RURAL SCHOOL NOTES

The rural schools of Lincoln County are planning a Play Day in keeping with the National Defense Program. The dates and place of the meeting will be announced at an early date. The day will be spent in recreational games as well as competitive sports.

The main objective of such a program is leadership training in health, physical education and recreation; to aid the rural children in solving their own problems in the field of spare time and in developing a broader type of social life for the school, home and community.

The mid-term examinations for all 8th grade pupils of the County have been given.

The following rural schools have enrolled in the Junior Red Cross—Lincoln, Ruidoso, Bogie, Bluewater, Ft. Stanton, Lon, Arabela and Tinnie.

Under a County-wide WPA Project, a new lunch room is being constructed at Peacho. The Basement at Tinnie is being remodeled into a modern kitchen and lunch room.

Drainage work has been completed in the Ruidoso school. Stetson school has had many needed improvements, as well as a colorful lunch room.

Work will soon start on a new room at San Pablo.

INTRODUCING Mr. WILSON

Messrs. Long and Wilson of the Titworth Co. of Captain called on retail merchants this Monday. Mr. Wilson is soon to take the vacancy made possible by the resignation of Mr. Long.

PERSONALS

Mrs. Lulu Lewis is visiting relatives and friends in Texas.

Mrs. S. H. Nickels, who teaches at Jicaville, spent the weekend at the Jake Springs ranch.

Judge M. C. St. John, Mrs. St. John and children spent Sunday at Las Cruces, visiting relatives.

E. E. Belio of the Claunch country was a business visitor in town Tuesday.

Maurice Spear, prominent citizen of Claunch, was here on business this Tuesday.

Mrs. Lola Artiga and daughter, Mrs. Perry Hightower, were visitors from Capitan Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Cook and family are the guests of Mrs. Cook's parents Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Nickels at their ranch home.

The County Board of Education is donating space in the Rural School Library for a public library project which is being sponsored by the Boy Scouts. The library will be left open from 7 to 9 each evening just as soon as there are more books available for public use.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Sandoval and son Jake left this week for Mesa, Arizona, to make that place their future home.

John Sinclair, curator of the National monument at Lincoln, was here Monday on his way to Tucson, Ariz., where he has a ranch. After a brief stay at the ranch, he plans to visit other places in that vicinity before returning home. During his stop-over here, he made this office a friendly call and in course of our conversation, he told us that during '41—6,568 tourists visited the old Lincoln County jail with its many relics and curiosities.

Mrs. Paul Wrye, nee Miss Thelma Shaver, is here from Amarillo this week, visiting her parents, Dr. and Mrs. P. M. Shaver and her many friends.

H. R. Bishop, Julian Herrera and Celestino Vigil were business visitors from the lower valley on Monday afternoon.

Lell St. John of Albuquerque visited the home folks here on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Ed Harris of their ranch in the Claunch country were visitors in town this Wednesday.

El Coyote Queen Crowned

In a lengthy and highly complimentary article, the Roswell Dispatch of Feb. 14, went into a detailed review of the coronation ceremonies connected with the crowning of the Queen of R. H. S. for 1941-42; the Queen being Miss Ruby Crosby. One of our Carrizozo girls, Miss Janice Hall, also receives complimentary mention, as follows:

"At a fanfare from the trumpets of the Senior Class and her escort, Tommy Dresser, marched from the stage down the length of the ballroom and took their places in front of the orchestra." The Dispatch says that the affair was one of the most impressive ever held at the Roswell High School.

Americanization Week

Once again the time has arrived for the planning of Americanization Week. Organizations and individuals seem happy to do their part. Let us all pull together once again to make this the best Americanization Week in the history of our town and community.

The Hermit's Souvenirs

It was in the glad springtime in 1875, that Sam Lathrop and Mollie Mays, both of the old town of Montrose, Ill., happily laid their plans for marriage, which was to have occurred on May 1. As the early buds began to burst into bloom, they arranged an outing for a certain Sunday and taking a skiff, they rowed down to one of the many inlets from the Mississippi river, which was about on either side of the Father of Waters near the town. In making the start for the return trip, a heavy gale sprang up, lashing the shores on either side.

Sam was a good oarsman, but the fierceness of the waves made it difficult to manage the skiff. Finally, a large wave sent the boat lunging from one side to another and after he had it under control, and looking behind, he discovered that Mollie had been thrown into the waters of the raging stream.

He shrieked her name, but received no answer. Up and down the waves he searched for even one glimpse of her head or hand, but there were no signs of Mollie.

He halted a passing boat and they did what they could, but no trace of her could be found. For nearly two weeks they dragged the river and inlets, but nothing was accomplished and hopes of recovering the body of his loved one were given up. It was not until late in the fall that fragments of her clothing were found about two miles below where the accident occurred.

Sam settled up his affairs and left without leaving even a forwarding address for his mail. He changed from a happy prospective bridegroom into a solemn personage, refusing to be consoled and avoiding even conversation with anyone. It was not until the summer of 1900 that a party of mountain climbers located a lone deserted cave high up in the side of a bleak mountain in the Canadian Rockies.

The cave contained but two rooms, which had at one time, been kept neat and tidy, but dust had covered everything and it was only with careful cleaning that the belongings showed they once were those of a man, who had sought such a refuge to spend his last days in sorrow. Among the relics they found a picture of a beautiful young lady which investigation proved was Mollie. Another picture was that of Sam Lathrop. The mountain climbers also found old love letters Sam had received from Mollie and they were tied in neat packages. A log was found where Sam had kept an account of his lonely pilgrimage in that desolate retreat. Many other souvenirs were found, but last of all, they found a cavern, which had served him for a bed and in that cavern, they found a skeleton—the last evidence of the once happy Sam Lathrop. They sent the souvenirs to Montreal, from which place they were sent to Montrose. So ends a story for which all history perhaps, could not furnish a parallel.

Deadly Disease at Ft. Stanton

The Justice Department Monday disclosed that all 400 interned German seamen at Fort Stanton, have been stricken with dread trichinosis—a malady resulting from infected pork. One man of the crew died last week, but this was attributed to heart disease. Facilities of the Marine Hospital have been made available to the stricken Germans, and doctors, a trichinosis specialist and nurses have been sent to Stanton by the Public Health Service. The Germans are from the scuttled Columbus and have been interned at Fort Stanton since last March.

TRAINING SCHOOLS

With the curtailment of non-essential WPA Projects, we are confronted with the problem of not only finding employment for a vast number of unskilled workmen, but that of effectively diverting this great reserve of man-power to the task at hand of outbuilding the world in tanks, airplanes and other mechanized instruments of war.

Many of these men, through the opportunity offered by WPA employment, have shown a remarkable aptitude to learn trades—and stand ready to apply their knowledge and experience of skilled workmanship to our war efforts, if and when a little training in mechanical arts is provided.

Why not turn the CCC Camps into training schools for these men, so that they may take their place on the assembly line—the tremendous output of which is so vital to Victory and the defense of our Country.

Business Men's Club

At the weekly meeting of the club at the S. P. Hotel Wednesday evening, 18 regular members answered the roll call and with 4 visitors, made the total 52. Arthur Stroud of the F. F. L. A., was a guest of James M. Carpenter. Other guests were entertainers for the club, namely: Wm. Fulmer, Margaret Truax and Ramona Holguin. Wm. and Margaret gave two instrumental duets, Margaret on the baritone and Wm. on the cornet. The first was "Blue Bells of Scotland" and the second, "Auld Lang Syne." Ramona played a snare drum solo, which is the snare drum part in the "Semper Fidelis" march. With all above numbers, Mr. Brewster presided at the piano, and the selections were much enjoyed by the attendance.

The major portion of the meeting was taken up in making arrangements for the Father-Son banquet to be held as the club's part in Americanization Week. On motion, the President and Secretary were made a committee to notify fathers who are not club members as well as those who are, and invitation cards will be sent out with attached cards addressed to the hotel management for the purpose of giving the management, as near as possible, an idea of how many to expect so that they may make their arrangements accordingly.

The sign board for names of our boys in the service was reported in by Mr. Whitaker, giving notice that the board has already been erected and ready for the names. If you haven't a boy of your own, bring a Boy Scout, a Cub Scout or a boy belonging to someone else. Don't forget to answer and mail your return cards to the S. P. Hotel after receiving them.

Yank—You'll find out! Hitler has one great advantage over the rest of the Nazis; he doesn't have to listen to Hitler.

One of the most encouraging signs at Washington is the gradual disappearance of all those boys who were suddenly thrown off the stalling standard.

U. S. Is Arming At Record Pace

Germany and Other Nations Are Outstripped, OPM Aide Reports.

NEW YORK.—The rate of rearmament in the United States is proceeding faster than it did in Germany or any other country, it was reported to the American Statistical Association by Lester Kellogg of the recently discontinued Office of Production Management.

"There never has been a time in which all of the country's forces were being so completely mobilized as they are at present," Mr. Kellogg declared.

He disclosed that the government is compiling comprehensive data on economic mobilization throughout the world. Figures for this government, he said, are secret.

In Germany, however, he declared, it had been learned that the Nazi government had captured or built by the end of this year military material worth $100,000,000 and was spending 60 per cent of her national income for war purposes.

Sees Post-War Changes. Marjorie Shearon of the public health service predicted marked changes in emphasis of social services in the post-war period, but warned that "the defense and war programs are shelving not solving" the long-time problem of unemployment.

She said that public service agencies would turn their chief attention from the needs of youth to unemployed older workers and to dependent old persons.

Howard B. Myers, director of research for the Work Projects Administration, said that despite "frenzied newspaper and magazine stories" defense migration "has been a good deal smaller" than superficial studies show.

He warned that in those sections where migration has taken place it "is already creating serious economic and social problems" that must be solved quickly.

New Census Plan Devised. Phillip M. Hauser, assistant chief statistician for the population of the bureau of census, said the bureau had unofficially devised a new plan for sample census of population and agriculture "which might be taken on an annual basis at least during the period of rapid change which confronts us."

Milton Gilbert, chief of the national income unit of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, said that the department of commerce predicts "that the national income will exceed $92,000,000,000 for the calendar year 1941, in comparison with the 1940 total of $76,000,000,000."

The rate of cargo-vessel shipbuilding in the final quarter of 1941 more than doubled the rate in the year's first quarter, and the present American volume of building, both commercial and naval, is the heaviest in history in any country, according to the National Council of American Shipbuilders.

If This Dog Could Talk It Could Tell A-Plenty CLARKSBURG, W. VA.—If only a dog could talk, City Patrolman Dorsey Poling's black and tan-Walker foxhound could tell of being buried for five days in an underground drainage sewer.

Poling, a former president of the Harrison County Fox Hunters association, and other hunters took their dogs out for a run on a nearby farm and when they returned, "Drive" was missing.

Five days later John Layton of Wolf Summit heard a whine from beneath a pasture field. He spoke to the dog and "Drive" answered with a joyous bark. Nearly 75 feet of the sewer was torn up before the badly scratched dog was rescued from the ten-inch pipe.

Army Refuses to Stretch An Inch So Youth Does It CLEVELAND.—It took a lot of trying, but Lawrence Kelley of Cleveland is in the air corps today, an inch and a half taller.

When Kelley first went to the recruiting office in 1939 he found himself an inch and a half short of the required five feet four inches.

He joined a gymnastic class and worked out on the horizontal bars. A year of stretching added an inch to his stature, but the army again turned him down. So, he continued his gymnastics and in April, 1941, returned to the recruiting office—measuring exactly five feet four inches. He was accepted.

Corporal Didn't Propose But Girl Sets Wedding LONDON.—R.A.F. Corp. Ian MacPherson got a cable from South America.

"Returning London for wedding, December—Helen," it said; MacPherson was surprised. He had thought Helen was his girl. But he had never proposed to her.

A sudden thought struck him. "Is it me?" he called back. "Yes," came the reply. So Ian and Helen were married.

CATTLE RAISERS FACE PROBLEM

Danger Ahead if Beef Cattle Increase Continues.

By E. J. MCKENNA (Chairman, Montana USDA Defense Board.)

Dangers that face the livestock industry if cattle numbers continue to increase past a balance with normal feed supplies were pointed out by Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard in a recent letter.

There is danger ahead for beef cattle producers if herds continue to increase, Wickard stated. This, together with the fact that abundant supplies of food are needed for national defense, indicates that increased marketings of beef cattle and calves in 1942 will benefit not only cattlemen but the National Defense program as well.

Secretary Wickard's statement pointed out to stockmen several things they could do to make their position more secure. He advised increased marketing of cows and heifers which, because of the good demand and price, would mean more money to pay off indebtedness and get set for what may come in the future.

This present demand also offers stockmen an opportunity to improve their breeding herds by culling out and selling undesirable animals at a good price.

Keep livestock numbers in balance with normal feed supplies, he urged. Range conditions and feed supplies in the West have been unusually good this year. Drought can cause a lot of loss if there is no feed reserve available.

In 1934, just before the disastrous drought, there were 74,000,000 head of cattle in the United States and in another year, if the present rate of increase continues, there will be at least that many again.

Vitamins Important In Animal Breeding The success with which farmers raise their pig, lamb, and calf crops to meet expanding national food needs may depend in a large part on the kind of rations they supply their breeding stock, says Earl H. Hostetter, professor of animal husbandry at North Carolina State college.

Rations well fortified with vitamins and minerals are required for normal reproduction, and vitamins A, E and C have received most attention in relation to reproduction.

Carotene, which is present in well-cured green hay, fresh green pasture, grass, well-made corn, grass and legume silage, and yellow varieties of carrots, squash, and sweet potatoes, is the principal source of vitamin A, highly essential in the reproduction of all farm animals.

However, Hostetter pointed out, carotene is rapidly destroyed in feeds, especially under conditions of poor storage, so precautions must be taken to provide adequate amounts particularly to pregnant animals.

As early as in 1922, the vitamin E factor was demonstrated to be necessary for reproduction of laboratory animals such as the rat, but the need for it in the diet of farm animals other than poultry is still questionable. Most good rations contain adequate amounts of this vitamin, and only in unusual cases is it likely that animals may be sterile because E is lacking.

Such feeds as wheat bran, shorts, linseed meal, hominy feed, white and yellow corn, cottonseed meal, and kafir are good sources of vitamin E, as are most of the common hay and pasture crops.

Agricultural News Casein and other plastic dress and millinery ornaments and buttons will replace those made of metals which are needed for defense purposes.

Canned edible soybeans, which look and cook like limas and have a nuttier flavor, are on sale in grocery stores in parts of the United States.

British farmers put under cultivation an additional 2,000,000 acres last fall in order to make the country more self-sufficient in the way of foodstuffs.

Due to the shortage of aluminum, only 11,000 pounds will be available for the manufacture of poultry wing bands this year as compared with 150,000 last year.

Adding common baking soda to water given to feeder cattle immediately after they are received may avert losses from shipping fever. If fever develops, a veterinarian should be called immediately rather than waiting.

Help in meeting the shortage of farm labor, and preparing for farm adjustments needed in the war emergency have been among the jobs of county farm bureaus this year. Demand for more farm products means still greater activity.

Safe Tankers

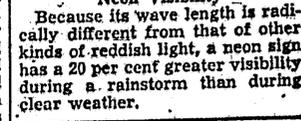

Unlike other ships, a tanker, while loaded with gasoline or light oil, will not sink if it is punctured or springs a leak except when the accident occurs in the engine room or living quarters, says Collier's. As the cargo is carried in numerous large tanks, several may be damaged at one time, the result being that the oil leaks down to the level of the sea and lightens the load of the vessel.

to the first division, and he wouldn't be at all surprised if the Phillies relinquished their tall end position. His attitude is based on the matter of players' ages.

Cleveland, he maintains, won't play the same brand of ball without Keller. The Boston Red Sox can't compensate for the loss of Ted Williams and their young, improved pitchers. The Tigers can't replace Greenberg.

The Browns are more fortunate in this respect. They are an older club with more married men aboard. They won't suffer so much from the draft. Every club in the league will be losing men from time to time, but the Browns may lose fewer.

The Yankees can stand the loss much better than any other club. They could lose any two or three—or more—players and still be the one team to beat.

The National league, of course, is faced with the same critical problem. The outcome of the pennant battle may depend on the draft. Many a familiar name will be missing from the rosters when the season opens on April 14.

The St. Louis Cardinals have a large share of married men, but also a considerable number of younger stars. Just how many young pitchers will be on hand in mid-April is anybody's guess.

About the Dodgers The Dodgers could be in much worse shape. They get a break in the number of pitchers they have from 35 on up. But, like the remaining clubs, they will lose a number of younger men who were slated for increasingly important roles. It's useless to name each club—the problem is general.

Although major league difficulties make the headlines, the minor league situation is even more critical—particularly at the lower end of baseball's ladder. Class C and D leagues likely will be hard pressed for players before the year is ended. Salaries in Class C run about $100 a month, in Class D about $80.

The present uncertainty on the baseball front—both major and minor—may result in an exciting scramble which will sharpen interest in an unprecedented extent. The season probably won't go according to pattern. It promises to be a year of surprises and upsets. Teams which have been kept on the winning side of the ledger by the efforts of one or two men will find their positions extremely precarious—especially if those men are of draft age. The situation isn't unbecomingly baseball won't suffer from the uncertainty.

Barney Oldfield potent coach for some time. But even this doesn't detract from the performance of the most remarkable natural swimmer who ever lived—and one of the great competitors.

Weissmuller now is busy showing chimpanzees how to climb trees and throw coconuts.

Two Others Two other unique record breakers are Cornelius Warmerdam at the pole vault and Les Steers at the high jump—two high-flying Californians. Warmerdam discovered that the only way he could pass 15 feet was to get his right arm out of the way in time. Steers discovered that the only way he could beat 6 feet 10 inches over the lofty cross bar was to get his left foot out of the way before it carried away the bar.

"I could get my left hand and left arm away in time at 15 feet or better," Warmerdam, the high school instructor, said. "It was the right arm that gave me all the trouble. I worked at this knack and I also worked hard at the job of increasing my speed. In the beginning I ran the hundred in 11 1/2 seconds. Later on I got this speed down to 10 1/2 seconds."

With these two things accomplished Warmerdam soared above 15 feet at least seven times in one year, finally reaching the incredible height of 15 feet 5 1/2 inches. His goal is now 16 feet, given the time to practice.

About Steers There were vague rumors and reports years ago that certain Zulu African jumpers could equal 6 feet 10 inches. These rumors never were verified.

But back in June, 1941, at a Pacific Coast conference meet, Lester Steers, the Oregon University rubber-man, proved a human being could clear the bar at 6 feet 11 inches.

In an effort to control a balky left foot, he would train wearing only one shoe, on his right foot, with his left foot bare. Steers goes over with a legal body roll. After hard work he was able to get this left foot out of the way at the top of the jump.

His goal, if given the chance, is 7 feet, once thought to be impossible.

Human Limit Charley Paddock, the first of "The Fastest Humans," had a new 100-yard record in eight one afternoon when he suddenly discovered that his leg ligaments would not stand that much strain.

He realized, wearing the 86-yard mark, that he was on his way to at least a 9 1/2 mark when he felt that one or more ligaments were about to crack. Not wishing to remain a cripple he ceased up to the existing world mark.

Star Dust

STAGE-SCREEN RADIO BY VIRGINIA VALE (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

HOLLYWOOD may not see Katharine Hepburn working before its cameras again for some time; she left when she finished "Woman of the Year" with no plans for making more pictures, but with plenty for doing that new play, if it runs as long as "Philadelphia Story" did she won't be ready for pictures again for more than two years.

Incidentally, Spencer Tracy—who also wants to do a play, if he can find the right one—had his hair cut for that new Hepburn picture, the first time he's done that since 1935, when he had a haircut for "Murder Man," which he made with Myrna Loy; think back and you'll remember that he's been doing "unshaven and unshorn" roles, a long string of them.

Case investigators on the air's "Are You a Missing Heir" program travel thousands of miles and spend hundreds of dollars in search of those heirs—so imagine their surprise when a legatee turned up practically under their noses; she's Agatha Friederick, and is a script-writer for the agency handling the Heirs program.

We know only that "the studio has made some concessions" in that difference of opinion between Deanna Durbin and Universal that's kept her off the screen all this time. Last October it was reported that she was demanding the right to choose her vehicles and approve her leading men and directors—when a star takes things into her own hands that way she's usually on the skills that lead to stardom. Now she's set to make pictures again. Her husband, Vaughan Paul, will not change his mind about his resignation as a Universal producer.

John Payne replaces Victor Mature in 20th Century Fox's "White Collar Girl" in which he plays opposite Betty Grable. The picture is scheduled to get under way soon, with John Brahm directing.

It seems to be children's day at the Columbia studios. Baby Davy James, the infant Marlene Dietrich didn't drop in "The Lady Is Willing," has a new contract with options that cover a total of 21 years; now a year old, he's known professionally as "Wonder Baby Corey," his name in that picture. And 15-day-old Norma Jean Wayne is working in "Blondie's Blessed Event."

That bartender whom you'll see with Richard Arlen and Arline Judge in "Wildcat" once had his day as a famous man. He is Tom Kennedy, and once upon a time he fought Jack Johnson for the world's heavyweight championship.

Speaking of war pictures—Paramount bought a story called "Channel Port" way back last April, and now is going to do something about it. It will be filmed in England, and executives are hoping to get Laurence Olivier or David Miven for the lead. It's a Commando story; the hero's a long-distance swimmer, who swims the channel from France to England with important information.

Columbia grabbed the title, "The Commandos," first, however, their story deals with an American boy who becomes one of that daring band, and a girl in Norway who heads an underground movement against the invaders—one more "boy meets girl" plot, in a new setting.

"Bedtime Story" has a parallel in real life, Helen Hayes' announcement that she would retire for two years was contradicted by her husband, Charles MacArthur who has a new play for her. Same plot as the picture!

ODDS AND ENDS—Band bookers are optimistic, despite the war—Sammy Kaye, for example, has been booked through January, 1943. A preview audience liked Doan's Read so much in "The Courtship of Andy Hardy" that the picture was given a new ending, a happy one for her. In Universal's "Wake Up and Dream" band-leader Woody Herman not only makes his film bow but dances a bit for the camera. Joan Crawford's salary for the role that was to have been Carole Lombard's in "He Kissed the Bride"—$112,500—will all go to charitable organizations. "Sullivan's Travels" is not only very funny; it has a message as well.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for February 22

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education used by permission.

JESUS APPOINTS AND TEACHES THE TWELVE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 9:12-24. GOLDEN TEXT—Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.—Matthew 5:16.

God is sovereign and has all power. He might, therefore, perform His works without the help of man, and on many an occasion He does just that.

That fact makes it all the more glorious that He ordinarily works through men, giving to them the privilege of companionship with Him in service. Sinful and weak though they may have been, they become strong and holy in Him, able to do valiant service in His name.

I. Appointed to Serve Christ (vv. 12-19).

It is the constant teaching of Scripture that those called to serve God are not self-appointed. They are

1. Chosen by Him (vv. 12, 13). He chooses whom He will, gives them the gifts and the grace for ministry (and both are important!), and provides them a servant of service. It is vital to the plan of Christ that he know that he has been chosen and called of the Lord. Only with that assurance can he meet the problems and bear the burdens of the work.

Observe that it was after a night of prayer that Jesus appointed the twelve. How many churches give that much prayer to the choosing of its leaders? Do we not need it far more than did our Lord?

2. Called from Many Walks of Life (vv. 14-16). The apostles were men of widely differing gifts, temperaments, and personal characteristics. Some had unusual ability, others apparently were of ordinary qualifications. They were of many occupations, fishermen, a tax gatherer, etc.; but not one was by profession a preacher or priest.

Were men to choose for such offices they would look within the narrow limits of a few learned professions, with certain nationalities preferred, and with position in life an important factor. God cuts across every man-made limitation and calls His workers as He sees fit.

3. Companions in Service (vv. 17-19). At once the twelve received their introduction to service to the great multitude diseased, demon possessed, in spiritual need. It was Jesus who healed them (and notice that "he healed them all," v. 19), but verse 17 tells us that the newly appointed apostles came and stood with Him. They had fellowship with the healing and serving Christ, just as we may have it in service for Him today.

II. Prepared to Live for Christ (vv. 20-26).

Service for Christ is as much (perhaps we should say, more) by life as by ministry. The twelve needed instruction that their spiritual perspective might be right. He tells them

1. How to Meet Difficulties (vv. 20-23). Poverty, hunger, weeping, being hated for Christ's sake, these were the things that Jesus knew His servants might expect, so He prepared them. They were told that these things need not disturb them, for there is a kingdom coming; there will be a time when every hunger will be satisfied, when weeping shall turn to laughter.

Hatred for Christ's sake is declared to be the occasion for an outburst of joy because of the reward which awaits in heaven. Scripture speaks much of rewards, and we do well to encourage ourselves and other Christians by the blessed prospect.

Meeting difficulties is a matter of having mental and spiritual eyes rightly focused. If we do, we can see right through them and see that on the other side there is blessing.

But there are temptations in another direction, so He tells them 2. How to Avoid Dangers (vv. 24-26). Jesus is here speaking of those who, lacking true spiritual vision, revel in the satisfaction of worldly things without a thought of God. The passage, however, may well be applied to the worker for Christ. Often he will be tempted to covet the wealth, the prosperity, the pleasures, and popularity of those round about him.

The question which comes to him is, Why should I and my family not share these pleasant things? Therein lies a temptation to become worldly-minded, centered in the temporalities of life. Let him learn that money in itself cannot bring lasting joy; that the fullness of this world is soon exchanged for an eternal emptiness; that the shallow laughter of this world's fun rapidly gives way to weeping. The praise of men—popularity with those who know not Christ—is a fickle thing. One day they will praise a man to the skies, and the next day no evil word or disgraceful treatment is spared to destroy and dishearten him.

The 'First' Bathtub

THIS year marks the 100th anniversary of what is probably the most famous bath in history. The interesting thing is that the bath was never taken, that Adam Thompson was the man who didn't take it and that he didn't take that famous bath in Cincinnati, Ohio, back in December, 1842, even though you can find plenty of printed "authorities" which solemnly assert that he did. Here's how it all came about:

Back in December, 1817, when Americans were as concerned about

World War I as they are today about World War II, H. L. Mencken, later famous as the editor of the American Mercury, wrote a story which purported to be the history of the first bathtub in America. "My motive was simply to have some harmless fun in war days," says Mr. Mencken. "It never occurred to me that it would be taken seriously because it was packed full of absurdities." But apparently he didn't realize how gullible the public was.

The story, which first appeared in the New York Evening Mail of December 28, 1817, stated that the first American bathtub was displayed by one Adam Thompson, "a wealthy cotton and grain dealer," to a group of his admiring friends in Cincinnati on December 10, 1842. It was at a party "for men only" and all of the guests, took baths in the new contraption.

That party, according to Mencken, had an unexpected aftermath. The bathtub was denounced by physicians as a menace to public health and the Boston city fathers passed an ordinance prohibiting its use except upon medical advice. In Virginia a $30 tax was imposed upon the installation of each bathtub and Hartford, Conn., Wilmington, Del., and Providence, R. I.; all charged extra rates for water in which to bathe in bathtubs.

The Philadelphia city council, he solemnly averred, tried to pass an ordinance prohibiting the use of bathtubs between November and May but the measure was defeated by two votes. However, adverse legislation couldn't stop the use of the "new invention" and during Millard Fillmore's administration as President he had a bathtub installed in the White House and thus became the first Chief Executive to take a bath there.

Such were the "facts" which the public accepted in all seriousness. Eight or nine years later Mencken wrote an article which was syndicated to newspapers all over the United States. Reviewing the history of his hoax, he said: "Pretty soon I began to encounter my preposterous 'facts' in the writings of other men. They began to be used by chiropractors and other such quacks as evidence of the stupidity of medical men. They began to be cited by medical men as proof of the progress of public hygiene. They got into learned journals. They were alluded to on the floor of congress. They crossed the ocean, and were discussed solemnly in England and on the Continent. Finally, I began to find them in standard works of reference."

In one of his books Mencken tells how the story was reprinted in the Boston Herald with a four-column head and a two-column cartoon labeled satirically "The American Public Will Swallow Anything." Says Mencken: "And then, three weeks later, in the same editorial section, but promoted to page one, the same Herald reprinted my 10-year-old fake—soberly and as a piece of news."

Since then the story has been reprinted countless times—some times for the purpose of debunking it but more often as an authentic item of "social history." Despite all of its author's efforts to debunk his own fantasy, it keeps bobbing up regularly and people keep repeating the yarn as though it were the truth. As a final touch of irony it has appeared at least twice in the newspaper with which Mencken's name is "closely associated—the Baltimore Sun!"

As a matter of fact, the bathtub has a much longer history than a mere 100 years. The cave men left behind them paintings which show that they made a kind of bathtub by conducting water from springs through hollow logs into rock basins in their caverns. The people of Babylon, Mesopotamia, Crete, Egypt and Greece all had ingenious water systems and practiced frequent bathing. The baths of ancient Rome were famous for their luxury and cleanliness. All of which proves that the "inventor" Thompson was anticipated by many centuries.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

Jap 'Culture Offensive' Is Assisting Aggressor in Continuing Their Attacks; Heroic Stories Arrive From Luzon; Nazi's Subs Add More Ships to Toll

GENERAL'S MESSAGE: When common sense is obscured in these columns, they are those of the writer and not necessarily of this newspaper.

MENACE

Of 'Jap Culture' As the tentacles of the Jap... these advances throughout the... west Pacific stretched themselves across the map...

Burma, for instance, where one of these vital struggles was taking place, was a hotbed of anti-British sentiment among the hilltribes...

Yet China's miracle-making coolies were hard at labor creating two, perhaps three new "Burma roads" which would have outlets at points other than Rangoon...

Many realized, however, that between the Hindus, the British and the Chinese were many gaps in understanding, the latter tending to wonder whether the British understood the important nature of the Far East war...

Two things stood out—Wavell's calm promise that Singapore must hold out for "great reinforcements" were on the way...

Shortly after the siege had begun, Japanese troops, crossing at low tide the narrow channel between the mainland and the island, began their attack. Slowly they pushed back the beleaguered British troops...

LUZON

Epic of Defense Eyewitness stories of MacArthur's men in action began to filter in from the Luzon front...

These stories pictured the Japanese as fanatical fighters, battling to the death, trembling and moaning perhaps, when cornered, weeping and about to die...

One correspondent told of seeing an American captain, waving a bloody-banded arm, shouting "surrender, you —, we have you surrounded" — and getting the reply from the trapped Japs...

The American tank crews were forced to run down and trample into their foxholes small bands of a Jap "suicide battalion" that had tried to land behind MacArthur's lines...

Yet, outside of these repelling skirmishes between bands of 100 to 200 of the enemy, and of frontal attacks in greater force, it was evident that MacArthur's position was ever-narrowing, ever-shrinking...

Meantime, the average American, glowing with pride over the achievement of the men on Luzon, worried because no reinforcements had arrived, and prayed that help might come before the gallant defenders were hurled back on Corregidor...

OCD ROW: Sweeps U. S.

MELVYN DOUGLAS An extra $4,000 a year...

As the congress made ready the first $100,000,000 for civilian defense, the spotlight of publicity was turned on various appointees who would serve on Mrs. Roosevelt's section of the nation-wide OCD.

As a matter of fact, congressmen themselves were leaders in the criticism of the appointees at the very same time that they, themselves, were being lampooned and laughed at from coast to coast...

But the OCD row not only involved the representatives themselves, but caused a mountain of mail to fall on Washington. Mayris Chaney, a vaudeville dancer and protege and friend of Mrs. Roosevelt, named to a $4,600 job as children's activities director...

The word "boondoggling," which had not been bandied about on editorial pages for some years, made its appearance again, and congressmen leaders of the opposition declared their desks flooded with congratulatory mail.

ANZACS: Grim, Hustling Australia and New Zealand, anxious over the trend of events as Japanese tentacles reached ever southward toward the great continent "down under," were grimly and seriously readying themselves for the most determined war effort in their history...

Another evidence that first-class and large American support was arriving in the area was seen in the announcement that an American, Vice Admiral H. F. Leary, had been appointed head of the naval forces operating in the Australia-New Zealand area...

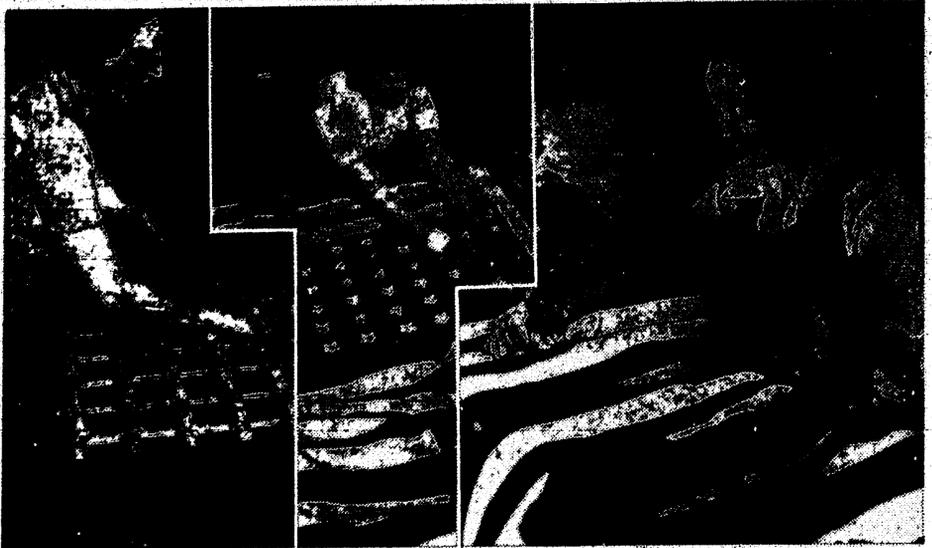

A new American naval command, officially titled "United States Naval Forces, Southwest Pacific," also was created. Vice Admiral William A. Glassford, it had been announced, had been placed in command of this force...

JAP SPIES: Caught in Net That the FBI had not been sleeping on its guns since December 7 has become evident in the announcement of a series of widespread raids on the Pacific coast...

RETIRE? Short, Kimmel Just when the nation was wondering whether or not a court-martial would be held to try General Short and Admiral Kimmel for their dereliction to duty in Hawaii, both officers simultaneously asked the army and navy for retirement...

Whether this would be the outcome of "Pearl Harbor" as far as the two men blamed for the disaster would be concerned remained problematical.

New York: Radio men on steps of one large broadcasting concern had been given a salary boost of 25.5% a month, and war risk bonus. The action closely followed the striking of one of the company's ships.

Chicago: Reviewing the municipal bond market for the past 12 months, Bureau, Kindred & Co., Chicago financial house, found a decrease of $220,000,000 in the amount of state and municipal financing last year. The 1941 total was $1,399,320,124, compared with $1,620,371,823 in 1940.

ASK ME ANOTHER?

A General Quiz

The Questions

1. The Rubicon refers to what?
2. What is the chemical name for laughing gas?
3. What is a machete—a banana, a knife or a musical instrument?
4. Where do the natives speak the Manx language?
5. What was Romeo's family name?
6. Ectrum is an alloy of what?

The Answers

1. A river. By leading an army across the river contrary to the prohibition of the civil government of Rome, Caesar precipitated a civil war which made him supreme, hence, "to cross the Rubicon" is to take the irrevocable decisive step.
2. Nitrous oxide.
3. A knife.
4. Isle of Man.
5. Montague.
6. Gold and silver.

"I Should Have Known Better"

She knew she was eating too much! Things looked so good she kept right on. And then—GAS! Stomach and intestines inflated like a balloon, and breathing an effort. If a spell of CONSTIPATION ceased this AD-LERKA should have been handy. It is an effective blend of 8 carminatives and 3 laxatives for DOUBLE action. Gas is quickly relieved, and gentle bowel action follows surprisingly fast. Your druggist has AD-LERKA.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

DEEP WATER ISLAND

by ALAN LEMAY

INSTALLMENT TWELVE
THE STORY SO FAR: Karen Waterston, convinced by her lawyer, John Colt, that she has a claim to the island estate of her grandfather, Garrett Waterston, comes with him to Honolulu and meets Tonga Dick or Richard Wayne, a member of the Wayne family which has been in control of the property since her grandfather's disappearance. Dick's uncle, James Wayne, manager of this island, Alakes, dies from overwork and Dick attempts to work out a compromise settlement of Karen's claim. This is refused. Meantime Karen has learned that both Colt and Dick are in love with her. Dick reveals that Karen is not an heiress at all, as Garrett Waterston is alive and on his way to Alakes. Dick and Karen leave the island together and some distance out find that Lilia, a native house-girl, has stowed away in the boat. Dick questions her regarding her actions. New continue with the story.

The girl let the sway of the ship take her then; She swayed against the doorway's stanchion, and stayed there.

"I want to know how you got onto my boat," Dick said.
"I swam," Lilia tossed at him in a quick, almost contemptuous aside. She went on talking to Karen, levelly, her face quiet except for the flame in her eyes, and her body quiet except for that easy, unconscious sway that balanced her to the lift of the sea.
"You have nothing to give him," Lilia said in that inexorable, steady voice. "You can only think of position, and land, and money. Would you want him if you had first seen him sick, and helpless, and alone? You know your eyes would not have seen him at all. This is my man. If he were dead, I would make myself die. Would you?"
Suddenly Dick was unable to speak. He stood weaponless, humble, and—without any particular recourse or hope. Diffidently he turned his eyes to Karen.
Karen Waterston had gone perfectly white—whiter than sea foam, whiter than the knit linen of the little hat she wore. Her mouth was oddly distorted, but her eyes were blank. She seemed to have lost all power of motion exactly where she stood. Then the reel of the little ship unbalanced her, and by its very unkindness seemed to return her the gift of movement. Karen turned, literally fled. At the foot of the ladder she flung Dick one irrational, unreadable glance; then ran away from them into the upper night.

CHAPTER XI

Dick Wayne was left facing Lilia alone. For a moment Lilia's eyes remained fixed upon the companion-way where Karen had disappeared. Then her eyes turned to Dick, and for a moment they looked at each other.
"Lilia, Lilia," Dick said, "what have you done to me?"
For one brief moment the sharp, spear-like flames in the eyes of Lilia broke down; she looked at Tonga Dick pathetically, pitifully, with no defense behind her eyes, no barriers at all.
Dick's voice was cool, definite as a stroke. "Stop it, you hear me? Forget it—cut it out!"
The girl let the sway of the ship take her, then. She swayed against the doorway's stanchion, and stayed there.
Dick took the ladder in long, reluctant strides. A glance told him that Karen was in the point of the bow.
He stood a minute by the swaying mainmast, trying to gather himself, but without any effect. Then he walked forward to the rail where Karen stood. Close to her at the rail, he drew her close against his side, easily and naturally; it had always seemed to him that she belonged nowhere else but there.
"Karen."
She took herself away from him sharply—out of the curve of his arm, out of contact with him in more ways than one; and they stood alone, as individual as the unrelated stars.
"Karen," Dick said, "I guess you are right; I don't know how you knew, but you knew. In a way, you foretold this, Karen."
"Perhaps," Karen said, "it's better for both of us that this happened just as it did."
That stopped him for a moment but he came on again. "What are you saying? In God's name, up helm! Do I mean so little to you?"
"Whatever you may mean to me, it seems that you have made yourself mean more to this—this Kanaka."
"Karen, it's grotesque that a native brat—"
"A brat is a child, Dick. This girl is anything but a child."
"What does it matter what she is? If you and I—"
"Perhaps it matters everything what she is. Perhaps—she's what you made her. I don't know how old she is. But that's a woman, Dick. If you've made her your own, as it seems you have—"
Her words died in her throat; but she had said enough.
For a moment then Tonga Dick Wayne faltered. The cool chiseled lines of Karen Waterston seemed infinitely far away. For a moment he was able to hope—even to believe—that he could put her out of his mind, out of his heart. For a little while this girl had become to him like a dream of the stars—but a dream that he would have been glad to forget.
Partly he could see her as she literally was—there was no doubt about that. He could see her as a thin-bodied, thin-faced San Francisco stodger, sharp-edged in mind and manner because any girl needs to be, making her own way. He could see her in the light of the reason that she was here—a short-cutting little adventurer, willingly lending herself to the predaceous brain of John Colt—in the hunt for unearned fortune. A girl—proud without background, arrogant without attainment.

But still behind that, like a mist-figure seen beyond steel cogs and wheels, hovered persistently his own conception of what this girl might have been—perhaps still could be. He was obsessed by the haunting belief that if what he had hunted for always was not in this girl, then it was somehow lost out of the world.
"And now," Karen said, "I think you might put back to Alakoa—don't you? Because you said—"
"No," Dick answered.
"I ask you to turn back."
"I'm not going to put back. At least not yet. Not until you come to your senses, Karen."
He didn't know why he told her that. The impulse was jerking at him to do as she said, and take himself well out of this thing forever; to turn back to John Colt, and be rid of her once and for all. He could see Lilia's steady eyes—and no man could ever forget what she had said. He honestly supposed that it would have been better for him to relax into the world of Lilia—to lose himself by day in the casual adventures of the warm sea, and by night in the arms of an island woman who doubted nothing, asked nothing—could be well-content with food and a man. But—something stubborn within him held on.
Karen said incisively, "You promised you'd turn back if I asked."
"Not yet. Later, if you want. Not yet."
He had given up ever hearing any expression from her again, before she spoke.
"I guess—" she said—"I guess, Dick, I don't blame you."
Of all things on earth, he had least expected to hear that. Inane-ly he said, "Again, please?"
"Men are what they are," Karen said, her voice somehow distant, yet not unfriendly—and women are what they are. People who hunt for the absolute are fools."
"Always?"
"Oh, yes; always. But maybe I'm a fool, too. I think—" Her tone wavered, but steadied again. "I think—maybe you'd better go on. Go on to Hilo—and give me a little time. We'll still come out, Dick, I think."
"Listen," Dick said, "I want you to have this decently straight. I give you my word—and I wouldn't offer proof if I could—I never made love to this girl in my life, nor so much as laid a hand on her."
"No?"
He didn't even bother to answer that; he knew what to expect from this girl by now. He held on still because to him only one adventure was conceivable, and that adventure was Karen—literally, for she was more than an epitome; she was the adventure itself.
"I don't see why—" Karen began. The rushing sound of the Holokai through the uneven sea seemed to come between them again, so that he never knew what she had started to say.
Suddenly he turned, and shouted for Inyashi; the little Japanese came running along the deck.
"Get—get ready to put about."
"Yes, Captain."
Almost at once the voice of the ship altered, slackening off and quieting.
"So," Karen said, "it was you who changed your mind, after all!"
Dick said thickly, "You're going to have to believe the truth when I tell it to you."
"Either," she said, "I'll take you as you really are, or I'll never take you at all."
"You'll never take me, or I you," Dick said harshly, "on the basis of any such lie as is in your mind."
"The Polynesians are known everywhere as a mild, easygoing race. Am I supposed to think that this Kanaka woman, without any encouragement or any past relationship with you, suddenly runs wild, and goes to—passionate, extreme lengths—"

"Lilia is not all Polynesian, Karen."
"I have no doubt she's a little of everything."
"I don't think you're so very charitable, either to her or to me. Not even to yourself."
"To myself?"
"She's beautiful, Dick," Karen said. "I can see that. But I hate her, Dick. When I look at the dark, coppery color of her skin, and think of you touching her—it seems to me that I can never look at a brown skin again without—"
"Stop it! You don't know what you're saying."
"Well, she is of a different color."
"Karen—that girl is your cousin."
A few seconds passed while she comprehended that; then she whirled sharply toward him. "You mean to tell me—"
"You wondered why Lilia has charge of the whole house on Alakoa? You wondered if there wasn't a special answer to that? Well, now you know the right answer. Lilia is Garrett Waterston's granddaughter—just the same as you."
He faced her squarely. Her whole body seemed to have gone tense, but for the moment she was unable to speak; and he never found out what she would have asked him first.
From within the ship issued a thin, small, and somehow distant sound—unrecognizable and inarticulate, but so thoroughly unaccountable in the ordinary world of reality that every figure upon the deck of the Holokai was instantly struck motionless. Even the perpetually trotting Inyashi stopped, and stood frozen on the swaying deck. They were waiting to hear if that sound should come again, once more cutting through the laboring of the little ship, and the great, persistent rush and wellop of the sea.
It did not come again; but after a moment Dick knew that what he had heard was a woman's terrified scream.
It was Dick himself who burst into action. He raced aft, sprang into the ladder well, and in a second more was in the main cabin, where he, and Karen, and Lilia had faced each other such a little while ago; and here he stood, for a moment balancing to the sea—
He didn't see her at first. That cabin, deep, but narrow as the little ship, seemed strangely empty; he had paced alone here a thousand times, without ever sensing the utter vacancy that was here now. The door of his little cabin, wedged into the stern, was flapping loosely against its latch—swinging half open, then banging shut again without catching, with the perversity of all doors. He sprang the length of the cabin with a furious activity; and booted that door into its wall-catch, once and for all; but there was no one in the cramped stall where he usually slept.
Then, turning, he saw her; and was instantly by her side. Lilia lay in a little crumpled heap at the end of the table, and half under it. He had seen death many times; but it seemed to him now that he had never seen anyone so utterly lifeless, so completely slumped into an unutterable oblivion, as Lilia's form seemed there, dropped like seaweed left on the beach.
He picked her up in his arms—gently as he could, but so hand-capped by the Holokai's roll that he cursed the helmsman for not holding the vessel steadier into the seas.
He got her down onto his own bunk at last. He kissed her mouth as he laid her down, then sought the source of the blood that was staining his shirt, and the bunk upon which he had placed her. There was a knife wound under Lilia's left breast—how deep he could not tell. He snatched cotton from an emergency cabinet nailed to the wall, and crammed it deep into the wound. She stiffened convulsively when he did that. It was his first intimation that she was alive.
He tucked a blanket over her lightly, so that she would not be stepped by the Holokai's pitch, and rolled by the door. The Chinese mess boy had appeared unceremoniously from the pantry; Dick seized him, and pulled him into the bunk room.

Tenor Offered a Chance To Reach the Top Note

It was after the opera. The expensively dressed woman approached the broad-shouldered and faultlessly attired man.
"If I am not mistaken," she gushed, "I have the honor of speaking to the renowned tenor, have I not?"
The celebrated singer felt flattered and beamed upon her, and with a nod of his head, he asked, "Is there something I can do for you, madam?"
"I can't find my car," she answered pleasantly. "Would you be so kind as to call out 'Charlie' at the top of your voice? I am sure he will hear you!"

IT'S fascinating to see this picture appear so quickly under your needle—all the stitches are easy, you know.

Household Hints

Winter is a good time for the home owner to build that rustic lawn furniture he has long dreamed of making.

Never throw away bones left from a roast or shoulder. Put them in cold water and if cooked several hours, a very good soup may be obtained with the addition of diced vegetables.

Choose towels of more than one color for your bathroom. They make a gay appearance blended side by side on the towel rack.

If the chicken is well-rubbed inside and out with a cut lemon before being cooked it will make the meat white, juicy and tender.

Buttonholes made with fine croch thread do not tear out so quickly as those made with ordinary sewing thread.

Pots and pans do not have to be scoured if the gas flame is kept on only high enough to maintain the boiling point. After liquid is brought to a boil it cooks no faster with high heat.

A between-seasons tip to remember when you put storm windows away next spring, or to try on your screens even now: Cover them with tight-woven cloth, or even with heavy paper. It may save cleaning and repainting when they are put in use again.

Beware Coughs That Hang On

Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

In the Defense Stamps Buying Contest the past week, Bill Karr heads the boys' list with $10.50, and Josie Ferguson heads the girls with $1.00.

Students from the east side
now ride to lunch in the bus, thereby avoiding the hazard of having to crawl under trains, which block the passage continuously. Sincere thanks to our business men and others who helped us secure this bus service.

Bill White of the faculty announced his father from Port-

FIRE AT Dr. BLANEY'S

During Dr. Blaney's absence from his office Monday during the lunch hour, a small blaze started in his office, but on the prompt arrival of the fire department, the chemical apparatus soon extinguished the flames.
The loss, according to Dr. Blaney, was not to exceed $100.00.

Delgado-Prudencio

Last Saturday morning at the
St. Rita Church, with Father
Salvatore performing the ceremony, Miss Margaret Delgado, charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pedro Delgado, became the bride of Salvador Prudencio, son of Mrs. Toribio Mirabal. Following ceremony, a wedding dinner was served for the bride and groom, their attendants and the members of both families. At night, the customary wedding dance was held at Community Hall, where a large crowd made merry until 12 o'clock and showered the newlyweds with good wishes. The best man was Mr.
Leandro Vega, the bridesmaid,
Mrs. Vega, the train-bearers, Socle and Robert Vega, the maids-of-honor, Misses Trina Farralita and Felice Garcia.
Both contracting parties have been employed at Prehm's Dept
Store for the past year.

How the Japs' two-man submarines got into Pearl Harbor, striking evidence that the deadly little killers were launched from a huge whaling factory ship, prepared long ago for their sinister work.
Also--Tax the fat? A noted
Chicago Scientist suggests a 30 penny tax for every excess pound and points out that in addition to fattening up the Treasury it would do the Nation's health a world of good. Read of his surprising proposal and his reasons for making it, in the American Weekly, magazine with next
