Old Indian Road

There is much talk just now about roads, highways and other arteries which are so much needed as the talk of war and defense. In the last named, it becomes more essential that we not only improve old roads, but make new avenues for quick travel.

Roads were always essential even in the days of Indian travel. There is a road, which strange as it may seem, is not even known to many of our people. How many years ago that road was built or what tribe did the work, and how long a time it took to make it, perhaps never will be known.

It started in the Sacramento mountains, above Tularosa near where the springs are, high above the old Fall ranch. It winds in and around the mountains, until it gets just below the Nogal Peak, on over to Church mountain, where it disappears on account of it passing over the flats near the Stokes ranch. It again makes its appearance in the Capitan mountains towards Roswell, where it disappears from view. Early on a clear morning, the old Indian trail can be seen from Carrizozo with an ordinary strong glass.

The Indians, according to an old legend, used that trail for hunting and it also afforded them a good advantage over enemies coming over the desert. The old trail, in most places, was hewn out of the rocky mountain sides and is just wide enough for horse travel. Take a strong glass some clear morning, if you want to view a road that was constructed countless of years ago by Indian hands.

Twenty years ago in Albuquerque Journal, "The body of Manuel Soto of Co. H. 58th Infantry, the first New Mexico soldier to be killed in action in France arrived last night."

The next time, Mike, save the expenses of such a trip and give your hometown preacher a break. You should be a partner of Wrong Way Corrigan.

THE old-timer likes to think that the old days and the old ways were the best. As the years slip by he lets his imagination build up the stronger spots and lop off the weaker...

Certainly baseball's two most famous stars for 30 years—from 1905 to 1935—were Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth. Cobb's big league career opened in 1905. Babe's in 1914. For more than 10 years their careers overlapped.

Grantland Rice

Their counterparts in 1941 are Bob Feller and Joe DiMaggio. Bob Feller is, or should be, one of the all-time pitching greats. The same rating applies to Joe DiMaggio as a hitter and outfielder.

Without attempting to rate the value of Ty and Babe against Bob and Joe, there is one department at least where the old-timer can expand his chest and prove his point. This is the matter of color.

Cobb and Ruth packed an enlarged amount of personality into their playing systems. They had flame, flare, dash. They caught and held the fancy of the crowd.

Feller and DiMaggio are both on the quiet, unobtrusive side who like to be better away from the mob. Both are friendly, serious young men who make their entire contribution as star pitcher and a star outfielder.

Cobb and Ruth have always been exactly the opposite. They were actors as well as ball players. Both were on the exciting side. And a big part of their crowd appeal had no particular connection with mechanical skill. They had plenty of that.

Disagreeing With Ty

It pains us to disagree with such an old pal as Tyrus Raymond Cobb. I was in Atlanta when Ty was in Augusta around 1904 or 1905 and headed north from the red clay hills at about the same date.

Ty naturally likes the "one run at a time" game best. He likes the less lively ball. He has something on his side of the argument with respect to this.

But the modern game is more dramatic. In the old days a three or four-run lead was usually decisive. Today it may mean little, and the crowd knows it. Both infielders and outfielders, especially infielders, have to work at a far faster clip to handle whirling drives that come their way. The home run is still the main crowd thrill.

I must disagree with Ty on another point. On his all-time all-star team the pitchers he names are Walsh, Alexander, Mathewson, Johnson, Plank and Feller.

What about a pretty fair pitcher by the name of Denton Tecumseh (Cy) Young, the "Paoli Phenom"?

All Cy did was to win 312 ball games in two major leagues. This winning count totals more games than the great majority of pitchers ever pitched. They talk about pitchers who can win 20 ball games a season—Cy Young averaged better than 20 games a year for more than 20 years.

About Cy Young

Young did his pitching for Cleveland, St. Louis and Boston, working in both leagues. He came up from Paoli, Ohio, in 1899 with hay in his hair.

Cy, a huge bulk of a fellow had speed, control, a fine head and a stout heart. And you can emphasize control and smartness. Cy worked from 1890 through 1911 and when he had finished he had passed by something like 100 winning games of Walter Johnson's mark in second place.

Cobb picks Ed Walsh and Eddie Plank both fine pitchers, but old Cy won more games than both together.

I ran across Cy a short while back. He gave me then one of the secrets of his success.

"How did I ever win 312 games?" he said. "Here's one reason. I had four different pitching motions that I made look alike. Also, I think that I was the first pitcher to cover up the pitching motion completely. I'd practically turn my back to the batter and the ball would be on him before he was set," he explained.

"I also made a close study," Cy said, "of what they wanted to hit and what they didn't want to hit. You don't think I ever gave Wahoo Sam Crawford, a pull hitter, any ball he could pull. Not a chance. That's a big part of pitching—to know a hitter's style and to have enough control to put the ball where you want it to go. There are too many pitchers today who haven't any idea what a batter's weakness is. Nor do they have the control to match the weakness when they do know—and that's almost as bad as not knowing."

Big League Hitters Crown New King

JOE DI MAGGIO'S successful assault on the all-time consecutive game hitting record has established him even more definitely as one of the greatest hitters in baseball annals.

When Joe connected in his forty-fifth straight contest to surpass Willie Keeler's 1897 mark he reached a goal he'd been aiming at ever since he entered the majors. He had passed George Sisler's modern mark of 41 straight games three days before.

Sisler, one of baseball's all-time greats, expressed an almost unanimous opinion when he telegraphed the New York Yankee slugger: "Congratulations. I'm glad a real hitter broke it. Keep going."

From May 15, when he started his streak, until June 29, when Sisler's record fell, Joe was at bat 167 times. He made 63 hits for a total of 117 bases. His batting average for the big streak was .377.

Included in the hits were 12 home runs, 12 doubles and three triples. He knocked across 39 runs to help the Yankees climb into leadership of the American league.

420 Still Good

Sisler established his record while playing first base with the St. Louis Browns. His hitting streak lasted from July 27 to September 17, 1922, during which time he also batted .428. This latter record never has been equaled in the circuit and was the motivating force behind the Browns' pennant chase. In 1922 the Browns missed first place by exactly one game.

The ovation given Joe was ample proof of his ability to please fans. The record-breaking hits were made in Washington, D. C., where hundreds of spectators were lined up outside the park when Joe arrived before the game. As soon as he stepped on the field, the fans swarmed from the stands, howling for his autographs.

Biggest days in the DiMaggio string were May 27 against Washington and June 29 against Detroit. In each of those games he tallied four hits.

Novikoff Seeks Vindication

LOU NOVIKOFF, the Mad Russian, whose highly publicized batting prowess failed to overcome National league pitchers, has a lot of baseball fans cheering for him in his new spot with the Milwaukee Brewers.

Lou didn't set the world afire during his short major league stay with the Chicago Cubs. He was considerably less than sensational. But he doesn't deserve being labeled the "mole" boy of the year. After all, when he went to the Milwaukee club he was tenth in hitting among the 23 Cubs with an average of .237.

The slick paper magazines gave Lou a sendoff last winter that was no less than terrific. His capabilities seemed limited only by the author's imagination. He was a superman of the diamonds, a veritable tower of strength to the tottering Cubs. A lot of folks in the Texas league, the Coast league and the Three-Eye league swore by Lou. They knew what he could do with a baseball bat. And they weren't hesitant about telling what they knew.

When Lou failed to connect with big league pitching those people were disappointed. So were National league fans in Chicago. But none of them has given Lou up as a failure. Jimmy Wilson, Novikoff's manager, while he was with the Cubs, still believes the chunky Russian will find his batting eye. Wilson explains that Lou got off to a bad start that he was over-eager and way off form. Pitchers, he says, were giving him a lot of half-speed stuff he couldn't solve. Now that the pressure is relieved, the currently Sed Russian will perform up to previous standards.

The former toast of the Coast wasn't at all brokenhearted over his compulsory change. "I'll like working for Manager Charlie Grimm," he said. "I know I can hit and I'm going to prove it up there at Milwaukee. My legs are in better shape than they ever have been—I'm in shape to go now and I am going to go. Wait and see."

A few hundred thousand fans couldn't see anything that would please them more, Lou. So just conjure up visions of past glories and put everything you've got behind that big bat.

Whalers Fade To Lone Fleet

WASHINGTON.—America's last whaling concern, the remnant of a whaling force that included about 800 ships a century ago, soon will be pursuing Moby Dick off northern California.

The San Francisco Sea Food Products company recently received a license from Secretary of Interior Ickes to operate a shore station at Humboldt bay, California, and is making preparations for its next trip.

The company is the last whaling company in the United States, although there is another one in British Columbia. According to reports received here, the Canadians also plan to go to sea this year.

Season Now Open.

The whaling season on the West coast begins about this time of the year and lasts until well into the fall.

Last year American whalers caught 29 whales, including six finbacks, 19 humpbacks and four sperm whales. A 70-foot finback was the largest caught during the season, most of the others measuring between 50 and 60 feet in length.

One hundred years ago the United States boasted the largest whaling fleet in the world. Between 800 and 800 ships flew the Stars and Stripes.

Modern whaling ships differ as much from those that sailed the seas 100 years ago as the stratosphere differs from the Wright brothers' first airplane.

No longer do whalers have to lower their whaleboats when the man in the crow's nest cries, "Thar she blows!"

Nowadays, the whaling ship, equipped with special engines that will not emit strong sound waves through the water and disturb the whale, slips up to the mammal and discharges a harpoon from a harpoon gun mounted in the bow.

When the weapon strikes the whale, it is discharged by a shot of powder and four prongs open within the whale.

Oil Used in Soap.

Whale fat is processed into oil, which in America is used primarily in the manufacture of soaps. It also is used in perfumes, as a base for face creams and fly sprays, as a lubricant for machinery, and in leather tanning in Germany, where all possible ersatz foods are used.

In the United States, whale meat is used for cat and dog foods, but in Japan, the interior department said, it is used for human consumption.

The world catch last year was estimated at 35,000, most of which were taken from the Antarctic by English, Norwegian and Japanese whalers.

In 1925 an international agreement, signed by 28 maritime powers who agreed on whale conservation measures, went into effect. Killing of calves and females accompanied by calves was prohibited.

Census Report Shows U. S. Accident Rate Is Lower

WASHINGTON.—The census bureau has come out with the cheering news that the United States is a pretty safe place to live, and getting safer.

The 92,623 accidental deaths in 1939, it said, represented a decline of 1.3 per cent from 1938. And the death rate from accidents was only 70.9 for each 100,000 of population, the third lowest on record. Both 1921 and 1922 had better records.

From its data the bureau figured that you have only about one chance in a million of dying from a poisonous snake's bite, a fate that befell 102 persons in 1939. And your chance of being killed by lightning is only one in 338,000. Lightning took 390 lives in 1939.

As many people no doubt suspected, highway mishaps were the principal cause of accidental deaths in 1939. There were 30,463 fatalities in automobile accidents. Falls, the second chief cause, killed 22,878.

Other causes and the number of deaths were drowning, 5,450; railway (other than crossing mishaps), 3,394; firearms, 2,342; burns, 1,794; agricultural accidents, 1,604; mines and quarries, 1,540; suffocation, 1,328; sunstroke, 627; motorcycles, 439; airplanes, 396; lightning, 390; streetcars, 358; attacks by animals, 279; excessive cold, 190.

Rhode Island was the safest state in the Union, with an accident death rate of 51.3 for each 100,000 population, while Nevada had the highest rate, 203.1.

BRIDGETON, N. J.—A 23-year-old army volunteer was unhappy about the empty train platform and lack of farewells at the depot, so he left for his induction station, so he turned in an alarm at a nearby fire box.

Stroms, bells, scores of townsfolk and firemen complete with hook and ladder and chemical truck greeted him as he waved good-bye from the departing train.

IT HELPS SOME ("The Aga Khan has been compelled to cut his racing stable down to one horse."—News item)

If you've been hard hit by the war—If you have felt its frightful touch—If you are getting more and more To feel your lot is not so much; If you're enveloped in the blues—If daily by some blow you're hit, Here is some rather soothing news—The Aga Khan is feeling it!

If you are prone to knit your brows And worry over what's ahead—If you've a tendency to grouse About the way that you've been bled; If you're complaining of the meas—If every broadcast makes you blue, This thought will help a bit, I guess—The Aga Khan is scrimping, too!

If Europe's war has burdened you And made you go a little slow In making any outlays new Or being careless with your dough; If you have felt war's bitter sting And think that you've been put upon, This item may be comforting—All's not so well with Aga Khan.

If your life isn't what it was—If you must count your shekels now—If day by day the conflict does Its best to sink you by the bow; If you are cutting down on gas To make each dime the limit go, This ought to help you let it pass—The Aga Khan is low on dough.

If you can't live the way you did And must add water to the soup; If it's been months since you were rid Of all the cares that 'round you swoop; If you must now economize—If you've cut out the fresh meat course, This fact may help your spirits rise—The Aga Khan's on his last horse!

FARM TOPICS

'TIMING' CROP EFFECTS YIELD

Harvesting Immature Grain Decreases Quality.

By W. W. BROOKINS (Extension Agronomist, University Farm, St. Paul.)

As key producers in the national defense program, farmers of the nation have a special responsibility this year to get the new grain crop threshed and stored in as good condition as possible. Both the yield and quality of grains may be materially affected by farm practice during the harvest-threshing period.

One of the most important steps toward high grade grain in the bin is cutting at the proper stage of maturity. Too early harvesting is a common mistake. Grain should be at least in the firm dough stage. If hail and insect damage can be avoided, the crop should stand until it is well matured.

Grain harvested with the binder should be placed in well-built shocks as soon as possible after cutting.

Grain should be threshed only when dry enough for safe storage. A moisture content of 10 to 12 per cent is considered safe for storage of wheat, oats, barley, or rye, while flax is safe if moisture is down to 8 or 10 per cent. In temperate, dry regions, higher moisture content can be permitted, but in areas where the weather is normally humid, the grain must be dry or it will spoil in the bin. When in doubt, it is safest to get a moisture test from a local elevator. Insect damage in the bin usually accompanies moist grain and heating.

Now that combine harvesting is more common even on smaller farms, a great deal of attention needs to be given to this form of threshing. It is wise to avoid combining grain that is immature or moisture laden. When there is dew, combining should be delayed in the morning until grain is dry. Cutting should stop in the late afternoon as soon as the grain begins to take up moisture from the air.

Molasses, Paper Used To Seal Trench Silo

Two recent methods of sealing trench silos which farmers have found to be practical are the use of molasses and finely ground straw, and strips of tar paper covered with dirt, according to Ivan Watson, assistant professor of animal husbandry at Colorado State college.

Growers who have tried the tar paper and dirt method report little or no spoilage of silage. Strips of the paper are laid crosswise of the trench silo and are lapped two or three inches for proper sealing. Then the paper is covered with a layer of six to ten inches of dirt. When the silage is to be fed to livestock the soil is scooped off the paper at one end where the silo is to be opened.

In using the molasses seal the trench silo is filled and rounded over the top and the silage is covered with four to six inches of finely ground oat, wheat or barley straw. Rounding the top of the trench silo enables it to shed water.

Then molasses is poured over this straw at the rate of 50 gallons to 100 square feet or one-half gallon to the square foot.

After this has been done the molasses is covered with about two inches of finely ground straw. Ranchmen and farmers who have tried this method report it to be very satisfactory. It makes a tight seal which should prevent spoilage, and the molasses is fed along with the silage.

Old Method Teaches Calves How to Drink

One of the jobs requiring an oversupply of patience on the dairy farm is that of teaching young calves to drink from the pail.

In teaching the calf to drink, a tried and true method is to straddle the calf's neck, insert two fingers in his mouth and lower the head into the milk pail after he is sucking on the fingers. The fingers may be gently removed after the calf starts taking milk. Repeat the process as many times as is necessary for the calf to continue drinking from the pail. It may require many or a few such treatments before the calf will drink freely from a pail.

If nipple pails are used great care must be exercised to see that they are thoroughly cleaned and sterilized.

Purebred Boars

A few extra dollars invested in a good, purebred boar of the right type will prove a profitable investment, according to H. D. Eljah of the University of Missouri college of agriculture.

The type of boar selected should depend somewhat on the type of sows owned. If the sows are fall and leggy, the boar should be low-set, short-legged, and thick. However, the intermediate type of hog will usually make more money.

Star Dust

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

ONE of the most interesting pieces of casting that's taken place in Hollywood is the selection of Joan Crawford and Greer Garson to combine their talents for the first time in "When Ladies Meet," a screen version of the stage hit of some years ago.

It's the story of a wife and the "other woman"; they meet without knowing that they're rivals. They become warm friends—and the fun begins when their identities are revealed. The stars are fresh from hits—Miss Crawford from "A Woman's Face," and Miss Garson from "Blossoms in the Dust." Robert Taylor will be the fought-over male.

Edgar Kennedy, the "slow-burn" star of RKO Radio's shorts, is preparing to leave on his annual personal appearance tour. He will be accompanied by his wife, his son and Chester Conklin, and he will play Midwest theaters and fairs.

Katharine Hepburn, whose performance in "Philadelphia Story" put her back where she wanted to be at the box office, will start work soon on another picture. At present it's called "The Woman of the Year"; she'll play a newspaper columnist who's married to a sports writer. Metro feels that it's a good title for a Hepburn picture because of the comeback which she staged in "Philadelphia Story."

Miriam Hopkins withdrew from "Bad Lands" recently, giving two reasons, one ordinary, one unusual. The ordinary one—she felt that the part did not suit her; probably it didn't. The title doesn't sound like a Miriam Hopkins vehicle. The unusual one—she felt that Robert Stack, the leading man, was too young to play opposite her. Few female stars would admit that!

Jack Holt's offspring are doing all right for themselves in films—as is Papa. Tim is scheduled for six "outdoor dramas"—(Just Westerns to us.) for RKO for 1941-42, and his sister Jenny, who's 20, has been engaged to play the feminine lead in "Stick to Your Guns," a Hopalong Cassidy picture in which that veteran of Westerns, William Boyd, plays the lead.

Every so often somebody has the bright idea of trying to persuade Maude Adams to come out of retirement and make a picture. Nothing ever comes of it. The latest to try it is Frank Capra, who wants her to star in a film called "Meet Jane Doe, Mother of John Doe." If she could be tempted to make a picture the opportunity of working with Capra should do it.

Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen, who impersonated marines in the movie version of "What Price Glory" years ago, have become "Sergeant Quirt" and "Captain Flagg" again; this time on the air. They're doing a radio program designed to promote recruiting by showing modern life in the corps; it's a weekly feature, and should be welcomed by those who remember "What Price Glory."

Jack Smart, of CBS's "Meet Mr. Meek," met a judge last week, not once but twice. Picked up for speeding, he didn't have the money for the fine, so the judge let him go home for it. He hurried so fast, wanting to pay the first fine and get to his radio rehearsal on time, that he got another ticket for speeding. But the judge let him out of the second one.

Operations for Knee Injuries Now Quite Safe

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

ONE of the injuries football, basketball, baseball players and other athletes sustain is a loose cartilage in the knee. This cartilage serves as a cushion between the two bones forming the knee joint and as the knee joint supports the whole weight of the body, anything that disturbs that cushion means not only a painful knee but a knee that will not support the weight of the body.

My own treatment in "fresh" injuries was to strap the knee up with adhesive tape, replacing the tape every few days for two or three weeks. In more severe cases, the knee was placed in a plaster cast for three to five weeks.

The question naturally asked is why did these loose cartilage-cases undergo operation? To be quite frank, it was not until recent years that the physician or surgeon has felt free to recommend operation because so many operations resulted in a "stiff" knee; in fact, very little motion remained after operation.

These knee injuries are just as common today as ever, but if adhesive or plaster cast treatment fails to give results, most physicians feel free to recommend operation owing to the satisfactory results which are now obtained. These satisfactory results have been obtained because the patient now receives a thorough examination and any infection—teeth, tonsils, sinuses—is removed before operation.

In recording his results in operation of 50 of these cases, Dr. Harold R. Bohlman, Johns Hopkins university, in the Journal of the American Medical Association, outlines his method of preparation, recommends the use of a local instead of a general anesthetic, the complete removal of blood from the joint, and injection of air, with gentle movement of the joint within a few days after operation.

The hospital stay is from three to seven days instead of the two or three weeks of former years.

Hernia Treatment For Elderly Folks

ALL physicians have patients consult them regarding a hernia or rupture. In nearly all cases, the patient being well and strong, operation has usually been advised. Operation means getting rid of a truss.

Fortunately, with the discovery of injecting hernias, this method makes operation unnecessary in about one-third of all cases.

Some older patients with hernia who have perhaps worn a truss for 30 or 40 years and have never liked the idea of operation may be wondering whether the injection method is suitable in old cases or in old individuals.

Dr. L. Manoil, New York, in Archives of Surgery, Chicago, presents some figures regarding the injection method. During the period between February, 1936, and February, 1939, 158 hernias in 123 patients (some with hernia on both sides) were treated by the injection method in Dr. Manoil's clinic. Ninety-two per cent of these cases were between 41 and 90 years of age. The hernia returned in 28 patients or about 16 per cent of this group and five patients were operated on after injection, making total failures about 20 per cent. In the 15 patients between 11 and 40 years of age, no hernias returned. There were no infections and no deaths.

From the above figures showing that four of every five older patients were cured by the injection method, Dr. Manoil believes the injection method should be used in older patients who are considered poor surgical risks, and because of their state of nutrition, or other condition present. It should also be used in younger patients who refuse operation but are willing to undergo the injection method even though it takes weeks and months to bring about a cure.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—Acid fruits cause me to break out with hives. Should I avoid these foods, thereby depriving myself of necessary vitamins?
A.—You are sensitive or allergic to certain foods. If you want to be free of hives, you'll have to avoid the foods you "know" cause them. Treatment is to start with a very small amount of the food or foods causing the hives, gradually increasing the amount until symptoms take them without disturbance.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE CHURCH REGARDING BEVERAGE ALCOHOL

LESSON TEXT—I Corinthians 6:9-13; Titus 2:1-3.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are the salt of the earth.—Matthew 5:13.

The church has a grave responsibility regarding alcoholic beverages, but in recent years it has largely failed to meet it with intelligence and enthusiasm. Let us never forget that the first business of the Christian and of the church is to preach the gospel, winning men to Christ. It is not our calling to attempt by social or economic methods to right the wrongs of this world. Nor is ours a "social gospel" with the emphasis on "social." But we have forgotten that it is a gospel with serious social implications and responsibilities.

The man, and the church, who follows Christ should be vitally concerned about every influence in American life which is destructive to character, and right at the top of that list stands alcohol. To meet this gigantic (and growing) problem effectively the church must be I. Separated—From (I Cor. 5:9, 10).

A church living in careless worldliness has no testimony against the sin round about it. In fact, its influence is definitely on the wrong side. The Christian is to be in the world, but not of it. He must live with the sinners, but he must never by word or deed, or even by his presence in the wrong place, seem to condone their sin nor fellowship with them in it.

Here we have one of the horrible weaknesses of our day. Men and women who profess to follow Christ (whether they really do, only He can judge) indulge in a social glass of wine, or sip a cocktail "for the sake of courtesy," or attend gatherings which are obviously non-Christian or anti-Christian. If there is to be effective dealing with any problem—with the liquor problem—we must have separated Christian living.

II. Cleansed of Wicked Persons (I Cor. 5:11-13).

Even a "man that is called a brother" (v. 11) may not be one at all, but may be a "wicked person" (v. 13). We are not able to judge any man's spiritual experience. His relationship to God is a matter between him and God, but if, in his life, he shows himself persistently to be on the side of wickedness, it is the duty of the church to have him "put away from among" them" (v. 12).

We can only judge a man by his actions, but we are required to do that for the sake of the purity of the church and the effectiveness of its teaching. This is not to be done in self-righteousness, but in humility and with the constant effort to restore such a one (Gal. 6:1). But it should be done. We are woefully weak in the matter of church discipline, and it shows in the inability of the church to do valiant service for God and country.

III. Intelligent in Doctrine (Titus 2:1-3; esp. 1, 7, 8).

To be informed is to be wise, able to plan properly, balanced in judgment and action, useful and effective. Fundamentally every problem of life finds its solution in a proper knowledge of the doctrines of the Christian faith. It is of great importance that we have information about the liquor traffic, about the dreadful results of the use of alcohol, etc. Helpful material on such subjects is available, and the sources are known to ministers and Christian workers. However, we must hold and use this information in relation to Christian truth if it is to be fully useful. A temperance worker without Christ in his own life and in his labors against liquor is weak, lacking the real solution and the dynamics to proclaim it effectively.

IV. Consistent in Life (Titus 2:1-3, esp. 2, 5, 7).

It is what we are that speaks so loudly that folk do not pay any attention to what we say. This passage clearly states the fact that both young and old, both men and women—yes, even the preacher (v. 7)—are to present before the world the undeniable teaching of a consistent Christian life.

Read the exhortations of these verses again with great care and apply them first to your own life, and then to your own church. What great Christian graces we have here! Note that again and again there is the admonition to temperance. No one of intoxicants can be sober, temperate, discreet, chaste, sound in faith, and so on.

The writer of these notes is convinced that the only consistent position for the Christian (individually or in the church) to take regarding alcoholic beverages is that of total abstinence for himself and the legal elimination of temptation from others.

Invented Torpedo Plane

The torpedo plane, figuring so prominently in this war and highlighted by the crippling and sinking of the German battleship Bismarck, is an American invention. Patent for the first torpedo plane in history was obtained 29 years ago (in 1912) by Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, U. S. N., retired, hero of the Battle of Manila.

Now 85, Admiral Fiske looks at the important role being played by the weapon he invented, developed to meet modern needs, as vindication of his dream.

Ralph Myers, member of a prominent Boston family, always wanted to be a farmer, instead of following his father's footsteps and becoming a banker. "Belle," the lady duck owned by Miss Myers, has been in the constant company of boys since it was born eight years ago. It has been known to quack only three or four times. ● A rustler is killed by someone unknown—shot in the

But before the troops arrived, events piled upon each

However, he lived through all the shooting to marry Ellen

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

Landing of U. S. Forces in Iceland Is New Move in Hemisphere Defense; Germany's Campaign Against Russia Gives British Chance for Air Attacks

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

During the Iraq rebellion and war, Americans stationed at the Iraqi capital city of Baghdad prepared to defend themselves. As Old Glory is raised in the background men of the American legation staff start training drill with weapons furnished by British military mission commander. But the British won this war before the Americans were called upon to defend themselves.

ICELAND: Occupied by U. S.

American naval forces have occupied Iceland to supplement and eventually to replace British forces there. This information was given congress by President Roosevelt, who explained that the move was taken "to forestall any pincers movement undertaken by Germany against the Western hemisphere."

ON RUN: Or Defending?

Crucial questions of the Russo-German war were these: Did the Nazis actually have the Russians in a wild-disorganized retreat? Were the Russians, instead, falling back to the Stalin line in good order considering the magnitude of their army? Was the finish to be another defeat for the defenders as soon as the large cities were taken, as had happened in Norway, Belgium, Holland, France?

Of were the Russians willing, like the Chinese, to move back across vast territory and let space and winter hardships swallow up the Nazi effort? None of these questions could be answered accurately through the muddle of rival claims, yet there were hints here and there that tended to show trends in attack and defense that might furnish a partial answer.

The onslaught was terrific and news pictures released by the Germans showed the advance across battlefields filled with backgrounds of smoke, flame and destruction. The speed could be counted at about 350 miles in two weeks—the very distance not only pointing to the terrific power of the attack, but also to the difficulty of maintaining a service of supply and "mopping up" over so many thousands of square miles. So much tended to show the Nazis swift and easy victors. Yet there were other indications, entirely aside from the official and biased communiques which bore on the eventual result and the theory of the Red defense.

There were reports from Nazi-friendly Vichy and Rome. The former reported half the troops of occupation withdrawn to the eastern front; the latter warned against expecting a swift and easy victory.

The reports from Scandinavian sources of the evacuation of civilians from Leningrad and Moscow and Kiev; the speech of Stalin in which he urged the "scorched earth" defense; the plans of Hitler to put Louis Ferdinand on the Russian throne—all indicated that there might be a chance that the Russians were willing to drop back as slowly as might be, cede what cities and territory must be given up, and let the Russian wastes and the impending Russian fall and winter eat up the strength of the attacker.

Few believed that the "Stalin line" would be anything but a stormy way-station for the German advance. But many believed that the "Chinese plan" would not only stem the Hitlerian attack—but eventually defeat it.

ARMY: Dive Bombing

The army, which has relied on jetty bombers with an efficient bomb-sight, and low-flying attack planes to machine-gun infantry positions, finally decided it was unwise to let the navy do all the dive-bombing and was reported about to get some dive-bombers of its own and start practicing the art.

The navy developed dive-bombing to hit fast-moving ships which were all-weather targets for high flying bombers.

BRITAIN: Her Chance

The British were apparently keenly aware that the preoccupation of the Nazis with the Reds on the East furnished them with their great chance of the war.

Hardly had the attack against Russia been on for a week than the R.A.F. leaders announced mastery of the daytime air over the occupied regions and western Germany. Hardly did a day pass without large-scale daytime bombing raids, and the British plane losses did not appear great if, as the claim was made, they were using several squadrons of upward of 100 bombers each every day.

There was a silence from German sources about the accomplishments of the raids, but the British, judging from their own losses from German air attacks, figured that their chosen objectives must soon be reduced to hopeless ruins.

They felt that the Coventries on Europe's soil must be numerous. Heavy night attacks followed those by day, with only occasional and very light German reprisals—and all of these under cover of darkness.

On the sea, also, the British seemed to be making some headway against the U-boat menace, and the probability was felt that many submarines must have been diverted to the Baltic, to serve against Russian vessels.

MARSHALL: And Draftees

Two vital questions on the home front were brought to the fore by General Marshall, chief of staff of the U. S. army:

The keeping of selective service men past their 12-month training period.

The question of sending them beyond the United States and her possessions as "task troops."

The chief of staff made his case plain. The army, he said, was composed of three elements—regulars, national guardsmen, and draftees. These, instead of having been kept separate, were all melted into one military whole, and to remove a part of these, the draftees, at the end of 12 months, would be to create utter confusion in the whole organization, he said.

He asked that the part of the selective service law which limited the time and place of the soldier's service be taken away.

Otherwise, he pointed out, the power of the commander-in-chief would become a meaningless thing, and detachments needed at certain points would be forced to lose their manpower.

But the chief of staffs request, couched in such a way that it seemed an official request of congress by the war department, found considerable opposition. Senator McNary of Oregon, Republican leader, stating that he was not only in opposition to the removal of the geographical restrictions in the draft act, but also was against the removal of the 12-month restriction as well. It was evident that Marshall's hope for an army of 2,500,000-trained men, able to move wherever the congress and the commander-in-chief deemed expedient, was not going to be won without overcoming serious opposition.

MISCELLANY:

Ottawa: There was evidence of a new political outcry in Canada for some form of draft or selective service to take the place of voluntary enlistment, still in force in the Dominion.

Washington: The White House confirmed the fact that Colonel Donovan, after two unofficial tours of inspection of Europe's war centers, would be given a post of importance in the defense set-up.

Russian Throne?

SYRIA: And Ethiopia

Britain also seemed on the threshold of success in Syria and Ethiopia, and resolved to do something about North Africa, because General Sir Archibald Wavell was relieved, a new commander, General Auchinleck sent out from England, and the whole African and Middle Eastern campaign seemed on the upgrade.

The final crumb of Italian resistance in Ethiopia melted away before the rains and the relentless British follow-up of victory after victory, and another menace to Britain's Red sea and Suez position was removed.

In Africa the situation was no worse than it had been, still apparently a stalemate on the Egyptian border, with the Tobruk defenders still holding out. There were some indications that the British forces, strengthened by U. S. tanks and lend-lease airplanes, were beginning to lay the groundwork of a new advance against Cyrenaica—not only to relieve the Tobruk garrison, but to attempt to win a major victory against the Italo-Nazi forces.

As to Syria, there were reports of an imminent Franco-British peace there, following in the wake of a continuous series of English victories and the steady fall-back of the Vichy defenders around the vital Beirut sector.

All in all, the British seemed to be making what use they could of the Russo-German battle on all their various fronts, and with varying success.

There was a strong demand in London for an invasion attempt on the continent, but the apparent verdict of the powers that seemed to be "thumbs down."

Britain was unwilling to risk further shipments of men and armaments to the continent until a far more drastic preparatory air bombardment had been carried out.

LOST: U.S. Nurses

Added to the Zamzam and the Robin Moor incidents was the torpedoing of the Dutch steamer Maasden, the survivors including a number of U. S. marines, bound for London to do guard duty at the American Embassy, and American nurses, 15 of whom were saved, but two feared lost at sea.

The young women were a group of Red Cross nurses who volunteered to cross the dangerous Atlantic to "man" a Red Cross hospital in London.

The vessel was torpedoed on a Sunday, and nearly a week later a rescue vessel brought all but two of the nurses safely to London.

The Dutch freighter was part of a large convoy bound for Britain, and what the fate of the rest of the convoy was could not be learned, but one of the nurses said:

"The captain of the ship that rescued us looked scared to death when he saw his vessel boarded by a bunch of women."

AMERICA: A Round Trip

The luxury liner America was designated by the state department to make a round trip on the Atlantic from New York to Lisbon and return, carrying deported diplomats both ways.

At Lisbon will be gathered the American consular officials from Italy and Germany, and they will be brought back to New York.

The German and Italian consuls, under a July 15 deadline to quit the country, were to be taken to Lisbon aboard the America with members of their families.

There are 86 of the Americans, and with their families will swell the America's passenger list to a somewhat respectable amount.

Prior to the eastward sailing there were at least two suicides among members of the German consular staff. One was ascribed to ill health, the other to despair at leaving this country after 20 years' residence.

Getting Ready to Take on 'All Comers'

Royalty in Exile—in England and Egypt

Hot? Look at This and Cool Off

Released

F. G. Wedehouse, noted British author, is free again. He was captured by the Germans in the fall of France, and has been released from the Silesian internment camp and granted full freedom within Germany. He is shown here (left) on visit to Berlin.

'Iron' Man

Ald. L. K. Couplin of St. Louis is finding real work pleasant. Because he had grown lanky, Couplin went back to iron working, his trade before entering politics, and is making $76 a week. He still holds his aldermanic job at $1,000 per year.

Little old town, good afternoon!

—R U Listenin'?

This is the best season of the 24 years we've been in Carrizozo, sleek, contented cattle; sheep are fat and sassy; the range is the best we've ever seen by far. Now is the time for a bold refrain!

The late Eugene Manlove Rhodes is quoted as saying — "I wish I could make my English behave."

— Same here, declares Your Humble Servant.

"About a year ago, it was our duty to aid Finland against Russia," remarked a local man. "Now, conditions are entirely reversed," the Hombre continued. "Honest Finland is fighting with the Nazis against the Soviets. And anyone who battles with Germany we declare our enemy."

Note—Anything to beat Hitler!

Field Marshal Herman Goering, second only to Senor Hitler, is reported to have "fallen into disgrace" and was sent to a concentration camp.

— What's the matter with doing likewise to Hitler? It would give him a taste of his medicine.—St, Caballerol

Mr. H. E. Alden, piano tuner of El Paso, brought with him his usual amount of rain. It rains every time he comes here—believe it or else.

"The Nazis warring upon the Russians is like two rattlesnakes fighting one another," quoting Jeff Herron of Terrell, Texas.

Moscow broadcasting — "Long live Democracy! And down with Communism in the United States!"

—One of my pupils had a march in four-four time for her lesson, says Clyde O. Brewster. She played sixteen measures of this march in three-four time before I stopped her, giving her a chance to discover the mistake herself. I asked her, "Can you tell the difference between a march and a waltz?" She thought for a while and replied—"Well, in a waltz, you slide your feet around, but in a march you pick them up and put them down again."

A Kansas City man suggests sendin' Herr Hitler a herd of skunks but we is agin the idea. Hitler ought to feel right at home in each company. —Cuckoo Comments.
