Business Men's Club

Wednesday night was "Ladies' Night" at the club and the total attendance consisting of the club members, their wives and the High School Seniors, who were guests of the High School Alumni, numbered 46. President A. L. Burke occupied the chair, with Tennis Smoot acting for the Alumni in the absence of Louis J. Adams. After the roll call and reading of minutes of the last meeting, Tennis Smoot was called on to announce the first number on the entertainment program, which was a vocal solo by Mrs. Gunther Kroggel, accompanied by Mrs. Ben Burns. Her selection was "I'll Still Love You When Silver Threads are Shining Among the Gold," which Mrs. Kroggel in a few well chosen words, dedicated the selection to Mr. and Mrs. Burke. Her next number was "Ave Maria" by Gounod, both of which were received with much applause.

The next number presented by the President was a duet by Mrs. Margaret English and Miss Ruth Petty, the title to which was "The Little Red Schoolhouse," accompanied by Mrs. Burns and following the encore, they sang "Anchors Aweigh."

In honor of the High School Alumni, in which society Mr. J. M. Carpenter cooperated with Messrs. Smoot, Louis Adams and others in its organization, Mr. Carpenter responded to a call from the chair and made a short but effective talk which met with much appreciation from the gathering. Wm. Gallacher, President of the School Board, being called on, made a short talk in which he praised the work of Mr. Carpenter and paid him a high compliment on his ability as an educator and gentleman. Attorney John E. Hall and G. T. McQuillen also made impressive talks in the interest of education.

The President then called for three cheers for the Senior Class of 1942, which was heartily given and the same being directed by Mrs. Kroggel. The "Star Spangled Banner" was sung by the gathering before adjournment.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Axis Threat to Western Hemisphere Forestalled by Move on Martinique; Nazis Begin Eastern Crimean Drive To Gain Needed Caucasian Oil Fields

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

PROTECTORATE: In Caribbean

Dealing directly with Adm. Georges Robert as the "ultimate governing authority" of the French possessions in the Caribbean and French Guiana, the United States moved to forestall the Axis powers from gaining any foothold in the Western hemisphere.

Upon orders from President Roosevelt, American representatives arrived at Martinique and informed Admiral Robert that the United States desired to place troops in the French possession to guard against any Axis threat. The state department ignored Pierre Laval, chief of the Vichy government, to deal directly with Robert.

Adm. John H. Hoover, representing the United States, made it definite that this country would desire to garrison the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, off Newfoundland, in addition to Martinique and Guadeloupe in the Caribbean sea.

The state department emphasized that no ultimatum was being served on the French admiral. Robert had been friendly with the two previous American missions since the fall of France in 1940.

PRIME MINISTER: A Report

As he reviewed the war on the second anniversary of his rise to the premiership, Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain indicated that he believed the tide of battle had turned in the favor of the United Nations.

While he foresaw suffering ahead he told his people that deserved to hear the encouraging news that Britain's great air force had been constantly bombing a number of Nazi industrial cities and "would continue to bomb them."

Churchill warned the Nazis that if they used poison gas against Russia, that this same RAF would be used to carry gas warfare in the "largest possible scale against military objectives in Germany." This remark received special attention as less than 24 hours before he spoke, Russia had reported that the Nazis were using gas mines in the battle of the Crimea.

War shipments through the Arctic supply route are definitely getting through to Russia, said the prime minister, although there have been losses to the United Nations in these convoys. He also thinks Russia's army is growing stronger.

COAL: Reserve Supplies

Repeated warnings issued by the nation's coal dealers were strengthened when Donald M. Nelson, war production chief, declared that emergency rationing of coal is probable unless consumers build up their reserve supplies immediately to the limit of storage.

Nelson pointed out that the fuel oil situation on the East coast and winter transportation problems make stockpiling operations now of utmost importance to all consumers who are dependent on coal for heating their homes or running their factories.

Joseph B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, stated that "there is no shortage of coal, nor will there be. But if consumers wait until the fall and winter months to fill their requirements, a serious transportation shortage will possibly result. This we must avoid."

GERMAN DRIVE: In Eastern Crimea

The long-heralded Nazi spring drive finally began with a thrust toward Kerch in the eastern Crimea. Kerch is a key peninsular point along the shortest route to the Caucasian oil fields.

The Nazis' main effort was directed, as many observers thought it would be, at driving across the Kerch peninsula to win the rich fuel deposits. Too, they would be in a position to threaten the Allied eastern flank in Iran, another oil kingdom. Comparative quiet had prevailed in the Kerch peninsula since last December when the Russians hurled the Germans back from the town of Kerch.

Neutral observers stated that approximately 2,000,000 men were in action on the Donetz front. Early reports indicated vast Nazi strength on the 250-mile front between Dnepropetrovsk and the peninsula.

MALTA: More Bombs

In a ceremony punctuated by falling Nazi bombs, Great Britain's Lord Gort was sworn in as the new governor and commander-in-chief of Malta, the "most bombed spot on earth."

Lord Gort took his oath of office amid the ruins of a building smashed in a previous attack. Bombs were falling throughout the proceedings and the chief justice administering the oath had his hand cut and bleeding from a wound sustained during the raid.

More than 10,000 high explosive, armor piercing bombs have been dropped on Malta this year, according to an Alexandria, Egypt, source. The island, lying off the coast of Italy in the Mediterranean, has been under constant attack by the Nazi bombing forces because it guards the vital Axis supply routes to Africa and the Middle East.

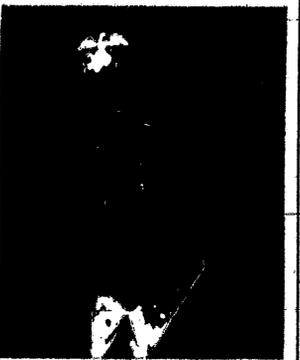

As a result of these continuing raids an official British check-up shows that Malta's property losses include 15,500 homes, 70 churches, 18 convents, 22 schools and eight hospitals. Seventy-five per cent of the property in Valetta, the principal city, has been made uninhabitable by the attacks.

CORAL SEA: Heavy Toll

Exacting a toll of at least 21 Japanese warships in the Battle of the Coral Sea, American sea and air forces combined to slip back a Jap fleet in its first major attempt to smash through the outer defenses of Australia.

Advanced Allied planes reported that at least 500 planes took part in the five-day battle which was fought 450 miles off the northeast coast of Australia.

Battered remnants of the attacking Jap forces were reported to have limped northward to their bases in New Britain and the Solomon Islands following the rout.

Commander of U. S. naval forces in the great battle of the Coral sea was Vice Admiral Herbert Fairfax Leary of Washington, D. C. Admiral Leary is a gunnery expert and won the Navy Cross in World War I.

Sweeping claims by the Japs as to their success in the battle were discounted by both General MacArthur in Australia and by the navy department in Washington. MacArthur's headquarters described Jap reports of Allied losses as "entirely fictional" and the navy department stated that while reports of the damage to U. S. forces was still incomplete, neither a U. S. aircraft carrier nor a battleship had been lost.

Madagascar Guards Vital Supply Routes

The above map depicts the size of the French island of Madagascar by comparing it with the area of New York state. Madagascar's importance to the United Nations lies in the fact that bases on the island control the supply lines to India and the Middle East. British occupation forestalled a possible Axis move in that direction.

TRAP SPRUNG: On Jap Invaders

A stirring story of how Japanese invading forces on the Burma road were sent reeling back by a surprise blow from a "trapped" Chinese army was told by dispatches from Chungking.

The Chinese on the Burma road followed their prearranged plan. They allowed the Japs to sweep into Yunnan province and lengthen their communication lines. The Japs advanced triumphantly.

A strong Chinese army, which the Japs had bypassed in central Burma, struck hard into the exposed rear lines of the invaders. The maneuver cut off the main communication route and line of retreat of the Japanese units, which had split into two columns to try to outflank the Chinese. One of these columns was wiped out in the first 24 hours of fighting. The other forces were expected to be "liquidated within a few days," said a Chinese communiqué.

GAS RATIONED: On Eastern Seaboard

Approximately one-third of all automobile owners in the eastern seaboard states have been limited to three gallons of gasoline a week by an order from the Office of Price Administration.

The one-third, whose use of automobiles is classed as non-essential, will be entitled to purchase a total of 27 gallons of gasoline from May 15 to July 1, when a permanent rationing plan goes into effect.

Motorists have been classified in five categories for rationing purposes. Holders of "A" cards are nonessential. "B-1," "B-2" and "B-3" cards have been issued to motorists, including workers in arms industries, whose cars are necessary in pursuit of their employment. The amount of gasoline they receive depends upon the amount of daily mileage they declared at registration time. It ranges from 4 5/7 to 8 1/7 gallons a week.

The "X" cards were issued to unrestricted users, including buses, taxicabs, physicians, nurses, ambulances, hearses, ministers, highway maintenance crews and government of municipally operated cars.

TRADE BARRIERS: Impose 'Heavy Toll'

In an action-producing message to the Federal-State Conference on War Restrictions, President Roosevelt declared that legal obstacles to commerce, arising from a desire for regional and local advantage, have imposed a heavy toll on the national war effort.

Rep. Emanuel Celler of New York, in a radio broadcast, pointed out a vivid illustration of existing trade barriers:

"Rhode Island requires that all milk brought in from neighboring states must be colored 'pink.' Imagine drinking pink milk. The obvious purpose is to keep out 'foreign' milk and make all drink Rhode Island milk."

However, trucking restrictions were responsible for most of the wrath.

Public Roads Commissioner MacDonald said the following regulations would remove the most serious stoppages of interstate truck traffic: Maximum width for trucks, 96 inches; height, 12 feet 6 inches; length, 35 feet for single vehicles and 45 feet for combinations; load for a single axle, 18,000 pounds; gross weight, 30,000 pounds for vehicles having two axles and 40,000 pounds for vehicles with three or more.

TOKYO ATTACK: Now It's 'Official'

Three weeks after American bombing planes rained bombs on Tokyo and other Japanese cities, the raid has been confirmed by an official U. S. war department communiqué. The bombing flight was made in mid-day, and the "selected targets were unmistakable and were accurately attacked." Further, the communiqué stated that "Military, naval and industrial plants were the objectives." Some of the large fires burned at least two days.

Speaking Sports by Bob McHane

THE most colorful show in golf is scheduled for mid-June when America's greatest club swingers will gather in Chicago for the Hale America war tournament.

The best of the pack will be seeking the title—Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson, Craig Wood, Sam Snead, Gene Sarazen, Jimmy Demaret, Ralph Guldahl, Bobby Jones, Water-Hagen and many others. The Hale America tournament, which will provide financial assistance to the Navy Relief society and the United Service organizations, won't carry a National Open championship title, but it deserves just as high ranking as any scramble in the history of golf. It will be as classy a field as ever entered the National Open.

The presence of Hogan, Nelson and Snead is ample assurance that the tournament will have class. The winner will have earned a title against the toughest competition the country can produce. Every player is more anxious to win the Hale America title than any other championship extant.

Eternal Search.

Hogan, although he has kept the fairways on fire for the past two years, has yet to win a major title. The National Open and the PGA crowns have eluded him.

Snead, like Hogan, has managed to miss his chances for a major championship. Never to be forgotten are his two eights on final holes at Philadelphia and Los Angeles. But, again like Hogan, he is one of the most dangerous competitors in golf. His lapses in concentration have proved excessively costly, but his enthusiastic followers continue to have faith in his effortless swing and the strength of his drives.

Nelson has a long list of successes to his credit, including the USGA Open, the PGA title and the Masters. He also is a member of the Ryder Cup team. Many golf experts rate him the best player in the world today.

The Hale America will bring Bobby Jones back to Chicago as a competitor for the first time since 1929, the year he tied Johnny Farrell for the National Open title at Olympia Fields and then lost the playoff by one shot. The Emperor Jones finished his competitive career two years later. His appearance in the field—12 years after his famed grand slam—will add a tremendous gallery appeal.

Always a Threat Bobby hasn't been a great threat in his annual starts in the Masters at Augusta, but he still can post excellent scores. And he might be a Hale America surprise.

Of the Hagen-Jones-Sarazen trio, Hagen was the first to get under way. He was a strong competitor in the National Open of 1913 at Brookline. Francis Ouimet won that tournament from Harry Vardon and Ed Ray. A year later, he did win that particular title, with Chick Evans and Walter Hagen close on his heels.

Sarazen, the ex-caddy, started carving his place in the golfing sun back in 1929, when he was 18 years old. Two years later he won the National Open in Chicago with a final round of 68. Jones and Hagen threatened, but couldn't quite make it. Since that victory—when he was only 26—Gene has won the U. S. Open, the British Open and several PGA crowns.

The amazing angle of the Hale America tournament is that the champs of 10, 20 and almost 30 years ago are competing with today's topnotchers—and with no quarter asked. In that respect, golf is unlike any other sport. It treats its champions gently.

SPORT SHORTS

George ("Potsy") Clark, old time University of Illinois football player; is a lieutenant commander in the navy physical education program.

The strikeout record for a single season was set by Rube Waddell in 1904 with 343.

A recent survey of Notre Dame student athletic managers shows that nine of their ranks already have joined the armed services.

Bowling holds a strong lead as the favorite sport of soldiers at Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill.

In 40 years the Detroit Tigers have won six pennants. The championship years were 1907, '08, '09, '24, '35 and '40.

Maj. Bernie Bierman, former director of Minnesota's football forces at present is director of the physical training program at the new naval aviation pre-flight school at Iowa City.

ALVA BRADLEY was practically the only man in the recent Derby day crowd at Churchill Downs who wasn't talking or thinking about the Derby winner. Mr. Bradley was thinking and talking only about the Cleveland Indians.

You can't blame him for that. Mr. Bradley is president of that astonishing ball club.

It may be remembered in the past that the same Alva Bradley has had more than his share of baseball sorrow. The Oscar Vilt episode was the starter. That was the year Cleveland blew a pennant it should have won by a dozen games. Then Bob Feller's departure into the service was no great help, and the boss had to gamble on a 24-year-old manager, who had no Feller around.

Naturally Mr. Bradley was not looking on the 1942 campaign through any rose-tinted glasses. He was all prepared for the worst. For him there were no "bluebirds over the white cliffs of Dover," or Cleveland. Then the incredible suddenly happened as the Indians took to the warpath.

About Boudreau

"We had full faith in Lou Boudreau from the start," Mr. Bradley said. "I'll admit none of us looked for any such early surge. But Lou worked like six horses this spring and his men worked with him. He had not only their respect but also their friendship.

Boudreau hasn't been out of college long and he brought the old college spirit back to our club. He refused to let Bob Feller's loss get him down in any way. The other pitchers knew they had to take up the slack.

"At this point I'd like to say that none of us are claiming any pennant. The main idea is to hustle all the way and win all the games we can. They say we are playing far beyond our real strength. That's something for time to tell."

The Big Change

It was easy enough to see in the Indians' training camp at Clearwater, Fla., that Boudreau had done a high-class job in the way of switching Cleveland's mental attitude. There were no longer any trouble-makers around. There were no sore-heads.

Boudreau set up an informal club-room where the bunch could get together to read, loaf or play cards. Out on the field they were all hustling, none harder than the young manager whose attractive personality was no small help.

Even that far back Boudreau said, "I don't know where we'll finish, but I can promise you we'll have a team trying hard every second of every game."

No one could argue then, with Feller absent, that the ex-Illini star was to get the pitching job. He has gotten in the first starting weeks. Not quite the heavy hitting. But Boudreau and his team have at least shown what a new spirit can do to a squad.

Looking Ahead

It will take another month to get the truer picture of the two pennant races. Despite the present club standings, the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Yankees are still the two teams to beat. Late in May last spring the Yankees were seven games out. They picked up 26 games on the Indians from that point on.

Before the season Lee Durocher figured that Dodger power would be more than Cardinal pitching could meet. Lee had no great respect for the St. Louis attack, which so far hasn't been on the devastating side. But the Cards are still a better hitting team than their present markings indicate. And they still have all the pitching any team needs.

The Cincinnati Reds got away slowly this spring and they haven't been flaring balls of fire so far. But they also have better pitching than they have shown—and a better ball club, once it moves into its normal stride.

If any outside team is to crowd out one of the top three, rated by form, it should be Frank Frisch and his Pirates. They can hit their share, and if the pitching holds up they will be a threatening factor. The main test doesn't come until the athlete has been baked out in five or six weeks of summer sun.

PREPAREDNESS AMERICAN RED CROSS

Volunteer for Victory—offer your services to your Red Cross. "WHAT can I do?" Now that we are at war, that is the question that every woman is asking herself. For those women who want to do a real job where they are urgently needed, there is the Volunteer Nurse's Aide Corps of the American Red Cross. One hundred thousand Nurse's Aides will help relieve the acute nursing shortage at home, according to Mrs. Walter Lippmann, who is the volunteer director of this Red Cross service. Trained nurses are daily being called for service with our armed forces. Local hospitals and health agencies are understaffed and overworked. Women who volunteer as Nurse's Aides will help safeguard the health of their communities.

A Volunteer Nurse's Aide performs many routine hospital duties and relieves the trained nurse for more technical work. She bathes and feeds patients, makes beds, takes temperature and pulses, assists in keeping records, does unsterile bandaging and attends to many details essential to a patient's comfort. She always works under the supervision of a graduate nurse.

Eligible for enrollment are American citizens or friendly aliens, between 18 and 50 years of age, with the equivalent of a high school education and in good health. A Nurse's Aide must complete an 80-hour intensive training course; 35 hours of class room instruction and 45 hours of supervised practice on hospital wards, prenatal, industrial or other clinics and public health agencies. HIGHLIGHTS in the week's news

Italy: Premier Mussolini and the king of Italy watched a parade of marching men and lines of war machines wind through the streets of Rome as part of Italy's observance of "Empire day." Actually it was the sixth anniversary of Mussolini's formal proclamation of a new Roman empire based on the conquest of Ethiopia, which has since fallen to the British.

Women: War Manpower Chairman McNutt indicated that the U. S. has an adequate supply of woman power to train and employ in war and essential civilian industries at an increasing rate during the next two years. Next year, he predicted there will be 4,000,000 in war jobs out of an expected 20,000,000 war workers.

SHE LOVED A SPY

by SYLVIA TAYLOR

THE STORY SO FAR: Joan Leland, secretary to Arthur Miller, San Francisco Inspector, is amazed and angry when he discharges her without notice or explanation. Her sister Sybil, with whom she shares an apartment, loses her position also and Joan accepts a secretarial position with handsome Karl Miller, night club proprietor. He pursues her well because of the unusual hours. She is fascinated and accepts his overtures. Later she meets his manager, Paul Sherman and his partner, Eric Strom, who both express admiration for her. Paul warns her against Karl but refuses to give his reasons. Returning to the office unexpectedly, Joan overhears Karl and Eric in a mysterious conversation. Paul drives her home and they quarrel over Joan working for Karl. Later Karl invites her to inspect a freighter, whose captain he knows. Both Paul and Joan's sister, Sybil, warn her against Karl. Paul is found following her.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER VI

Sybil shrugged. "There are a lot of people I don't trust. For instance, why is Paul Sherman following you?"

"I intend to find out tonight. He has an appointment at the club at ten-thirty. I'll try to see him alone for a few minutes. I'm going to ask him to explain."

"Karl probably knows about it already. It may be his orders."

"That's ridiculous!" Joan flared. "How can you dislike Karl so much? After he got you your job and has been so kind to you?"

"You're just tired, honey!" Sybil said as she put comforting arms about Joan. "You don't get enough sleep. You need more sun and fresh air. Working in that shut-in office with no outside windows is enough to make anyone ill."

"Let me alone!" her sister wept. "You don't understand. No one understands how I feel."

Sybil sighed as she went back to the kitchen.

But before Joan left for the office she had kissed Sybil affectionately, saying, "I'm sorry, Sybil I guess I am tired. One of the things that's making me nervous is having Paul follow me all the time. I can't stand it any longer, and I'm going to settle it tonight."

Later when Joan hurried from the apartment and walked to the trolley line through the dark night, she felt strangely exhilarated. It was a thrill even to go to work when her boss was Karl Miller.

"The whole world is different when you're in love," Joan thought, and she pitied the girls who were neglected by this great emotion.

At the Club Joan paused to look at the crowd. The low ceiling was flooded with a soft indirect lighting. It was a pleasant intimate room. The dance floor was small but adequate. It formed a circle in front of the band which, according to Karl, was "going over big." The Club Elite was definitely a success.

The bar at one side of the room was crowded. Joan, glancing casually at the well-dressed men and women, saw Paul Sherman. She glanced at her watch. It was a quarter of eight. She had fifteen minutes before she was due in Karl's office. Now was her chance.

"Hello," Paul said. "Is it possible that you want to see me?"

Joan sat down beside him. "I have been seeing you almost constantly for three weeks," she said significantly.

"That's a tricky hat," Paul said admiringly.

"Be serious, Paul. You know what I mean. Why have you been following me?"

"Must have been two other people. Want a drink?"

"No, thank you!" Joan exploded. "There's no use trying to evade the issue. I saw you down at the boat that night."

"His brown eyes were serious. 'You didn't tell Karl?'"

"No! I didn't."

"Why not?"

"I didn't want you to lose your job," she confessed. "I couldn't believe that you meant any harm."

"That's very sweet of you, Joan! I appreciate your confidence."

"Well? Aren't you going to explain? If you don't, I'm going to tell him."

Paul looked at his watch. "We haven't time to talk now. You have to be in the office by eight, don't you? I'll come in later and we'll talk then. Meanwhile, please don't say anything to Karl. Promise me, Joan!"

"I won't if you'll explain."

"You have all the instincts of a detective," Paul laughed.

"That's what Karl told me once," Joan informed him. "I'll see you later!"

Karl Miller was in his office. The moment Joan entered, he drew her into his arms. "That's an adorable hat," he said, kissing her.

"I knew you'd like it!" She pressed her cheek against his. Impossible to be bothered by Paul Sherman, impossible to worry, or even care what happened in the rest of the world when she was in his arms.

"Ah! Miss Leland! You are alone, I see. And looking very beautiful as always—" had lived. He was not an inexperienced boy in his twenties. Paul must be twenty-six or seven but he seemed a boy compared to Karl, Karl who was so sophisticated—so completely sure of himself.

"Stop thinking about him!" Joan scolded herself and, fitting a sheet of paper into her typewriter, she began to work.

It was almost ten when the door opened without warning. Joan thought it was Paul but it was Eric Strom, Karl's partner, who stepped inside. Joan had not seen him since the night he dined with Karl and her.

"Ah! Miss Leland! You are alone, I see. And looking very beautiful as always," Eric's voice was soft but his eyes regarded her insolently. "Karl will be back any minute," Joan said quickly.

"I don't think so. I left him only a few minutes ago, quite absorbed in a business matter. Mind if I have a drink?"

"You're Karl's partner. It's your office, too." She was trying to control her dislike of him.

"You are very generous," Eric Strom said, but he did not open the bar concealed in the wall. Instead he approached her desk.

"You'll have to excuse me," Joan said, suddenly afraid. "I'm very busy."

But with a quick step, Eric was beside her. Drawing her to her feet, he attempted to kiss her. "You beautiful little devil!" he murmured.

Joan was terror-stricken. She tried to scream but no sound would come. She pulled away with all her strength but Eric Strom only laughed.

"Let me alone!" Joan cried as she felt Eric's arms about her.

She was not aware that the office door had opened until a hand seized Eric and whirled him around.

"Paul!"

Paul's face was grim. "You dirty rat!" He smashed his fist full in Eric's face with a blow that sent him spinning across the room.

Eric staggered to his feet but there was a smile on his evil face.

"You'll pay for this, Sherman! You seem to forget I have something to say about this business."

Joan leaned weakly against the desk, sobbing.

"Shut up and get out!" Paul ordered, advancing toward Eric again.

And at that moment Karl Miller appeared in the doorway. His voice cut like a whip through the tense atmosphere. "What's going on here?" he demanded.

No one seemed inclined to answer him but he read the story in their faces. "I want to talk to Joan—alone!" She had never heard him use this tone before. His voice was edged with steel. His eyes were hard. He seemed another Karl, a man she had never known.

As Paul turned to go, Joan ran to him. "Thanks, Paul!" she said, her voice trembling.

But Paul did not look at her. His voice was strained. "Don't mention it!"

When they were alone, Karl said, "It won't happen again, Joan. I'll see that Eric doesn't annoy you."

Desperately she tried to regain control of her shattered nerves but sobs shook her. Karl put his arms about her and his touch was magic.

"Don't cry, Liebchen! There's nothing to be afraid of now."

She clung to him, feeling strength in his assurance. "Oh, Karl, I love you!" The words tripped over each other in stammering sincerity.

Karl Miller, pressing his lips against her white forehead, smiled.

The days of November marched by with astonishing rapidity. Joan was not bothered by Eric Strom again and her fears vanished. Karl was more attentive than ever, and Joan, with the radiant assurance of a woman loved, checked off each day as more perfect than the last.

Sometimes she doubted her efficiency as Karl's secretary. She typed letters scarcely knowing what she was writing. But if she was inefficient Karl did not seem to notice it.

prophesied gloomily. "I still don't like Karl. The more I see of him the less I trust him. And another one I don't care for is that Mrs. Murdock who runs the beauty shop."

"Is that Karl's fault? He got you the job. That's enough, isn't it?"

Joan had come home for dinner and Karl had told her she need not be back at work until nine, an hour later than usual.

"I never heard of such crazy hours," Sybil objected. "Karl certainly isn't very businesslike about the club. I don't see how he makes anything."

Joan walked restlessly up and down the living room. "Karl makes plenty of money. He's a very clever man." She glanced at the clock. "I think I'll go back early. Karl might need me." Shortly before eight she left.

Happily she opened the door of Karl Miller's office but the smile on her face faded when she saw that Karl was not alone. Eric Strom was with him.

"I'm just leaving," Eric said, and without a word to Joan he walked past her and down the corridor.

Karl did not seem surprised that she had arrived early. He made no comment upon her appearance. He read her thoughts, when he said, "I didn't think you'd want to see Eric, so I told you to come later."

Instantly she was reassured. It was kind of him to spare her a meeting with Eric Strom.

"Joan," Karl continued, with his quick smile, "I hate to ask you to do this on such a bad night but I can't leave the office and I want this package delivered." He held out a small leather portfolio.

"I don't mind, Karl! Where does it go?"

"Do you remember the night I took you aboard the freighter?"

She nodded and he went on, "I want it delivered there. Take a taxi and go immediately."

Joan fastened her coat and slipped on her gloves. "To whom shall I give it?"

"They're expecting you. Someone will meet you. Give him the package and come right back. You'll find a taxi outside." He kissed her briefly.

When she arrived at the pier Joan asked the driver to wait, and clutching the portfolio tightly, ran into the warehouse. She walked rapidly through the darkness, through the opening which led to the ship. There was no one in sight as she ascended the slippery gangplank.

She stood uncertainly for a moment peering through the misty darkness before she heard a voice. "Wer da?" She drew back involuntarily. The guttural voice frightened her.

Instantly a man appeared out of the night and the muscles of his scarred face relaxed when he saw who it was. "Miss Leland?"

"Yes," Joan faltered. "Here is a package from Mr. Miller."

"Danke schoen!" He saluted her and disappeared into the shadows.

Joan returned through the warehouse to the street. She shivered as the wind swept the rain in great gusts. Thank goodness, her taxi was still there.

Quickly Joan ran to it, opened the door and climbed in.

"Good evening," Paul Sherman said.

He was sitting in the corner composedly smoking a cigarette. "I thought you might need me."

"So you're following me again!" She felt his arm nudge hers in warning as he glanced towards the taxi driver. "Don't talk now!" he said under his breath.

"Take me back to the club," Joan ordered.

But Paul said, "Drive straight ahead till I give you further directions. And step on it!"

Joan sat in furious silence as the driver obeyed Paul's orders. They climbed the slope of Nob Hill. Not until they stopped at a hotel and were settled at a small table in the grill did she turn angrily to Paul.

"Would you mind telling me what is the idea of this? I happen to be working for Karl, and he's expecting me back at the office."

The room was warm and gay and there was a hum of voices.

COSMETICS AND WAR

Now we know the government is over extending itself. It is trying to make women give up powder, rouge, perfume and other cosmetics for the duration. It has the notion that a woman will abandon her makeup, war or no war.

Alcohol and other products needed to win the war are being used in toilet preparations and the WPB announces that the girls must choose between their complexions and the all out war effort. Only a federal bureau could doubt the answer to that.

Milady will cut down on sugar, take out a ration card for soups, give up pastries and even, if necessary, patch her girdle, but give up her facial cream and rouge . . . never!

She will put the car in storage, shop by bicycle, carry home her bundles, cut out meat and take orders on skirt lengths, but toss away that skin lotion . . . don't be a goon!

She will forget luxuries, economize on her groceries, give up the country house, go barelegged and even scrap the electric refrigerator, but leave her cheeks as nature made 'em . . . awahhhhh!

Not even for national unity will she go around with a shiny nose and not all the coordinators in the world can make her forsake her beauty creams.

"If this be treason, make the most of it," she says as she applies her cleansing cream, follows it up with a powder base and adds a final coat of calomine.

Uncle Sam may apply priorities to steel, rubber, coal, oil and what have you; he can tell the country how far it can go with ships, shoes and sealing wax, but he is shouting up a drainpipe when it starts bearing down on mascara.

Our Inquiring Reporter questioned a number of ladies on the matter. Of Miss Phoebe Goober, stenographer, he asked: "Have you read the WPB orders on cosmetics?"

"No, and don't tell me about 'em," she replied. "I want to ignore 'em with a clear conscience."

Mrs. Chester Zink, a modiste, was asked: "Are you aware that every time you rouge your cheeks you are cramping the war effort?"

"Mister, the government is going to have some awful cramps in this war then," she declared.

"Do you think your face is more important than a bomber?" the reporter asked a woman who did not give her name.

"No," she replied candidly, "but if I ever came out without any makeup on you couldn't tell me from a bomber."

WAR

Jack Huff could wear no cuff, His wife could wear no frills; And so between them both, you see, They saved on clothing bills.

Metal swivel chairs, waste baskets and ash trays are on the list of things banned by the WPB and possibly this is the first move to eliminate arm chair generals and bureaucrats in general.

OUTLINE FOR LIVING

Elmer Twitchell says he is driving so town in the car he hasn't got, on the tires he can't obtain to shop for the things he can't get. If he gets time he is going to see his architect about the alterations that can't be made on the house the WPB won't let him build.

"The Goldrush" was a silent film. For the revival Charlie has put in a little talk. Not much, but enough for most any movie. It's a delight to watch this film, with just a little talk where talk is helpful. It convinces us that if 70 per cent of the talk in the modern talkies could be cut out, the improvement would be terrific. And the writers, actors and directors would be forced to provide action.

New Pictures of India's National Leaders

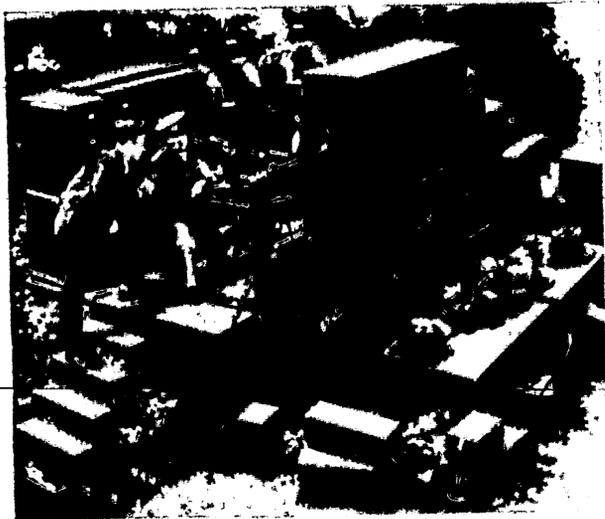

As the clouds of war gather ever more densely over vast India, greater attention is focused on its leaders. At the right is Mahatma Gandhi, spiritual head of the Indian national congress party, who was instrumental in thwarting Sir Stafford Cripps' efforts at war unity. ### Mayas Warned Of 'Great War'

Writings on Sheets of Gold In 'Lost City' Described To Explorers.

SANTA ANA, CALIF.—This is a tale about some little men and little women who haven't heard about the war. They have never heard of Hitler, or Hirohito, of Germany or Japan or even the United States.

For hundreds of years they have lived in the jungles of the "forbidden land" of virtually unexplored Chiapas, Mexico.

There, where it rains every day and the great trees drip water continuously, live the last of the Mayas who fled before the conquest of Cortez.

That was the last war of which they knew. But carefully guarded in their "lost city" is the golden library which told them of a great war to come.

When, last fall, the Mayas had their first visitors in a long, long time, the callers, Dana and Ginger Lamb, of Santa Ana, explorers of 15 years' jungle experience, found evidence of a previous "expedition that did not return."

The Lambs were looking for a pass in the high mountains. Then they saw "Kentin."

Use Bow and Arrow. The long-haired little figure was perched in a tree hunting monkeys with bow and arrow.

After climbing monkey-like down the tree, he greeted them, laughing and jabbering. Then he placed the knuckles of his left hand against their hearts.

This gesture of friendship was followed by signs to indicate he wanted them to return next day at the same time—noon.

Next noon Kentin brought with him "the fiercest-visaged savage" the Lambs had ever seen.

He was Chan-Kin, chief of the tribe. His hair was longer than Kentin's. He had a narrow, firm mouth, sharp nose and quick eyes. He wore a feather in his nose.

The Lambs set off after the Mayas to visit their village. But it was not the lost city they were permitted to see. Instead, before them was a village scattered over several miles. Each family lived about a mile away from its nearest neighbor.

Wrote Dana: "The country well deserves the sinister name of the 'forbidden land' . . . Everything is wet and mouldy. There are bugs by the millions. Mud, bugs and rain."

Bit by bit the Lambs learned snatches of Maya legendry:

There was indeed a lost city. On certain days of the year the Mayas went there to worship.

Akin to Christianity.

They learned that the Maya religion was remarkably like Christianity, encompassing teachings of "the great flood and the Son of God."

But the time came when the Lambs had to leave.

The little people did not want them to go, and insisted on accompanying them part way. Then they grew frightened of approaching any nearer to the "land of the bad people (civilization)."

When the Lambs reached "the bad country" they learned the United States was at war.

Then Dana recalled the words of the chieftain who had never heard of Hitler, about the golden library.

The writings had said that the people in civilization were very bad and would destroy themselves, that water would come and wash clean the land, that people would die because they chose the wrong chiefs, that men's hearts were so full of bad there was no room for good.

But, added Chan-Kin, the writings told that after great suffering people would become humble and the great true writings would be shown to the world.

Profane Taxpayer Fined Under 1745 British Law

LONDON.—Fred Walker, a war reserve constable, was fined 2s at Alford in Lincolnshire for tossing money at a tax collector with a profane comment. The act under which the sentence was passed became a law in 1745.

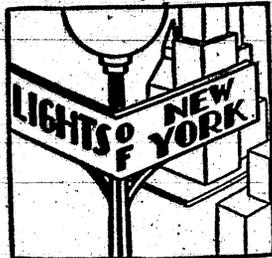

It seems that even two centuries ago people resented being called upon to pay taxes. The act provides for a fine of 1s for a day laborer, 2s for any person under the degree of gentleman and 3s to 5s for a gentleman.

On evidence of Walker's profanity he was adjudged guilty and fined accordingly. The defending solicitor argued that "he called the official something we all feel inclined to do when we get rate commands."

Tin-Saving Invention Of Housewife Hailed

BROOKLINE, MASS.—With a hairpin and a piece of colled paper Mrs. Martha Peabody Keith, a housewife, has invented a bottle cap that is expected to save 100,000,000 pounds of tin annually.

The new cap, which screws to the glass by means of a threaded hairpin or small iron wire, gives the same airtight protection that metal caps provided, according to experimenters.

By L. L. STEVENSON

Now comes the announcement that the Fifth Avenue Coach company will discontinue the operation of many of its double-decker busses. Thus the ending of another link with the past and a blow at romance. Many a visitor got his first comprehensive view of the fashionable section of the city from a bus top. Many a New York flat dweller rode on top of a bus so that he might pass "Millionaires' Row," as the many mansions from Fifty-ninth street on up, were called, and perhaps envy those who dwell within limestone and marble walls. And young lovers! With no shady lanes or romantic nooks, they occupied rear seats on the tops of busses, held hands and whispered to each other under the moon and the stars since the first double-deckers did not have covered and lighted tops. As a matter of fact, even today there are some busses with open tops.

Bus top devotees will have nothing to worry about until fall. Then, unless there is a change of plan, double-deckers will be removed from the routes which show an operating deficit. In their place will come single-deck busses which can be operated by one man. The company is also preparing to operate double-deck busses with only a driver. That of course means the disappearance of the conductors, many of whom reverently tip their hats when their lumbering vehicles pass St. Patrick's cathedral. The fare, however, will still remain a dime, the bus company pointing out that it affords special service because it won't take on a passenger unless there is a seat.

While a link with the past is scheduled to disappear, another is returning—the bicycle. In fact, bicycle riders are so increasing in numbers that already the Cafe Pierre provides parking space for those who pedal to its doors. Bikes are checked as are hats and coats, and guarded by a custodian. And I wouldn't be surprised if other places followed such example with the result that bicycle-checking concessions will have a high cash value just as coat-room concessions do today. If so, there would be bicycle grabbers in addition to the present hat grabbers.

Pioneer Mother Honored
MOTHER'S day this year had a special significance for the "Middle Border"...

DAKOTAS WOMAN (Harvey Dunn, artist.)

which now hangs in the Dakota Galleries in Mitchell—a perpetual reminder of one of the most heroic types of motherhood the world has ever known.

Perhaps, as visitors gaze upon Dunn's painting, they will recall this tribute paid to just such a woman as is depicted there:

THE PRAIRIE MOTHER

She came to rock the cradle of a new empire. Adventure calls to men, but duty summons women...

Only God and she knows the fullness of her giving to the young Northwest. She lived in sod homes and hay-riddled huts...

She had no deceptions. She did not even know the luxury of floor or fireplace. Her meal was ground in a hand mill...

Her "beauty sleep" began at ten and ended at four. Year in and year out she never had an orange, a box of sweets or a gift of remembrance.

She fought drouth and death and savages and savage loneliness. Her "Sunday best" were calico and lilac woolsey.

She gave America the sweet North-west, and was too proud to quibble at the cost of the stalwart sons to whom she willed it.

Her mothered MENT—(Herrn) Kaufman in the Minneapolis (Minn.) Tribune. Or they may recall this poetic tribute:

A WOMAN HOMESTEADER
I walked with quick steps up the coulee trail; I had to hurry lest the creeping dark would catch me...

In a small wilderness of quaking asp; Here I "homesteaded." No one thought I could...

Two years ago, but now I calmly pass A bristling porcupine, a rattlesnake. The watching eyes of some wild, hidden thing...

A coyote sneaking near the dried-up lake. A row of stunted pines where fleeces sing. The mule-eared deer that often come to sup...

And nuzzle one another at my spring (Which, after cleaning, is but just a cup). And yet I thought, how glad I was to bring...

My hands in contact with the wire light That held my gate. I thought, "Real homesteading!"

I hate the dark; I only love the light! Quickly I shut the door and slid the draw Across the iron latch, and dropped the slamp...

THURSDAY: THE LAST DAY WITH THE DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22:14-30. GOLDEN TEXT—This do in remembrance of me.—Luke 22:19.

The last day! How quickly it comes, and how fleeting yet meaningful its moments.

We do not know what our Lord did on Wednesday of Passion Week. In all probability He remained in Bethany to rest in fellowship with His friends.

Late on Thursday He and His disciples came to the upper room where Peter and John had already made preparation for the observance of the Passover (Luke 22:8).

This feast had (since that great and awful night of Israel's redemption out of Egypt's bondage) pointed forward to the Christ and to His cross as the fulfillment of the type of redemption by the shedding of blood.

But now the hour had come for Him to give Himself in that death, and so He set aside the Passover (because it has been fulfilled) to establish the great Christian feast of remembrance—the Lord's table, which now shows forth His death till He come.

I. The Final Passover (vv. 14-18)

Our Lord looked forward with intense desire to the Passover which He now observed with His disciples, for it was the last celebration of that feast recognized by God.

All that it had foreshadowed of deliverance and hope was fulfilled in Him who now sat at the table. He had moved forward with resolute purpose to this day when His mission on earth was to be accomplished.

The fact that He had looked forward to it with desire does not minimize the deep darkness of either Gethsemane or Calvary. Remember that, when in the garden He faced that hour and thought of the possibility of the cup being taken from Him, He said to the Father, "Not what I will, but what thou wilt."

Praying concerning the same matter (in John 12:27), He said, "Now is my soul troubled; and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour; but for this cause came I unto this hour."

II. The First Communion (vv. 19, 20)

Taking the unleavened bread and the unfermented wine of the Passover which had just been observed, Jesus established a new feast, the Christian feast of remembrance, which we call communion or the Lord's table.

His words are significant, "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till He come" (I Cor. 11:26).

At the Lord's table His followers find spiritual strength in recalling His death for them, but they also find joy as they remember that He is to come again. They thus testify to the world that they believe and cherish these truths.

This feast is rightly called "communion," for down through the ages and until He does come the saints of God have at His table sweet communion with Him and with one another. Let us not neglect it!

Our Lord also spoke of the cup as "my blood of the new testament." The word "testament" means covenant. The Lord's table therefore speaks of our allegiance to Him, of our loyalty to our Lord, and our devotion to His service.

That is why the Christian Church speaks of communion as a sacrament, a word from the Latin sacramentum, meaning oath, and essentially an oath of allegiance.

III. The Folly of the Disciples (vv. 21-30)

Someone may say, "That point does not belong with the other two. Both the Passover and the Lord's Supper are for the joyful remembrance of deliverance and redemption." The objection is well taken except for one thing—we are dealing with human beings as they are, not as they should be and could be by the grace of God.

Here in the inner circle of the twelve there was one traitor. It seems impossible, but apparently Judas had maintained such outward conduct as to turn no suspicion in his direction, even though all along he had in his heart the blackest of treachery against his Lord. A sad and soul-searching fact is here revealed, that it is possible for one to make a high profession of faith in Christ and even so to live as to give no cause for criticism, and yet to be unregenerate and in fact the enemy of Christ.

What about the strife regarding position? Shameful as we agree that it was, it still goes on in the church. Not even the remembrance of our Lord's death and the reminder that He is coming again is enough to keep men from wanting to be greatest.

Star Dust STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO By VIRGINIA VALE

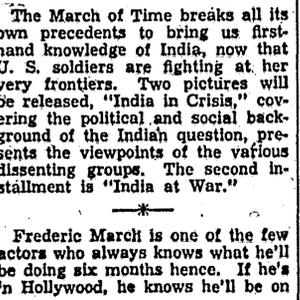

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

HEDY LAMARR started her career as William Powell's screen wife with expert advice from Myrna Loy, who's so often been "Mrs. Thin Man." Here's her note.

"Dear Hedy: Just remember, when Bill starts emoting, you stop breathing—but he'll always give you the best side of the camera. If he hasn't had time for breakfast, keep out of his sight. If possible, have the director call you after lunch. On the other hand, working with Bill means you're home in time for dinner. Do learn to tie; Bill can't. Neither does he like noise on the set. He just laughs if you blow your lines, but don't you laugh if he blows his. Good luck—from an ex-wife."

The March of Time breaks all its own precedents to bring us first-hand knowledge of India, now that U. S. soldiers are fighting at her very frontiers. Two pictures will be released, "India in Crisis," covering the political and social background of the Indian question, presents the viewpoints of the various dissenting groups. The second installment is "India at War."

Frederic March is one of the few actors who always knows what he'll be doing six months hence. If he's in Hollywood, he knows he'll be on Broadway; if he does one play a season there, if he's in New York, he knows he'll be in Hollywood, making a picture.

FREDERIC MARCH

A midget clad in a chimpanzee's suit works with Bob Hope and Bing Crosby in "Road to Morocco." Naturally, when the comedians recognized friends among a group of stude visitors, they turned the "chimpanzee" loose on them; He screeched, grabbed them, ran amok; they fled for their lives, while Hope and Crosby sat back, looking a little too innocent.

Herbert Wilcox recently returned from making "They Flew Alone," in London; it's the story of Amy Mollison's life, starring Anna Neagle and Robert Newton. And what snags he ran into! He wanted Newton to play James Mollison—Newton was serving on a minesweeper. An appeal to the government got his release. Electric power at the studio was limited. All timber on the sets had to be used over and over. It took seven months to make the picture, but Mr. Wilcox feels that the very difficulties helped to give it an unusual quality of reality.

Did you like "Here Comes Mr. Jordan"? Then you ought to like Metro's "Three Guys Named Joe"—a tale of three happy-go-lucky pilots who perish while fighting in the Pacific, only to return in a series of post-mortals adventures and "adopt" the crew of another plane, and guide them in battle. Souris is a bit like some of those hilarious "Topper" films.

It has been years, and it seems like forever, since first there was talk of making a picture of Rudyard Kipling's "Kim." Metro has owned the screen rights for a good while, and is settling down to work now, with Mickey Rooney to play the title role, after he finishes "A Yank at Eton."

As a boy Joel McCrea used to play around a haunted house on a hill top. Some years ago, when Anne Harding was looking for a hill to build on, he recommended the one on which that house had stood. She built there, later sold the house; now it belongs to Rudy Vallee—but he didn't know the site was haunted until told by McCrea, who's working with him and Claudette Colbert in "The Palm Beach Story."

ODDS AND ENDS—RKO is preparing its own picture of the merchant marine—"The Navy Comes Through," starring Pat O'Brien, Randolph Scott and Jackie Cooper. Great Carson's becomes a basketball fan; she bought uniforms for the team of the 7th anti-aircraft artillery unit. Spencer Tracy goes his stand-in, Jerry Schumacher, a gold-tipped rabbit's foot when Schumacher joined the parachute troops; she hit a huge pillow—"for soft landings." "Wonder Baby Corey," after droning $17.50 weekly unemployment insurance for some time, is now back at work in "The Lone Wolf in Scotland Yard."

Horae Is Important Source of War Power

Tips Are Given for Better Care of Helpful Animal

By J. L. EDMONDS (Professor of Horse Husbandry, University of Illinois College of Agriculture.)

With horses being a more important source of farm power than in many years, here are some tips on making the horse a more reliable and cheaper source of farm power.

1. Use a variety of feeds to fill all the requirements of a ration—nutrients of the proper amount and proportions, bulk enough for safety in digestion and a high degree of palatability.

2. Feed according to individual needs. Horses probably vary more than other farm stock in individual feed requirements.

3. Food according to the job. Failure to adjust food to the work being done causes the waste of much food and occasionally results in the loss of good horses.

4. Use only feeds of good quality. Horses may safely eat considerable quantities of cheap, coarse, rough feed if it is wholesome.

5. Be punctual about feeding times. The horse is a creature of habit and shows his appreciation of punctuality, regularity and cleanliness in feeding by increased thrift.

6. Home-grown rations are usually cheapest. Very satisfactory rations may be composed entirely or almost entirely of home-grown feeds.

7. The weight of the horse and the presence or lack of thrift and spirit are tests of the adequateness of a ration. Horses at severe work usually do not need more than a pound of hay daily for each 100 pounds they weigh, but the grain ration should be approximately 1 1/4 pounds daily for each 100 pounds weight.

8. Frequent watering and regular salting are very essential in hot weather.

9. Parasites of the digestive tract are best treated by an experienced veterinarian. Many farm colts and horses are too heavily parasitized to respond to good care.

10. Start horses to work gradually while the weather is still cool. Be a good horseman. Groom horses regularly.

11. Trim and level feet regularly. This may be done with regulation horsehooper's tools.

Hints on Farm Buildings Farm buildings supported on wood posts frequently settle because of decay or the work of termites. Uneven settlement often is the cause of damage to wood framing.

To prevent uneven settling of farm buildings supported on wood posts, engineers of the U. S. department of agriculture suggest that the posts be treated against rot and insects and set on masonry footings—either stone slabs or concrete—below the frost line. Posts used in repair of buildings should also be treated and set on masonry.

In jacking up a plastered farm building that has settled unevenly, engineers of the U. S. department of agriculture suggest that the jacking be very gradual and uniform to prevent the walls from cracking.

Building foundations that slope with a hillside are likely to shift, say engineers of the U. S. department of agriculture. Movement can be stopped by under-pinning so that the new footings are horizontal, like steps. These should extend below the frost line.

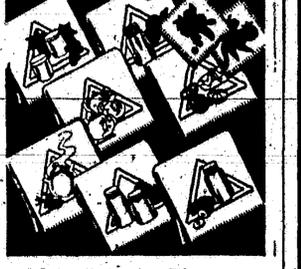

Increase of Dairy Cows

The number of dairy cows in Ohio and in the United States increased 3 per cent in 1941, and the number of dairy calves and heifers was the largest on record. The increase in cow numbers in 1942 probably will exceed the 1941 increase.

Cheap garden, field, or lawn seeds usually are the most expensive that can be purchased. Low germination weed contamination, and dirt are the three chief factors that make some seed sell for less.

Preserving Freedom

If we wish to be free; if we wish to preserve inviolate those inestimable privileges for which we have been so long contending; if we mean—not basely—to abandon the noble struggle in which we have been so long engaged, and which we have pledged ourselves never to abandon until the glorious object of our contest shall be obtained—we must fight! An appeal to arms, and to the God of hosts is all that is left us.—Patrick Henry.
