Poppy Day Proclamation

Saturday, May 24, was proclaimed as Poppy Day in Carrizozo in a Proclamation issued today by Mayor Finley.

The Mayor called upon all citizens to observe the day by wearing the Memorial Poppy of the American Legion and Auxiliary.

The Proclamation stated: "Whereas the wearing of the Memorial Poppy is a fitting and effective way of keeping bright the memory of those young men who gave their lives in America's service in the World War."

"Whereas the men of Carrizozo served gallantly in that war, some being called upon to sacrifice their lives in that service, and

"Whereas the present national emergency requires the same type of unselfish patriotism displayed by the men, and symbolized by their memorial flower, and

"Whereas the women of the American Legion Auxiliary will distribute veteran-made Memorial Poppies throughout the city on Saturday, May 24

"Now, therefore, I, M. U. Finley, Mayor of Carrizozo, do proclaim Saturday, May 24, to be Poppy Day in the city of Carrizozo and urge all citizens to observe the day by wearing the memorial poppy of the American Legion and Legion Auxiliary in honor of the men who died for America in the war of 1917 and 1918."

"American Day" Successful

Many citizens of Carrizozo and vicinity gathered on the "Village Green" at the City Park Sunday afternoon for the New Citizen's Day program presented by a group of Carrizozo citizens...

Mayor M. U. Finley opened the program, and as he called for the flag to be raised by M. J. Barnett, Prof. Brewster trumpeted "To the Colors."

Highlights of the program was the patriotic address by A. L. Burke, veteran newspaper man and a long-time citizen of Carrizozo; Mrs. Ola C. Jones, County School Superintendent delivered an address that was outstanding; also Supt. Carpenter and Dr. Blaney made excellent talks, and the visiting speaker, Dr. Davis, gave us a few thoughts that we will do well to remember.

Our bouquet of flowers goes to the Carrizozo High School Band for the music they gave for the occasion.

Let us hope that a band stand can be erected in the City Park for their benefit, and our enjoyment. Inasmuch as we only as patriotic as we feel and do, let's have more and better gatherings of this nature.

Dirk Knife Murder

At Parsons

About 1:30 p. m. Monday afternoon, George Manas and Everett Bragg engaged in a fracas, which ended in the death of Bragg, who bled to death on the road here.

The fight started in the following manner, according to two eye witnesses, one of whom was Tom Bragg, father of the murdered man.

Tom Bragg, the father and the man, Manas, were engaged in a discussion concerning a garden spot, which Bragg claimed, Mr. Fulmer, owner of the place at Parsons, N. M., had given him the right to cultivate, Manas insisting on cultivating the ground himself. The two Braggs and the Manas families all lived in the one large house, there being but one garden spot, which was what led to the discussion. Just then, Everett, hearing the discussion, came up to hear what it was about.

No sooner than Manas saw Everett, he flew into a rage and began to throw rocks at him, Bragg retaliating in self-defense. At that point, Manas drew a double-bladed dirk knife or dagger and made for Everett, who seeing the danger, fled for safety, but was overtaken at a dividing fence, where he was attacked by Manas, who stabbed him in the back just below the left shoulder blade.

Everett turned and grappled with Manas, but in the excitement, he grabbed the left hand instead of the right, which held the dagger. Manas then drove the dirk into Everett's thigh near the groin, severing the arteries. Manas, seeing what he had done, fled into the mountains. Tom Bragg and a man by the name of Dave Woods hurried him to Carrizozo, but he died before they reached here.

Tuesday night, Manas came in and gave himself up, claiming self-defense.

The preliminary trial will be held Saturday at 2:30 p. m.

WEATHER REPORT

(Weekly)

Table with 5 columns: Date, Max, Min, Prec, P. W. Rows for May 18-22.

Hector Romero, Airway Observer.

FOR the best all-around athlete this nation has produced we'll still string with Jim Thorpe. This angle came back to us as we ran into the Big Indian a few days ago, just after he had finished a series of lectures to kids around the country on the matter of competition and physical development.

"I'm still all for the Indians," Jim said, "but I'm only part Indian. I'm five-eighths Indian, two-eighths Irish and one-eighth French, if you want to go into details. Maybe that just makes me an American airhead."

Over 30 years have passed by since Pop Warner saw a skinny young Indian playing games around Carlisle. "At that time," Pop says, "I never figured him for any coming star. He was a kid who weighed around 140 pounds. They told me he was fast, but he looked too thin."

How Good Was Thorpe?

As a starter, Jim Thorpe was the best all-around football player I ever saw.

- 1. He was one of the best of all the running backs.
2. He was one of the best of all the kickers—punting, place-kicking, and drop-kicking.
3. He was a high-class blocker.
4. He was a fine forward passer for those early days and a good pass receiver.
5. He was a terrific defensive man—tackling in the open or backing up a line.
6. He was the most durable of the entire lot.

As I recall it, Jim never took out a second's time in many years. I once asked him if he had ever been hurt in a game. I still recall his answer, "How can anybody get hurt playing football?"

Track and Field

Big Jim won the decathlon, the all-around championship, in track and field, back in the 1912 Olympics. He was a high jumper, a broad jumper, a sprinter, a weight man—anything you might ask for. And I don't believe he trained 10 hours for the big show—and they took away all his medals, because he had played a game or two of semi-pro baseball.

This was completely unjust, for Thorpe was never a field or track professional. At that time he was not even listed as a pro ball player. On the boat taking the team to Sweden, Thorpe was seen one night sitting and looking along the deck. Someone asked him what he was thinking about.

"I'm just measuring the broad jump," he said. "This is my training for that event. I figure I can do 23 feet, 8 inches."

Which is just about what he did. Thorpe as a ball player was at least good enough to crash into the big leagues with the New York Giants.

"This fellow would be a great ball player," McGraw once told me, "except for one thing. He can't learn to hit a curve ball. And that's something no one can teach another."

All Around Stars

There have been others who could do more things well than Thorpe could do—or ever had the chance to do. But not on the big time.

For example, Harry Fisher of Williams was a star in at least eight sports—football, baseball, basketball, tennis, hockey, squash, swimming, and even two more. Elmer Oliphant of Purdue and West Point was another all-around brilliant at many games. So was Neil Snow of Michigan, one of the best. So was Roy Mercer of Pennsylvania. Vic Hanson of Syracuse was another.

But none of these quite reached the heights in three major sports that Big Jim gained in the palmy days of his career—a career that extended over 18 years.

What gave Thorpe these winning qualities?

In the first place, he was amazingly quick and amazingly strong. In the second place, he was as durable as iron. You couldn't hurt him with a crowbar.

In the third place, he had a keen, quick competitive brain. In the fourth place, he was completely fearless. In the fifth place, he was at his peak under pressure. He revealed in the tougher going. There was nothing that could make him flinch up.

Here's one example—in one of the hardest of all the West Point-Carlisle games, played at The Point, Thorpe was standing on his own goal line. The signal had been given for a kick and his team was expecting it. Thorpe turned to the referee (Bill Langford, as I recall it) with this remark, "I think I'm going to kick, but I am not." He faked a kick and ran the ball 90 yards down the field.

Maybe there have been greater all-around stars with greater natural qualities than the American airhead. I doubt it.

Speaking of SPORTS BY ROBERT McSHANE

THOUGH the artillerymen of both major leagues are managing to hammer out their share of home runs, there is no hitter today who will even come close to Babe Ruth's all-time record.

The Babe, who clouted out the almost unbelievable total of 714 home runs during his career, never will be forgotten. Not only was he a brilliant ball player, he was more than that. He was the saviour of the national pastime just when it appeared about to collapse in public favor.

Baseball's darkest hour was back in 1919. The game had been jolted by the "Black Sox" scandal, in which six members of the Chicago White Sox "sold out" the 1919 World Series. A pitched ball had just killed Ray Chapman, Cleveland shortstop. All in all, confidence in the game was shattered. Then, along came Ruth, a strapping lad with a superabundance of color and the rest of the qualities necessary to a crowd pleaser. He hit the colossal total of 54 home runs in 1920 and helped the fans to forget the bad news of the previous year.

Record Gatherer

Before his big league career ended, the Babe held, in all, 76 major league records. He had batted in 2,269 runs, scored 60 home runs in one year, and batted on an average of .342 for the 22 years.

It's far from startling to declare that the Babe's home run record is an unhittable target. The two players out in front are Jimmy Foxx of the Red Sox and Mel Ott of the Giants. Foxx opened the 1941 show with 500 home runs listed in the record book, just six more than Lou Gehrig had when tragedy overtook him. Ott started the 1941 campaign with 388 homers—a far cry from the Ruthian record.

Neither of the men are youngsters, and neither have designs on the Bambino's total.

Illness drove Gehrig from the game when he was only 35 years old. Except for that misfortune, Lou likely would have been near or past the 600 mark by now.

Ruined Chance

Hank Greenberg had a good chance to run second. Through 1940 he had gathered in 247 home runs. He was quite a distance back of Foxx and Ott, but the 31-year-old Tiger could still hear the beckoning voice of opportunity until the draft arrived. It will be almost impossible for him to catch the leaders. A year in the army isn't going to fatten his home run total.

Joe DiMaggio, only 27, is young enough to crowd someone for second or third place. He opened the 1941 season with 168 circuit trips and there is little reason for any prolonged slump. However, it isn't impossible that his future career might be interrupted temporarily.

Despite the growing totals, no one of the present crop of long distance hitters will ever come close to Ruth's total of 714. Foxx will hold on to second place with a total well above the 500 mark, and Gehrig will keep third place with 484. The vital statistics will give Mel Ott somewhere above 400 before next fall—a pretty safe mark in the National League.

During his 22-year career, Babe hit 300 or more 17 seasons. His highest average was in 1923, when he batted .393. His 60 home runs of 1927 earned him undying fame. It isn't as well remembered that he hit 50 round trips in 1921, 84 in 1920 and again in 1923, and more than 40 for 11 years.

The record may stand for all time. A lot of theories have been advanced for his uncanny ability, but those theories will be of little help to batters. Ruth was far from a perfect physical specimen. According to his own words, he weighed 252 pounds the year he knocked over the 60 homers. But those 252 pounds backed up one of the smoothest swings baseball has ever known.

Sport Shorts

Bucky Walters of the Cincinnati Reds started his professional career as a pitcher in 1929 with the High Point, N. C., team of the Piedmont League.

Only four horses have won the Derby, Belmont and Preakness. They are Sir Barton, 1919; Gallant Fox, 1930; Omaha, 1935; and War Admiral, 1937.

One hundred soldiers answered the first call for baseball candidates at Fort Dix, N. J., recently.

IMAGINARY DIALOGUES: GARGANTUA AND TOTO

"All efforts to get Gargantua, the circus gorilla, and Toto, the Cuban gorilla imported to be his mate, to be friends have failed." — News Item.

Gargantua (after one look)—Am I seeing things?

Toto—That's just what I was asking myself.

Gargantua—I don't know what you are, but do me a favor and scream.

Toto—Listen, Funny Face, I'm not here of my own accord. This visit isn't my idea.

Gargantua—Well, it certainly isn't mine. Gee, but you're a homely dame.

Toto—That goes double for you. If I was as ugly as you I'd do something about it.

Gargantua (sadly)—There's only one thing you can do about it, and that's join a circus.

Toto—That's what I'm here for now!

Gargantua—So that's it! They're trying to co-star me! Well, they can't do that to me.

Toto—Calm yourself. It's not my idea.

Gargantua—Nobody could get you here if you didn't want to come.

Toto—A dozen men brought me here.

Gargantua—You could have licked 'em all!

Toto—You must have read Arthur Brisbane.

Gargantua—Aw, go away, please! It was tough enough around here when there was only one of us.

Toto—Didn't you ever think of getting married?

Gargantua—No, that's my press agent's idea.

Toto—Two can live as cheap as one, Gargie.

Gargantua—Yes, but what do I care what I cost this circus. It's got plenty of dough.

Toto—What you need is a nice wife.

Gargantua—Where would I find one?

Toto—How about me?

Gargantua (with a look of horror)—I'm not monkey enough to marry a girl with a mug like yours.

Toto—You're no jungle Clark Gable yourself.

Gargantua—Maybe not, but I've got prestige. I'm probably the most famous gorilla in the world.

Toto—You're just another big gorilla to me.

Gargantua—Where did you come from, anyhow?

Toto—Cuba.

Gargantua—Now I know what caused all that unrest there!

PLANT TISSUE 'MIRRORS' SOIL

Furnishes an Accurate Test For Essential Minerals.

By DR. GEORGE D. SCARSETH (Soil Chemist, Purdue University Agricultural Experiment Station)

An effective checkup of the "conveyor belts" that supply farm crops with food from the soil can be made during the growing season by means of Tissue Tests. These tests will tell whether the growing plants are receiving their principal nourishment—nitrogen, phosphorus and potash—in balanced amounts.

The tissue test of plants, like the rapid chemical test of the soil, affords a quick diagnosis of plant nutrition or starvation. The proper use of either of these tests make it possible for the farmer more accurately to determine the fertilizer needs of various crops on individual fields.

The tissue test consists of splitting open stalks or leaf stems of corn or other growing crops and cutting out thin pieces of tissue. These pieces are placed in a glass vial containing a chemical agent. The reaction of the chemical to the plant tissue reveals the presence or absence of the necessary plant foods.

Usually six or eight samples representative of the type of plants growing in a field will suffice. Certain parts of a plant give more reliable indications of fertilizer needs than others. In analyzing corn, tissue from the base of the main stalk is best suited for a nitrogen test. For phosphorus, the tip of the main stalk or the main stalk just below the tassel is best, while for potash the base of the leaf at the ear node is most effective.

If the nitrogen supply of corn plants is deficient, the test for nitrates will be negative, while those for phosphates and potash may be high. The corn plants in such a case are likely to be stunted. Leaves will be greenish yellow, with yellowing tissues following the midrib from the tip end.

If the phosphate "conveyor belt" runs empty, tests are likely to show: Nitrates—high, phosphates negative and potash high. Physical symptoms will be plants dark green in color with spindly growth, but with leaves otherwise normal.

When potash is insufficient, tests will show nitrates and phosphorus both high while potash is low. Plants will be weak, dark green in color with leaves showing a marginal scorch.

AGRICULTURE IN INDUSTRY

By Florence C. Wood

(This is one of a series of articles showing how farm products are finding an important market in industry.)

Milk

It is a modern miracle that a man can tip his hat made of milk and yet it won't spill. Following the lead of Italy, American research workers have produced a "milk wool" which they claim is much superior to the foreign product. It is cheap, long wearing and takes color well and can probably be used for upholstering material. At present, it is going into men's hats.

In recent years, the ingenuity of government and dairy scientists has uncovered new uses for 30,000,000,000 quarts which once was wasted. It goes into casein for coating paper, making window shades and manufacturing a paste paint which is thinned with water. It is the base for insecticide sprays and a filler for cloth, textiles, leather tanning, and color plating industries use lactic acid in their manufacturing processes.

Akin to the many food uses are the new milk-derived animal feeds for poultry and livestock. Some ingredients for popular vitamin capsules are also obtained from milk.

Milk plastics are being made into small articles such as buttons, door handles and book ends. Casein is fabricated into lamp bases, backs for pin-up lamps, and bowl diffusers for indirect lighting.

Still in the experimental stage are wines of sherry and sauterne type which can be made from milk whey. A resin made from lactose may be adaptable as lining for food containers.

There is probably more research going on in dairies and creameries than in any other industry, but in spite of the advances, there remain 24,000,000,000 quarts of skimmed milk without a commercial outlet.

Agriculture News

The farmer's share of the consumer's dollar spent for 58 different foods, averaged 42 cents in 1940, compared with 41 cents in 1939 and 40 cents in 1938.

Farmers of the United States are now passing up every year $159,500,000 of income that could be realized through better management of farm woods, says the U. S. forest service.

Star Dust

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

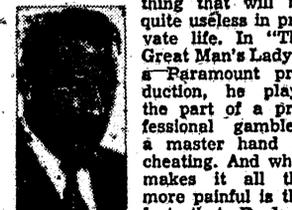

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

MARCH OF TIME camera-men went on a long and perilous voyage to film some of the material used in "Crisis in the Atlantic"—they went from Canada to England aboard a tanker in convoy. The film also includes the first pictures to arrive here from Greenland since that strategic island has become so important.

"Crisis in the Atlantic" vividly portrays the many aspects of the struggle to keep the sea lanes open so that war materials and food can be sent to Britain, and depicts as well the joint U. S.-Canadian defense efforts involving bases from the Arctic to the South Atlantic. It's a film scoop; don't miss it!

Brian Donlevy has been spending a lot of time learning to do something that will be quite useless in private life. In "The Great Man's Lady," a Paramount production, he plays the part of a professional gambler, a master hand at cheating. And what makes it all the more painful is the fact that Donlevy has an abhorrence of all card games, even the game of Authors.

Brian Donlevy has an abhorrence of all card games, even the game of Authors.

Bette Davis is at it again, playing one of the most unpleasant women ever seen on the screen. It's for "The Little Foxes," RKO's screen version of the tremendously successful play. It was RKO, you may recall, that set Miss Davis squarely on her feet, dramatically, by casting her as the heroine of "Of Human Bondage"—a role few actresses would have had the courage to take. She took it, and made movie history.

Anna Neagle does an entire dance number while submerged in a glass tank filled with water in her new picture, "Sunny." Back in England she won medals for swimming and diving, so she got into a scanty sequin costume and combined her talents as a swimmer and a dancer. The story's laid in New Orleans during the Mardi Gras, and Ray Bolger and John Carroll head the supporting cast. The under-water dance is a stunt new to pictures—new, as well, to Miss Neagle, we might add.

At the age of 97 Bob Hope's grandfather is helping to extinguish incendiary fires in the English village where he lives. "My health at present is much better than my disposition," he wrote his grandson. "I don't mind staying up at night to see your pictures, but I hate to have to miss my sleep just to put out some fires."

Meanwhile Bob is slated to do another of those hilarious comedies with Paulette Goddard; it's called "The Murder Farm," and sounds as if it might even top "The Cat and the Canary" and "The Ghost Breakers," their previous collaborations.

Agnes Moorehead, who plays the mother in Orson Welles' remarkable "Citizen Kane," first encountered Welles when he was five and she was not much older. He straggled into a hotel lobby with his father, describing a concert which he had just heard, and doing it so dramatically that she never forgot him. She makes her film debut in "Citizen Kane," and gives a beautiful, sincere performance. In fact, the whole cast does that—you forget that the people on the screen are acting, because they seem so real.

Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor didn't tell even their best friends that they were going off on that West Indies cruise; waited until just before the boat sailed to send telegrams announcing their plans. It's their first vacation together in 18 months, and their second trip together since they were married three years ago. They sailed as Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Brugh, hoping to avoid advance plans for vacations at their various ports of call.

ODDS AND ENDS—Warner Brothers drifted college students to meet the girls in "Dino Boy" and "The Flight Pilot"—the army draft left a shortage in the ranks of extras. "Robin Hood" is going to be a Republic serial, with Roy Rogers in the title role. "Roberts Cummings" will be Deanna Durbin's leading man in "Almost an Angel." Edger Bergen and Charlie McCarthy are beginning their fifth year with the coffee program—and when they started Bergen wasn't at all sure that he could turn out a script a week. "The Power That Refreshes the Air" has been renewed for another 26 weeks—one of the few networks about to run all summer.

Ellsworth and His Zouaves

THE name of Ephraim Elmsworth Ellsworth is almost forgotten now but 80 years ago it was on the lips of millions of Americans. As the youthful colonel of one of the most picturesque bodies of soldiery the United States has ever known, he was something of a military idol and a national hero. So when he was shot down by a Confederate sympathizer in Alexandria, Va., on May 24, 1861, he not only became the first officer of his rank to lose his life in defense of the Union, but his death did much to inflame the North against the South in the early days of the Civil war.

Ellsworth was born on April 23, 1837, the son of a poor tailor in the village of Malta, N. Y. Even in his youth he showed a fondness for military life and while he was still a school boy in Mechanicsville, he organized and commanded a company which bore the high-sounding name of "The Black Plumed Riflemen of Stillwater." He tried to obtain an appointment to West Point but failed through lack of political influence. So he started west to seek his fortune.

Eventually he landed in Chicago, where he was chosen captain of a national guard company. He outfitted them in zouave uniforms, re-named them the Chicago Zouave Cadets and soon made them one of the best drilled military units in the country. After an exhibition tour of the East in 1860, he returned to Illinois.

In Springfield he became a student in the law office of Abraham Lincoln who had recently been nominated for President by the Republican party. Since political campaigning seemed more exciting than studying, young Ellsworth plunged into it with the greatest enthusiasm and so won the esteem of Lincoln that he was invited to accompany the President-elect to Washington.

Lincoln, when he became President, planned to make his young law student and ex-zouave the head of the nation's militia system. But this was blocked by the "professional" soldiers in the war department and Ellsworth had to content himself with a commission as second lieutenant.

Then Fort Sumter was fired upon and Lincoln called for 75,000 volunteers to defend the Union. Ellsworth immediately resigned his commission and hurried to New York city to organize the men of the New York fire department as a volunteer regiment. In less than two weeks he was back in Washington as colonel of the Eleventh New York Infantry, known as the "Fire Zouaves," fully equipped, drilled and ready to take the field.

On May 24 the "Fire Zouaves" were a part of a force ordered to cross the Potomac and occupy parts of Virginia. Ellsworth's regiment was sent to Alexandria where their commander saw a Confederate flag flying over a hotel, the Marshall house. He dashed into the hotel, rushed up to the roof and tore the flag down. As he was returning, he was met in the hallway by J. W. Jackson, the proprietor, who fired a bullet through the young colonel's heart.

President Lincoln ordered that Ellsworth's body be taken to the White House where it lay in state in the historic East Room. Later it was escorted down Pennsylvania avenue by a detachment of cavalry, followed by carriages in which rode the President and members of his cabinet to the railroad station. There it was placed in a special train which bore the young commander to his burial place in Mechanicsville, N. Y.

Two days later President Lincoln wrote a long letter of condolence to Ellsworth's father and mother. It is even more noteworthy than the famous letter to Mrs. Bixby which, it has recently been revealed, was not written by Lincoln at all, but by his secretary, John Hay. In it, instead of writing about a soldier whom he had never seen, Lincoln was paying tribute to a man whom he had known personally as a law clerk in his office in Springfield and his companion on the fateful journey to Washington, and whom he had grown to love.

BROADENING CHRISTIAN HORIZONS: PETER'S VISION

LESSON TEXT—Acts 11:5-18. GOLDEN TEXT—Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons.—Acts 10:24.

"The best argument for Christianity is a Christian" (Henry Drummond). Peter presented just such an argument when, early in the history of Christianity, there arose a difference of opinion regarding his ministry to a Gentile and his family. The stumbling stone of offense became a stepping stone to higher things, leading to the place of broader horizons. Peter, instead of appealing to his apostolic authority or asserting his position, simply related what God had done. He presented the best proof that God had actually been at work; namely, a redeemed soul.

We may learn from this lesson that the way to broadened horizons and greater usefulness for the church is by

I. A Vision of God's Plan (vv. 5-10).

All men are equally precious in God's sight. God taught Peter very effectively that whether Gentile or Jew, the Lord is "not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance" (II Pet. 3:9).

When God speaks we do well to give heed to His message, even though it cuts across our ideas and prejudices, as it often does. It is not our plan that is important; it is God's plan and purpose. As we walk in that way we shall have

II. An Experience of God's Power (vv. 11-15).

The Holy Spirit had fallen on the Gentiles and they actually had been saved. Is it not singular that in the early church they could hardly believe that a Gentile could be saved? Now we are astonished if a Jew is saved! Why will we in our unbelief limit the Holy One of Israel?

The all-powerful gospel of the grace of God is still saving men and women, Jews and Gentiles, from their sins. Have you seen it happen? It is a great inspiration to faith and service. God is ready so to encourage us—He is the same today as He was when He sent Peter to Cornelius. Are we willing to run His errands, proclaim His message? To do so we need

III. An Appreciation of God's Word (v. 16).

The best way to learn the meaning of God's Word is to use it, live it, obey it. "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God" (John 7:17). Peter had learned anew that God's Word meant just what it said. We who are God's servants should believe His Word and act on it in faith.

Observe that Cornelius had gathered a group in his household to hear the Word of God (Acts 10:27, 33). Could we not do the same? "Cannot each calculate with exactness some time and place where the gospel is to be preached, and is it not possible to bring thither one's relatives and friends? Secondly, when present in a place of worship, cannot each be prepared to say, 'We are all here present'—all, family and friends, mind as well as body; 'in the sight of God'—not to be seen by others, not conscious so much of others as of the presence of God; 'to hear all things'—not to be amused or to sleep; 'that have been commanded thee of the Lord'—not to listen to human conjecture or the exploding of doubts, but to receive a positive message which is delivered in a reverent spirit and with the prophetic formula: 'Thus saith the Lord.' What would happen were all Christian churches filled with such audiences?" (Charles R. Erdman)

This brings us to what is most important of all in broadening our spiritual horizons.

IV. An Understanding of God's Love (vv. 17, 18).

God's love is for all people. Since He has not raised any barriers of race, creed, color, class, or social position, it is not for His followers, and assuredly not for His servants, to set up hindering restrictions which He does not countenance. If God intended to save Gentiles, Peter wanted to be an instrument in His hand, not a hindrance in His way. One of the needs of our day is that those doing God's work should not withstand Him and His love. He who is the same yesterday, today, and forever, is ready to work as powerfully today as He did in the days of Peter and Paul, or of Finney and Moody. Let us give Him liberty to work in and through us, not as we may wish, but as He desires. Who are we that we should withstand God?

Goal of Life
Oh, yet we trust that, somehow, God will be the final goal of all. That nothing walks with aimless feet,
That not one life shall be destroyed,
Or cast as rubbish to the void,
When God has made the pile complete.—Tennyson.

Even Court Ruling Couldn't Make Absent Plaintiff Talk

"I understand that you called on the complainant. Is that so?" demanded a browbeating barrister of a man he was cross-examining. "Yes," replied the witness. "What did he say?" "Counsel for the other side objected that evidence as to a conversation was not admissible, and half an hour's argument ensued. Then the court retired to consider the point, announcing some time later that they deemed the question a proper one. "Well, what did the plaintiff say?" repeated the cross-examining attorney. "He wasn't at home, sir!" was the answer.

"Tommy, why is your composition on milk only half a page when I asked for two pages?" "Well, you see, sir, I wrote about condensed milk."

Quite Naturally
"How did you happen to become a chiropractor?" he was asked. "Oh," he replied, "I was always at the foot of my class at school, so just drifted into this profession."

Spread Thin
"I'll have you know my father was a very clever man. His intelligence was inherited by us children." "I'm! Well, in that case, I can only conclude you must have been a large family."

Far Away
She watched him gazing down at their first-born. Wonder, admiration, rapture, incredulity chased across his face. She stole up and said, tenderly: "Tell me your thoughts, dearest." "Darned if I can see how anyone can make a cot like that for seven dollars."

Buy a Poppy On Poppy Day

The Legion home is blooming with poppies as the Auxiliary women complete preparations for the annual observance of Poppy Day, Saturday, May 24. The little red flowers of memory are being taken from the boxes in which they came from the Veterans' Hospital at Albuquerque where they were made by disabled veterans. Memories of the past and hopes for the future—that is what goes into the making of a poppy, said Mrs. Moore, poppy chairman, as she took one apart and explained its structure. They are made in exact replicas of the wild poppies of France and Belgium, which grew in profusion in the battlefields.

The men who make the flowers are comrades of those in whose honor they are worn. They were not called to give their lives, but they gave their health and strength, which makes life worthwhile. Into the little flowers they place great memories of the past, and from the work they derive new hope for the future, said Mrs. Moore.

NAUTICAL NOTES

Only three men have ever held the permanent rank of full admiral in the United States Navy—David G. Farragut, David Porter and George Dewey.

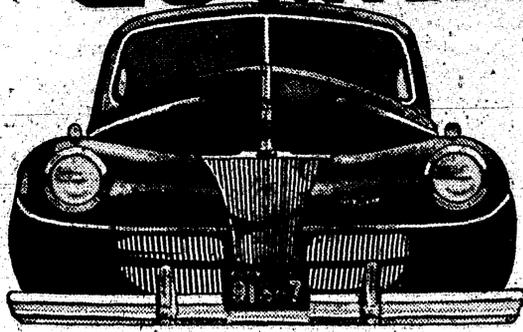

President John Adams is the only President of the United States ever to have been honored by having a ship of the Navy named for him.

The U. S. S. Lexington (giant aircraft carrier) with 2202 officers and men aboard, has on board at the present time what is probably the largest number of officers and enlisted personnel ever to be attached to a single man-of-war on duty at one time.

For nearly eight miles the Panama Canal passes through a Cutting of solid rock which is now called Galliard Cut. The deepest part of the cut between Gold Hill which is 682 feet high and Contractor's Hill which is 406 feet high.

Each Navy ship has an enlisted man detailed as ship's tailor, who makes alterations and repairs to clothing and to the ship's canvas.

★ 29 MILLION!

A record never before approached!

★When the 29,000,000th Ford rolled recently from the assembly line, an all-time record for the industry was set. 29,000,000 units built by the same management and all bearing one name—a name that has become one of the best-known trade-marks in the world!

It is significant that this achievement comes at a time when our country is making a mighty effort to re-arm swiftly. For to further that effort, to help speed it along in any possible way, we have offered the vast facilities of the Rouge Plant and every ounce of our experience.

As you read this, a new $21,000,000 Ford airplane engine plant, started only last fall, is nearly completed. A new magnesium alloy plant, one of the few in the country, is already in production on light-weight airplane engine castings. Work is right now under way on a new $18,000,000 plant for mass production of big bomber assemblies. Orders have been filled for military vehicles of several types, including army reconnaissance cars, staff cars and bomb service trucks.

In the midst of this activity for National Defense, building the 29 millionth Ford car is simply one part of the day's work.

The public has acclaimed the 1941 Ford car as the finest in Ford history. Ford Dealers are enjoying their greatest sales and expecting their best year since 1937.

It is good to be producing the things America needs, and to be setting records on the way!

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

Battle for Control of Ocean Shipping Overshadows Other Phases of War; Flight of Rudolf Hess to Great Britain Brings Flood of Rumor, Propaganda

(EDITOR'S NOTE.—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Well named is this Lockheed "Lightning" otherwise and officially known as the P-38 Interceptor-Fursult, shown here in flight over the mountains near Burbank, California. This sleek, bi-motored craft is said to be the fastest plane in existence. The first batch of P-38s is now rolling off the production lines for the U. S. and British air forces.

FLIGHT:

From Germany

Following the dramatic flight from Germany to Scotland by Rudolf Hess, No. 3 Nazi and deputy Fuehrer of Germany, world capitals buzzed with rumor and gossip regarding the reasons behind his fantastic exit. An official British government announcement did not at first specifically state that Hess had deserted the Nazi regime but the inference was plain that he was believed to be sane when he dropped by parachute near Glasgow, Scotland. The first statement from the home of Winston Churchill at 10 Downing street told that Hess was under treatment in a Glasgow hospital for a broken ankle suffered in floating down from his German Messerschmitt fighter plane.

Before it was reported by England that the high ranking Nazi official had landed by parachute in Scotland, Berlin had announced that Hess was missing and was believed to be lost in an airplane crash following an unscheduled and unauthorized flight. He was said to have left behind a letter which indicated that he was suffering from some traces of mental disorder and was a victim of "hallucinations."

It was also stated that Hess carried with him photographs taken at various stages in his life to aid in establishing identity upon questioning. Pointed out too was the fact that the plane in which he was flying could not hold enough gasoline for a return flight to Germany. Also the guns of the plane were unloaded. Stories of every description were forthcoming in the first hours following the announcement that Hess was in Glasgow. Many persons believed he came bearing a peace message from elements within the Nazi government that disagreed with Hitler on the war policy. Still others held that he brought a message direct from Hitler. Another story was that he disagreed with Hitler over vital policies and feared for his life at the hands of the secret police.

WAR TEMPO:

Steps Up

There was a general stepping up of the tempo of the war with arrival in England and in North Africa of considerable and growing amounts of American aid.

Apparently Hitler's Nazi legions, fearing that American entry into the war was imminent, and that this entry might possibly turn the tide against him, was anxious to bring every effort to bear to knock Britain out as swiftly as possible.

Indeed, this seemed the only hope of a German victory, because all other enemies of the Reich had crumbled before the blitz technique, leaving only England, and though the United States was strongly aligned with the British effort, it had not yet reached the point of actual full participation in the war. There was little doubt but that Germany was well-informed of the set-up of American war production, and that the Germans realized just what the sum of American aid would eventually mean.

If it should mean British supremacy in the air, it might be that Germany's hope-of-victory would be doomed, for Nazi air supremacy was still evident, not only in the Grecian campaign, but in the battle of the British Isles as well.

Thus most observers believed that the world was seeing the maximum effort against the British in England, and that the world would soon see the maximum effort to end the North African campaign, and to push the Asia-Minor campaign so that Suez and Alexandria and Malta might fall.

The facts bore out the premise that the war was highly stepped up, however. British sources claimed dropping as many as 40 planes in a single night, yet still did not claim anywhere near 10 per cent of those over Britain.

CONVOYS:

Important Phase

While convoys continued to occupy much of the time congress was allotted to debate, President Roosevelt had postponed what was believed to be a forthcoming public statement on the issue. It was announced that he was too ill to make a scheduled radio address and so for the time being his opponents as well as his supporters were forced to speculate as to what his words might be.

It was a blow to Republican opponents of convoying when Wendell L. Willkie said he favored it. Senator Nye and other non-interventionists leaped on the former Republican standard-bearer and labored him as a "turncoat."

It was evident that Lindbergh, bellwether of the anti-administration flock, realized that he was treading close to the point where the issue would be so sharply drawn that the "aid-to-Britain" forces would have to take some action that would silence their opponents.

Indeed, Lindbergh said: "As long as free speech is permitted I feel obligated to continue to speak in behalf of a negotiated peace." He said he did not want a German victory, but that he honestly believed a British victory impossible, and that in the interest of peace, the war should be ended on the best terms possible "or our children and our children's children will be obligated to fight Europe's wars."

This was, of course, merely the anti-administration line of attack, but it was backed up by Landon, 1936 G.O.P. nominee, who also showed the peril in which free speech was standing.

The issue was back to World war days, when speech freedom went by the board for the duration of the war—but only after the U. S. was in it. The issue being so sharply defined now made many believe that U. S. entry into the war was only a short way off.

DIPLOMATIC:

Outlook Dark

Back, around and on top of the actual warfare were waging the diplomatic battles, rightly characterized by Anthony Eden as of equal import and difficulty as the battles on the field, and meeting much the same result.

The loss of the Balkan campaign weakened Britain's diplomatic position, and made it just that much harder to hold Turkey and Syria in line.

Reports from Turkey that she was anxious to mediate in the Iraq war was far from a pleasant outcome for the British, who wanted the Mosul oil and not mediation which might weaken her position.

In fact, Ankara advised the British that the demand on the part of Iraq, before peace would be made, was that Britain withdraw all but 2,000 of her troops, not leaving even enough halfway to police the Kirkuk-Halfa pipeline.

Reports from Iraq were conflicting, the Germans naturally being glad to circulate reports that her troops were on Iraq soil, and reporting British reverses. The British, however, most of whose reports had so far been basically accurate, even though colored somewhat with propaganda, said the Iraq campaign had degenerated into largely a pursuit of the Iraq troops in the desert north of Habbaniyah airdrome.

But Suez was not free from menace, and Axis raiders were dropping bombs on the canal, and harassing shipping there. Meantime all Britain was wondering what the Russian situation was, and whether the Russian bear was going to sit idly by and watch Nazi infiltration into Asia Minor.

The general opinion was that Stalin would be guided entirely by expediency, and that even a German-Italian-Russian-Japanese alliance was not impossible if America should openly enter the war.

INSTALLMENT II THE STORY SO FAR:

Dusty King and Lew Gordon had built up a vast string of ranches in the West. King was killed by his powerful and unscrupulous competitor, Ben Thorpe. Bill Roper, King's adopted son, was determined to avenge his death in spite of the opposition.

When Lew Gordon spoke, his voice was so quiet that its very stillness carried threat of imminent destruction. "Bill Roper, sent a man to you?"

"I didn't say that. He's a man who was with Bill Roper in the Texas Rustlers' War; he doesn't seem to be in the Montana raids."

"Who was it?" Lew Gordon rumbled. "What's his name?"

"Shoshone Wilce."

"Wilce! I know that name. I know it well. I'd rope and drag him in a second, if I caught him talking to you!"

"This man has talked with Ben Thorpe in Dodge," Jody told her father. "A lot of strange news is working down to Thorpe from up here in Montana. Some bands of rustlers are slaying up and down Montana throwing lead and leather into the Thorpe outfits under Lasham; they say he's badly hurt already—nobody will know how badly until the winter breaks."

Her father waited, his eyes angry. "The word from Dodge explains half the trouble that King-Gordon is up against," Jody said. "Thorpe can't believe that one lone cowboy, deserted by everyone who should have been his friend, could manage to smash his Texas holdings, and go on to cut away his herds in Montana. He thought that we were backing Billy Roper in the Texas Rustlers' War. And he believes that we're backing him now."

"Well?" Lew Gordon said. "You mean to say you came all this way to tell me that?"

"Ben Thorpe means to kill you," Lew Gordon's face showed no change of expression. But he did not reply at once.

"I don't doubt it," he said at last; "what would you expect? You bring war into a range and anybody is likely to go down."

Jody's face was white. "You know what's at the bottom of all the trouble we're having," her father said. "You know as well as I do that two years of nothing but trouble lays square at the door of Bill Roper."

Jody sprang up to face him. "I certainly do not know anything of the kind!" she answered him.

Lew Gordon stared at her. "It's an everlasting shame upon the cow country that Dusty King's killers are still in their saddles. I tell you, Billy Roper is the only man I've seen with courage enough to—"

And now her father angered as she had seldom seen him anger. "You'll tell me nothing!" he roared. "Roper! I'm sick of hearing his name—a dirty outlaw whelp that knows nothing but kill and burn and raid!"

Jody's eyes narrowed and filled with tears. "You may as well know this," she told her father. "The day that Billy Roper dies I want to die too."

For a moment Lew Gordon seemed bewildered; he stared at his daughter as if the devil had come up through the floor. The girl who faced him was entirely strange to him.

He heard her say, "If you had stayed by him, as Dusty King would have done, Thorpe would have been whipped and through, long ago."

"Child," he said queerly, "what are you talking about?"

"If you'd only take Billy Roper back into King-Gordon—"

"That'll never happen while I live," her father said flatly.

A silence fell between them, presently broken by the girl. "He asked me to ride with him once, when he first took the outlaw trail. I wish I had. To the last day I live, I'll wish I'd ridden with him then. And now I'll tell you something more. If ever he asks me again, I'll go."

For several moments he stared at her, more shaken than he had been since the death of Dusty King. Then his face congested, and he rose up on his boot heels to tower over the girl.

"By God," he said, his voice unsteady with the repression he put upon it, "that closes the deal! I've kept my riders off him because of Dusty King, and I let him run on and on, rousing up a range war that had close to busted King-Gordon. But when it comes to tampering with you—it's the end! I'm through, you hear me!"

He caught up his battered sombrero, and his spurs rang as he turned toward the door.

"Dad, what are you going to do?"

"Thorpe has a reward on Bill Roper's head. King-Gordon is going to double that reward."

He went storming out, his face black and violent with portent of war.

of his sweetheart, Jody Gordon, and her father. Daring raids upon Thorpe's Texas holdings wiped him out of the state. Roper then prepared for a great raid upon the vast herds on Thorpe's Montana ranches. Several thousand Indians had gathered near

"Yes, mam, I kind of did, I guess; and I got to be getting on there, Miss Gordon. If you'll just give me any message you want me to take, I'd sure like to be pulling out of here, before—"

"All right. You be here with two good horses just after dark."

"If you could just as leave give me the message now, I'd sure like to—"

"There is no message. I'm going with you to Bill Roper."

Shoshone Wilce looked like a man entrapped. "I can't do it! Your father—I just won't do it, Miss Gordon!"

"All right. I'll make the ride by myself."

"Hey, look! You can't—"

"Bill Roper isn't going to like this, Wilce."

Shoshone studied her searchingly, but found nothing to reassure him. "It was in his mind that this girl would do exactly as she said. My easy throw together three hundred head in a couple of days. That gives us a nice bunch of anyway two thousand. The more the better—but with two thousand we'll make our drive."

They slept that night under the slowly falling snow. Roper himself made coffee and routed out his riders two hours before the first light. They caught their horses in the dark, with hands that fumbled the stiffened ropes; then split off in pairs to comb the range.

For two days Roper watched the enemy camp while the snow held on, piling a deeper and deeper mat; then on the third day he returned to the rendezvous as the roundup men began straggling in.

Tex Long was the first one back. "This range is plumb solid with stock," Tex declared. "How many head do you figure me and Kid Johnson scraped up, just us two?"

"Well," Roper grunted, "upwards of a dozen—I should hope."

"Better'n six hundred head! Lord Almighty, Bill! Figuring they're worth twenty dollars apiece, and allowing that all the other boys do as good, we're liable to get out of here with around eighty thousand dollars worth of cattle! You realize that?"

But Roper was thinking of the letter in his pocket; the appeal of a girl who needed him in some unknown way, and who did not even know why he couldn't come.

All the next day they worked to throw the little bunches together into a trail herd. Not all of them had done as well as Tex Long and Kid Johnson, but most of them had done well enough. And then, at last, the first herd privateered in the Great Raid began to roll. A long unsteadily moving river of cattle poured northward, a dark welter in the thinning fall of the snow. White-faces, mostly, blocky and heavy, well wintered on the prairie hay—Roper counted two thousand six hundred odd!

Pressed hard by the heavy force of cowboys, the cattle bawled but humped along northward into the valley of the Prairie Elk.

Roundup within a day's ride of Miles City itself, Roper's men had taken this herd almost out of the very corrals of Lasham's outposts; and yet, so far as any of them knew, that swift-moving drive represented a harder blow than had ever been struck a cattlemen in a single raid. In all their months of effort the winter wild bunch had been unable to achieve an equal reprisal upon Lasham, and now they could hardly believe their own success. They forced the cattle hard, driving through the clogging snow at a rate incredible to men accustomed to handling market herds.

The cattle that broke the way through the snow kept dropping back, blown and tired; but as fast as they failed, others were forced forward to take their places. Long-horned, stag-legged steers of the old Texas strain fought the riders, breaking the heavy column repeatedly in their wild-eyed thrusts for liberty, and these were allowed to get away. Gaunt, weak cattle lagged back, unable to keep up even under the snapping rope ends of the tall riders; they also were allowed to drop out promptly forgotten. Yet, in that first day, the side riders swept in enough north-roaming cattle to more than make up the loss.

Roper went with the herd as far as Circle Horse Creek; but when they had forded the shallows, crashing through the rotten ice, he turned back. With him he took four men who he believed would do what he said. The cattle were moving more slowly now, plodding doggedly through the heavy going; Tex Long and the remaining eight men could hold them to their way. What was needed now was work of a different kind, and Roper thought he knew how that was to be done.

It was his intention to fight a rear guard action—not only for this first herd, which would be delivered within the week to the Indians who would split it away, but for the protection of all the rest of the wild bunch raiding to westward.

But now as he heard the head of the 'Little Dry,' a rider came dropping down a long slope upon a racing horse. His carbine was held above his ragged sombrero in sign of peace; and as he came near they saw that it was Hat Crick Tommy.

Roper jumped his horse out to meet Hat Crick. "What is it? Is there any word? Did she—"

Tommy's face was haggard with fatigue. "She's gone!" he jerked out. "She's been to Miles City—and now she's gone!"

"Gone? Gone where?"

"Nobody knows. She's missing—disappeared—strayed or lost or rustled, I don't know which! Her father's wild crazy, and every K-G outfit in the north is combing the trails—"

Roper sat staring for a full half minute. Then his hands fumbled for his reins, shook out the loop.

"Turn that roan pony! I've got to have a fresh horse."

the Canadian border to take every best that was driven across. Shoshone Wilce, one of Roper's men, told Jody that her father's life was in danger, so she rode to warn him. He was surprised to see her so far from home.

CHAPTER XVI

The rounding up of the wild bunch of riders lost Roper a few days; but within the week Bill Roper and Tex Long rode into the plains of the Little Dry.

Here around a spluttering fire the riders crouched in their sodden blankets, like Indians, while Roper gave out his orders. Thirty-two men and six outlaw leaders were now in the field against Walk Lasham's powerful Montana outfits in the Great Raid.

Roper's first move had been to split his renegade riders into five bunches under the leaders that he knew—Tex Long, Lee Harnish, Dave Shannon, Dry Camp Pierce and himself. Hat Crick Tommy he sent to Miles City in search of further word from Jody Gordon; Hat Crick would later rejoin Roper as messenger and scout.

It was Roper's plan that he and Tex Long, with twelve men between them, should make the most daring raid of all; a raid upon the big herds which Lasham held between the headwaters of Timber Creek and the Little Dry. Of all the ranges in which the wild bunch was interested, this was the nearest Miles City—the most accessible, the most closely watched, the best protected. How many cattle he could transfer from this range to the starving Canadian Sioux, Roper did not know; but it was his hope to raise such a conspicuous and stubborn disturbance as would mask the operations of the rest of the wild bunch, and permit Pierce to work unimpeded.

"The fourteen of us will split seven ways," Roper told them now. "I figure Lasham's look-out camp for this range is about twelve miles southeast. We'll comb every way but that way. I'm not telling you how to gather stock. Hunt 'em like you know how to hunt 'em. Move out one day's ride, spotting your cow bunches. Next day pick 'em up and work 'em this way. And on the third day throw your gather against a coulee or something where one man can hold 'em, and the other man of each pair ride back and meet me here. I figure this range is heavy with cattle. I don't see any reason why two good men can't

"The fourteen of us will split seven ways," Roper told them now. "I figure Lasham's look-out camp for this range is about twelve miles southeast. We'll comb every way but that way. I'm not telling you how to gather stock. Hunt 'em like you know how to hunt 'em. Move out one day's ride, spotting your cow bunches. Next day pick 'em up and work 'em this way. And on the third day throw your gather against a coulee or something where one man can hold 'em, and the other man of each pair ride back and meet me here. I figure this range is heavy with cattle. I don't see any reason why two good men can't split his renegade riders into five bunches under the leaders that he knew—Tex Long, Lee Harnish, Dave Shannon, Dry Camp Pierce and himself. Hat Crick Tommy he sent to Miles City in search of further word from Jody Gordon; Hat Crick would later rejoin Roper as messenger and scout.

It was Roper's plan that he and Tex Long, with twelve men between them, should make the most daring raid of all; a raid upon the big herds which Lasham held between the headwaters of Timber Creek and the Little Dry. Of all the ranges in which the wild bunch was interested, this was the nearest Miles City—the most accessible, the most closely watched, the best protected. How many cattle he could transfer from this range to the starving Canadian Sioux, Roper did not know; but it was his hope to raise such a conspicuous and stubborn disturbance as would mask the operations of the rest of the wild bunch, and permit Pierce to work unimpeded.
