Ducks Return Home

Marshall Atkinson was here last Saturday from his ranch near White Oaks and while here, he told us the following true story. One day last week an old Spanish-American couple from Rabenton, came over to Marshall's ranch and wanted what they called a "papa duck." Marshall with his customary kindness gave them a drake and two ducks. He put them in a box, tied it up securely and they took them home. The following morning, Marshall was surprised to find the ducks had returned from over the mountain, a distance of seven miles. Dogs and cats have been known to return from as far as 200 miles and farther, but this is the first time a domestic duck was ever known to come back from even a short distance. This ranch is located near Patos (ducks) mountain.

Birthday Party at Clauch

Last Saturday evening at their home in Clauch, Mr. and Mrs. Lupe Gabaldon entertained a number of their friends in honor of the 47th birthday of Mr. Gabaldon. The evening was spent in dancing and dainty refreshments were served to the following guests: The Shumates, Barios, Spears, Will Ed Harrisee and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Martinez. An enjoyable time was reported by those present.—Contributed.

Ward—Corn

Mrs. Ruby Yates Ward of Carrizozo and Virgil Corn of Moriarity were united in marriage at the Methodist parsonage, Monday, Aug. 25, with Rev. Hughes officiating. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Roley Ward. They will make their home at Moriarity, where Mr. Corn has recently purchased a place and built a new house. We join with their many friends in wishing them happiness and success in this grand new venture of life.

The First Aid Course

Sponsored by the American Red Cross, Lincoln County Chapter, under the direction of Dr. Turner, consisting of 11 class periods, has been completed and the report made by the instructor, includes the following names, who passed the final test and will be issued certificates.

Mesdames Edith Crawford, Dan Conley, Edith McKinley, S. Dawey Stokes, Carl Degner, Caroline Hines, Consuelo Richardson, Blanche Shilling, Clara Walker, Misses Hilda Ann Barnett, Ruth Petty and Mrs. Deway Stokes.

On behalf of the chapter, I hereby extend to all persons who participated in this course, my sincere appreciation for their interest and efforts in making this project a success.

Frank Adams, Chairman.

An Invitation to B. L. Stimmel

Hennessey, Okla. August 22, 1941.

Dear Friend Ben:

We are arranging for our annual home-coming. The dates are August 30, 31 and Sept. 1. It won't be complete without you, Ben. We want you here. Remember, all these fellows who came in 1889, aren't going to be here always. Come and see your old-time friends before they plant them.

It has been a long time since you were back, and we want you to start getting ready as soon as you get this. There will be a lot of folks here you will want to see and who will want to see you. Have been writing a few of your old friends to insure their getting started this way. Have invited Bud Chambers at Jerome, Idaho, and expect to get a letter off to Thad McCall and a few others.

The '89ers are getting scarcer, Ben, and one like to see as much of them and as many of them as can be brought back. The Hennessey folks are scattered far and wide.

Now, Ben, remember we are expecting you. Come. See the old town and your old friends.

Regards,
Frank Tiernay,
Sec'y, Old-Timers' Association.

120 STOCKMEN

Attended the county-wide Ranch Program at the O-Bar-O Ranch Monday, which was sponsored by the Extension Service in cooperation with Tom James, manager of the O-O. The day was devoted to discussions of current livestock problems by H. A. Van Dusen, Steve Brock, George Ellis, Dr. A. L. Hershey, and L. D. Merchant.

During the noon hour a free barbecue lunch was served by Messrs. James, Stokes, Brenton, Murphy and Dabney. The ranchmen were provided with playing cards and too can active part in grading a number of steer and heifer calves.

Carl P. Radcliff,
County Extension Agent.

E. A. Bellinger, owner of the local B & M Store, who has been seriously ill at the Mayo Hospital in Rochester, Minn., has undergone his second major operation and is resting as well as could be expected in St. Mary's Hospital at that place, according to J. G. Moore, Jr., manager of the B & M Store here.

Mrs. Lula Lewis and daughter Marys of their ranch at the head of the Malpais were business visitors in town Wednesday.

Gregorio Pino was a business visitor from his ranch seven miles east of town Monday.

Mrs. B. E. Lemon and niece Mrs. Whitwell drove to San Diego, Cal., last week and visited Mrs. Ed Queen; Mrs. Queen has been at that place with her sons Don and Lawrence, who are employed with the Consolidated Aircrafts Co. Mrs. Queen will accompany Mrs. Lemon and Whitwell on their return home.

Judge and Mrs. Elerdo Chavez and son Tony and family will move into the Adams Hotel next week, Judge Chavez having purchased the place.

Shows start promptly at 8:00. Sunday matinee at 2:30 p. m.

E. M. Perez of Los Angeles is visiting his sisters-in-law, Mesdames E. V. Abeyta and Sterling Fisher at Capitan, brother-in-law, Harry Aguayo at Nogal, for several days. On Wednesday, Mr. Perez, Mrs. Fisher and her guest from El Paso, Mrs. Martha Sheppard, were Carrizozo visitors from Capitan. Mr. Perez was a printer for the old White-Oaks-Eagle in 1897, when the late Judge John Y. Hewitt owned and published that paper.

Arthur Cortez was here from San Patricio Wednesday and said that the Chavez Orchestra would furnish the music for the dance there Saturday night. Attorney H. Alfred Jones accompanied Mr. Cortez on the return trip, to attend to legal matters at Ruidoso.

Mesdames J. H. Fulmer and Wayne Van Schoyck were visitors from White Oaks Monday.

Abs Sanchez has made a decided improvement on his residence in the east side.

City Clerk Morgan Lovelace returned Tuesday from Van Nuys, Calif., where he visited his sister, Mrs. S. W. Wells and family for about two weeks. He reports things lively at that place.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Warner, daughters Mary and Frances are visiting relatives in Albuquerque this week.

Attorney John E. Hall is going to erect a modern office building next door to the Petty General Merchandise Store.

Business Men's Club

A banner meeting was held on Wednesday night at the S. P. Hotel, there being 18 members and 5 visitors present. F. A. English presided. The secretary gave a report of the celebration of the completion of the Lincoln-Hondo strip of highway. Forest Ranger Gordon Gray showed pictures of forest conditions throughout the United States, which reminded the gathering that our native forest supplies were fast disappearing and also showed where steps have been taken to prevent further damages and encouragement given to nourishing the virgin growths for the benefit of generations to come.

A. J. Rolland presented his guest, Dr. R. T. Lucas of Kansas City, who gave moving pictures in technicolor of scenes in different places where he visited, more especially those scenes along the Current river in the Ozark mountains, the modes and customs of the people. He also showed pictures of the home life of Dr. Turner, the recent rodeo, the golf course and the birthday party of elderly Carrizozo ladies, honoring Mrs. Jane Gallacher on her birthday.

Guests at the meeting expressed appreciation of the courtesies of the club and one guest said that he had patronized the hotel during the past 30 years and pronounced the dinner as one of the best he had ever enjoyed and complimented manager Dodge on the same. He wondered why club members did not have their ladies at more of such functions.

Frank Adams, Sec'y.

The Blackout Sept. 12

The signal will be given by the roundhouse whistle—3 shorts and 1 long blast for blackout and one long blast for the "all clear."

The city is to be divided into 4 zones and the commanding officer will appoint a sufficient number of air raid wardens. An auxiliary police force is being organized to direct traffic and protect property. Also an auxiliary fire department to guard against fire hazards. The purpose of the blackout is to test plans worked-out, to focus public attention on the Civilian Defense program and to establish a basis for training and co-ordination of the public and volunteer defense workers.

Local Defense Council.

Frank Vega, Jr., is attending the Boy Scouts' Encampment this week.

Mrs. Henry Hoffman, daughters Dorothy and Mildred were week-end visitors with friends at Douglas, Arizona. On the return trip they met Mrs. James Baxter and son Jimmy, who had been to Deming, all returning to Carrizozo.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Rick of Rock Island, Ill., spent the week-end with the Steve Bostian family. Mrs. Rick is Mrs. Bostian's cousin.

John Rowland and Clarence Griffith were here from Corona yesterday on business.

Mrs. J. M. Beck and daughter Betty have moved to the apartment next door to the Rail Beauty Shoppe.

Pvt. Ernie Prehm is here visiting his mother and brother Otto.

PERSONALS

Mrs. S. H. Nickels arrived home last Saturday from Las Vegas, where she had been attending summer school.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Bello, small daughter Charlotte and Esauquel Vigil were business visitors from Clauch Monday and visited the Joe Vigil family while here.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Stokes and family are visiting relatives and friends in Midland, Texas, for the remainder of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Burke, son Lewis and guests, Dr. and Mrs. B. T. Lucas and niece, Miss Mabel Rumburg, were Ruidoso visitors last Sunday. Miss Rumburg was highly impressed with our beautiful mountain scenery.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sipple, son Donald and Clint Rice were here for the week-end from their home in Haxtun, Colo. The folks were formerly of White Oaks and engaged in the mining business at that place a few years ago.

Don't forget the big Wedding Dance at the Cortez Hall, San Patricio, tomorrow night, 30th.

Donald Simms of Tularosa visited the Rev. L. A. Hughes family this week, before returning to Norman, Okla., where he is attending a Pharmacy School.

Miss Iona Tenorio was a week-end guest at the home of Judge and Mrs. M. C. St. John.

Attorney H. Alfred Jones returned the first part of the week from Santa Fe and Albuquerque, where he attended to legal matters for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Sandoval and son Jake were visitors from the ranch Monday.

Harold Hoffman went back to State College Tuesday to resume his studies for the fall and winter term.

Carl Ryberg and Cleve Brown were here last Saturday from Corona, where Carl is engaged in the ranching business and Cleve is employed on the state highway.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Maes visited relatives at San Patricio last week-end. Mrs. Maes is the deputy under County Treasurer Ernest Key.

Miss Dorothy Jones returned Monday from Tucumcari, where she visited her cousin, Miss Clarita Pittman for ten days.

Sheriff A. F. Stover made the Outlook family the present of a box of delicious peaches Tuesday morning. They came from his ranch near Hondo and we thank the Sheriff very kindly.

Mrs. Carleen McCustion Bland has bought all the Jenkins' cattle and horses and leased the ranch near Corona for a year.

Rev. and Mrs. F. A. Simms of Mountainair are here visiting their daughter, Mrs. L. A. Hughes and family and fishing at Nogal Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Davis and family have moved to Capitan, where they will make their home in the future.

Road Celebration At Hondo

A crowd of enthusiastic Lincoln County road boosters gathered at the Big Spring one mile west of Hondo Wednesday and celebrated the completion of the stretch of highway between Lincoln and Hondo, the gathering being sponsored by the Business Men's Club of Carrizozo.

The number of people present exceeded 300. Frank Adams, secretary, called the meeting to order with an appropriate speech in which he thanked those who attended and presented Messrs. B. G. Dwyre, State Highway Engineer, Ivan Hilton, Chairman of the State Highway Commission and Mr. Chase, District Engineer, all of whom made short but effective addresses on road matters of interest. Perry Sears of Capitan also made a short address.

A basket dinner was enjoyed by the assemblage. Old friends, many of whom had not met for years; gathered in clusters and reviewed by-gone days, making the affair one to be long remembered. Bart Pfingsten was tendered a vote of thanks for his customary diligence and interest in the celebration. He had the grounds cleared off for the comfort and convenience of the big attendance. The Carrizozo delegation was the largest.

SCHOOL NEWS

Supt. Carpenter, Mrs. O. C. Jones, County School Supt. and other superintendents of Lincoln county attended a budget hearing before the State Tax Commissioners in Santa Fe last Wednesday.

A few of the improvements in schedule are: Opportunity for supervised study for all Freshmen and partial supervised study for upper classmen. 2 — Band will be scheduled during regular class hours at which times only elective subjects will be offered. Hence every student will have an opportunity to participate in the Band. 3 — A course in dramatics and oral English will be offered. 4 — School will begin at 8:30 and close at 3:30.

The schedule of class work for High School students was completed last Tuesday. Students are welcome to come in and enroll any time before school begins — such students need not return to school until Tuesday at 8:30 a. m., Sept. 2.

Walter R. Bates has received a beautiful certificate signed by Gov. Miles for careful school bus driving.

Rabies Reported

Sheriff Stover has received notice from the State Health Dept. that the disease known as rabies in dogs, has made its appearance in Ruidoso, Ruidoso Canyon and Skyland and precautionary measures must be taken to prevent spread of same.

Every dog must be muzzled or confined to the residence of owners. If owners have dogs on the streets, they must be muzzled or held on leash, so as to prevent them from biting people. Sheriffs and deputies are charged with the enforcement of the order to shoot any dogs which are allowed to run loose within the confines of this county in violation of this order which has been issued by C. W. Gerber, District Health Officer.

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

SAMUEL GOLDWYN has a sure-thing combination in Bette Davis and Director William Wyler, who've just done "The Little Foxes" for him. They were responsible for "Jezebel," which won the second Academy Award for Bette, though a lot of people thought she'd given better performances in other pictures. They also did "The Letter," a hit film.

Bette Davis

wasn't so much to her liking, because it was slapstick stuff.

And RKO, which releases "The Little Foxes," may have a sure thing on its hands in Terry Frost. He is the last of the three men who played "Killer Mears" in the stage version of "The Last Mile." Producer Bert Gilroy picked him for a part in Tim Holt's "Cyclone on Horseback," in which Frost will make his film debut after a wait of 11 years.

And—the other two men who played "Killer Mears" were Spencer Tracy and Clark Gable—and it was Gilroy who picked Gable for his first film, "Painted Desert." So, if good things come in threes, Terry Frost is headed straight for stardom.

A matrimonial expert, who's been asking American wives "What has Charles Boyer that your husband doesn't have?" maintains that 70 per cent of the country's married women are in love with male stars. One thing he's got to a beautiful and charming wife.

It's on again, off again with John Garfield and Warner Brothers. As previously reported here, he refused to do "New Orleans Blues," was suspended, and Ricciard Whorf, the very talented actor who has appeared so often on the stage with Lunt and Fontanne, replaced him. Garfield was assigned to "Bridges Are Built at Night," and all seemed well. But it wasn't, and now he's been suspended again, and Whorf has replaced him. Seems to be coming a habit. Maybe Garfield has forgotten the rumpuses Bette Davis and James Cagney had with the same studio and that both of them went back to work at the same old stand when the fuss was finally settled.

John Garfield

Guy Lombardo has been having a lot of fun with these lyricized commercials, superimposed over a musical background, and radio audiences like them so much that he's decided to make them a regular feature of his Saturday evening programs.

Tom Hanlon, announcer on CBS Sunday program, "Melody Ranch," figures that he's on his way up, in motion pictures. He recently played a scene with Greta Garbo and Melvyn Douglas at the Metro studio. He did a commercial announcement which they were supposed to hear over the radio during an important sequence. But he worked just out of camera range on the set with the Swedish star.

Red Skelton has already arrived at the top, if reports of what previous audiences thought of "Whistling in the Dark" are a prophecy. Seems he's going to give Bob Hope a run for Hope's laurels, and make all of us laugh our heads off while so doing.

It looks as if September 15 would be Orson Welles day in Hollywood. On that date he inaugurates his new variety broadcasts as star, producer, director and author with the Mercury players, and also starts the cameras grinding on his next RKO picture, "The Magnificent Ambersons." Between times he'll probably do card tricks; he's just mastered seven new ones.

ODDS AND ENDS—That man Rochester, Jack Deany's "sax" is the high spot of the new Mary Martin picture "Kiss the Boys Goodbye." Practically all newspaper critics have thrown bouquets at "The Stars Look Down." Wolf Disney and some of his staff will journey to South America to get ideas for cartoons suitable for that market. Charles Laughlin will star in "Out of Get," a Tahiti tale by the "Mystery on the Bounty" authors. Moscow O'Hara will have the lead opposite Tyrone Power in 20th Century-Fox's "Benjamin Blaha." There's a National Society of Hardy Families, not related to Hardy's.

Historical Highlights

Steamboat Inventor

ONE hundred and fifty years ago—on August 25, 1774—the newly established Patent Office of the United States issued 13 patents. This, in itself, is not important except for the fact that it marked the beginning of the controversy over "Who invented the steamboat?" which, after a century and a half, is still unsettled.

For among the 13 patents issued on that day, six were awarded to James Rumsey (or Rumcey), one to John Fitch, two to Nathan Read and three to John Stevens Jr., and the names of all these men were destined to be linked with the invention of the steamboat. Of course, the school book histories say that Robert Fulton was the inventor of the steamboat. But whether or not that is true depends upon the definition of "inventor." Partisans of Stevens, Rumsey and Fitch assert that all three have better claims to the honor of "inventing" the steamboat than does Fulton.

James Rumsey

Read had begun experimenting with steam engines for propelling boats in 1788 and his contribution to the development of the steamboat was the invention of the multi-tubular boiler and the portable high-pressure engine—both important but hardly a large enough contribution to entitle him to the honor of being called the "inventor" of the steamboat.

John Stevens Jr.

Stevens began studying steam engines in 1789 but it was not until 1793 that he completed his first steamboat and operated it successfully on the Hudson river. It was Stevens who made the first application of steam to the screw-propeller for driving a boat through the water and his steamboat contained the first condensing double-acting engine ever made in America and a multi-tubular boiler on which he secured American patents in 1803.

Among the patents granted to Rumsey was one for "propelling boats or vessels" and his claim to the title of "steamboat inventor" rests upon these facts: On September 7, 1784, George Washington saw and certified to Rumsey's model of a boat which could go upstream by machinery, in 1785 he obtained from the Pennsylvania assembly an exclusive right for 10 years to "navigate and build" such contrivances; in March, 1786, he exhibited on the Potomac river a boat propelled by steam; in 1787 both Virginia and Maryland granted him patents on it; later he obtained similar patents in England, France and Holland and in December, 1792, gave a successful exhibition of his steamboat on the Thomas river.

Most vocal of all the partisans are those of John Fitch and the evidence which they submit to prove his right to the honor that has been given to Robert Fulton seems to be to establish his right to the title of "inventor of the steamboat." Arranged chronologically, here are the steps which establish that claim:

1765—In April, Fitch, then living in Durks county, Pa., conceived the idea of a steamboat and in November he presented a drawing of the boat, models and tube boiler to the American Philosophical Society.

1767—On August 22 his boat, equipped with a 12 inch cylinder was demonstrated at Philadelphia and members of the Constitutional convention, then in session, witnessed the successful demonstration.

1790—Newspaper advertisements prove that Fitch was operating a steamboat successfully and carrying passengers across the Delaware.

1791—Congress voted to grant Fitch a patent on his steamboat. It was signed by President George Washington and is the only one granted on August 25, 1791, in which the wording "propelling boats by steam" is used and there is no record of a similar patent issued on any earlier date than that.

Fitch was unable to interest enough people in his invention to capitalize on it and he died in poverty in Barstow, Ky., July 2, 1798. In his last years he wrote: "The day will come when some more powerful man will get fame and riches from my invention; but nobody will believe that poor John Fitch can do anything worthy of attention." The man who did get "fame and riches" was Robert Fulton, for he had access to Fitch's drawings and specifications and from them constructed his "Clermont" in 1807.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for August 31

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

JOHN URGES CHRISTIAN LOVE

LESSON TEXT—1 John 3:13-18; 4:7-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth.—1 John 3:18.

Love is a word so abused in modern speech that one almost hesitates to use it, and yet it stands for the very finest in all human relationships, and presents to us the very essence of the nature of God. We do well to redefine the meaning of love in our Sunday school classes this next Sunday. Love is not that sentimental, "wishy-washy" feeling which prompts the writing of emotional ballads, which are (like the supposed love of which they speak) "here today and gone tomorrow." Nor is it that lustful thing which now parades itself shamelessly as love, when it is nothing but animal passion. Nor is it that weak thing which totalitarian dictators make it to be when they declare that to attain, a people must hate, not love. "Love is a desire for and delight in the welfare of another." It reaches out to all mankind, coming from God and being manifested in the gift of His Son as our Saviour. It is stronger than any earthly bonds. It is able to bear unbelievable burdens; yes, because He loved us Christ bore the sins of the whole world on Calvary. It expresses itself in courtesy, in high standards of life, and in sacrifice. Love is, as Henry Drummond put it, "the greatest thing in the world." Read 1 Corinthians 13 for Paul's exalted description of love.

Our lesson reveals two important facts about love—

I. Love Is an Evidence of Regeneration (1 John 3:13-18).

There are two groups of people, the saved and the unsaved. The unsaved in Scripture are designated as "the world," meaning, not the physical world, but the world of unregenerate men who are against our God and His Christ. The saved are those who have come to God in Christ, who love Him and are in the center of His love. That love is, according to John, an evidence that we know God. There is an interesting contrast here.

1. The World Hates and Kills (vv. 13-15). Truly the wicked heart of man apart from Christ is revealed in the tragic events which have embroiled the whole world in conflict. The point is that we as Christians should not be surprised if that kind of a world hates us. In fact, we should be troubled if it does not hate us, for if our Christianity means anything, it must be utterly distasteful to a world driven by hatred and the lust for blood.

2. The Christian Loves and Gives (vv. 14, 16-18). The mark of a Christian is love for God and love for the brethren. That love demonstrates its genuineness by giving freely to meet the need of a brother, just as God freely gave His Son for our redemption. (cf. James 2:14-17).

The background of such an attitude is a proper understanding of our relationship to God, and an appreciation of His nature.

II. The Very Nature of God Is Love (1 John 4:7-21).

God not only loves, but He is love. 1. God Is Love (vv. 7, 8). "Love is the very essence of His moral nature. He is the source of all love" (R. A. Torrey). Only the one who knows God as love knows Him at all.

There is much thoughtless and meaningless talk about the love of God, as though it meant that He is careless about enforcing His divine law, that somehow He will overlook and excuse careless and wicked living. The fact is that the love of God has no real meaning unless it is understood in the light of the cross, for

2. God's Love Is Manifested in Christ (vv. 9-10). He was sent as the giver of eternal life, the propitiation for our sins, our Saviour, and thus as the highest and deepest expression of God's love. Faith in Christ (v. 15) puts the believer in the very center of the love of God. Precious hiding place!

3. Love Casts Out Fear (vv. 17-19). Fellowship is impossible in an atmosphere of fear, but love rules fear out. In Christ we realize that God first loved us, and then our hearts go out to Him in a warmth of devotion which brings us so close to Him that all fear is gone. The result of such fellowship with God follows, for

4. He Who Loves God Loves His Brother (vv. 20, 21). If a man loves God, he will obey Him, and His command, which to the Christian is, "Love your brother." That is "the first and great commandment" (Matt. 22:36-40; Deut. 6:5; Luke 10:25-28). There is no use in our talking about loving God if we have no love for the brethren, for in doing so we make God testify against us that we are liars (v. 20).

FARM TOPICS

Check Pest Growth Now; Save Spring Trouble.

By JAMES W. DAYTON
(Agricultural Agent at Large, Massachusetts State College.)

In the spring people talk about weeds as well as about the weather, only they do something about the weeds. But in the fall, weeds are overlooked. They are often accepted as part of the scenery and nothing much is done about them. In fact, they are not always even talked about. But the late summer and the fall is really the time to save a lot of future trouble. For that time of year annual weeds are forming thousands of seeds and laying the foundations for next year's abundance. Perennial weeds are busy storing up food in their roots for good, strong growth next spring.

The simplest thing to do about these fall weeds is to see that they never ripen seeds. Mow them, or pull them before the seeds are ripe. It is usually best to rake them up and destroy them after they are cut, for weed seeds will ripen after the plant is killed. They put their last resources into preparing for the coming generation.

The mowing machine, the scythe, or just a plain knife may be used—all depending upon the size of the job; but don't forget fence corners and the patches of waste land. These may be more expensive areas than you might suspect if they spread weeds over the rest of the farm, and this is the time of year to cut down their costs.

Encourage the weed seeds to sprout in the land to be seeded this fall. Then harrow them up at intervals before seeding time comes around. Soon all the weed seeds in the surface soil will have sprouted, and if, when grass and clover are seeded, care is taken not to bring to the surface new soil with additional weed seeds, the crop next year should be exceptionally clean.

Fall plowing is often a help in killing perennial weeds such as witch grass and other "tough customers." If weed roots can be exposed to the cold and drying of winter winds, the plants will have a hard time starting in the spring. Harrowing with a spring-tooth harrow to bring these roots to the surface is often a help.

Taking care of weeds in the fall will make that spring weeding job much less arduous. In the long run time spent fighting weeds at this time of year will do more good than it will in the spring. And almost equally important, fall weed control makes the whole place neat and attractive and supplies a "Good Farmer" label that no passerby can miss.

Can Control Gullies by Eliminating Cause

Keeping water out of gullies is a sure way of controlling them, and this can be done by terracing, explains R. C. Hoy, extension agricultural engineer of the University of Illinois college of agriculture. The approaching slack season after harvest is a good time of the year to do terracing work.

Gullies on cultivated slopes can be starved and eventually eliminated by terracing. The terraces not only slow up and divert runoff water from gullies but also materially reduce sheet erosion losses. Farmers' experiences and experiments conducted under the supervision of farm advisers and the college of agriculture show that terraced fields lose only about one-seventh as much soil by erosion as comparable unterraced fields.

R. C. Hoy explains that water diverted from fields must be handled with care or the formation of gullies at the outlets may result.

Proper Planning Helps Avoid Pasture Shortage

Livestock men who are finding themselves short on pasture in late summer and fall might well lay plans now for better protection against shortages next year. W. H. Peters, chief of the animal husbandry division, University farm, St. Paul, urges rotation grazing of permanent pasture.

For alternate grazing, Peters advises fencing off a pasture into two fields and running the stock into one for two weeks and into the other for a like period. This will result in giving less strain on pasture plants.

Small Turkeys

In experiments to develop small-type white turkeys, the U. S. department of agriculture is not trying to displace the larger varieties; it is trying to develop small birds, to fit the needs of small families. Investigators conclude that there is room for the small-type and medium-sized turkey, and that some growers will find it very much to their advantage to specialize in small turkeys for small ovens and small families.

Smile Awhile

Not His Want
"Well," asked the landlady, showing a prospective lodger her best bedroom, "what do you think of it as a whole?"
"Oh, I suppose it's all right as holes go," was the reply, "but it was a bedroom I wanted."

As a Beginner
Two cavalry recruits were having a chat.
"Talking about riding," said one, "I once saw a chap in a circus who jumped on a horse's back, slipped underneath, caught hold of its tail, and finished up on its neck."
"So what?" retorted the other. "I did all that in my first riding lesson!"

Internal Use
"And how did you find the bath salts, madam?" asked the druggist.
"Well, they taste very nice," said the shopper, "but I don't think they have the same effect as a real bath."

"Well, she's half right, anyway."

Wasn't Asking for Trouble That Early in the Morning

Two travelers had just met. One was doing most of the talking.
"Yes," he said, "I arrived home one morning after midnight and, as I opened the door, I saw a stranger kissing my wife. I closed the door softly and hurried downstairs. At 1 a. m. I came back. I opened the door softly—and there was the stranger, still kissing my wife. So I went downstairs again. At 1:15—"
"Just a minute," interrupted the other man. "Why did you keep galloping downstairs? Why didn't you walk right into the room?"
"What?" cried the talkative man. "And have my wife catch me coming home at that hour?"

Quickening Emotions

When men are rightly occupied, their amusement grows out of their work, as the color petals out of a fruitful flower; when they are faithfully helpful and compassionate; all their emotions are steady, deep, perpetual and vivifying to the soul as is the natural pulse to the body.—John Ruskin.

Private Performance
"And is there any instrument you can play?" asked the hostess who was pressing a guest to entertain the party.
"Not away from home," he replied.
"That's strange. What do you play at home?"
The guest sighed deeply as he answered:
"Second fiddle!"

Don't bother about the size of the man in the fight. What counts is the size of the fight in the man.

Handed Down
"And do you really mean to say I'm the first girl you've ever kissed?"
"Yes, darling. Any skill I may have is inherited."

INSTALLMENT SIX

THE STORY SO FAR: Buck Hart, the sheriff's brother, Jim Tellow, and Pete Tollman, alleged rustlers, had been "drygulched"—shot in the back. Lee Hart is believed to have tried a shot from the back at Cal Terry in retaliation.

"The big ranches claim they can't keep going unless the stealing of stock is stopped. There is a lot of rustling, isn't there?" Ellen asked. "Yes," he added cynically. "Why make any bones about it?" "So that the Diamond Reverse B and the other big outfits really are fighting for their lives, in a way of speaking."

"They are fighting for dividends to pay to absentee owners, most of them. Who ought to own this country—rich men in Edinburgh and New York, or settlers right here on the ground?"

CHAPTER XII

Ellen was finding it difficult to draw sharp lines between good and bad. Jeff Brand was an example. Her interest in him was growing, and with it a reluctance to condemn him utterly. No doubt he was a thief, but she guessed he stole not for profit so much as for the thrill.

And there was Calhoun Terry. Most of those living near Black Butte would call him traitor because he had changed sides. But was that judgment final?

Right and wrong existed, of course, yet there was a borderline of conflict where the differences ran thin. Ellen brought the more impersonal aspect of the difficulty to her father. The time was after supper when he was reading one of Horace Garvey's editorials in the Gazette.

"Garvey takes a strong line about these assassinations," he said. "He sure enough hits out right from the shoulder. Just what he should do, too. Tells the big ranches they can't sow the wind without reaping the whirlwind."

Ellen was silent for a minute. A frown puckered her forehead. "Isn't there any way to stop this dreadful bitterness?"

Lane Carey shook his grizzled head. "Not so easy, honey. The big cattle outfits want a wide-open free range for their stock. They don't want the land plowed up or the country along the creeks fenced. They have grabbed what they can, one way and another, by using their riders as dummies for homestead and pre-emption rights. But that isn't enough if they are going to run herds as big as they have been doing. So there you are. If the little fellows fence and plow the land the big ranches can't have it for range. Cattle came here first. The large concerns feel the nesters and homesteaders are interlopers, and they have gone some farther than the law allows to let them know it."

"You think the Diamond Reverse B and the No. By Joe, with the other big outfits, are to blame, then?"

"They made it mighty hard for the small fry to earn a living in these lean years when they quit employing men who had places and stock of their own. But there is another side to it. Rustlers have been very active, and I'm afraid a good many of the nesters have helped themselves to calves to build up their herds and to steers for food when they got hard up."

"So everybody is wrong and nobody is right," she said. "He drew on the pipe for a few moments to make sure it would not go out. "I wouldn't say that. You might put it that there are conflicting rights hard to reconcile."

Ellen brushed tobacco from his coat. "You don't see any hope of peace, then?"

"I wish I did," he said at last. "But all the talk is the other way. I heard that fellow Jack Turley say at the dance he was going to carry a rifle with him when he rode after this. The men he was talking with seemed to agree."

"I don't like the man," Ellen cut in, deflected from the main thought. "He has been hanging around me a little."

Ellen kissed her father good night, lit a lamp, and went upstairs to her room. It was some time before she could get to sleep. Into her mind trooped thoughts connected with ambushings and sudden death, and even after she slipped into sleep her dreams were wild and turbulent. She saw Jeff Brand and Calhoun Terry talking each other in the sere. A gun would crash, but before her flying feet could take her to the scene the protagonists had changed. It was her father lying wounded, and Jack Turley was straddling his body rifle in hand.

Strangely enough, Ellen saw next day at Black Butte all the four men of whom she had dreamed. Terry came up on the stage, on his way back to the Diamond Reverse B from Denver. Brand and Turley dropped into the post-office shortly after the stage had arrived. The ranch foreman was eating dinner at the restaurant, but after he had finished he strolled across to the post-office to wait while the fresh horses were being hitched. He asked for his mail. Ellen made a pretense of looking, though both of them knew this was not the office to which his letters came.

She came back to the window. "No mail for you, Mr. Terry. . . . May I see you a minute . . . alone?"

He was surprised at her request, but scarcely more than she was. For it had been born of a sudden urgent impulse.

"Of course," he replied. "Here? Her father came into the building. "At the house—if you don't mind. To Lane Carey she said: "Will you take care of the mail a little while, please?"

Carey glanced at her, at Terry, and back at his daughter. "Why, yes," he agreed. He did not know what was back of this, and he did not quite like it.

Ellen spoke to Brand, including Turley in a general bow to a couple of others present.

Ellen stopped with Terry in front of the porch, coming swiftly to what was in her mind.

"Isn't there any way, Mr. Terry, of stopping all this killing that is being done?" she asked. "Does it have to go on, building up hate, making this country an awful place to live in?"

"If he was moved by her indignant appeal his immobile face gave no evidence of it.

"I think the trouble will go on, in one way or another, until stealing cattle is stopped," he said.

"You favor murder?" she cried. "Did I say so?" he countered.

"You said—" She cut off her own sentence. "It doesn't matter what you said. Your friends are hiring murder done. Can you deny it?"

Terry had not at first believed this. But doubts of his associates had seeped into his thinking.

The Diamond Reverse B manager replied to her question with another. "Can you prove it?"

"Of course I can't." Stormy-eyed, she pressed the attack. "But you know it's true. I don't know what part you have in it, but your friends are trying to stop theft by murder."

"I don't know any more about it than you do," he answered, anger and obstinacy in his steel-blue eyes. "If you want this trouble stopped, go to your father and his friends. Get them to persuade the rustlers to move out. What do you expect? Do you think we'll let these scoundrels steal wholesale from us and laugh in our faces when we take them to court? We are going to protect our property."

"By killing men from ambush?" "No." A dull flush of rage beat into his face beneath the tan. "By hanging known thieves by the neck to trees when we have enough evidence. Is there anything else you would like to know, Miss Carey?"

She stood, very erect and proud. "No, Mr. Terry. I know all I want to know—about you." Turning, she walked into the house.

Calhoun Terry walked back toward the stage. It was in front of the post-office. The horses were being brought out to hitch. He saw Jeff Brand move forward to meet him.

"Like a word with you, Mr. Terry," he said. Terry said nothing. There is sometimes a force in silence more potent than any speech.

in large numbers to invade the rustlers' areas and kill them. Terry objects to the plan. Ellen Carey, daughter of the postmaster, is intrigued by Jeff Brand who with Jack Turley, another rustler, are most outspoken against Terry.

"Are you quite through?" the ranch manager asked coldly. "Not yet. I'm mentioning now that we'll take a hand in this game. Two can play it as well as one. From now on there's an open season on Diamond Reverse B men and on those of the other big outfits. We'll be trying for the bosses, but when we don't find them handy—a plain lunthead waddy will do. The brake's done bust. We're off, and hell and high water can't stop us."

"I wouldn't talk that way if I were you, Brand," Terry advised quietly.

"I'm talking. You're listening. This is a message to you and to all the other damned rascals you're sleeping in a bed with. I'm making war talk. Understand?"

Calhoun Terry understood perfectly. The rustler was offering him a chance to draw if he wished.

Terry shook his head. "No dice, Brand. I don't know who killed these men, and I'm not going to make myself responsible for it. I won't let you hang it on me by forcing it as an issue. You can't put me in the wrong that way."

The cowboy jeered at him. "What do you wear that gun beside you for, Terry? Or don't you draw it unless a man has his back to you?"

They were close to the porch. Terry knew the other two men could hear every word Brand had said. He felt a tumultuous boiling up of the blood, the recklessness ready to break out in him explosively.

Lane Carey came out on the porch, a big weather-beaten Westerner who had fought his way through the rough and tumble of frontier life.

"Don't be a fool, Jeff," he said, no excitement in his even voice. "Can't you see that Mr. Terry doesn't want to fight unless you goad him to a showdown?"

"I see he doesn't want to fight whether I goad him or not," Brand answered.

Terry said coldly: "I choose my own causes for a fight, and I won't be maneuvered into defending assassins. But I'm not overly patient when bullies try to run over me."

"Jeff isn't a bully, Mr. Terry," the postmaster explained placidly. "He's some excited, and kinda went off half-cocked. We can't rightly blame him for that, after his friends have been drygulched. But since you're no party to these killings nothing he has said applies to you."

"You make a quite clear, Mr. Carey, that he couldn't possibly have meant me," Terry said, with a thin, ironic smile.

"That's right, isn't it, Jeff?" Carey persisted, his quiet urgency crowding the cowboy toward some withdrawal of his attack. "Since Mr. Terry isn't the guilty party, you could not have meant him."

Jeff grudgingly gave ground. "What I said goes for the murderers, whoever they are."

Terry followed the other passengers into the stage. Turley laughed unpleasantly. "Mr. Terry certainly took meek the worst cussin' out I ever heard."

Headed for the post-office, Carey stopped in his stride.

"Don't make a mistake about Calhoun Terry, boys. He's game as they come. He was giving Jeff straight goods. Unless Cal Terry has changed a lot from the young fellow I used to know, he isn't hiring anybody to rub out his enemies. If it's to be done, he'll do it in the open."

CHAPTER XIII

For hours Calhoun Terry had been riding across territory ranged by stock of the Bartlett Land & Cattle Company.

Ellison was at home. His host got out a bottle and pushed it toward Calhoun, who waved it aside with a gesture almost impatient.

"I've brought a message for you from Jeff Brand," Calhoun said. "From Jeff Brand? What is that scoundrel sending me a message about?"

"He is serving notice that he and his friends are going to make reprisals for the rustlers who have been murdered." Terry's gaze rested steadily on the No. By Joe manager. "They are going after the bosses, but if they can't get them, riders for the big outfits will have to do."

"The nerve of him!" Ellison cried. "It shows what this country has come to when a known outlaw can send such an impudent message to honest men."

"We didn't need that to show us," Terry answered bluntly. "To have three men shot down from ambush in two weeks is evidence enough."

Terry stopped, searching the other's gray countenance. "When outfits throw in together to play the same hand, Clint, it ought to be played above-board for all of them to see."

The other man said, after a moment's hesitation, "Some things are better not talked about, Cal." (TO BE CONTINUED)

Prolific Insects

Every season the white ant or termite proudly produces a million baby termites to swell the world's ant population. Toads and frogs, both have large families, the former in the neighborhood of 6,000 at a time, and the latter half that number.

Snakes are three to four times as prolific as rabbits, for whereas the latter rarely produce more than a dozen baby rabbits at a birth, a snake often produces 40. The king of the jungle, Lord Lion, is usually the proud father of quads, and his hereditary enemy, the tiger, can boast of the same number. Finally, the elephant, last descendant of the prehistoric monsters, rarely has more than one baby elephant at a time.

If you have any doubt about what to give a man in any of the nation's military or naval services, send a carton of cigarettes or a pound tin of smoking tobacco. Tobacco rates first as a gift with them. And when you check up, actual sales records show that in Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard service stores (where the men buy their own) Camels outsell all other cigarettes. It is well-known that Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco is the "National Joy Smoke." Local tobacco dealers are now featuring Camel cartons and pound tins of Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco as number one gifts for men in Uncle Sam's services.—Adv.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

World War II Enters Into New Phase As Roosevelt-Churchill Conferences Indicate Continued Soviet Resistance; Unrest Report in Occupied Nations

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper. Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Back in Washington after his momentous sea conferences with British Prime Minister Winston Churchill, President Roosevelt conferred immediately with Secretary of State Cordell Hull. The two are shown here in an auto leaving the railway station for the White House. Secretary Hull carried a number of important papers for the President and the Far East situation was said to be the vital topic of their first discussions.

WORLD WAR II:

New Angle

The many-faceted chances of war, which had seen Hitler reaching another peak of successes, suddenly seemed to veer more to the British-American side following the dramatic conclusion of the Roosevelt-Churchill talks at sea.

Not only did the eight-point pact between the two executives strike with a powerful sound across the front pages of the globe, but the promise of aid to Russia was reportedly based on the assurance felt by Britain and the United States that the Soviet troops would be able to hold the Germans at bay throughout the winter.

Indeed, Mr. Roosevelt on his return to this country, made such a positive statement, declaring that "consumers' goods," such as food-stuffs, would be made available for Russia during the rest of the summer, that it was assumed the Russian winter would bring at least a partial halt to hostilities, and that more substantial aid could be made ready by Britain and the United States for the opening of the spring campaign.

All in all, there was a quiet confidence as to the outcome of the war, and its continuance through a considerable period of time, that was in sharp contrast to the feelings of menace and of instability that had been marking the news at the outset of the President's dramatic "vacation trip" in the Potomac.

Beside this sort of feeling throughout Britain and the United States and particularly since the President said he did not believe this country was "any nearer in the war" than it was before the conference, the rumbling criticism of congressmen and the byplay of press criticism over mere matters of pictures and the identity of reporters at the scene seemed "small potatoes."

PRESS:

Its Reaction

The press reaction to the Roosevelt-Churchill conference and the eight-point statement was far from unanimously favorable.

The criticisms, however, ranged all the way from an echoing of the Berlin reaction that it was a "poor plagiarism on Wilson's 14 points" down to a milder reproach that Roosevelt should have risked his life on the battlefield of the Atlantic.

In the main, however, the leading independent papers of the country agree with the philosophy and the idealism of the statement, though almost all of them agreed that it was a carefully timed and dramatically staged "counter peace offensive" against that expected to be launched by Hitler now that his campaign against Russia was about one-third accomplished.

There were many smaller sidelines of criticism, however. Some papers had headlines about "one-way censorship," apparently believing that certain British newspapers and press associations had been permitted to be represented.

Most of this died a quick death when it appeared that the London papers were much upset by the fact that the American press, not represented by photographers, got the pictures first.

NEW ROUTE:

For Planes

What was declared by the White House to be "an important step to speed delivery of planes to the British forces in the Middle East" came when the President announced a new plan for ferrying aircraft to Africa.

Under terms of the arrangement worked out with Pan American Airways, planes needed by the British will be flown from the U. S. to Bermuda, thence to Natal, Brazil and across the Atlantic to Africa. Pan American will return the fliers to the United States.

It was pointed out in the President's statement that the route was so arranged that at no time would the U. S. fliers pass "through the zone of actual warfare."

UNREST:

Taking Substance

The unrest stories from occupied portions of Europe, which had been largely couched in general terms, as though the writers of the reports, figuring that the Germans had removed large numbers of guards for the war, with Russia, and had let their imaginations run riot, now began to take some real substance.

The stories came from Norway, from occupied France, and from within Germany itself, though the details in the latter had to be gleaned from the highly propagandized Russian war communiques and were somewhat discounted therefore.

The Norwegian story was that the Quisling government was tottering. These sources were Swedish newspaper stories, and the Swedes, though generally unfriendly to the Axis, were staggering along the fence of neutrality and so far had been able to keep their country uninvaded.

The Swedish stories had considerable detail. They told of Quisling himself doubling and trebling his bodyguard, and being on the verge of a nervous breakdown; of one of the cabinet ministers seeking to take poison and of others who had been ordered to take "rest" of three months because of the utter failure of their several objectives.

The French story also had substance and came from Nazi-captivated Vichy itself which, throwing off censorship, announced that the Paris police were offering a million francs' reward for information leading to the arrest of train wreckers who were menacing the food supply of the former capital of France.

Those commenting on the dispatch said it brought to mind the statement of Petain that he "felt an ill wind rising in many sections of France." The disorders, at first blamed in dispatches entirely on Communists and Jews, brought from General Stueplnagel, commander of the German armed forces, that if the train wrecking continued, the entire public of France would be held responsible.

This statement, added to the million-franc reward story, gave the unrest almost the tone of a revolution, and coming on the heels of the Petain-Darlan-Laval surrender to the Axis, made some think that perhaps loyal Frenchmen had been asked to surrender more than they would stand for.

JAPAN:

Official Washington was given a good idea of the narrow peace margin maintained by present Japanese-American relations when a ship sent to Japan for the purpose of evacuating somewhere between 120 and 420 American nationals was refused permission to enter a port.

The Japanese announced that they would let the ship in if its only purpose was to return the 20 U. S. officials involved, but that the private officers and missionaries would have to remain in Japan.

Courage Plus

HATTIESBURG, MISS.—When she was graduated from Mississippi Southern college this month, Miss Winnifred Moore (above), native of New Orleans, again proved the mastery of courage over handicap.—Born blind, she has specialized in music and reads music in Braille with her toes while using her hands on the piano keys. Her constant companion is her dog Rex, shown here with her.

FORTRESS:

In Battle

During the first few daylight bombings of Germany and occupied territory by the huge American flying fortresses, the stories were that the big planes flew so high and so silently that the Germans were not aware of their presence until the bombs began to fall, and that by that time the Nazi fighters could not get within reach of them.

Presumably, after unloading their bombs, the big ships were able to turn about and with their high speed, get back to England before the fighters could climb level with them.

Finally the report came of one of them being in a fight, and apparently suffering some damage. But the report told of one fortress bomber being attacked by seven Nazi fighting planes, and beating them all off and getting back, somewhat damaged, and with some casualties, to its base again.

This began to bear out what American-flying officers had said about the B-17, still undelivered to Britain, and the huge Navy ship even bigger than the B-17, still untested at the Martin plant. Both of these, before many months, will be in the lease-lend program.

Flying officers had said that the four-motored American bombers, with their high speed and maneuverability, particularly after their bombs were dropped, and because of the number of their crew, their armament and its location at various parts of the plane, would be more than a match for enemy fighters.

Apparently none of them had believed one such bomber could fight off seven fighters; but all were surprised when they learned this had been accomplished, even though with casualties and damage.

The still larger bombers projected, they said, would be still more able to withstand and fight off attack.

The tale of the battle in the sky headlined a summing up of British air efforts in which it was stated that more than 1,000 British bombers had dropped over 2,000,000 pounds of bombs on enemy territory in four weeks, while in the same period only about 400 bombers from Germany had gotten over British territory.

LONDON:

Press comment revealed that the country is reconciled to a long war.

The Evening News said: "It is good that we should be told that a long war is now inevitable. It should silence those dangerous optimists who preach the fallacious doctrine that immediate 'shooting' by the United States would be certain to end the war next year."

The Express:

"We are entitled to take new heart. We are not entitled to relax our efforts. Pessimism is idiotic. Optimism may be dangerous. Realism is what we need at this moment. Our position now is sound, if difficult. We want victory, but stalemate, and that is not yet. Only our utmost effort and sacrifice can give it to us."

SUIT:

London, always horror-struck at being badly dressed, is calmly considering a proposal for the mass production of a single-styled suit of clothing for all the civilians of Britain—one that will save cloth and labor.

DUKES:

With the duke of Kent, this country, and slated for an official visit to Washington, it was reported that his elder brother, the former king of England, duke of Windsor and governor of the Bahamas, would visit Washington at the same time.

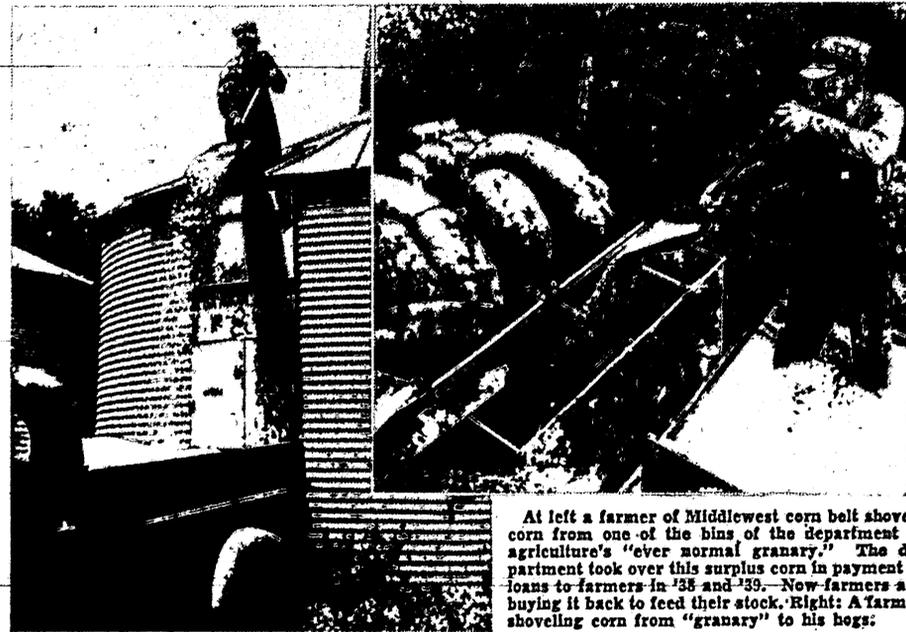

In seven or eight kinds of a dither were the socially elite of Baltimore, 40 miles from the national capital, because of the fact that the duchess was born there, and might be "running over" to visit "old friends."

Modern History Made Amid Ancient Ruin

British troops are shown leaving from their Bren carrier as they take over the lingering ruins of the ancient Roman coliseum in Palmyra, an historic city in the Syrian desert. This took place before the armistice which ended hostilities between the British and the axis-dominated French in control of Syria.

Meet the Champ

MANY are called—and many will be chosen. At least 400 football head coaches, not to overlook more than 2,500 assistants are scanning the present and future draft lists with anxious eyes.

After all both army and navy officials want football to keep moving at its old pace, without any exemptions for those who happen to be forward passers or blocking backs whenever their number comes along.

It is only reasonable that football's head men should be busy checking on a season that is now less than a month away. It is only human for a coach to hope for as good a break as his rivals draw in the big gridiron lottery of 1941.

Just at present there is no way to arrive at any informative facts. I asked Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, just how the draft situation was in the air of the Lion.

The College Count

Columbia is one of the country's larger universities. But if the university count is around 900 here, it should be nearly the same at California university, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio State, Minnesota, Northwestern and Southern California.

There would be no such total at Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Cornell, Dartmouth, Stanford, and most of the southern and southwestern universities that fall well below any 10,000 enrollment.

They will lose the same percentage, however. The college contribution to army, navy, air force and marines will be something over 250,000 students, dating from July to October.

This may be an underestimate. It will be in the next six months.

No Hurt to the Game

But all of this will have no hurtful effect on the football campaign of 1941.

It would make little difference—even if it did. But it won't work that way.

There will be just as much keen competition as there ever was. There will be just as much nationwide excitement and interest—there will be just as many big crowds.

Some universities will suffer, in a football way, more than others. This is completely unimportant with the world as it is today.

But on most football squads, there are always many who must be overlooked.

For Football

After all college football was started and for many years carried on as the greatest of all competitive sports.

In the last 10 or 20 years the pressure put upon coaches to bring along winning teams has done the game no good in any way. It has developed not only proselytizing, but direct pay to an unbelievable extent.

The bidding for winning coaches has gone beyond all sound reasoning. There has been far too much so-called "national championship," "winning big-time stuff," in a game supposed to be played by young college students seeking, in the main, an education.

I have never believed that any college football star should receive in any way any more financial assistance than a good average student should get, whose main idea was an education.

There have been too many "paid players" all over the country. And many of these have been no better than hundreds of others who loved the game and could play good football—and often never had a chance.

The fellows "who were taken care of," who had cost money had to have the first call.

With the draft cutting in, with the element of chance now involved, this seems to be the right spot for a general cleaning up, where the alumni pressure and the coaching pressure for a winning team can be removed.

Speaking of SPORTS

By ROBERT McSHANE

Released by Western Newspaper Union

THE next four or five weeks will see some of the best all-out scraps the National league has ever known. The slightly delirious Dodgers and the pennant-mad Cardinals will be attempting to knock each other out while the Pirates prepare to take advantage of any momentary weakness.

Just a few short weeks ago the Dodgers were being handed the National league pennant. It was all decided that they would meet the New York Yankees in the World series. The most important question was: Would it be possible to hold the entire series in Yankee stadium in order to accommodate more spectators?

Then up jumped the St. Louis Cardinals to disrupt all the pretty plans. Brooklyn's grip on the pennant was so secure after all. Billy Southworth's boys were loaded for big game—and the big game wore Brooklyn uniforms.

To make matters worse, "Onkle" Frank Frisch's Pittsburgh Pirates decided to play some real baseball. They annexed 33 out of 45 games beginning last June 27. During that winning streak they picked up 18 out of 21 games, storming to a spot where they began to menace the leaders.

Over Their Heads?

There seems to be a feeling that the Pirates are playing over their heads. At least that is the opinion of Leo Durocher, a quiet, unassuming gentleman connected with the Dodgers. Leo does not believe the Pirates can continue playing their very successful ball. That may be wishful thinking, but Leo isn't very much impressed with the Buccaneers. He figures he would rather have them to beat than the Cards. "I wouldn't mind," he said bravely, "if they were up there with us instead of the Cards."

The chances are excellent that Mr. Durocher's wishes will not be granted. The Cardinals can see the pennant fluttering courageously in the distance and refuse to be wished out of a contender's position.

Mr. Frisch and his Pirate crew deserve more than they will get in the '41 battle. They were 18 1/2 games out of first place on June 28. It was quite a feat to draw up within striking distance of the league leaders. However, this is not a new experience for Frisch. He was managing the St. Louis Cards back in 1934. On Labor day of that year the Cards were eight games back. In October they were beating the Tigers to win the World series.

The Fordham Flash

What is responsible for the Pirate's recent victory spurge? A large part of that answer is Frisch, the old Fordham Flash. He took over a listless sixth-place club in 1940 and wound up the season in the first division.

A graduate of the McGraw School of Baseball, Frisch eats, sleeps and talks the game. He suffers unbearably in defeat and is inconsolable when things aren't going right. A two-fisted fighter, his tongue has the sharpness and sting of a whiplash. He keeps his boys on their toes. Though they realize Frisch spatters verbally for that exact purpose, the Pirates are alert—and that's what "Onkle" Frank wants.

When the team was rolling along at the crest of the season's victory streak, Frisch decried any team greatness. "The boys are hitting good with men on bases," he said. "We've had good pitching, but above all, we've had real team spirit. And you can't do a thing in the world without spirit."

In this connection, Frisch brought up the matter of Joe Medwick back in the old Cardinal days. "There we were winning a pennant and going after extra dough and every thing a player wants and Medwick would like as not complain that his shoulder or arm was bad. He'd want to rest a day. How can you even think of rest with a real goal ahead? It doesn't stand to reason."

It's very easy to believe that Frisch couldn't rest at such a time.

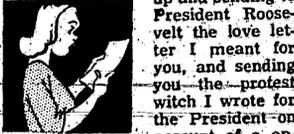

In fact, he'd be uncontrollable. According to his own version, it's the double-headers that wear you down. They're not really actual games.

"They're the two games in one day—the one the team plays in the afternoon and the one you play at night up in your room. You always win the night games because you have it all figured out how things should have gone, but it cuts into your sleep and wears out the rags. I've walked 500 miles around every room in the National league."

PRIVATE PURKEY WRITES HIS GIRL-FRIEND

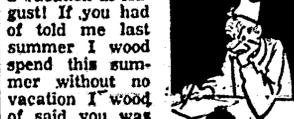

Dear Nellie— This is just to explain again that I am awfully sorry about getting mixed up and sending to President Roosevelt the love letter I meant for you, and sending you the protest which I wrote for the President on account of a ap- peal from Senator Wheeler and which I wish I had ignored in the first place. Everybody has apologized in this matter now, including the Secretary of War and me.

Do not worry about what Mr. Roosevelt will think about getting a letter from me addressed to "Darling Nellie" and signed with two rows of kisses as he will know it was a error, and even if he did not know this he would be glad to get a letter from anybody these days that just expressed affection and not a lot of complaining. You say I never should of wrote no letter in response to the Wheeler postcard and I admit it, but I was just in a writing mood that day.

Well I wish I could see you often- er Nellie dear and if I ever get out of here. I will marry you like I said but you can forget all that stuff about a little house in the country becauz after all the walking I have done all I want after this is a flat right near a subway or a block from the office so I will never have to do much on foot again for the rest of my life. You here a lot of talk about this being a mechanical war but you can't tell this to me with my feet in the shape they are in. It is no more a mechanical war so far as I can see than the Revolutionary War and my part in it is done just the same as at Valley Forge, except at Valley Forge the grounds was harder and there was not so many potatoes to peel.

What I wood give to be back in civllyun life where people still get a vacation in August! If you had of told me last summer I wood spend this summer without no vacation I wood of said you was crazy. In a army you get twice as much work in the vacation season as any other time and if you ain't come to a boil by noon you ain't rated as in perfect shape. If a jeep looks cool and dry all the officers get together and discuss whether to give him some new injections, change his diet, put him in the guardhouse or work him harder, and the last always wins.

There has been a lot of rain lately and I do not know which is the worse, summer mud or spring and autumn mud, but I gess summer mud is more exciting as there are more turtles and snakes in it. Whoever said there was few snakes in America was nuts. I even found one in my bunk. In some of the mud I have been doing manouvers in lately I wood not be surprised to come up with a wild duck in my shoes. I got everything else in 'em, but my dogs is so numb they don't feel nothing no more.

Well, this is not much of a letter to you Nellie so I will close now just to say you are in my mind always even in the heat of mimic battle and that even at night when I am nursing my feet which are so sore I ache all over I think of you dear.

With oceans of love,
Oscar.

ASSISTS

Some people think necessity is the mother of intervention.

Hitler says he has the Russians running around in circles. In other words he thinks "The Mujic Goes 'Round and 'Round."

The Vichy regime has also come out against hunting in its accepted forms. From now on all hunters must belong to one club controlled by the government. Maybe this is a natural outcome of the widely circulated report that a member of the Vichy government went hunting recently and encountered a rabbit instead of putting up a fight against the bunny, he entered into a collaborative agreement, the tale runs.

Ima Dodo thinks the franking privilege has something to do with hot dogs.

EVER NOTICE IT?

If at cafes your meals you take, This trouble you must bear: No matter how you order steak, You get it BURNT or RAJE!

Vichy has decided to prevent pharmacists from selling anything except medical supplies. Can this mean that Petain is about to blame the fall of France on drugstore sandwiches and apothecary shop coffee?

Grand Coulee World's Number One Dam

Grand Coulee, biggest dam in the world, is now in action. The Columbia river, which has been dammed, is one of the swiftest and fiercest in the world, and to curb it a barrier has been erected which is three-quarters of a mile long and 500 feet high.

Boulder dam, which harnesses the Colorado river, with all its collateral works, was completed in 1935. It is thrown across a terrific gorge called Black Canyon, which is 2,000 feet wide, and the lake behind it is 115 miles long and took three years to fill.

The result will be a lake 351 miles long, the irrigation of 1,200,000 acres of land, and sufficient electric power to supply an area five times the size of England.

So tremendous is the weight of water in this lake that geologists have suggested that it may cause a bending in the crust of the planet.

Habits of Salmon

A group of Pacific salmon, or king salmon, that inhabits the Northern Pacific waters, dies after the breeding season (July to December) is over, says Patterson. These salmon never return to the sea.

Other types of salmon, however, return to the sea after spawning, and remain there until the next breeding season. All salmon live partly in the sea and partly in fresh water; breeding in the latter. They ascend rivers and tributary streams to spawn.

METHODIST CHURCH

Now that the days of vacation are over and it is time for school to begin, let us not forget our obligations to the church. We urge everyone to be regular in his attendance at Sunday School and Church, knowing that Divine Guidance is very necessary for the troublesome days ahead.
We invite each one to worship with us in our Sunday services. We will have our Communion Services this Sunday at 11 a. m. And the Sunday evening services begin promptly at 7:30.
L. A. Hughes, Pastor.

Why the Army prefers blondes. The Navy and Weather Bureau need 'em too, but only 7 strands of their hair to send 46,700 feet in the air in weather forecasting instruments. An interesting and instructive popular science feature with illustrations.
Also—Still trimming the public with new twists on old rackets. The defense boom is bringing a plague of confidence men working stream-lined versions of old-time bunco games. Read what the most common are in the American Weekly, magazine with next week's Los Angeles Examiner.

The ladies of the Red Cross Relief will give a cake walk in front of the old postoffice building Saturday evening, August 30, at 7 o'clock. See if you remember how to strut the cake walk and patronize a worthy cause.

Joe P. Romero has sold his building on El Paso avenue to Mrs. V. Rell. The structure is one of the old landmarks of Carrizozo, which in the early days served as a dance hall—afterwards a pool hall and barber shop, and up to a year ago, as a cafe, saloon and dance hall.

Allen Beck, Joe Forsyth, Paul Woodward and Walter Wilson have enrolled at the State College for the new term. Also Miss Wilma Lorene Snow.

Mrs. Juanita Chavez and daughters of Colorado, who are in New Mexico, visiting Mrs. Chavez's mother, Mrs. Gregoria Montoya and family at Clovis, brother Narciso Montoya and family at Corona, were here from the latter place Saturday, visiting old Carrizozo friends. The family resided here about 20 years ago.

Joe Phillips is attending the School of Mines at Socorro.

Misses Refugia Garcia and Patay Dolan left Tuesday morning on a pleasure trip to Arizona and California.
