A large crowd assembled at Community Hall on that night to make merry and wish the young couple health, happiness and prosperity. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Flavio Mirabal and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lucero and a nephew of Barber Jimmy Lucero. Mrs. Kate Mabie of Seattle, Wash., sister to Mrs. B. L. Stimmel, is here this week, visiting at the home of her sister. Mrs. Mabie resided at White Oaks in the early days and will be well remembered by the old-timers of this locality. While here she has tried to contact her old friends, but found many of them to have crossed the border, from whence no traveler returns. She will leave shortly for Los Angeles and visit other relatives before returning home. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Grumbles, Jr., came in Tuesday from Capitán, where they had been visiting friends and will visit with the George Harkness family and other relatives before returning to their home in Tucumcari. Attorney H. Elfred Jones was here Monday from Alamogordo, attending to business for the government on the booming project with which he is connected in the war department. Mrs. Fred Baldonado, daughter Adeline and Rita were El Paso visitors Wednesday.

SERVICE FLAGS

The American Legion Post of Carrizozo will accept orders for Service Flags, giving the families of service men the benefit of the discount allowed our organization. Service Flags are 9x12 inches, made of high luster satin, trimmed with bottom fringe, with as many Blue Stars as there are members in the service. The flags are suitable for hanging in a window and may be obtained from our Post for 30 cents each. Since there are many families who have from one to four members in the service, these flags will have to be ordered special in order to get the right number of stars required; therefore, in placing your order, please inclose remittance and state number of Stars desired in your flag. —Dan Conley, Adjutant. Big Posse Meeting At the regular monthly meeting of the Lincoln County Sheriff's Posse Monday night in the District Court room, 32 members answered roll call by Secretary Frank Adams. Seven new members were added to the membership list. Good talks were made by different members for the good and welfare of the organization. The Board of Directors met and proposed having a calf-roping and chuck-wagon dinner at the Tully ranch at Glencos on April 28—the roping in the afternoon and the dinner at 6 o'clock in the evening, after which the next meeting of the Posse will be held. Cards will be sent out by Secretary Adams, so be sure to answer so that it may be ascertained as to how many will be able to attend. In the hat drawing, R. C. Bishop was the lucky Posseman. Mr. and Mrs. Ted Collier, who spent the winter in Arizona, have returned to their home, the Himesa ranch near Alto, where they will spend the summer season. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Rolland made a trip to Roswell and spent Easter Sunday with the Poe Corn family. They were accompanied on the first trip by Mrs. Jerry McCannies. The Rollands returned Sunday evening, but Jerry remained over, returning home Tuesday evening. We take the following from the Dawson County Courier, Lamesa, Texas. Mrs. Adams is the former Miss Erma Poage of Carrizozo: "Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Adams, owners and operators of the Adams Jewelry, have this week finished enlarging and redecorating the interior of their store. New white pine wall cabinets have been added and the repair department has been moved and enlarged, making a very attractive store." Lell St. John will arrive from Fort Bliss tonight and will proceed to Albuquerque to visit other relatives there. J. H. Fulmer reports the snowfall so deep in White Oaks this Tuesday that they couldn't get out to feed their livestock.

Business Men's Club

Due to the inclemency of weather, some who were detained at home on account of colds, meetings of other organizations, the attendance was light. Ten members answered roll call and there being 5 visitors, made the total 15. Mr. Whitaker of the Rationing Board reported for that department and thanked the club for the donation to the office equipment. Scoutmaster Dorsett had as his guests, Capt. Bill Fulmer, G. W. Chapman, G. B. Goldston, Donald Meana and Glenn Snow, the winners of the First Aid contest at Capitán last Saturday night. R. E. Lemon, cashier of the Citizens State Bank, was the guest of Pres. A. L. Burke, and on motion by Attorney J. E. Hall, Mr. Lemon was made a member of the club by a unanimous vote. Various short talks were made by different members concerning the good and welfare of Carrizozo and Lincoln County. At the next meeting, there will be a short musical program as an entertainment feature of the evening. John Paul Jones notified the Club that he would leave for the Army service and offered his resignation—but the Club voted to place him on the honorary list until such a time that he should be in a position to return. Mr. Jones is the first Club member to be called to the colors—being a Reserve Officer in the U. S. Army. EASTER CANTATA "Hosanna," under the direction of Prof. Brewster, was given at the High School Auditorium Sunday evening, with Mrs. Burns at the piano. A choir of twenty-seven voices sang the lovely Easter music, with numerous solos, duets and choral numbers to make truly worthwhile every minute of the hour. A goodly number of people filled the Auditorium and had only the highest praise to offer for the fine manner in which the Cantata was given. Mr. and Mrs. Ben C. Sanchez, daughter Natalie, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Sanchez spent Easter Sunday at Alamogordo and at the White Sands. George and Albert Sanchez are employed at Alamo. Willie McKinley is here on a ten-day furlough from Fort Bliss. Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Simpson of Corona were here this Monday, Mrs. Simpson attending a meeting of the Board of Education of which body she is a member; while Mr. Simpson was present at the Sheriff's Posse meeting held on that night. Mrs. Selma Degitz is a guest of Judge and Mrs. John Gutknecht in Chicago. Mrs. J. H. Fulmer of White Oaks was a visitor in town yesterday. Montie Gardenhire of Montie's Riding Stables in Ruidoso was a visitor here this Monday. Mmes. TRAFFIC SAFETY COUNCIL

Issues a few timely hints as follows— Before crossing intersections, look both ways and live more days. Play safe; never let your speedometer register over the 40-mile mark. Four deaths occurred on New Mexico highways during the month of March, against nine during the same month of last year. Commenting upon the above reduction of traffic fatalities, J. B. Jones, Pres. of the Traffic Safety Council, credits the decrease to slower and safer driving. Teodoso Baros Teodoso Baros passed away on Wednesday night at the home of his sister, Mrs. Julian Delgado, after a long illness and the funeral was held yesterday. Leandro Vega made business trips to El Paso and Claunch this week. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Ferguson and small son Wally, Jr. of Capitán attended the Lyric Theatre Wednesday night of this week. Joe Chavez, Jr., suffered a small fracture in the thigh Sunday afternoon, when he fell on a skate at Miller's Pavilion. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shelley and son Jerry of Montebello, Calif., are here, Mr. Shelley being the new mechanic at the Lincoln County Motors, Inc. Cliff Zumwalt is fortunate in selecting the services of Mr. Shelley, as he is an experienced automobile mechanic. They are residing in the Phipps apartment and we welcome the family to our city. Judge P. E. and Mrs. Christiansen and Mrs. Murphy of Capitán was here on business yesterday. The Benefit Dance held April 4 for the purchase of new equipment for the City Hall was a splendid success, according to Judge Christiansen.

The City Election

Although but one ticket was in the field, people went to the Community Hall, where the Judges and Clerks sat through the day to accommodate all who wished to vote. Singular as it might seem, there were no names written under the names of the candidates on the official ticket and that showed that the people expressed a desire to give the old board of the past two years, another chance. All candidates with the exception of Dan Chavez, were on the ticket. Dan declined to run again and Ben C. Sanchez ran in his place. When the votes were counted, the total was 55 votes cast without a solitary scratch. In a town of this size, there is only so much (as the saying goes) to be done, and the Board has filled the term as good as any other Board could do and in that light the people so considered that they should have another term. No matter how well a Board like ours may do, some things will be criticized—but to those who would offer such criticisms, let them have the job for a while and see how they could or would do. Then, as the Board works without remuneration of any kind, let us assist rather than criticize their actions. If we would take the time to investigate their acts and co-operate with them, some of us would be more ready to agree with them rather than to criticize certain of their acts without having a knowledge of the causes.

Tom Hampton Elected Mayor of Tucumcari

In the Tuesday elections, our old friend, Engineer Tom Hampton, was elected Mayor of Tucumcari by a large majority. There were three tickets in the field and Tom was the choice of the people. Tucumcari people are to be congratulated on the result of that election, as they have chosen just the right kind of a man to administer their affairs for the next two years. He is a cool-headed, fair-minded man and will give the people an administration that will be impartial and void of special privileges to anyone. He will guard the city's interests in a sane, conservative and business-like manner, and those who might expect to be on the warm side and have a key to the "meat house" on the free list will be badly disappointed. We salute you, Mayor Hampton, and add a Hurrah! for you. L. M. Sneather, Electrician, who rebuilt the City electric lines, left last Saturday for Malvern, Ark., where he will assist with the installation of a Government industrial power unit. He obtained a leave-of-absence from the Lincoln County Utilities Co., to accept this work. Mrs. Manuel Marquez underwent a minor operation in El Paso the early part of the week and is doing nicely.

Speaking Sports

By Bob McShane

IT WILL COME as no great shock to American league followers to read that the New York Yankees are considered quite a strong ball club.

In fact, several reputable individuals have advanced the unhappy theory that the Yankees have only one thing to fear—overconfidence. They hold that the Bombers are so accustomed to victory that they have lost the keen urge to win. The old college try will be lacking.

Such a thing is possible, of course. But it's highly improbable. They may not have the drive peculiar to the Chicago White Sox or the Brooklyn Dodgers, but there is good reason for that. They haven't been in the underdog's role for so many years. If victory is a habit, Manager Joe McCarthy's men are slaves to it.

The Yankees have suffered little so far from the draft. Their overall strength is as great as ever, both offensively and defensively.

Witness the case of one Joe DiMaggio. The Yankee hitter's six-year mark is 345. He hit .357 in 1941 and has his batting eye focused on the 400 mark. He hovered around that mark a large part of the 1939 season, finishing with .383.

Yankee Power

As a team the Yankees hit .296 last season. Boston and Washington led the league with marks of .283 and .272 respectively. DiMaggio and Golfer Ben Hogan has passed his hitters. The latter hit .307 for the season.

McCarthy has few worries concerning his mound division. With Ruffing, Chandler, Gomez, Russo,

JOE GORDON

Bonham, Donald, plus a few others in the stable, the boss man can concentrate on other problems.

On the defensive side, the Yankees are on top. Joe Gordon, though not the most dependable hitter on the team, is one of the best defensive second basemen in history. He can smear more base hits than any infielder in either league. He is lightning fast and is absolutely free from tension.

With Dickey behind the plate, Gordon on second base and Joe DiMaggio in the center field spot, the Yankees have the strongest "pennant line" in baseball.

The number one assignment of every other team in the circuit is, of course, to beat the Yankees. New York's domination of the league has not been particularly healthy. The Yankees are too strong for most of their competition.

Changing Picture

Fortunately, there are no absolute certainties in any branch of sport. Changing world conditions—meaning the war—have served to confuse the picture even more. Connie Mack, who leads the Athletics, claims the White Sox have the best balanced team in the league outside of the Yankees. He thinks the Sox may win the pennant if McCarthy's club "stabs its toes this summer."

In speaking of the seven other clubs of the league, there's usually an "if." If the Yankees lose a few key players, or if the champions become overconfident, then the predetermined train of events may jump the track.

It isn't unlikely that the Yankees will gain a long lead comparatively early in the season, and then disappear from sight. Perhaps they can be stopped, but only through the efforts of one or two teams. The White Sox may cause considerable trouble, thus preventing what would be no more than a stiff race for second place.

The best interests of sports in general will be served if the race is a close one. The future of professional sports is none too secure. The enthusiasm which would be engendered by a real flag battle might be invaluable during the darker days which are sure to come.

Sport Shorts

Johnny Kotz of Wisconsin, Bob Fought of Notre Dame and George Rung of Great Lakes were unanimous choices for places on the all-opponent cage squad chosen by Marquette basketball players.

John Stoltz, sophomore on Northwestern university's golf team, broke 80 when he was 13 years old.

Jimmy Adair, former Chicago Cub infielder, has been named manager of the Springfield Three-Eye league club.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE MISSION OF THE SEVENTY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:1-7, 17, 21-24. GOLDEN TEXT—The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth laborers into his harvest. —Luke 10:2.

Working with Christ for the salvation of men has been the privilege of believers since the time He chose the twelve. We learn today that there were at least seventy more whom He considered dependable and worthy to be sent forth. Knowing how brief was the time before His death, the Saviour called, commissioned, and cared for them as they went two by two, personally to evangelize "in every city and place."

I. Sent to Serve Christ (vv. 1-3). Prayer is back of the calling of laborers for Christ. God waits for His people to lay before Him the need, and to enlist His grace in moving upon the ones who can best serve Him. There is mystery here which we cannot fully understand, but it is perfectly clear that prayer is the power which has been given to the church with which to "move" the hand of God. The reason the laborers are so few, even in our days is evidently, then, because there has been so little prayer.

Observe that the Lord sent His servants "two by two" so that they could encourage and assist each other. Christian work is best done in Christian fellowship. The "star performer" or the "lone wolf" may be acceptable in business or social life, but he has no place in Christ's program, unless by His special call and guidance for some particular task, such as pioneer work.

He sent them to go "before His face"—what a glorious place to be! That means that He was watching over them, expecting them really to "labor" for Him. But notice also that in loving thoughtfulness they were—

II. Sustained by Christ (vv. 4-7).

It is well when workers go out that they have proper backing. We speak of the "board" which is behind our missionaries. That is right and proper, but above all there must be the assurance of the provision and protection of Christ.

They were not to be concerned about money. Christ had already moved upon the hearts of His people to see that the laborer had "his hire"—which was food and shelter (v. 7).

Time is what life is made of, and the servants of Christ were not to waste it in lengthy oriental salutations (v. 4), or going from house to house to be entertained, thus losing much time and strength.

Nor was he to strive or become angry if some one did not receive him and his greeting of "peace" (v. 6). In any case his word would return in blessing upon himself (v. 6), and he could go on to another house. The point of all this is that the expectation of the Christian servant is from his Master, Christ, whose business requires diligence and haste (1 Sam. 21:8b).

The outcome of such service is revealed in our third point.

III. Successful Through Christ (vv. 17, 21-24).

The seventy returned rejoicing that even the demons were subject to them in Jesus' name. He still has power over the demons of our day. Would that the church wielded that power more effectively!

While it is a great thing thus to see the power of God at work, Jesus told them in verse 20 that an even greater thing is to have one's name written in heaven. That means that we ought to be much concerned not only about having our own names written there, but the names of all those whose lives we touch—at home, at work, anywhere.

The secret of the disciples' victory is found in the statements which Christ in all humility and honesty made about Himself (vv. 22-24). He is the one to whom "all things are delivered"—unlimited in authority and power. The mystery of His person and work is not something man can think out or fully comprehend (how foolish have been the attempts to do it!) for He is God. The fact that the Father had revealed these things to the seventy humble, ordinary men caused Christ to magnify His Father's name in praise and prayer. Spiritual insight (vv. 21, 24) is something only God can give, and often He can give it in full measure only to humble and lowly men. "Men like D. L. Moody, who became spiritual giants, were usually humble men from lowly walks who gave themselves wholly to God" (H. L. Olmstead).

Need to Slow Up

The church is going too fast! Even the Church needs to slow up for it is attempting too much in social programs and is losing spiritual poise in many places. Paul said to the Church, "Put on the whole armor of God." The whole armor takes time to put on, yet it is dangerous to leave off any part of it.—Rev. A. E. Gregory

Echo of a Forgotten 'War'

APRIL 9 of this year marks the 50th anniversary of an event that was a high spot in the history of the West—the battle which took place at the KC ranch on the Powder river in Wyoming on April 9, 1892. Perhaps "battle" is too pretentious a word, for it was only a frontier gun fight in which few men were involved. But in so far as it was a case of a man fighting to the death against odds of nearly 50 to 1, it had a certain Homeric quality which raised it above the level of such affairs.

The man's name, appropriately enough, was Champion—Nate Champion. His enemies said he was a rustler—and he, undoubtedly was. So they killed him and, all unknowing, they also gave him a certain kind of immortality. For after his death he became a sort of Robin Hood hero, an almost legendary figure whose name and fame have been perpetuated in song and story.

The living Nate Champion was not an important person. But Nate Champion, dying, became a kind of symbol and as such was more significant. For the fight at the KC ranch was the first battle in a "war" which marked the dividing line between the Old West, under the rule of the cattle kings, and the New West of the pioneer homesteader.

The story of this conflict has been told many times and it is related again in a book published recently by the Caxton Printers, Ltd., of Caldwell, Idaho—"The Longest Rope—The Truth About the Johnson County Cattle War," by D. F. Baber, as told by Bill Walker. The principal interest and value of this addition to our store of Western

BILL WALKER

Americana lies in the fact that the story is told by one of the few survivors of the "war" and possibly the only survivor of those present at the KC ranch fight.

The Johnson County war, also known as the "Powder River war," the "Rustler war" and "The Invasion" was the result of the cattle-stealing that was prevalent in Wyoming in the late eighties and early nineties. The big cattle outfits, the principal victims, decided it must be stopped and, rightfully or wrongfully, fixed upon their own method of doing it. Accordingly, a group of these cattlemen, accompanied by hired gun men from Texas, set out early in April, 1892, to invade Johnson county, which they regarded as the stronghold of the thieves, and to summarily execute certain men whom they looked upon as the leaders.

Their first objective was the KC ranch house on the Powder, occupied by Nate Champion, the "king of the rustlers," and his companion, Nick Rae. Bill Walker, "cowpoke" and trapper, and his partner, Ben Jones, had spent the night there and when they set out for an early start on a trapping expedition the next morning they were made prisoners by the "regulators" who had surrounded the ranch house.

Thus it was that the co-author of "The Longest Rope" became an eye-witness of the historic fight that followed. He saw Nick Rae shot down as he came out of the door a little later. He saw Nate Champion rush out, amid a hail of bullets, and drag his dying companion back into the cabin. He tells of Champion's rifle duel with his enemies, which lasted nearly all day, until they set fire to the cabin and forced him to flee. He "came out shooting" and died under their fire in a little gulch nearby. The leader of the "regulators" looked down at him—"Give me fifty men like that and I could whip the whole state!" he said.

After Nate Champion was killed, his assailants found on his body a little book in which he had written an account of his desperate last stand. A newspaper reporter, Sam T. Clover of the Chicago Herald, who had accompanied the "regulators," made a copy of this account which has been frequently reprinted under the title of "The Diary of the Rustler King" and widely circulated. It has perpetuated the fame of Nate Champion as has a poem "Our Hero's Grave," written by one of his friends and set to music soon after his death.

HAY EXCELLENT ROTATION CROP

Yields of Crops Vary With Hay Production.

By EARL JONES (Extension Agronomist College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.)

Of No. 1 importance in the rotation program of most farms is the matter of getting good stands of hay. All things considered, hay is perhaps the most important rotation crop. The yields of other crops vary directly with the hay production. Better sod resulting from good hay stands means better corn and wheat crops.

These facts were borne out in a series of four year rotation tests conducted on county and district experiment farms in Ohio by the college of agriculture.

Typical of the results obtained were those at the Meigs county farm where the crops included corn, wheat, alfalfa, clover, and timothy mixtures. Four different types of fertilizer treatment were used. The application included 150 pounds per acre of corn applied in the hill and 300 pounds per acre to wheat. One plot was left unfertilized and the results on each of the other four were checked and compared. All plots were equally limed before the experiments were instituted.

More Hay: More Grain.

The plots that produced the most abundant hay crops likewise yielded heavier crops of grain.

Best results were obtained from a 2-12-8 fertilizer analysis plus manure, which produced increases of 36.5 bushels per acre in the corn yield, 15.9 bushels of wheat, and increases of 2,663 and 2,060 pounds of hay per acre respectively.

A similar analysis, without the manure treatment, yielded increases of 27.1 bushels per acre of corn, 12.9 of wheat, and 2,401 and 1,669 pounds per acre of hay. A fertilizer treatment of 0-14-6 produced increases of 20.9 bushels per acre of corn, 11.9 bushels of wheat, and 2,103 and 1,310 pounds of hay. An 0-20-0 analysis yielded increases of 7.1 bushels of corn, 11.5 bushels of wheat, and 1,850 and 1,230 pounds of hay per acre.

Conclusions from these tests indicated that fertilizers carrying nitrogen and potash in addition to phosphorus returned much better results than those carrying superphosphate alone. The use of manure supplementing commercial fertilizer likewise proved its value.

Poultry Ration Substitute

Looking for a substitute for dried skim milk in the poultry ration? It has been found that fish meal and alfalfa leaf meal, 50 pounds each, can substitute for every 100 pounds of dried skim milk in the ration of chicks up to six weeks of age, and that the birds will not be injured in any way by the substitution.

Now that dried skim milk is practically impossible to get because of shipments abroad, results of the research efforts should prove of great value to poultrymen who are trying to produce more eggs than ever.

The original dry mash formula for chicks contains 5 per cent alfalfa leaf meal, and although the amount is greatly increased by the substitution, it will in no way prove detrimental and the chicks will eat it readily.

Easy Bessy Comes Through With Plenty of Milk.

Enough milk was produced in one year by one Holstein cow owned by the Pennsylvania State college to supply amply the needs of a person from birth to the age of 30.

The prize Holstein is long on name as well as production, being officially recorded as Penitente Veeman Hilda. She produced 22,341 pounds of milk with 718.8 pounds of butterfat during the year.

JOAN BENNETT'S young daughter Diane is hoping that the tires on the family car will wear out fast. She's been waging a campaign to drive that car, or else to have a pony cart of her own. The first thing Miss Bennett did after completing work with Franchot Tone in Columbia's "Highly Irregular" was to buy the pony cart; Diane's offered to drive her mother to the studio each morning.

William Holden's spending his time between scenes of "Meet the Stewarts" in studying Chinese. When Bill and Brenda Marshall, his wife, went east recently they left Brenda's four-year-old daughter with the Chinese couple that keeps house for them—and returned to find that the young lady not only had acquired quite a vocabulary in Chinese, but preferred it to English!

The Hays office has requested designers of screen clothes to avoid planning costumes which would use a lot of material, when the women of America are being instructed to conserve material. Veronica Lake will be the first star to wear the new "conservation" garments; in "The Glass Key" she'll wear "just enough goods to go around." Of course, Dorothy Lamour really came first, with her sarong.

Twenty-five thousand beauty shop owners recently chose Rita Hayworth as America's No. 1 red-head, Jinx Falkenburg as the No. 1 brunette, and Evelyn Keyes as the blonde. Seems for a year they'd consulted their customers and found that the hair styles of these three were the ones most popular. You may judge for yourself by seeing Rita's new picture, "My Sister Eileen," Miss Falkenburg's "Sweetheart of the Fleet" and Evelyn Keyes' "The Adventures of Martin Eden"—of course it's pure coincidence that they're all Columbia pictures!

When Clarence Nash first quacked like a duck on a Duran and Allen program, way back last November, nobody had any idea that the duck might soon become a star member of the cast. But "Herman" has become so real to a host of listeners that he gets fan mail, and each week brings letters asking if he's a real duck or just a noise, which delights both George and Gracie.

"The Nightingale and the Rose," a new one-act opera commissioned by the National Broadcasting company, will have its first performance on April 25 over a nation wide hook-up. Dr. Frank Black, NBC general music director, will conduct the performance, and Vivian della Chiesa and Felix Knight, both well known to radio listeners, will sing the leading roles. The opera is based on an Oscar Wilde fairy tale.

Henry Segall, who won an Oscar for his original story, "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," which was made by Columbia, tried vainly for three years to sell it. The studio executives who wouldn't buy it must feel like the publishers who turned down "Gone With the Wind." By the way, we're told that 5,400,000 persons have seen the movie about "Scarlett O'Hara" twice or more.

ODDS AND ENDS—The first movie studio to fly a service flag is Paramount, with 99 stars. . . Three of Bing Crosby's quartet, of whom have recovered from the mumps, which they had simultaneously; the hold-out was Lindsey. . . Clark Gable will next be starred by Metro in "Shadow of the Wings," a story of the army air corps. . . Joan Crawford hints a minimum of two 36-inch wooten scarves for the navy every day, between scenes of "He Knew He Was Right." . . Larry Parks, playing the part of a filling station operator for that same picture, didn't have to learn how—the worded his way through high school in a gas station.

HOUSEHOLD TIPS

Metal stains on linens or clothing usually can be removed by covering them with vinegar and salt, bleaching them in the sun, then rinsing them in warm water and washing the usual way.

When making pie, bake the leftover crust on inverted muffin tins to make tarts for the next day's meal.

When cleaning fish the blood should be wiped from the backbone. If it is not properly cleaned the fish may have a musty flavor when cooked.

If you have a modern styled kitchen choose curtains of plain colored chintz or crash. Decorate each with three half-inch bands of bias tape sewed on the top and bottom. Use a color that accents the scheme of the kitchen. Sew ivory colored bone rings on each curtain and run them on a curtain rod.

Boiled haddock is very tasty when served with mustard butter, a mixture of butter and prepared mustard well blended.

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

LONG before we were threat- ened with the necessity of blackouts window draperies were hung over walls to give rooms a sunny spacious effect. The same idea may now be used to keep light in at night. A cornice taking the place of a picture moulding is smart for both modern and traditional rooms and gives anchorage near the ceiling for rod, or pole.

This sketch shows how one homemaker made cheerful, soft green sateen blackout draperies, repeating a tone in the checks of the new slip covers. They are edged with cotton cord fringe in a darker tone.

That Nagging Backache May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—in its risk of exposure and infection—brings heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood. You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up at night, leg pains, swelling, and other signs of kidney or bladder disorder. An excellent burning, scaly or too frequent urination. DEEP WATER ISLAND by ALAN LEMAY INSTALLMENT NINETEEN This is the concluding installment in the story of the DEEP WATER ISLAND, Alaska.

"What is this?" Dick asked. "Didn't you know that James Wayne has been making additional payments on Alakoa, all through the last twenty years?" "I thought he was; I couldn't prove it, I guess." "You can prove it now. That's a receipt from Garrett Waterson for two hundred and seventeen thousand dollars. Incompetent or not, he was properly paid for Alakoa; and that receipt acknowledges it. I thought I'd better get it for you—and save you a headache." "Karen," Dick asked, "why have you done this?" "I'm sick of having you worry for fear I'm going to get your island away from you. I don't want your old island. You'd better take care of that receipt, and not sit there creating it all up. Your brothers are going to want it—and I suppose, after all, Alakoa is more theirs than yours."

He wondered irrelevantly if he should tell her that this was not so; but let it pass. "What are you going to do now?" "I'm going back to San Francisco and look for a job."

"But Garrett Waterson will want..." "I'm not going to fasten onto him. He's got troubles of his own." There was a long silence after that. "It seems to me," Dick said at last, "that neither one of us has been very sensible about any of this. All the way along we've kept fighting over the most trivial things—Islands, and grandfathers, and Kana-ka girls, and who busted a lei on James Wayne's desk. It certainly looks as if we ought to run out of things to fight and quarrel over, pretty soon."

"Don't you know," Karen asked, "whose lei that was? Don't you know who was with James Wayne when he died?" "I don't even care," Dick said. "I care. It's taken me a week's detective work even to find out what you were talking about. And I'm going to tell you about it, whether you're interested or not." "I just don't think it's important now," Dick said. "I do. Because that was what really broke us up. It made you say things to me that were perfectly unfair—unforgivable things, Dick. And I didn't know, then, even what you meant when you talked about a broken lei."

"If only you had told me—" "I couldn't tell you because I didn't know. I know now. When you went into your uncle's office, and found him dead, there was a broken lei of ginger blossoms on the floor; and you thought that it was the lei you gave to me. But I've had to talk to Taura, and Lilua, and Hokano, before I even found out that much."

"You mean to tell me that you really weren't there? You weren't with James Wayne that night at all?" "Of course not. But I've pieced together what happened, now. The lei you gave me that night was a lei that Lilua made for you; but that was not the only lei she made. She made another lei for Hokano; and he was wearing it, when he came looking for her that night."

"You mean that it was Hokano who—" "Hokano was looking for Lilua. I could have told him where to look for her. But he couldn't find her because she was in your room."

"Karen, I swear that nothing—" "Oh, I know. As a matter of fact—" a malicious little twinkle flickered in Karen's eyes—"I think I had already warned you to lock your door. But Hokano didn't know anything about that. He saw James Wayne's light; he stepped into James Wayne's office through the window, and demanded to know where Lilua was. Of course your uncle was furious that a large, very wet Kana-ka should come crashing into his office through a window. His anger was too much for him, on top of everything else. He stood up and threatened Hokano; and then just suddenly collapsed and was gone. Hokano leaned across the desk, to see if he was really dead. The ginger blossom lei caught on the corner of the desk and broke; and just then Taura came tapping at the door, peddling her glass of milk."

"Hokano told you this?" "Most of it. Who else could? He was the only one who knew." "This is all very surprising," Dick said. "I don't think so. I don't think it's even interesting. I went to the trouble to find out because I wanted to know what you were talking about. I can't remember now why I thought it mattered." "And I still don't think it matters," Dick said. "I don't think it matters at all what either one of us has said or thought or done." "In short," Karen said, "you haven't a leg to stand on; so, that being the case, you favor calling the whole thing off."

He stepped into James Wayne's office through the window, and demanded to know where Lilua was.

"I have no doubt," Dick agreed, "that I am a complete fool. Worse than that—much worse—I am also unlucky. I simply don't get the breaks—and I suppose that's the worst thing you can say about any man."

"You get as good breaks as anyone does. The principal trouble with you is that you don't show any sense." "I think it's time for both of us to show a little sense. People never get anywhere trying to dope out who was to blame for what. If people like to be together, that should decide what they're going to do."

"Such as—" "What's the sense in going to Honolulu? I don't have to go to Honolulu, and neither do you. The Holokai can just as well put about and lay a course for Nuku Hiva. How do you know you wouldn't like Nuku Hiva? I'll bet any amount you'll think it's a whole lot prettier than San Francisco."

"My word," Karen smiled faintly. "I believe it's meant to be a proposal!" "Call it what you want to," Dick said. "Don't you think—don't you think—" "Would you like to know what I think? I think you're tireome. You sit there talking on and on, when all a person wants is to go to sleep. Now, you can sit there talking to yourself as long as you want to, but I'm going to sleep, anyway," said Karen.

Dick stood up. "I've got a great mind to set a course for Nuku Hiva anyway, and make you like it!"

Karen laid her head on her arms and closed her eyes. "You're always shanghaiing somebody," she said. "But ask yourself—what does it ever get you?" Dick stood looking down at her quiet face, and wondering why he had ever hoped to understand this girl. "Nothing, I guess," he admitted at last.

Science Advances in Telepathy Tests; University Man Gives Much Information

Is telepathy, mongrelized by years of vaudeville trickery, at the threshold of becoming a science? Astonishing experiments have progressed to a point where private home tests are invited. With them goes the candid warning that, despite the fun of using the mind as a messenger boy, there is hazard, perhaps tragedy, as a possible reward for psychic tinkering. The man who took telepathy out of the magic hall and put it into the laboratory is slim, youthful, impetuous and mop-haired, a rapt believer in the theory that the human mind is, to more or less degree, a sensitive broadcasting station with messages for those with minds capable of tuning in the right wavelength, says the Literary Digest. He is Dr. Joseph Banks Rhine, whose experiments at Duke university keep people awake nightly from North Carolina to California. Mainly, success depends, he says, on possession of the "gift" to some extent, favorable mental conditions to a large extent. "First, a genuine interest is required. Preferably a fresh spontaneous curiosity to see if you can do it." In more than 100,000 trials, conducted since 1927, he has obtained results that seem billions to one against the operations of pure chance. Mathematically, at least, he has shown that, in some persons, perception without use of the ordinary sense does in fact exist. Support for Dr. Rhine's faith can

CHAPTER XVII

He went out into the main cabin, sat down at the table, and laid out a hand of solitaire; but when it was laid out he sat staring vacantly at the cards. He had reason enough to be sick of solitaire. Then presently he became aware that he was infinitely weary, and that he had as much reason as Karen to be in need of sleep. He laid his head on the table, convinced now that there was no longer on the face of the sea any uncertainty worth keeping a man awake; and was almost immediately asleep.

He must have slept a long time, for when he awoke daylight was coming in the ports. In front of him on the table had been placed a tray containing a wilted sprig of celery, and a glass of cold water that sloshed about with the Holokai's roll; but it didn't seem to him much of a joke.

Then as he shook the sleep out of his eyes he was suddenly aware that something was wrong. The sun appeared to be rising in the west; and when he had thought about that for a minute he knew that they should have been in Honolulu many hours ago. He could hardly believe that the Holokai had been in Honolulu harbor, and set Karen ashore, and put to sea again, without waking him up; but that was the only explanation he could think of at first. Certainly the Holokai was tearing southward at a roaring clip.

He went on deck and found In-yashi at the wheel. "What's the idea of not waking me up in Honolulu?" "Honolulu?" "Don't stare at me like a block-head!" Dick shouted. "What time did we leave Honolulu?" "We—we haven't been to Honolulu, Captain."

"You haven't been—well, where do you think you're going?" "Why—Why—Oh, I was afraid of this," In-yashi moaned. "Well, speak up! What do you think you're doing?" "Miss Waterson—Miss Waterson—she said you had changed the course, Captain. She said you wanted me to bring about and lay for the Marquesas. She said you had decided not to go to Honolulu. She said you were asleep, and she said I was supposed to—" "Dear heaven," Tonga Dick said. "You go ask her yourself. She's up there in the bow. Captain Tonga, I try to set what course you say. But I didn't know what to do when she came and—"

The mainsail was partly to blame; the Holokai's low-slung beams made part of the deck invisible from the wheel. But the real reason that Dick had not found Karen before now was that he had not expected her to be there. It had been very definitely fixed in his mind that she was gone from his ship, gone altogether out of his life. He went forward hesitantly, partly humble, partly dazed by his luck. He stood close beside her at the rail, and drew her against him with one arm. "Well, good morning!" Karen said. "Do you always sleep in your clothes? Because I don't think it does them any good."

Dick said stupidly, "We—we didn't go to Honolulu after all, did we?" "Certainly not. Silly effort of yours—chasing off to Nuku Hiva. Did you think you'd get away from me as easily as that?"

A great cloud of flying fish went up before the bows of the Holokai, making a flickering rainbow on the face of the warm sea. [THE END]

BANKS AND THE WAR

Taxes And The Axis

This is the most costly war of all time and everyone of us might as well recognize the fact that we will be paying for it for years in the form of higher taxes. Our advice is this: Make taxes part of your budget. There are many reasons why you should provide for taxes in advance but the best reason is that it's plain common sense. A bank account provides a convenient way to accumulate tax money.

YOUR RED CROSS NEEDS YOU!

First war poster of the new World War, painted by the distinguished artist James Montgomery Flagg, carries an appeal for a $50,000,000 war fund to aid the victims of aggression upon the United States and its island possessions.

To aid the victims of warfare being waged upon America and her island possessions, the American Red Cross has issued an appeal for a $50,000,000 war fund. Chairman Norman H. Davis announced from the national headquarters in Washington.

Mr. Davis urged men, women and children to give to this mercy fund through their local Red Cross Chapters. These funds will support the Chapter's war work with the families of men in the military services, as well as the broad relief program of the national Red Cross.

President Roosevelt, who is president of the American Red Cross, issued a proclamation urging all citizens to give to the Red Cross war fund.

In launching the appeal, Chairman Davis said: "There are millions of our citizens who desire today to demonstrate their will to victory over the enemy. Not all can be in the armed forces, and not all can volunteer their services for humanitarian work, but all can volunteer their dollars to arm the Red Cross to be their representative at the scene of battle and distress.

"Today is the day to demonstrate our high morale, our unity, our determination not alone to support our President and our fighting men at the front, but also to insure to our wounded, homeless and suffering fellow citizens in our Pacific Islands that we stand one-hundred-per-cent ready to aid them through the Red Cross."

BY GRANTLAND RICE

THIS may be disturbing news for Larry MacPhail, who doesn't disturb easily or softly. Sam Bredon, owner of the Cardinals, says this 1942 collection might be the best Cardinal team of all time.

"We had a great team in 1926—the year we trimmed the Yankees," Sam remarked. "We had another great team in 1931, and still another in 1934 when the Gashouse Gang with Dizzy Dean and Pepper Martin were riding high. But it wouldn't surprise me to see this bunch we are looking at now turn out to be our all-time top. This is certainly the best pitching staff we ever had, and one of the best all-around teams in every department."

"MacPhail says his Dodgers are much stronger than last year and after a few early hurries should never be headed," we told Bredon. "His Dodgers had better not have too many early hurries," Sam said. "Brooklyn has a good ball club, but we have a better one. We have better pitching and more speed. And if our club had any more spirit it might explode. Billy Southworth has the entire squad hustling to the limit—and I can tell you now those Dodgers will be seeing Red Wings in their broken dreams this summer. They'll be after those Dodgers from the first game to the finish."

Everything Necessary

"Look this ball club over," Bredon said. "We have all the catching any team needs, and the best pitching staff in either league, so far as both quality and quantity go."

"You'll be hearing from this kid, Pollet all season. He isn't 21 yet, but he works like a ten-year veteran. He hasn't blinding speed, and he hasn't any back-breaking curve ball. But he is smart, cool, cunning and a tough fellow to beat."

"And Pollet isn't the only one. We have at least ten high-grade pitchers, although one or two could use a little more experience. Mun-ger has a world of stuff. You know about Warneke, White, Cooper, Lanier, Shoun, and Krist, who won all the ten games he pitched last year.

"Trade our infield for the Dodgers? Nothing doing. Hopp and Sanders are both good first basemen. Crepi, Marion and Brown are ball players of top rank. They give us one of the best infields we ever had."

"In my opinion, Terry Moore defensively is the finest outfielder I ever saw. He can cover all the ground that Speaker or DiMaggio or anyone else ever covered—and maybe a few yards more. And Moore is also a 300 hitter. He is a ball player who has never received the publicity he deserved. If Terry hadn't been hurt in the stretch last fall we'd have been going away from Brooklyn at the finish."

"Eino Slaughter is another fine outfielder. And keep your eye on a kid called Mustel. Hopp can play the outfield as well as first base. And Hopp can hit and run."

These are the disturbing items we think Larry MacPhail should know about. Sam Bredon gives MacPhail credit for being one of the smartest showmen, promoters and handy guys baseball has seen. But Bredon has an idea that MacPhail has underrated this Cardinal team, and the Dodger chief with Leo Durocher may be in for a number of nervous shocks.

It Might Have Been

"I don't think they quite understand just what would have happened to the Dodgers if we had had as many of our regulars in action as they had last year. It might have been distressing—quite distressing. It might not even have been close." From here we turned to the spirit of Cardinal players through the years. They have been the Notre Dame of baseball.

"We've looked for two things," Bredon said, "speed and spirit. We want ball players who love to play baseball, who like to hustle and who are out to win. Last year the Cardinals were crashing into fences, dropping anything in the road, to win a ball game."

"In that Southwest country from where many of the great ball players come, baseball is the greatest game in the world. Football is next. Most of them, like Dean and Martin and many more, come up the hard way. They know how to take a beating and come tearing back."

SAVING TIRE WEAR
"Anybody who drives more than 40 miles an hour is a slacker."—Mr. Henderson in his appeal for rubber saving.

True, but the average man has become so accustomed to moving fast that he unconsciously gets into the upper speedometer brackets. Only today we were riding to town with Elmer Twitchell, a fiery exponent of cutting down speed to save tires.

"Mr. Henderson is dead right," snapped Mr. Twitchell. "This is no joking matter. Tires must be saved and it can only be done by driving with more care."

(He was doing about 28 now.)

"I can't understand the mental processes of the American who reads all about the rubber situation, knows how speed shortens the life of tires and yet keeps on driving as he always did. It is shameful."

(We noticed the speedometer now showed 32.)

"We're in a great war. Our country needs every ounce of rubber it can get. There are no more new tires to be had. Everybody ought to know without being told, that it is impossible to conserve tires and not reduce driving speed at all times. Yet we find ignorant, stupid fellows driving as if nothing had happened."

(He has now got the old bus up to 38.)

"Why do people take these warnings from government agencies so lightly? Something should be done to make them obey the suggestions. There is no place in American life today for the speed nut who just won't change his habits."

(He was now doing about 42.)

"I favor backing up Henderson," went on Mr. Twitchell, with deep agitation. "Every community should back him up. The police should be more vigorous. No halfway measures should be shown. I am for the arrest and punishment of every short-sighted, pig-headed, self-satisfied son of a sea cook who is too blankly blank to see his responsibilities to do his full duty."

(He was now doing 50.)

"There ought to be a law! Why should anybody be unwilling to cooperate with the government? Why should—"

We nudged him and pointed to the speedometer which had begun climbing toward 55.

Elmer reddened and took his foot off the accelerator.

"Stunty!" he said guiltily. "Just a habit, I guess. Now, as I was saying..."

THE COMMUNIQUE

A terrific crash was heard... it was followed by a sound of woodwork crashing... presently the whole window came out of the house, as the form of Elmer Twitchell was flung through it.

"What's the matter?" we asked, picking Elmer up.

"It's okay," explained Elmer. "I'm fighting a delaying action."

Shucks! Our boys are just practicing now. When they really get down to real fighting they will think it poor sportsmanship to take on less than three at a time.

The government has indicted 116 chess makers as price fixers. It ought to be easy, thinks P. L. T., to find the holes in this case.

Elmer Twitchell is in a dither over the ban on quarter and pinball machines. "I just about had it figured out when the jackpot was due to drop," he squawked, "and in another couple of months I would have had the right momentum on the marbles all figured out."

Jap Failure to Overwhelm Australia Brings Revision of Pacific Timetable; Anti-War Feeling Grows in Bulgaria As Government Meets Nazi Demands

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

TIMETABLE:

Revised

There had been much talk about the Japanese timetable being awry, but to the man in the street this was hard to believe, since the Japs had swept the East Indies, including Singapore, but excluding Bataan and Manila Bay fortresses, in the unbelievably short period since December 7.

However, it had become apparent that the Japanese plans to enter the Australian mainland had suffered a severe setback in the arrival of thousands of American troops on the continent, in the all-out plane attack on Jap concentrations in islands to the north of Australia, and in the reported reinforcements being received by the Aussies of their own blooded troops back from northern Africa.

These were signs all could read. The attacks on New Guinea had been going on far too long in comparison with those on other islands in the Indies without the Japs moving in for the Australian "kill."

It was inconceivable that the Japanese wanted to wait until the Americans and North African troops had landed, had become organized. They had not wanted MacArthur, and President Quezon to escape to the mainland.

Nor did they want their enemy to be holding onto Port Moresby at this late date, with its airfields and garrisons awaiting a Jap push over the almost impassable mountainsides to the southern part of the island.

Here, it was evident, the Japs had met serious delay. Many believed the attack on Australia was to be abandoned, thus setting the stage for a real Allied counter-offensive.

The Australians, however, particularly General Blamey, who had been placed in command of the Aussies under General MacArthur, believe that "We must arrange our strategy on the basis that the Japs are going to try an invasion."

BULGARS:

Reported on Move

The Bulgarian army had been reported on the move to the German eastern front, the government having acceded to the Nazi demands that it furnish troops for the offensive against Russia.

But the move, highly disturbing to Turkey as well as to the bulk of the Bulgarian people, was not without sharp criticism from within, almost amounting to revolution.

An anti-war movement had been gaining in popularity, and when two divisions were withdrawn from the Turkish frontier, reportedly to move against Russia, one radio station kept broadcasting an appeal to the people to "rise and emulate brave Jugoslavia." It called for the throwing out of King Boris, who was described as "only a German pawn," and "in Berlin with Von Papen."

KING BORIS

Cause of all this antagonism toward active entrance into the war on Germany's side was the blood kinship felt by Bulgars, as well as Jugoslavs, in the main, for Russians.

It was not considered unlikely that the government might be overthrown, and that the army itself might rebel against orders sending them into action against the Reds. A possibility was seen that they might only make a "token" of fighting, and surrender rather than meet the fate which mutiny would bring.

The Jugoslavs, who overthrown their government, only to succumb to unpreparedness and Croatian defections, were still fighting in force, and a Yugoslav guerrilla force of 100,000 was reported about to start a "spring offensive" of its own against the Nazi army of occupation.

Chief worry about the Bulgarian situation was Turkey, who saw in this move of soldiery the war coming every nearer to her borders.

Political circles in Berlin suggested that King Boris might renounce his old east Thracian aspirations.

INDIA:

At Crossroads

While there had been no immediate indication that the Japs were to make India the supreme objective, and abandon any idea of an immediate invasion of Australia, the situation in Burma was serious enough to give poignancy to the visit of Sir Stafford Cripps and his offer of dominion status to India—after the war.

The sharp division of opinion in India placed three men and their followers in the forefront of the picture, Gandhi, Nehru and Jinnah. Gandhi, the Mahatma, leader of more Hindus than any other man, had been the first to confer with Cripps, and a two-hour conference had found the two men willing to admit that the basis of negotiations was "satisfactory."

But the handling of Nehru and Jinnah was a horse of another color. Despite the fact that Gandhi had been more than any other man the leader of resistance to British rule, he was regarded as more reasonable, more desirous of defending India than the other leaders.

Jawaharlal Nehru Mohandas K. Gandhi

Nehru, the congress chieftain, prior to talking with Cripps had said that anything less than a promise of complete independence would be inadequate.

"Japan is offering us that," he said boldly. While he professed no "love for the aggressor," he said that British failure to offer independence would leave India no recourse other than to adopt a passive resistance to the Japs, which he admitted would be no practical resistance at all.

Nehru frankly did not believe the British could achieve Indian unity, blaming Jinnah, the Moslem head. He said that Jinnah was insisting on a divided freedom for India, and that while he, Nehru, was willing to "go along" with any type of freedom, he doubted that England was going to accede to Jinnah's demands.

Relations were worse at the time of Cripps' arrival than at any time in history, Nehru said, talking darkly of civil war being "just around the corner," an eventuality which most observers believed would be suicidal with Japan knocking at the nation's eastern borders.

COMMANDOS:

Hit Daring Blow

Britain's commandos, after a lull of several weeks during which they doubtless had been "cooking" another raid, had descended in full power on the German-held port of St. Nazaire, important submarine and naval base, with dire results.

Chief objective, outside of general demolition work around the port, had been the destruction of a huge dock, the only one on the European Atlantic coast capable of handling the 35,000-ton German battleship Von Tirpitz.

The commandos had attacked St. Nazaire under cover of an aerial bombing raid, using paratroops, destroyers, and motor torpedo boats. The Nazis denied all efficacy of the raid, but the British just as positively declared it to have been a huge success.

Chief item and most daring in the raid was the use of an average U. S. destroyer as a swiftly moving bomb to ram the dock. The destroyer had been loaded with five tons of high explosive in its bow, fixed with a time fuse to permit the crew to get ashore and fight while the ship blew up.

British sources had reported that this was just what happened. The vessel rammied the dock and stuck there, later to blow up and put the structure out of commission.

The Germans said, however, that their coastal defense batteries struck the destroyer and caused her to blow up before reaching her objective.

The Germans, however, admitted that many of the raiders got ashore, but claimed they were all killed or captured. The British said there "were some casualties," but that the objectives were carried out, and that many members of the raiding forces returned in safety to England.

It was all part of the British spring offensive, which included practically non-stop raids against Germany and occupied France.

The U. S. destroyer found at her end a place in history along with the Vindictive and the blockships of Zeebrugge fame.

BATAAN:
More Bombs

MANUEL L. QUEZON
Relief not long in coming.

Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, picking up where General MacArthur left off, was continuing the Bataan campaign, and Corregidor had withstood the heaviest bombing attacks of the war.

The 'guns of Corregidor and her sister fortresses had hammered away at flights of Jap bombers, dropping four one day, two the next, with others "probably downed or damaged."

President Quezon, on his arrival with his family and cabinet in Australia, predicted that the iron stand of Wainwright's men soon would receive its reward, and that relief for the Philippine garrison would "not be long in coming."

The Filipino president had been variously reported as killed, dead of disease, and murdered on orders of General MacArthur. Actually, he had never left MacArthur's headquarters, and had flown to Australia to take his stand, there again.

AMERICANS:

Cupid 'Down Under'

Most interesting while the American troops were training in Australia, becoming acclimated, and "meeting the people" was the flood of romance sweeping over the continent.

Literally scores of marriages were being performed, causing all sorts of reactions.

Some of the Aussie clergy deplored these "marriages in haste," and one cleric had the bad taste to say the "Americans came here to fight, not to get married."

The Australian public met the romances with whoops of joy, and the press was definitely on the side of young love.

One American commanding officer forbade his soldiers to get married, and drew down on himself howls of rage from the rank and file, and a reprimand from his superiors.

The war department in Washington copped this climax by issuing a statement that any American soldier had a perfect right to get married as long as he did his duty as a soldier, and obeyed the commands of his superiors—and was free to get married.

And that, after all, turned out to be the only major worry of those who watched Cupid's darts flying right and left in Australia—the fear that some enthusiastic lovers might forget that they had wives at home.

RUBBER-OIL:

German Patents

Congressmen had been looking with a wary and angry eye at the Standard Oil group which, it had been publicly charged, had possession of a superior rubber-oil formula, and had been negotiating with it, and turning its patents over to a German concern even after December 7.

For a time things had looked most serious, with Senator Truman saying: "It looks like treason and I'm going to give the Standard officials a chance to show why it isn't," but this feature of the case simmered down a couple of days later when he said he was "willing to let bygones be bygones."

But the aftermath was that Standard and its process for making rubber out of oil was on the spot, and its every move was being watched. Truman said he didn't like the looks of the deal whereby the government was constructing plants for making aviation gasoline.

"It looks as though the big companies are freezing out the little ones, and that they will make enough profit out of their contracts to pay for the government buildings," he said.

Another aftermath of the congressional probe into conditions surrounding the rubber-making deals with German firms was that Truman said in the future no foreign patents of any sort might be made without government scrutiny and approval.

Congress didn't want to be caught napping again.

OFFENSIVE:

The oft-repeated question "where will Hitler's spring offensive strike" had been sufficiently answered by dispatches from Moscow.

Activity was definitely on the lull in North Africa.

Activity across the channel was largely from England to Germany, with the Nazis on the defensive.

But on the Russian front, both at Murmansk and all along the whole 2,000-mile line, the Reds themselves were admitting widely increased German activity.

Origin of Dum Dum Bullet

A dum dum bullet is a partially steel-cased bullet with a soft core that expands as it tears through flesh, says Pathfinder. Because of the mushrooming of the core it aggravates the injury of the wound.

Use of dum dum bullets was officially condemned by the International Peace conference of 1899. Their name derives from Dum Dum, a town near Calcutta, India, where they were first manufactured by the British for use against fanatical native tribesmen who refused to be stopped by ordinary steel-jacketed bullets.
