

CARRIZOZO OUTLOOK

Armistice Day

Armistice Spirit prevailed in Carrizozo Tuesday in observation of the 23rd anniversary of the close of the world war. The Armistice Day Parade formed at 10 o'clock headed by Boy Scouts carrying our American Flag, which represented the fundamental human liberties guaranteed by our constitution. The academic band of our high school, under the able direction of Clyde Brewster, followed the flag and gave several appropriate musical selections at Main and Alamo, at Fourth and Alamo. After the band came the city fire truck, the border patrolmen's car, the American Red Cross first aid coach sponsored by the Women's Club. It contained the following little girls who acted as emergency nurses for the day: Janet Shaffer, Hope Snow, Martha Miller, Adeline Stokes and Helen Kelt, guarded by Scouts Jerry Conley and Jack Wright; cars of local citizens followed in the parade.

In the afternoon the band marched the streets of Carrizozo in military formation with elegance of action. Then they played several numbers, which were highly appreciated by our neighbors. After the performance, Carrizozo visitors enjoyed a coke-hour.—Contributed.

Hot Tamale Dinner

There will be a hot tamale dinner at Oscar's Hall next Sunday, Nov. 16, for the benefit of the St. Rita School. Aside from hot tamales, other Spanish dishes will be served. The school is badly in need of certain improvements and it is for that purpose, the affair will be given. Here will be a chance to patronize a good cause and at the same time, be served with dishes of your choice.

Surprise Birthday Party

On Wednesday evening, Nov. 5, a surprise birthday party was given at the home of Mrs. R. R. Sale and Miss Grace Jones in honor of the birthday of their niece, Miss Dorothy Jones.

There were 29 guests present. Games were played, after which the hostesses served refreshments. The affair lasted from 7:30 to 10:30 and an enjoyable evening was spent.

For Sale

A Purebred and Registered Roan Short-horn Bull, 3 years old. A good individual and a sure breeder. Anyone interested, can see him and some of his calves and yearlings out of Jersey cows, at Red Lake Ranch. N7-14 J. R. Blackshear.

Paulino Aldaz has been relieving Marshal Roy Ward, while the latter has been out on a deer hunt.

Mayor W. J. Ayers and daughter Miss Corinda of Polly were here Saturday.

Who's Who and Where in the Service

With the hearty co-operation of this newspaper, the local Board and the citizens of Lincoln County, the American Legion Post No. 11 of Carrizozo will list each week a number of service men from Lincoln county giving their full service address as follows—

Pvt. Ben F. Leslie, 200th C. A. Battery H. (A. A.) Ft. Strattonburg, Pampanga, P. I.

P.F.C. A. D. Herrera, Co. M, 157th Inf. 45th Division, Camp Barkley, Texas.

Pvt. Joe Rogers, 91st RON, Sq. Troop C, Fort Bliss, Texas.

Pvt. 1st C. Actg. Corp. Thomas Truax, Co. C. 180th Inf. 45th Div., Camp Barkley, Texas.

Pvt. M. A. Pearce, Bat. C. 200th C. A. (A. A.) Fort Strattonburg, Pampanga, P. I.

Mervin J. Williams, Bat. D. 200th C. A. (A. A.) Fort Strattonburg, Luzon, P. I.

Ralph E. Dow, U. S. S. Brooklyn, Portland, Maine.

We wish to share with those who have helped with this program, by mailing in the addresses of our boys who are in the service, the appreciation voiced by these boys who have received many cards and letters from their friends at home. Many of our boys are serving at far distant outposts, and a word from us means appreciative recognition of the valuable service they are rendering our country and a salutation of thumbs up to the moral of every Lincoln County boy. Let's give them the hand they deserve by writing them every week.

There are yet approximately 75 of our boys whose addresses have not been mailed in. If you know any of these boys, we urge that you send their names to the American Legion, Carrizozo, so that they may be included in this column.

Dan Conley, Adjutant.

Leo—Hicks

Last Saturday, Nov. 8, at home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Stearns, Rev. John Klassen officiating, Miss Wanda Roberta Lee and Joseph Manson Hicks were united in marriage. The bride is a daughter of R. F. Lee of Albuquerque, formerly of Capitan. The bridegroom was born, reared and educated in Lincoln County. For the past few years, he has managed the Western Auto Supply Co., and at present is employed as apprentice brakeman for the S. P. Our community extends best wishes to the young couple. Their attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson Stearns.

The newlyweds will make their home at Tucumcari.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Harkay and children of Ancho visited the John W. Harkay and Fay Harkay families Sunday. While here, they attended the Lyric Theatre.

Mr. and Mrs. Sabino Vidaurri and little daughter Carmen left for Albuquerque Tuesday and will spend the week-end visiting friends and attending to some business matters.

Postoffice clerk Orville Dow left Monday for El Paso, to visit Richard Dow and other relatives for about a week.

Judge M. C. St. John and Joe Chavez were Capitan visitors last Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Holm Bursum, Jr. of the Bursum ranch near Bingham were visitors in town the latter part of the week.

Mesdames Saturnino Chavez and Florencio Archuleta and Zeke Chavez made a business trip to Bernalillo last Friday.

J. G. Moore, Jr. of the B & M store was an Albuquerque business visitor Saturday. He was accompanied by Joe Ortiz.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Peebles were down from Alto last Saturday and while here, Mr. Peebles made this office a friendly call.

Sheriff Stover and Deputy Vega made a business trip to Albuquerque Monday.

In a nice letter received this week from Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hicks of Niland, Calif., the folks send their kindest regards to members of the Masonic lodge, the Eastern Star and many other friends whom they remember when they resided here. Mr. Hicks was chief signal serviceman for the S. P. and Mrs. Hicks operated a beauty shop in the Reil building across from Jimmy Lucero's barber shop.

Dewey Stokes, Jr., who is attending the New Mexico Military Institute at Roswell, visited his parents Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Stokes, Sr. Dewey, Jr. was among the lucky deer hunters this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewis have as their guest their daughter-in-law, Mrs. W. D. Lewis of Fort Bliss, while Lieut. Lewis is attending an officers' school at Fort Wayne, Detroit, Michigan.

Sheriff A. F. Stover and Deputy Nick Vega apprehended five miscreants Tuesday morning, the five of whom had been in the habit of breaking into the cabooses in the railroad yards. The boys, all juveniles, were given a good lecture and paroled to their parents.

S. P. Chief of Detectives Morris was here from Tucumcari yesterday and filed information against the boys.

Among the letters received at the office this week was one from Miss Hilary Cooper of San Antonio, Tex. Miss Cooper will be remembered by many as the Deputy Cashier at the First National Bank under E. M. Brickley. Miss Cooper was also quite prominent in social affairs. She sends best regards to her many Carrizozo friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Sanchez spent last week-end visiting relatives at Arabela.

Billy the Kid Pioneer Passes On

Uncle George W. Coe, 85, pioneer rancher of the Ruidoso country and one of the few remaining figures of the Lincoln County cattle wars of the 78-80's, passed away Wednesday in a hospital at Roswell, after being ill with pneumonia for about three days.

During the cattle wars, Uncle George was ranged with the McQueen organization, on whose side the famed Billy the Kid also fought.

He is survived by two children, Will Coe and Sara Elzy Perry and several grandchildren, to all of whom the sympathy of their many friends over Lincoln County is tendered.

He is survived also by two sisters, M. M. s. Jennie Gentle of Creston, Iowa, and Libby Way of Gary, Indiana, and 17 great grandchildren.

The funeral will be held at the family home at Glencoe Saturday, the particulars of which will appear in this paper next week.

Our Own Tom Karr

We often overlook things of interest until we come across old records. Speaking of football, we have an old record of 25 years ago in the football realm of the state of Iowa. In speaking of a game between the Brooklyn and Montezuma teams, Tom Karr of the Brooklyn team starred in the game by making a fine line play, which won the game for Brooklyn 33 to 13. Tom also starred in the Montana University team, when he attended that institution. Tom is like the real soldier, who never boasts about what he has done; but the records speak and from that source, we obtained the above information.

List of Selected Men

The following will report in Carrizozo Monday, Dec. 1, 1941, to be sent to an induction station at Santa Fe: Estanislado Ortiz, Charles Jefferson Tiller, Jr., and Cruz Montoya Mues.

Edith McKinley, Clerk.

Atty. John E. Hall's
New Office Building

Is about ready for occupancy. The structure is Spanish-style, strictly modern, and has fluorescent lights. The building is one-story and is finished in light buff. Congratulations, Attorney Hall.

JERRY'S BEAUTY SHOP

This office received nice letters from Mrs. E. V. Abeyta of Capitan and Manuel Padilla of Los Angeles yesterday morning.

Billy Ferguson of the Nogal-Mesa and Mr. and Mrs. Champ Ferguson of Capitan were visitors in town yesterday.

Coach and Mrs. Poe Corn and children were week-end guests of Mrs. Corn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Rolland.

Benigno Gallegos of his ranch seven miles east of town was a Carrizozo business visitor one day this week.

Frank Vega made a business trip to Santa Fe yesterday.

Business Men's Club

The club attendance was light, owing to many being on deer hunts. Scoutmaster Dorsett presented five Boy Scouts, Billy Gallacher, Jr., Bill Fulmer, Jesse Petty, Jerry Conley and Jack Wright, who were guests of the club. L. J. Adams, member of the club, was present after an absence which prevented him from attending. Mr. Adams expressed his regrets, but matters beyond his control prevented him from attending. He praised the club for its progressiveness and hoped to attend regularly hereafter.

The Armistice Day program, sponsored by the Red Cross, was reported as successful. One member took occasion to praise the efforts of Bandmaster Brewster, and even went so far as to claim that the band is better than last year.

The coming event of Turkey Shooting and Horse Races at the Bonnell Ranch on Nov. 28, was announced and other matters of interest received attention. The band uniforms were announced as already paid for and arrangements for purchasing three new ones being planned for.

Frank Adams, Sec'y.

Fire at Gallacher Residence

Monday due to an over-heated oil stove. The damage was severe.

Billy says he will burn wood in the future.

New Management

At S. P. Hotel

This item of personal mention will serve as an introduction to the people of Carrizozo of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Eigner, who arrived here about a week ago and took charge of the S. P. Hotel.

The Eigners are from Beaumont, Cal., from which place the company ordered them to come to Carrizozo and assume charge of the hotel after the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Dodge, former managers.

We hope the Eigners will like Carrizozo; we welcome them to our community.

Mrs. Gunther Kroggel is up and around, after being severely bruised in an auto accident last week.

THE deficiency in the average health of this country's citizenry doesn't apply to one William Malcolm Dickey of the New York Yankees and Little Rock, Ark.

It was only a few weeks ago that Bill Dickey set a new all-time record by catching more than 100 ball games for 13 consecutive seasons.

This landed Arkansas Bill in front of Gabby Hartnett and Ray Schalk, two other hardy and enduring people, who worked with big mitt and protector.

There is a reason for Dickey's hard-hood. Bill could hardly wait until the season was over to start on a fishing trip in and around Florida.

His next plan of winter action consists of an almost continual quail hunt from opening day, December 1, to closing day in February. And this means every day.

Quail hunting with Bill Dickey doesn't come under the range of light exercise. Having been with Bill on several expeditions we can give you the order of the day—

- 1. Arise at 3:45 a. m., dress and handle your eggs, bacon and coffee. 2. Drive from 100 to 120 miles well off the beaten Arkansas track. 3. Be all set to start hunting at sunrise. 4. After the dogs from 7 a. m. until a gray, winter dusk falls on the Arkansas plains and you can't see the trees.

Bill Dickey is 6 feet 3, of which 73 per cent is leg length. His pace setter is a younger brother, Skeeter, who is 6 feet 4 with even longer legs. After a few days' hunting with the Dickey brothers you are either in amazing physical condition or ready to be measured for a winding sheet.

This explains why Bill Dickey is still a great catcher after 17 seasons and why he still will be a great catcher in 1942. He doesn't have to get back in condition, as so many do, because he is never out of condition.

Looking Back

This seems to be the right moment to exonerate a bunch of Stanford stars and clear up part of an old mystery. A short while after the Stanford-Alabama Rose Bowl game in 1935, when Dixie Howell had completed numerous passes to Don Hutson, including two for touchdowns, I was talking to Keith Topping, one of Stanford's ends.

"I still can't understand what happened," Topping said—and this was several years ago. "We knew the pass was coming from Howell to Hutson. As the ball was thrown Monk Moseley and myself, Bones Hamilton and maybe Bobby Grayson would be covering him. At least, we thought we had him covered. Two or three of us would be only a foot or so away. One of us would go for the ball and try to intercept it or knock it down. The others would watch Hutson. But suddenly Hutson would have the ball and be off and gone before we could even touch him. He was like a disappearing ghost. His hands worked like lightning and his feet worked even faster. That's something I could never understand—and probably never will."

Topping and his Stanford mates can cheer up now. The same ball has been coming up from the pro National league clubs for years. None of them has found a way yet to handle Hutson—to keep him from making the catch and getting away.

In the first place, Hutson has run the hundred in 9.8. He was a good high jumper. He has a great pair of hands. But beyond even that he has the knack of faking and fooling his opponents with a brand of body feinting and other forms of skulduggery that no defenders can quite match.

An Oversight

In discussing great second basemen a few days ago the names of Lajoie, Collins, Frisch and Hornsby were set up in front.

"What about Charlie Gehringer?" comes a squawk from Tigertown. This Tiger veteran certainly belongs in the head list of any second-base nominations.

Speaking of SPORTS

By ROBERT McSHANE

THE box office challenge offered to collegiate football teams by their professional contemporaries may have one favorable result—the more even arrangement of football schedules.

Quite a few of this season's schedules have been completely over-balanced. For instance, Pittsburgh's 1941 opponents include Purdue, Michigan, Minnesota, Duke, Ohio State, Fordham, Nebraska, Penn State and Carnegie Tech.

Unquestionably that schedule is a man-killer. There isn't a team in the country that could push through it unbeaten. Pittsburgh, however, isn't alone on the spot: New York university is another team out-classified by its competition.

The sad part of the story is that the followers of these teams expect—and demand—winning football teams. The season has been a flop if their team drops two or three games.

Football fans like to see their team win—that's only natural. But they don't want to see a lopsided victory reminiscent of a track meet. All of which leaves the collegiate athletic department in a rosy hue of confusion. Its team must win, but the contest must be thrilling and hard-fought.

These same football fans know that the professional game offers more evenly balanced competition. Chances are that the game will be closer, the outcome more in doubt and the play more exciting. In other words, the spectator is likely to get more for his money.

What's the Answer?

Then why is it that so many of the weaker teams have the most grueling schedules and so many of the tougher teams have the softest parade of opponents?

One reason is that there are too many coaches who refuse to risk the chance of being beaten. Still others don't care to run the risk of a 50-50 chance. They prefer the status of odds-on favorite. They are too conservative in arranging their schedules.

It isn't at all difficult for any top-notch team to arrange a "breather" in its schedule. In many cases the weaker team—often from a considerably smaller school—is willing to take chances that bigger and better teams won't take.

The paying customers have a right to expect a good contest for their box office contributions. They wouldn't pay $2.20 to see Whirlaway race a plowhorse. They should be forgiven if they howl about paying that much to see Powerhouse university overwhelm Pipesqueak college 67 to 6.

Bowling—the Right Way

By LOWELL JACKSON

FOUR STEP APPROACH. For beginning bowlers, I would recommend the four-step approach because it is so simple and well-balanced that it is suitable for the beginner's game.

Using the four-step approach, the bowler takes his position from 12 to 13 feet behind the foul line, which distance gives him plenty of room to deliver the ball without rushing or jerking his delivery.

In the four-step approach you start with the right foot, pushing the ball out toward the foul line with the first step. The ball swings back with the second step, passing the right knee at this instant. The third step and the backward swing of the ball are synchronized. The fourth step ends you gliding up to the foul line as you deliver the ball. Remember, a relaxed approach, smooth release, full follow-through and balance make up the ideal delivery.

George Varoff, former pole vault champion, is in the army air corps at Randolph Field. Buddy Myer, recently released from Washington, may be sent by that club to Chattanooga as manager. Since adopting football six years ago Father Flanagan's Boys Town grid teams have won 44 and lost 1. John Nabers of the 38th Athletics lost 19 straight games to set the all-time major league record for losses. His team dropped 117.

Costs Millions To Feed Army

$5,000,000 a Month Spent to Provide Sustenance for 1,500,000 Men.

CHICAGO. — Dedicated to the proposition that an army travels on its stomach, the Chicago quarter-master depot has begun to spend more than $5,000,000 a month on victuals.

Since the beginning of the defense emergency two years ago it has become the principal pantry of the U. S. army, shopping for a family of approximately 1,500,000.

It buys 2,000,000 pounds of fresh frozen beef every week and places an order for 30,000,000 pounds of flour four times a year. Last month it was on the market for 35,368,800 cans of tomatoes, 25,000,000 cans of corn, 22,131,000 cans of peas and 6,444,400 cans of spinach.

Col. Henry B. Barry, commanding officer of the depot, believes that it is developing into the largest single purchaser of meats and groceries in the country.

Supplies piled up at the depot are delivered to military posts throughout the United States. Its loading platforms, all under roof, can accommodate 72 freight cars a day and 50 motor trucks at one time.

Buy Many Items. The principal duties of the quarter-master corps, Colonel Barry explained, are to feed, clothe, house and transport the army. Here and in eight other original depots in each army corps area the Q.M.C. handles all supplies common to two or more branches of the service.

Although its chief job is the procurement of food, the Chicago depot also buys all the coal and coke used by the army, most of the beds and cots, and about 2,100 other items ranging from moth balls to snowshoes.

It keeps fires going under three large roasters capable of turking out 1,000 pounds of aromatic coffee every 20 minutes. The depot buys its coffee green and sees to it that 1,000,000 pounds are on hand at all times, so that the beans can be roasted just before shipment.

All this activity goes on in three great buildings stretching for more than a block along Pershing road on the South Side. One of them was built in 1918 and saw service in the World war. The others were finished shortly afterward, so that now the Q.M.C. has almost 2,000,000 square feet of floor space to work on. Railroad sidings running into the building connect with 25 trunk lines operated out of Chicago.

Staff Up 500 Per Cent. The depot's staff has increased about 500 per cent in the last two years, bringing the total number of civilians employed there to 1,500, with about 100 army officers supervising them.

Purchases shot up even a greater degree. For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1939; the depot ordered only $3,974,877.47 worth of goods. It increased this figure to $9,023,510.77 during the next year, while for the year ended June 30, 1941, expenditures totaled $38,275,670.48. June purchases alone reached $10,452,380.26.

The army's subsistence research laboratory, only one of its kind in the country, is situated at the Chicago depot, devoting its full effort to providing soldiers with a proper, healthful diet.

Hundreds of food experiments are conducted in the laboratory every month, with its chemist-officers serving as guinea pigs when the time arrives for the food to be consumed.

This laboratory has licked the problem of retaining vitamins in cooked vegetables to such an extent that its methods are incorporated in the Army Cooks' Manual.

Hitler's Daily Expense

Allowance Up 3 Marks. BERLIN.—The rising cost of living was reflected in a decree from Der Fuehrer's headquarters raising the daily expense allowance for government officials—from Adolf Hitler down—from 15 to 18 marks (from $6 to $7.20 at pre-war exchange). The decree also boosted the allowance for officials spending a night away from place of duty from 10 to 14 marks.

Father and Son Enroll

For Engineering Course. BUFFALO, N. Y.—There are two George Strebels enrolled in the engineering defense training course operated by the college of engineering of Cornell university here. One is employed by the Bell Aircraft corporation here. The other, George Strelbel is the other's father, who became so interested in the course that he registered for it three months after his son did.

Report Four Oddities. PENOBSCOT, MAINE.—During recent walks in the northern wilds of Maine, guides saw: A caribou that joined a herd of cows and refused to leave. Three deer, each having only three legs. A wood mouse with a coat mottled like a dappled horse. A woodrat with a cow-hall.

Lights of New York

By L. L. STEVENSON

City Scene: Four pickets patrolling in front of a Tenth avenue hotel in which there are two patrons. Red-headed Dick Todd standing in front of a juke box and listening to the crooning, not of Dick Todd, but of Tony Martin. Young, black-haired, intense Morton Gould, composer, fairly dripping sheet music as he steps out of Columbia Playhouse onto Broadway. A taxi driver giving chase as the wind whips the papers down the street. and Gould exclaiming, "Never mind, I have them all in my head!"

More: Edward Trevor demonstrating an old Mexican vaquero trick at Cafe Louis XIV—rolling two cigarettes at the same time. Rudy Vallee and Eddie Cantor in animated conversation at Leona's and attracting attention not by their talk, but by their gay bow ties. Too few of them seen around New York nowadays. They used to be quite the thing in the old house town. and I still like them.

John Hoyaradt at Le Cafe Arnold telling how he kept on acting during a murder in a London-night club. He was too scared to stop. Carl Sandburg, the poet, walking along Fifth avenue with a guitar under one arm and three tennis rackets under the other. A Broadway stroller whose broad-brimmed hat and cinnamon-colored mustache make me think of James Beardsley Hendryx, though the "Iron Man" hasn't been in these parts in some time.

This & That: Of New York's 137 new probationary patrolmen, 121 have attended college and all but three were high school students. Seventy-nine have college degrees, including 10 masters. Before becoming cops, 42 had held clerical positions. There were also former furliners, baseball players, doormen, bakers, waiters and painters, a grinder and a color matcher. All but 10 were born in the United States. Of those born elsewhere, three first saw the light of day in old Ireland. Manhattan's smallest piece of real estate is a triangular piece of land, measuring 24 inches on one side and 26 inches on the other two, at the intersection of Seventh avenue and Christopher street.

More: Bull's hotel, on the upper East Side, displays the sign "For Farmers Only." Richard Kellmar, direct descendant of a governor of New York, has never voted in a gubernatorial election. Xavier Cugat always draws a caricature of the reporter who interviews him. Teddy Powell, who has 50 golf hits to his credit, including "Bobs and Saddles," hasn't penned a song since he became a band leader two years ago. Garry Davis, 19-year-old son of millionaire maestro, Meyer Davis, has been accepted by Vinton Freedley as a chorus boy for his next show. Model Patricia Garfield, who slapped a cop, leaves soon for Hollywood with a David Selznick contract.

Short Story: Tennis champ, Frank Shields, at Mori's, told Sonia Besie and Dan Topping about the Russian general who, after being captured by the Nazis, bragged of the stiff fight his soldiers had given the better-equipped Germans. The commandant ordered him to change his nationality immediately or be shot. The Russian agreed to become a German, then strolled back to the Nazi barracks and yodeled, "We sure took one swell beating from those Russians!"

Remarks: Col. Lemuel Q. Stoenagle advises that when a woman motorist holds out her hand you can be certain that she is going to turn to the right, turn to the left or stop. "As long as the Statue of Liberty holds one arm in the air," remarks songstress Yvette, "we will never have to hold two in the air." On Broadway, observes Conrad Thibault, you are judged by the company you keep—away from Bob Hawk holds that the female of the speeches is more deadly than the male.

Passing By: A stream of blondes entering Schubert alley. Casting must be going on. A blind clarinet player tooting the almost forgotten "Hut Sut Song." Containers of hot food being unloaded from a chain restaurant commissary wagon. A jobblack snatching a banana from a fruit stand and disappearing before the owner can start the chase. A burlesque house stage door-man puffing on his pipe as he steps outside for a breath of air. A motorcycle starting with a backfire just as I pass and scaring thoughts of street scenes completely out of my head. (Well syndicated—WNU Service.)

Tin Hats First Worn by

Sailors on Great Lakes. SANDUSKY, OHIO.—The log book of the schooner May City, which had Sandusky for its home port, shows that the steel helmets used by soldiers are not an invention of the World war, as sometimes believed, but instead were used on the Great Lakes, even in the days of the schooner, to protect heads of the sailors from falling coal and ore. These helmets' traditional origin is corrected.

THE PRIVATE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Ma— Every day they are checking out a bunch of us refugees from soft beds under them new rules releasing jeebs who are married, or 28 years old, or needed at home, but they are still passing me up like I was the army's choice for permanent K P duty. I look and feel more like a fardship case than most of the crumb hunters who are being released and I keep telling the officers that I am no more use to the army than if I was married on account of I am in love.

Every time I argue that I am needed at home they just laugh at me so I guess they must have investigated and found out that I always let you and pop bring up the coal and wood and was not no help to speak of. When I think of how I used to squawk about tending the furnace it makes me sick all over. Believe me ma if I ever get out of this and back in my own home I will think it a privilage to tend the furnace.

It makes me soar to see a lot of boys being released every day. But they certainly get checked up on and three days before they go they get a complete going over by the doctors again. I can't figure this out unless they want to be sure no jeep gets out of the army in any better shape than he was when he came in. I asked Sergeant Mooney and he said it was the rules that every soldier must be exactly like he was when he was accepted. He said one reason why I could not get out was that I was in such lousy shape when I reached camp that it would be impossible for an army to ever get me back in the same condition again.

Otto Bixby thought he was going to be released and he was all set and everything but after the medical inspection he was told he would have to stay in the army. The records of admission showed he had four teeth missing when he got in and they don't check with the fact he has six missing now. They won't accept his explanation how he lost the other two.

They just finished a big athletic field for us at this camp and we got a regimental football team on which I am trying out for the reserves. In the first scrimmage I got a sprained ankle, two broken toes, a dislocated arm, a soar back and two teeth, knocked out but I still do not feel no worse after it all than I do when I get back from a maneuver.

I asked Sergeant Mooney how I done and he said I must of attracted attention becuz he knew the army was scouting the game and he saw a scout looking at me and saying he never saw anybody play the kind of game I did.

Well, I will close now with lots of love. Your son, Oscar. P.S.—I wish you would ask Nellie Petersen to write me oftener than three times a week.

IT'S difficult to write calmly and critically about Walt Disney's "Dumbo"—in fact, it's practically impossible. This story of the baby elephant with the over-size ears, who's born into a circus and made miserable by the other animals because of those same ears, is completely enchanting. There's Timothy Mouse, successor to Jiminy Cricket; there's the hand of black crows, there's the squealing circus engine—and there's the really lovely sequenced in which pink elephants dance. Every moment of this hour-long picture is delightful—no two ways about it, you'll have to see "Dumbo."

Jean Phillips, once Jean Harlow's stand-in, had moved from a bit to a co-starring role in just two pictures—she's the first stand-in since Adrienne Ames to become a leading woman, which is bad news for girls who hope to climb to stardom by that route. Her first break came when she was cast in "Among the Living"; that performance earned her the second lead in "The Morning After." Now she's co-starring with Macdonald Carey in "Dr. Broadway." Her resemblance to Ginger Rogers blocked her career when she first went to Hollywood.

Glenda Farrell is happy. She's signed to play the ex-sweetheart of a gangster in "Johnny Eager"; says she's fascinated by the part, and also wants to do it because the picture is being directed by Mervyn LeRoy, who gave her her first part in films.

Irving Berlin has written 14 new songs for "Holiday Inn," more than have ever before been turned out in a single picture. Bing Crosby will sing some of them, Fred Astaire will dance to them. The score includes two old Berlin favorites, "Easter Parade" and "Lazy."

Ginger Rogers and Cary Grant will co-star in RKO's production of Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man," with an original score by Oscar Strauss, the Viennese composer. If you want to see another version of the same story right away, you can go to Metro's "The Chocolate Soldier," with Nelson Eddy and Rlee Stevens, of the Metropolitan Opera company. It's Miss Stevens' screen debut, and Metro executives feel sure that the public will take her to their hearts.

Remember the parting of the Red sea in C. B. DeMille's "The Ten Commandments"—or the chariot race in "Ben Hur"—or the earthquake in "San Francisco"? Mr. DeMille thinks he's added a memorable sequence to that list—the squid fight in "Reap the Wild Wind." Ray Milland and John Wayne, in diving suits, are exploring the hull of a wrecked vessel in a search for Susan Hayward when they encounter the sea monster. Mr. DeMille donned a diving suit and directed the scenes, in a huge tank. For other scenes in the picture he descended 20 feet into the Pacific, to the ocean floor. Said it was the only way he could get the eerie realism that he required.

Who'd-be-your-choice-to-portray Will Rogers in Warner Bros. film of his life, made from the book, "Uncle Clem's Boy"? At present Stuart Erwin, Spencer Tracy and Roy Rogers, Republic's Western star, are under consideration. It's said that Mrs. Rogers prefers Tracy, though Erwin's supporters urge that he's a better choice because he resembles the famous comedian and philosopher.

ODDS AND ENDS—Paramount will star Charles Boyer and Yvonne De Carlo in "Hong Kong," a romantic story played against modern, war-torn China... Ginny Simms has just been made an honorary colonel of Southern California district, American Legion, Los Angeles—first time a star's been awarded the honor by an entire district... We hear that Tony Martin said he was "ready and willing" to enter the army, even though an appeal from his draft classification had been filed... RKO's "Mousetrap at Sea" brings you not only the team of Lupa Velaz and Louis Brull, but Zane Grey, Elwood Reidon, Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Eddie Davis and Harry Holman as well.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

UNION WITH CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—John 15:1-10.
GOLDEN TEXT—Abide in me, and I'll abide in you.—John 15:4.

Our lesson presents deep spiritual truths concerning our union with Christ—mystical, but practical; precious, but too often forgotten or neglected.

I. The Conditions of Union With Christ.

There is a sense in which union with Christ is entirely unconditional, one is either united with Him by faith or he is not. However, there are conditions for the fulfillment of all that such union carries with it. It is in that sense we use the word.

1. Cleansing (vv. 1-3). Christ is the Vine, and the believer as a true branch is united with Him. There is a oneness here which is difficult to express but delightful to receive and believe. He who is the Vine needs no cleansing, but the branch needs constant, daily purification by "the Word" (v. 3). Are we permitting God's Word to keep us clean? Only if we are reading it, studying it, meditating upon it.

There is moreover a severer type of purging to which the husbandman subjects the vine that it may bear more richly, and that is pruning (v. 2). It may not be pleasant, my brother, but it is profitable, and remember whose loving and sure hand it is that wields the pruning knife (v. 1).

Some branches must be cut away altogether (v. 1) and burned (v. 6). They lack the evidence of life—fruitbearing—and must be destroyed. These words are evidently not written to dishearten true believers, but they are a solemn warning to those who bear a false profession of Christianity.

2. Abiding (vv. 4-8). The branch bears the fruit of the vine. It has no strength or ability of its own to bring forth fruit. The Christian cannot serve Christ without abiding, and if he does abide the life of Christ will show forth in His living and serving. There can be no union without abiding in Christ.

3. Obedience (vv. 9, 10). The hall-mark of character in a child is obedience. That is also true in God's household. There is no use in talking sweetly and piously about abiding in God's love unless we obey His commandments. The Christian who disobeys the teachings of God's Word regarding holy living and does not respond to the leading of the Holy Spirit shuts off the blessing of God in his own life and stops its flow out to others.

II. The Results of Union With Christ.

1. Purity of Life (v. 3). "Now ye are clean"—how refreshing our Lord's words sound to us as we live in a wicked and filthy world. We sometimes wonder if there are any pure lives anymore? Yes, there are—those whom the Lord has cleansed by His Word. Would you like to be clean? Turn to Him and to His Word.

2. Prevailing Prayer (v. 7). At first one wonders why our Lord put in that word about prayer, but it is evident that one of the fruits of union and fellowship with Christ must be intelligent prayer according to God's will, in the power of the Spirit, and certain of an answer. Notice that the prayer promise here is absolutely unlimited, but that it follows an "if" which states a closely limited condition. Let us fulfill the condition and claim the promise.

3. Fruitbearing (vv. 2, 4, 5, 8). The fruit a Christian bears is the fruit of Christ who is the Vine, but as the branch he does have the joy of bearing "fruit" (v. 2), "more fruit" (v. 2), and "much fruit" (vv. 5, 8). The Christian's phraseology can be borrowed, but his fruit produced only by abiding in Christ.

4. Abiding in Love (v. 10). We have been talking about abiding all through our lesson and it may seem strange to list it as one of the results of union with Christ, yet it belongs here. Our Lord said (v. 10) that the cleansed and obedient disciple should abide in His love, even as He obeys the Father and abides in His love.

What a picture that is, Christ, the One who knew no stain of sin (II Cor. 5:21), always perfectly obedient to the Father (Heb. 10:7), who knows complete and perfect fellowship with the Father, reaches out His loving arms and draws the believer into the circle of that blessed union and love.

"Only These"
No one can ever become quite solitary, quite poor, quite miserable, who can truly say "Lord, if only I have Thee." That is just the time when God makes his consolation most gratifying and abundant, when we through distress of body and soul have turned from all temporal things to Him, and have learned that royal, overshadowing "only these."—Theodore Christlieb.

Entirely New Principles Employed in Coal Heater

Will Heat All Day and All Night in Coldest Weather Without Refueling.

MANY improvements in furnaces, both oil and coal burning types, have been reported in late years, but little change, until recently, has been noted in the coal heating stove, which still is depended upon in millions of homes for warmth and comfort.

A late development in this field has brought out an improved coal burning heater. It employs a radically new design in firebox and heating flues, advanced ideas in combustion engineering and other improvements that result in greater heating efficiency, fuel economy, and much less operating attention.

A desirable feature of this coal heater is that it may be loaded with 100 pounds of coal at one time. The coal, stored in the magazine, gradually feeds semi-automatically of its own weight to the bottom firebox, the heat making coke of the upper coal layers, when bituminous coal is used. The gases formed in this coking process escape through newly designed flues in the firebox and are consumed by the flames which travel up outside the fuel chamber. The coal burns to a fine ash.

Because of its large fuel capacity and the advanced construction principles employed, it will heat all day and all night in coldest weather without refueling.

Regulation of heat is governed by a simple adjustment of drafts. Because it holds fire so well and so long, the home where it is used is warm every morning. Because of this feature the stove has been named Warm Morning.

Along with the standard models which hold 100 pounds of coal, there is a larger heater with nearly 200 lb. coal capacity made, especially for heating schools, churches, lodge halls and warehouses.—Adv.

Ulster County Gazette

The Ulster County (New York) Gazette of January 4, 1800, became famous because it carried the first complete account of the death and funeral of George Washington. More than a million reproductions of that issue have been printed and sold, many still being regarded by their owners as historic treasures.

However, there are only two known original copies—one owned by the American Antiquarian society, Worcester, Mass., the other by the Library of Congress.

When the shopping list is long, and the purse none too full, cigarettes and smoking tobacco come to the front as ideal gifts for the holiday season. The welcome they get from any smoker is all out of proportion to their modest cost. That's why Camel—America's favorite cigarette, and Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco—the National Joy Smoke—rank as leading gifts on the Christmas shopping lists. Dealers are featuring the Camel carton—ten packs of "20's"—and a novel Camel package of four "flat fifties," also Prince Albert in the pound tin and the pound glass humidor—all specialty gift packages.—Adv.

World War I Draftees

The number of men in the United States who answered the first three registrations at the time of the World War was 24,234,000. Some 237,640 persons were listed as draft deserters, of which 163,733 were apprehended. Of those who registered, 64,693 claimed non-combatant classification and, according to army records, 56,830 of these claims were recognized.

Million Red Cross
Volunteers Aid
Defense Program

Washington, D. C.—Behind the front lines of U. S. defenses more than 1,200,000 Red Cross volunteers are on the job—making surgical dressings, knitting sweaters and giving comfort articles, learning the rudiments of emergency mass feeding and scores of other duties in an all-out effort for national defense.

The largest defense task now being undertaken by Red Cross volunteers is the production of 40,000,000 surgical dressings for the Army and Navy, according to Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, national director of Volunteer Special Services.

Home Service volunteers and Gray Ladies, whose duties are directly concerned with the man in uniform also are expanding their programs, Mrs. Davis said.

As a preparedness measure, the thousands of women throughout the country are learning mass feeding and nutrition as members of the Red Cross Canteen Corps. Added thousands are being trained in the Motor Corps to serve as emergency drivers.

The Red Cross provides recreational services for patients in all Army and Navy hospitals. Sixty-five new hospitals are under construction by the Army, and their recreation buildings are being equipped and staffed by the Red Cross as each one opens.

As part of the Army and Navy safety programs, members of the national Red Cross staff are qualifying instructors in First Aid and Water Safety among the ranks of the enlisted man. Instructors taught by the Red Cross in turn conduct classes on the reservations.

The number of Army and Navy cases assisted by Red Cross field directors has increased in volume 140 per cent since Selective Service has been in operation. During the past year 126,515 cases involving active service men have been handled in the camps.

The Red Cross recently made available $1,000,000 to meet an emergency need for athletic equipment for the Army and Navy. This need arose when Government appropriations for the purpose became exhausted.

In addition to providing the Army and Navy with an official reservoir of nurses, the Red Cross is cataloging the nation's medical technologists. Through this program, in which approximately 3,000 technicians have registered, the Army and Navy will select such professional personnel as laboratory workers, dentists, dental technicians, pharmacists and other categories of trained technicians.

DEEP WATER ISLAND By ALAN LEMAY

Two young people, Karen Waterson and Richard Wayne, were thrown, against their wishes, into a struggle for possession of the island estate of Alakoa in the South Pacific. But Wayne has nine points of the law on his side; he is in possession. Karen is goaded on by her lawyer, John Colt, who loves her, and who has told her the island was stolen from her grandfather. Soon Karen found herself in currents she could not control—currents as deep and mysterious as those of the warm South Seas.

Mystery and romance are packed in this story of the Hawaiian Islands. If you like both of these, plus excitement, you'll find this story very much to your liking.

Old Customs
Some sweethearts in Rio de Janeiro follow the old custom that the man in the case must not enter his sweetheart's house until they are engaged. Up to that happy time they must conduct their courtship at a suitable distance from each other, usually talking over the garden hedge, he three feet from it on one side, she three feet away on the other.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

Army, Navy and Commercial Airlines Suffer in Series of Plane Crashes; 'Reuben James' Sinking, F.D.R. Speech Draw Formal Statement From Hitler

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Troops who took over the Bendix, N. J., plant of Air Associates, at the command of President Roosevelt are shown camping in a field near the plant. The order for the plant's occupation came in the interests of "national defense" according to official sources as Air Associates holds millions of dollars' worth of defense contracts for various kinds of aviation equipment. Production had been held up because of difficulty between the company and union leaders, but work got under way soon after the troops moved in.

FIRST LOSS:

Sinking of 'James'

First American naval loss of the war was the Reuben James, 1,000-ton destroyer, 20 years old, sent to the bottom of the Atlantic with an undetermined loss of life somewhere west of Iceland.

Details were shrouded with great secrecy by the navy, who finally disclosed that 44 men, apparently all enlisted men, were saved. Whether more would later be rescued was problematical.

She carried about 120 officers and men. Whether she had previously encountered and battled successfully with submarines was a matter of conjecture.

One news service had obtained a purported letter from one of the sailors on the Reuben James which stated that the vessel had sunk two submarines, "maybe more."

The writer was Leonidas C. Dickerson, a seaman, who wrote to his aunt in Danville, Va.:

"We've been at sea for 42 consecutive days, and I've lost lots of sleep. I'll be glad when we're through with this job and I can get some sleep again."

The letter, written several weeks before the sinking, said:

"We have gotten two subs, maybe more. I have lots to tell you when I see you."

Another letter told of a submarine attack on the James. It had been written by Harold James Orange to his mother, Mrs. Marie Orange, in Chicago. He said:

"I was up on the crow's nest on watch when we were nearing Iceland and I saw a torpedo. It was coming right for us. I gave the alarm and we started zig-zagging. It missed us, sped right by. I saw not one, but several submarines."

REACTION:

In Many Quarters

Following the sinking of the Reuben James the reactions followed swiftly, drawing certain powerful figures closer to the President's foreign policy, and bringing from Hitler's headquarters no other statement than that "people foolish enough to walk down a railroad track may expect to be run over."

Berlin issued a lengthy formal statement from Hitler, most of which was devoted to answering the President's Navy day address.

He reiterated his statements that the South American map and the document purporting to reveal a Nazi plan to do away with all religion as "nonsensical" and "crude forgeries." He categorically denied that the Reich government had created either of these items.

The wording of the declarations from the German leader was scanned carefully by foreign correspondents, who saw in it the typical Nazi line of argument that their vessels had been attacked; that Germany was being attacked by the United States; that the U. S. was stamping itself as the aggressor.

These words were believed significant in that it was the usual German terminology preceding an open break between the Reich and another nation. It was pointed out that treaties between Germany and her Axis partners called for help in case any member of the three is attacked.

'Declaration'?

Hitler, it was believed by the correspondents, was simply laying the usual groundwork for a definite hostile declaration against this country and its policies.

He said: "Herr Roosevelt has been placed before the tribunal for world judgment of his acts."

The declaration attacked the truth of Roosevelt's statements that the Greer and the Kearny had been attacked by the Germans, and stamped both vessels as the aggressors.

PLANES:

Keep Crashing

Started off by the crashing of five army pursuit planes, this disaster seemed the signal for a series of tragic losses, which had reached a new record for American aviation.

A Northwest Airlines plane dropped to earth in a fog, killing 14 persons and hurling the pilot clear. Within 24 hours a 21-passenger American Airlines plane, carrying 20 persons, plummeted to earth in a rainstorm near St. Thomas, Can., and burst into flames. All lost their lives.

Less than 48 hours later an army bomber, with five air corps men aboard, fell out of misty clouds into a cornfield near Findlay, Ohio, and burst into flames.

The five men were instantly killed. Then it was the navy's turn to announce a disaster. This was the crash of a huge bomber at sea with the loss of 12 lives. The plane was "operating in the Atlantic ocean area."

At nearly the same time a 22-year-old American of German extraction was arrested at the Glenn L. Martin plant in Baltimore, and confessed to be a saboteur of planes, having cut electrical wires in such a way that contacts would be broken at some later date.

His deeds had affected more than a hundred planes, though most, if not all of them, had been discovered. So cleverly did he hide his work that suspicion had been thrown on hundreds of other employees. It took the FBI agents from July until late October to catch him.

REDS:

'Reservoirs'

Although the defense lines around Moscow had been bending now and then, the break had not come, and enormous reserves from "manpower reservoirs" in Siberia and other parts of the vast country were reported as having been hurled into the fray.

The United States heard that the first American planes had gone into battle, and had bombed Berlin, a fact which Berlin promptly denied.

It was an unquestioned fact that the Reds had, however, some of the newest and largest American bombing planes, easily capable of flights over Berlin and back.

The Nazis had broken through into the Crimea, however, and the fall of the whole peninsula, thus opening one narrow and difficult road to the Caucasus, was believed certain.

NEUTRALITY:

Battle

With even its opponents admitting that victory was sure, and anti-administration editorial writers regarding it editorially as a fait accompli, there still was bitter fighting over the measure on the floor of the senate.

A notable acquisition of support, however, came when Senator Bridges of New Hampshire, long a foe of the administration's policy, switched over and spoke in behalf of the bill which would remove from the Neutrality act those measures which would prevent arming of merchant vessels, and would open all ports to the American flag ships.

Another indication of support was the agreement in the senate to push forward action on the bill. This had followed the sinking of the Reuben James.

Senator Ball of Minnesota, a Republican, held that freedom of the seas was necessary for the preservation of our liberties; while Senator Clark of Missouri was attacking the President, and daring him to ask for a formal declaration of war.

Clark said the measure was "intended to be and can only be an authorization for a state of war."

Another Shakeup

In the second of officer changes in the Russian army within a few weeks, Marshal Boris N. Shaposhnikov (above) has been named chief of the Soviet general staff. He succeeds Gen. Zhukov, who several weeks ago was named commander of Red armies on the central front. Shaposhnikov is a close personal friend of Josef Stalin.

JAPAN:

Viewed Menace

Following the German declaration that she had been "attacked" by the United States, Washington was openly fearful that peace in the Pacific could no longer be maintained.

There were many signs, it was asserted, that Japan would receive a signal from Germany to open hostilities, thus to draw the American fleet strength into the Pacific, and remove some of the vessels, perhaps from North Atlantic convoy service.

It was significant that Hallett Abend should have sent a dispatch to the Times from Honolulu stating that the Japanese navy had been guilty of activities in American waters that verged closely on the commencement of hostilities.

The American navy has been watching the activity of a Japanese submarine, and while it had not taken any measures, much was learned of the Japanese tactics through American apparent indifference to what was going on.

A submarine had been observed in Hawaiian territorial waters, submerging by day and coming up only after nightfall.

This vessel had at all times been at the mercy of American naval vessels, but the naval officers laughed at it, saying that the Japs could not have observed anything worthwhile through their periscope.

Other fast Japanese ships have been cruising openly at full speed around Midway, Wake Island, Johnson, Palmyra and other U. S. Pacific islands, always keeping just outside the territorial limits, Abend said.

Japan's comment on the James incident was that the United States was "close to participation in the war." "Therefore," it continued, "the United States is making every effort to avoid a clash in the Pacific, which now seems inevitable. Tension is growing, despite sincere efforts of Japan."

This was regarded as being written on an extremely menacing note.

CEILINGS:

Prices, Note Wages

The drastic price control bill reported out by the house banking and currency committee had turned out to be one which set price tops, which forbid farm price ceilings below boom prices, and specifically exempted wages from government control.

The vote had been 18 to 8, but the session reportedly had been turbulent. There were some modified provisions for rent control. All rents in defense areas were to be subject to ceilings.

Farm prices were to have ceilings prohibited at any point lower than 110 per cent of parity, or at less than the average price between 1919 and 1929, the boom years.

Some of the administration experts, studying the bill, said that it would be impossible under it to control prices at less than 26 per cent above parity.

They cited the example of sugar, which now had a ceiling of $3.50 a hundred, and showed that it would, under the committee ruling, be permitted to rise to $5.81 per hundred before being pegged off.

A price administrator had been named in the bill with a salary of $10,000 a year to be named by the President and confirmed by the senate to administer the act with advisory councils from the various industries. The original draft did not require senate confirmation.

MISCELLANY:

Washington: The navy announced its sixth battleship, the Alabama, will be launched February 18.

New York: Senator Barkley, in an address, had urged that "when the time comes for the building of a new world, Palestine be restored to the Jewish people."

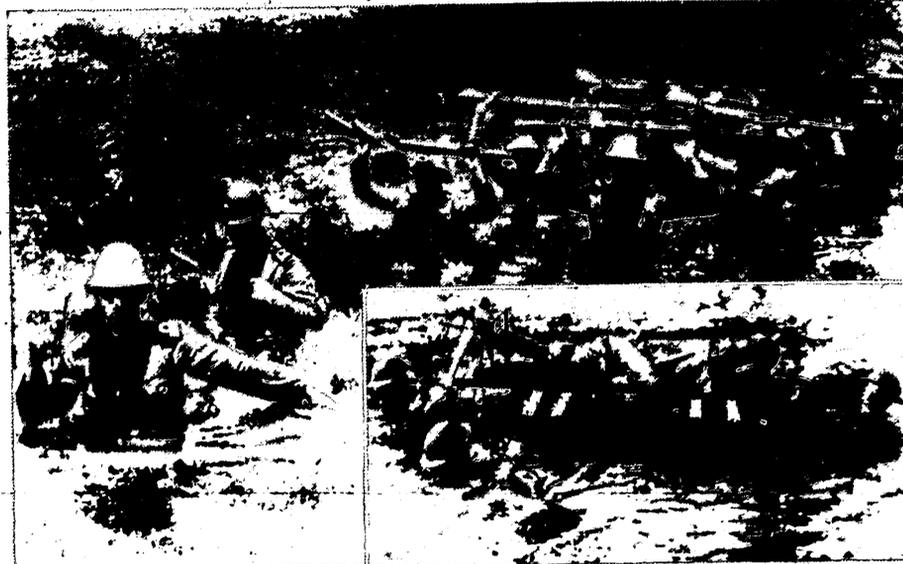

Lansing, Mich.: Governor Dickinson, 52, gave this recipe for a long life: (1) Be yourself; (2) take care of your horses; (3) don't get stuck on yourself or another man's wife.

Official Pictures of Torpedoed U. S. S. Kearny

Official pictures released by the navy department show the damage done to the U. S. S. Kearny when she was torpedoed by a submarine off Iceland. At left, crew members look at twisted wreckage below decks after the torpedoed destroyer steamed into port. Right: the Kearny, tied to sister ship, is shown limping into unnamed port. Arrow points to the hole made by the torpedo.

A Lesson or Two in Preparedness

Marines of the royal Netherlands navy, still loyal to their exiled queen, are pictured above crossing a river, fully dressed, during maneuvers at Sourabaya, Netherlands East Indies. Japan is their nearest Axis enemy. Inset: A "casualty" is floated across a river on a makeshift raft during demonstration staged by Britain's royal army medical corps. Buoyancy is given by empty oil cans.

They Watched the Tanks Go By

M-3 medium tank is shown at left. Another tank, on flat car in background, is about to be sent on its way to army proving grounds.

... Not to Market

Not to market, but to San Francisco's grand national livestock exposition, is the destination of these two little pigs, chosen as her entrants by Miss Mito Kimmmerle. The exposition will present a livestock, horse and radio show of national character, November 15-22.

Turkey Dinner in the Offing

Turkey, with all the trimmings, will grace the festive board at army camps throughout the country on Thanksgiving day. These soldiers of Camp Lee, Va., could not resist their battle training as they creep up on the all-muzzling turkeys at the Wippenhook farm, South-ched, Va.

Rider of Buck River

THE STORY SO FAR: Ellen Carey seems interested in two men, Jeff Brand, rooster, and Calhoun Terry, ranch manager. Four ranchers had been mysteriously killed. The big ranchers, such as Terry's people, tried to keep over Terry's people, tried to keep over Terry's people...

CHAPTER XXXIV

Roan Alford helped Brand put on his coat. Jeff sat on the bed, gripping the covers to steady himself. "Gimme my gun belt," he said. "You don't need no gun tonight, Jeff," Roan told him. "You couldn't use one good if you needed it—and you won't."

"I'll take the belt, Roan. I wouldn't feel dressed without it." Alford buckled the belt around him. Lane Carey walked into the room.

They supported him to the wagon and helped him to get into the hay-filled bed. Ellen arranged a pillow which she had brought from the hotel.

She said in a low voice to her father, "I want to go with you." "No," Brand said. "We won't have a girl in this. It's a man's game."

"Jeff is right," Carey agreed. "You stay here, honey, and don't worry. We'll work this out somehow."

Ellen moved to one side, her heart filled with a leaden despair, and watched the wagon roll down the street. But she could not go back into the Round Top Hotel and sit there quietly while the man she loved was being lynched. At least she could return to the Holden House, which was much nearer the jail.

Ellen had come to a street corner from which she could see a segment of the milling crowd. Every step she took now toward her hotel would carry her farther from the jail. She found she could not do it. She could not walk away and leave Calhoun Terry to his fate.

Lane Carey drove the team through the square and down the road leading to the jail.

"Help get us through," Carey urged. "I've got Jeff Brand here. He's wounded and can't get to the front foot, but he has something to say. It's important."

The pack around the jail door was more dense. Somebody had been sent for an axe, and those nearest were already throwing their weight against the door.

The sheriff shouted down a warning. "A lot of you are going to get killed, boys. Terry and Richards are armed. We mean to fight."

He was standing on a little railed balcony which faced the street. Terry and Richards joined him.

Terry flung out the palm of his hand as a signal that he wanted to speak. The thunder of the mob redoubled, started to die down, swelled out again in crescendo. Terry waited, his lean, strong face showing no sign of fear.

The voices stilled at last. Terry's scornful gaze swept the crowd. "No use to tell you I'm against this invasion of the Texans," he began. "No use to tell you that I'm responsible for the breaking up the first of the big ranches in this district, and that on my advice the owners of the Diamond Reverse B are dividing it to sell to small settlers. You haven't brains enough to take in a simple little thing like that."

He was interrupted by yells, but his strong, clear voice made itself heard above them. "I'll tell you something you can understand. The stairway is barricaded. Before you storm it we can shoot down eight or ten of you. Think that over, and then listen to my proposition."

"To hell with your proposition," someone shouted. "We're gonna string you up to a telegraph pole."

From the wagon seat Carey shouted another opinion. "Sure we'll listen. Go ahead, Cal."

"I'm the man you lunkheads want," Terry went on, taking his time. "Larry hasn't a thing to do with this. He's only a hired hand, and today he saved Jeff Brand's life from these Texans. You haven't a thing against him. All he did was take a job at cowpunching when he needed one. And Sheriff Hart is a good man. He means to do his duty and defend us. Very likely he will be killed. That would be a pity. Here's my proposition. I'll surrender if you'll let Larry go."

Larry's voice rang out instantly. "No, I won't have it that way. If you muttonheads don't know any better than to kill Cal Terry you will have to kill me too."

"All right. Have it your own way. Let's go, boys. Here's the axe."

The sheriff called down an answer to that. He knew the voice. "Come out into the open, Lee. If you're so anxious to have good men killed don't stand away back there but step out and lead the attack."

Somebody laughed at that and momentarily eased the tension. Assisted by Roan Alford, the wounded man in the wagon got to his feet. It took him a moment to clear his head from the unsteadiness that went over him like a wave. "Good old Jeff!" a black-headed youth shouted. "They didn't get you this time, if they did cripple you."

The light-headedness had passed, and Jeff had found his voice. "Why didn't they?" he asked. "Ellen's" of Texas ex-convicts to invade the countryside and kill without regard all suspected ranchers. By mistake Terry and his foreman, Larry, were mistaken by the invaders, and they came to cover in a little cabin. Jeff, holding them...

INSTALLMENT SEVENTEEN

CHAPTER XXXV

gunmen were plugging at me plenty, and I hadn't a chance to get away. This fellow you're going to hang—this bird Terry—ran out from the cabin where the Texans were shooting at him and Larry, and he carried me back to cover while these hired warriors shot at him. If you all had the sense of a rabbit you would know neither one of these two men up there are friends of Ellison's crowd. The Texans shot a horse under Larry today while he was trying to escape—and now you feeble-minded jackasses want to hang him."

What Jeff had said came to most of those present as a complete surprise. The men who had brought Jeff to town had departed almost at once to join those in the field, and they had not had time to tell the story to many.

"How do we know these Texans shot a horse under Larry Richards?" somebody shouted.

"Lee Hart saw Terry and Richards ride in on one horse, with these birds chasing them like a bunch of Cheyennes. Isn't that right, Lee?"

"I saw someone come riding in thataway—two guys on one horse—but I don't know who they were, Jeff."

"You wouldn't be loadin' us, Jeff," Red said, making of the statement a question.

"Why would I?" Brand sang at him. "I don't like a hair of this bird Terry's head. Twice I came near bumping him off. But I'm not like you dumb geezers. I don't need a mule to kick me before I can take a hint. Terry and Ellison are at odds, probably because the Diamond Reverse B is going to be offered for sale to small cowmen. The Texans jumped these two men up there and drove them into Lee Hart's place. They were emptying a ton of lead at them when I drifted into the doings. These boys not only yanked me into the cabin, they told Ellison later, when he came with his flag of truce offering to let them go and hang me, that there was nothing doing since we three were all in the jam together."

A lot of you are going to get killed, boys.

A shrill voice in the background made a contribution. "He wired the President for him to send troops from Fort Garfield to help these hired killers wipe out us boys."

Lane Carey said his piece. "I signed that wire, Brad. And you have it wrong. We asked the President to stop the fighting. I didn't want a lot of your children made orphans. Jeff is right about the Diamond Reverse B going on sale. You've made a mistake. Better admit it and call this off."

"Or come a-smokin'," Jeff told them recklessly. "Count me in with these men upstairs." He poured out a dozen blistering epithets at the mob, and finished up by telling them they didn't know enough to pound sand in a rat hole.

Some of the men in the crowd began to laugh. They knew the lynching was off, and deep down they were glad of it.

"All right, Jeff," one of them called. "You have sure given us a good case" out.

Larry set on the rail of the balcony and grinned down at Brand. "Heap fine creation, Jeff. I'm for sending you to congress. I'll bet you'd twist the law's tail proper." He had grand death by a very close margin, and the swift revelation from despair to joy was flooding him.

"I learned how from you fellows today," Brand said.

He clutched at Roan Alford for support and slid down to the hay in a faint.

Already the crowd was thinning. The rest would be sent home.

Ellen came out of her terror to awareness of herself. She turned and hurried back to the Holden House.

They said good night, neither of them happy in their parting.

Ellen came to help them, is wounded. After their rescue, Terry and Larry are arrested by the sheriff for attempting a mob threatening to lynch them because of "the big rancher" activities. Ellen seeks Jeff's aid.

Ellen was too excited to sit in her room at the Holden House and wait for her father to come and tell her the news.

A thought flashed to mind. Her father would be at the Round Top Hotel, where of course he must have driven Jeff after the storming of the jail had been abandoned. He had told her to stay there, so she had better return to it. Slipping through a side door, she walked swiftly down the dark street.

Several men were standing round the doorway of the Round Top when Ellen drew near. A buggy pulled up at the door and somebody got out. It was Doctor Harris.

"God-damn it!" he ripped out. "What's the sense in patching up you dunderheads when you start rampaging over the country soon as my back is turned?"

A moment later Ellen was face to face with Calhoun Terry. None of the tumult that filled her found expression. She said in a small murmur, "Is my father here?"

Terry looked at her, surprised. She ought not to be out alone on a night like this. "Yes, he's with Jeff. I'll tell him you are here. Better wait in the parlor."

He led the way, closing the door behind them. "Jeff saved our lives, with your father's help," he said.

"Yes, I was there. He saved yours, as you did his this afternoon."

"You were there?" he repeated. "Yes—Jeff and father wouldn't let me go with them, but I couldn't keep away." A vibrant wire strummed in her voice. She wondered if he could look at her and not know the truth.

He thought he knew why she had been unable to stay away, and he said gently: "I think Jeff will be all right in a few days, though his fever is high now. He was fine, wasn't he?"

Calhoun had a sudden sense of the tragic futility of life. She was so young, so eternally young, and she demanded all good things of life. The girl was dancing on the quicksands of the future, the warm hope in her heart of a happiness ever after. But life would maul her. For all his good intentions Jeff would fall her, because of the fatal lack of stability in his character.

"Yes—and so were you," she said. He said nothing for a moment, but his look gave a significance to his silence that kindled in her bosom a hot excitement. Yet when he spoke his words ignored this.

"Would you like to see Jeff from the door? I don't suppose the doctor will let you go nearer now, because he doesn't want him excited."

"Not tonight," she said. "I'll wait here for father."

"I'll tell him you are here."

He returned in a minute. "Your father has to take the wagon back to the corral. I have offered to see you to your hotel."

His restrained manner chilled her. As she walked beside him, Ellen caught herself thinking how strange was a woman's fancy. Out of a thousand men it flew to one. When his voice was kind, it played on chords in her heart. If he walked beside her in friendliness, she trod the hilltops in a world reborn. But when his eyes had no gifts for her, she was drenched with woe.

Terry spoke of Jeff.

"He is very loyal to his friends and will go to any lengths for them. I suppose you know he sent the money found in Turley's cabin to Jim Tallow's wife to support the little children." Calhoun did not know exactly why he was marshaling talking-points in favor of Brand, unless it was because he had been a little less than fair to him and felt he ought to acknowledge it to the girl who loved the reckless scamp.

"Yes," Ellen agreed listlessly, and turned the conversation to the first subject that came into her head. "What do you think is going to happen when the settlers meet these invaders? Will there be a battle and a great many men killed?"

He shook his head. "I don't know. Your father and I are riding up the Buck River valley. We are leaving as soon as we hear from Washington. I don't think we shall get any favorable response from the government. Ellison arranged for it to keep hands off. Our idea is to try to be mediators between the two parties and fix up a settlement of some sort."

"I don't see how you can do that, with both sides acting outside the law trying to destroy their enemy. You and father had better not get mixed up in it. You will only get into trouble."

"I'm glad Jeff Brand didn't feel that way tonight," he said, smiling at her. "He took a lot more risk than we are going to run. He might have done himself great harm. Perhaps he has, though I don't think so. But he did his job just the same."

They had reached the Holden House.

They said good night, neither of them happy in their parting.

Historic Operation

VIRGINIA is famous as the "Mother-of-Presidents," as the state which gave America some of her greatest soldiers and explorers as well as statesmen. But on November 11 this year she can take note of the fact that it was just 140 years ago that she gave to the nation a man who was destined to make medical history and whose name future generations of suffering Americans were to call blessed. For he was Ephraim McDowell.

McDowell was born in Rockbridge county November 11, 1771. At the age of 12 he was taken by his father to the frontier town of Danville in Kentucky. After a brief term in a Virginia seminary young McDowell began the study of medicine in a doctor's office in Staunton. Then he went to Scotland but returned to America after two years' study in the University of Edinburgh.

In 1795 he returned to Danville to begin practice. Within 10 years McDowell had become the best-known surgeon on the Kentucky frontier and whenever one of the settlers needed an operation that was beyond the skill of local doctors, word was sent to Danville. Then McDowell hastily crammed his drugs and his instruments into his saddle bags and set out along wilderness trails to the aid of the sufferer.

In 1809 he was called upon to make such a call and the operation which he performed at that time is the one which made surgical history. The call came from the log cabin of Mrs. Jane Todd Crawford, near Greensburg, known today as Greensburg, 60 miles from Danville. In a letter which McDowell wrote to Robert Thompson, a medical student in Philadelphia years later, he gave this account of that operation: "I was sent for in 1809 to deliver a Mrs. Crawford, living near Greensburg, of twins, as the two attending physicians supposed. Upon examination, I soon ascertained that she was not pregnant, but had a large tumor in the abdomen which moved easily from side to side. I told the lady I could do her no good and candidly stated to her her deplorable situation; informed her that John Bell, Hunter, Hey and A. Wood, four of the first and most eminent surgeons in England and Scotland, had uniformly declared in their lectures that such was the temper of the peritoneal inflammation that opening the abdomen to extract the tumor was inevitable death. But, notwithstanding this, if she thought herself prepared to die, I would take the lump from her, if she would come to Danville. She came in a few days after my return home, and in six days I opened her side and extracted one of the ovaria. . . she was perfectly well in 25 days."

The doctor's laconic version of the historic incident leaves out all of the drama. For there was drama in it—the story of how word that McDowell was going to perform an operation which was almost certain to be fatal spread through the town, how one of the preachers devoted a sermon to the proposed "murder," and how his fellow-townsmen threatened to lynch him if the operation failed, and how his nephew and partner, Dr. James McDowell, tried to dissuade him from going on with it.

Then there is the story of how he decided to operate on Christmas day when the prayers of all the world would help create a favorable atmosphere for the attempt; how Mrs. Crawford tried to forget the agony of the operation, performed without anesthetics, by singing hymns; how the mob outside the doctor's cabin, hearing her anguished voice, tried to break in the door and stop the operation and how, finally, when they were told that the operation was successful and the patient still lived, their anger turned to admiration for the heroic doctor and his equally heroic patient and "the air was riven by a cheer."

Mrs. Crawford lived for 33 years after the operation. Later she migrated to Indiana and is buried near Graysville. But today in McDowell park in Danville a monument, erected by the Kentucky Medical Society and its women's auxiliary, stands near the towering shaft which was erected to the memory of her doctor by the Kentucky Medical Society in 1879. The modern highway, bordered with dogwood, between Danville and Greensburg, called the Jane Todd Crawford Memorial Trail, also honors this pioneer heroine.

PLAN BOX SILO ON LEVEL LAND

Is Good Substitute for the Trench Silo.

By E. E. EUDALY
(Editor, Texas A. & M. College Extension Service)

Built above ground, a "box" silo is a substitute for a trench silo in regions where the land is more or less level and where keeping water out of a trench is a problem.

To construct such a feed container, build two parallel levees of dirt any height and width desired, then fill between the levees with silage and cover with earth. This sometimes is called a trench silo upside down. Two-in places where lumber is cheap it might be advisable to build the upside-down-trench out of lumber and tar paper. This is called a "box" silo.

It is not advisable to build a "box" of smaller dimensions than four feet between walls, six feet high and 20 feet long. Lesser space between walls would be hazardous since a little spoilage at the edges would be too high a percentage of waste. A minimum height of six feet is suggested because of settling and the possibility of some spoilage on top. If the silage settles a whole lot there might be a high percentage of spoilage.

Width and height may be as much as desired beyond the minimum footage as far as keeping of the contents of the silo is concerned. But the width should be regulated according to the number of livestock to be fed, the specialists advise. At least five cows are necessary to obtain the most success from a "box" silo.

The posts should be three feet apart in the row if one-inch lumber is used, but may be as much as 4 1/2 feet apart if using two-inch lumber. Shiplap lumber is best for siding, but rough sawed lumber may be used provided it is laid so that the inside of the wall will not be so rough as to break the lining paper. Tar, or asphalt, paper is recommended for covering the inside of the wall, and No. 9 galvanized steel wire, or the equivalent in strength, to tie the posts together at the top.

The silage at the open end of the box should slope from the ground to the top of the wall so that the end can be covered with earth. Only two or three inches of dirt may be used or provided oats or barley is planted in it, and the earth kept moist until the grain makes enough growth to form a good root system and hold the dirt together to prevent cracking.

Seed Winter Oats for Successful Winter Crop

Many farmers have had excellent success in seeding winter oats in the fall as a cover crop, according to J. C. Hackleman, crops extension specialist of the University of Illinois college of agriculture, Urbana, Ill. The only trouble with using winter oats in the fall, he said, is that the crop is more apt to winter-kill than barley or rye. Oats also does not make as good a nurse crop as the other two crops because it makes a more leafy and dense growth and consequently shades the legumes more and probably consumes more moisture and plant food than would be used by a rye or barley crop.

When used as a winter cover crop, winter oats, barley or rye should be seeded a week or 10 days before the average date for seeding wheat, Hackleman said.

Although more apt to encourage chinch bug increases the following growing season, barley makes the best pasture of the three crops. If nurse crops of oats, rye or barley, instead of being harvested as grain, are pastured next spring, the land can be classified as soil-conserving under the AAA farm program.

Farm Notes

Spraying of certain chemicals has been found to hasten the maturity of potatoes on experimental plots at an Idaho research station.

Root rot fungus spreads by slow growth along roots from plant to plant, even when they are dormant, at the rate of a foot or so a month.

The annual output of United States fruit canning plants amounts to about 50,000,000 cases. Peaches lead with over 12,000,000 cases.

More commercial fertilizer was used by American farmers in 1948 than in any previous year.

One hundred per cent water-inflation of farm tires will be possible and economically practical as the result of developments by a large rubber company.

Only by the use of pressure is it possible to get the high temperature needed to kill organisms in nonacid vegetables which, if not destroyed, will likely cause spoilage.

Bulbs Bloom All Winter

If You Start Them Now

Flowers at Different Periods.

A SUCCESSION of lovely blooms in your home all winter! That's your reward—if you start potting bulbs now.

Clever to choose stunning "show pieces" that flower at different periods—white callas start blooming in January, colorful amaryllis and daffodils a little later. Before these and in between you can always have the fragrant narcissus. Just start a fresh batch every two weeks in a bowl of water and pebbles. Keep in a dark spot until growth starts and be sure the lower third of each bulb is in water.

Our 32-page booklet tells how to raise favorite flowering and foliage plants, bracket plants. Tells how to pot bulbs, also how to grow bulbs, vines and other material in water. Send your order to:
