PENFIELD-AMASTAE

At the J. M. Penfield home in Lincoln on Nov. 2, with the Rev. Studeland of Fort Stanton performing the ceremony, Miss Joanna Penfield, of Lincoln and Jonathan Amastae of Boston, Mass., were united in marriage.

The new bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Ruth T. Penfield and is now engaged in finishing her course at the State University of Albuquerque. She was born and reared in the historic town of Lincoln. Aside from her many becoming characteristics, she is possessed of a sunny, cheerful disposition, which makes lasting friends for her, wherever she goes.

The groom is now engaged in work for the government, being in the aircraft base at Albuquerque. Being placed so that he may be called from one place to another, as it goes with government employees, a permanent residence will be uncertain at the present time.

All members of the family were present at the wedding; two of the bride's sisters, the Misses Ruth and Julia Penfield, one brother, Edward Penfield, now in the service, but home on a furlough. The newlyweds begin their new life with the brightest of prospects and their many friends wish them a full measure of health and happiness in their future undertakings.

A. N. Spencer of Carrizozo is a member of the Honor Society at the New Mexico Military Institute of Roswell, which is composed of students of the highest scholastic standing. Cadet Spencer is in the second class or first year in college.

Mr. and Mrs. Will T. Coe and Mrs. Frank Beavers of Glencoe, were here Wednesday. Will has leased the White Mountain Ranch Inn from Roderick Johnson and will stock the ranch with a fine breed of hogs. Will has taken the ranch over and we wish him an abundance of good luck in his new undertaking.

The Sloans, Miss Joyce and brother Mark Sloan are now identified highly in the air service. Joyce is taking a final test at the Lost Foot Flying Service at Dallas, Texas and Mark is at the Cutter Flying Service at Albuquerque. There are many others of our Carrizozo girls and boys in the front ranks on the service line for Uncle Sam.

Carrizozo Goes Republican

For the first time in the memory of our oldest residents, the usually - a t r o n g Democratic strongholds of White Oaks, Nogal and Carrizozo were carried by the Republican ticket.

It will be noticed from the unofficial returns that Oscura cast a majority for Joseph Tondre, the Republican candidate for Governor.

This seems to follow out the national trend toward the election of candidates for Congress that are not merely 'Rubber Stamps' and speaks well for the strong possibility of a change in the national administration in 1944.

County Chairman Moore and his able assistants on the Republican Central Committee are to be congratulated on their effective work during the campaign.

We gladly give credit to the loyal women of our County; and also of the Nation at large for the expressions of patriotism in the recent election.

The footprints from the homes to the polls were very much in evidence.

The remonstrance was against the policy of stepping into the homes and dictating what the ladies should have and prepare for their husbands and children.

Boy Killed, Man Shot in Deer Hunt

The first day of the deer hunting season resulted in one death and another accident, in which the victim barely escaped with his life.

Arthur Helms of Portales came here accompanied by his father and brother for a deer hunt. Yesterday afternoon, the boys left camp in the Capitan mountains and stopped near a large boulder to rest. Arthur, in setting his gun down between two rocks, the jagged edge of one came in contact with the trigger, exploded the gun, tearing off one side of the young man's head. The body is now at the Kelley morgue and will be sent to Portales to-day.

The other case was where Ralph P. Douglas, also of Portales shot and wounded Knowlin Lovelace in the thigh, but at this writing, he is getting along very nicely. Douglas was arrested but made bond for his appearance before the District Court.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Heavy Fighting in Guadalcanal Battle Changes Entire Jap Pacific Strategy; British Offensive Is Aimed at Libya; Coffee Rationing Begins November 28

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

After a raid on Japanese positions, the first cup U. S. air fighters do in New Guinea is to amble over to the grass hut (called "Sloppy Joe's") near the Port Moresby airfield for a cup of hot tea and a snack. The temperature, obviously, was way up when this picture was taken.

GUADALCANAL: Full Scale Fight

News of full scale fighting on Guadalcanal island came to an apprehensive America as U. S. soldiers and marines bore the brunt of continued Japanese attacks. The enemy haltered its push with fresh reinforcements, landing them on the northwestern end of the island. The Japs opened their big attack by laying down a heavy artillery barrage and then using tanks and troops against the Americans' defense lines. In the first two days of fighting, United States forces repulsed five tank attacks with artillery. The navy communiqué did not mention American tanks.

Prior to sending their ground forces into action, the foe smashed at Henderson field—with costly results for themselves. The Japs sent over 10 bombers escorted by 20 Zero fighters. Grumman Wildcats, piloted by marines, shot down all of the bombers, one of the bombers and damaged three additional bombers.

Japanese shipping in the Solomons area was the target of American pilots. The fiercest attack on two Jap cruisers and one destroyer damaged, another cruiser probably damaged and one heavy cruiser or battleship possibly damaged. Three attacks were made by Douglas dive bombers on a force of cruisers and destroyers north of Florida island—13 miles north of Guadalcanal. The navy communiqué said one enemy cruiser was damaged by bombs and the force withdrew.

Cooperation

Meanwhile, from General MacArthur's headquarters in Australia came word of continuing Allied bombing raids on Jap bases north of the Solomons. Approximately 100,000 tons of shipping were destroyed or damaged in three nights of bombing at Rabaul, New Britain.

Other Allied bombers attacked Kavieng, New Ireland, scoring direct hits on Jap fuel dumps and installations. Fires were visible for 90 miles.

Medium bombers were in action over Dutch Timor, north of Australia, where they bombed grounded aircraft on the airfield at Koepang, starting numerous fires.

RUSSIA: Relief Army

At points the battle line in Stalingrad had been driven to within 600 yards of the Volga as the struggle for that vital city reached its climax. While the Soviet reports told of beating off constant Nazi attacks, these same communiqués admitted that the Germans gained important streets and buildings in other sections of the stricken city.

To the northwest, the Soviet "relief army" battled forward. After one advance this force found 3,000 German troops dead and dying in trenches and dugouts. In one inhabited locality 600 Rumanians were killed and many captured.

Germany's final, all-out drive for the city of Stalingrad itself was just part of the news from Russia, however, for in the Mordok area of the Caucasus the Nazi advance had been slowed to a standstill; on the Black sea Russian marines were throwing back a strong Nazi drive southeast of Novorossiisk; and on the Voronezh sector of the upper Don two German platoons were slaughtered trying to cross a water barrier. (Believed to be the Don river.)

TANK, PLANE GOAL: Emphasis Shifted

Disclosing that the year's numerical production for planes and tanks would not be met, President Roosevelt attributed the situation to a shift in emphasis to heavier, harder-hitting models dictated by battle experience. In his message to congress last January, the President said he had ordered steps taken to "increase our production rate of airplanes so rapidly that in this year, 1942, we shall produce 60,000 planes."

This, he explained, contemplated not the production of 60,000 planes but the attainment of a 60,000-planes-a-year production rate. He told his press conference that the changeover from the M-3 to the M-4 tank meant that the numerical goal of 45,000 tanks would not be reached but that the full amount of steel and materials called for in the initial program would still be used in the manufacture of fighting machines through enlarged units.

THICKER SOX: And Faster Mail

"Hello, Eleanor." This was the greeting the President's wife was given as she hustled about the British Isles on her visits to American troops stationed there. She had left Buckingham palace and the royalty in it behind and started her tour of inspection at the Washington club, main gathering place for U. S. servicemen on leave in London.

Here she told the soldiers and sailors that she had already learned they would like to have thicker socks. She promised to see what she could do about it. Then the men told her that they would like some kind of a speed-up in the delivery of mail from home. This too, would get her attention, said the First Lady.

Said she: "I came here to learn just such things and I hope you will tell me more." That was her idea, to learn as much about conditions among the AEF as she could. Most people who know Mrs. Roosevelt sensed that she was coming home with a good store of information on this subject.

HONG KONG: Docks Bombed

Hong Kong's comparatively peaceful days came to a sudden end as United States bombers blasted the Japanese-occupied city in the first Allied raid on the British crown colony since the Japs occupied it last Christmas day.

The U. S. planes unloaded tons of explosives on the great Kowloon dock area, shooting down 10 enemy fighters and probably destroying five others. One American bomber failed to return to its base and one fighter was reported to have made a forced landing in Chinese territory. Shortly before the Hong Kong raid, Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's China air task force smashed a vast Japanese operated coal mining area around Linsi, in northeast China.

Not a single plane was lost in this, one of the longest bombing raids of the war. The bombers destroyed the huge power plant, which was the main target, and put the Linsi mine and five others in the Kallian area out of commission.

WORLD WAR ACE: Down in Pacific

The ominous word "overdue" brought news to the world that Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker and the crew of a heavy military plane were missing in a Pacific flight between Oahu and another unspecified island. Rickenbacker, ace of the first World War with 21 enemy planes and four balloons to his credit, was in the Pacific on an aerial inspection tour for Lieut. Gen. H. H. Arnold, army air force commander. His visit was a military secret until the war department announced he was missing. Searchers continued to hope that Rickenbacker and the seven army officers and enlisted men accompanying him would be found floating on life rafts that the plane carried. Aviators in the Pacific war have been picked up from similar rafts weeks after their planes have gone down.

CAPT. EDDIE RICKENBACKER

Captain Rickenbacker recently returned from England, where he made a special study for the secretary of war of army air force personnel and equipment operating in the active European theater of operation.

THE Big Minds of college football have plenty to worry about as the 1942 season reaches the half-way point. Transportation problems have plagued more than one college. Schedule changes have caused quite a few disappointments and decreased attendance figures are responsible for considerable grief.

The latter problem looms exceedingly large at the moment. Not that the others aren't important, but gate receipts—or lack of them—cause no more concern to the average college than would an onslaught of the black plague.

A comparatively early analysis of college football attendance revealed some discouraging information. In the first 127 games played by 44 major colleges this year, attendance was about 25 per cent lower than in 1941.

The decrease was general. In the Big Nine, only Purdue showed an increase in its first three games. Attendance throughout the conference was off almost 50 per cent.

The Big Drop

In their first 127 games, the 44 colleges played before a total of 2,296,797 spectators. A year ago the same number of home games for the same teams brought a turnout of 3,028,955.

While these early-season figures are subject to decided change, it must be taken for granted that they indicate a trend. Football has proved more exciting than ever this year. Upsets are more numerous. Nevertheless, attendance slumps are the rule rather than the exception. The sharpest drop was reported by Cornell, where attendance was slashed from 49,070 for last year's first three games to 19,587 this year. Cornell places much of the blame on inaccessibility, the rest on poor performance.

Ohio State dropped from 246,331 to 173,161. Buckeye officials figure that it will take all 10 games on this year's schedule to equal the eight-game 1941 total of 488,442. They're not too sure the extra two games will make up the difference. Last year scores of school buses from all sections of the state brought students to take advantage of reduced admissions. Today such use of busses is forbidden.

Major Problem

While the importance of paying customers cannot be overemphasized, colleges are faced with a still bigger problem—the future of football. It's none too rosy. In fact, you may be looking at your last college games for some time. James B. Conant, president of Harvard, recently told the incoming freshman class they had but a "relatively few months of college life" ahead of them.

"I say 'few months,'" Dr. Conant said, "for I believe the draft age soon will be lowered and I feel sure some of you will be left behind in college as year contemporaries march off to war." Subsequent draft legislation regarding 18 and 19-year-olds proved the truth of the educator's remarks.

His statements left little doubt about the future of football at Harvard if the war continues. And the factors influencing Harvard will have as profound a bearing upon all other colleges of the nation.

Effect of War

It is obvious, of course, that war already is having its effect on football. Freshmen and sophomores are seeing more action all the time. Most of the conferences allowing freshmen to play are doing so for the first time. The many startling aspects of the present season are due in part to the more widespread use of youngsters. They are not as consistent as the juniors and seniors, and are more likely to turn in an excellent performance one game, a ragged showing the next.

In almost every college, football practically supports the entire athletic program. The present lack of cash customers is likely to result in a curtailment of minor sports—especially those which are consistent drains on the athletic department treasury. Some schools have attempted to overcome the transportation problem by shifting their games to centers where the transportation problem is less of a hazard. But a large proportion of schools find this solution geographically impractical.

When a Washington sports writer asked Stephen Early, secretary to the President, what the chances were for the continuance of sports, he said: "I frankly don't know whether sports will be able to continue or not—but I certainly hope they do."

SPORT SHORTS

Al Ettore, retired heavyweight, and Young Terry, middleweight, are new members of the marine corps. A Memphis golfer made an even-par score for nine holes without paring a single hole. He made three birdies, one eagle and five bogies. The usual tenure for head coaches of the Detroit Lions is one year. The football used in the Michigan-Northwestern game went to a spectator who bid $15,000 in war bonds for it.

Spotlight
BY GRANTLAND RICE

FORTY-SEVEN-YEAR-OLD, 210- pound hard-rock Jack Dempsey was putting in another busy day. Now a lieutenant in the coast guard at Manhattan Beach, the ex-heavyweight champion is directing the conditioning of several thousand men, who need this conditioning badly.

I spent the day with Lieutenant Jack, and I've never seen a busier man at work. From seven-thirty in the morning until nightfall he and his staff of instructors handle 3,000 recruits every day.

The wind was whipping in from the ocean as Jack moved from group to group, speeding up their work, giving out encouragement, helping his assistants on the job.

"They are great fellows," Jack said, "but they need this badly. More than anyone might believe. Do you know that out of 3,000 men here more than 2,500 never boxed, wrestled, or played any game to speak of? You'd be surprised how many couldn't even chin themselves, once—just once. When they came here they didn't know how to hold their hands—nor how to stand. Look at 'em now."

The Dempsey Program

It was put up to Dempsey to work out this program and he's done a great job. We moved from group to group—100 fighters here, 100 wrestling close by, a juditsu class, a calisthenics class.

"What's this?" I asked Jack. "That's our kicking squad," he said. "We teach 'em how to kick the enemy and how to keep from being kicked. "Nothing fancy here. It's all rough-and-ready, hard work, tough-calling up. No frills. And they eat it up. These kids are great. They average around 22 years and most of them never had a chance for any form of athletics before. They find out what it does for them in just a few weeks.

LIEUTENANT DEMPSEY

Building Confidence

"What we are working on beyond fitness," Jack said, "is speed and poise. But more than all, confidence in themselves.

"When they first come here they have no confidence at all. In about three weeks they are different fellows—heads-up, come-and-try-to-take-me fellows."

Jack moves around—"Hey, keep punching—keep punching—keep those hands up—what's the trouble—one in the stomach? Well, take a little rest. Then go and get him."

You would be more than surprised to see the difference between first-week classes and fourth-week classes. The improvement in speed, skill, poise, toughness and stamina is amazing.

Each group gets two hours a day of this in addition to coast guard duties, and that leaves little time for any resting spots. Putting in eight or nine hours a day, Dempsey at 210 looks as fit as he did at Maunee Bay 23 years ago. As fast? That's something else that belongs only to youth.

About Louis and Conn

I asked Jack what he thought about the heavyweight situation. "After another year in the army," Dempsey said, "either Louis or Conn can expect to be near the old fighting form. Louis isn't a kid any longer. A year's layoff, or a longer layoff, is sure to tell heavily on his speed, his timing and his reflexes."

"I laid off at times too long myself. I know what it means to see a punch coming, but seeing it too late—or rather, not being able to call on my reflexes in time—is something else.

"If Louis and Conn remain in the army two years, it will be a miracle if either ever can come back to championship form. Both are great fighters and great fellows. But army training is entirely different from the speed and the sharpness you need in the ring. "And there's that thing they call co-ordination. After a long layoff they just don't get any more—there's no team play between them. "Joe and Billy may be better than anything left after the war, but they won't be the Louis and the Conn we saw in their big fight."

ON THE HOME FRONT
with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THE illustration shows what became of a mirror and piano stool. To the mirror and stool were added two wooden boxes from the grocery. These were placed on end about 18 inches apart and a shelf of half-inch plywood was screwed to the top. A frame was then screwed to the back of the boxes as shown. A curtain rod was placed across the top and the mirror hung lengthwise under it. An arm was then hinged to the front of each box. Paint was next. White, because white furniture is smart and because it matched the woodwork. The flowered chintz in tones of rose and blue-green with narrow frills of the plain blue-green tone matched the window curtains.

The dressing table skirt was made with a one-inch heading at the top and tacked along the ends of the table and the hinged arms with thumbtacks through a double strip of the plain material.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER In war or peace B.F. Goodrich FIRST IN RUBBER

The Marines Have Landed . . .

"THE marines have landed and have the situation well in hand." For more than a century and a half that statement has been literally, as well as figuratively, true. For November 10 of this year marks the 167th anniversary of the founding of the United States marine corps and within a year after its birth the marines WERE landing and DID have the situation well in hand.

As a matter of fact the marine corps is older than the republic itself—if we date the latter from July 4, 1776. For it was on October 13, 1775, that the Continental congress took the first official step to develop a navy. A small fleet was formed later and Esek Hopkins was selected as its commander-in-chief.

On November 10, 1775, congress authorized the formation of two marine battalions and provided for one colonel, two lieutenant-colonels, two majors and several other officers. The oldest existing marine corps commission, dated November 28, 1775, was issued to Capt. Samuel Nicholas, who was destined to lead the marines on their first expedition.

Marine recruiting was first undertaken at Tun tavern in Philadelphia where Robert Mullah, proprietor of the tavern, became captain of a marine company and was one of the principal recruiting officers during the Revolution. More difficult than obtaining men for the marine corps was the problem of arming those it did secure.

There was no standard armament for a marine—muskets, blunderbusses, pistols, bayonets, cutlasses, lances, pikes, spears, even tomahawks, all were used. In contrast to the scanty armament of the Patriots were the ample military supplies of the British and it was because of this fact that the navy and marines set out on their first joint mission—an epoch-making expedition which started the 167 years of close co-operation between these two branches of the service.

With a fleet of eight ships, Commodore Hopkins, with his detachment of marines, set sail late in the winter of 1776 for New Providence Island in the Bahamas where the British had large quantities of military supplies stored. The fleet arrived off New Providence in March. Directed by Captain Nicholas, the marine force was transferred to two smaller vessels for landing operations. Under cover of gunfire from two larger vessels, Nicholas and his men landed without resistance.

Nicholas seems to have been a diplomat as well as a fighter for he sought to accomplish his mission with the least bloodshed possible. When the governor of New Providence sent him a message asking his intentions, the marine commander replied that he wanted only the military stores and that if they were surrendered no harm would come to the inhabitants. But the governor was not willing to hand the supplies over so easily. So as the Americans advanced toward Fort Montague, near the town, the governor ordered the garrison to open fire. Three 12-pounder shots were sent hurtling toward the marines but did no damage and as they continued to advance, the British spiked the guns of the fort and abandoned it.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

CHRISTIAN NURTURE IN THE FAMILY

LESSON TEXT—Deuteronomy 6:4-9, 20-25; Timothy 3:14, 15. GOLDEN TEXT—Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it.—Proverbs 22:6.

The religious life of the home is a determining factor in the life of the child, for it is in the home that the child's whole existence centers and from which he receives the repeated impressions, day by day, which determine character and destiny. Then too, it is in the home that the parent has the opportunity to demonstrate the reality of the faith professed in the church and to show the child that Christianity really counts in the ordinary experiences of life.

I. By Recognizing God's Word (Deut. 6:4-9). Twice a day the orthodox Jew repeated the words of verses 4 and 5, "the Shema," in his time of prayer, morning and night. It was the foundation of his faith, declaring the oneness of God in a world of many heathen gods, and calling for complete and absolute devotion to Him.

But it was not enough that these words should be repeated in the service, they were to be taught with all diligence to the children and to be a normal and natural part of their daily conversation. Here is a matter of great significance to us. The faith which we profess in the church must be effectively brought into the home. It is not enough to carry a Bible on Sunday, it should be in use in the home throughout the week; not only in family worship, but in the incidents of daily life.

The family altar has gradually disappeared, and it is regrettable that it has, for the testimony of generations indicates that in family worship some of the most useful men and women of all ages have received the direction of life which made them great for God.

Let us not readily assume that it is not possible for us to have a family altar simply because of the difficulties of time, place, etc. But if we cannot have such worship regularly, let us show our children that we have a real interest by reading our Bibles, by sharing some blessing found therein with them, and by making prayer the natural thing in the home at all times, not just in hours of trial or adversity. Let us recognize God's Word in our family life.

II. By Remembering God's Blessing (Deut. 6:20-25). The nation that forgets its past will have no future worth remembering. The Israelites were to recall that the glorious history of God's loving kindness toward them bore testimony to the truth of His Word and to the faithfulness with which He had kept them. Their young people would thus be encouraged to trust God for the future. "Hitherto the Lord hath helped, means that henceforth we may count on Him.

In every nation there are those occasions of history where only God could deliver—and He did. The recollection of such events in a way which will give the glory to God rather than to man will strengthen faith and cause men to look to God in the hour of need, and to thank Him in the day of victory.

In the family too, we should cultivate the sacred memories of God's deliverance, of His blessing, of the joy of His fellowship in bright as well as threatening moments. Children who hear such matters gratefully rehearsed in the home have an effective anchor in a time of storm.

III. By Continuing in God's Grace (II Tim. 3:14, 15). That which we learn of Christ and of God's Word is to be translated into living for Christ. The experiences of grace and the remembrance of God's blessing of childhood are not for that period of life alone but for a continuing in God's grace. This carries our thought a bit beyond the responsibility of the parent to provide the proper surroundings and training, and stresses the duty of the child to apply, perfect, and continue that experience of Christian truth and testimony.

Too many careless individuals, who because of the desires of their own wicked hearts have abandoned the church and the Book, blame it on the parents. "They were too strict. We had to go to church too much. They made me go to Sunday school"—such are their excuses. Of course, we know that they are only excuses, not reasons. They are the refuge of the hypocrite who is not willing to face his own terrible responsibility.

The obligation is on each one of us to continue in the things we have learned, and if we do not, the judgment must come upon us. If we do, salvation and blessing will come to us, and we in turn will pass it on to others.

May this lesson turn many an American home back to God's way.

Star Dust STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE Released by Western Newspaper Union.

FRED ALLEN and Portland Hoffa aren't going to have to worry about meat rationing if the public does as well by them this year as it did last. The star of the Sunday night oil program received gifts of meat from two governors—a smoked ham from the governor of Tennessee, a turkey from Governor Johnson of Kentucky, another ham from the University of Missouri, a roast pig from Iowa State college, a barrel of oysters from Johns Hopkins, and hundreds of other gifts, ranging from a bucket of West Virginia coal to a bottle of laughing gas!

Joel McCrea's a life member of the Officers' Club of Gardner Field, Calif. Recently, when buying cattle in that vicinity, with the thermometer at 110, he visited the camp and learned that the men were trying to raise money for a swimming pool. A Bing Crosby golf match had raised part of it, a Victory Committee show had helped, but they still lacked $2,000. McCrea said he couldn't sing, dance or play golf to raise money, but he could write a check—and did. You'll be seeing him soon in "Great Without Glory."

Harry Carey's been in dozens of range wars in the movies; now he'd like to take part in one. Cattle thieves have been butchering beef belonging to a neighboring rancher and selling it to the black market; the neighbor, like Carey, raises cattle for the government. So, though Harry is busy in "Air Force" at Warner Bros., he's been killing a couple of six shooters and planning action.

Fred MacMurray's added himself to the list of Hollywood farmers; he's the owner of 800 acres in northern California, which will be used for farming and cattle raising. He's slated to do "Above Suspicion" with Joan Crawford, for Metro, as the one outside picture Paramount lets him make each year. The story of a professor and his wife who act as British agents on the continent, it had been intended for Powell and Loy.

Director Richard Wallace just doesn't like plane crashes, since he was a near-victim in one in 1935 that cost five lives. So you won't be seeing the crackup scenes in "A Night to Remember," with Brian Aherne and Izabella Young, that the author put in.

One of the best of our radio shows isn't heard in this country except by the studio audience. It's "Mail Call," the war department's service show which is recorded and short-waved from CBS' Hollywood studios to service men in all parts of the world. A recent program, staged before an audience of service men, included Ames 'n' Andy, Claudette Colbert, Joel McCrea and Betty Jane Rhodes.

In 1918 Leo McCarey wrote a song entitled "Keep Up Your Chin," but the Armistice was signed the day it was accepted for publication, and war songs were out. Now along comes another war, and the song's part of the musical score of "Once Upon a Honeymoon."

It sounds almost too pat. Dick Davis, playing a Norwegian in Warner's "Edge of Darkness," heaved a Nazi storm trooper over his head, cracked the heads of two others together, fought through a mob of them, raced 50 yards and dove off a pier. When he swam back to the beach Director Lewis Milestone called to him: "Your wife phoned that your draft board has classified you; you're 4-F—physically unfit!"

ODDS AND ENDS—Deanna Durbin will sing "Rockabye Baby" with Chinese lyrics in "Forever Yours" . . . Brenda Marshall and her husband, William Holden, are giving their Rhodesian Lion dog to the government for army service . . . Jane Wyatt spent two days in a Los Angeles hospital learning nursing technique for her role in RKO's "Army Surgeon" . . . We hear that Melvyn Douglas, turned down twice by the army, will try again when he's finished "Three Hours for Julie" . . . Gregory Peck is bringing Mae Busch back to pictures; she has been cast as Tom Amock's secretary in "Something to Watch About."

Can You Win Freedom From Constipation?

Too many folks go on suffering from constipation when there's no need in the world for them to do so! Why? Simply because one of the commonest causes of constipation is lack of "bulk food" in the diet. In such cases, cathartics and purges can give only temporary relief. If this is your trouble, you can expect lasting relief from constipation—simply by eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN daily. This crisp, delicious cereal supplies the "bulk" you may need—gets at the cause of your trouble and corrects it. Start eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN today and drink plenty of water. See what a wonderful difference it makes when you correct the cause instead of trying to "remedy" the result! ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, it's wise to see a doctor.

Said account shall be segregated in two parts as provided in Section 6 (f) and (g) hereof. From said fund shall be paid the interest on all of the bonds hereby issued from January 15, 1942, until said bonds are paid in full; the remaining amount of said fund shall be retained in said fund to pay the principal of said bonds as they mature. Said net revenues are hereby specifically pledged to secure payment of interest and principal of said refunding revenue bonds. In the event that payments into the fund exceed ordinary interest and amortization needs, the Village may from time to time call the bond then of the highest number outstanding for payment upon payment of a premium of one (1) percent of the principal in addition to accrued interest and principal. The call for payment shall be made by a letter addressed to the Trustee herein named not less than thirty (30) days before the date proposed for payment. A sufficient amount of money to retire said bond shall be deposited with said trustee on or before the date set for payment to the credit of the holder of said bond and after said date, interest on said bond shall cease.

Section 6. COVENANTS BY VILLAGE—The Village hereby covenants:

(a) That it is the owner in fee simple without incumbrance of the physical plant of the utility and all equipment, pipe-lines, right of way thereof excepting however that the said utility is under lease to M. B. Harwell and Sewell Harwell dated December 21, 1940, reference being made thereto for the terms and conditions thereof;

(b) That it will use all its lawful powers to establish, levy and collect sufficient rates for services rendered by such utility as will create an income sufficient to pay all reasonable expenses of operation and create an income which shall be sufficient to pay interest coupons on said revenue bonds as when they shall mature and to provide a sinking fund which shall be adequate to discharge said bonds as when they shall mature; and that it will maintain such rates continuously until such bond issue shall have been fully liquidated;

(c) That it will not divert any of the revenues of said utility to any use except to pay the reasonable expenses of maintenance and operation and to pay the interest and principal of said bonds until the same have been paid in full;

(d) That it will make a full and complete account as to receipts and disbursements of said utility on or before the 10th day of the month following the end of each quarter of the fiscal year covering operations for the preceding quarter; said account to be filed with the New Mexico State Comptroller. In addition, an annual financial report shall be prepared by a public accountant and furnished to the New Mexico State Comptroller; the cost of such annual report to be considered an operating expense of the utility;

(e) That commencing with January 15, 1943, it will deposit each month in the Revenue Fund herein provided and out of the revenues of said utility payments on account of principal to be placed in a segregated fund to be called the "Refunding Bond Retirement Fund." Said monthly payments shall amount to not less than one-twelfth (1-12) of 120 per cent of the principal amortization requirements for the succeeding 12 months of the bonds as shown in the schedule of maturities contained in Section 3 hereof; provided, however, that after a surplus of 40 per cent over and above principal requirements for the ensuing 12 months has been placed in the Refunding Bond Retirement Fund the monthly payment hereunder required for any month may be reduced to 1-2 of 100 per cent of the principal amortization requirements for the ensuing 12 months.

(f) That it will deposit, as herein-after provided, from the Revenue Fund and out of the revenues of said utility payments on account of bond interest to be placed in a segregated fund to be called the "Refunding Bond Interest Fund". Commencing with January 15, 1942, the Village will deposit each month payments in said Refunding Bond Interest Fund which said monthly payments shall amount to not less than 1-12 of 120 per cent of the interest requirements of the bonds for the succeeding 12 months as herein provided, however, that after a surplus of 40 per cent over and above interest requirements for the ensuing 12 months has been placed in the Refunding Bond Interest Fund monthly payment hereunder required for the particular month may be reduced to 1-12 of 100 per cent of the interest requirements for the ensuing 12 months.

Section 7. DEED OF TRUST—To further the marketability of said refunding revenue bonds, and as additional and further assurance of the ultimate retirement thereof according to their terms, the payment thereof is hereby further secured by a conveyance of said utility as described on the attached plan and inventory to the Trustee herein named for the benefit and security of the holder or holders from time to time of such refunding revenue bonds.

Section 8. COVENANT AS TO FRANCHISE—For the further protection of the holder or holders from time to time of said refunding revenue bonds, the Village and its Board of Trustees covenant and agree with the holders of said bonds and the Trustee named herein that the Village will, in the event of default in the payment of the interest accruing on or the principal becoming due on said refunding revenue bonds and the institution of proceedings to foreclose the deed of trust herein provided for, grant a franchise for a term of twenty-five years for the benefit of the holder or holders of said bonds or the receiver appointed on such foreclosure or the purchaser upon foreclosure sale as the case may be, such franchise shall be reasonable in its terms and the conditions under which the public utility shall there after be privately operated. It is expressly understood that this franchise is presently granted by the Village to take effect upon the occurrence of the condition that proper foreclosure proceedings are duly begun in the District Court and the franchise shall become immediately effective for the benefit of the receiver appointed by the Court and thereafter for the benefit of the purchaser upon foreclosure sale. The franchise herein granted, however, is subject to and conditional upon the approval by the Court or any other agency of the state which may be given jurisdiction over such matters and shall not become operative until such approval is secured. In event that said franchise is not approved the Village covenants to give a franchise which shall conform with the requirements of Session Laws of 1941, Chapter 185, Sections 3 and 4.

Section 9. FORM OF DEED OF TRUST AND FRANCHISE—The Deed of Trust and the Franchise herein provided for shall be respectively in the form hereto annexed as Exhibits "C" and "D" hereof which are hereby incorporated by reference herein and expressly made a part hereof.

Section 10. ORDINANCE IRREPEALABLE—This ordinance is a contract with Holders of the refunding revenue bonds hereby authorized to be issued and shall not be repealed until said bond issue has been paid and satisfied in full both as to interest and principal.

This ordinance after its passage shall be recorded in Village Book of Ordinances kept for that purpose, authenticated by the signatures of the Mayor and Clerk, shall be published in a newspaper of general circulation in said Village, and shall go into effect five (5) days after its publication; Adopted and approved this 24th day of January, 1942.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Our army spells and pronounces it pontoon, not "ponton", as you do. Ponton bridges cost all the way from $15,000 to $700,000. The smaller bridge using individual metal pontoons is pictured here. The largest ponton bridge is 1,000 feet long and is made of rubber instead of aluminum.

One small bridge has a weight capacity of 25 tons, using about 2,000 individual metal pontoons. The smallest is used only to take troops over smaller streams. But whether our army uses the smaller or largest ponton, our engineers need plenty of them. If you and every American invests at least 10 per cent of income in War Bonds every pay day we can supply our fighting forces with these essentials to a victorious war.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

A pelorus, used by the Navy, is a device which fits over the surface of a compass to enable the operator to take bearings on distant objects. It has split hair sights, has been in use for many years . . . and costs approximately $125.

These instruments are essential equipment to every American ship which comes out of the shipyards. With the scores of ships now being completed each month, we need many of these instruments. Your purchase of War Bonds and Stamps will help pay for them. Invest at least ten percent of your income every payday in these interest bearing Government securities.

Dogs of War Charge Armed 'Enemy'

Dogs of war will charge an enemy in the face of gunfire. In this series of pictures a Great Dane leaps for an armed "enemy" as he crawls over a barrier. The "enemy," using blanks, fires directly into the dog's face, but the dog never falters. In second picture the Great Dane has the "enemy" by the arm and is pulling him down, and in picture at the right the enemy is falling. Although the trainer had great layers of elk hide and wool in his sleeve, the dog's teeth marked his arm.

High Altitude Tests at Ground Levels

Aviation gasoline must perform as efficiently seven miles up as they do at sea level. Thanks to this high altitude test room (right) the high-flying performance can be judged at ground level. A technologist is shown studying instruments outside the test room. Left: Control room of the fluid catalytic cracking plant at a location which must remain a military secret. Here a wide variety of switches, dials and gauges assist technologists in the constant control of temperatures, pressures and flow rates which affect the quality and amount of high octane aviation gasoline produced.

With U. S. Fighting Men in New Guinea

There is no timber in New Guinea, and so, when it comes to building, the American soldiers learn a trick or two from the natives near Fort Maresby. Before the grass thatch is put on, the beams are securely tied with strips of bark which the natives are shown peeling. In the background the framework of one house is all but completed. Little forks that two of the natives wear in their hair are solely for pleasure—the pleasure of scratching.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

A metropolitan railroad terminal with trains constantly arriving and departing 24 hours a day, in normal times is a place of noise, confusion and great activity. In wartime the noise, confusion and activity increase a hundred-fold. Added to civilians traveling on business or pleasure—mostly on business these days—are thousands of men in uniform who are being sent here and there about the country for more training or perhaps on a journey that eventually will end at a distant battle-front.

A scene at the Pennsylvania station the other morning was typical. Several hundred sailors, their white uniforms immaculate, their black shoes shined, their clean-shaven faces scrubbed, had just arrived from somewhere and were plainly on their way somewhere else. Without command, they fell in quickly, seabags over their shoulders. A boyish-looking lieutenant gave a command and they moved away like clockwork, their cadenced tread audible above station noises. Then came a company of soldiers. Their nonchalance and precision of movement proclaimed them to be regulars or men who had completed their training, their bearing being further confirmation of the assumption. They too marched away. But there was no absence of uniforms. Casuals took their places—officers and men who had been on leave, officers and men on their way to other units and all seemingly in a great hurry.

In a space guarded by vigilant and efficient military police, were perhaps 200 young men not in uniform—boys who had just been called up by their draft boards. Almost all wore working clothes and few had coats. Their baggage was exceedingly light. In contrast with the men in uniform, they looked seedy, down at the heel and exceedingly awkward. Also they lacked assurance. A stocky, sun-bitten sergeant mounted a box. In the confusion, his voice was inaudible to those of us on the outside. But the boys in the reserved space heard him. They lined up in hit or miss fashion and listened intently as the sergeant gave more instructions. The non-com got down and the recruits, following him, walked, not marched, to an entrance of a stairway leading to a train.

Relatives and friends were present in numbers. As the boys who had been called to the colors, started away, a shout went up, a shout in which was a confusion of names. Some of the boys looked back. Others didn't, either because they had not heard their names or because no one was there to say good-by. There were answering shouts and waves of hands. Tears were shed of course. Many tears. Mothers wept openly and unashamed. So did sisters and even brothers. Most fathers strove hard to mask emotion. But there was much blowing of noses—also many masculine eyes were too bright. And when the last of those boys had disappeared, the crowded station seemed strangely deserted.

A tall worn man whose gnarled hands were calloused . . . Neatly dressed, his suit looking as if it had been pressed only that morning . . . Shoes gleaming like mirrors . . . On the lapel of his coat, a badge with a single blue star . . . The train for which he was waiting, first marked up 15 minutes late . . . Then 30 . . . With each dragging minute, he grew more and more impatient . . . Walked up and down the waiting room, those gnarled hands opening and closing . . . A few drags on a cigarette, then it was tossed away and another lighted . . . Time and time again, the reading of a terse telegram, one well within the regulation 10 words . . . Just as he seemed on the point of exploding, the track was posted and he rushed toward the proper escalator . . . A sturdy young man in uniform was brought up . . . The boy's hand shot out and the man took it . . . Then with the utmost calmness, "Hello, son. What's cookin'?"

Not all those in the government service are in uniform. Troop movements, even within the country, are of military importance. So there are army and navy intelligence officers who look just like ordinary travelers. Then there are FBI men. As I was watching the father waiting for his son, J. Edgar Hoover passed. Then too, there were senators and congressmen on their way to Washington as well as numerous government employees. Yes, in wartime, a metropolitan railroad terminal is an interesting place.

Porridge Parties Are Peril to British Tea

LONDON.—Perhaps it won't be much of a surprise if one of these days some fine "porridge party" or other is recorded among the social doings. Porridge parties, instead of afternoon tea, have been held with success at the British government's Scottish office with biscuits rationed, the idea may spread.

SONG FOR AN OLD METAL DRIVE

That good old copper kettle
My mother used so long . . .
It now will fight the Axis
And on it ring the gong;
The frying pan she cooked in
Haa now gone forth to war
Where it will do some cooking
It's never done before.

II.
Farewell, my third string teapot!
You're out for victory;
And what you will be boiling
For Hitler won't be tea;
A thing so calm and placid—
So plain and so mundane—
Whoever dreamed you'd ever
Help out some bombing plane!!!

III.
Flatiron so prosaic—
To war you'll now make tracks—
The shirts that you will iron
Will be on Axis backs;
You now join freedom's battle—
I know you've got the stuff;
Henceforth no one will tell you
You are not HOT ENOUGH!

IV.
Old iron bed, get ready!
You're just a fine antique
But here's your chance, old timer,
If you some glamour seek;
This job is down your alley—
A rendezvous you'll keep:
In some new form and model
You'll put some Japs to sleep.

V.
Come rake, come hoe, come shovel!
The Axis you must mace;
And you will look so pretty
Smuck in the Fuehrer's face.
Lawnmower, long you've served me,
But fighting is the style
So go and clip the Jappies
On distant Kliska Isle!

VI.
And, iron fence so ancient,
Around the old estate:
At you I blow the bugle—
And you won't hesitate;
You merely kept out chickens—
Now in the war perhaps
You'll keep out Nazi madmen
And keep out wild-eyed Japs.

VII.
Come, bumpers from my flivver—
You've found a better job—
To help a valiant doughboy
Or airman or a gub;
You've been a kind protector
In many a little wreck,
But you'll seem even better
Wrapped 'round an Axis neck!

VIII.
Farewell, perambulator!
You've been our joy and pride
But soon you will be taking
Some adults for a ride;
It seems that I can vision
(Oh, how my fancy spins!)
Adolf and Tojo in you—
The World's Most Screwball
Twins.

AIR WARDEN
He waketh at the witching hour,
He cometh in the night,
And gentle-vigil-keepeth with
"Put out that gosh darned light!"
—Richard Spahn.

"I understand," says Pier,
"that Elmer Twitchell is in an awful dither ever not being able to get into his home to gather up the scrap he had accumulated there because of having turned in all his house keys in connection with the drive for old keys."

MEATLESS DAY REACTIONS
Meat on Monday? No can touch;
Sunday I eat far too much.
Tuesday meatless? I'll be quiet—
That day I'm still on a diet.
Wednesday beefless? Maybe so—
But I'm hungry now, I know.
Thursday sans a meaty course?
Nix. Why, I could eat a horse.
Friday? Don't be such a twirp;
I get fish, so does my purp.
Saturday? Don't be a clown!
That's when I can shove it down!

Deep In My Heart It's Taxes
I'm swamped with debt,
And blood and sweat,
Up to my neck in taxes—
The landlord sobs
And my head throbs,
Up to my chin in taxes—
It's lead and leasé,
Or "Rest in Peace,"
It's tokens for the Axis.
Let freedom ring.
Of thee I sing—
Up to my ears in taxes.

SADDLE and RIDE

By ERNEST HAYCOX

THE STORY SO FAR: Clay Morgan has decided to play a lone hand against Ben Herendeen, a rancher bent on running the cattle country his own way. The two men have been enemies for years, having first fought over Clay's wife, Lila, who died holding him and believing she should have married Herendeen. Morgan is a solitary figure, devoted to his nine-year-old daughter, Lila. Although two women, Catherine Grant and Ann McGarrath, are in love with him, they know he cannot forget Lila. Of his former friends, only Hack Breathitt has not gone over to Herendeen's side. Seen camping with Pete Borders, a rustler, he is a fugitive from Herendeen's men. Gurd Grant, Catherine's brother, hesitated about joining Herendeen, but became Morgan's sworn enemy when he discovered that Catherine had been to his ranch. Learning at the last minute that Government Valley is to be auctioned at Sage City 190 miles away, Clay rides all night and arrives in time to outbid Charley Hillhouse, Herendeen's foreman. When he learns that Herendeen has sent a party out to find Hack Breathitt and kill him, Clay starts out to find him first. He goes to Fresno, to Kern Case's store, where he thinks he will find Hack. As he is talking to Case, Herendeen appears. He shoots out the glass in one of the store windows.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER XI

"Case," Ben said, "this is a crooked town full of bums. I can make any of 'em run. There ain't a white man in the place."

Kern Case said: "That window-pane will cost you six bits."

"Charge it on the account."

"What account?"

"My beef account," said Herendeen. "Your friends keep you pretty well supplied, don't they? If I had a couple men to block off this damned joint I'd go through these rattletrap buildings and drag Breathitt out by the back of the neck. He's here."

Kern Case walked around the counter. He started to speak, but Morgan waved him back. "Maybe," Morgan said to Herendeen.

"By God," shouted Herendeen, "I'm going to drive you out!"

"Ben," said Morgan, "I guess I'd better leave my mark on you as I did once before."

He was still by the stove, glance pinned to the butt of Herendeen's gun. Immediately afterwards, Herendeen's hand came away from it and Herendeen's boots seemed to crush into the floor as he jumped forward.

Bringing up his arms, Morgan realized he had his own chance to draw—and refused the chance. He started to move away from the stove as Herendeen's whole bulk swept at him; and stopped to smother Herendeen's fists as they drove in. He knocked the blows aside, no more. Herendeen's onrushing body caught him and drove him against the stove. He slid along the edge of the stove, falling backward. Herendeen hit the stove. Both of them dropped behind it, Morgan bringing up his knees and beating the wind out of Herendeen's belly. Herendeen sprawled aside. The stove had gone down and the pipe began to fall in disjointed sections, sitting warm soot on them. Rolling half around, Morgan saw Herendeen push himself half erect to come at him. He doubled his legs and shot them out and caught the big man full in the face with the sharp heels of his boots. He rolled again and was up.

Herendeen lifted himself from the floor, dashing a hand across his face to scrub the bright quick blood on his cheeks. Morgan's sharp heels had chopped the flesh of Herendeen's lips; one raw strip hung down, redly swaying over his mouth. The impact momentarily drugged him, it took him off his guard. Morgan moved in. He punched a fist into the wide, hard pit of Herendeen's stomach, watched Herendeen's arms fall, and hit him again in the soft neck flesh. Herendeen's face showed sudden pallor and he swayed a little, windless and shocked.

Morgan drove his aimed blows at the huge jaw, hooking his punches up against the long shelving chin.

Herendeen dropped his head and Morgan, missing his target, smashed his knuckles on that rocky-hard poll and felt pain knife along his left arm; it was a sudden agony that made him suck in his wind. He caught the dulling of Herendeen's eyes; he had this man half knocked out—and the old, violent, savage instinct rushed him in until he was at close quarters, trying for the kill.

It was a mistake. Herendeen's great outswinging arms caught him in a bear's grip and drew him in, rushing his ribs. Morgan's arms, thus held, could reach nothing; he pulled himself backward, seeking to break the grip, but Herendeen held on, weathering through his punishment, tightening his grip until Morgan felt his skin burn and seem to burst.

He lay on his side, pushing his arms against the floor but finding no strength in them. He could move them but he had no feeling in them. All this room was gray-black and Herendeen was a blurred shape across the room, slowly trudging forward. He heard Herendeen say something, though he couldn't make out the words. Herendeen, coming nearer, grew taller and broader above him. Herendeen's foot struck him solidly at the base of the spine —and this brutality was a new stream of pain along his nerves. It moved Morgan around on the floor, loosely as though he were a straw dummy. He rolled completely over, coming against a cracker barrel. Morgan got behind the cracker barrel. He held to its top rim and pulled himself up as Herendeen walked against the cracker barrel. Herendeen swept one fist out, striking air as Morgan jerked back. Herendeen started around the cracker barrel, flat-footed and patient. Morgan, still on the defensive, still weak from his beating, kept circling. Suddenly Herendeen stepped back from the barrel, took a half-dozen side-steps and seized a chair. He whirled it over his head and flung it at Morgan. Morgan dropped behind the cracker barrel and rose again, seeing Herendeen at once rush forward. Herendeen seized the cracker barrel with his hands and swept it aside, diving at Morgan.

Morgan drove his aimed blows at the huge jaw.

Morgan knew what Herendeen meant to do before Herendeen's mind had recognized the ax-handle; and now Morgan, looking around him, saw a rack of new Winchester's on the wall. He seized one by the barrel, kicked his way out of the debris of nails and harness and circled Herendeen slowly, the butt of the rifle lifted like a club. Herendeen moved slowly forward, following Morgan's circle. Somewhere, as from a great distance, Morgan heard the rush of horses along the street and a voice calling.

Morgan backed against a hanging harness. He put his shoulders to this flimsy support; the harness gave way and he sat down, still gripping the Winchester by the barrel. He could not draw wind into his lungs; he was starving for air, his heart beat against his ribs and his head was light. He rolled over, sucking wind through his teeth, with his face to the floor; and heard a voice at the doorway, calling into the blackness.

"Who's here?" It was Bones McGeen's voice.

Kern Case's voice was a lower and lower murmur. "Make a step and I'll blow your chest out."

Bones yelled into the store. "Ben, you there! Hey, Ben!"

A shot broke along the street again, quick and hard, and other men ran rapidly across the dust. Bones McGeen swung from the door, rushing down the porch. The shots came in regular method; and the Three Pines men were beginning to answer, all the racket boiling up the dead echoes of the town.

Kern Case said, "I hope you've killed the—," and his easy voice laid terrible words on the past and present of Herendeen. "If you ain't I'm like to finish the job. You all right, Clay?"

Clay Morgan said: "Who's shootin'?"

"Breathitt started it. He's up in the hotel. That's what I was going to tell you when Herendeen came in."

Morgan pulled himself from the harness and found his legs snarled in it. He sank back to the floor and rolled clear and stood up. Light flashed red before his eyes, though there was no light in the room. His head ached in long, solid surges of pain, from the base of his skull all around to his nose. He tasted his own salty sweat, his own blood. He drew deeper into his lungs for wind, catching the throb of his ribs. His left fist began to send up its steady racket and he knew then he had broken a knuckle. He could not move the middle finger.

Kern Case said: "That you?"

Herendeen's boots scraped the floor. Morgan bent down, catching Herendeen's shadow, on all fours, against the faint light of the doorway. He saw Herendeen come up and weave toward the door. He said to Case: "No."

Kern Case called: "Stop right there, Ben."

Herendeen moved on toward the door. He was out of it before Case got around the counter. He was on the street, calling through the spotty racket of the gunfire. "Bones—come here!"

Kern Case swore in the same, passionless voice. "I should of shot the— Now we're in trouble." He stepped around the floor. He said: "Duck." The front windows clattered down before the sudden veering of gunfire. Slugs struck the store shelves. A can of wet goods, punctured, began to spill out its fluid with a gurgling irregularity. Another slug, striking metal, went Whang!

Morgan crawled across the floor. He flattened himself near the doorway, catching a slanting view of the street-end. His horse, spooked by the firing, had drifted away from the hitching-rack into the farther shadows. Meanwhile he heard Herendeen calling from the Yellow Front saloon. "Get your horses off the street, Jim." One more bullet struck the shelves. Kern Case said, so smoothly outraged, "I'll have a little slice of this," and walked back through the store. Rolling over to the opposite edge of the doorway, near the counter, Morgan heard Kern Case's fat weight groan up at a back set of stairs and across the second floor. From his new position Morgan saw a Three Pines hand lead four horses into an alley. At the moment there was no firing; but, watching the Yellow Front, Morgan caught a flutter of light on its windows and stared steadily at it, not immediately understanding the source of that flash.

Kern Case had reached an upstairs window and now waited for his chance. Somebody ran along the back of the store and came through a rear door. Morgan rolled against the base of the counter, listening to those quick steps advance. He heard Hack Breathitt's voice murmur: "You there, Kern?"

Morgan said: "How you like our little party, kid?"

"Clay? What the hell you doin' here?"

Kern Case came down the stairs with a fat man's slow haste. He said: "We got to get out of here, Clay."

"Sure," said Hack. "We depart from hence, mighty damned hence."

"You all right, Clay?" said Case. That drew Breathitt's interest. "Why wouldn't he be all right?"

"I tripped on a rug," said Morgan. He followed Case and Breathitt through the back quarters. The three of them paused by the back door while Case scouted the roundabout shadows; afterwards they drifted halfway between the street and the down-bearing timber of the hillside. Light began to brighten at the other end of town; smoke-smell drifted with the wind. Morgan saw his horse in the shadows ahead of him and went over for it. When he came back he heard Case say in the same even tone:

"My dad built that store. I was born in it—and all my brothers and sisters. But she'll be nothin' but ashes in two hours from now. There ain't a single way to stop this whole town from goin' up." He let out his sigh. "Well, it was a good store. I'm goin' back to get the rocker my mother used."

Light broke the shadows. He saw Hack's face set in its restless half-smile and realized his partner found a malicious satisfaction in this chase. That was Breathitt's way. He had a wild kink in him and he was tough enough to run his luck out to the bitter end. Hack murmured: "Later, maybe."

Morgan said, "Get out of this light. If you bump into trouble, kid, you know where to come."

Hack raised his head. He said, "That's what you came down here to say, wasn't it?" He was no longer smiling. His face was in the shadows, his voice was grave and troubled. "I guess I have brought a hell of a lot of trouble down on my friends. I'll remember it, Clay. If I don't see you again soon I want you to know—" This was as far as he got. He shrugged his shoulders, only adding, "So-long."

Morgan turned up the trail, winding with the steep grade until he had reached the last high point before going into solid timber. From this elevation he looked down on the white-red tangle of high leaping flames. The roof and sides of the hotel were eaten away and what he saw now was the inside skeleton of the building penciled darkly against the swirling fire. One wall of the store had caught. All the surrounding gulch was day-bright and he made out Gale and Gale's family slowly crossing the head of the gulch, toward the Potholes. Herendeen, apparently, had gone. Some of the adjacent trees began to catch fire.

Best Food Storage in Outdoor Cellar or Cave

Storeroom Style Depends On Contour of the Land

The most nearly ideal food storage space on the farm is the outdoor, underground cellar or cave.

It is set all or part way into the ground, banked over with earth, floored and lined with masonry, and fitted with one or more ventilators for air movement. This type of storage provides the best natural conditions for canned fruit, pails or other tightly covered containers, as well as for whole fruits and vegetables. It also serves as a storm cellar for the farm family.

In some areas the bank cellar may be the best solution to the storage problem this fall. The bank cellar belongs on rolling ground. The lower part is masonry construction and is set back into the sloping ground. The upper part may be made of lumber, insulated in the upper walls and roof with sawdust or commercial insulation.

Another useful storehouse—and usually the simplest and best for the home with finished basement—is the special storage room in the basement. A small room space, five or six feet wide and as long as may be needed, is separated from the rest of the basement by a tight wall. A door is fitted into one of the partition walls. At least one outside window is needed so air circulation can be maintained and the temperature controlled to some extent. It is important that the basement room be insulated overhead and in the partition walls to cut off all possible heat transfer from the basement or from the room above.

Wormseed

In one corner of Carroll county in the state of Maryland, farmers have been growing Wormseed for more than 100 years. Western farmers would likely not even recognize the plant if they saw it growing, although in its uncultivated state, it can be found in weedy areas over the entire country.

From Wormseed is distilled "Eucalyptol" or wormseed oil which is used in the manufacture of disinfectants and sprays, in paints and lubricating oils, in the treatment of hookworm, and as a vermifuge for cattle.

The plant is an annual which is sown in seedbeds in the early spring. In June, when the plants are six to eight inches high, they are set out in the fields, either by hand or with a mechanical planter which digs a small trench, drops the plant and waters it, then covers it with soil, all in one operation. The usual rate of planting is 3 feet by 14 inches, making about 2,400 plants to the acre.

Frequent cultivation keeps the weeds down until the plants ripen and the seeds turn brown and black. The plants must be harvested at just the right time, when not too green to have a high content of ascaridole, and not ripe enough to shatter. After curing several days, the plants are hauled to the still and made into oil.

Farm Lease Essentials

In farm leases, essential points are the date when the lease is drawn, the beginning and ending of the farm lease term, method of renewal or extension, accurate description of the real estate and other property affected by the lease, reservations such as right of landlord to enter to inspect the property and make improvements, and, finally, a definite and agreed price of rental and the time and manner of payment.

RAGE AFFECTS VISION

We have all heard the expression regarding some individual who was "blind with rage" when he did something that he would not have done had he not been blind with rage.

What about being blind with rage? Does rage really cause blindness or interfere with eyesight?

As a matter of scientific fact rage or fear can blind you. In Science

Dr. Barton News Letter, experiments are recorded by Dr. E. I. Strongin, Mrs. N. Bull and Dr. B. Korchin of the college of physicians and surgeons, Columbia university, which show that vision is not the same when you are under emotional strain as it is when you are relaxed. Motion pictures taken of the eyes reading showed that while 38 per cent could see better when emotionally aroused, another 22 per cent became worse under strain.

"More critical was the test of how the two eyes work together. This is important for the motorist who is trying to judge the speed of an approaching car, or for the airplane pilot who is bringing his ship in for a landing." He must be able to judge distance and depth. From 14 per cent to 22 per cent of those tested became worse under stress of emotion. Only 4 per cent improved under the excitement.

These research workers therefore recommended that men whose duties require them to use their eyes under powerful emotional strain, as in fighting or any hazardous situation, should have their vision tested under emotion, not while they are sitting calmly in the quiet of a doctor's office.

"Many of the crashes which involve army pilots occur when the flier is returning from an exciting and fatiguing flight and tries to land his speeding plane in a small field. In this situation ability of the eyes to work together is put to a severe test."

Pilots in the last war, after making poor landings, have been found to have infection of teeth or tonsils. After removal of the infection, their landings were again perfect. Tiredness manufactures fatigue products that can cause muscles to be slow in reaction.

Just why the emotions upset the eyesight is not stated by these research workers but that it does is undoubtedly true.

Treatment for Painful Shoulders

As I have had ligaments in both shoulders torn and the left shoulder blade broken, I make it a morning habit to "loosen up" the muscles and ligaments of both shoulders by circling my arms in various directions, elbows straight, keeping arms above shoulders most of the time.

I also try to lie with my arm above shoulder with hand behind head or under cheek. I was interested therefore to read the report of Drs. R. G. Spurling and E. G. Grantham, Louisville, Ky., in the Missouri State Medical Association Journal. These physicians state that about 75 per cent of all patients with painful shoulders and arms, seen early, have been improved or made free of symptoms, after the usual treatment, by keeping the arm up above the level of the shoulder with the hand behind the head as much as possible during waking hours, and, if possible, sleeping with arm above shoulder level.

Tying the wrist to the head of the bed is a good way to keep arm above shoulder level during sleep.

The application of heat (infra-red lamp) over the shoulder muscles is also advised. Diathermy may be used if convenient.

The pain and stiffness in this region is caused by irritation or pressure of a nerve as it passes over the first rib between certain muscles. The symptoms are pain beginning in the shoulder, extending into upper and lower arm, right down to hand and fingers; numbness; coldness and sweating of the hand and sometimes blanching or even ulceration of the fingers. The pain is increased by use of the arm in certain positions. Sometimes the only sign is tenderness of the muscle. In other cases wasting of the muscles is the only sign.

If the simple treatment of keeping arm above level of shoulders and the use of the infra-red lamp or diathermy do not give relief, operation may be necessary.

Mount Rainier, which rises 14,498 feet above sea level and towers 11,000 feet above its own immediate base, is the third highest elevation in the continental U. S. and has the greatest number of glaciers.

It was named in 1792 by Capt. George Vancouver, the English navigator and explorer, after the British Admiral Peter Rainier, who figured in the American Revolution.

If you are planning a trip by train, we hope you will try to leave on a week-day, to relieve the week-end-burden on our trains.

It's a good idea from your own standpoint to leave on a week-day, as you will be more apt to get just the accommodations you want.

Also, we hope you will consider the advantages of traveling later in the year, instead of in June, July or August. Vacation places are less crowded after the summer season. And in this glorious West of ours, many regions are at their best in the fall or winter.

The armed forces have first call on our trains. We know you want it that way. So we will appreciate it if you do everything you can to cooperate with them, and with us.

Please make your reservations well in advance

We hope you will make your Pullman reservations well in advance. And if after making reservations, you decide not to go, let us know promptly, so the space can be used by other travelers.
