A Heaven On Earth

Captain Luis Conterno, a Peruvian flyer, in an attempt to cross the Andes mountains, was forced down in a beautiful valley so peaceful and fertile, as to cause him to think himself suddenly transformed into another world. The natives of that place came out to meet him and at first he thought they would kill him, as many who have landed in the Andes mountains have fallen victims to the hatred of the natives, but not so with these. They greeted him cordially and gave him the best they had during his stay.

He soon discovered that these people were Spaniards of the highest type—450 in a party they had started out in 1904 to cross the Andes into Brazil, losing their way. They settled in that beautiful valley and for the past 37 years they had heard nothing of the outside world. Since that time, the world war had been fought, communism had been established in Russia, fascism in Italy and nazism in Germany. All things that have transpired during those years were news to them. They paid no taxes, owed no debts, leading clean and healthy lives. The airplane, radio and modern warfare in all its gruesomeness was also news to the people who lived in luxury, surrounded by everything the heart could wish.

"On being asked if they would like to return to civilization, they shook their heads and said, 'we have everything we desire, live at peace with one another and wish to live and die in this, our paradise, where petty bickerings, disturbances nor anything but absolute harmony prevails.' The strange thing and one hard to believe, was that they laid claim to the fact that they never grow old. It is said that Captain Conterno flew away from that paradise with the intention of going back, but all attempts to locate it has thus far, failed. The Los Angeles Examiner gives a more extended article concerning the "Heaven on Earth."

REX LEWIS BITTEN BY RATTLESNAKE Early yesterday morning, Rex Lewis, while engaged in his work on his ranch at the head of the Malpais, his car ran over a huge rattlesnake, one wheel pinning the reptile down in the mud. Rex jumped out to kill him, but the snake wriggled from under the wheel and struck Rex in the palm of the hand. Rushing back to his tool box, Rex got a wrench and killed the rattler. Mrs. Lewis and daughter Marys drove him to the hospital, where Dr. Turner administered the proper treatment. This morning Dr. Turner pronounced him as getting along nicely. Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Griffin and mother Mrs. A. L. Griffin of Ft. Stanton and their friends Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Lentz and family of Victoria, Tex., were in Carrizozo Thursday, viewing places of interest, including the ancient lava beds. Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Harkey and children of Ancho were the guests of the John W. Harkey family the first of the week. E. A. Bellinger was operated on at Rochester, Minn., this week and is doing nicely.

Sheriff's Notice With this article, the public is informed that on August 16-17, the Sheriff's Posse will give a Big Rodeo on the old grounds adjacent to the baseball park. Big crowds are already assured. The affair will be one which will bring prominent riders from over the state and also from the states of Arizona, Colorado and Texas. The coming event will be well advertised and as the Sheriff's Posse will manage everything and assume all responsibilities, the business firms will not be asked to donate one cent to the undertaking. As the dates fall on Saturday and Sunday, our business houses will be requested to close during the two hours in which the program will be in operation. This will not work a hardship on the business men, as during that period, our people will be at the doings and consequently, there will be no business during that time. At the grounds, the business men of Carrizozo will be free to sell anything without any charge, but no concessions will be granted to outside parties. This will be purely a good-will affair and the only aim will be to show everybody a good time with no intention of making money. All we ask is that the people give us their moral support. Admission to the grounds and other information will be set forth in the advertising the Posse will put out. Members of the posse will pay the price of admission the same as other people, so it will be seen that the event will be one in which unselfishness will be the leading feature.

Jeff Price Passes Away Wednesday afternoon about 2 o'clock, Jeff Price, 88, old prospector and miner of the Jicarilla mountain country, passed away after a lingering illness. Mr. Price had been a resident in the Jicarillas for many years, where he owned and developed several placer claims. Mr. Price had many friends over Lincoln County who will miss his warm handshake and hearty salute. The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon and interment made in the Ancho cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bland of Atascadero, California, were here and after spending the major portion of the week with the Claud Brannum family, they left this morning for home. Mrs. Bland is the former Miss Jessie Rustin, sister to Mrs. Brannum. They found conditions much different from the earlier days when we had to plow through sandstorms, use flashlights to go about the unpaved streets and had to depend on barrels for our water. Mrs. E. T. Ingram came up from Tucumcari last Sunday, spent the day at the home of her mother, Mrs. Ladema Joyce and returned accompanied by her son Joe Boy and Miss Jeanette Mae Shaver, who is visiting there for the week. Buy National Defense Bonds!

Attention is called to her ad elsewhere in this paper setting forth the different methods of service she will be able to give to the feminine public. Jerry has been an operator for over 6 years, two years of which time she owned and operated her own shop. She is a reliable operator and extends her invitation to the ladies to come in and try out her work. STAGE SCREEN RADIO

IT LOOKS AS if heroes of the sports world would come in to their own on the motion picture screen with a vengeance in the near future. Columbia's already begun production on "Harmon of Michigan," with Tom Harmon himself appearing in the title role. Republic has signed Billy Conn, of the squared circle, to star in one picture. It will be "Kid Tinsel," based on the novel of that name by Octavius Roy Cohen.

Tom Harmon

And David Selznick and Metro want to bring us a picture based on the life of the great Lou Gehrig of the baseball diamond. That one would be a little tougher assignment, of course—imagine finding someone who'd be acceptable as Lou!

While we're on the subject of hero portrayals, Gary Cooper does a remarkably good job in "Sergeant York." The picture is one of those that you'll have to see, unless you want to sit by and suffer forever after while your friends tell you how good it was.

Most of the sequences of "Glamour Boy" show backstage scenes on the Paramount lot, so if you want to see what the inside of a motion picture studio really looks like, check this Jackie Cooper-Susanna Foster picture as one that you want to be sure to see. For one sequence, in a producer's office, Walter Abel and Jackie Cooper are doing a scene. Framed on the office wall are portraits of Madeleine Carroll, Dorothy Lamour, Claudette Colbert, Mary Martin and Paulette Goddard.

Jackie Cooper

"You seem to be nervous, Jackie," Abel commented. "What's the matter?"

"Who wouldn't be nervous doing a scene with all those big stars watching?" Jackie demanded.

Deanna Durbin certainly is growing up; she's inherited a story that was originally bought for Margaret Sullivan. It's called "They Live Alone," and the Durbin role is that of a girl reporter who lives in New York. At present she's making "Almost an Angel," with Charles Laughton. The new picture postpones three others that were scheduled for her, so Universal must think it's good.

"Navy Blue and Gold" was characterized by the nation's critics as one of the finest service films ever made. Naval officers have said that it is the most authentic story of Annapolis ever presented on the screen. So Metro is reissuing it, and we'll all have another chance to see James Stewart as he looked when he was a movie actor instead of a soldier.

Herbert Marshall has joined the all-star cast of the new Joan Crawford picture, "When Ladies Meet," which already included Greer Garson and Robert Taylor. Even before he joined it, Metro was announcing this as one of the most formidable star combinations of many months.

Richard Donaghy was Anne Shirley's West Pointer husband in "West Point Widow"; then he was Susan Hayward's brother-in-law in "Adam Had Four Sons." Paramount thinks so much of him that he's slated now to be Dorothy Lamour's leading man in "Her Jungle Mate." He's a white youth reared in the African jungle, according to the movie story (in reality he's just a home boy from Los Angeles), and is brought to America by a circus promoter as a rival to Miss Lamour, who's also been discovered in the wilds.

The members of 13 national fraternities voted Ann Sheridan their sweetheart, but she's a lot more excited over the fact that she has been given the most important role in her career. It's in "Whistling in the Dark," Red Skelton, the comedian, has his first starring role in this one.

ODDS AND ENDS—Bob Burns will star in "The Wizard of Atlanta"—he'll be a rural cop, fully bursting with humor. Columbia has acquired the most expensive British picture ever made—"Lucky Number," Lawrence Olivier and Raymond Massey are in the cast. For some reason Columbia seems to be impressed by the fact that the Edgar Allan Poe novel referred to in the advertisement "The Country Boy" says that "Simplicity" will give Anne Baxter and Gene Lockhart a second chance at a happy life. Love means to bring in the English "Atlantic Ferry."

Strenuous American

WHEN a German bomb fell on the Church of St. Mary Woolnoth in London recently, its explosion had repercussions in America. For it not only destroyed the church, but it also blasted into oblivion the dust of a "strenuous American" whose career won him the right to that characterization two centuries before Theodore Roosevelt made the use of the term popular. William Phlips was his name—or, more accurately, Sir William Phlips and he was born on February 2, 1651, in Femmaquid, now the city of Bristol, Maine, but at that time a town in the British colony of Massachusetts Bay.

He was the son of a gunsmith who is described as a man "in humble circumstances." But there was nothing humble about the size of his family. There were 26 children and William was his twenty-first son! At the age of 18 William bound himself to a ship-carpenter and at the end of his term of service went to Boston where he started out on his amazing career.

Ten years after he left his birthplace he was the master of his own ship. In 1684 he set out to recover the lost "Hispaniola Treasure" which lay beneath the clear waters of the Bahama in a wrecked Spanish galleon. His first search was a failure but three years later, under the patronage of the duke of Albemarle he recovered bullion, coin and plate worth more than a million and a half dollars.

So generous was William Phlips and so liberal was he to his sailors that his own share amounted to only $60,000, as compared to the duke of Albemarle's $250,000. King James II, who by law was entitled to one-tenth of all treasure discovered by his subjects, received nearly $150,000 and he was so grateful to the bold young colonial that he made Phlips a knight and gave him a commission as high sheriff of New England.

In 1690 Sir William commanded an expedition against the French at Port Royal in Acadia which captured that place and later in the year he was placed at the head of an expedition of 34 vessels, manned by 1,500 sailors and carrying 1,300 New England militia which attempted to take Quebec. After a siege of several days, the colonials were forced to withdraw and, when nine of his ships were later wrecked, Phlips greatly depressed by his failure, returned to Boston. However, he did not suffer any less in prestige, for when he went to England to urge another expedition against Canada, the king appointed him captain-general and governor-in-chief of the Massachusetts Bay colony.

Phlips arrived in Boston in May, 1692, and immediately asserted his authority by putting an end to the witchcraft nonsense by organizing a special court to pass upon all such cases. As a result the jails were soon emptied of persons accused of witchcraft, but it won Phlips the enmity of powerful political and ecclesiastical forces in the colony. They began making claims of dishonesty and cruelty against him and in 1694 he was summoned to England to answer to these charges.

Assured by crown officials that he was still in royal favor, he was preparing to return to New England to resume his duties as governor when he died suddenly of a malignant fever on February 18, 1695. He was buried beneath the floor of the Church of St. Mary Woolnoth and there his bones lay for 245 years—all but forgotten until the explosion of a German bomb reminded his countrymen once more of this early-day "strenuous American."

In his day Phlips was noted for his height—six feet, three inches—his mighty fists and his sense of humor. While he was short on "book learning," he was long on signs and superstitions. He believed that seven was his lucky number and, since he was the twenty-first, or the thirteenth, son, he believed that the three seven's gave him a triple advantage over other men. He must have felt assured of that when, after one failure, he returned to seek of the "Hispaniola Treasure."

PAUL PREACHES FAITH IN CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—Romans 3:21-31; 5:1, 2. GOLDEN TEXT—As it is written, The just shall live by faith.—Romans 1:17.

Justification by faith is a doctrine which lies at the very heart of the gospel. It provides the answer to man's age-old question, "What must I do to be saved?" (Acts 16:30).

"This was a question with which Paul had himself grappled, and for years he had sought salvation in the traditional Jewish way. Then one day he met Christ and he underwent a spiritual transformation through faith in Him, apart from the works of the law. Because of that experience, and because of the divine revelations made to him, he was able to show others how to be saved and how to live a life of victory. Among the writers of the New Testament it is Paul who most clearly sets forth the doctrine of justification by faith, a doctrine which has brought comfort of soul to multitudes, and the consciousness of sins forgiven." (Olmstead).

I. How Can God Be Just and Justify Sinners? (Rom. 3:21-31).

The portion of Romans just preceding our lesson is devoted to a devastating treatment of man's sinfulness, bringing him face to face with the question, "What can I do about it?" The answer has a hopeless ring to it.

1. Man has no righteousness of his own, and cannot by any of his own works save himself. "He has tried many ways, in every age, but no human being, or groups of men or women, have ever devised any scheme, have ever conceived of any ritual, have ever established any religion by their own efforts, through which peace with God has been found and a sinner has been enabled to stand before a holy God without condemnation. Man being helpless, God now intervenes" (Wilbur M. Smith).

2. Christ paid the penalty for man's sin by His own blood. How clearly verse 26 declares the sacrificial death of Christ to provide a covering of blood—the real meaning of "propitiation" which will enable a just God to forgive the sinner that believes in Christ (v. 22). Why not receive it in all its grace and power, not trying to explain it away or to evade its requirements? Why attempt to provide some other means of salvation when we know that "without the shedding of blood is no remission" of sin (Heb. 9:22)?

3. Man receives salvation by grace through faith, apart from works. Man can only be "justified freely by his grace" (v. 24). It is for "them that believe" (v. 23), it is "through faith" (vv. 25, 26) and, note with care, "man is justified by faith apart from the works of the law" (v. 28). Thus God establishes the law (v. 31) and yet becomes the righteous justifier of a repentant believing sinner.

II. What Happens When a Man Is Justified? (Rom. 5:1, 2).

These verses sound like the uplifting music of a mighty organ, with the celestial choirs joining in to sing, "Therefore being justified by faith, we have"—What? Oh many precious possessions, three of which are here mentioned.

1. "Peace With God." "Through our Lord Jesus Christ" the barrier of sin with all its malicious enmity has been broken down and the believer is at peace with God. What could be more wonderful than this to be really "in tune with the infinite"? That is something, by the way, which can only be true of the believer, one who has both peace with God and the peace of God flooding his soul. Every sinner who covets that experience may have it—now—by faith in Christ.

2. Standing in Grace. "To stand in grace is to occupy the position wherein love is able to carry out its desires. To stand in grace is to come into such relationship with the Lord that He may do that thing which is in His heart, the thing which His love prompts. To stand in favor is to be unafraid. It is to be able to pass into the presence of One of whom we are unafraid, and know that there will be welcome. It is to know that to come into the presence of this One is to receive, not necessarily a gift, but love, and of Himself, in a communion which is unbroken and perfect" (G. Campbell Morgan).

3. Rejoicing in Hope. The world is sorrowful for it has lost hope, but the believer rejoices "in hope of the glory of God" (v. 2). The Christian has the forward look. His future is as bright as the promise of God. He knows that he will one day see the glory of God revealed in all His holiness, power, love and grace. Even now the believer has that hope in his heart, and lives a rejoicing life (for should he not)? It's a great thing to be saved!

FARM TOPICS

WHEAT STORAGE BINS IMPORTANT

Poor Flooring, Foundation May Spoil Grain.

By E. W. LEHMANN (Head of Department of Agricultural Engineers, University of Illinois.)

With an almost bumper crop of wheat in prospect, many farmers are planning for extra wheat storage on their farms as a result of a shortage of warehouse storage space.

The first specification for a good bin is foundation footings large enough to prevent settling—on most soils one square foot of surface bearing on the ground for every 60 bushels of wheat. Footings need to be wider on soils that are not firm. Depth of foundation should be 12 inches to as much as 36 inches to protect against leaning and undermining by water, rodents and livestock. Fifteen to 18 inches above the ground is a good height for foundations. Small and medium-sized bins are often put on semi-permanent foundations such as of stone or concrete blocks.

Floors and joists should be designed according to tables of weight-carrying capacity (such as found in the U. S. department of agriculture bulletin, Wheat Storage in the Ever-normal Granary) and the materials should be free of bad effects and termite damage. Tight floors are necessary to keep in gases during fumigation.

Concrete floors in bins for long-time storage need to be at least eight inches above the ground with hollow tile or coarse gravel underneath. It is a good plan to cover concrete floors with moisture-proof kraft paper or loose boards or to paint them with two coats of asphalt-aluminum paint.

Bin walls can be made of various materials such as boards, plywood, metal or masonry, but must be strong enough to resist bursting pressure. Sometimes added strength is provided by wire or rod cross-ties. Walls must be tight to keep out moisture and to make fumigation feasible.

Simple Repairs Increase Farm Tractor Efficiency

How to keep tractor power up and fuel costs down gives many a farmer a headache.

To try to help farmers relieve some of these "headaches," H. F. Baleman and G. M. Petersen, agricultural engineers of the University of Illinois college of agriculture, recently completed some tests on farmers' tractors.

They found that simply resetting the carburetor needle valve on some of the tractors gave a fuel saving of as much as 10 gallons for each 10-hour day. Improper adjustment of the carburetor was the most common cause found for high fuel consumption.

Adjusting the governor gave as much as a 20 per cent increase in the maximum power of some tractors operating under governor control, and more than doubled the power available at rated motor speed under governor control.

Grinding the valves resulted in a third power, yet the fuel consumption was decreased nearly 10 per cent at the same power output in the case of a tractor with the valves in poor repair when brought to the laboratory.

Milk, Natural Greens Bolster Egg Yield

If hot summer weather has caused your birds' appetites to wane, revive them with green feed and milk. L. M. Black, extension poultryman at the New Jersey college of agriculture, Rutgers university, advises flock owners.

"Toward the end of the production year, layers often begin to lose interest in the standard rations," Black says. "Hot weather also tends to reduce feed consumption and lowered egg yields often result. To counteract these effects, wise poultrymen feed supplementary materials to whet their birds' appetites, bolster depleted stores of vitamins and provide protein to stimulate egg production.

"Natural green material is generally plentiful during summer and proves a welcome addition to the laying ration. Fresh lawn clippings, Swiss chard, cabbage, lettuce and many other garden vegetables—even many varieties of weeds—are excellent.

Combined Straw

Straw left on the field by the combine and plowed under late in the summer for a fall-seeded crop may have detrimental effects, says W. A. Albrecht of the University of Missouri college of agriculture. Straw going back into the soil directly will frequently be inferior to the next crop instead of beneficial. The cause of dangerous effects from straw turned under will increase as the number of combines employed on farms becomes greater.

Spotlight

By GRANTLAND RICE

THOSE looking for further late summer and early autumn excitement should find what they want in the battle for the batting championship of the American league between its two best hitters—Ted Williams of the Red Sox and Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees. Heath, Culberson or possibly some other son of swat may upset this combination—but we doubt it.

Williams and DiMag are the two A. L. standouts and they still have the better part of three months left in which to prove their places in polite baseball society.

DiMaggio's brilliant consecutive hitting streak has given the San Francisco entry most of the publicity lately, but the gangling kid from San Diego and Boston is still far out in front when it comes to the main figures.

Anyone who can reach the half-way mark over .400, as Williams did, knows how to handle ash furniture. And even the excellent DiMag will have to keep on swinging his mace effectively to catch or pass the tall, relaxed entry from the Red Sox reservation.

Looking Back

How do the two compare at this spot along the pennant road? Here is DiMaggio's five-year Yankee record through 1940: 1936—.323; 1937—.348; 1938—.324; 1939—.361; 1940—.352; grand average—.343.

Here is Ted Williams' record for his two complete years: 1939—.327; 1940—.344; average—.335.

But up through the halfway stretch of 1941 Williams is now in front, counting the games both have played under the big tent.

Both Williams and DiMaggio can be listed high in the natural hitting class. One of the main features of DiMaggio's base-hit ability is perfect wrist action. The DiMag has a pair of cocked wrists that carry both power and control.

Too many hitters are body and arm swingers. DiMaggio, well-balanced on both feet, lets his body work with his hands, but that brace of cocked wrists deliver most of the poison.

The main feature of Ted Williams' bat swinging is his almost complete lack of tension. Williams won't be 23 until October, but he still acts with the ease and confidence of a veteran who has been through many baseball wars. In this respect he reminds you of Napoleon Lajoie. Larry at the plate looked as loose as aahes. He was apparently indifferent as he waited for the pitch.

"You either hit it or you don't," Larry told me years ago. "Why bother about it? Just take your cut."

The fact might be mentioned here that with this modern lively ball Lajoie, a smoking line hitter with the aid one, would soon have several hospitals full of crippled infielders who happened to be in the line of fire.

Another Hot Match

With Williams and DiMaggio grabbing off most of the wild laurel sprigs in the American league, you can look for another hot scramble in the N. L. between Pete Reiser of the Dodgers and Johnny Mize of the Cardinals.

It might interest you to know, if you care for the succulent statistics in baseball, that Johnny Mize's five-year average with the Cardinals is now .336 up through 1940—just four points below DiMaggio's mark for the same span.

Big John is one of the top hitters of his time. Ball players through the South this last spring all picked him as the best hitter in the older league. Mize hails from Demorest, Ga., not so far away from Royston where Ty Cobb spent his younger years. (Ever notice how most of the top ones come from the unswag hamlets—not from the big towns?)

Mize has a freshman challenger in Brooklyn's Pete Reiser, who in his first year on big time has been whacking away between .350 and .370 most of the season.

Pete Reiser is the ball player named by Leo Durocher as the "next Ty Cobb—provided there, will ever be another Ty Cobb. Reiser is 185 pounds of speed, power, head and heart," according to Durocher's estimate.

Reiser is now just 21. Don't forget that when Tyrus Raymond was a Tiger debutante he batted .322. But from there on he finished with a lifetime average of .367 for 24 years—and that, my fellow countrymen, is something to shoot at.

But for all that, the stretch duels between Williams and DiMaggio, Mize and Reiser, will add considerably to the general public interest in both races. Suppose someone else beats them out? What of it? They are still the four best hitters in the two big leagues over a period of time.

Speaking of SPORTS

By ROBERT McSHANE

Published by Western Newspaper Union

PROOF of James J. Dykes' widespread popularity came not long ago when the fiery manager of the Chicago White Sox was cooped up in the American league doghouse for bulldozing umpires and using high pressure language on the playing field.

President Will Harridge of the American league placed Dykes in baseball's St. Helena when Jimmy took slightly profane exception to an umpire's ruling during a game with Cleveland, Jimmy, who refuses to hide his sincere dislike of the boys in blue, drew an "indefinite" suspension for his brash outbreak. His exile lasted one week.

Shortly after Harridge announced the suspension of Dykes, a Chicago newspaper conducted a survey to determine whether or not Jimmy is "offensive" to fans and owners around the American league circuit. At least two club presidents and six out of seven topnotch baseball writers declared themselves sympathetic with James. The seventh writer admitted that Jimmy was popular, but remarked that his protests do get a bit tiresome, largely because of their frequency.

As you've probably forgotten, Harridge's suspension statement read: "For his conduct and use of obscene and abusive language to Umpire Steve Basil in the game played in Chicago . . . while protesting the decision of Umpire Harry Geisel on a fly ball hit to right field in the ninth inning, Manager Dykes has been indefinitely suspended."

'Very Offensive'

His tactics in delaying our games, attempting to bulldoze and browbeat umpires while filing protests which have no basis in fact or justification in the rules, has become very offensive, not only to the spectators in other cities throughout the circuit, but to our entire organization.

Harridge also stated that Dykes would remain suspended until "he can satisfy the league office that in the future he will fall in line with the seven other managers of our league in conducting himself and his ball club on the field."

In our opinion the incident was far from well handled. Dykes is an aggressive, peppery manager, always willing to fight for a cause he considers just. He packs more color than any other manager in the league. His players like him. White Sox officials—including Mrs. Comiskey—back him up all the way, and Chicago's south side fans swear by him.

In short, Jimmy is not only the best manager in the American league but he has done as much or more than any other person to keep the league on its toes.

When Harridge lifted the suspension, he remarked:

"Our office has always praised Jim's handling of players. We credit him with doing wonders for ball-players other people have given up on. But the American league will eliminate rowdiness and abusive language. Once in a while we have to step on somebody's toes in this regard, but that's just too bad. We've got to do it."

There should be no argument on one particular—the elimination of abusive language. Profanity is objectionable to the fans—and particularly offensive to women patrons. Umpires, contrary to Dykes, are human and deserve at least a minimum of civility.

Rowdiness

But "rowdiness" is too general a term. One player, guilty of an offense, might be considered a rowdy while another, committing the same act, might be termed colorful. Where is the dividing line? It's exceedingly trite, but circumstances do alter cases.

Then, too, baseball isn't a parlor game. Players are more than automatons, trained to obey a stated set of rules. A good ball player—or manager—is one who does his best to win ball games. He does everything he can, without forfeiting sportsmanship, to beat an opponent.

Officials are smart enough to realize that color is an indispensable part of baseball. Without it the game would be little more than a mechanical exhibition of ability. And paying customers would become as rare as British tourists in Mexico.

THE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Ma:

I got your letter about not yelling at anybody on no golf courses and please do not worry as I am always a gentleman especially since that Tenebrap division was maid to do a 15 millé hike all over again for yelling yoo hoo at half dressed women and male golfers looking for lost balls. From now on I go strictly on the idea that anybody I see in open lots may be a general for all I know.

Personally I wood not poke no fun at a general on a golf course any how on account of I like to see them there. The farther a general is from the camp the less times I get inspected. This is a war of deception, ma, and where can a general find more deception than on a golf link? It is also a war of movement and you don't know what movements are until you see a middle-aged duffer going into his golf swing.

Generals need exercise like anybody else but if he is seen walking on a highway he loses face. The only place he can be seen hiking five or ten miles a day without being disgraced is on a golf course so I don't see no sense criticizing General Lear for being on one that day.

The outfit I am with is very good mannered and wood not yell at no golfers in a ungentlemanly manner. A couple of weeks ago we was passing a link and Otto Bixby yelled at a duffer but he was so deep in a trap he could hear no voices unless they were from China. There was a few women players in shorts and at first I thought they was fugitives from ladies' day in a Turkish bath. We paid no attention to them, not even one yoo hoo and the ladies seemed soar than if we had paid some notice to 'em. Women may get soar if soldiers yell at them but they mind it worse if they snub 'em.

There was a very pompous looking man looking for a lost ball near the highway witch we marched on and one of the boys made some remarks like "Looking for something, mister?" and "Did you try under the bureau?" He did not think much of it then but ever since reading about the General Lear incident he has been scared stiff for fear the man was a officer and got his description.

Personally I think General Lear is getting worse punishment than his troops and I bet he wishes he never played golf in his life. I think people are rubbing it in. Discipline is discipline in an army and most of the boys here do not think a army should give Bronx cheers to nobody on the line of march and especially not to ladies no matter if they wear shorts or whoopskirts. This is a all out war but we should not be all out of manners.

We don't even wave at nobody no more becuz for all we know it might turn out to be Secretary Stimson or Mrs. Roosevelt. The Lear thing maid the army awful careful. But I hope the people let up on General Lear becuz I hear he had plenty of excuse for being upset. I hear he was nine strokes on a par four hole and still 125 yards from the green when the soldiers yoo hooed. And not only that but he had gave his opponent a stroke a hole. Anything wood've made him soar.

Well so much for that. I got the heavy sox in case I get to Iceland. Tell Irene Manoney if I get to Ireland I will lock up her old man. Love, Oscar.

Not much headway can be found in making the world fit to live in again until somebody invents a tank-proof treaty or develops a bog-proof man.

Beautiful models have paraded in a style show before the draftees at Camp Upton. The idea is to show the soldiers what the well-dressed Iceland woman will not wear.

TIRES GIVE YOU THESE EXCLUSIVE ADVANTAGES and SAVE YOU MONEY

IT'S just good judgment to BUY THE BEST right now—and that means Firestone tires for tractor, truck or car. You'll get longer mileage and greater dependability through Firestone's patented construction features of a Safety-Lock Gum-Dipped cord body and a wear-resisting Vitamic tread rubber compound—extra features that cost you no more. It's smart to buy now and have the tires when you need them.

All tractor tires are not alike. Only Firestone Ground Grip Tractor Tires have the patented Triple-braced traction bars which provide up to 215 extra inches of traction bar length per tractor. This means a stronger backbone in the "traction zone" where the pulling job is actually done. Continuous traction is assured because the Triple-braced bars cannot bend, slip or tear off and they automatically clean themselves. To get more work out of your tractor, to decrease your gasoline and tire cost, equip now with Firestone Ground Grip Tires.

But It's True

During the latter part of the seventeenth century in Holland, gold bulbs actually became the medium of exchange. Some bulbs were valued at as much as $25,000. There were entire hospitals set aside for the tulipmaniacs.
 The German crown prince, wearing the uniform of a captured English officer, made his way through the British lines, played with the troops more than 48 hours, then crawled back across No Man's Land.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

Germans Claim Deep Gains in Russia With Three Thrusts on 'Stalin' Line; New Japanese War Policy in Offing; British Push 'V' Propaganda Drive

(EDITOR'S NOTE.—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

RUSSIA: Line Pierced

Though claims of Russians and Germans continued to conflict, it was apparent that the Stalin line had been pierced at least three times, once each in the northern, central and southern fronts.

Thus it was evident that despite the huge numbers of troops involved, which lent a confused element to the picture, the Nazi technique of spearheads and pincer movements was working out inexorably, even though more slowly than the Nazis themselves had figured.

Some of the German claims met public denial from the British mission to Moscow, such as the assertion from Berlin that the Russian air fleet had been rendered useless in the face of German air attacks. The British in Moscow informed London that this claim was premature, that Russia still had a large and active air force, and was dealing important damage to the Nazis.

Though perilous and daring, the spearhead technique which with equal armies might prove a terrible boomerang, especially if defenses worked out by Weygand should be effectively carried out, was apparently beyond the Russian armies' ability to withstand.

The fall of Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev in many quarters was believed inevitable and perhaps imminent, and whether the Reds could get their armies back of the Moscow-Leningrad-Kiev line and go on fighting rear-guard actions seemed dubious in the extreme.

Still unconfirmed reports had Smolensk, vital city on the road to Moscow, in German hands or surrounded, and there were even reports from Sweden that Moscow was under terrific bombing and that the Kremlin had been "ruined."

This, however, the Germans did not claim, the high command simply stating that the Nazi forces would content themselves with the destruction of the effectiveness of the Russian troops before going on to Moscow.

With regard to Leningrad, the Germans said that their pincers were closing on the city, and that it was sure to fall soon.

As to Kiev, Nazi sources claimed their advance units were to the east of the city, having passed it to the south.

From the Russian viewpoint, all was not so hopeless, for while they admitted German advances on the central front, they claimed that the two pincer-heads attacking Leningrad were not moving through the Russian defenses, and that on the south the German-Rumanian armies were stalled also.

VOICE:

With an Idea

Great Britain, after quietly and without much fanfare experimenting with a radio broadcaster who would give Europe something equal to or surpassing Germany's Lord Haw-Haw, came out boldly with "Colonel Britton," and polished off his opening broadcast with a "V for Victory" day.

It was to be a campaign to enroll all the disgruntled conquered peoples in a new secret organization whose purpose would be to harass Germany's army of occupation at every possible turn.

Colonel Britton, an anonymous broadcaster but a person who, unlike Lord Haw-Haw did not pretend to be a member of the nation he was talking to, nevertheless, the English said, could converse in French, Italian, German, Dutch, Danish, Belgian, Norwegian or what-have-you, and had been given a station of a wavelength and power which defied all Nazi efforts to "jam" him off the air-waves.

The launching of the V for Victory campaign took place with no less a percentage than Winston Churchill delivering a message.

JAPAN: And Russia

Two things began to emerge out of the formation of a new Japanese government by the old premier, Prince Konoye.

1. The army and navy were to be in the saddle.

2. The attitude toward Russia is to be stiffened, probably including the breaking of the neutrality pact and possibly with some overt move either in Siberia or from Manchukuo toward the Siberian border.

Even the Chinese, apparently well-informed about Japanese intentions, failed to pierce the veil of mystery surrounding the new government's plans.

The Chinese called it a "water-bird" government, which meant that it would be calm on the surface, but that this calmness would mask a terrific activity soon to be launched.

Yet a report in Washington (coming from diplomatic quarters, back of which was that powerful figure Ambassador Grew) tended to indicate that the likeliest Japanese move would be toward the South Pacific, the direction in which Hitler is believed most anxious for Japan to turn.

Washington says that Japan's plan to "send a million men toward the north," ostensibly "disclosed" from Nipponese sources, is entirely too boldly and obviously displayed, and is intended to mask a move in the exact opposite direction.

The capital's viewpoint probably is most highly influenced by the doubt that Japan, faced by the never-ending war with China, is able to undertake any such major move as would be required to threaten Russia's Far-East armies, and that Nippon is much more apt to take the "soft touch" in the direction of Thailand and Indo-China.

DRAFT:

Men, Business

The drawing for the second draft, that of 700,000 new 21-year-olds, came at a moment when the controversy was at its height over two other drafts—that of whether the older selectees and National Guardsmen should be kept in more than a year, and whether the bill calling for a "draft of business" if necessary, should be passed.

General Marshall had not pulled any punches in letting congress know his stand in the matter, which was to keep both guardsmen and selectees in over the time limit, and he had President Roosevelt apparently vigorously back of him.

On top of this, the senate military affairs committee revealed that it had been informed that a "vital military weapon" which might prove to be of the "utmost importance" had been denied to the army by the fact that the government did not have the power to "draft industry."

No further details as to the nature of the weapon were revealed, but the report was important in that it showed a spirit on the part of the senate body to ask the passage of this bill, which had been under a legislative cloud for some time.

As to the addition of time of service for the guards and selectees, some Washington observers reported sentiment growing for passage of the measure, others seemed to see it doomed to defeat.

TAX:

Stormy Session

That income taxes would be raised to three times as high as they are now was agreed on by the house ways and means committee, but that body ended a three-hour secret session on the tax bill in a row over whether husbands and wives should be forced to file joint returns.

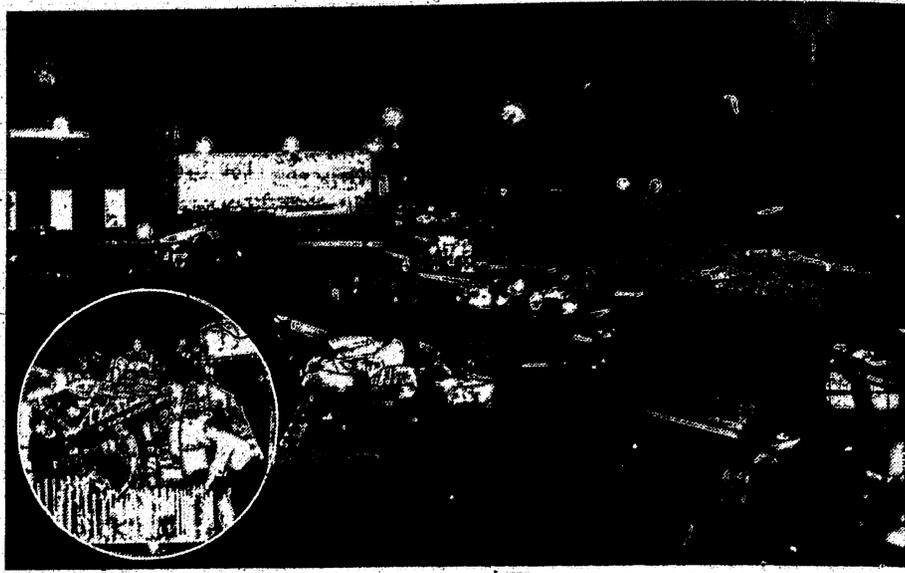

It was unofficially reported that the husband-wife plan had previously been approved by a 14-10 vote, but in the secret session vigorous opposition is said to have developed.

Saved 'Eagle'

Shot down in a dogfight with Nazi planes over the English channel Pilot Officer N. Maranz (above) of New York, a member of the U. S. "Eagle Squadron" of the British R.A.F., was feared dead. But now there is joy in the home of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Maranz in New York. For they have a letter from their son, telling of his battle and ultimate rescue by a German rescue boat. He is now a prisoner of war in Germany.

They 'Keep 'Em Flying' by Working Nights

Here is a general view of the outdoor assembly line at the Lockheed Aircraft corporation's plane plant in Burbank, Calif., showing how production goes on through the night on the famous "P-38 Lightning" interceptor planes for the U. S. army and the British R.A.F. More than 12,000 employees are on night work turning out these planes. Inset shows a closeup of a crew on night duty.

Realistic Maneuver for Strike Breaking

A top Signal hill at Camp Edwards, soldiers go through a realistic maneuver designed to train them in breaking up strikes. Here soldier strike-breakers, wearing steel helmets, engage soldier strikers, wearing fatigue hats, in hand-to-hand encounter. Strikers were captured, herded back to prison pen.

BELTS:

Pulled In

Economists estimated that the United States' population, used to buying and having what it wanted, even if it took 18 months to a couple of years to pay for it, would have to do without about $2,000,000,000 worth of consumers' goods this coming year.

Biggest slices in what America is used to buying came in automobiles and mechanical refrigerators. With these naturally would come reductions in accessories like rubber tires, gasoline and oil and other commodities.

Washing machines were another item ordered out to conserve the raw materials demands of the defense industries. In all of these items a 50 per cent cut in production for the coming year was ordered. Stocks on hand will fix it so that the public won't feel the difference at once, but before long the belt will have to be pulled in and given a lusty yank at that.

Leon Henderson, man at the helm of this and price-fixing moves, said:

"The program is severe, but the reduction will be partially offset by the increasing participation of those industries in defense work, the auto industry alone having contracted for $2,000,000,000 worth of defense goods."

"The curtailment program calls for no increase of prices at retail," Mr. Henderson pointed out that the automobile, refrigerator and washing-machine industries were the largest, or close to the largest civilian consumers of common metals where shortages exist.

R.A.F.

Results Noted

Most analysts agreed that if the bomb tonnage reported from R.A.F. sources as being dropped on objectives in occupied territories and in Germany was reasonably accurate, the damage must be terrific.

Perhaps outstanding of the British claims in this regard, however, was the toll of German shipping of a coastwise nature. This claim ran 300,000 tons since the start of the Russo-German war, and all of it sunk by air action.

Also the R.A.F. directly claimed that at least one-third of the cities of Aachen and Munster were destroyed or seriously damaged; that at least 301 Messerschmitts of two types had been downed; that 118 British fighters had been lost "over a country where an oil leak may mean a fighter has to bail out," but that 17 of the pilots had been saved.

But a New York Times correspondent in Ankara, quoting sources that had recently made it to Turkey from Berlin, painted a picture which covered broader and more important territory.

He cabled a report that Hamburg and Hanover had practically been ruined as ports, that Bremen was seriously damaged, and that rail junctions had been wiped out, forcing the Germans to take to coastwise shipping to replace damaged rail services.

This writer's informants declared that shipping sunk in the port of Hamburg made it necessary that dredging and dynamiting operations be carried out every week to make the waterway passable at all, because of direct bomb hits and vessels sunk by air action and blocking the passage of other vessels.

Rider of Buck River

THE STORY SO FAR: Buck Hart, brother of Sheriff Hart, is found with a bullet in his back. He was 'drygulched' by the McCallum men, said his friends, some of them rustlers. He himself was believed to be one. At the general store

Terry asked for stock in the company, provided he was made manager. Since nobody in the territory knew cows better than Terry the directors jumped at the offer.

Politically the small man dominated the county. The nesters combined with the people of the towns to elect tickets opposed to the cattle barons.

CHAPTER III Terry tightened the saddle cinch. He caught a glimpse of a face staring at him from a grimy window of the Red Triangle Saloon.

Three customers were at the bar. Alford-Turley-Brand. The gaze of Terry picked them up in turn.

'Didn't Lee Hart have time to shut the door when he ran away?' Terry asked.

There was a pause, too long, before Brand spoke. 'Hart hasn't been here.'

There was another moment of silence before Turley answered: 'We heard a shot. It didn't come from here, if that's what you mean.'

The townman stretched out his left arm and laid a forefinger on the hole in one of the panes of the window beside him. 'My mistake,' he said.

'Fellow shot that hole in the window in a row two months ago,' the bartender explained.

Terry did some swift guessing. The bullet which had passed through his hat had come from a rifle. The sound of the shot told him that. But Hart had been armed only with a revolver.

'The bartender's eyes grew big. 'Why, Mr. Terry, I—I don't reckon.'

'The rifle,' interrupted Terry coldly. 'You don't have to give it to him, Hank,' Brand told the man.

Apparently the bartender was of a different opinion. He stooped down and passed a rifle across the top of the bar.

An investigation showed that it had been fired very recently. Terry laughed scornfully and handed it back to the man in the white apron.

CHAPTER IV Though it was not yet seven o'clock the morning sun flooded the land with light. So still was the air that even the aspen leaves did not tremble.

It was all familiar to her, yet how good to see again! For five years she had been away at school with her aunt in Kansas City.

INSTALLMENT TWO In Round Top, Calhoun Terry, manager of the Diamond Reverse B ranch, reports intimations that he knows about the killing.

From the hollow beyond, rose a cloud of slowly moving dust. She knew what that meant. Cattle or horses were on the march.

A rider showed on the nearer lip of the hollow. While she watched, a second came out of the valley and joined him.

At breakfast Ellen mentioned the riders she had seen. Lane Carey took this more seriously than she had expected.

'You weren't near enough to know who they were?' The girl's answer was delayed only a fraction of a second.

'Carey Lane was an honest man. He had cows himself, and no man could say he used a running-iron too freely. Though times were hard, he had made a reasonably good living because he had the post-office at Black Butte and ran the stage station.

A moment later a gun roared.

He rose from the table and picked up a dusty, weather-beaten hat. 'Wish you'd take care of the mail today, honey,' he said.

Black Butte was the halfway house of the stage line. The passengers and driver ate dinner at the Box 55 every day but Sunday.

When the stage rolled up to the door Ellen was at the post-office waiting for the lean sack of mail the stage-driver flung on the table for sorting.

During the hour the stage was there Black Butte was a gathering place for the neighborhood. Men sat on the porch and exchanged gossip.

Through the window she caught sight of a man alighting from a sorrel horse. A faint excitement stirred in her.

Carey relieved his daughter and she walked out of the post-office. Three men lounged on the porch.

'Thought I saw you this morning while I was riding,' she said. Brand started a look at her. 'Not men. They regarded him as having gone over to the enemy. He had been their leader and they resented deeply an act which they somehow regarded as somewhat out of accord with the interests of the smaller ranch owners.

'No, I was out Flat Top way.' He shook his head. 'Must have been someone else.' He smiled at her.

'Dear me! Is that a threat or a promise?' she asked lightly. His cool eyes rested on her dark good looks.

'You don't know how grateful I am,' she mocked, with an ironic curtsy. 'Are you grateful enough to let me take you to the Sleepy Cat Ranch dance?'

'She considered that a moment. 'No, I don't think so.' She added, 'Of course I'm greatly flattered.'

'He won't be bored,' Brand predicted. 'I'll help you entertain him.' Ellen read into his words vindictive resentment.

'I do hope so. If he looks bored it will be a bad social start for me, won't it?' 'He won't be bored,' Brand predicted.

'It will be a pleasure,' he told her. They had reached the house. The girl moved up the porch steps and turned to look down at him.

'Not at all abashed, he smiled up at her confidently. 'Oh, yes, you are. Very much. I'll take care of that.'

'Some people would call it impudence,' she said, a tinge of color in her cheeks. Ellen turned and walked into the house, leaving him there.

In Jeff's eyes, as he walked back to the post-office, little devils of mischief gleamed. Long ago he had discovered that one way to stir a girl's interest in him was to arouse her resentment.

'A gent from the Diamond Reverse B with us this morning?' he asked one of the loungers. 'His royal nibs,' a young man in chaps answered.

Terry came out to the porch, let his gaze drift around slowly, and crossed the road to his horse. There was a cool arrogance in the way he ignored Brand that got under that young man's skin.

'I see you are still wearing the hat that went to the wars, Mr. Terry,' he jeered. 'Did you do anything about that matter you were going to take under consideration?'

'What did Terry want?' he asked abruptly. Carey looked at him, surprised. 'Wanted to know if I had seen anything of a bunch of the stuff missing from a park where he had them herded.'

'I don't like the way you ask that question, Jeff,' the ranchman said quietly. Brand corrected his manner.

'I told him Ellen had seen a bunch being driven into the hills,' Carey said, the eyes in his tanned, leathery face without expression. 'Who was driving it?'

'Not all of them. I had an invitation from a very good-looking man.'
