IDLE MANPOWER AND THE WAR EFFORT

Full mobilization of manpower on the small farms of Lincoln County for increased food production is needed to win the war, John R. Curry, rural rehabilitation supervisor for the Farm Security Administration, believes, that unless our small farm operators can produce greater quantities of food, our country will be compelled to ration almost all foods and there is no assurance that we can maintain nutrition needs of our civilians. For this reason he said that the federal government has ordered the Farm Security Administration to extend every possible aid to low-income and small farm and ranch operators to enable them to increase production.

Business Men's Club

There was an ordinary attendance at the club meeting Wednesday night at the S. P. Hotel, but it abounded with more than ordinary interest. The coming junk drive was discussed at length and in view of the circus which is to show here on Oct. 16, chairman John E. Hall decided that it would conflict with the drive, so he set Oct. 14 as the "Rally Day" for the drive. The public will please take notice of the change in dates.

John R. Curry of the FSA, was the guest of Carl Radcliff and on motion the rules were suspended and Mr. Curry was made a member of the club.

Attorney John E. Hall announced the arrival of a son on Sept. 26, at Albuquerque and while members applauded the information, Mr. Hall retired to the hotel office and returned with a box of nice cigars, which he presented to the members.

Members are again notified that at the next meeting Wednesday night, Oct. 7, the club will have the teachers of the Carrizozo schools as its guests. Teachers will be supplied with cards and a corresponding amount will be placed in a box from which members will draw cards which will match those held by the teachers. In that manner, the drawing will reveal each member's guest.

THE MYSTERY SHIP OF THE SEAS

One of the most mysterious happenings of the high seas, which years ago occupied front pages of the leading newspapers of the United States was that of the Mary Celeste, which was launched from New York in the year of 1861 with a full cargo and up to November, 1872, nothing was heard from it until a message came saying that the ship was held at Gibraltar for salvage purposes.

The Mary Celeste was a half-brig vessel of about 280 tons capacity and loaded with a cargo of alcohol, bound for Genoa. Her captain, Benjamin Briggs of Marion, Mass., with his wife and his two-year old daughter were on the ship. The crew had been carefully selected as one might be assured so that the captain and his family would be first in the thoughts of the skipper, as a means of safety.

The Mary Celeste sailed under favorable weather and with a happy crew. Skipper Briggs had many friends, both in the sea-faring service and the community at large, most of whom were at the wharf to see the vessel depart. In those days, there were no means of communication and there was so much uncertainty about arrivals of ships, that only the time of departures were made and those by cablegrams. From the time she was launched, nothing was heard of her until in December 1872, a cablegram was sent from Gibraltar, saying that she had been sighted a little east of the Azores by the British Brigantine, Dei Gratia.

Three trusted men were sent to board her. At first they hailed her, but receiving no response, they boarded her, but found no signs of life-neither did they find any signs of a mutiny. She was found perfectly sea-worthy but entirely deserted. The ship was towed into Gibraltar and held for salvage, which was finally, after a long trial, granted in a small degree. What became of the crew? Some were of the opinion that a storm came up, the crew took to the lifeboats and were lost-but others asked, why was the ship found in such perfect condition with cargo intact. There were no lifeboats on the vessel which would support the above opinion-nevertheless, the fact remains and will forever be told as the most mysterious sea-happenings of history.

Dick Bowlin is here from Roswell, after being very ill in a hospital at that place. We are pleased to report that he has recovered.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Bello and small daughter Charlotte were visitors in town from Claunch Saturday. Mr. Bello is a progressive woolgrower and bean raiser in that locality.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

U. S. Bombers Blast Jap Battle Force; Approve Wage, Price Stabilization Bills; Rubber Czar Promises Speedy Action In Supplying Nation's Essential Needs

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Map shows importance of Port Moresby, New Guinea, in the Japanese South Pacific strategy. Port Moresby is only 375 miles from Cape York, nearest point on the Australian mainland. The Japs crossed the Owen Stanley mountain range, thus overcoming one of their major obstacles. Australians fighting the Japs in the jungles near Port Moresby were reported to be using the enemy's own tactics of covert flanking movements and infiltration.

RED FRONT: In More Than Name

The need for a second front in western Europe to relieve the pressure on battered Red armies was emphasized by Soviet military experts in London, who needed only to point to the battle fronts for evidence.

Russian troops, obeying Stalin's order to die rather than retreat, made the Nazis pay with blood and lives for every foot of conquest at Stalingrad. The arrival of crack Siberian troops at Stalingrad slowed down Marshal Von Bock's German legions, but the picture, in general, remained as gloomy as before.

Official communiques told of successful Red defensive operations in the Mozdok area of the mid-Caucasus and southeast of Novorozisk. Marines were credited with the success near the latter front where the Nazis were attempting to drive southward along the coast.

Stiff fighting continued in the Voronezh area of the upper Don river. The Reds reported more than 3,000 enemy troops killed in three days of fighting in this sector. It was here where the Red army tried to relieve pressure on Stalingrad by constantly attacking the Nazi flank.

Russian troops in the Volga city had been re-enforced by workers recruited from factories. Most savage fighting took place in the northwest suburbs, where Russian and German troops fought from behind barricades and buildings separated only by a few yards.

INFLATION: First Major Victory

A preliminary victory in the fight against inflation resulted when the senate and house banking and currency committees approved legislation directing President Roosevelt to stabilize wages and prices and granting him power to carry out the orders.

The senate bill authorizes and directs the President to stabilize prices, salaries and wages on the basis of levels which existed on September 15, while the house bill includes the same provision except that August 15 would be the base date.

Both bills provide that in general no ceilings may be set on wages or salaries below the highest levels that prevailed between January 1 and September 15. Both prohibit ceilings on farm prices less than 100 per cent of parity or—in general—below the highest price paid between January 1 and September 15. Both bills contain exceptions.

The house measure adopted the "little steel" formula insofar as permitting wage increases up to 15 per cent more than the January 1, 1941, level, but gets the President power to grant increases above that figure.

The two measures placed a floor of 90 per cent of parity under basic commodities (wheat, corn, cotton, tobacco and rice) and under certain nonbasic commodities which the secretary of agriculture is attempting to increase for war purposes. Existing law requires 85 per cent of parity loans.

PROMISE: Of Essential Rubber

Sufficient rubber for military and essential civilian needs has been promised without reservation by William M. Jeffers, the nation's new rubber administrator.

An ever-increasing amount of synthetic rubber will be made according to established processes, he said, and research will continue.

Mr. Jeffers spoke bluntly in his first interview with the press. "What we need is action, and we need it quickly. We are going to get just that."

It is his belief, Jeffers said, that the people "are more confused about what to do than not willing to do what is right."

"You can't take America off wheels," he said. "You can lose the war doing that, because of the disruption it would cause in our economy. You have to have civilian trucks running to move goods and farm products, for instance, and you have to have buses and a certain number of passenger cars to take people to and from work. But you can reduce the use of rubber to the irreducible minimum!"

It is his belief, Jeffers said, that the people "are more confused about what to do than not willing to do what is right."

MAN POWER CONTROL: Advocated by Hill

A bill granting President Roosevelt broad authority to co-ordinate man power and industry during wartime was drawn up by Senator Lister Hill of Alabama, the Democratic whip.

The measure authorized the President to issue an executive order giving the government power to designate specific occupations for individuals not in the armed services. Hill suggested that man power control be exercised through local draft boards which could then call in workers employed in nonessential industries and order them to take war plant jobs.

The resolution would lay down a governmental policy "that there shall be universal service of all citizens" and "total mobilization" of industry.

JAP NAVAL THRUST: Routed in Solomons

Even while land activity in the Solomons slowed to minor skirmishes, army Flying Fortresses drove a Jap force of battleships and cruisers away from the American-held section of the islands with a bombing attack which was reported to have damaged two of the battleships.

The bombers discovered the Jap battle force northeast of Tulagi. The navy communicative indicated the possibility that the fleet may be assembling for a renewed effort to take the strategic Guadalcanal-Tulagi area from American forces.

From General MacArthur's headquarters came word of continuing air attacks against the vital Japanese base at Lae, on the northeast coast of New Guinea. A report said that Allied fighters and bombers blasted Japanese supply lines extending inland from Buna to Kokoda, on the route of the Jap drive toward Port Moresby. Buna is 175 miles southeast of Lae, on the coast.

KAISER: Gets Contract

Henry J. Kaiser, West coast ship-builder who went to Washington with a dream of huge flying boats, will be given a chance to show the world that his dream can be translated into reality.

Kaiser, together with Howard Hughes, noted plane designer, have been authorized to build three experimental supercargo planes for a total of $18,000,000 by the War Production board.

The two men will make no profit from the initial order, but Kaiser was directed to draw plans for a factory in which the planes could be manufactured in quantity should the army and navy find the trial order successful.

Though Kaiser was directed to complete the planes within 25 months—the first in 15 months—a representative predicted the job would be completed in 18 months.

DRAFT CALLS: Explained by Hershey

The draft status of several million American men was clarified to a considerable extent when Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national draft director, indicated that more than 10,000,000 men will be under arms by the end of 1943.

In an interview to explain various orders and announcements issued in recent weeks, Hershey and his aids supplied the following guides:

The supply of single men, including those with dependents, will be exhausted this fall and calls for married men without children will begin in December or January.

The supply of married men without children will be exhausted about a year from now and, unless congress authorizes the drafting of 18 and 19 year olds, the calling of men with children will begin around October 1, 1943.

BRITISH SEA LOSSES: Replaced

A. V. Alexander, first lord of the British admiralty, in a speech at Sheffield, has revealed that Britain had replaced all four battleships, four aircraft carriers and 22 cruisers lost in the last 27 months of war.

London correspondents estimated that 200 destroyers, including the 50 overage United States vessels, had been added since the war began. With Alexander's speech as a basis, Britain is now estimated to have at least 15 battleships, five aircraft carriers and 78 cruisers. Many more are under construction.

In the past 27 months, Britain has lost the battleships Barham, Prince of Wales, Repulse and Hood, and the carriers Glorious, Ark Royal, Hermes and Eagle. The battleship Royal Oak was sunk in October, 1939, and the carrier Courageous was lost in September, 1939.

U. S. PARACHUTISTS: Training in Britain

Although American parachute troops have been in England for some time, their presence was kept secret until it was announced officially from the headquarters of Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, commander in chief of the AEF in the European theater.

The troops bolster American striking power in Britain. The official announcement did not state whether the U. S. parachute units will be kept to form a spearhead for an eventual invasion of Europe or will be employed, as have British parachutists, on Commando raids.

Officers in the parachute corps get a monthly bonus of $100. Enlisted men get $50 a month extra. According to a medical officer with the unit, there is less than 1 per cent of accidents on parachute jumps, including simple sprains.

BUNA S PLANT:

The U. S. Rubber company's first synthetic rubber plant in New England—somewhere in Connecticut—is now in operation. This picture shows the butadiene storage tank completely enveloped in water spray. Cooling prevents undesired polymerization and protects against external fire.

NATION WARNED:

A warning that America's losses in the war may run as high as three million men was voiced by Lieut. Gen. Ben Lear, commander of the Second Army, who spoke before the 24th annual convention of the American Legion in Kansas City. General Lear's grim appraisal was blunt: "Can we, resolutely and without wavering, face a war in which our losses may be a million, or two million, or conceivably three million men? Can we take it—without talk of a stalemate...?"

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

By Bob McShane

WHEN Sergt. Joe Louis crawls through the ropes at Yankee Stadium October 12 to defend his title against Billy Conn, that particular brawl likely will bring an end to the prize fight business for the duration.

Not that the cauliflower industry will pass completely out of existence—but the important heavy-weight championship matches are almost certain to be cancelled until another vastly more important fight is settled permanently.

Although the proceeds of the coming match are to go for Army Emergency Relief, the army was manifestly reluctant to allow the champ even this one fight. This is an obvious indication that it will be Joe's final appearance so long as he is serving in the armed forces.

About Training

The bout should be a good one. With Conn also in the army, both men should be in superb physical condition. It may be true that physical condition for fighting a war is quite different from physical condition for fighting a 15-round bout, but both men have had sufficient time to get back their timing and sharpness.

Conn is just as confident today as he was last summer before he met Louis. He says he won't repeat that

JOE LOUIS

13th round again. "I'm not going to make the same mistake I did last time. I'm going to box, box and box that guy until the end. The only time I'm going to stick out my chin is between rounds."

The champ's pre-fight statement was even more confident: "I'm gonna knock him out as quickly and cleanly as possible this time."

The Pittsburgh Kid is a dead game fighter—and Louis appreciates it. Conn is smart enough to know that he is facing one of the greatest heavyweights of all time and that he can't afford to gamble. He also knows that hard punches always have double trouble against good, fast boxers. That fact gives him confidence.

But it shouldn't give him too much confidence. While Louis is no whirling dervish on his feet, he has controlled lightning in either hand. A good fighter can stay away from a right or a left, but his problem grows considerably greater when he has to elude a pair of dangerous mitts.

Post-War Status

If this turns out to be Louis' final appearance, as it may be, the post-war heavyweight situation will be a murky affair.

The first post-war champ may be some youngster now in service, or he may be a lad who at present is too young for the army, navy or marines. But it isn't very probable that he will come from the ranks of the present heavyweight hopefuls.

In training for the coming bout with Louis, Conn remarked that "in the army you work at least 10 hours a day. Sometimes longer. I've gotten used to hours I never heard about before. I can use those hours in the time I've got left. I won't have to worry about my legs. What I hope to get is all the speed I ever had before, to sharpen up my timing, and then plug in with a better punch."

Unquestionably army training will keep a man in close to perfect condition, but it remains to be seen whether fighters can regain their old form after the army has kept them away from the ring for a matter of years.

SPORT SHORTS

Buffalo, N. Y., will be the scene of one of the outstanding early season intersectional football clashes October 17 as a result of the transfer of the Duke-Colgate game from Hamilton to Buffalo.

Vice Admiral Robert Lee Ghormley, in charge of the Solomon islands offensive, fullbacked the Navy team in 1903.

The last time a big leaguer pitched a double-header was in 1925 when Emil Lavan did the chore for the Indians.

Six conference schools have had 23 head football coaches in the past 12 years. The average tenure is little more than three years.

Cornelius Warmerdam, the pole vaulter, doesn't like to perform when it's damp or rainy. He says his vaulting pole doesn't work right.

Sportlight

By Grantland Rice

SOME alert statistician has figured it out that the next two months will see more big football games than any season in history. Even with the call of the bugle there will be a greater number of stars in action, and a greater number of headline contests.

But what about the size of the crowds? How will the transportation snarl be settled? This is where the big guess enters.

George Preston Marshall, owner of the Washington Redskins, would like to make a wager that his big professional team will outdraw any other squad in the country, college or pro, and that it will equal its best year in this respect.

Whether or not he can outdraw Notre Dame is still part of future happenings. Frank Leahy has one of his finest squads at South Bend, and from the present outlook he will play to capacity in most of his contests. This will be true against Army, Michigan, Navy, Northwestern and Southern California. Capacity won't be far away against the others, including Stanford, Iowa Naval Cadets and the Great Lakes squad.

It would not be surprising to see Notre Dame close to the half million mark.

Naval Cadet Teams

The Georgia and North Carolina Naval Cadet teams will attract fully as much interest as any college squad, especially if they can get away with fair success. They are still gamblers to a certain extent, but they won't be weak. They are taking the hardest training in any service for future flying, and will be physically ready for even their starting assignments. They are all ably coached, and they all have the heart and the fire to give all their systems can carry.

The major cities, such as New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Boston, Philadelphia, San Francisco, etc., will draw big crowds. The smaller bowls or stands that call for automobile transportation will have a rougher road ahead. There also will be less railroad travel on the spectator's side.

Close to the Top

Pennsylvania, with a hard nine-game schedule and the outlook for a first-class team, should be close to the leaders in packing them in. Philadelphia is one of the best of all football cities.

Michigan is another team facing a big attendance year. The Wolverines won't be far from the front with such teams to meet as Great Lakes, Michigan State, Iowa Naval Cadets, Northwestern, Minnesota, Illinois, Harvard, Notre-Dame, Ohio State and Iowa. This is what you might easily label a package of heavy trouble. It is close to being the hardest schedule in the country.

Fritz Crisler has a fine squad with such backs as Tommy Kuzma and Paul White, but no one can expect the Wolverine to claw its way unbeaten through this barrage of human flesh. Minnesota and Notre Dame alone are twin bundles of dynamite.

There will be no other about big crowds in the Middle West, including Ohio State's home at Columbus, with so many feature games and so many featured stars.

In the East

What about the East? New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Baltimore will be beyond the average.

New York, with several games transferred to its subway service, will have its best football year. Between the colleges and the professional Giants the Polo Grounds and the Yankee Stadium will set new records.

Even with the transportation odds against them, all other sports have shown an amazing attendance record. This goes for baseball, golf and racing, especially.

As football happens to be the best crowd magnet of them all, there is no reason why the fall season just ahead shouldn't more than keep pace with other forms of competition.

Although at least a hundred stars have been taken by the various services from the pro camps, there has been no lapse of public interest as the Chicago and Los Angeles games have already shown, with close to 200,000 at these two opening salutes. Teams are expecting capacity crowds from Denver to Boston and Baltimore, via New York, and I don't think they will be disappointed. There may be a dizzy drop later on, but 1942 will set some form of record before the final pass is put on and the final pass is thrown on the gridiron.

Star Dust

AFTER all these years some-thing new bobs up in the way of what Hollywood calls a "world premiere." On October 10, RKO theaters throughout the country will present "Here We Go Again," the new Fibber McGee and Molly picture, the cast of which includes Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Ginny Simms and the Great Gildersleeve. The hour is 9:30 a. m. The admission prices everywhere will be 35 cents for adults, 25 cents for children. The novel feature is that adults will be admitted only if accompanied by children!

Metro did all right with its most recent opening. "The War Against Mrs. Hadley" made its bow in Washington, D. C., and admission was by war bond only—the price being scaled from $25 to $25,000 per seat, and all seats being reserved.

Albert Dekker, who's just finished playing a marine in "Wake Island," thinks it's rather amusing that the public believes him to be a foreigner, thanks to the kind of roles he usually plays in pictures. He's as American as they come; his father was a colonel in our army, and Dekker is a graduate of Bowdoin college.

"The Pride of the Yankees," Samuel Goldwyn's story of Lou Gehrig's life, goes on and on at the New York theater where it opened. House records fall one after the other, as people crowd in to see Gary Cooper and Theresa Wright in this very moving picturization of the career of the famous and beloved baseball player.

Orson Welles, who guest-starred on the Stage Door Canteen radio program recently, said that one of the most tempting offers he has had since his return from South America was David Selznick's that he play the part of "Rochester" in "Jane Eyre." Welles turned it down, is determined to let nothing interfere with any plans the office of Co-ordinator of Inter-American Affairs may have for him.

"Over Land and Over Sea," a song composed by Alexander P. de Seversky and his wife and published five years ago, has been revised and dedicated to the American air forces. Seversky's "Victory Through Air Power" is being made into a feature by Walt Disney.

Alan Reed, star of the air's "Abie's Irish Rose," is head man at home since he brought his son to the prize match cover of the boy's collection. It's the President's personal match cover—solid blue, with a gold sailboat with the E. forming the masthead, the D. the mainsail, and the R. the auxiliary sail.

Want to see how the FBI goes about rounding up spies? Then be sure to see the new "March of Time," called "The FBI Front." The film reveals the way in which Axis espionage activity was apparently permitted to go unchecked for a time, in order to amass as complete a file of evidence as possible against the day when the guilty ones were to be rounded up.

Few radio programs have attracted the attention and praise that have come to the Norman Corwin series "An American in England" broadcast over CBS from London. Corwin has been hailed as "the greatest American morale builder because he has pointed out the best in two great peoples."

ODDS AND ENDS—Metro reports that motion picture exhibitors believe that "Van Heflin is the No. 1 star of tomorrow; "Seven Sweethearts" is his next picture... In "Nothing Ventured" you'll see Lana Turner as a girl soda jerk who masquerades as a debutante and falls in love with a clerk in a five-and-ten... Signe Hasso, Swedish actress making her American film debut in "Journey for Margaret," is said to possess all of the potential talent of her countrywoman, Greta Garbo... 'Versailles of the Plains'
 THIS month marks the 75th anniversary of the "Versailles of the Plains"—the famous Medicine Lodge peace council of 1867. Not only did it bring together a galaxy of frontier notables, both red man and white, but it was attended by a greater number of journalists than had ever before assembled for such an event. Some were destined for future fame and among these were:

JOHN D. HOWLAND
 (From a photograph taken in 1867 Original in the collections of the State Historical Society of Colorado.)

No newspaper camera men were present at the Medicine Lodge council to snap pictures of the treaty-makers. But John D. Howland, "artist-correspondent" for Harper's Weekly, was there and posterity is indebted to his skilled pencil for its only pictorial record of that historic event.

Howland was a descendant of John Howland who came to America on the Mayflower. His grandparents, natives of New Bedford, Mass., emigrated to Ohio soon after the Revolution and helped found the settlement of Zanesville where he was born May 7, 1843. One of his uncles, Len Owen, was a trapper in the West and a contemporary of Kit Carson and Jim Bridger. His tales of adventure on the frontier so stirred the imagination of young Howland that at the age of 14 he ran away from home and entered the employ of the American Fur company.

He accompanied a band of trappers up the Missouri to Fort Pierre, then crossed the plains to old Fort Laramie on the North Platte. The next year he joined the rush of gold-seekers to the new diggings in the Pike's Peak region of Colorado but, failing to make his fortune there, he returned to the fur company. Because young Howland was one of the few white traders who dealt fairly with the Indians, he became a great favorite of the Sioux. Under the tutelage of their warriors he became a skilled hunter with the bow and arrow and the women kept him supplied with handsomely beaded and fur-trimmed buckskin clothing.

At the outbreak of the Civil war, Howland enlisted in the First Regiment of Colorado Volunteers. He had a part in the campaign in New Mexico which saved the Southwest for the Union and he also served as a captain of scouts in the campaign against the hostile Indians in 1864. Mustered out of the army that year, the youthful frontiersman decided to satisfy his longing to become an artist.

In 1865 he went to Paris where he studied under several of the French masters until 1867 when he was notified of his appointment as interpreter for the commission appointed to make a treaty with the Sioux. During his stay in France he had acted as "artist-correspondent" for Harper's Weekly, so when he returned to America, Harper's immediately commissioned him to cover the negotiations with the Sioux in August and with the Southern Plains tribes the following October.

Thus it was that he went to the Medicine Lodge council and there drew the pictures, one of which, first published as a full-page illustration in Harper's for November 16, 1867, has become the classic representation of this high spot in the annals of the frontier and has often been reproduced in histories of the West.

PREPAREDNESS

ASSISTANCE to members of the nation's fighting forces and their dependents is the primary duty of the Red Cross.

This obligation is set forth in the charter granted the American Red Cross by congress in 1905, and in the army and navy regulations. It is also stated in the present selective service regulations, which require all draft boards to refer questions concerning the welfare of selectees and their dependents after induction to the Red Cross.

Red Cross help to service-men and their dependents takes two forms: In every army camp and with every American fighting unit anywhere a Red Cross field director is on the job. His duty is to help the service man with his problems and relieve him of worry over them.

In nearly every county in the United States is a local Red Cross chapter, with a home service worker. Its job is to help the service man's dependents, and relieve them, too, of worry and need.

Assistance to members of the armed forces may take the form of advising them or their dependents on government life insurance, allotments or pensions, and of helping them in filling out the necessary application forms.

The Red Cross may even help members of the service man's family in getting employment, emergency medical treatment, or it may grant them money to tide the family over until an allotment is actually received from the government.

More than 2,500 field directors with the armed forces, and 3,735 Red Cross chapters throughout the nation stand ready to help and advise service men and their dependents.

Prepared exclusively for WNU.

DON'T throw away that frayed wicker chair for with a little expense in time and money it may be made to serve for the duration. The sagging arm rest, magazine holder and frayed-out wicker around the legs should be removed. Cotton batting is then basted to muslin and sewn to the chair. The sateen cover for chair and cushion is made next. The tufting is done by sewing through cover, padding and openings in the wicker work with carpet thread and a long darning needle; adding a button at each stitch.

NOTE: This chair remodeling idea is from BOOK 7, of the series of booklets which Mrs. Spears has prepared for readers. Book 7 also gives directions for a dining room cupboard; spoils; boxes and orange crates made into useful furniture. A washstand, an old buffet, and some chairs are remodeled. Some Comfort
 Winston Churchill, the story goes, was walking through the ruins of some blitzed streets when an old woman greeted him. The prime minister asked her how she felt after the night of bombing.
 "Well, there's one thing about these air raids," she replied cheerfully, "they do take your mind off the war."

Aggravated Fellow
 Didn't Tell All, It Seems

"Going far?" asked the chatty little man in the club car as the open fields began to whiz by the train windows.

"Only to Pittsburgh," replied the grouchy, who had been in Washington filling out questionnaires. "I'm in the steel brace business. My age is 63. I am married. My name is Henry Smith. I have a son 22 in the field artillery. And a niece with red hair. I shoot around C3 in golf. Is there anything else I can tell you?"

"Yes," replied the chatty little man amiably. "What oil do you use for your tongue?"

RED CROSS INFORMATION

The American Red Cross has developed a "hopeful" plan for dispatching messages from relatives and friends to members of the armed forces missing in action but not yet reported by the Japanese as prisoners of war. Persons in this area who have received notification that their relatives are missing in action but have not been notified that they are prisoners of war may go to the Chapter headquarters at Carrizozo and be assisted in the preparation of the messages. All messages received by the Carrizozo Chapter will be sent immediately to Red Cross Inquiry Service, 200 Washington and should be presented to the Chapter in the next few days. J. A. Klassen, Chairman.

The 50-caliber Browning machine gun is one of the most efficient short range weapons used by U. S. Fighting forces. It is effective at ranges up to 2,000 yards and fires about 600 forty-five caliber bullets per minute.

One of these guns costs about $1,500, while a thirty-caliber machine gun costs approximately $600. Our fighting forces need thousands of these rapid-fire guns. Even a small town or community can buy many of them by uniting in the purchase of War Bonds. At least ten percent of your income in War Bonds every pay day will do the trick.

Enemy Propaganda Which Fools Only the Enemy

Life-Suit Designed to Reduce Torpedoing Casualties

THE PAPERS OF PRIVATE PURKEY

Dear Harriet:

I have not heard from you in a couple of weeks now. What is the matter? I know you are in the WAACs but you are so quiet I wonder if you are in the guardhouse. I can't sleep nights from worrying over whether you have talked back to Oveta Culp Hobby or somebody. Write me at once while my morale can still be saved.

I just wrote a piece for Yank, the A.E.F. paper. It is about more of Purkey's Peace Plans. I have got to think up some new ideas. I got a idea for Hitler's punishment, I would have him sentenced to paper the Great Wall of China using paste witch has been so diluted that it won't stick. Mussolini we can forget now. He is such a strain on Hitler that maybe we should give him a medal for a assist after the war and just use him for blowing up tires.

There is just one thing that will punish Japan enough. That is to confiscate all cameras in the country and forbid any imports of them. A Jap never suffers so much as when he is going around with no camera.

Some of these Purkey Peace Plans which I sent to Yank are as follows:

- 1—A world commission to check up every ten days and see that nobody is working on any new plans for a new order anywhere.
- 2—Nobody on the losing side is to be allowed to write a book, start a secret society or get hold of a gavel.
- 3—The Peace Commission has got to pass an agreement for immediate action by force the minute anybody in Europe or Asia is found to be working on a new emblem.
- 4—All use of airplanes for bombing has got to be ruled out and in the case of Germany she has got to be stopped from even fooling around with boxkites, gliders and plane models.
- 5—The first delegate from any nation to a League of Nations meeting, who gets up and starts using double talk instead of plain language whenever any member starts jumping on some small nation must be boiled in oil.
- 6—The United States must keep all its scrap iron at home just in case for the next 50 years and we can sell Japan nothing except waste rags to stuff in the extra slots with the Japs have put in all army shoes for big toes.
- 7—Tokyo is to be renamed Midway Center.
- 8—Berlin is to be rechristened New Hyde Park.
- 9—Herman Goering is to be sentenced to spend his life as a free balloon.
- 10—I got a great idea about Goebbels. The Peace Conditions must make him keep talking. Nothing will sound funnier and do more to make Germany sorry.

I got some other things I wood like to see happen as a result of the war. I wish along with all the other freedoms it could free us from paper napkins, paper towels, musical auto horns, No Parking signs, James Caesar Petrillo, watered orange juice, photo finishes, new vitamins, long-winded radio commercials and girls who don't write their boy friends twice a week.

All my love, Oscar.

U. S. '42 Farm Output Planned to Fill Needs

AAA Authorities Say Two Records Broken This Year

Farmers from Maine to California will chalk up two history-making achievements when their 1942 har-

Harvest like this of potatoes on the C. A. Brown farm of Dallam county, Texas, have been planned in advance in order to insure the right amounts of the right products to fill anticipated needs of the U. S. and United Nations.

These goals have been broken down into goals for states, counties and individual farms for farmers to shoot at.

Goals have been used for years by AAA for basic crops. But this year ALL crops have goals to insure abundant Food for Freedom. The food will make America strong, feed her Allies' soldiers and civilians and create reserves of such easily stored concentrated products as shoes, evaporated milk, dried eggs and canned fruits and vegetables.

Export commodities will be an important part of the output. Lend-lease pork purchases, excluding lard, have already exceeded the equivalent of 11 million hogs. Egg-drying capacity has been expanded from 50 million to 300 million pounds annually.

Experts alone for the current fiscal year are expected to require more than twice as much acreage as in 1941.

When Pearl Harbor suddenly cut off all imports from the Far East, the 1942 production goals established as the original Food for Freedom goals were jacked up. Revised goals call for one-fifth more production than the average of the 1930s and 5% per cent more than in the record year of 1941. Last fall, after war needs had been canvassed, more than 135,000 AAA farmer committeemen, under the direction of USDA war boards, began calling on farmers to see what they could do to meet heavy war demands.

Virtually every farmer in the United States was given an opportunity to pledge all-out war effort on his farm by controlling production of products not urgently needed for war and intensifying production of those in great demand.

Losses in the United States from livestock diseases and parasites are reported to be $267,500,000 a year.

The domestic wheat supply for 1942-43 marketing year is indicated at 1,524,000,000 bushels, or around 100,000,000 bushels above the record 1,521,000,000 bushels in 1941-42.

SADDLE and RIDE

By ERNEST HAYCOX

THE STORY SO FAR: Although he is also a rancher, Clay Morgan decides to play a lone hand against Ben Herendeen, another rancher, who is trying to run the cattle country his own way. Of his old friends, only Hack Breathitt is still on his side. The others—like Gurd Grant, Lige White and Charley McQuire—are supporting Herendeen, more or less in self defense. Gurd Grant's sister, Catherine, is in love with Clay and is at his ranch when Hack Breathitt rides up followed by Herendeen, Lige White and Gurd. Catherine hides, but Gurd recognizes her horse. Herendeen confides his war on "faction" and equators by warning the Gales to get off the range.

New continue with the story.

CHAPTER VI

Morgan entered War Pass in first darkness, putting up at Gentry's. There would be supper for him at Ann McGarrah's but for some reason that wasn't very clear to him, he went to the Long Grade saloon, found Hack Breathitt, and took him to the hotel for a meal.

When he got to Ann McGarrah's he found her kneeling before Janet, adjusting the pleats of Janet's dress.

Ann McGarrah said: "I'll get you a meal, Clay."

"No," he said, "I didn't want to bother. I ate at the hotel."

She showed him a quick, faintly hurt surprise, but covered it up at once. "We should be starting for the school in a little while."

"Am I taking you to the dance?" She said: "You hadn't asked."

"So now I'll ask."

Morgan and Janet passed through the store and sat on the porch steps, watching the crowd roll along the street.

Ann McGarrah presently came out, dressed in a pearl-white gown; it made her eyes darker, it made her black hair shine by contrast. Standing before her, marveling at the change, he reflected that she was different from the women of this town.

The gentle flow of the crowd carried them up the hill to the school. At the door Janet left them and Morgan found two seats near the front of a newly made platform. Breathitt stood in the rear of the room, crowded between other townsmen. He caught Breathitt's eye but Hack only shook his head, unsmiling and clearly ruffled by something.

It went by grades, some singing, some dancing, some reciting. He was nervous, not realizing it. When Janet came forward to the edge of the stage a fine sweat broke across his forehead and he pushed his legs against the floor, trying to remember what the first line of her poem was. Afterwards she made a quick curtsy and her voice came over the room, precise as it always was, and quite sure. When she was through he sat still, not looking around at the other people. Ann said something to him, turning him. She was smiling with that brightness which comes so close to tears. He murmured "Yes," and was thinking of Lila who would have been happy to have seen this. This was about all he heard of the program, for it was soon over.

Hack Breathitt went directly into the Long Grade and saw a solid line at the bar. Nearest him were a group of Grant Crowfoot riders, all of them his friends. Billy McQuire said, "Step in here, Hack," but Breathitt shook his head and balanced on his heels, his face cool and smooth and tough. Herendeen's men had gathered at the far end of the bar, and these he watched solemnly. Liard Connor and Bones McGeen were side-by-side at the bar, turned from him, but he knew they had him spotted in the back bar mirror. He pushed up his hat and walked on, making a turn behind these two. There wasn't any space between them, but he came against them and shoved them aside.

He stared straight ahead, into the mirror. Their faces came around to him, with the reserve he had seen many times before in moments of trouble. He knew what the expression meant. The barkeep came down his way, waiting for his choice; Breathitt said gently: "Not now, Sam. When I drink, it'll be in better company."

It was a sound that traveled around him. The talk in the saloon faded a little and he saw, still watching the mirror, men's hats and heads swing. Liard Connor pulled his arm aside. Bones McGeen suddenly grinned over his whisky glass.

In Hack's voice was the flat melody of a man on edge. "Maybe it was just an accident when you boys bumped into me down by the hotel. Maybe. If there's something in your craw, you don't have to go to that trouble. I can hear English, if you bullheads can talk it. I don't like any feet stepped on. I'll be out on that street all evenin'. Try it again."

He withdrew from the bar and stepped to the door with the solid silence of the crowd following him. He batted the doors aside with his shoulders. On the walk, he turned quickly toward his horse, which was near Gentry's. He seized his girth from the saddle horn and buckled it around him—and pulled the bottom of his coat over it. One hand resting on the horse, he watched the street, knowing that the town was no longer safe for him. None of the Herendeen bunch showed up at the Long Grade door, though he realized they would be moving his way soon enough. Suddenly Nickum came into the light of the hotel. People kept crossing to the Odd Fellows' Hall and the music and the scrape of feet made quite a racket, and—

Suddenly Jesse Rusey slid from the shadows and was before him.

Suddenly Jesse Rusey slid from the shadows and was before him.

He had the soft-footedness of a cat, this marshal, and eyes that could burn through a brick wall. It gave Hack Breathitt a moment's self-assertion to think Rusey had come on him thus unawares, but he stood fast, not saying anything. The marshal's hand reached out and hit Hack Breathitt's flank, where the gun was. Afterwards Rusey, no man to ask questions, made a turning circle on his heels, looking the whole street through. He said then, "Be careful, Hack," and stepped back into the shadows.

Parr Gentry called for a schottische. Lige White came over to claim Ann McGarrah, leaving his wife with Clay. They went wheeling and dipping around the floor, Mrs. White very graceful in his arms, and very pretty; but her glance kept following her husband with that calm indrawn attention Morgan had noticed so often.

Herendeen had kept Catherine Grant to himself. After the schottische Morgan returned Mrs. White to Lige and stood awhile, idly talking. The stag line thickened. Gurd Grant was over there and Gurd's glance was directly on him, and stayed on him without recognition.

Parr Gentry said, "Pick your partners for a waltz," and the fiddles began tuning-up again. Clay remained in his tracks, head-down, puzzled by Gurd Grant's cut. Something was in the wind. He couldn't catch it with his mind, but he knew Herendeen had somehow gotten at Gurd. He debated it coolly, trying to make up his mind, until he heard Ann say, "What is it, Clay?"

"Nothing," he said. "Nothing at all." Herendeen and Catherine were only a few feet away. Catherine's glance touched him, brief and interested, and then he forgot Gurd and put his hand to Ann McGarrah's elbow and moved her toward Herendeen. It amused him to see Herendeen's ruddy face show instant intolerance. He said to Catherine, "Should be ours, I think," and moved away with her as the waltz began.

Catherine said: "I wondered if you would."

"One more week—one more dance. War Pass, the Burnt Ranch school, the old hall at Chickman Creek. This goes back a long way."

"Do you remember so many of those dances, Clay?"

"Yes," he said, "I guess I do when I'm dancing with you." These dance nights were like markers leading into the back years. He could visualize most of them; he could remember the fun of most of them. "It is an odd thing," he said, and was puzzled by his own sentiment in the matter, "but it seems to be a habit I'm afraid to stop. Like a man that has done one thing so long he can't quit without breaking something that holds him together."

She murmured: "This dance, Clay—with me?"

"Ten years of it," he said. "We were pretty young and all our friends were young, and we had a fine time. As long as we keep on we've still got something left, of those times. Of everything that used to be. It is a way of keeping yesterday alive, I guess."

"It will die sometime, Clay."

"I hate to think of it."

They were all around the hall before she spoke. "It isn't the good times you want to remember, Clay. It is one person you never want to forget. I know. I watched you tonight when Janet spoke. I knew what you were thinking. Not of Janet, not of anything or anybody in the hall. It was Lila, wasn't it?"

"Why, yes," he said, in some surprise. "How would you know that?"

Slowly turning with the swing of the waltz, he saw Harry Jump come up the stairs and move through the jolting stage at the edge of the floor. Harry Jump was here when he should have been forty miles out in the Moguls. Morgan wheeled Catherine around, losing Harry Jump, and catching him again. Jump saw him and showed no expression of any kind. It was a signal.

Morgan said: "Maybe you'd like a drink of water."

She had been too long in the country not to know. She slipped her arm through his elbow and they left the floor, passing Harry Jump without giving him notice. They went down the stairs into the soft dark shadows. Harry Jump's boots scuffed the stairs, following. He passed them, saying from the side of his mouth, "Not here, Clay." They followed him as far as Gentry's and stopped before him.

"All right," said Morgan.

"You sure?" said Harry Jump, staring at Catherine.

"I'll go," she said.

"Never mind," answered Morgan. "You know better, Harry."

"Well, then, I rode through Government Valley before dark tonight. There's a notice posted on the building. The land office is selling the valley at auction tomorrow afternoon at four o'clock, in Sage City."

He waited for Morgan to speak and when Morgan kept silent, he added: "That notice should have been posted a month before the sale. Somebody's got at somebody to hold off until it was too late for you. It's nine o'clock now. Eighteen hours until four tomorrow. Hundred and ninety miles to go."

Morgan said: "I talked to Fred Rich at the post office a few days ago, and he knew nothing." He drove his hands in his pockets; he had his head up, he was watching the mouth of the Odd Fellows' doorway. But he wasn't seeing it, Catherine realized. He was a long, still shape in the shadows, quietly considering this little treachery. He had a way of absorbing trouble and punishment without showing emotion; he had a way of storing these things in his mind. He said: "All right, Harry."

He turned back with Catherine. She said: "Speculators, Clay. Or Ben." She knew how he felt about Government Valley.

The music had stopped. Coming up the stairs they saw Herendeen and Ann standing at the edge of the hall, neither one liking the other enough to keep up conversation. Herendeen never bothered to conceal his feelings. He displayed resentment now as they came forward. He ducked his head at Catherine. "My dance," he said, and led her away. Out on the floor he looked toward Morgan, a thoughtfulness on his cheeks.

Ann said: "Don't make me dance with him again."

He said: "I guess I've got to take you home. I'll have to ride." She got her wrap at once and they went down the stairs. The sense of wasting time pushed Morgan along, making Ann McGarrah walk quite fast. On the store porch he thought to lift his hat. "Tell Janet I'll be back to take her home on Wednesday," he said, and swung away.

For Ann McGarrah the evening went flat as she watched him go; he had not thanked her, he had not even thought of her these last moments, he had not taken her into his confidence and mentioned the trouble that now made him disappear at the head of the street. Still and dark and hurt, she looked down at the smooth front of her dress, knowing that she was pretty and knowing she had, for a moment, warmed his heart. And then this had gone. She thought of Catherine, coolly and critically, and turned into the store. Janet was asleep. Standing over the bed in the dark room, Ann McGarrah watched Janet's small sweetly mature face, seeing there so much of her mother. This was the secure grip Lila held on Clay Morgan—this was Lila's power, this was her way of forever reminding Clay of the past, and this was her way of holding him to an unreal, unjust obligation. Thinking of all this, Ann McGarrah hated Lila with a secret, passionate hatred. She turned back the extra covers from the child and left the room.

Going up Stage Street, Clay Morgan reached Harley Stewart's house at the top of the hill. When Stewart came to the door, Morgan said: "Come down to the bank, Harley. I've got to have some money inside of fifteen minutes."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for October 4

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

FAITH IN CHRIST AS OUR PERSONAL SAVIOUR

LESSON TEXT—Acts 16:13-15; Romans 9:1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. Romans 5:1.

Salvation through Christ is the way, and the only way, into the Christian life; therefore, there could be no other subject more suitable than that of our lesson to begin our brief series of "Studies in the Christ Life."

Our lesson for today tells us first how one comes into a personal saving faith, and then gives Paul's statement of the result of saving faith in the changed life of the believer.

I. The Opened Heart (Acts 16:13-15).

Paul and his companions on their important errand for the Master, bearing the news of the gospel, had first known His guidance by hindrance, by the closed door; and then by the direction of the Spirit into the open door, revealed in the vision of the man of Macedonia.

Here in Philippi they found not only an open door, but an open heart, one which the Holy Spirit had made ready for the preaching of the Word of God. "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Rom. 10:17).

Note that while Lydia was a woman of ability and culture, and a worshiper of God, yet she needed the message of redemption through faith in Christ.

Lydia evidenced the truth of her profession of faith by open testimony and by a desire for fellowship in putting forward the work of God (v. 15). Salvation is by faith apart from works, but a saving faith is always one which works.

II. The Transformed Life (Rom. 5:1-11).

This is one of the great passages of Scripture, rich in doctrinal instruction, presenting through Paul an illuminating discussion of justification by faith.

This lesson affords an opportunity for teachers to learn and present to classes much needed truth along the line of Bible doctrine. There is not enough teaching of this type. People seem to prefer a little devotional study, or the discussion of current events, possibly in the light of prophecy. These are good, but it is of first importance that Christians be informed regarding doctrine.

We find in this Scripture the glorious transformation of life which comes to the one who takes Christ as Saviour, as we note the seven results of God's justifying grace.

1. Peace (v. 1). The human heart craves spiritual peace and knows that it can be found only when sin has been dealt with and put away. For sin cannot be condoned or ignored. There must be justification, and that can come only through Jesus Christ our Lord.

2. Grace (v. 2). A peace with God brings the peace of God into our hearts. We have that peace because we have by faith come into the place of God's favor. No longer strangers or outsiders, we have come in ("have access") to His place of grace and favor.

3. Hope (vv. 2b, 5a). Our faith not only brings present peace, but causes us to see future glory. Such a hope puts us in a right attitude toward God, and the things of life, including tribulations (v. 3)—are rightly valued and understood. Even our troubles become evidences of His love in which we may glory.

4. Love (vv. 5b-8). God's love which gave His Son to die for our sins becomes the "shed abroad" portion of every believer in Him. It was an unmeasurable great love, and it all centers in Calvary.

5. Saved From Wrath (v. 9). The wrath of God is minimized or denied in much modern theology, but it is nonetheless a very "real and awful affection of the divine nature." But the Christ who died for sinners will surely deliver the saints from the wrath of God against sin.

6. Reconciled (v. 10). The death of Christ, which justified man has accepted by faith, brought reconciliation. Atonement had been made for sin, and the One who died is alive again, a living Saviour.

7. Joy (v. 11). And why not? Such a revelation of what our redemption includes should make every believer in Christ rejoice in God. The One who is the sinner's judge is the believer's joy! That is the glorious transformation which takes place when one believes.

Some unbeliever who has read these lines thus far must by now be eager to have these things true in his life. Well, why not? "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31). Then read again those majestic and joyful words in Romans 5:1: "Therefore being justified by faith, we have"—yes, I have—"peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ."

AROUND THE HOUSE

A cottage cheese ring makes a delicious and cool-looking mold for fruit or vegetable salad. Stiffen well-seasoned cottage cheese with a little gelatin or press the cheese into a buttered mold and let stand in a cold place.

To keep apples, bananas, fresh peaches or other salad fruits from darkening, cover the cut fruit with french dressing and store in the refrigerator. At serving time, mix them quickly with the other ingredients.

It is a mistaken idea that cucumbers must be soaked in cold water for some time before serving to remove the poison in them. They are not poisonous. Slice them and cover with ice until ready to serve, then remove ice.

Once a week garbage pails should be scalded with hot soda water and allowed to dry thoroughly in the sun.

To remove old wallpaper stir a quart of flour paste into a pail of hot water and apply the mixture to the walls. Being thick it will not dry quickly but will saturate the paper which may be easily scraped or peeled off.

Children will want to hang up their clothes if the closets are gaily and attractively decorated.

Keep lemons fresh for months by sealing them in glass jars.

For successful baking don't overcrowd your oven. Fill it to capacity, of course, but leave at least a one-inch space between every pan and the edge of the oven. Inspect baking foods frequently and turn them about for even cooking.

Dressed for Christening

The bottles of champagne that are used in christening American ships require more than two hours to be "dressed" for the occasion, reports Collier's. They have to be fitted with a 1-16th-inch flexible copper mesh jacket, to keep the glass from flying, and adorned with two tricolored ribbons, each 62 feet long.

After launching, the bottle and ribbons are usually stored aboard the vessel to insure lasting good luck.

Dust is easily removed from reed furniture when a hose is used. Set furniture on the lawn when the sun is shining and play the hose on it.

To make a gelatin dessert in layers divide jelly in three portions and put one portion in bottom of mold. When firm decorate, if desired, with candied cherries and cover with a second portion, beaten until light. When that is firm cover with a layer of plain jelly. Mold, chill, cut in slices and serve. The different layers may be colored pink and green.

THE CHEERFUL CHERUB

I'll calmly take the facts of life. Nor question why they're so. I'll find the reason for them when I'm big enough to know.

Necessary Evil

Evil is necessary. If it did not exist, the good would not exist. Evil is the unique reason for the good's being.

What would courage be far from peril? And what pity without pain? What would become of devotion and sacrifice if happiness were universal? It is because of evil and suffering that the earth may be inhabited and that life is worth living.—Anatole France.

For the service man who smokes a pipe or rolls his own, no finer gift could be sent than a pound of his favorite tobacco. Surveys among men in camp and on shipboard show that tobacco is the gift most appreciated. Local dealers are now featuring pound cans of Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco—the world's largest-selling pipe tobacco—to send to men in our armed forces, a favorite with many a pipe-smoker or roll-your-own fan in the services.—Adv.

Old Custom Some sweethearts in Rio de Janeiro follow the old custom that the man in the case must not enter his sweetheart's house until they are engaged. Up to that happy time they must conduct their courtship at a suitable distance from each other, usually talking over the garden hedge, he three feet from it on one side, she three feet away on the other.

Fish Story

CHICAGO, ILL. — The Western Electric Company has put goldfish to work in its big telephone manufacturing plant in Chicago. The company, long an advocate of "the right man for the right job" philosophy, believes that it has in Sadie, Reuben and Oscar three employees eminently suited to their assignment. The three members of the carassius auratus family work in the department concerned with the production of telephone switchboard lamp p. Their job: to eat the minute plants (algae) which might otherwise cloud the windows of the tank used for testing sample solutions of the cellulose acetate that goes into switchboard lamp filament supports.

Before Sadie, Reuben and Oscar were called into service, the test tank clouded so frequently that ready observation was impeded. Each week the tank had to be drained, cleaned and refilled. Sadie, Reuben and Oscar go for algae like Lucius Obebe for caviar. Consequently the three little fishes were offered employment as window cleaners, their services to be compensated by board and lodging. They told interviewers that they found their 12-gallon home a veritable palace in comparison to the abodes of less fortunate members of the family. Humor aside, the goldfish are actually performing a time-saving service for the men and women who make the telephone.
