The "Gay Sixties"

Many stories are being told in these times and many pictures are being shown about the "Gay Nineties," but let us go farther back and talk, if you don't mind about the "Gay Sixties" and Seventies, which are as fresh to the memory of the writer, as the Nineties.

The Sixties followed closely on the heels of the abandonment of the Pony Express system, but until '68, the only means of crossing the old Missouri river was by ferry boats. These were the days when very few horses could be seen on the streets of Missouri river towns—ox teams were in abundance, when it took an ox team 10 hours to drive over a distance of 10 miles (a mile an hour) Some speeding was done in those days!

Before the old sixties passed into history, Abraham Lincoln was assassinated; the James boys were still at large; the bitter feeling still existed between the north and the south, so much so that people were very particular as to how they expressed opinions. The K. C. St. Joe & Council Bluffs railroad was coming in; also the Hannibal & St. Joe railroad between St. Joe and Quincy, all of which threatened steamboat travel between St. Louis and Omaha. The contention was so great between the railroad and steamboat companies, that people feared a war and many armed themselves for that expressed purpose. Quantrell still led his band of guerrillas under the black flag.

Entertainment was furnished in the sixties by roving bands of vaudeville comedians, and as we recall those days, few if any in that profession at the present day could equal them—they were artists in every sense of the word. Steamboats carried performers, singers, bands and orchestras for the amusement of patrons, dances being held on deck every night. No water except that obtained from cisterns; no light except that furnished from kerosene lamps on streets and residences. Those were the days when the Missouri river towns were rough and when a few words would bring about a fight and killings were frequent. But in spite of all that, there was lots of gaiety. The seventies brought an improvement. The railroads were in and steamboat travel began to dwindle. Bridges at St. Joe, Omaha and Sioux City did away with the ferry boats and gas lights took the place of kerosene lamps, but it was not until 1877 that water systems were installed and the first feeble attempt was made to light the river towns with electricity. This is just to show in a small measure, how things were in the "Gay Sixties."

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Withers were here from their ranch near Ocuca, which they purchased a short time ago. The Withers formerly resided in Socorro County and we take pleasure in welcoming them to Lincoln County.

Mr. Trieb's body was found in the yard at George Smith's place, 1 1/2 mile below the bridge. Espinosa's body was found later.

Attempting to steal the thunder of "Col. V. Britton," who is the sparkplug of the British "V for Victory" crusade, the Germans release this photo to a skeptical world. It shows a great "v" inscribed in a public square in Prague, Czechoslovakia. The V stands for Victoria, an ancient German word for victory, long superseded by the familiar "sieg" of modern Germany.

SIMPLIFYING THE TAX BLOW
The senate finance committee recently voted for the Simplified Chart system for helping the public determine its income tax. It now seems certain that the Do-It-Without-The-Dizzy-Spell idea will become law and that the new arrivals within the income tax classifications will almost be admitted on a Pay-As-You-Enter system.

Secretary Morgenthau says that with the rank and file of taxpayers "it ain't the money; it's the confusion." He contends that a man in the lower brackets should be able to go to a post office, glance at a chart and find out what he owes Uncle Sam without going nuts.

When the income tax was limited to the Upper Brackets and only took in a small proportion of the people, it was all right to let them suffer. There seemed no reason why they shouldn't be given the works, up to and including the headache, the spots before the eyes, the night-sweats, the nervous breakdowns and the mad call for lawyers.

But the Every-Man-An-Einstein policy is to be dropped now that the income tax laws have been eased so that anybody can get in.

Uncle Sam knows that if the rank and file of his citizens were ever asked to go through all that trouble making out an income tax blank, there would be what Willie Howard calls a "re-wolt." Either that or more mental collapses than our institutions could handle.

Hence the "Not A Headache In A Carload" type of tax collection.

It is all right as far as it goes, but it doesn't go far enough. We think the tax blank should be made prettier. And carry a page of funnies.

We submit the following extra suggestions for making tax paying more painless:

1. Make the tax blanks prettier and include a page of funnies.

2. Preface each blank with the words "Don't Bother Reading This. See Your Postmaster."

3. Inclose postage for return.

4. Have the mailman leave each blank with an apology and explain that it's just too bad.

5. Forbid lengthy discussion of the tax blank in the home. Let the husband say, "I guess I'll run down to the post office and have my income tax-apprehensions attended to," and let the wife limit her comment to "Okay. I hope it's nothing serious."

6. Have the post office chart printed in colors and throw in a couple of movie shorts in the corridor.

7. Require the postmasters to serve hot coffee and sandwiches.

CHECK UP DAIRY FEED SUPPLIES

Follow Composition Table For Best Results.

By DR. GEORGE E. TAYLOR
(Extension Dairyman, New Jersey College of Agriculture, Rutgers University.)

Now is the time for American dairymen to take inventory of their dairy feed supplies. Not only is it wise from their own economic standpoint, it's also the patriotic thing to do—patriotic because it is one step toward fulfilling the government's request for a 6 to 8 per cent increase in milk production during the national emergency.

By following a more regular feeding schedule, you'll avoid drops in production due to sudden changes in ration. Don't forget that purchased feed will cost more this fall. Check on your supply of corn, oats and barley.

Consult a composition table before buying feed and purchase the kind which supply nutrients at the lowest rate. Sometimes that which is the cheapest per 100 pounds is the most costly in the long run. For example, suppose wheat bran is priced at $1.54 per 100 pounds, soybean oil meal at $1.79 per 100 and linseed oil meal at $1.70 per 100. Wheat bran contains 15 pounds of total protein per 100, soybean oil meal 40 pounds and linseed oil meal 37 pounds, according to the table.

If you divide the pounds of protein into the cost per 100 weight, you'll find that protein in wheat bran—the cheapest per 100 weight—costs 10 cents a pound, in soybean oil meal 4.5 cents a pound and in linseed oil meal 4.6 cents a pound. Thus buying the soybean oil meal and the linseed oil meal—two for the sake of variety since the cost is approximately the same—dollars will be saved in the long run.

Turkey Industry Is Expanding Rapidly

New features of the poultry situation include the prospect for heavy production of commercial broilers this winter and next spring, the possibility of a poorer cold-storage demand for turkeys this year than last, and a fairly good storage demand for eggs during the period of flush production next spring. The expanded commercial broiler industry now affects the prices of chickens, ducks and turkeys at all times of the year.

There was a time when broilers sold in early spring for two to three times the price of fowl, but now they are practically on a competitive basis. Approximately 100,000,000 commercial broilers are produced annually, and marketed the year 'round. Areas of large production include Arkansas, California, Delaware, Indiana, Maryland, the New England states, and Virginia. The production of ducks also is an expanding and competing industry. Ducks commonly are priced so low that producers complain the only profit is in the sale of the feathers.

Sensational, of course, has been the expansion of the turkey industry. California this year has replaced Texas as the leading producing state; and Minnesota, with nearly 3,000,000 birds raised this year, is a close runnerup. States producing between 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 turkeys include Ohio, Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota, Nebraska, Virginia, Oklahoma, and Oregon. The 1940 turkey crop of more than 32,000,000 birds was the second largest on record, but the effect of this upon price may be offset by the improved consumer demand.

Simple Test for Egg Freshness Explained

An egg is a sealed package of fine food when it is laid by the hen. It is the only product that Nature gives us that is sealed without the touch of human hands. "However," points out T. T. Brown, extension poultryman of North Carolina State college, "eggs that bring a premium on the market are those that the consumer desires—eggs that are fresh, large, clean, uniform in size and color, and sound in shell.

The State college man suggests a simple home method of determining if eggs are fresh. "Place the eggs in a pan of water," he says, "and the good ones will rest flat on the bottom of the vessel; those that have lost some of their quality will stand on end; and very poor ones will rise somewhat. Those that rise are older or poorly kept."

Electric Help

C. T. Keen, Marshall county, Iowa, hog raiser, keeps litters of different ages separated when out on pasture by the use of temporary electric fences. These divide the field into strips, with one or more houses in each section for shelter. In this way, robbing of younger suckling pigs is avoided. It makes feeding and watering more of a chore; but later, as the pigs get old enough to hold their own, the fences are removed.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE FULFILLMENT OF HIS TORY: THE NEW JERUSALEM

LESSON TEXT—Revelation 21:1-7, 10-12, 22:2-5.
GOLDEN TEXT—He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son.—Revelation 21:7.

A happy ending may not suit the fancy of modern writers of fiction, but it does suit God. He "who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will" (Eph. 1:11) will see to it that redeemed man shall "be to the praise of his glory" (Eph. 1:12). The eternal, omnipotent God will bring the history of His dealings with mankind to a glorious ending. The last book of the Bible comes to its last pages where, after dealing with the final struggle of man with his enemy Satan (which has gone on since the entrance of sin into the world in the Garden of Eden), we find the glorious, God-given revelation of the "divine, final restoration of the universe, a picture of the home where we who love the Lord Jesus will forever dwell."

I. "The Tabernacle of God Is with Men" (vv. 1-7).

Our God is always with His people, but there is a promise of the time when He shall "pitch His tent" (for thus we might translate the word "tabernacle") in their very midst and "be with them" in full and unhindered fellowship. This He once did for a time when "the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us" (John 1:14), or literally "tabernacled among us." In the day of which our lesson speaks He will come to live permanently with His people.

The blessings of His divine presence are beautifully described in verses 4 to 6. There will be no more tears, because every occasion for them is gone. There will be no death, pain or sorrow, for the one who sits upon the throne will have made everything new.

Christianity does not evade the question of sorrow and suffering, but it does point to a glorious day when they will be done forever. What a precious promise!

II. "The Holy City . . . Having the Glory of God" (vv. 10-12).

The description of the holy city is differently interpreted, but perhaps the best one is that it will be in the form of a pyramid on a square base 1,500 miles in width and length (12,000 furlongs—v. 16), rising in terraces, and 1,500 miles high at the top.

The description of the city is glorious beyond words (read 21:1 through 22:7), but the crowning fact of all is that it has "the glory of God." His presence means more than all the glories of precious stones and of "pure gold, like unto clear glass." He is more than His gifts, and His presence is more glorious than all His mighty works.

III. God the Almighty and the Lamb Are the Temple (vv. 22).

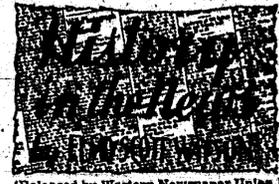

As long as we live under the present conditions of life, we cannot do without a place to meet to worship God and to receive spiritual help and strength—a temple. But when the redeemed are gathered in the Holy City they will have no need for a temple. The place of meeting with God "which now has to be delimited from the world, and set apart for God—yes, and held with determination and force of will against invading hosts—has been expanded to cover the whole area of human experience and activity. God's presence has no longer to be sought; it is known; it is felt, universal and all-pervading as the light of day" (C. Anderson Scott).

IV. No Need of the Sun—the Glory of God Did Light It (vv. 23, 24).

The great need of man in this world is light. He rejoices in the sun as it sheds its life-giving rays upon the earth. He does his work and finds his healthful recreation in the day. When darkness comes, he must have illumination, that he may read, study, work, or fellowship with others. From the flickering pine knot man went on to the candle, to the lamp; and now in most places he floods his city and its homes with the light of electricity. But even so there is too much darkness in the world, and the men who love darkness rather than light (see John 3:19) are able to practice their evil deeds.

In the New Jerusalem all will be light, for the One who is light (I John 1:9) and the source of all light, permits His glory to shine forth and, "lighten it." Jesus, the Lamb, who is the light of the world (John 8:12), is the never failing lamp of the city.

In such light not only the nations of the earth, but their kings as well, will want to walk, doing honor with all their glory to the One who is all-glorious. The verses which follow our lesson tell us that the gates of the city shall never be closed, but only that which is good and honorable shall enter in. Nothing sinful, vile, or false shall come within its blessed portals.

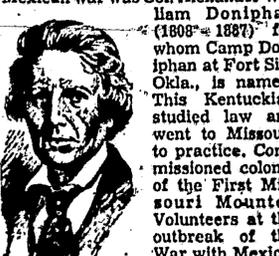

Camp Cavalcade

SHADOWY figures in a cavalcade of American history—such are the men behind the names of the great army cantonnments scattered all over the United States, where young Americans are learning to be soldiers in order to defend their country when the need arises.

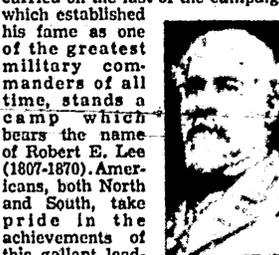

The only man for whom two camps are named (one near Boise, Idaho, and the other near Vancouver, Wash.) was not a native American, although he rose to the rank of brigadier-general in our army. He was French-born Benjamin L. E. Bonneville (1793-1878). Graduated from West Point in 1815, he soon was sent to the Western frontier. In 1831 he obtained a leave of absence to explore the country beyond the Mississippi and his Odyssey furnished the material for one of Washington Irving's best-known books. Absent without leave for nearly two years, he was threatened with a court martial by the secretary of war but President Jackson restored him to his former rank. He served brilliantly in the Seminole war and the War with Mexico, and at the outbreak of the Civil war he was retired with the brevet of brigadier-general for his "long and faithful services in the army."

Even more distinguished in the Mexican war was Col. Alexander William Doniphan (1808-1887) for whom Camp Doniphan at Fort Sill, Okla., is named. This Kentuckian studied law and went to Missouri to practice. Commissioned colonel of the First Missouri Mounted Volunteers at the outbreak of the War with Mexico, Colonel Doniphan marched with Kearney into the Southwest, was left in command at Santa Fe and from there, in December, 1846, started on a march into Mexico which was to make him famous. He defeated a superior force of Mexicans at Bracito river, captured El Paso and, after a weary march of 250 miles through the desert, led his force of less than 1,000 men against an army of 4,000 Mexicans strongly entrenched at the Pass of the Sacramento. The result was a brilliant victory which gave him possession of the whole state of Chihuahua. After the war, Doniphan went back to law practice in Missouri.

Near Petersburg, Va., where he carried on the last of the campaigns which established his fame as one of the greatest military commanders of all time, stands a camp which bears the name of Robert E. Lee (1807-1870). Americans, both North and South, take pride in the achievements of this gallant leader of a "Lost Cause" who had worn the army blue during the War with Mexico, on the Western frontier and as superintendent of the United States Military academy at West Point before he exchanged it for the Confederate gray when his native Virginia seceded from the Union. For three years he outmaneuvered and outfought some of his former comrades in arms until at last, on an April day in 1865, he came to Appomattox.

There he sat down at a table in the McLean house with a brother West Pointer, clad in a dusty uniform of blue. They talked for a while of Mexican war days, then turned to the business which had brought them here. That business was the terms of surrender for the ragged hosts of the Army of Northern Virginia, worn down by the repeated attacks of superior numbers. The man who played the other historic role in the drama of Appomattox was Gen. U. S. Grant (1822-1885) native of Ohio and citizen of Illinois, who was destined to become President four years later. A camp near Rockford, Ill., bears his name.

Medals and Decorations
A service medal is given to all American soldiers who honorably participate in some campaign, irrespective of the value of their individual services. A decoration is an insignia of honor for some individual act or service. A badge shows qualification in some military subject. Authorized army decorations are the following: the Medal of Honor; the Distinguished Service Cross; the Distinguished Service Medal; the Oak-Leaf Cluster; and the Citation Star.

Made Most of Opportunity To Illustrate His Point

The prisoner charged with assault had been severely cross-examined by the prosecuting attorney, but still maintained he had just pushed his victim "a little bit."
"Now," said the prosecutor, "for the benefit of the jury, will you please step down here and, with me as a subject, illustrate just what you mean by 'a little bit'?"
The prisoner descended and the spectators were astonished to see him slap the lawyer in the face, seize him bodily, lift him from the floor and hurl him prostrate across a table.
Turning to the jury, he explained mildly, "Gentlemen, about one-tenth that hard."

Protection of Lend-Lease Shipping Is Extended to 'Ships of All Flags' By U. S. Warships as Far as Iceland; Conflicting Reports Mark War News

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

SHOOTING WAR: Recapitulation

Repercussions among the non-interventionist opponents of President Roosevelt's general foreign policy were surprisingly calm, following his address in which he told U. S. naval skippers to shoot first and ask questions afterward.

The request of Captain Halliday of the sunken Steel Seafarer "give us guns and we will shoot, too," brought the discussion of arming of merchantmen into the fore. In this the pattern of the last war was being sharply paralleled.

The declaration by Germany of unrestricted submarine warfare was closely followed in those days by the arming of merchantmen, which, in turn, was followed by the country's active entrance into the war.

However, it was not immediately apparent that any such move was being sponsored on Capitol Hill.

'For All Flags'

Later the trend of U. S. policy became more clear as Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, in a speech before the national American Legion convention in Milwaukee, indicated that U. S. warships would "provide protection for ships of every flag carrying lend-lease supplies between the American continent and the waters adjacent to Iceland."

While he avoided the use of the word "convoy" this appeared to be the plan for providing the promised protection and to most observers it looked like the logical follow-up to the President's former "shoot on sight" edict against German or Italian raiders.

REYNOLDS NIPPED:

A Repercussion

Cancellation of an address scheduled by Sen. R. R. Reynolds of North Carolina before the Advertising club of Newark, N. J., was another repercussion which bid fair to be a typical reaction of the times following the President's "shooting" speech.

The senator had been booked to speak September 24 "many months ago," said the statement made public by the club declared: "and the club directors at that time felt that, regardless of the senator's decided isolationist position, the club should continue its policy of listening to both sides of every question.

"However, because of the recent Nazi sea incidents and the recent clearly definite speech of President Roosevelt, we feel now that Senator Reynolds' talk might be in a definite conflict with the national defense program.

"The withdrawal is in no sense an indictment of the eminent senator. He is entitled by the Constitution of the United States, to express whatever viewpoints he chooses to endorse.

"Nevertheless I feel sure that the people of New Jersey, one of the thirteen original States of this country, are 100 per cent against Hitler, and, in my opinion, are solidly opposed to the views expressed by Senator Reynolds."

A foreign correspondent was substituted.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

London: It was pure "blackout" for Britishers. The postman brought them their income tax bills. They called for up to one-half of all their earnings in the year ended April 5.

RUSSIANS:

Hold and Advance

Conflicting reports from the Russo-German front continued to paint, as near as it was possible to determine, a general picture of the Russians holding out in the siege of Leningrad, and making a steady and fruitful advance against the Nazis in the central sector around Smolensk.

Whether this was the natural sagging of a salient due to the removal of Germany's best troops to the Leningrad front, or whether, as the Russian communiques insisted, the Red victories were against the Reich's crack legions in full force, was of course a matter of conjecture.

Two names emerged from the daily dispatches—those of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko, general commander on the central front, and that of Gen. Jacob Kreuzer, leader of the Russian blitz forces who were doing much of the driving ahead.

The Russian daily claims of 7 to 10 miles advanced might be discounted, but the names of places.

Strange sight for a war-torn land is this picture taken in Vichy, France, as Marshal Petain, head of the Vichy government, awards a trophy to one of the winners in the meet that marked the revival of athletics in France. Admiral Darlan and other important government leaders attended the meet.

where fighting was reported showed definitely that there was an actual advance, and of no inconsiderable proportions. Three towns easily locatable on detailed maps of Russia which lie well "behind Smolensk" were reported captured.

Absence of any further German claims on the Kiev and Odessa fronts were accompanied by simple Russian statements that the battles there were "continuing." One Russian commander said "Stalin's order not to yield Kiev is being complied with."

Many military observers believed that the long, waving line of the Nazi front was fraught with exceeding danger to the German campaign provided the Red army on the central front really has the enemy in an important retreat.

Perhaps the outstanding Russian claim was the recapture of several points on the west bank of the Dnieper. This, if true, did much to bear out the feeling that the second great Nazi blitz against Russia again was bogging down.

Investia stated "the Napoleonic record of 63 days from Warsaw to Moscow still remains unchallenged by Hitler."

IRAN:

Sends Nazis Out

Eighty Nazis were reported expelled from Teheran in carrying out the terms of the British-Russian-Iranian armistice, and that eight of them were sent to Siberia, "very glum"; the rest going to India.

The German legation had, by a variety of excuses, postponed the departure of the special trains for nearly 24 hours. The British and Russian diplomats had expected about 225 to be expelled, and were visibly disappointed when only 80 left.

The German legation was reported to be housing about 400 men, women and children rounded up in preparation for the expulsion.

A Man's Job

LONDON, ENGLAND.—Britain's man shortage is even felt in the post office department, where women have taken over duties of mail collecting. This pretty miss, wearing practically a "mailman's" garb, is one of the many additions to the British postal staff.

NORWAY:

Pays and Pays

Reports filtered through from Norway to neighboring Sweden by the simple method of couriers slipping across the border, to the effect that Norway's boundless courage and defiance of Nazis and Quislings were the cause of the uprising which swept the country and made the conquered people pay and pay again for their temerity.

The incident is said to have occurred at Oslo, when, during a British raid on the port, people thronged the streets, waving happily at the bombers overhead, regardless of their own danger.

From the throngs, also especially from school shelters, were heard strong voices singing Norway's national anthem and the king's hymn. Suddenly the word came that one British bomber had been downed and that two men of the R.A.F. had been taken to an Oslo hospital.

The crowd surged toward the hospital, bearing flowers and cheering the men within to the echo. They demanded admittance. The demonstration grew to such proportions that the Nazi military dispersed it and from that time on labor troubles grew until the final outburst.

Locomotives were sabotaged. Nazi troop movements were halted. Munitions factories were blown up. A general strike spread through the nation.

These troubles were simultaneously and apparently spontaneously occurring at other points in Nazi occupied countries. These were the developments:

1. Practical martial law declared by the Quisling government over most of Norway. A church "purge" expected.

2. A warning in Rumania that "Communists" would be "shot on sight."

3. Reports from Yugoslavia that guerrillas had slain 398 persons in one village, had sabotaged a freighter and had blown up an important highway.

FINNS:

Will They Quit?

The publication of anti-Nazi articles in Helsinki newspapers, plus the general national jubilation over the recapture of the capital of Karelia, former Finnish province lost to the Russians early in the war brought to the fore the question of whether the Finns would continue their part in the fight to occupy Leningrad.

The feeling was expressed in certain quarters that the Finns already have quit, and they cited the fact that the Germans had reported the entire encirclement of Leningrad and then, two days later, had admitted this was not true.

The "hole" they reported in the encirclement was in the Lake Ladoga region, the exact part of the front which the Finns were working in predominantly.

LINDBERGH:

Loss of Support

A recent speech by Lindbergh, leading orator of the America First committee, instantly lost him the support of the Hearst newspapers, which had been enthusiastically printing everything he had been saying.

Lindbergh was booed and hissed, as well as applauded in Des Moines, Iowa, when he made the statement, among other things, that the only groups really pulling for American entry into the war were the British, the Jews and the Roosevelt supporters.

This brought down on his head a considerable blast of indignation from private and public characters throughout the nation.

But outstanding among his critics was William F. Hearst, who caused an editorial to be displayed on the front pages of his papers under the heading "An Un-American Address" in which he said "The raising of the racial issue is the most unfortunate happening that has occurred in the United States since the present tense international situation developed."

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

By ROBERT McSHANE

Released by Western Newspaper Union

THERE seems to be enough bitter argument and poisonous debate going on in the country without stirring up more trouble. But we have been guilty of this fault recently in asking whether Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams or Bob Feller should be awarded the purple toga that goes to the American league's most valuable player.

The sniping comes from many directions. "Why pick these three," writes an indignant fan from Albion, Mich. "My vote, plus many others, goes to Cecil Travis of the Washington Senators. On a second division ball club he will never get it. Travis has been far more valuable to the Senators than DiMaggio, Williams and Feller have been to the Yankees,

CECIL TRAVIS

Red Sox and Indians. He has been hitting steadily between .360 and .370.

"And don't overlook Cullerhine, Thornton Lee and Frank Hayes. They're out of the spotlight. But they belong there.

"If it has to be DiMaggio, Williams or Feller, make it Feller. Just figure him with the Yankees or Red Sox—at least 35 wins, maybe more."

Not Over Yet

This is only a sample from a day's mail that ranges from vitriol to velvet. This country is packed with millions of baseball fanatics who may not get to see so many games, but who follow the play from game to game.

Here are a few more examples: "If Ted Williams hits around .400 they can't leave him off. DiMaggio is a great ball player. But so is Williams, who is also a better hitter."

"How can they leave off Bob Feller? Any smart manager will tell you he'd rather have Feller on his payroll than any man in baseball. Ask Jimmy Dykes, one of the smartest of the whole lot. Feller happens to be with a ball club that can neither hit nor field nor hustle. But he is still the game's leading pitcher, and will finish that way."

"I'm not a New York rooster, but it was DiMaggio's record hitting streak that lifted the Yankees out of the rut they were in and got them started. He gave them the spark they needed, and broke up the race."

"They all forget the 1940 season. A year ago Hank Greenberg of the Tigers won under wraps. He was much farther in front of his field than any man in the A. L. this year. Hank was a 6 foot, 4 inch stand-out."

In the National

The same argument in the National league has been obscured by the whirlwind tossed up by the Dodgers and Cardinals.

The pennant race here is above any individual. Set in a race of this sort it is almost certain that the award will go to a member of one of the two teams that made the race all year—that carried the leagues from dullness and mediocrity to one of the great battles of baseball.

A month ago Pete Reiser was the top choice. Then Pete was hurt and dust began to settle in his batting eye. The Dodgers' main entries have been Whit Wyatt, Kirby Higbe, Dolph Camilli, Dixie Walker and Ducky Medwick.

Terry Moore had the jump on the Cardinal field until he was hurt. Terry Moore is a great ball player. Terry isn't out of the race yet. Then young Ernie White came along as one of the leading candidates. Johnny Hepp, sliding in at first and the outfield, starting on both jobs, was well around the front until he was spiked. He still has his chance. So has Johnny Mize. And don't overlook Frank Croppi and Jimmy Brown.

The Cardinals have had so many stars injured and out of action that it's hard to imagine them with a complete team. They still have been more of a team combination than any of the other outfits. Not even the old Gashouse delegation outthrust or outthought their way over more rough and rugged terrain. The Cardinals have had the much tougher luck, the rougher breaks with so many cripples. DiMaggio, Feller, Williams, Travis and the others have yet to be named. So there's no reason to get steamed up too far in advance.

WITH the football season upon us, the time is ripe to invite abuse and acrimony by attempting to name a few standout teams and a handful of star backs.

To start things off right, we'll go all the way and point to Minnesota as the team to watch this year. Bernie Bierman has a habit of turning out winning football teams, and this year promises to be no exception.

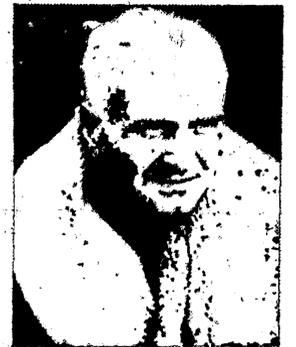

The Golden Gophers won the 1940 Big Nine scramble with six victories and no ties or defeats. It doesn't mean a great deal, but they scored 122 points against 50 for their opponents. In 1939, the Norsemen didn't look too good. They won only two games while losing three. In 1938 Minnesota was on top with four victories against one defeat. Four years ago the Gophers led the list with five victories and no defeats. Statistics are dry—they don't tell of the powerhouse aggregations put together by Coach Bierman.

This year Minnesota is sure to have one of the best backs of the year—Bruce Smith. Last year many placed him on even terms with George Franck, his teammate.

Midwest Might

All in all, the Midwest will have some of the greatest backs of the current gridiron scene. There'll be Bill Hillenbrand of Indiana, Bill Green of Iowa, Bill DeCorrevont and Don Clawson of Northwestern and Steve Juzwik of Notre Dame. Those, as Midwest fans will assure you, are names to conjure with.

Notre Dame may cause considerable damage before the season is over. Frank Leahy is a good coach, and you can rest assured that his team will be in first rate condition—both mental and physical.

Northwestern, another Big Nine threat, has 19 lettermen from last year's squad. Eight of them are available for backfield roles. In addition to Clawson and DeCorrevont, there is Capt. Tuffy Chambers, Ike Kepford, Jim Kurlong, George Benson, Don Kruger and Dick Erdlitz.

The East will see some real football this fall. Fordham and the Navy have been highly touted, which puts Jimmy Crowley and Swede Larson on the spot. Crowley's worries are somewhat lessened by the presence of Jim Blumenslock and Steve Filipowicz. In the Ivy league, Columbia and Cornell will be right near the top. Pennsylvania and Harvard have suffered from the draft, but both the Crimson and Red and Blue will still be top-notch opposition for any team they meet.

Spotlight on Stanford

The unwelcome spotlight also is on Clark Shaughnessy. Stanford, in the Far West, will get a lot of attention during the coming months. Quarterback Frankie Albert has a beautiful combination of brains and a strong passing arm. It's not at all unlikely that Albert will be the most valuable back on the western coast. Pete Kmetovic is another good reason why Stanford isn't to be taken lightly.

The laurels can't go to any one player in the South—especially at this early date. Duke has Steve Lach, Alabama has Jimmy Nelson and Georgia has Frank Sinkwich. They're all above average. But so are Jim Thibaut of Tulane and Junius Hovious and Merle Hapes of Mississippi.

It's inevitable, of course, that some of the more highly ranked stars won't live up to expectations. There is the element of luck in any football game.

Then, too, there will be a good proportion of unknowns who are sure to come along. Some of them will grab the headlines. They will be the players who capture the public's fancy. But that is an integral part of the game. Without the uncertainty, football would be just another exhibition of speed and strength.

SPORT SHORTS

Bernis Crittenius, who won letters at right half as a sophomore and fullback as a junior at Notre Dame, will try to make the grade at guard this year.

Fay E. Book, center on the Marquette university football squad last year, is in training at the Rankin Aeronautical academy, Tulare, Calif.

Nevada and the District of Columbia stand alone in allowing 25 round prize fights.

DOAN'S PILLS

Rider of Buck River

THE STORY SO FAR—Ellen Terry is interested in two men—dashing Jeff Brand, a rustler, and Calhoun Terry, manager of a big ranch, against whom Jeff and Jack Turley are most outspoken. Four rustlers had been killed—

CHAPTER XX

Calhoun Terry took no unnecessary chances with the safety of his passenger. He had brought to town with him three Diamond Reverse B riders. One of these he sent to the corral to hitch a horse to the buckboard. Another one took care of the horses. The third was a lad named Larry Richards.

At a nod from the ranch manager Larry bowlegged along the plaza past Pegleg Jim's pool room, the Crystal Palace, and the Evans store. Through the swing doors of the Red Triangle saloon he passed, drawing up to the bar.

There were half a dozen men in the room. The two upon whom his gaze fastened were Lee Hart and Jack Turley. They were playing a game of seven-up.

Hank, the bartender, said, "What'll you have, Larry?"

Hart glanced up and stiffened. "Important customers patronizing you these days, Hank," he said offensively. "Better get out yore best."

Young Richards was a cool, darling man, with more than a streak of recklessness. He was a close personal friend of his boss.

"If it isn't Lee Hart," he drawled, enthusiasm in his voice. "How's everything with you? Good calf crop this year?"

The rustler started to jump to his feet, but thought better of it.

He said, "I'm not lookin' for trouble."

"That's fine," Larry answered. "Neither am I. You had me scared for a moment, Lee."

Hank polished the top of the bar with a towel. "Now, gents," he pleaded. "Let's not have any difficulty."

"Better tell this young squirt to finish his drink and get out," Turley advised the bartender.

"On account of me having the smallpox?" Larry inquired.

"Men from your outfit are not welcome at Round Top," Hart growled.

Richards recalled his instructions. He was posted here as a guard, with definite orders not to get into a fight. It would be better for him to sing small, but not small enough to encourage these men to jump him.

"I just dropped in for a last-chance drink on my way out of town," he mentioned in a placatory voice. "No offense meant, gents. I didn't know there was a deadline on our riders here."

Larry grinned down into his drink and refrained from further amenities.

The swing doors opened, to let in Slim.

"Dog my cats! Where did you drop from, Slim?"

Larry's expression of pleased surprise did credit to his ability as an actor.

"I been around," Slim said. "On my way back to the range now. How about you keeping me company?"

"I reckon I'll have to do that. Never saw it fail. When a fellow gets a bunch of nice friendly guys someone comes along and drags him away. Well, adios, gents! Been nice to meet you."

The cowboys sauntered out of the Red Triangle, mounted the two horses at the hitch-rack, and entered up the street. They caught up with the buckboard before it had reached the cattle chutes by the railroad tracks. From the driver's seat Terry slanted an inquiring glance at Larry.

"Everything all right?" he asked.

"Fine as silk."

The party ate lunch at the Box 15 restaurant. Terry introduced Powers to Lane Carey and his daughter.

"They don't approve of me or of the ranch," he explained to the Easterner. "But since you are only the owner and not responsible for the way it is run, perhaps you will escape criticism."

Powers had come West to find out all he could about local conditions. "Why don't you approve of the Diamond Reverse B, Mr. Carey?" he asked bluntly.

"I think it is one of the finest ranches in the West," Carey said. "But you don't like the way it is managed."

"I don't think you can find in the territory a young man who can handle stock better than Mr. Terry."

"He's dodging," the foreman said to Ellen, a gleam of laughter in his eyes. "But it won't do him any good. Mr. Powers will keep asking questions till he finds out what he wants to know."

They adjourned to the porch of the house. Carey talked plainly, as soon as he discovered that to do so would not be offensive to this stranger. Powers listened, fired more questions, learned the point of view of the small settler. It was not one with which he agreed, since he had been associated with big business all his life. But he was a man who faced facts.

Ellen sat in silence, taking no part in what was said. Powers turned to her.

"What do the women think about this trouble?" he asked.

"They think it is terrible," she said. "What else can they think. Mr. Powers, when they see such awful things going on? Some of them are frightened to death for fear their sons or their husbands may never come back to them alive."

"Because their men are thieves?"

"I suppose they are," Ellen carried on, impulsively. "But what of that? The women aren't to blame. Some of them try to hold back their husbands and their sons, but they can't. If they lose them, it doesn't make them any happier to know that they brought it on themselves. Some of those who once in a while brand a calf not their own are good men in a way—good to their families, kind neighbors, generous to those in need."

"Generous with other people's property," the Philadelphian suggested. "Well, no need thrashing that out. . . . I am going to step out of this feud before we get into it any deeper."

"I don't quite see how," said Carey.

"You and Miss Ellen will have to transfer your disapproval to some other ranch and some other manager. We are going to cut up the Diamond Reverse B into small tracts and offer them for sale at attractive prices."

Ellen felt a glow of joy heating up into her breast. If the Diamond Reverse B was broken up into smaller units, it was because under present conditions so large a ranch could not be made to pay. The No. By Joe and the other big outfits would have to follow the same course. The bitter feeling in the country would automatically disappear.

"I'm so glad!" she cried.

Her eyes were on Calhoun Terry. She was speaking to him, perhaps asking him to forget the hot anger with which she had turned away from him at their last meeting. He understood her words as an apology.

CHAPTER XXI

As Terry and Powers were leaving, Lane Carey noticed a newspaper flicking out of the Easterner's pocket.

"Is that a Denver paper, Mr. Powers?" he asked.

"The Denver Republican. Like to have a look at it?"

"At the cattle quotations, if you don't mind. I'm shipping next week."

Carey took the paper, but he never got from it the information he was seeking. A front-page story caught and held his eye. The headline was:

RUSTLERS WAR IN WYOMING

The story said that forty Texans had just reached the city and expected to leave within a day or two for some unknown point in the northwest. The Texans, the story stated, were rough-looking customers armed with revolvers and 45-70 Winchester rifles. Most of them had been sheriffs or deputy United States marshals in Texas or Oklahoma. None of them knew exactly where they were going, and there was an air of mystery about their arrival, heightened by the rumors that were heard around the railroad yards.

The famous Sunday Brown was in charge of them, a man celebrated as a man-hunter in frontier days when the Indian Territory was a sink into which sifted most of the bad men of the Southwest. It appeared that Brown had been seen talking with Clinton Ellison, secretary of the Wyoming Stock Association, but Ellison in an interview denied any knowledge of the Texans. He had heard a Wild West Show was being organized. As to this, he had no positive information. One of the Texans, who asked not to have his name given, had admitted to the reporter that they were heading for the cattle country to clean up the rustlers who had been stealing so flagrantly.

Carey passed the newspaper to Terry, pointing to the story.

Calhoun read it, not a flicker of expression on his face. It disturbed him even more than it did Carey, since he knew and the Box 55 man could only guess.

"Maybe a reporter's yarn to fill space," he said evenly.

Ellen pumped a question at Terry. "Do you think they are coming to the Buck River country?"

"There's something in the story about a Wild West Show," the foreman evaded.

"That doesn't mean anything," Ellen replied impatiently. "That's just something Mr. Ellison told the reporter. If they are coming here, what do they intend to do? One of the Texans said they were going to clean up the rustlers. Did he mean . . . kill them all?"

"I had a disagreement with Mr. Ellison," replied Terry. "When I told him I was curing Mr. Powers to cut up and sell the ranch. He felt I was deserting the big outfit group. I am no longer in the confidence of the association. Naturally, they wouldn't tell me their plans."

"But what do you think?" Ellen insisted. "You must have an opinion."

"I think that if I were a rustler I would be hitting the trail for parts unknown," Calhoun answered, looking directly at her.

She worried about what she had read in the Republican, even after the foreman and Mr. Powers had left for the ranch. When Jeff Brand dropped into the crossroads stage station she lost no time in telling him the news.

He would not believe the Texans were heading for the Buck River country, and if they came the invaders would find the district too hot for them. The news about the Diamond Reverse B interested him more.

"It's the beginning of the break-up of the big outfits," he told her excitedly. "I'll say for Terry that he is smart. The Diamond Reverse B will get out in time and save its hide. Some of the others are so stubborn that they won't."

"Yes, they are stubborn," she agreed. "You and Mr. Terry has broken with them. I never did believe he had anything to do with the killings."

Brand started a quick look at her. "Did he ever give you any hint who he thought the dyggelcher was?"

"No. I'm sure he doesn't know, and if he did he wouldn't tell me. We're not friendly."

He frowned down at the ground, drawing a line in the sand with his boot. "I've spent a lot of time mulling that over, girl," he said. "It's someone who knows our habits mighty well. He must have known Buck was going to be where he was the morning he shot him. The same goes for Yellow and Yeager. Not many men would know that. I've been over the list of men in my mind forty times, but none of them seem to fit. Some of them are guys I would trust with my life. I have a specimen of his writing in my pocket now."

"Let me see it," she suggested.

"I've seen the writing of lots of people. When they send mail out you know."

He showed her the slip. Ellen read. "This is what happens to rustlers."

"Yes. I've seen the writing. At least I think so." She looked up at him, the light in her eyes quick.

"I'm not sure, but . . ."

She said, "I believe this is his writing. I'm not sure, but it looks like it."

He put the slip in his pocket, his eyes diamond-hard and bright.

"You won't get into trouble with him," Ellen said, repenting of what she had said.

He changed the subject. "About those rustlers in Denver. I don't believe they are looking for us."

"I asked Mr. Terry what he thought," she said. He looked straight at me, Jeff, and said that if he were a rustler he would light out and keep going."

made efforts to invade the rustlers' lands and kill them. Terry assumed John Q. Powers, chief owner of his ranch, and persuaded him to offer the big Diamond Reverse B for sale to small ranchmen by dividing it up.

"I had a disagreement with Mr. Ellison," replied Terry. "When I told him I was curing Mr. Powers to cut up and sell the ranch. He felt I was deserting the big outfit group. I am no longer in the confidence of the association. Naturally, they wouldn't tell me their plans."

"He'd like to throw a scare into some of us, he thinks are his enemies," Jeff replied derisively. "I don't scare that easy."

"I'm telling you this so that you will let others know about it," Ellen told him. "Some of them may feel different from you about leaving."

Ellen did not know whether she had been wise to warn him. It might only make more trouble. She wished she had not mentioned Terry.

Star Dust

By VIRGINIA VALE

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

PARAMOUNT may have something very interesting in the picture called, so far, "Tales of Manhattan." It's the story of a dress suit and what happens to it; and there are seven sequences, in each of which a different male star will appear. So far Charles Boyer, W. C. Fields, Edward G. Robinson and Joe McCrea have been signed up, and Paul Robeson, the famous baritone, is one of the dozen outstanding stars being considered for it. Well, remember "If I Had a Million"? The episode which practically everyone recalls from that picture is the one in which Charles Laughton, learning that he had a million dollars, gave his boss the raspberry. It made the picture!

Susan Hayward did so well in "Reap the Wild Wind" that she has been given another important role; in "The Lady Has Plans," the Paul-ette Goddard-Ray Milland spy comedy, she'll be an American racketeer whose identity gets mixed up in Europe with a woman radio commentator—the commentator being Miss Goddard. The screen play was written by Harry Tugend, author of "Caught in the Draft."

Martha Mears, the popular blonde radio singer, has been signed to a term contract by RKO Radio. As her first assignment she will do a feature number in floor show sequences for "Call Out the Marines," which stars Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe.

RKO has also signed Pare Lorentz to write, direct and produce feature films. Lorentz, you'll recall, was responsible for those superb government-sponsored documentary films "The River," "The Fight for Life," and "The Plow That Broke the Plains."

Too much can't be said in praise of "Hercules Comes Mr. Jordan." It's one of the most original pictures ever turned out in Hollywood: it's highly amusing, it's well performed, especially by Robert Montgomery, James Gleason and Edward Everett Horton. Don't miss it!

Kathryn Grayson's going to grow up into Spring Byington in Metro's "The Vanishing Virginian"—and they'll both be portraying Rebecca Yancey Williams, the author of the book. Despite the chance to see two movie actresses portraying her before the cameras, Mrs. Williams refuses to go to Hollywood.

Edward G. Robinson recently spent a week with his son, Manny, at the Black-Foxe Military academy summer camp in the San Bernardino mountains, and as a result there'll be a change in the dramas presented on the CBS "Big Town" program during the 1941-42 season. That exposure to the youngsters convinced Robinson that younger listeners should hear more comedy and light dramas—which may also provide older ones with relief from present world conditions. So "Big Town" will be more amusing.

Few people outside of the radio business have ever heard of Hal Block. Radio writers usually are just heard, speaking through the mouths of other people. But Block has done such prodigious work on CBS's "Treasury Hour—Millions for Defense" that he's becoming known to the public. With regard to each performer, he has written the humorous side of the show for just about every big-time air comic of the day. And that's quite a trick, for comedians, according to those who know, are naturally some of the funniest men in the world.

ODDS AND ENDS—Patricia Morrison, last of the long-haired brunettes in the movie-stellar ranks, has succumbed to the inevitable—she's succumbed to a bleach and a bob. . . . Joel McCrea can't help stopping and listening when he hears a newsboy really giving; he used to peddle papers himself. . . . Warner Brothers have decided that you'll be more likely to want to see "The Black Widow" if it's called to see "The Body Disappears" with Jeffrey Lynn, Jane Wyman and Edward Everett Horton. . . . Veronica Lake and her infant daughter, Elaine, have matching head jockeys of ice blue satin—just the thing for a brand new baby!

Actual sales records from post exchanges, sales departments, ship's stores, ship's service stores and canteens show Camel cigarettes the largest-selling brand. Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco is another big favorite. In a Minority

A well-known British dramatic agent, Golding Bright, who died recently, handled Shaw's plays among others. But on their first encounter Bright was in the gallery on a Shaw first night. It seems he was the only member of the audience who didn't like the play. Anyway, when Shaw came forward to take the "author" call, Bright greeted him with a full-lunged "Boo!" "Quite, my dear sir," said Shaw. "But what are you and I among so many?"

Buenas Tardes, (good afternoon) Amigos Mios.

Como 'sta, Señores y Caballeros! (How are you, Ladies and Gentlemen?)

—BU Listenin'?

We heard that the fish pond in the Bonito country belonging to Mrs. Cassie Johnson was washed away during the recent cloudburst in the mountains.

We heard a rancher remark—These rains get my goat; the range is liable to rot.

MAYBE YOU'LL GET YOUR ORDER

We submit this verse to the merchants of Carrizozo and Lincoln County:

Troubles? Eyes worse than these
Make us rant and rave and fuss,
And stew and sweat and even cuss.
Still, we'll ship you—and don't sore—
I'll take a month—or maybe more.
So keep on hoping; don't say
die;
We'll fill your order bye & bye!

IT'S A FACT

That work on highway 54 running to El Paso, is a long time off.

That we favor a Blitzkrieg—on Hitler.

A worker in a defense plant strikes and gets higher pay.
A soldier strikes and gets ten years in prison—both are working for the government.

A Carrizozo man says that his wife is such a reckless driver even the hitchhikers won't ride with her.

That prices are skyrocketing—just wait until the new taxes take effect "You sint seen nothin' yet." G. Howitt Hertz remarked.

That we forget the bad weather, windstorms, etc. the first day the sun shines?

A STORY
TEEMING WITH ACTION

Two cowpunchers, Calhoun Terry and Jeff Brand, are in love with Ellen Carey. This, alone, would cause complications enough, but a cattle war is on, and Jeff is suspected of being a rustler.

There is many a tense situation before this tangled romance of the cattle lands is finally straightened out. If you like the staccato of galloping hoofs, the swift gunplay of the Old West, then this story is made to order for you. Read it now—
