Tuesday and Wednesday were busy days at the school building as all stores and business houses were registering and applying for certificates to purchase sugar. Defense Stamps and Bond sales to our students will cease this week. Students have averages of about $5.00 invested. Next week we plan to give a summary for the whole school. Supt. CARD OF THANKS We wish to thank our many friends for their acts of kindness and words of comfort during the illness and after the death of our beloved wife and mother. Also for the beautiful flowers. L. R. Hust, Mrs. Jim Greer, Marion, Otis, George, Elmer and Roy Hust and the grandchildren.

County Clerk Has Banner Garden Felix Ramey, county clerk, has a garden, while small, we will wager that it has no equal in Carrizozo. His system of watering his garden, is one of his own creation. After planting lettuce, onions, beans and almost everything in the vegetable line, he arranged a line of stove-pipe underneath the bed. All along the pipe, he punched holes and at the entrance, he used an elbow, into which Felix pours water until the pipes are full. The water flows out from the holes in the pipes and saturates the soil underneath the plants, keeping them moist at all times. Everything is growing remarkably and healthy. Get your old stove-pipe and give his invention a trial.

Mrs. R. W. Bowlin has been in Roswell this week, attending the Neesley Clinic. Ruth Spear of Claunch has gone to spend the summer with her grandparents in Littlefield, Texas. The mother of County Clerk Felix Ramey is ill at the Turner Hospital.

Posse's Meeting And Dinner At the Tully ranch at Glencoe last Sunday, there were about 40 members, their wives and the guests. In the forenoon there was a pistol practice in which there were many good scores made by the boys. In the afternoon there was a calf roping contest, those engaged in it being Gerald Tully, John Thomas, Bill Ferguson, Peg Pflingsten, Ralph Bonnell, Grady Eldridge, Fred Lamay and Joe Nelson. At 5 in the afternoon, the party went to the Tully orchard, where the trees were loaded with blossoms and partook of a chuck wagon dinner prepared and served by Dewey Stokes, Buck Nosker, Roy Morgan, Ralph Bonnell. Many compliments were passed to the above named members on the preparation of the dinner. After the dinner, the Posse met in regular session at the Glencoe Club House for the regular business meeting with Dewey Stokes, President, presiding. During the meeting, the ladies attended to the dishes and general clean-up, for which they have the undying gratitude of the Posse. The meeting proved of much importance. Wm. Galacher gave in some valuable advice of a confidential nature and something that will be of much value in posse circles. Notice—There will be a special meeting next Monday night at the courthouse and cards have been sent to all members. A good attendance is urged. —Ansel Swearingen, Secretary.

Look! Would you know what to do in case of a Gas Attack? What protective measures would you take? What First Aid measures would you take? Do you know the Air Raid Warning Signals? And what to do? These things of horror may never come here. But what if you are visiting in coastal cities and the Alarm is sounded? Don't be a burden on your fellow citizens — Know what to do—and DO IT! Note change of class meeting, this coming Friday, Saturday, Monday and finish Wednesday. —James Brister, Instructor.

Theo. Hobbie Decorated for Bravery We understand that Sgt. Theo. Hobbie was decorated for bravery at Pearl Harbor. Theodore is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Hobbie, formerly of this place, but now located in Ruidoso. Ray Fulmer was an Alamogordo visitor Sunday.

The Invisible Army As near as can be determined, the time is about at hand for the fulfillment of a prophecy concerning the present situation and the final outcome of this war. We have all heard of the "ghost voice" of Colonel Britton, who as an invisible war prophet and advisor, has been fostering and guiding the V for victory army on the continent.

According to the "ghost" voice, which has electrified people of the old countries, where they are now in bondage to the Hitler regime, the voice has already notified these people that in six weeks the alarm will be sounded throughout France, Belgium and other subdued countries for a mass uprising to regain their lost liberties. Even now, mysterious friendly hands are reaching out in the darkness and over the seas, quietly grabbing the principals who have been connected with making these people slaves to the Hitler bondage system. Until the time is ripe for the uprising, the ghost advises these heart-broken people to be as patient as possible and also to keep quiet under the strain until with one accord, aided by the Allies with additional strength, they will arise like the proverbial Samson, tear down the pillars and uproot the foundations of penal servitude where they are now held in bondage, unite with the Allies and with the help of God, again breathe the air of freedom.

One might question as to how this amalgamation could bring about the results we would desire to see, but the unrest in the countries subdued by Hitler, is like a smouldering volcano until the explosion occurs. This uprising will be followed by insurrections, bloodshed and violence of all kinds — then behold the ruin and desolation spoken of by Daniel, the Prophet. But out of it all, out of the ashes of despotism, brutality, ignorance, heathenism, and all forms of ungodliness, will come an era of prosperity and freedom like which the world has never known. Nations of the earth which believe in freedom and the release from the chains of slavery, must prepare for it — it is coming before the end of the year.

REGISTRATION BOARD held session Monday and completed its labors as far as entering the questionnaires were concerned. There were 16 places over the County for registrants to make their returns, the total number being 838. Mr. and Mrs. Jack O'Malley came over from Capitan Saturday evening and returned, accompanied by Mrs. O'Malley's twin sister, Miss Cotey, who spent Sunday with the O'Malleys.

Operator and Mrs. R. C. Cummings left last Friday for Tucuman, to which place he was transferred from here. Harry Miller is now on the trick which Mr. Cummings held.

Mrs. L. R. Hust The funeral of Mrs. L. R. Hust, who passed this life last Saturday, was held at the Hust home Monday with the Rev. Lawson conducting the same. The attendants were composed of the many friends of the family who came from far and near to pay their last respects to the little mother, who had so faithfully served her generation so well. Rev. Lawson paid a glowing tribute to the Christian character of the deceased and reminded his hearers of the wonderful example furnished by the life of that estimable lady who had passed this life and gone to her just reward. The remains were interred in the Nogal cemetery. Undertaker Kelley making the interment.

Rebecca Hurley Hust was born at Cedarvally, Mo., Feb. 10, 1870 and came to New Mexico in '92. On December of that year, she was married to L. R. Hust. To this union, 8 children were born, 6 of whom are living, namely: Marion and Elmer of Nogal, Otis, Roosevelt, Okla., Gladys Greer, Carrizozo, George, Capitan, and Roy of El Paso, all of whom were present at the funeral.

Like many others of our good mothers, Mrs. Hust contributed her share toward leaving an example of true Christian fortitude to the coming generation and a glowing example of American motherhood. During her long period of illness, she chose having a smile and kind word for her visitors, rather than to refer to her own misfortunes. Early in life, she became a member of the Baptist Church and continued as such throughout her lifetime. The survivors have the sympathy of their many friends over Lincoln County.

Tin Cans Do Their Bit in War Program

Carloads of tin cans are pictured at the right, en route to a de-tinning plant, where they will be reclaimed for their content of that vital metal. San Francisco housewives, co-operating in the nation's drive for tin, saved their tin cans so that 150 tons were gathered on the opening day. In photo at left, Martha Quentner and Helen Anderson (right) check ingots of tin reclaimed. The ingots weigh 100 pounds each.

Merrily They Sail to Continent 'Down Under'

There's many a happy smile and cheer from these U. S. soldiers (left) as they look on Australian soil from their transport ship. They are now fighting under command of General MacArthur. Right: In the lore of the sea a "pollywog" (one who hasn't crossed the equator) should be hazed by a shell-back as the ship passes the imaginary line. No exception was made on this Australian convoy. Here Neptunus Rex and his court are in costumes, officiating.

Ladies and Gentlemen, Meet the 'Beep'

The Jeep and the Peep have become famous in Uncle Sam's army, but there is something new—the "beep." Pretty Elaine Gundersen, a secretary at Gowen Field, Boise, Idaho, delivers a package to technical sergeant James Ladd, from the carting box of a "beep." With a speed of 25 m.p.h., this auto-glide recoter is the army's answer to the rubber shortage.

Chilean Midshipmen Visit Texas

Midshipmen of the Chilean navy, on a practice cruise aboard their country's naval vessel, Nancagua, watch the recording "crab" of a tank trainer at Ellington Field, Texas, during their visit to the world's largest multi-meter flying school. The future South American officers had visited Cuba and the U. S. and were homeward bound.

Dog Sentry

Scenes like this, with a soldier and his sentry dog, may soon be a reality at munitions plants. The army has asked for 200 trained dogs for sentry work. Dogs are especially useful as sentries because they can detect the presence of intruders.

Get back in that kimona!
It's there where you belong;
It's strictly a la bathrobe
That you can do no wrong;
Get back in that kimona!
And face the simple facts:
You rate attention only
In aerobic acts.

Get back in that kimona!
And then await your cue:
A blare of circus music,
The clowns . . . the seals
and YOU!
Get back in that kimona
And take in all the slack!
You never looked convincing
Save flat upon your back!

Get back in that kimona—
And back into your tightst!
(We'll toss you in some barrels
For matinees and nights.)
Get back in that kimona
And grab a parasoll—
In any other costume
You don't look right at all.

Get back in that kimona—
Onto that platform hop!
Your act's done with a ladder
And some poor guy-on top;
Get back in that kimona
And hark to our appeals!
Your spot—and well you know it—
Is there among the SEALS.

Get back in that kimona
And climb up on that wire!
(You wanna walk the tightrope—
Not set the world on fire;
Get back in that kimona!
Your era was the time
When Albee was in flower
And Keith was in his prime.)

GAS RATIONING
Within a few weeks automobile driving will be "by card only." It will no longer be a question of where you will go for your Sunday auto trip, but how?

Week-end motor trips are to become short distance affairs, and on any summer vacation trip by sedan a bicycle strapped on the back will be compulsory equipment.

Americans have become accustomed to pile into the old boiler, step on the gas and keep driving until the family took pity or the car hit a tree. "Fill'er up!" have long been the three most common words in the language. And it is going to be quite an experience for the average man to realize that even his detours are being rationed.

Guns must get priorities over joyrides and no real American will question the justice of putting bombers, tanks and warships ahead of hot brakes, hot dogs and hot radiators.

We have driven by ear, by intuition, by habit and by orders, but driving by card will be a new experience.

It will not be a question of how many miles does she give to the gallon, but how many gallons does she get to the card.

"Well," we can hear mom saying Sunday morning, "where will we go for a ride today?"
"Look at the ration card and see," we can hear pop reply.

"You've got it," mom will reply. "No, I haven't. I left it right there on the table so you could all make your Sunday plans accordingly."

"It's only got two punches left," sister Susie will observe as she examines it.

"Then that's as far as we'll go," dad will snap.

"How far can we go on two punches?" little Edgar will ask.
"That will get us just about enough gasoline for one bathing beach, four all-hot and two arguments with a motorcycle cop," dad will explain.

And a motorist already has to carry so many cards there will be serious complications. He is practically a walking card case right now. Once he empties his pockets it is hard to tell whether he is a motorist or a fortune teller.

However, war is war, and from now on most auto trips will be demitasse travels. And if you are an autoist disposed to squawk, forget it. Just think about the luck of the poor fellow who just bought a rural tavern, a roadside lunch or one of these tourist camps. Oh, man!

HORSES, MULES MORE VALUABLE

Restrictions on Tractors And Machines Is Cause.

By SAM L. WILLIAMS
(Assistant Extension Animal Husbandman,
North Carolina State College.)

Much has been said and written about "Old Dobbin," resuming his place in the "agricultural sun"—about a return to the horse and buggy days, now that war-time shortages of tires and metals threaten to restrict the use of modern labor-saving tractors and machines.

Horses and mules have never lost their importance on the farm. "The value of workstock on North Carolina farms is twice as great as that of all cattle and calves, and five times as great as the value of all hogs and sheep.

Horses and mules furnish a large percentage of the basic power essential in the production of all-agricultural commodities. This has always been true, despite the increase in tractors and other machinery in use on the farm.

Now Profitable.
Raising horses and mules is a profitable business when they are used as a source of farm power, and as a means of supplementing the farm income through the sale of surplus animals produced. Four good animals can plow four, disc 15 or harrow 30 acres a day in the spring season; do other kinds of farm work at a proportionate rate; and raise enough colts to furnish replacements, if wisely managed.

In this way, the work animals reaching an age of 6 or 7 years can be sold each year and younger animals bred to replace them. A good team of well-broken horses or mules will demand a much higher price than matched pairs of yearlings or two-year-olds. Pasture is the first consideration in properly feeding workstock.

AGRICULTURE IN INDUSTRY

By FLORENCE C. WEED

Sauerkraut Juice
Sailors on early American clipper ships ate sauerkraut to keep in good health when they went on year-long voyages, and their descendants have kept up the habit in order to keep well at home.

A scientist at the University of Oklahoma reports his success in feeding infants by adding sauerkraut juice to milk. Physicians are prescribing it in the treatment of some diseases, bearing out the old theory of Erasistratus, famous Syrian physician, who prescribed cabbage for his patients in 249 B. C.

Many a farm family still keeps a sauerkraut barrel in a dark corner of the cellar, but most of the kraut used is canned in the states of New York, Wisconsin, Ohio and Michigan. Here the cabbage is cured in wooden vats. Only salt is added to draw out as much as 88.8 per cent of the water content from the cabbage. In warm fall weather, the cabbage cures rapidly and sometimes within two weeks tests the 8.5 per cent lactic acid required by government standards. To be well cured and tasty, it must ripen for several months before being canned.

The first sauerkraut juice was canned in 1924 and has found a good market. It is obtained by drawing off the brine from the vats while the cabbage is curing, then straining and clarifying it by a centrifugal machine that throws out all the cabbage particles. A mixture of half tomato juice and half sauerkraut juice is even more popular because of its attractive color.

The cabbage leaf contains large amounts of vegetable wax.

Farm Notes

Unusual Situation
For the first time in history, more soybean oil meal than cottonseed oil meal has been available for livestock feeding. Another unusual feature of the feed situation is the comparatively low cost of linseed oil meal, due to increased flax acreage and the availability of meal from Argentine.

Part-Time Farms
Between 1930 and 1940 there was a sharp increase in ownership of small part-time farms near large cities.

Nut That's Not a Nut
The peanut, America's favorite food at baseball games and circuses, really isn't a nut at all. It's a pea, a member of the bean family. Nutpea or peanut, it's still good to eat, say the nation's baseball and circus fans.

Peanuts Morale-Builder
Peanuts—American farms produce more than 1,000,000,000 pounds for eating purposes annually—rank high as a morale-building food because they are rich in vitamin B1.

Star
DUST
STAGE SCREEN RADIO

A STUDIO stage hand stole the spotlight from William Powell and Hedy Lamarr when Wendell Willkie (who recently was elected chairman of the board of 20th Century-Fox) visited the stars. Willkie arrived just in time to watch them doing their first love scenes in "Crossroads," and offered to change places with Powell. The stage hand, Pinky Picciano, had a brother who was a petty officer on the battleship Mississippi when Willkie's brother Ed was a division officer on the ship, and entertained Willkie and the cast with anecdotes. Incidentally, in his new position Willkie will not "perform any executive duties or be actively connected with the operation of the company."

Eleanor Powell's spun glass hula skirt is scheduled for a tour of the army camps; so are two other costumes—a pink satin talls and top hat and an abbreviated treader outfit. She's bought the rest of the costumes she wore in "Ship Ahoy," and they'll go along.

When Jack Benny takes his Sunday night radio show to army camps the member of the cast who has the most fun is Rochester; the soldiers always supply him with a "Jeep," and he has the time of his life riding all over camp. "No rougher than the Maxwell," says he.

EDDIE ANDERSON

William Holden was the first married Hollywood man to join the services; quilling motion pictures at the top of his career, he became a private in the army. You'll remember him as the small-time bookkeeper in "The Remarkable Andrew," for his speech for democratic ideals. He married Brenda Marshall last July; she is working at Warner Brothers' in "The Constant Nymph."

Virginia Dale went home to Charlotte, N. C., for a vacation, and returned with a husband, one who's probably unique among Hollywood husbands. He's 26, his name is Courtland Shepherd, and his business is, of all things, commercial shark fishing!

There's no sound-effect trickery about it when you hear George or Gracie Allen running up and down stairs. A set of wooden steps—12 of them; count 'em, some time—is near the mike, and Ed Lutas, sound-effect operator, does the skipping up and down.

If it hadn't been for the red polish on her nails, three-year old Patsy Nash would have played a boy in "I Live on Danger." She was discovered when she and her mother were waiting for a bus. Producers William Pine and William Thomas wanted a little boy for the picture, thought she'd do. Then they also discovered the red polish, learned that she was a girl—and rewrote the part for her. She was so good that they've optioned her for a featured role in the Richard Arlen "Interceptor Command."

It begins to look as if the gentlemen have it when correct answers have to be given. During 11 weeks of broadcasting, on Bob Hawk's Friday CBS quiz, 14 men have won $4,474 in defense bonds; only 8 women have scored, winning $1,879.

For the past three years Alan Buncie has been radio's popular "Young Doctor Malone"; during that time he's picked up many fine points of medicine, so many that he was chosen to play Dr. Walters in "Chaplain Jim, U. S. A.," the new Monday through Friday dramatization which is being presented in co-operation with the radio division of the war department.

ODDS AND ENDS—Hal Peary, the air's "Great Gilderleeve," has signed at RKO to appear with Fibber McGee and Molly in their next picture. . . . And RKO has cast Randolph Scott and Jackie Cooper in top roles with Pat O'Brien in "Battle Stations," a story of three U. S. navy gunners. . . . One of screendom's favorite juvenile teams, Mickey Rooney and Freddie Bartholomew, will be reunited in "Yank at Eton" . . . Their last appearance together was in "Lord Jeff" four years ago. . . . "Fish," adapted from Mary Roberts Rinehart's delightful stories, is being screened by Metro with Marjorie Main as the erratic spinster heroine.

LESSON TEXT—Mark 11:1-11; Luke 19:41-44.
GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.—Mark 11:9.
The last week of our Lord's earthly life had come. "Normally, in fact almost universally, the last week of a man's life is of practically no significance. In many cases he is too sick to speak with any clear intelligence, and, of course, when ill, is incapable of doing any noteworthy deeds. In our Lord's life, the last week was the most important of all, and to it more space is given (in Scripture) than to any one whole year of Jesus' ministry" (Dr. Wilbur M. Smith).

I. The King Seeking Man's Help (Mark 11: 1-7).

How surprising that the One who made and upholds all things (Col. 1: 16, 17) should have to say, "The Lord hath need of him," in sending for a humble beast of burden. Yet therein lies a marvelous truth. He has graciously so ordered the universe that He has need of us and of our possessions.—That was true in the days of His flesh, when He had voluntarily become poor for our sakes. In a somewhat different sense, but nonetheless precious, it is true today.

To be needed by anyone—to have that which can be used—is always encouraging, but to find that the Master needs us and what we have to give, is truly inspiring. Let us learn to give as readily as the owner of the colt (vv. 5, 6), and let us also learn the important lesson of unquestioning obedience taught in verse 4. "They went their way" to do what the Lord told them to do. How greatly simplified and glorified would be the lives of Christian people if they would thus obey Christ.

II. The King Receiving Man's Homage (Mark 11:8-11).

Presenting Himself as their Messiah, Jesus received the enthusiastic acclaim of His disciples and friends, who were probably joined by others who were drawn by the excitement. But the Pharisees did not join in (see Luke 19:39, 40) nor did the city, not even knowing who He was (Matt. 21:10, 11). So it is today; some love and praise Him, some hate Him, others just ignore Him. Of which class are you?

He gave Jerusalem and the nation a final opportunity to receive Him. It was not yet too late, but it was their last chance. Such a time comes in the life of everyone of us. They rejected Him. What do we do?

But let us not forget that there were those who shouted, "Hosanna," who cast their garments down before Him and waved palms of victory and joy. Thank God for their holy enthusiasm. Pray God that we may have a little more of it. We have come to the place where nobody shouts "Hosanna" or "Hallelujah" except the church choir—and they do it only in carefully modulated tones. We cheer at ball games or at a political rally, and while we surely do not want that same kind of confusion in the church, it would be quite appropriate to bring some real enthusiasm into our Christianity.

Our Lord knew that it would not be long ere the multitude would be changing their cry to "Crucify Him," for He knew their sinful hearts. So in the midst of His day of acclaim we see

III. The King Weeping Over Man's Sin (Luke 19:41-44).

In times of great joy or under unusual circumstances we are prone to think only of our own pleasure or our own need. But with Christ the need of the souls of men was never for a moment forgotten. He might well have gone on to Bethany to rest and rejoice with His friends over His triumphal entry into Jerusalem.

This constant and tenderhearted concern which Christ had for the city which hated and was soon to crucify Him; this remembrance of their need even in His brief hour of public acclaim, may well teach the church a much needed lesson: Many churches are prosperous, well cared for, and even popular. They are prone to rest back and ride the crest of the wave of popularity, forgetting the souls of men and women in need, many of whom live under the very shadow of the church. Shame on us for such callous indifference in the light of our Lord's agonized weeping—for such is the meaning of the word in Luke 19:41.

Others may observe that their city or community is hostile to the gospel, that men would rather crucify the Christ than receive Him. And so they are content to have their snug little spiritual retreat where they must to comfort one another and to congratulate themselves on their spiritual haven. Again we say, shame on us!

New
in the History
of America

A New Flag Is Unfurled
By that rude bridge that arched the flood, Their flag to April's breeze unfurled; Here once the embattled farmers stood, And fired the shot heard round the world. —Emerson "Concord Hymn."

ON PATRIOT'S day this year a new flag was unfurled to April's breeze. It was highly appropriate that this should have been done on April 19. For this banner bears the symbolic likeness of those embattled farmers who, on another April 19 nearly 170 years ago, fired the opening shots in America's first fight for freedom.

They call this new banner the Minute Man Flag and under it present-day Americans are fighting another battle for freedom—not with bullets but with bonds. For this is the flag which the United States treasury department is making available for purchase by employers when at least 90 per cent of their employees are participating in the payroll savings plan of buying Victory Bonds. It is also available to labor unions and other organizations when 20 per cent of their members are purchasing bonds through some regular and systematic method.

Along with the flag goes a certificate, also adorned with the picture of the Minute Man surrounded by 13 stars (for the Thirteen Original States), and signed by Secretary Morgenthau, the state administrator and the state chairman of the defense savings organization, to testify to the workers' patriotic contribution to America's war effort.

The model for the white figure on the blue field of the new flag is, of course, the statue of the Minute Man which stands on the site of the battle of Concord. Few if any statues on the soil of the United States are more familiar to the average American than this one. But how much does he know about the sculptor who designed it and the unusual circumstances under which it was made?

The sculptor was Daniel Chester French, the son of a New Hampshire judge who moved to a farm near Concord when Daniel was 17. One day while young Daniel was harvesting turnips he suddenly yielded to an urge for creative expression. Picking up a large turnip, he set to work with his jackknife and carved from the glistening heart of the turnip the image of a frog.

Young French next began carving figures out of wood and when his father told Mary Alcott, a sister of Louisa, about the work of his talented son, she gave him some clay and one of her modeling tools. From that time on he was determined to be a sculptor.

In 1871 the town of Concord decided that a memorial of some sort should be erected on the site of the famous Revolutionary battle there. The sum of $1,000 was raised for this purpose and 21-year-old Dan French was asked to submit a design for the memorial. So he made a sketch for a statue and took it to two friends of his father—Ralph Waldo Emerson and Judge Hoar—and upon their recommendation it was immediately accepted.

Then came the job of making the plaster model—a difficult one for the inexperienced young sculptor. But, with the help of his father, he prepared a mold, dissolved what he thought was enough plaster, stood the model on its head and poured the molten plaster into it. But alas! There must have been a hole under the minute man's hat for the plaster ran right through the mold out on to the floor. So they had to wait another day until they could get more plaster.

The first model wasn't especially successful, partly due to the fact that French was working in a poorly lighted room in a business building in Boston. But he persisted at his task and in 1872 the second and final model was completed. However, three years elapsed before the statue was cast and unveiled at Concord. By that time French had gone to Italy to study. So he was not present for the ceremonies held at the dedication of the statue which was destined to become one of his best known works of art!

The unveiling of the statue was set for April 19, 1875. The "April breeze" that morning was a bitterly cold one but more than 5,000 people were on hand for the event. President U. S. Grant and most of the members of his cabinet had come to Concord. There were bands and marching and speech-making. The speaker of the day was George William Curtis and he spoke for two hours while his auditors shivered. Later a wag declared that more people died from exposure to the weather that day than were killed at the battle which they were celebrating!

Glorious Inheritance

If we do our best; if we do not magnify trifling troubles; if we look resolutely, I will not say at the bright side of things, but at things as they really are; if we avail ourselves of the manifold blessings which surround us, we can not but feel that life is indeed a glorious inheritance.—John Lubbock.

Shortage of Singer Sewing Machines

Government regulations cut the manufacture of civilian articles made of metal, may cause the discontinuance of the sale of Sewing Machines in the near future. Large government contracts may take all surplus stocks.

Restrictions on both men's and women's ready-to-wear will be all the more reason for sewing at home.

Why not get a sewing machine before stocks are depleted and they are still available?

SINGER Sewing Machines are demonstrated at the Burke Gift Shop by Mrs. Fay Boat. Come in and make your selection before it is too late.

SHE LOVED A SPY by SYLVIA TAYLOR

THE STORY SO FAR: Joan Leland, pretty secretary to Arthur Mulford, San Francisco importer, is amazed and angry when he unexpectedly discharges her with two weeks' salary and refuses any explanation.

CHAPTER III

Joan felt Karl's irritation towards Sybil. "My parents are both dead," she explained. "Sybil feels that she has to look after me."

But even Joan was annoyed to find Sybil waiting up for them later that night.

"It's almost two o'clock," Sybil snapped. "What's the idea?"

Karl Miller looked amused as he stood hat in hand in the doorway. "In that case, I shall say good-night without further delay."

When he had gone Joan turned furiously to her sister. "Why did you have to say that? I'm old enough to manage my own affairs."

There were deep circles of fatigue beneath Sybil's blue eyes. Her voice seemed to echo like a warning through the old-fashioned, high-ceilinged rooms. "You've got to quit working for Karl Miller! You've got to work tomorrow!"

The sisters stared at each other in the dimly lit room. Joan threw her head back defiantly as she cried. "You've made Karl angry! You had no right to do that."

Sybil smiled ruefully. "He looked more amused than angry. 'It's up to me to look after you, Joan. I feel responsible since mother and dad are gone. If anything happened, I'd never forgive myself.'"

"I know, Sybil! And we mustn't quarrel about it."

She yawned and started for the bedroom but Sybil caught her arm. "Then you will quit working for Karl Miller?"

"No, I will not. I'm twenty years old, Sybil, and I'm not going to let you or anyone else run my life."

"The grandfather's clock in the corner chimed."

"Two-thirty," Joan observed, evading Sybil's worried glance. "We'd better get some sleep. Don't you have to work in the morning?"

"No. Today was my last day. From now on I'm one of the unemployed."

"And you expect me to quit my job? Oh, no, Sybil! I'm making a good salary and whether you think so or not, Karl is a gentleman."

"Maybe so," Sybil said as she snapped off the lamp, "but I don't trust him."

The next day Joan Leland arrived at the Club Elite promptly at two o'clock. Karl Miller's office was filled with baskets of flowers. Tonight was opening night but Karl was unruffled behind his desk, impeccably dressed in a gray suit, a red carnation in his boutonhole.

She was glad that she had worn her best black dress. It was an expensive sophisticated dress, the kind of dress Joan knew Karl would approve. Heavy silver earrings were her only ornament, and she had used a touch of mascara, a dash of dark red lipstick. Joan had the assurance of a woman who knew that she looked her best. Her green eyes sparkled as she closed the office door behind her.

"Good afternoon," she said demurely. Her employer was not the type to evade issues. "I've been thinking about your sister, Joan. Tell me something about her."

Joan's eyes were void of any emotion. "Get that orchestra leader on the telephone," he said. "I have some instructions to give him."

"Yes, Mr. Miller!" and as Joan dialed the number she found herself more than ever intrigued by this man who had offered to help her sister. This strange enigma that was Karl Miller.

At six o'clock Joan decided to go home for dinner. In two hours she could easily make it and she was eager to tell Sybil of her good fortune.

Her sister looked up in surprise as Joan burst into the living room. "What on earth are you doing home? You didn't by any chance quit?"

"Don't be silly!" Joan cried, throwing her hat on the table. "I have wonderful news for you. Karl can get you a job at the Ritz Beauty Salon."

Sybil was genuinely surprised. "The Ritz? That smart new shop on Post street?"

"Nothing less! Isn't it wonderful? Karl knows the owner. He's going to call her and fix it up for you."

"But it's one of the best shops in town," Sybil said unbelievably. "Of course! Wasn't it nice of him? Honestly, Sybil, how can you dislike a man who is so kind? Imagine his thinking about a job for you today, of all days, when he's so busy with the club opening!"

Sybil was standing by the window. "Doesn't look like a very good night for it. It's going to rain."

"Is that all you can say?" Joan cried indignantly. "Karl said maybe, since you didn't like him, you wouldn't want his help. But I thought you would."

Sybil turned. "You're right, Joan! I do need the job. You may tell Mr. Miller that I appreciate it very much."

Joan did not notice the coldness of her sister's reply. She was happily unconscious of the expression on Sybil's face.

"How about dinner? I'm starved. I have to be back at the club by eight."

Sybil broiled the chops while Joan made a salad.

"I see you're wearing your good black dress to work. What's the idea?"

"Why not?" Joan retorted. "I'm making fifty dollars a week now and I have to look my best."

"You didn't seem to think it necessary when you worked for Mr. Mulford."

Murdoch. Tell your sister she can start work Monday morning.

"Oh thank you!" Joan cried. "It's so kind of you, Karl!"

He rose, came around the desk. "Has it made you happy, Joan?"

"Of course," her eyes fluttered beneath the steel-blue eyes.

Karl Miller laughed softly as he drew her into his powerful arms. Sybil's warnings rang in her ears but the pounding of his heart overcame them as her lips blindly met his.

There was strange magic in Karl Miller's kiss. How long Karl held her in that embrace, Joan did not know. When he released her he put a hand beneath her chin and looked deeply into the green eyes that were filled with emotion.

"Oh, Karl!" Joan cried softly, but before she could say more the office door opened and a man entered.

His eyes caught the little scene and he turned to go. "Sorry, Karl! See you later."

Joan turned back to her desk with flaming cheeks but Karl Miller did not seem embarrassed. "It's all right, Paul! Come on in. I don't think you've met my new secretary, Miss Leland, this is Paul Sherman."

Joan was forced to look into a pair of brown eyes. Their owner was tall and lithe. He had a quick smile, brown curly hair. It was a good-looking face, with its straight nose and square jaw.

"I'm very glad to meet you," Paul Sherman said emphatically.

Joan acknowledged the introduction and turned quickly back to her typing. What would this man think of her? Karl had said, "My new secretary," which implied that they had not been acquainted long. Joan told herself that she didn't care what Paul Sherman thought, yet for some indefinable reason she did.

"Paul is my right-hand man," Karl said, opening a panel in the wall which revealed a tiny but complete bar. "He manages the club. You'll probably be seeing a lot of each other. Have a drink, Paul?"

The other sat down and crossed his long legs. "A short one. I have to get out front again. Things look good, Karl. . . . What do you think of the club, Miss Leland?"

"At the unexpected question addressed to her, Joan started. 'It's very nice,' she replied, dark lashes sweeping over her embarrassed green eyes. She had an uncanny feeling that Paul Sherman was staring at her, conscious of her embarrassment that she made three mistakes in one line. It was not easy for her to turn emotion off and on as Karl Miller did. She marvelled at his coolness as he sat on the edge of his desk and talked to Paul.

"By the way," Paul was saying, his eyes still on Joan, "Eric wants to see you. He's in the bar. Wants you to meet some people."

"I'll go then. Coming, Paul?"

Paul finished his drink. "I'm right with you, Karl."

Honored in Life
For having destroyed the Spanish fleet in Manila bay on May 1, 1898, George Dewey received a score of honors and decorations, among them being his promotion to the rank of full admiral, the third in the history of the United States navy. Congress also passed a law permitting him to remain on active duty for the rest of his life and he was even discussed as a possible presidential candidate.
