Band Concert

Graduation Day is approaching and our high school band is scheduled to lose six members as a result of commencement exercises. Our band is small now, having only 18 members—and upon losing six members, it will be woefully small.

But the picture is not at all dark for we have a Beginners' Band numbering 14 members.

A beginners' group in the grades is the only salvation from graduation losses that it is possible for any high school band to have.

The beginners' band was started last fall and is composed of children who knew nothing about playing a band instrument when they started. They have been studying the fundamentals of music reading, learning the fingering, how to produce tones and control them, and finally to play together in an Ensemble.

I am announcing a band concert to be played by the beginners' band on the stage of the high school auditorium on Thursday, May 8 at 2:30 p. m. Admission will be free and I am urging all parents who possibly can attend to do so, and especially parents of children in the band.

Come and give this group a fine audience to play to.

H. P. Spelcher, the genial manager of the S. P. Hotel showed the Outlook man a car which, as he said, had been standing in front of the hotel for three days. Said Mr. Spelcher, and we quote, "I am going to have the night watchman remove that wreck to the station and put a stop to that practice."—End quote. The fact of the matter was that the wreck to which he referred, was his own property—so what?

New Postoffice Opens

The new postoffice opened Sunday morning to Carrizozo patrons and Postmaster H. E. Kelt and his clerks remained at their posts all through the day, instructing box-holders how to work their combinations. The new system, changing the numbers and combinations of all boxes, necessarily caused a little study on the part of the public, but with the directions from our efficient staff at the postoffice, they were soon instructed and now everything is in normal condition. The new office will soon carry the great American flag, which will designate it as a government building and we take pleasure in adding, that it is a thing of beauty, convenience and one of the most valuable assets to Carrizozo.

IN FOUNDING down Georgia turf again with one Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the discussion came up regarding the best winning year or years of an athlete's career.

Freddie Corcoran, tournament manager of the P. G. A. and a master of statistical lore, had just discovered that the winning average age for professional golf stood at 28 years, or in that immediate neighborhood.

Bobby Jones' winning span ran from 21 to 28. But it was at 28 that he had his greatest and final season.

Gene Sarazen had his best years from 20 to 21, so that his average stood at 28.

"We've had 26-year-old winners in Oulmet and Sarazen," Corcoran said, "and others in their high thirties. Sarazen also led for the title at 23. Vardon was close to 50 when he won his last start. But you'll find that 28 is close to peak form."

For Baseball

"My two best years," Cobb said, "were 1911 and 1912, when I was 26 and 27 years old."

The records proved this. In 1911 Cobb batted .429, scored 147 runs and stole 21 bases. In 1912 Cobb batted .419 and stole 51 bases. In 1915 Cobb stole 26 bases, which is more than the entire cast of two ball clubs will steal today.

"When I was around 26," Ty said, "I had the experience that comes from eight years of play—I started at 18—and I also had the spring of youth. At that age the eyes and legs are still young. The reflexes work perfectly. As I got a few years older I noticed that while I could run about as fast as ever, I couldn't start as fast. And the start is a big part of speed."

In those two big years Cobb piled up 475 hits. And starting speed was a big factor in this total.

"There have been a lot of ball players," Ty added, "who got better as they grew older. But the average winning year is still around 28. Walter Johnson had many great years. But his best season was in 1913 when, as I dimly recall it, Walter won 36 games and had an earned run average of 1.09. Think of that! And he won those 36 games with a weak-hitting club that rarely got him many runs. In 1913 Johnson was just 25 years old. I had to hit against him then and I know what he had. No one before or since has ever had such terrific speed. You knew a fast ball was coming, but that didn't help a lot. It was too fast."

So there you have Ty Cobb and Walter Johnson with the age of 26, pointing to their twin peaks. Bob Feller, now 22, should be a 40 game winner at 28, if the same average holds up. Cobb is now moving on to his fifty-fifth birthday. The Georgia Peach is still in fine physical shape; the main sign of passing years is thinning hair, just a trifle gray. But he can still hunt from dawn to darkness and take you around some fairway at a hectic pace.

Jack Dempsey was the main title at the age of 24. So did Jim Jeffries.

Jim Corbett was 25 when he stopped John L. Sullivan, then fat and 35. Gene Tunney was 28 when he won from Dempsey.

Among Fighters

Dempsey was at his best the year he beat Willard. Tunney came along more slowly. Tunney retired before he came to what he might have been.

Jack Willard, a freak, was well over 30 when he whipped Jack Johnson. Fitz was around 35 when he stopped Jim Corbett.

But I think you'll find the average age of fighting greatness close to 28 or 27 years. As Ty Cobb puts it this is the meeting point of experience and youth. The physical qualities have been retained and have also received an added hardness. There is more stamina to work with, and just as much speed.

As I recall it, Bill Tilden was 28 when he won his first national tennis championship at Forest Hills and mopped up at Wimbledon. Tilden can still play every stroke known to the game. But the legs and the eyes are years away from their prime.

Eyes Important

"And don't forget," Bill said some time ago, "the eyes can't be overlooked. They are more important than most camp followers understand."

There have been exceptions, but if you look back you'll find that 28 or 27 has been the golden year of competition, especially where speed and stamina count.

Willie Hoppe, beyond 50, is still a marvel, but Willie doesn't have to use his legs where speed is needed—and that's important.

Speaking of SPORTS

By ROBERT McSHANE

Released by Western Newspaper Union

THE Cincinnati Reds will win the National league pennant, followed closely by the Brooklyn Dodgers, and the New York Yankees will nose out the Cleveland Indians for top honors in the American league.

At least that seems to be the consensus among the nation's sports writers. Four hundred of them, picking the pennant races for a recent issue of a national magazine, named the Tanks and Reds with the Dodgers and Indians runners-up. The Cards and the Red Sox were given third place.

However, if you disagree with that early season analysis, forget it. You can find any number of authoritative prognostications more nearly in line with your own thoughts on the subject.

For instance, one Chicago sports writer picks the Cubs to win the 1941 National league race ahead of at least two better teams; possibly three. His reasoning is a bit tricky, but believers in sun spots, groundhog shadows and technocracy will have no trouble grasping the situation. He points out that the Cubs have won the pennant every three years, beginning in 1925. And they haven't won since 1938. Hence it's their year.

Two Good Reasons

Maybe there's something to his belief. The Cubs won with the best team in the league in 1925 and 1932. But in 1935 and 1938, Lady Luck was the most important person on the club roster.

Then, too, the Cardinals are getting the nod in several quarters. They need only pitching to justify any claims made for them, and some observers are becoming more optimistic about that department.

Going into this season we're of the opinion that the defending champion Reds are due to repeat in the National league without too great a struggle.

And we'll string along with the Cardinals for second place, though the Dodgers will have considerably more to say about this than ourselves. The St. Louis outfield is the best in the league, boasting such willing and capable workers as Terry Moore, Egos Slaughter, Don Padgett, Ernie Koy and Harry Walker.

The Dodgers are the question mark of the senior circuit. Dolph Camilli and "Cookie" Lavagetto are a couple of aged performers who aren't expected to be of any great future service. But Joe Medwick looks stronger than ever and young "Pewee" Reese is a whirlwind shortstop, strong at the plate and lightning on the bases.

Cubs for Fourth?

From here on the going is even more muddled. But right now the Cubs look good for fourth place, followed by the Giants, Pirates, Bees and Phillies.

The American league race should be one of the most exciting in years. The Yankees and Indians promise to make it a close fight—both teams are set for a great season.

All in all, the Yanks are well balanced. The outfield combination, consisting of Joe Di Maggio, Charley Keller, George Selkirk and Tommy Henrich, would make any manager deliciously happy. Bill Dickey is a top notch receiver and a threat at the plate.

The Indians are at a disadvantage in that their hopes are based largely on the arm of one man—Bob Feller. Manager Peckinpaugh figures him to win between 25 and 30 games. Remove him from the lineup through injury or by the draft and the Indians would be little more than just another ball club.

Hank and the Draft

The Detroit Tigers are worth third place nomination. Even though Dick Bartell and Charley Gehring may not repeat their 1940 performance, the Tigers can look to Eric McNair and Frank Croucher. Hank Greenberg and Rudy York could make a grammar school team dangerous. The Tigers can only hope that the draft doesn't nab Hank too soon. They need his battling power too much.

The Chicago White Sox rate no better than fourth place. But Manager Jimmy Dykes is extremely fond of upsetting appellants.

The Red Sox should lead the second division clubs, followed by St. Louis, Philadelphia and Washington. It is not likely, though, that the clubs will co-operate to that extent. Indeed, it is entirely probable that a first-division team will be forced to swap places with one of the latter four clubs before the season has ended.

Proving, all over again, the futility of long range guesses.

Sport Shorts

Stan Hack of the Chicago Cubs was the hardest man in the National league to double up last season. He hit into only three double plays.

The University of Georgia beat Auburn 30 to 4 in the opening Southeastern conference baseball game this year.

Florida reaped a record revenue of $2,402,773 from pari-mutual betting this past winter season—$33,000 of which will go to each of the state's 67 counties.

TIPS to Gardeners

BULB SUBSTITUTES

WITH the supply of many popular spring-flowering bulbs cut off because of the war in Europe, gardeners are seeking certain substitutes.

The color and form of many annual flowers makes them excellent choices for replacing the bulb favorites. As in the case of bulbs, the seed of these annuals may be planted in the early fall, for blossoming early the following summer.

The fresh yellow color of Daffodils, for instance, may be captured nearly as well in the petals of Sunshine Calendula, or in the rich hues of California Poppy (Extra Golden). The shape of the California Poppy and the Shirley Poppy closely approaches the typical Tulip shape.

The soft colors associated with the Tulip may be replaced best by Larkspur, with its tints of white, blue, pink, rose, lilac, and carmine. The newer, tall-growing Super Majestic Larkspurs are most desirable.

The blossom-crowded spikes of Snapdragons are likened by many to the Hyacinth. It is best to grow the dwarf rust-resistant strains of Snapdragons, with attractive varieties such as Compact Bedding Bronze, and Salmon Pink adaptable also because of their suitability for massed bedding, as Tulips are so often used.

A Unique President

ONE hundred and fifty years ago this month occurred the birth of a boy who was destined to be unique in our presidential history. He was James Buchanan, born April 21, 1791, in Cove Gap, near Mercersburg, Pa., and he became the only native of the Keystone state to reach the White House and our only "bachelor President."

Young Buchanan practiced law in Lancaster, Pa., after his graduation from Dickinson college and in 1814 he was elected to the Pennsylvania legislature. Seven years later the Federalist party sent him to congress and he served there for 10 years. During this period of his career occurred the incident which made him a confirmed bachelor.

He became engaged to Ann Coleman of Lancaster but her father disapproved of the match. So when Buchanan went to Philadelphia to try a case, the elder Coleman intercepted the letters that passed between his daughter and the young attorney and persuaded her that Buchanan's long silence meant he was no longer interested in her.

Meanwhile, gossips had brought Buchanan the news that Ann Coleman was engaged to another man. When Buchanan called at her home, he was received coldly by Robert Coleman, who confirmed the gossip, while Ann stood beside her father without uttering a word of denial.

Later Buchanan wrote her a letter demanding that she return his letters and any other keepsakes he had given her, which she did. The next day she went to Philadelphia to visit relatives and there, a short time later, she died, presumably of a broken heart. One romantic version of the story has it that she took an overdose of laudanum and was found dead with a keepsake of her lover clutched in her hand. Whatever the cause of her death, Buchanan apparently was crushed by his blighted romance and took a vow never to marry.

In 1832 Buchanan was appointed minister to Russia and he is credited with having made the first American commercial treaty with that country. Upon his return, he was elected to the United States senate and, twice re-elected, he served there until 1845 when he was named secretary of state in the cabinet of President James K. Polk. In 1853 President Franklin Pierce appointed him minister to Great Britain. He was accompanied to London by his favorite niece, Harriet Lane, whom he had adopted after the death of her parents and upon whom he lavished all the love that had been thwarted by his loss of Ann Coleman.

By the time he returned from England in 1856, the Democratic party was badly split over the slavery issue and eager for a compromise candidate. They found one in Buchanan and in the campaign of 1856 he was elected over Gen. John C. Fremont, the nominee of the new Republican party.

Buchanan was a statesman of the old school, who, according to one historian, "could make a good campaign speech, laying stress upon the unimportant and glancing at important matters evasively, solemnly and impressively." So it is not surprising that he should have avoided any decisive action when the secession crisis came. But despite that fact, when he left office on March 4, 1861, it was clearly apparent that what he once called "disunion, that worst and last of all political calamities" was inevitable. Buchanan died June 1, 1868, but he lived long enough to see averted that very disunion which he had feared and had done so little to prevent.

Harriet Lane was Buchanan's official hostess during his stay in the White House and helped him entertain the prince of Wales when he visited this country in 1860. Years later the "Golden Beauty of the White House," now Mrs. Elliott Johnson, a widow, received a special invitation to go to London and see the prince crowned King Edward VII of England. Before her death in 1903 she left a fund of $100,000 for a statue of her uncle in Washington. It was unveiled by President Hoover in 1923.

"That Night in Rio,"—an insult to South America done in technical.

But if "Rebecca" was the year's best picture, as voted, then we'll take Mickey Mouse every time. And we thought Ginger Rogers as Kitty Foyle in the movie of that name was just another movie performer who hadn't read the book.

There are a lot of people in this country who will stand for most anything that may come through the war emergency as long as it doesn't interfere with bingo.

A recent newsreel showed a bunch of rookies leaving from planes in a parachute training test. Each carried two chutes in case the first one didn't work. In this picture one lad pulled both chutes. "Would you do that?" the girl ahead asked her boy friend. "Would I!" he frankly exclaimed. "Say, I'd pull both cords and yell for somebody to throw me a third."

It must seem funny to London not to have any American sailors around this week.

RITA HAYWORTH, whose rise to movie heights makes one of Hollywood's most spectacular success stories, has drawn the co-starring role opposite Fred Astaire in Columbia's "He's My Uncle" because she really deserves it. This is a really important picture; the songs are by Cole Porter, the dance sequences will be directed by Robert Alton, who did the dance routines for three of Broadway's most popular current musicals. Rita's a member of the internationally known

Rita Hayworth Casino family; has danced all her life.

Did you happen to listen to Bing Crosby's radio program the night J. Carrol Nash appeared on it? If you did, you'll remember that Nash sang an Irish ballad. Until then nobody in Hollywood knew that he had a good baritone voice, and had sung on the stage. William C. Thomas of the Fine-Thomas organization, producing aviation pictures for Paramount, listened, and learned. Nash was already booked for a role in "Forced Landing"—now he's scheduled to sing a song as well as act.

Ella Neal established something of a record recently when she appeared in three pictures in three days. On Wednesday she was Joe Hall's handmaiden in "Aloma of the South Seas"; Thursday morning, for "Buy Me That Town," she was a mother at her baby's christening; Friday, she played a Mexican bride in "Hold Back the Dawn"—for that one she had to say something in Spanish, which she doesn't understand; she's still wondering what it meant.

If you enjoyed "The Cat and the Canary," made two years ago, you'll look forward with good reason to

Bob Hope

"Nothing But the Truth," in which the same stars—Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard—appear. It's in the hands of the same director, Elliott Nugent. It's the hilarious story of a stock broker who bets $10,000 that he won't tell a lie for 24 hours, and the cast includes such capable actors as Edward Arnold, Grant Mitchell, Rose Hobart, Helen Vinson, Leon Belasco and Leif Erikson.

It looks as if Gloria Swanson would really return to the screen in "Father Takes a Wife" with Adolphe Menjou, Deal Arnez and John Howard. Mr. Menjou, famous for his wardrobe, and Miss Swanson, equally famous for hers, have been having wardrobe tests at RKO; she has a reputation in New York for being able to wear just anything at all and look smart in it.

Joan Crawford's New York fans, who troop around at her heels whenever she's in town, recently presented her with a rather staggering birthday gift—a birthday card more than two feet square, which they'd had autographed by dozens of famous theatrical people.

The public apparently spends a lot of time and thought on trying to beat the quiz shows; the newest wrinkle bobbed up recently in connection with Ben Bernie's program. For two weeks he was besieged with requests for tickets to the repeat show. Here's the reason: The final contestants vying for the prize of $100 are selected by their ability to guess from a recording how many shots are fired out of a machine gun in so many seconds. One night on the first show, the number of shots fired was 52. On the repeat show, all the contestants promptly guessed 49, 50 and 51. But they were fooled—Bernie had 53 shots fired the second time, by letting the record run longer.

Because a singer on the "Uncle Ezra" program got a chance to make a movie with Shirley Temple, the announcer on the same program gets a chance to be a network singer. The first singer is Bob Nolan, the announcer is Cy Harrice.

ODDS AND ENDS—Clark Gable's next for Metro, "Honky Tonk," in which Lana Turner will appear opposite him, turns him into a confidence man and scoundrel who becomes a "power" in a town in the Yukon. RKO will introduce a new romantic team in "Lady Scarface"—they're Frances Neal and Dennis O'Keefe, and the story's a comedy with a gangland background. Wendy Barrie and George Sanders will be teamed in "The Gay Falcon," mystery picture to be made by RKO. Michael Arlen remembers "The Green Hat" is the author. George Brent and Basil Rathbone have the leads in "G-Men Versus Scotland Yard."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE CHURCH ENLARGING ITS FELLOWSHIP

LESSON TEXT—Acts 2:1-8, 14-17, 25. GOLDEN TEXT—Therefore they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word.—Acts 2:10.

In a time characterized by materialism and commercialism, it is refreshing to consider the manner in which the early church spread the gospel far and wide. They did this without thought of personal gain or advantage, and with a sacrificial devotion to Christ which caused men and women to be willing to die for Him, and what may sometimes be even harder, to live for Him in the face of persecution. Here was loyalty that puts expediency to shame, and sacrifice of self for Christian principle which needs emphasis in this "soft" age.

The enlarging of the church is revealed by our lesson as being

I. By Death or by Life (vv. 1-4). Stephen, one of the deacons, "a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghost" (6:5), was stoned because of his testimony for Christ. He became the first martyr of the church, leading the line of those noble men and women who down to our own day have been ready to die rather than to deny Christ. The day may not be too far distant when some of us may face that decision. Are we ready?

To every one of us who is a Christian comes the necessity of living for Christ. Some in Jerusalem did (v. 2), some were imprisoned (v. 3), but notice that the others were scattered abroad, like brands from a fire, carrying the message of God's Word. They were not afraid, did not go into hiding, nor did they "adjust" their message to meet the circumstances. They went "everywhere preaching the word."

While persecution may sometimes hinder, the spread of the gospel, it also frequently stirs the zeal of God's people to preach and teach. Just now in the midst of the havoc of war and persecution the good news of salvation is spreading in lands which hitherto knew it not. Are you and I doing our part?

II. By Preaching That Brought Joy (vv. 5-8).

Philip, a layman (the first of many great evangelists) and a Jew, went to the despoiled Samaritans with the gospel, and God so signally blessed his ministry that a great revival broke out and "there was much joy in the city."

What we need is more gospel preaching and teaching. You laymen, please note that you are not to wait for the preacher to do it. Spread the good news yourself. And note too that it is to be preached to all people, even to those whom we might (humanly speaking) be tempted to despise, either by reason of race or position in life. It was a glorious thing that happened to Philip in Samaria. It can happen again, and "it can happen here."

III. By Fellowship That Brought Blessing (vv. 14-17).

When the church at Jerusalem heard what had happened in Samaria, they were overjoyed, and sent two of their leaders, Peter and John, to encourage and counsel with the new converts.

Such fellowship always brings blessing, and in this case it was unusual blessing; namely, the gift of the Holy Spirit. On this occasion God thus gave these new Samaritan believers the blessing and power of the Holy Spirit in such a way as to bind them in fellowship to the church in Jerusalem. Jew and Gentile believers in Christ thus were joined in one communion of love and faith.

IV. By Broadened Vision That Brought Action (v. 25).

Peter and John had completed their work in Samaria and were on their way home to Jerusalem, but what they had seen had given them a new vision. They acted on that vision, and as they passed through the villages of Samaria they "preached the gospel" with joyful hearts. What an interest and stir they must have created! It is one thing to see an opportunity and a need; it is quite another to do something about it. For that, one needs determination of purpose. As Lloyd George put it, "You cannot fight a winning battle with a retreating mind." These apostles were reaching out for God, and under His leadership and blessing, into the villages of Samaria.

The Christian church needs more real consecrated action; that is, in the name of Christ and for His glory. The business man who conducts his secular affairs with enthusiasm and dispatch, often forgets all that in his church duties. He advertises and seeks new markets for his goods, but is not interested in the outreach of the church. He can get excited about the Rotary Club or the Lions or what not, but never develops the slightest enthusiasm about the Lord's work. It goes without saying that such a "picture" is all out of focus. Let's make it tight. Vision? Yes, by all means. But also action for God.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

the other is turned back in narrow revers. Make the dress in household cottons, trimming with braid and adding a couple of pockets, and it will be one of your most comfortable work-a-day styles. Make it of light, inconspicuous prints, flat crepe or spun rayon for street wear, with plain neckline, softened by a narrow touch of contrast.

The detailing is perfectly planned to create the high-busted, slim-hipped line most becoming to large figures. The skirt has a gradual flare. It's one of those utterly simple dresses that has loads of distinction.

Pattern No. 1333-B is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires, with short sleeves, 5 1/2 yards of 39-inch material without nap; long sleeves, 5 1/2 yards, 1 1/2 yards braid or 3/4 yard contrast for neck fold. Detailed size chart included. Send order to:

Where Days Are Born

The International Date Line, which, like the Equator, is an imaginary line, runs between two islands known as Big Diomedes and Little Diomedes, situated almost halfway between the mainlands of Asia and Alaska. It is here, between the Old World and the New, that each new day is born, and when it is New Year's day on Big Diomedes, it is still a full 24 hours behind on Little Diomedes.

The selection of this particular spot to decide the beginning of each day was decided by an international committee of scientists, who took every other possible site into consideration.

Do YOU take a large size—anywhere between 36 and 52? Then this dress will simply delight you. It's so becoming and successful that two neckline styles are suggested in the pattern (No. 1333-B). One is the plain v-neckline cut to smart new depth, and

The Legion home is blooming with poppies as the Auxiliary women complete preparations for the annual observance of Poppy Day, Saturday, May 24. The little red flowers of memory are being taken from the boxes in which they came from the Veterans' Hospital at Albuquerque where they were made by disabled veterans. Memories of the past and hopes for the future—that is what goes into the making of a poppy, said Mrs. Moore, poppy chairman, as she took one apart and explained its structure. They are made in exact replicas of the wild poppies of France and Belgium, which grew in profusion in the battlefields.

The men who make the flowers are comrades of those in whose honor they are worn. They were not called to give their lives, but they gave their health and strength, which makes life worthwhile. Into the little flowers they place great memories of the past, and from the work they derive new hope for the future, said Mrs. Moore.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

British and Greek Retreating Action Inflicts Heavy Loss on Nazi Troops; Convoying of Ships to British Isles Receives Careful Study by Congress

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of the newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

GREECE: And Britain

Backs to the wall, with the Swastika flying on historic Mount Olympus, Greeks and British fought side by side a continuing rear-guard action which was costing the Nazi forces dearly for each mile of territory gained, but which even the Greeks and British believed could have only one finish—ultimate defeat.

The Germans were seeking this victory to give it to Der Fueher as a fifty-second birthday present, but this was denied them. Yet the latter days of the fighting were marked by a curious attitude on the part of the British press—many of the papers calling for a withdrawal of the troops while the daily reports told of marvelous resistance, of heavy toll from the attackers' columns, and long lines of prisoners and wounded in Nazi uniforms pouring into Athens.

Generally speaking, there was little, if any, bombing of the historic Greek capital, cradle of modern civilization, filled with priceless relics of the days of Pericles. The Germans claimed they were bombing Athens not at all. There were, in fact, small reports of damage, much smaller than would have been the case if bombing of the capital were a part of the German plan.

The first German success in Thrace and Macedonia was followed by a general and continued advance toward strategic points, and culminated in a break-through, which forced the abandonment of the Mount Olympus line, and the entrance of the attackers into the vast Thessalian plain.

The Nazi tactic seemed to call for picking out one or two vital weak spots in the defenders' positions, and attacking these with furious pincers assaults, exactly similar to the method used in the Battle of France.

That they were not immediately successful in a larger measure was a tribute to two things—the fighting qualities of British and Greeks, and the absence of panic-jammed roadways, interfering with orderly military transport.

Not repeated were the awful scenes of Poland, where the Nazi tanks advanced to their triumphal entry of Warsaw over the terrified and broken bodies of thousands of Polish civilians—men, women and children.

And these also had been the scenes enacted in the Low Countries, where the Nazi Panzer operators themselves were said to have been sickened as the caterpillar tractors ground noncombatants' bodies into the pavements of the roads on which they swarmed in their forward march.

Yet the outcome of the battle was hardly expected to be favorable to the defenders. This was seen in the earliest statements of Churchill himself, in the continued demand that the British defenders take to their ships and escape while they might, in the sudden "suicide" of Alexandros Korizis, premier of Greece, who, it was announced officially from Athens, took his own life in anguish at the failure of his country's defense.

The turbulent character of the news caused this death to be reported as a mystery for nearly 48 hours, with German sources claiming that the British had murdered Korizis "because he had wanted to surrender the Greek army," and other sources claiming that he was murdered by Nazi agents who wanted

But King George II folled any such plot, if plot there was, by taking the reins of government in his own hands, and forming a military cabinet to take the place of that headed by Korizis.

Kostas Kotzias was named vice premier and charged with the difficult task of forming the new cabinet.

In the midst of this gloomy outlook, President Roosevelt said that one of the dangers of the entire American setup for the national defense and aid to embattled democracies was that the people "are not sufficiently aware of the serious character of the European war situation."

This condition, the President said, it will be his purpose to attempt to rectify, though how he was to do it was not immediately apparent.

And Mr. Tobey

Senator Tobey of New Hampshire got onto the front pages with a bang when he, the original foe of convoying, openly declared that he had been informed by certain persons whose anonymity he protected, that the United States already was engaged in convoying aid-to-Britain materials on Atlantic waters.

This was immediately and categorically denied by two authorities. These were Secretary Hull and Admiral Stark. The administration rested on these denials, and administration spokesmen said they certainly believed the public should believe the positive testimony of these two men rather than the unsupported and anonymous evidence presented by Senator Tobey.

However, though this apparently split Tobey's verbal guns, Senator Nye stepped into the breach and took up the fight and always in the background were Senator Wheeler and other isolationists to keep kicking the anti-administration ball around.

Wheeler's slogan was that the public wanted to keep the country out of war, but the Gallup poll found that 27 per cent of the people were even willing to send part of the navy and part of the air force overseas right now, though only 17 per cent were interested in sending part of the army.

But there seemed a definite dissatisfaction with the British convoy method, that of sending 30 or 40 ships with a couple of small naval vessels as guard, and no guard at all until the forty-second parallel of latitude was reached.

The American method, of parallel lines of naval vessels guarding the whole route, and each ship moving at its natural speed, gained more favor, yet how Britain could spare the ships without more aid from the U. S. navy appeared the major problem.

And this brought the convoy question popping up again and again.

JUGOSLAVIA:

Gesture

The sudden capitulation of the entire Yugoslavian army after nine days of brave fighting against insuperable odds and under impossible conditions, made of the Serbian and Slovene resistance simply a noble gesture that brought a sympathetic response from watchers on both sides of the Atlantic.

Maj. George Fielding Eliot, one military columnist, said the Yugoslav sacrifice was not in vain, and pointed out the military advantages it gave to Greece.

Yet to the man in the street it had been a vain sacrifice, they were unable to understand its benefits, and all that entered was the gesture of bravery, of independence, of hoping against hope that their autonomy, their homes, their nation and their freedom might be saved.

Many expressed themselves puzzled that the Yugoslav nation should have resisted at all.

U. S. ARMY:

Training

The early contention of many army experts that America could not hope to train men in modern warfare in one calendar year, starting with the raw civilian, brought from many sources the word that it would be more than borne out now that the troops were proceeding into advanced training.

The army had now reached, in numbers, well past 1,200,000 men, and in this group were 27 infantry divisions alone. These men, it was said, already had been given a good course in basic discipline and ordinary infantry training, but even this was entirely preliminary to serious consideration of modern warfare, and was not finished yet.

One American officer, in the Army Journal, criticized the war department for permitting delays in the training of troops. It was said that there was a good deal of irritation expressed in high department quarters over the frank words of this officer.

One of the chief bottlenecks, of course, has been the lack of equipment of the newest types with which to train the men, assuming that their basic course is soon finished.

But the article in the Army Journal and another in the Cavalry Journal commenting on the first, revealed that our army is lagging in instruction on the use of flame-throwers, on defense against chemical warfare and in many other fields, particularly as to modern combat.

A plan to cut the draft age down to 18 met early antagonism in congressional circles, but that the administration had not abandoned the idea was seen in facts and figures later made public.

For instance, the Census Bureau estimated that the lowering of the age limit would place 3,045,267 more men within the range of the selective service law.

But if the maximum age limits were lowered to 30 years, more than 5,000,000 would be taken out of the law's scope, it was said.

LONDON:

Really Blasted

Least Britain might think that Hitler had moved all his air force into Africa and the Balkans, the German Luftwaffe started a terrific series of raids on London, doing the British capital damage on such a large scale and causing so many casualties that accurate estimates were not obtainable a week later.

Lord and Lady Stamp, the former honored repeatedly in this country, were killed, removing an important figure from the government. City block after city block was demolished. Hundreds and hundreds of persons were wiped out in underground shelters, struck by direct hits.

The first raid lasted 10 hours. The second, Hitler's "birthday blitz," was only slightly less severe.

Britain came out of it with Londoners fighting mad, walking about the streets, looking at the wreckage, demanding "Bomb Berlin, Bomb Berlin!" They scrawled these words with chalk on the sidewalks, on the walls of torn buildings, they chanted it in the canyons of their wrecked city.

The R. A. F. had stormed Berlin a few days before the first big raid, and the raid itself had been a reprisal—but the British forgot this and demanded more reprisals. This the R. A. F. did the following day, the air ministry announcing that bombs of a larger caliber than used before had been dropped on the German capital.

German admissions of damage were small. Only 15 had lost their lives in the first raid, Berlin said, and no casualties and minor damage was reported in the second. How true this minimizing of the damage was, no official report revealed, but returning British airmen claimed the result of the reprisal was "extensive."

The alarming attacks of the German air force continued all over the British Isles with one foray over northern Ireland, with Belfast hard hit.

Capital Hit by Spending Fever

Night Clubs Jammed and Noisy, Rooms Scarce, Movies Packed.

WASHINGTON.—This is the nation's boom town, where the dollar-a-year men come if they are good, where worry about the high cost of defense is mitigated by enjoyment of the high cost of champagne, where the spending fever has caught even the poorest-paid government clerk.

It began with a gentle swell six months ago, and now it's a rip tide.

There is an increased housing shortage bordering on the acute stage, despite 14,000 new living units, hotels are filled, though the tourist season is weeks away; government office quarters are cramped; department stores are building additional floor space and warehouses, and each arriving train and plane adds to the congestion and the spending.

Night Clubs Packed.

Never before much of a city for night life, Washington's big night club, the Troika, is packed nightly. What corresponds to the night clubs of other cities, the "cafe lounges" of the big hotels, are doing a record business.

The big spending is done by hundreds of dollar-a-year men, lobbyists, the defense-contract seekers and members of corporation staffs here to wrestle with such problems as priorities. Prosperity in the form of hard cash has not even touched some of them yet, but they are looking forward to it, and much of the gaiety is based on anticipation. No gloomy talk of profits taxes on war can dampen their spirits. In fact, there is little talk of war at the cafe tables.

Hearty livers crowd famous eating places. What with cover charges, the high cost of wine and a disposition to come early and stay late, waiters are rejoicing in lavish tips.

This week-end was more boisterous than usual, largely because Saturday was one of the semi-monthly government paydays. Federal workers are paid on the fifteenth and the thirtieth of the month. On these days portions of their checks are consumed in money orders mailed home, installments on their auto loans and, nowadays, a spree.

Clerks Keep Step.

The civil service clerks, though they are no better off financially and rents are beginning to rise, are keeping step with the faster living pace. Film houses are packed and new theaters, some of them in palatial style, are being erected in the city and suburbs.

The department stores were crowded Saturday noon. Throngs of shoppers filled the streets. Retail trade in 1940 was $412,000,000, an 11 per cent increase over 1939, and it has been rising steadily since the turn of the year.

New businesses and new buildings are in project. A new radio station was established recently and another will be ready soon. Two department stores have built additional floor space and a third has erected a new warehouse. A new hotel is to be ready next year, said to be the only large hotel to be built except in New York and Miami since depression times. It will alleviate a hotel room shortage caused in part by such practices as that which some government-contract corporations are following. They lease suites, which are unoccupied much of the time so that their executives will be certain of living quarters on their periodic visits here.

Woman Shoots Ducks Over Limit—With a Camera

NEW ORLEANS.—Miss Lorene Squire of Harper, Kan., shoots more ducks than anyone else, perhaps, but she uses a camera instead of a gun.

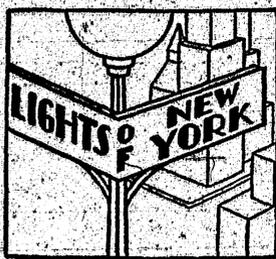

Miss Squire went into the Delta migratory waterfowl refuge around the mouth of the Mississippi river to spend several weeks making "action shots" of wild ducks before they start back north to their summer homes.

The expedition was just another leg in the journey of thousands of miles Miss Squire has made in recent years to photograph ducks. Ten years ago, she explained, she realized that her home state offered comparatively few waterfowl subjects for her camera because of drought conditions there.

So she began in the Canadian wilds, where she found plenty of subjects during the summer. She went through Saskatchewan, to the Mackenzie delta on the Arctic coast, the Athabaska delta, and on to Hudson's bay, Baffinland, Greenland and Ellsmere island.

Pike Is Questioned COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.—Another old-time Colorado yarn has been questioned. W. Arthur Perkins, Colorado pioneer, insists that Zebulon Pike, for whom the famous peak was named, was not the first white man to see the bald top. French visitors saw the peak several years before Pike did in 1806, Perkins said.

By L. L. STEVENSON

Emergency: A tenant and the superintendent of a small East Side apartment house were witnesses in a recent law suit which aroused so much bitterness among the litigants that threats were freely made. Late the other afternoon, the super, on coming up from the furnace, found his wife had received for a box, wrapped in plain, stout paper, and addressed to his fellow witness. The more he looked at that box the more menacing it seemed. Finally, thinking he heard ticking, he dumped it into a pail of water. As he was reaching for the phone to call the bomb squad, it rang. And on the wire was the tenant who wanted to know if his dress shoes, which he had sent out to be fixed, had been returned, the matter being important as he wanted to wear them at a formal dinner that night. The shoes were fished out so fast only the wrapper was soaked—and the super made a deft replacement job of that.

Midtown Midnight: A burly young man begging for a dime so that he might sleep in bed instead of "carry the banner" . . . Theater marquees, brilliant only a few minutes earlier, now dark . . . A ceaseless throng meandering along Broadway and with units sifting silently into side streets . . . The Paramount clock with both hands vertical . . . A crowd of young people clotted in front of the Astor arguing over where to go for the rest of the evening . . . The scent of perfume and the flash of jewels . . . Two pretty girls smiling at two soldiers who give one look and sheepishly slide into a bar . . . Crowds watching free advertising shows produced electrically.

Prosperity: When Rose Franken first conceived the character "Claudia," she did not know that she was starting an industry. But "Claudia" grew into a series of 30 short stories for which Miss Franken received $2,500 each. Then came two "Claudia" books that earned big royalties. Next, the current Broadway hit, the play "Claudia," which is earning more than $1,000 a week for Miss Franken with a Chicago company soon to appear. Later, with more heavy payments to the author, "Claudia" is to be serialized on the radio. Also, with more royalties, the scripts of the play "Claudia" are to appear in book form. Just to top things off, David O. Selznick has paid $187,000 for the movie rights with further compensation to Miss Franken and her novelist husband, William Brown Meloney, for writing the screen play. And so far, the fortunate Miss Franken has garnered more than a half million dollars, to say nothing of the profits of publishers, producers and others.

Error: Speaking of the theater, the favorite approach to an actress wanted for a benefit, as everyone knows, is flattery. The other evening a grand dame came up to Helen Craig, star of "Johnny Belinda" at Ballet Russe to induce her to appear at a society party. "You know, Miss Craig, I think you do the best acting job in town at the moment," she began. "When I saw your play, I couldn't take my eyes off you for a moment. The way you walked, talked and moved your hands, it was marvelous. And the way you raise and lower your voice to fit the action!" Miss Craig stopped her right there. In "Johnny Belinda" she portrays a deaf mute.

Another: Victor Mature of the movies, was invited to a dinner the other evening and when he arrived, his hostess gushed, "You know everybody at the table, don't you, Mr. Mature? Oh, you simply must meet Gertrude Lawrence, star of 'Lady in the Dark' because she's simply marvelous." Mature didn't know exactly what to say about that. He is merely one of Miss Lawrence's leading men in the musical hit.

End Piece: Maybe it was spring that caused Joe Reichman, band leader, to recall the two weather prophets who found themselves in disfavor in the small farming community in which they lived. "I think we'd better pray for a little rain," suggested one. "I think," returned the other, "we'd better wait until there are a few more clouds." (Ball Syndicate—WNU Service.)

Cream cheese mixed with a little chili sauce or catsup makes a piquant filling for sandwiches. They are especially appealing with a hot beverage.

Never allow cold water to run into an aluminum pan while it is hot. If done repeatedly, this rapid contraction of metal will cause pan to warp.

To remove dandelion stains from washable materials, rub lard well into the spots, roll the material and let it stand half an hour or so, then wash with mild soap and warm water. Rinse well and repeat if the stains remain.

A scrubbing brush with stiff bristles is invaluable when washing badly soiled collar bands, mud-splashed hems or other stains on white clothes. Lay the cloth smoothly on the washboard, wet the brush, rub it across a bar of soap, then scrub the garment with strokes of the brush.

To clean stained brass ash trays, cover them with a paste made of salt and vinegar. Let stand half an hour and then rub well with a cloth and wash the trays in hot water and soap. Wipe dry with a clean cloth.

THE SMOKY YEARS

INSTALLMENT 3

THE STORY SO FAR:

Dusty King and Lew Gordon had built up a vast string of ranches which stretched from Texas to Montana. King was killed by his powerful and unscrupulous competitor, Ben Thorpe. Bill Roper, King's adopted son, undertook to break Thorpe's power.

His first step was to start a cattle war in Texas. He made this decision against the opposition of Lew Gordon and the tearful pleading of his sweetheart, Jody Gordon. The raids upon Thorpe's herds were successful at first, but resistance was soon put up which caused Roper's men to leave him, one by one. Cleve Tanner, manager of Thorpe's Texas holdings, appeared not to feel the losses inflicted upon him. Roper's resources were dwindling low, and he seemed doomed to failure.

Dry Camp Pierce still loafed at the Pot Hook, dejected, hopeless. No one knew what he was waiting for. Roper never heard from the rest of them now. In spite of everything that Maxim could do, the Rangers were on the loose. The wild bunch that had threatened to dominate Texas was broken and split, scattered far and wide, every man for himself. Day and night, a saddle pony waited beside the door of the bunkhouse in which Roper slept.

Now, unexpectedly, came Shoshone Wilce.

Nothing could tell more of Roper's present position than this—as Shoshone Wilce rode up, Bill Roper already had his gun in his hand, and the other hand upon the bridle rein of his pony.

Shoshone Wilce almost tumbled into Bill Roper's arms. He grabbed Bill by both lapels of the black, town-going coat that Roper always wore when he was about to travel a long way. Shoshone's bottle-nose gleamed and quivered, and his eyes were like shoe buttons.

"It's done! He's bust—he's split—he's cracked—"

"What are you talking about?"

"Cleve Tanner! I tell you, he's gone to hell!"

Suddenly Bill Roper turned into the unaccountable kid that his years justified. Like a man suddenly coming alive, he took Shoshone by the throat, shook him as if he had weighed no more than a cat. His teeth showed bare and set.

He said, "Shoshone—you fool with me—"

Shoshone cried out through the grip on his throat, "I tell you, Cleve Tanner—"

He couldn't say any more.

Bill Roper was cool again, now. "What makes you think so?"

"He failed his delivery at the Red. Where he was supposed to bring up fifteen thousand head, a little handful of punchers showed up with a few hundred. He can't round his cattle—if he's got any cattle—and he can't make delivery at the Red!"

"We didn't believe you," Shoshone Wilce babbled on. "We all said it couldn't be done. But by gosh, we've done it! All over Texas, Tanner's notes are being called, as the word spreads. Wells Fargo refuses to honor his signature for a dime. They say now that Ben Thorpe won't back Tanner—Thorpe denies him, and the Tanner holdings are being closed up and sold out—"

"You sure?" Roper asked, looking up from the ground again.

"Am I sure? You think I'd risk my damn throat coming here to tell you something like this, if I didn't know for sure?"

"No," Roper admitted, "I guess not."

"It's all over," Shoshone tried to tell him. "Can't you realize it, man?"

"No," Roper said.

CHAPTER XI

Strolling, easy-going, but somehow reluctant, Bill Roper walked the streets of Tascosa, between the false-fronted wooden buildings that lined the hoof-stirred dust.

Sooner or later, he knew, Cleve Tanner would appear upon this one main street. Everybody knew that Tanner was on the warpath, determined to seek out Bill Roper. It was said that Tanner's only remaining interest was to bring down the youngster who had cut Texas from under him.

Yet ten days passed before Cleve Tanner came.

It was eleven o'clock on a sunny Saturday morning when Dry Camp Pierce brought Bill the word.

"Well, kid, he's here. You were right again—you won't have to hunt him out. He's looking for you; all you have to do is wait."

"Where is he now?"

"In some bar, a block up the street. He's walking from bar to bar, asking if you've been seen. You might as well wait for him here."

"No," Roper said. "I'll walk out and meet him, I think."

Dry Camp peered up into his face. "Kid, you look sick!"

"I don't feel real happy," Roper admitted.

"Draw deliberate and slow," Pierce counseled. "Take your time—don't hurry, whatever you do. But don't waste any time, either. Fast and smooth—"

"I get you," Roper said with a flicker of a grin. "Take my time, but be quick about it. Move plenty slow, but fast as hell. All right, Dry Camp!"

He gave the butt of his gun a hitch to make sure it was loose in its leather; then he spun the whiskey away from him untasted, and walked out.

Dry Camp Pierce looked at the full glass, and exchanged a worried glance with the bartender. Then he followed Bill.

Dry Camp kept blinking his eyes in the bright light, as if they were dry; and there were white patches at the corners of his mouth.

"Don't give him too much of a break, kid. He's awful bad. But you'll get him, all right," he added hastily.

Half a block ahead another man stepped into the street, and walked toward Bill. Before his face could be seen in the black shadow under his hat, Bill Roper knew by the set of the broad shoulders, by the rolling swing of his stride, that it was Cleve.

The moments during which the two men walked toward each other drew out interminably. Their eyes were upon each other's faces now; Bill could see that Cleve Tanner looked happy, almost gay, as if this was the first good thing that had happened to him for a long time.

At twelve paces Cleve Tanner drew; to observers the men seemed so close together that it was impossible that either of them should live. Tanner's gun spoke five times, fast, faster than most men could slip the hammer. Nobody knew where the first four shots went; but the fifth shot was easy to place, for

Bill Roper holstered his own smoking forty-four.

It blew a hole in the street as Tanner's gun stubbed into the dust.

Bill Roper holstered his own smoking forty-four. He had fired twice.

Dry Camp Pierce was at his elbow again. "Here's the horses. It's time to ride. By God, I knew you could take him, kid."

Roper was feeling deathly sick.

CHAPTER XII

It was well into the summer as Bill Roper once more rode south out of Ogallala toward the pile of stones that marked the grave of Dusty King. Jody Gordon rode with him. In the few days he had stopped over in Ogallala he had hardly seen her at all. At first she had refused to ride with him today; but at the last moment, as if on an impulse, she had changed her mind.

Roper, studying her sidelong, thought that Jody seemed to have aged several years in one. Impossible now to find any trace of the irrepressible, up-welling laughter that had been so characteristic of her a year before. Her eyes were unlighted, and a little tired-looking; her mouth was expressionless except for a faint droop at the corners, which suggested—perhaps resignation, perhaps a hidden bitterness.

She didn't have much to say; but finally she asked him, "What did my father decide?"

"He says now that I'll never have another penny out of Dusty King's share until he's able to dictate to me what I'm going to do with it; or, that's what it amounts to."

"Did you quarrel with my father?"

"No. He said some kind of bitter things, but I didn't say anything. I asked for certain things—five camps in Montana, mainly. Of course, that was a waste of breath."

"But you'll go on, and throw yourself against Walk Lasham in Montana?"

"Yes; I have to go on."

They were silent after that; and presently they sat, almost stirrup to stirrup, but somehow infinitely far apart, looking down at the stacked boulders from which rose the wooden cross that Bill Roper had made, nearly a year and a half ago.

For a little while he stood looking at the cross which he had made of railroad ties. He said, half aloud—"One down, Dusty..."

"I suppose," Jody said, "you'll be cutting a notch on the handle of your gun, now."

SUPERIOR SERIAL

He was surprised to hear her say that. He had no way of knowing how much she had heard, or what she had heard, about his shoot-out with Cleve Tanner.

"A notch? I hadn't thought anything about it."

All her bitter contempt of the lonely-riding men of violence came into her voice. "Isn't that what the gunmen and the cow thieves always do?"

He was motionless a long time. Then he drew the skinning knife that always swung at the back of his belt in a worn sheath. Its blade was lean and hollowed, worn almost out of existence by a thousand honings. He stood looking at the knife; he tossed it in the air, and caught it by the handle again.

"I wouldn't go cutting marks on the handle of a gun," he said at last. His voice was thick. "Nobody cares what anybody does to the handle of a gun."

Roper stepped forward, and with the keen blade cut a notch clean and deep in the left arm of Dusty's cross.

When he looked at Jody she was staring at him strangely, almost as if she were afraid.

All through the afternoon Jody Gordon had ridden the barren trails above Ogallala, on a pony that forever tried to turn home. Thaw was on the prairie again, and the South Platte was brimming with melted snow; in the air was something of the damp, clean smell which had marked another spring, in this same place. But it was now more than six months since Jody had seen Bill Roper; and she found it no help that she was forever hearing his name.

It was with reluctance that she at last rode up the rise upon which it stood, unlighted, in the dusk.

She unsaddled her own pony, booted it into the muddy corral, and threw the forty pound kak onto the saddle-pole with the easy, one-handed swing of the western rider. As she turned toward the house she was trying not to cry.

Then, as she walked through the stable, a figure rose up from the shadows beside the door and barred her way.

Jody Gordon's breath caught in her throat. She said, evenly, "Looking for someone, Bud?"

The spare-framed visitor took off his hat and held it unceasingly in his two hands. "Well, I tell you, Miss Gordon—could I speak to you for just a minute? I'll tell you the fact of the matter. I'm a Bill Roper man."

Jody Gordon's heart jumped like a struck pony. "Billy sent you to me?"

"I haven't seen Bill Roper. But I've seen Ben Thorpe. Miss Gordon, tell me one thing: Is your father backing Bill Roper? I mean, is he backing this plowing into Ben Thorpe?"

"My father," Jody Gordon said, "has quit Bill Roper in every way he possibly could."

"That's what I thought," Shoshone Wilce said. "Only trouble is, people that don't know the difference, they don't none of them believe that any more."

Jody Gordon interrupted him sharply. "What's happened?"

"Miss Gordon, your father is in a terrible bad fix. I'm afraid—I'm afraid he's going to die before this thing is through."

"What do you mean?"

"Most people think Lew Gordon is backing Bill Roper—maybe you know that? Well, now there's a feller rode to Ben Thorpe from Miles City—a feller that was a foreman with Thorpe's Montana outfits under Walk Lasham. Maybe this feller had some kind of fight with Lasham—I don't know nothing about that. But this feller swears to Thorpe that Lasham is letting the Montana herds drain away to the Indians, and to the construction camps, and Ben Thorpe never seeing a penny of the money from beef or hide."

"Is Bill Roper gutting the Thorpe outfits in Montana?"

"Don't know, myself. They say he's swarming all over Montana, with a bunch of kid renegades behind him, riding like crazy men, and raiding night after night. Some say nobody knows how hard Lasham is hurt, Lasham least of any; and some say Lasham has sold out to Bill Roper, or your father—or both."

"What does Thorpe himself think?"

"Thorpe thinks your father has bought Walk Lasham. Just the same as he thought your father bought Cleve Tanner in Texas, until Bill Roper gunned Cleve down. And Thorpe is fit to be tied. A man like him—he's terrible dangerous always, Miss Gordon; but now he's ten times more dangerous than he ever was in his life."

MILK VALUABLE AS CHICK FOOD

Starts Poultry on Rapid, Continuous Growth.

By WILLARD O. THOMPSON (Head of Poultry Department, Rutgers University)

Although nature probably never intended chicks to grow and develop on a milk diet, milk is nevertheless one of the best foods on which to start chicks on careers of rapid, continuous growth.

The best form in which to use milk for chicks is sour skim milk furnished as a beverage. The process of souring breaks down the milk solids into forms which are readily digested by chicks. The presence of the lactic acid in the intestines of the chicks is also advantageous. If every chick placed under brooders this spring could be made to drink sour skim milk every day during the first 10 weeks of its life the 1941 chick crop would show a remarkable growth and a very low mortality, other things being equal.

Furnish chicks a sufficient supply of sour skim milk preferably in stone ware or glass containers, every morning. Withholding water will force them to drink it. Always empty out whatever old milk may remain in the containers and thoroughly cleanse the utensils before refilling. There is so much water in sour skim milk that chicks really do not need water as well as the milk.

Sour skim milk seems to serve as an appetizer for chicks. By encouraging greater grain and mash consumption, it speeds up the rate of development.

Sour skim milk is a splendid supplement, particularly for broiler rations. In places where skim milk is not available, the commercial condensed buttermilk products may be diluted and used as a beverage. Of course, buttermilk may be used in place of sour skim milk if it is more readily available and cheaper.

Restaurateur Believed Himself Well Supplied

The couple had enjoyed a meal in the restaurant. When the bill was presented the husband was horrified to discover he had come out without money.

Calling the proprietor, he explained the situation, ending up with: "It won't take me long to slip home, and my wife will remain here an hour."

"Pardon me," said the proprietor, "haven't you anything else?"

"Sir," snapped the customer angrily, "are you insinuating that my wife is not worth the $1.50?"

"Not at all," the proprietor protested, "but I already have a wife!"

It's not laziness, it's listlessness! When you have a force yourself to work, delayed bowel action may be the reason. Often this is followed by gas in stomach and intestines, sour stomach, heartburn, restless nights. Give those lax bowels a gentle nudge with ADLERIK'S laxatives and carnatives. Turkey eggs should be gathered at least twice a day, and three or four times a day is better.

Flax is splendid as a nurse crop for red clover, alfalfa, lespedeza and grass. Sweet clover grows too well in it and will give trouble at combining time.

Fat brood sows do not produce the most vigorous pigs. The fat sow may farrow weak pigs which are more likely to be killed by overlying than are pigs in the litters of thinner, more active sows.

As a safety measure, every bull should have a ring put in his nose when he is about eight months old. A copper bull ring 2 1/2 inches in diameter will do while he is young, but by the time he becomes two years old, it should be replaced by a stronger gun metal ring.

Theodore Farmer

Wednesday morning about one o'clock, at his home in the Highlands, Teodoro Farmer, a good pioneer of Lincoln County, passed away after a lingering illness of several months. Mr. Farmer was the last surviving member of a prominent family of old Lincoln, where they resided until about 12 years ago, when the above named gentleman, his brother Sam and families moved to Carrizozo. Mr. Farmer was an upright citizen, a kind-hearted neighbor and a loving husband and father and had many friends who will miss him.

The funeral services were conducted by Father Salvatore at the St. Rita Church Thursday afternoon and the remains interred in the local cemetery alongside those of his brother, Sam Farmer, who preceded him in death a few months ago. He is survived by his wife, several children and other relatives, to all of whom the sympathy of this community is tendered.

FOREST NOTES

In spite of much moisture, it only takes a few days of high wind and sun to dry out the pine needles and other vegetation to the point where it will burn. At this time of year many of you will be going into the mountains on picnics as soon as the weather permits. Remember you or your children may want to come back to the same place another year. Prevent Forest Fires!

On April 22, the following persons met on Indian Divide for the purpose of laying out the site for the Annual Ranchers' Camp Meeting to be held in August: Messrs. and Meses. Forest Sherman, Joe Lane, Mr. R. B. Sherman, Roswell; Messrs. L. A. Whitaker, Carrizozo; Pat Murphy, White Oaks; Fred Baker, Sam Snow and G. J. Gray of the Forest Service. The plans were gone over for further development of the area to handle the large crowds which attended the first meeting last year. A fine picnic climaxed the meeting.
