies the impressive lesson that in all successful witnessing the power is that of the Spirit and the instrument is the message of the gospel."

The outpouring of the Spirit on the day of Pentecost was accompanied by signs of great power, and a special endowment which enabled all the strangers in Jerusalem to hear the gospel in their own tongue. "This ability to speak in foreign languages not previously learned was merely a temporary endowment granted for a special purpose. It was one of those miraculous spiritual gifts which marked the age of the apostles. In modern times the claim to possess this power has never been established on credible evidence, nor is the dominance of the Spirit in the life of a believer to be tested by the presence of any special gift" (Charles R. Erdman).

II. Mighty Works Performed (4:8-12).
Reference is made here to the healing of the lame man—a miracle which resulted in the imprisonment of Peter and John. It was a work of power, but only the first of many which the disciples were to perform. An even greater work was that of the Spirit-filled preaching of the gospel which brought 3,000 souls into the church (2:41). As we marvel at that event, we need also to keep before us the recurring day-by-day miracle of the regeneration of individuals (2:47). This was, and is, accomplished through the teaching of the Word (2:42).

III. True Witness Presented (4:13-12).
The rulers and leaders (especially the skeptical aristocrats of that day—the Sadducees) were angered by the proclamation of the resurrection of the One they had crucified. They also feared that their rich revenues from the temple might be cut off if the people were to follow Christ (4:4), so they took the disciples into custody and brought them before the Sanhedrin.

Humanly speaking, one might have expected these men to stand in fear and awe before that august body, and either become dumb with terror or brazenly defiant. But such is not the operation of the Holy Spirit in a man. They spoke tactfully, but boldly, of the death and resurrection of the only One in whom there is any salvation.

IV. Faithful Though Persecuted (4:13-20).
Not being able to make any real charge against the disciples, the rulers let them go, but only after threatening them and forbidding them to speak any more of Christ. They, like so many religious leaders of today, were quite willing that the disciples should preach, if they would only leave out the name of Christ.

Note the answer in verse 10. There is only one message (v. 12). "Neither is there any other name under heaven, that is given among men, wherein we must be saved"; thus Peter asserts not only that the miracle has been wrought in the name of Jesus Christ, but that he and his judges can have eternal salvation in no other name. His words are at once a rebuke, a challenge, and an invitation. They need to be reviewed and weighed today by certain benevolent but superficial Christians who are asserting that Christianity is only one among many religions, and that it is only necessary for one to be sincere in his own belief. Such teachers must reconcile their statements with those of Peter and John, who were "filled with the Holy Spirit" when they declared that there is but one name wherein we must be saved.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

But ever varied smartness. Here's a new design (No. 1338-B) that gives you a new slant on an all-important style—specifically, the rakish angle of the buttoned pockets, stressed by rows of stitching. The notched collar is made with the new longer points. Easy to make, to put on and to wear, it will fit so beautifully and prove so useful that you'll repeat the design time after time, and on into summer.

This classic style makes up smartly in practically every run-about fabric—flat crepe, thin wool, spun rayon and silk print. Pattern provides for short sleeves, or long sleeves in the popular bishop style. Detailed sew chart included.

Pattern No. 1338-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires, with short sleeves, 4 yards of 39-inch material; long sleeves, 4 1/2 yards. Send order to:

TIPS to Gardeners

REGARDING HERBS
MANY home gardeners may be interested in growing herbs this year because of the war, and because they make everyday dishes more appetizing and flavorful.

Herbs may be grown in a plot about four by six feet to supply the average needs of a family. They should have full sunlight and be planted in good loamy soil.

Almost all popular herbs—balm, basil, borage, fennel, marjoram, rosemary, thyme, sage, anise, dill, and caraway—may either be used when young, and fresh, or prepared for use dried.

Anise, basil, borage, dill and savory are annuals; caraway, and fennel are biennials, and balm, marjoram, sage, rosemary, thyme and chives are perennials, although balm and marjoram are best treated as annuals.

All the herbs mentioned here will probably produce enough growth for use the first year, however, if seeds are planted early, and climate is normally temperate.

Desirable Motion

Many discoveries have been accidents—the result of stumbling on one thing while searching for another. But no one ever stumbled while standing still! So we feel that unintelligent motion is more to be desired than intelligent standing still.—Ketterly.

Our Revelation

In all lives there is a formation of character. It comes from many causes, and from some which on the surface are apparently even trivial. But the result is the same; a sudden revelation to ourselves of our secret purpose and a recognition of our, perhaps long-shadowed, but now masterful, convictions.—Van Amburgh.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

Terrific Fighting Marks Nazi Thrust Into Yugoslavia and Greek Territory; British Lose Bengasi to Axis Forces But Capture Addis Ababa in Ethiopia

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

BALKAN DRIVE: Under Way

With Adolf Hitler's charge to "carry the war to Britain wherever she may be" ringing in their ears, the Nazi soldiers that make up his armies smashed across the frontiers of Yugoslavia and Greece.

Early reports of the fighting in the Balkans were vague, scattered, incomplete. Nazi claims indicated that their movements were on schedule. Greek sources at first claimed the Nazi heavily armored machine was bogging down.

One of the first objectives by the German forces was reached when armored troops and parachutists reported they had broken through to the Aegean sea in eastern Greece. This movement was said by military experts to cut off Greece from her potential ally, Turkey.

Even as the German troops moved toward the Yugoslavian and Greek borders announcement was made that Russia and Yugoslavia had signed a new "non-aggression" pact. British were hopeful that this was further indication of what appeared to be a trend of Soviet movement away from the Hitler sphere of influence.

In Yugoslavia before the fighting began there were last minute moves to "placate Berlin," and a last-minute notice from Berlin that these peace overtures "came too late." But Yugoslavia apparently was standing for something far bigger and wider than her own narrow physical confines. Yugoslavia was becoming a byword for courage and daring throughout a jittery world.

Particularly was this noticeable in shaky spots like certain South American countries which saw in the sudden reversal of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes against the government which had signed up with the Axis a sign that Nazi Germany might not have a sinecure in conquering Europe.

They saw that even in the midst of the Nazi-dominated Balkans a certain country, surrounded on four sides by enemies, could have the bravery to stand up to these enemies and to defy them, with all their superior power, to cross their rocky borders.

Not that anyone figured the Jugoslavs would be a "pushover" for the Nazis, in fact, the Nazi position was none too good, for most of the territory held by them was hostile, and Britain, with 10 to 15 divisions of men, well provided with armored equipment and airplanes, were dug in just south of the Bulgarian border.

C. Fotitch, Yugoslav minister, leaves the White House after calling upon President Roosevelt to thank him for his message to the boy monarch of Yugoslavia, King Peter.

ready to give Yugoslavia and Greece more than lip-service if, as, and when the attack should come.

What part the United States was playing could not be said, although President Roosevelt said that lease-lend aid was being sent to "more than one country," which might include Britain and Greece, or Britain and Yugoslavia, or all three.

Just before the statement from the White House was made, however, the President had conferred with the Yugoslavian minister.

How well prepared Yugoslavia was seemed to be a moot point. Food was short, but so it was in all the Balkans—in all Europe, for that matter. The numbers of the army were large, estimated at from 1,300,000 to 1,600,000, but these figures the Battle of France showed might mean much or little.

There were many who believed that the Jugoslavs, who have the advantage of having the crucial Danube river run through a portion of their country, the part of the river which is so rapid and hemmed in by mountains that a canal bears shipping at that point, might explode huge charges of TNT in the mountainsides and render river and canal unfit for shipping for many months.

Already they had blown up many important bridges in the valley of Vardar, and had shown a grim determination to make a fight out of the Nazi invasion at all points.

BRITISH: Lose Bengasi

The evacuation of Bengasi, capital and port of Libya, was admitted by the British, who reported that the withdrawal was "according to plan" and that Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell was merely "picking his battleground" on which to meet the Nazi-reinforced Fascist troops.

Later dispatches seemed to indicate that the Australia-New Zealand army in Africa had halted the Nazi-Italian drive, for it was said that "the situation was well in hand," and the shooting down of six German planes and the damaging of two others was reported officially.

However, on the same day came war office warnings to the British public not to be surprised if there were further withdrawals, saying that it was officially doubted if the "halting" of the German-Italian advance was permanent.

Better news for the British however was the announcement that the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa had been taken from the Italians without a struggle. This capture came as a climax to eleven weeks of hard fighting to smash Italian African empire to bits.

IRAQ: Stages Coup

There was a military coup d'etat in Iraq, historic Bagdad being the scene of a governmental overturn staged by army forces led by Rashid Ali Ghalib.

The coup was viewed differently in various quarters, Bagdad itself, two days later, announcing that one of the main features of the new government would be fulfillment of all international obligations, particularly with Britain.

This is Emir Abdul Ilah, regent of Iraq, who ruled for five-year-old King Feisal II and is reported deposed and fleeing for his life after the military coup d'etat.

Previously it had been hinted in dispatches from London, passed by the censor, quoting Soviet circles in London as saying that it was believed the coup d'etat was inspired by the Axis, and that the objective was going to be the establishment of Nazi air bases in Iraq.

This naturally was disquieting to London, as if carried out it would place Nazi airplanes in a position of dangerous proximity to the Red Sea and the Suez canal, the defense of which had been going well for Britain.

STRIKES: Mostly CIO

The calling of a strike against the plants of "Big Steel," the United States Steel corporation, by C.I.O. unions proved that the labor situation was still acute, although the soft coal strike was settled, and the men went back to work digging the important fuel out of the ground.

Just 48 hours before the settlement was reached, four men were shot to death in Harlan, Ky., a bloody center of previous strike rioting. Just before the settlement of the bituminous coal strike, it was estimated that 530,000 men were out of work in the United States as the result of strikes, adding considerably to the number of man-days lost in the national defense.

Philip Murray, head of the C.I.O., called the strike against U. S. Steel, declaring that the companies had refused to heed a demand for a 10-cent an hour wage increase. The company has 281,000 wage earners. The C.I.O. also wants a closed shop. The Ford strike had closed the biggest single industrial plant in the nation, employing 86,000 workers.

Its gates were marked by many scenes of violence as pickets battled with workers. Back of these front-line scenes were back-stage battles. The Ford counsel obtained an injunction against the strikers, and the strikers promptly subpoenaed Henry Ford, Edsel Ford and Manager Bennett to appear in court.

The next move saw Ford Attorney Caplan making a court motion that all labor board citations against the company be thrown out as the C.I.O. union was dominated by Communists.

'Social' Work

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—Grace Billotti, YWCA social worker, demonstrates the speaking pose she will use in campaigning against Mayor Frank Hague, Democratic boss and mayor of this city since 1917. In the last election, Hague received 110,700 as against the best GOP showing of 6,700, which shows what "social" work Miss Billotti is up against.

AFTERMATH: Of Seizure

The ordering back to Italy of Naval Attache Alberto Lais of the Italian legation was a sensational aftermath of the seizure in American harbors of Italian and German vessels.

The first step was the seizure of the vessels and the jailing of 875 members of the Fascist and Nazi crews. This was closely followed by the revelation in the state department that Lais would be declared "persona non grata" to the American government and that his return to Italy would be demanded.

Lais had previously described himself as more than 75 per cent American and he is married to an American woman and their handsome daughter lives with them in Washington.

But Secretary Hull's report, which gave no details, showed plainly that Lais' "25 per cent Italian" heart had prevailed on him to participate actively in the attempted sabotage of the Fascist vessels.

This, the secretary said, was an unfriendly and illegal act, and for that his recall was demanded.

Mr. Hull also revealed that the United States had sent a flat and uncompromising "No" to the Axis demand that the ships be returned and the crews released.

Yet it was not expected anything would be done with the vessels until the incident had had time to cool down.

It was not the only serious naval reverse for Italy, the British having claimed that they had practically put 11 Duce's fleet out of commission in the Mediterranean, declaring that nine vessels, including two battleships, had been sunk, besides others believed put out of action due to damages suffered in the naval battle.

CONVOY: Big Issue

The question of whether or not American naval forces should convoy war shipments to Britain was becoming very much of a moot question in congress, with indications that the anti-convoy vote would lose.

It had been confidently predicted that American naval ships would convoy shipments to Britain "at least halfway across the Atlantic." Senator Tobey, chief opponent of this plan, even during the debate of the lease-lend bill, had a bill to ban convoys slated for consideration before the senate foreign relations committee.

But a poll of the committee showed that only 8 out of 23 committeemen would support the measure.

Yet President Roosevelt said discussion of the matter, in press conferences "was premature." It still seemed, however, likely that the Tobey resolution against convoying would not be allowed to die in committee, as many members felt that a senate vote would be the only way of settling the question once and for all.

Chairman George of the committee had repeatedly said that he would not favor American convoying unless the nation was actively and formally in the war. Senator Pepper, an ardent advocate of aid to Britain, had taken the stand that other methods, giving of convoying ships to Britain, ought to be tried before convoying is resorted to.

The mere appearance of the question out in the open air, however, showed that a probable campaign of preparation of the public mind for convoying was going on.

This attitude of bowing to the administration's lease-lend powers was expressed by Senator Gillette, Iowa, who said that while he did not favor convoying himself, he was unwilling to stand in the way of the President's full administration of British aid.

While the lease-lend bill states specifically that nothing in the bill can be construed as giving the President the authority to order American convoying, legal authorities in Washington said they were of the opinion that he has that power as head of the army and navy.

WHEN anyone mentions "gamble" in connection with the various Joe Louis ring enterprises, the responding answer is likely to be in the nature of a hoarse guffaw. The Bomber is usually a 1-10 shot, or even shorter, which leans more in the sure thing direction than any gamble.

Yet the gamble is still there in this uncertain world.

The Louis crown is worth around $3,000,000—as long as Louis wears it. In his last start against Abe Simon in the Detroit show the champion raked in a trifle under $20,000. So he was gambling a $3,000,000 title against a $20,000 collection, with the odds at 1-150, a price few would care to offer in any form of competition.

No one rated Simon with a chance to whip Louis. But in taking numerous whacks and smashes at Abe's granite chin, suppose Louis had cracked one or both jaws?

This can happen to any puncher at any given moment. Both Dempsey and Louis carried iron fists into action, where more than a few good fighters have been harried or wrecked by brittle hands.

When you are leveling against a Simon jaw, hooked to 255 pounds of human flesh and bone, only a pair of tough hands can stand the test.

Fighting Hands

Jim Corbett once told me that in his earlier days he was a good puncher.

"I decided to go out for boxing," he said, "for two reasons. One was the speed I had in my legs. The other was to save my hands."

Gene Tunney had early hand trouble, one of the reasons he concentrated on boxing in place of the knock-out wallop.

In his second start against Jim Jeffries, Bob Fitzsimmons might have won if he hadn't smashed both hands on the Jeffries jawbone. They were shattered down to the lower knuckles.

More than a few rather important fights have been lost by broken hands.

Louis is one of the few fighters on record who can punch equally hard with both hands. This explains more than 80 per cent of his effectiveness. If either fist should crack up his assaulting powers would be cut down heavily.

Both Tom Gibbons and Gene Tunney knew the way to keep on guard against Dempsey's blasting left hook. Jack's right was nothing like the Louis right.

So when Louis is swinging away with any two-handed attack he is always taking a double risk against a concrete head or cement chin. He confessed to a pair of sore hands after the Simon party.

Another Angle

It is also a matter of judgment as to how long anyone can keep at razor-edge working as often as the Bomber does. No other heavyweight champion ever took any such gamble. Fortunately for Louis, he hasn't the type of imagination that keeps him keyed up.

But long training periods can remove a big part of the keenness that follows long resting spans. There is a touch of drudgery to training that most fighters either dread or dislike intensely. Mickey Walker and Benny Leonard, two of the best, were always below par in their training.

The wonder is that Louis, with all the snafu he has piled up, is still willing to face the grid. He will have practically no rest from now until late September—this campaign on top of 15 defensive stands.

It is easy to understand Mike Jacobs' big rust. The answer is the draft.

Both Louis and Billy Conn are not so many strikes away, and the odds against their going to an army camp will be considerably lower before the summer is over. Draft numbers that were once in the tree-logs have now fallen to the lower limbs. And they are falling faster every week.

No one knows this better than Mike and those handling the destinies of most of the leading challengers.

Time, tide and the draft wait for no one—and beyond early summer the shore line of all sport is thick with legs and gathering mist.

As the matter now stands Jacobs has arranged four starts for Louis in the next six months—May, June, July and September. This will leave Louis facing his twentieth defense of the main crown—if he slips safely through them all—it there is some ground for him to fight.

Speaking of SPORTS

By ROBERT McSHANE

Released by Western Newspaper Union

THE effect of the draft upon sport in general is going to be much greater than many suspected a few months back when the boys line up to give Uncle Sam the necessary information.

A great many more athletes are going to be called by midsummer than most of us thought possible. The high draft numbers of last fall are steadily getting lower and deferment entails considerably more than a casual appearance before the local draft board.

Every major league baseball club lists men who are eligible for army duty. And it's very possible that a majority of those clubs will lose more men than they anticipated. Club owners and team managers aren't very happy over the outlook, but there's only one thing to do about it. They can wish the boys good luck and a quick return.

Quite a few young, unmarried baseball players have no logical reason to ask deferment. They are responsible solely for their own support and are entitled to nothing more than the average clerk or book-keeper. It is to their credit that most of them are accepting their luck with good grace.

Tough Break

However, it isn't always fair to condemn a young ball player who grouches a bit at the turn of events which brought his number up in a hurry—particularly if the player hasn't a very strong foothold in the majors. For the most part he has worked hard to get where he is. Then, too, it may be tough for him to get another chance immediately after his army discharge. A year is a long time in any sport, and baseball is no exception.

Despite his attempts to rationalize, the average ball player knows he must be prepared to leave when his number arrives. The more prominent the man, the surer he is to get called. The air would be filled with loud, justifiable howls should some completely eligible athlete be passed or deferred. Football players, boxers, basketball players, and all other athletes are supposed to make the best army candidates. Almost all of them are in fine physical condition and many of them are much better off financially than the average selectee.

Psychological Aspect

Ball players can't afford to overlook the psychological aspect.

Remember the almost laughable case of the ball player who asked for unemployment compensation? Multiply the jeers and boos they received by a thousand and it will indicate a manager's fear of the derision which would befall any eligible ball player who secured deferment.

Even though Feller, Hank Greenberg and others are drafted in the near future, there will still be two exciting pennant races. The fact that the experts may be forced to rewrite their dope is not at all important. Should the favored team in either league fail to win, it will have no bearing on world history. The morale of our army—and of our nation—is of much more importance to future generations than is the outcome of the 1941 pennant races.

Question of Morale

It often has been said that the country needs entertainment and relaxation in times of crisis—war and otherwise. No one will argue that point. But the entertainment need not be furnished by young men who might otherwise be serving their country to better advantage. Winning our miser battle is many times more important than winning a World's series.

The morale of the nation's armed forces is certainly as important as civilian morale. A great pitcher, an All-American halfback or a league-leading hitter will do more in the way of psychological uplift than a regiment of unknowns.

Sport is a vital factor in today's army, and it will become increasingly important as time goes on. Millions of young Americans have one outlet—sport. Ball players, golfers, boxers, football players and experts in all other fields of sport won't be forced to give up their training and their profession. The army will keep them busy in their chosen fields. Around them will be built regimental and divisional teams. They will serve as coaches, managers, players and instructors. In short, their importance is their country will be increased rather than decreased.

The headlines who are called by the draft will get a bit the worst of it financially. It is reasonable to assume, though, that they are the ones who will be hurt least in the long run.

Sport Shorts

Willis Ward, one of the University of Michigan's all-time track greats, has volunteered for the army.

Because of the "uncertainties of the times" Princeton university's annual invitational track meet will not be held this spring. For six years it has been one of the classics of the outdoor track season.

Doctors at the Mayo clinic in Rochester, Minn., have banned salt from Billy Jurges' diet.

Visitors Stumped by Simple Science of Sustenance

In the midst of the scientist's labors a distinguished visitor was announced. The latter watched the absorbing investigations with an interested air, but the scientist's attention was concentrated upon a vessel which was enveloped in smoke and steam. "Guess what is in here," he said. The visitor proceeded to enumerate things known to science. "Micrococci?" "No." "Sarcococci?" "No." "Spirochetes?" "No." "What, then?" "Sausages!" said the scientist.

INSTALLMENT 6 THE STORY SO FAR:

Dusty King and Lew Gordon had built up a vast string of ranches which stretched from Texas to Montana. King was killed by his powerful and unscrupulous competitor, Ben Thorpe. Bill Roper, King's adopted son, undertook to break Thorpe's power. His first step was to start a cattle war in Texas. He made this decision against the opposition of Lew Gordon and the fearful pleading of his sweetheart, Jody Gordon. With the aid of Dry Camp, Pierce and other outlaw gunmen, Roper conducted raid after raid upon Thorpe's herds. Cleve Tanner, manager of Thorpe's Texas holdings, seemed helpless to stop him. Gunmen seized control of isolated ranches, and cattle were driven off by the thousands. Entire herds are driven across the Rio Grande into Mexico.

"Sometimes it looks like I'm not even doing that."
"If you haven't accomplished anything else, you've astonished my father. He's said himself, over and over, he wouldn't have supposed it could be done. No question but what Cleve Tanner is shaken; he's shaken clear down to his roots. Nobody knows what's what any more, or what will happen. People who thought a year ago that Cleve Tanner was invincible—they're saying now that he's coming to the end of his string; that if this thing goes on, Tanner will be through."

"What else do they say?"
"They're saying that the worst renegades of the trail are working together, for the first time—the killers, the men who don't care if they live or die. They say they have money back of them now, and that even Cleve Tanner, with all his string of outfits, can't stand up against the everlasting raiding, and stampeding, and mysterious loss of cattle. They say he's lost twenty outfits, just because he couldn't spare the gunmen to hold the range."

CHAPTER VIII—Continued

Presently it began to appear that the tough, notoriously trouble-making outfits under Cleve Tanner were not holding together as they always had before. Here and there men were beginning to desert the Tanner outfits—sometimes fired because they had failed, sometimes voluntarily deserting to the ranks of the raiders who were now almost openly punishing the Thorpe-Tanner holdings.

CHAPTER IX

With the fall, Lew Gordon, now in sole charge of the far-scattered cattle holdings he had shared with Dusty King, came to Texas to inspect the southern holdings of King-Gordon—the breeding ranges from which all the King-Gordon holdings drew their essential sustenance.

Reports kept coming to Bill Roper at his constantly shifting bases by way of the many riders who kept him in touch with his far-spread wild bunch. Inevitably he knew that Jody was at the headquarters of the old Two-Circle, not far from Uvalde. The Two-Circle had been the original Gordon stand; from this camp had been driven the first trail herd that Dusty King had pushed north. Roper knew that she was there. Yet the fall dragged on, and November passed into December before he went to see her.

Mid-August, in the season of driest heat—
Into the Potreritos, by a little used trail, a black-sombreoed horseman rode. He was a tested gunman, a proved man whose name was known and feared half the length of the Great Trail. Trouble-shooting for Cleve Tanner now, he was moving into the Potreritos to find out what had gone wrong with some of Tanner's choicest herds. He had come fast, changing horses frequently, riding far into the night.
Loping down the almost invisible trail through the dark, his horse suddenly dropped from under him, head long into nothingness. The pony might have stepped into a prairie dog hole—or it could have been the loop of a rope. But as the dazed rider struggled up, his mouth full of dirt, a rifle was prodding his belly, and a voice was saying: "Don't you think you might have took the wrong way?"

He had told himself that there was no use in his going to see Jody Gordon; but in the end, of course, he went.
He rode up to the Two-Circle ranch house in late afternoon of a cold

"Eleven outfits," Roper said.
"Then it was really you?"
"Those eleven outfits they speak of—those were outfits gouged away from little lonely men, on pretenses that hadn't any justice or any true law. Those outfits are back with their owners now."
"But—you admit your wild bunch is behind all this?"
"Call it that if you want to. I guess there isn't anybody knows as well as you do what I'm trying to do."

He pulled up his horse a few yards from the kitchen gallery.

West Texas, far up the lonely Pecos—
One of Cleve Tanner's outfit bosses was talking to the Ranger stationed at Mustang Point.
"Such a damn' outburst of lawlessness has cut loose here as I never seen before," he said.
The ranger here was Val McDonald. He had gone out nineteen times in battle, sometimes against Mexicans, sometimes against the Comanches, and he had hunted white renegades galore.
"Awfully tough," he said in his own sympathetic way.

December day. The sky was low and heavy, and the bitter north had brought a scud of hard snow a long way to throw it sharply in his face.
He pulled up his horse a few yards from the kitchen gallery, then sat there looking at the house, his sheepskin hunched about his throat. Even now, having come this far, he almost made up his mind to go away.

"You know Cleve Tanner has put up five thousand dollars for your arrest?"
"Later, it now appears, this corridor was closed by some fluctuation in the ice sheet and—perhaps after a long interval—other groups began coming southward west of the Rockies."
"It is now apparent, reports David I. Bushness Jr., that the Indians encountered by the English colonists in the Virginia area, were far from constituting the 'first families of Virginia.' They had been preceded, perhaps for several thousand years, by various peoples whose scattered artifacts are being dug up over much of the state."
"Among the most perplexing problems of all is that afforded by the multiplicity of Indian languages. All differ in vocabulary and several differ even more profoundly in language structure. This difficult field is dealt with by Dr. John P. Harrington of the bureau of ethnology staff who maintains the hypothesis that all are derived from an original common mother language. This differentiation, however, may not have taken place in North America."

The foreman of the outfit that was busted up was fit to be tied. "I tell you, we're being stolen blind," he raved. "Not just a calf here and there, either—they take 'em in swoops and bunches. It's the boldest thing I've ever seen. Even when there's no chance of getting clear with any cattle, they're game to stampede a cut herd that it's took weeks to round up, and scatter it from hell to—"

"This is one of Ben Thorpe's outfits? No?"
"Does that mean—"
"Well? How many times has Cleve Tanner passed out the word, 'The Rangers be damned?' He's put more obstructions in the way of things we was trying to do than any other one man. Who was it had the legislature cut-down our pay until we practically ride for nothing, and furnish all our own stuff?"

"You know Cleve Tanner has put up five thousand dollars for your arrest?"

"The question here is whether we're going to have any law, or are we going to have—"
"From what I heard," McDonald said, "Cleve Tanner has left it to be known that he's the biggest end of the law himself. Go talk to Cleve Tanner if you want law."

A split pole fence separated them; and after a moment she came across the few yards of space, leaning sideways against the bitter wind, and stood gripping a bar of the fence as she peered up into his face.
"I knew it was you," she said.
"Child," said Bill Roper, "you get back in that house. You'll freeze!"
"Then you put up your horse and come in."
"Is your father here?"
"He's in San Antonio."
"I don't think he'd want me here, Jody."
"Lew Gordon has never turned away any rider without a cup of coffee; not yet."
He gave in then, and stepped down. He tied his horse to the fence, and followed her into the house.

"You had everything," she said; "and you threw it away . . ."
He had only heard her say that once before; but, in memory, he had heard it so often since that her words had the ring of a familiar song.
"I'm sorry that we can't ever see things the same," Bill said. "I started out to get Cleve Tanner, and I'll get him. After Tanner, Walk Lasham; and after Walk Lasham, Ben Thorpe. But when it comes to saying I had everything before I started in, I guess maybe that isn't so."
Jody said hotly, "There wasn't one thing in all the world you didn't have—or couldn't have had—before you chose this crazy way!"
"I didn't have you," he told her.
"If I had had you, I guess I would have you yet. Things don't shift and change so easy as that—not in the part of the world I know."
He was pulling on his gloves now, buttoning his sheepskin coat. In what was left of the light, the shadows lay heavy upon his face. As he stood there, he could have been Dusty King himself—the man who had broken a hundred long and weary trails; except that Dusty King had perhaps never looked so old.
Her voice came to him as if from a distance. "And when you're through," she said—"what are you going to have left?"
"Far as I know," Bill Roper said, "I'm not going to have anything left. God knows I've got very little left now." He was glad she didn't know how his resources had dwindled, how close to the end he really stood.
Her voice rose sharply. "Can't you see there's no hope in this ghastly thing? Thorpe's grip is unbreakable." She came close to him, and her words came through her teeth. "It's your ver; life you're throwing away!"
Perhaps he misunderstood her then; for he grinned. "Maybe," he said, "that would be the least I could lose; the very least of all . . ."

"I'll move out and straighten up your little old range," McDonald said. "I'll be glad to. Just as soon as I get orders from headquarters. I'm waiting for them right orders now!"
But the weeks rolled by, and headquarters was curiously still . . .

End of summer; a welcome end—
Cleve Tanner himself, the Cleve Tanner who represented Ben Thorpe in the south, master of breeding grounds, the man who controlled the roots of all Ben Thorpe's plains organization, was talking to the United States Marshal at San Antonio.
"There hasn't been such a wave of outlawry since the horse Indians was put down. Damnation, man! It's set us back ten years . . . I know what your policy has been. Your idea is to let us fight it out for ourselves, against Mexico, against the Indians, against all hell. But I tell you, this thing comes from inside; this thing might be something that I couldn't beat without help."
The United States Marshal at San Antonio smiled to himself a little smile; and he said, "Seems like this must be a terrible bad thing for you, Cleve?"
"I'm telling you—"
"Go ahead and tell me. You're a Ben Thorpe man, ain't you? A right leading Ben Thorpe man. Well—maybe I'll tell you a couple of things, some day . . ."
There was law in Texas, even in those days; but there was no such law as could stand against the combined renegades of the long trail, with behind them a lawyer who could delay forever in the courts; and a reckless expenditure of money, the source of which some suspected, but which was not definitely known.

"The question here is whether we're going to have any law, or are we going to have—"
"From what I heard," McDonald said, "Cleve Tanner has left it to be known that he's the biggest end of the law himself. Go talk to Cleve Tanner if you want law."

"My understanding is," the foreman argued, "that the Rangers are supposed to—"
"I'll be glad to. Just as soon as I get orders from headquarters. I'm waiting for them right orders now!"

Men Lived Here 15,000 Years Ago

North America Is Peopled by Two Migration Waves Out of Asia.

WASHINGTON.—The New world apparently was peopled by two major migration waves out of Asia. There have been human beings in North America for about 15,000 years. Those were conclusions presented by Smithsonian institution scientists in a general review of North American prehistory.

Dr. Swanton himself is an authority on the migrations and contracts of Indian tribes before and after the coming of Columbus, and with efforts to trace similarities among languages.
It now is fairly conclusive, reported Dr. T. D. Stewart, that two different basic stocks were represented in the aboriginal population. One was characterized by long, high heads and broad noses. This type skull predominates in those sites which were settled first. Later sites yield skulls of a broad headed people.

All of Mongolian Descent.

"Long before the coming of the whites, it is pointed out, the two types had more or less fused. Both belonged to the Mongolian race, as does the present day Indian," said a bulletin of the Smithsonian institution.

"A few years ago it was generally believed that man was a relatively recent arrival in North America. Finds of human artifacts in geologic strata which can tentatively be dated and in association with the bones of extinct animals have forced a revision of this doctrine. Man has almost certainly been on the continent, it is explained by Dr. Frank H. H. Roberts Jr., since the closing days of the last ice age.

"The remains are so few and scattered that the historical picture remains very confused. A broad outline is that late in the pleistocene geologic period there was an ice-free corridor from the arctic through Canada east of the Rockies by which bands of hunters were able to penetrate far to the southward.

Corridor Eventually Closed.

"Later, it now appears, this corridor was closed by some fluctuation in the ice sheet and—perhaps after a long interval—other groups began coming southward west of the Rockies.

"It is now apparent, reports David I. Bushness Jr., that the Indians encountered by the English colonists in the Virginia area, were far from constituting the 'first families of Virginia.' ### Roofs on Wrong House And Legal Action Ensues

OMAHA.—Is a man entitled to damages when somebody put a new roof on his cottage when he doesn't want a new roof?
That's the question for the courts here when George E. Turner sued William Petersen, roofer, for $100, charging that Petersen's firm, without Turner's knowledge or consent, put a new roof on his summer cottage.
Petersen said: "It was all an innocent and unintentional mistake. The new roof was supposed to have gone on a neighboring cottage."
Petersen, in a counter claim, said he offered to take the roof off but Turner refused to allow this—now Petersen asks that Turner be ordered to pay $22 for the roof.

Air-Warning System is Praised by Military Men

NEW YORK.—Three high-ranking army, navy and air corps officers praised test operations of the air defense command's aircraft warning system and described it as the nucleus for a permanent organization of air defense, "which we must have."
They were Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding the First army; Rear Admiral Clark H. Woodward, commandant of the Third Naval district, and Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the air corps, all of whom inspected the system's New York information center on the final day of the four-day experimental tests.

Avila Camacho Presented Carolina Homespun Suit

ASHEVILLE, N. C. — Mountain craft workers of western North Carolina have done their bit for the "good neighbor" policy and President Manuel Avila Camacho of Mexico has a new suit of homespun made on hand looms in the Old North State. The homespun was recently presented to the Mexican executive by Ambassador Josephus Daniels.

YOUNG BULLS REQUIRE CARE

Good Feeding Produces Best Results.

By L. J. CASE
(Extension Animal Husbandman, N. C. State College)

Many farmers have recently added a herd of beef cattle to their agricultural enterprises. It is highly important that they take adequate care of the herd bull, especially if the animal is young.
Young bulls should be well fed and cared for in order to grow them out properly. A good ration is equal parts of corn, crushed oats and wheat bran, and all the legume hay the animal will eat. If legume hay is not available, add about one-half pound of a protein supplement with the grain mixture. Where wheat bran is too high in price, double the amount of oats in the ration.

The total amount of grain to be fed should vary with the condition of the bull, but in no case should it be necessary to feed more than one pound to each 100 pounds live weight of the animal. Small amounts of good sweet silage may be fed to the bull, but large quantities may prove detrimental.

The young bull should have access to salt and pure water at all times, and a mineral mixture of equal parts of steamed bone meal, ground limestone, and salt should be kept where he can help himself.

The beef type bull should not be put into service until he is at least one year old. The first year he may be used on not over 10 or 12 cows, one service to the cow. The bull should have access to a well-fenced lot or pasture where he can take exercise. An open shed or shelter of some kind should be available. Some bred cows running in the same lot with the bull will induce exercise. In no case should the young bull be allowed to run with unbred females.

Rotation Grazing of Sheep Prevents Stomach Worms

Rotation grazing of sheep is the ideal preventive measure for stomach worms, believe animal pathologists of the University of Illinois college of agriculture.

Since preventive measures are based on breaking the life cycle of the worm, the young and uninfested animals should not be allowed to contact the manure from infested animals. Most serious effects are seen among lambs, and since growth must be made while the animals are young, the safest pastures should be made available to the lambs.

First symptoms are dullness, lack of thrift and often diarrhea. Later the skin and mucous membranes of the eye and mouth become pale as a result of the anemia caused by the blood-sucking habits of the parasite. Swellings may appear along the lower jaw, dewlap or brisket.
Stomach worms are tiny blood-sucking worms 1/2 to 1 1/2 inches long and smaller than an ordinary pin. The adult worm attaches itself to the lining of the fourth stomach and feeds for awhile, then commonly shifts to a new point of attachment, leaving a bleeding wound resembling a pin-prick. The adult female lays many eggs which pass out with the droppings and contaminate the ground. The eggs hatch in from a few hours to several days, depending upon conditions of temperature and moisture. The larvae undergo further development until they reach a stage capable of infesting the host. In this stage they are very resistant to drying and low temperature.

When the grass is wet the larvae crawl up blades of grass to be swallowed by grazing sheep. Reaching the stomach, they mature in two to three weeks and in another week or two the females are producing eggs in large numbers.

Farm Notes

American cash income from farm marketings and government payments in December amounted to $637,000,000 as compared with $501,000,000 in December of 1939.

Recent reports from Vichy say that most of the cattle in unoccupied France will soon have to be slaughtered because of a critical shortage of corn, barley, oats and other feed.

The United States produces about 30 per cent of the world's beef supply. Argentina, Brazil, and Uruguay combined produce about 25 per cent.

Some agricultural experts believe that with farm labor costs going up, just as farmers are sending their sons into the draft army, there will be an increasing need for farm machinery.

Prices of ready-to-wear clothing increased 5 to 10 per cent in 1940 and are expected to rise as much more in 1941. Woolen garments and leather goods are especially likely to rise in price because of the demand for wool, hides, and leather for defense purposes.

Carry On For America

Buy and Wear a Poppy on Poppy Day.

Making of memorial poppies is going forward rapidly in government hospitals and special work-rooms in many parts of the country. Mrs. Lois Moore, poppy chairman of the local Legion Auxiliary, reported today that 500 poppies have been ordered for distribution here. The same are being made by disabled veterans at the Veterans' Hospital, Albuquerque.

"Making the flowers, which are worn in honor of their fallen comrades, help the veterans pass away the hours or gives them remunerative work in the work-rooms," said Mrs. Moore. The more poppies we distribute here, the more work we can give them and the more funds we will have for welfare activities among their families. We are looking forward to the support of the community on this coming 22nd Poppy Day.

Announcement

Fort Stanton, New Mexico, April 11, 1941.

Fort Stanton announces with regret that the annual July 4th celebration is being discontinued and will not be held this year. The celebration, which was held annually for more than twenty-five years, had grown from a small community picnic to probably the largest one-day rodeo and picnic in the southwest. Over 5,200 people were served with plate lunches on July 4th, 1940. An ideal location, good roads and favorable advertising, had brought many people to Fort Stanton from outside of the county and even the state each year until 1940, when the largest crowd of all time attended. The day had grown beyond the capacity of the hospital to handle and it has become necessary to withdraw in favor of others.

Continuance of a similar entertainment in Lincoln County on July 4th is to be encouraged and will receive the co-operation and assistance of the Fort Stanton authorities insofar as it is possible.

G. H. Boyd, W. C. Hendon, Members of the Fourth of July Committee.

PETER HURD'S PICTURES IN NEW YORK

One of the southwest's foremost interpreters, Peter Hurd, is currently serving as that section's ambassador in New York, comments the Art Digest. Nine of his new canvases, all devoted to the looming mountains and crystalline air of New Mexico, bring a fresh breath of the great outdoors into the Mackbeth Gallery, where they remain on view through February 24. Commander of a brush that can work subtly within a framework of bold patterns, Hurd lays down solid valley floors, carefully builds up the bulging shapes of hills worn round with age and bathes both in a light that is dazzling; this light, in "The Rainy Season," creates a pattern of long shadows cast by scrubby trees. Hills rise in the background to a climax that is gathering storm in the sky. "Rio Bonito" is in a softer key, with a peace and quiet of late afternoon dominating—a mood that is repeated in "Anselmo's House," in which Hurd has softened his palette and worked in tones of gray-green.

From the El Palacio.

Mr. and Mrs. George Goodson, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cleghorn were Roswell visitors on Easter Sunday. The Cleghorns returned in the evening and the Goodsons remained until Monday.
