WARNING!

You are advised that operations on the Alamogordo Bombing Range will commence June 1, and effective that date all persons entering within the boundaries will do so at their own risk.
A. S. Albro,
Colonel, Air Corps.

Herbert L. Olston, manager of the bombing project, stated that U. S. Attorney Grantham appointed this week that he has been directed by Attorney General Biddle to file an amended petition seeking the complete title to the lands within the bombing range area, rather than to take a five year use of the land as was asked in the suit which is now pending. In view of the necessity for filing an amended petition, no hearing is to be held in the U. S. District Court at Santa Fe on June 1, and the persons notified of such hearing need not be present. The sole purpose of such a hearing at a later date will be for the court to hear any legal objections to the taking of land, and for the court to appoint appraisers. It is not necessary for and defendants to be present at such future hearing unless any owner desires to protest the taking of the land.

NOTICE

Due to the absence of the secretary and there being no business of importance, the next meeting of the Sheriff's posse will be postponed.

Carrizozo Wants Municipal Ownership of Light Plant

An opportunity presently exists for Carrizozo to acquire the local Light & Power plant. One hearing on the matter has already been held before the N.
M. Public Service Commission at Santa Fe and the application was denied, pending submission of further testimony to support the reasonableness of the proposed purchase price of $86,000.00, and the Public Service Commission also indicated that it desires some evidence that the people of Carrizozo favored this deal.

Municipal ownership of public utilities has uniformly proven beneficial and in some instances highly profitable to the Municipality wherever it has been tried in New Mexico, and it will undoubtedly prove to be highly beneficial to this community.
The citizens of Carrizozo should not let the present opportunity go by.

Since the proposal was first brought up, we have made it a point to discuss it with as many citizens as possible and have not yet heard a single expression of opposition. Everyone has favored the deal and some have expressed surprise at the reasonable figure fixed as the purchase price.

We are inclined to agree that the figure is reasonable; in fact in our opinion it is so low that we cannot afford to let it pass.
It is the figure at which the property was appraised by expert and experienced engineers employed by the Village Council.
These engineers have had long experience in appraising public utility properties and have made over 100 such appraisals all over the United States and are well-known. Utmost confidence can therefore be placed in their figures.

Under municipal ownership with its incidental saving in taxes this property will produce a net revenue to the city of at least $10,000 per year. This is more than sufficient to pay the annual interest and principal payments on the proposed revenue bonds and represents a return of about 11 percent on our investment.
The plant will thus pay itself out in the course of a few years without an outlay whatever from the taxpayers.

The Mayor and Village Council are to be commended for their work and efforts in working out this matter and bringing it to the point where it now stands.
We trust that the New Mexico Public Service Commission will see this matter as we see it and give it their endorsement and approval.
They should not stand in the way of the citizens of Carrizozo

Lincoln County Iron Shipped

For the first time since the first World War, iron ore from Lincoln County has been moving in carload lots to the blast furnace at Pueblo, Colo. The Lincoln Ore and Metal Co., organized by Dudley Cornell, attorney of Albuquerque, has a contract with the Colorado Fuel & Iron Corporation for the purchase of crude iron ore from Lincoln County, and obtained a special freight rate from the Southern Pacific.
During the past 60 days, 125 cars involving approximately 7-500 tons of ore have been shipped from their property near Corona.

J. H. Fulmer, Jr. and C. E.
Degner reported upon returning from a trip to Albuquerque yesterday, that the U. S. Bureau of Mines had acted favorably upon an application by the Lincoln Ore and Metal Company to set up a Bureau of Mines project to examine and report upon the iron deposits of the company. Together with the work that has been done recently on the Jones group of claims in Socorro county, this indicates great interest in the iron deposits of this area.

Mr. Fulmer reported that the Lincoln Ore and Metal Co., has already filed a request with the War Production Board for the location of a blast furnace in this county, and that many officials and individuals have become interested in the project. Mr. Fulmer has taken an active interest in this development as President of the Lincoln County Chamber of Commerce.—Contributed.

J. H. Greer of Cornville, Ariz., stopped over here for a short time this week, after a trip to Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas.

Mrs. Cora Dillard is assisting as phone operator at the local telephone exchange.

Mrs. E. T. Ingram and Joe Boy came over from Tucumcari last Friday and went on to El Paso, accompanied by Mrs. Ladams Joyce, who spent the week-end with the Ingrams. Joe Boy will be his grandmother's special guest for a portion of the vacation period.

Be sure to read Burton's Fuel Yard ad and take Marvin's advice about making provisions for your next fall and winter coal.

Mr. and Mrs. Benny Sanchez and children are here from El Paso, visiting the Gregorio Pino and Abe Sanchez families who are practically unanimous and wholeheartedly in favor of concluding this purchase on the terms and conditions proposed.

Conflicting Opinions

For the past month and up to Tuesday, Donald Nelson, chief administrator Henderson, Joseph Eastman, transportation director and Arthur Neehall, rubber coordinator, have all agreed that the tire situation was "grim" and were already formulating plans for drastic gasoline rationing, starting in the east, as a means of conserving tires, etc.

The above named agencies involved ran up against a snag, when the news came over the radio Tuesday evening and published in the daily papers Wednesday, that the President's views on the tire and gas situation differed widely from those expressed by the agencies. The President saw nothing "grim" about the situation at all, for he said, "There is nothing in the situation to get excited about, for there will be plenty of substitutes for rubber tires before the ones now in use, wear out."

The President's statement caused a big stir in the rubber agency ranks in Washington and they called all together to see what could be done about that conflicting opinion. In the light of his statement, the President seems to know more about the tire and gasoline situation than they do, for he has already called Henderson into consultation with the view of having a pipe line across Florida to the east for the purpose of relieving the gas situation there. He also stated that it would cost $9,000,000 and that emergency funds were already at hand to run the project.

In summing up the mess of conflicting opinions, it is our thought that the President in making his statement, is doing so in favor of the people who have already set up numerous protests against rationing of gasoline as a means of conserving tires. It means more than a little for the chief executive to render an opinion in such opposition to what the agencies mentioned above have so expressed themselves, but credit must be given him for his grit in so doing.
There has been too much power used by these agencies without consulting the head of affairs and it is strongly evident that the President sees it. More of those kind of stands against hand-made orders like these from the President, may break some of them from "laughing in church."

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Moore, Jr. and children of the B & M store left yesterday for Florence, Ala., to spend a two weeks' vacation visiting their father J. G. Moore, Sr. and relatives and friends at that place. During the Moores' vacation, the store will be managed by the owner Mr. E. A.
Bellinger of Tularosa.

Mrs. Harry Miller left yesterday for Birmingham, Ala., to visit her mother Mrs. Fesperman, relatives and many friends at that place.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Davis and children were here Tuesday from Capitan.

Sportlight ON GRANTLAND RICE

THIS 1942 season has already opened a new war between umpires, managers and ball players...

Grantland Rice

In our wondering career we have watched the making of over 3,000,000 feet of sports pictures...

At a race track, if you are not dead set on the finish line you can easily disagree by a half length...

Same in Baseball

Trained umpires are supposed to be in the correct spots for a correct decision. They can make mistakes, being only human.

Managers and ball players on the bench are not in the right spot to call any decision correctly.

Using two examples, Messrs. Durocher and Frisch know this. They may be many things, but they are not dumb.

Lee Durocher

You'll find that most of the umpirical explosions are used largely in behalf of the old alibi.

There is a belief also that crowds like scrappy baseball. Crowds do. But crowds would rather see the battle between two teams...

A ball player who bats .333 is above the average. Yet, that means he is a flop two-thirds of the time.

Umpires make mistakes, but not as many mistakes as managers and ball players make—if you happen to look at the daily box scores.

The greatest pitcher that ever lived—Walter Johnson, never had an argument with an umpire.

The Ball Players Pick

Ball players know what can happen between June and October. They are not the best guessers in the world—but who is?

American League—The Yankees chased by the Red Sox and the Indians.

National League—Another red-hot all-summer stretch run between Dodgers and Cardinals.

This was a majority vote, by a wide margin, from the dozen or more respected opinions sought.

But through the remainder of the race it seems to me managers and ball players will show more common sense in concentrating their attack on rival teams...

Speaking Sports

WHEN the Chicago White Sox slipped to last place in American league standings...

The strange case of the White Sox is one of the most widely discussed topics whenever men discuss baseball.

It would be more than silly to say that the Sox haven't a chance.

Jimmy Dykes

In third place. That the importance of pitching often is overrated is demonstrated by the fact that the Sox have had better pitching this year than they did last season.

One Answer

Jim Bagby Jr., hurler for the Cleveland Indians, knocked off five victories in a rush the early part of this season.

Toward the end of the spring training season, Muddy Ruel, Sox coach, said: "We have a sound, balanced team."

Muddy was right. The pitching has been more than excellent—if not great.

It is true that the Sox had to get along without the services of Thornton Lee and Taft Wright.

If Wright had been in condition, the story might easily have been different.

There is a belief also that crowds like scrappy baseball. Crowds do.

The greatest pitcher that ever lived—Walter Johnson, never had an argument with an umpire.

The Minute Man

Thoughts on the Minute Man

The Minute Man was a minuteman regardless of hours.

He was ready to fight any minute and nothing less than five years was considered over time.

He came into being at Bunker Hill (which was not a golf course) and at Lexington (which was not a sedan).

He would have thought he was being mollycoddled if all he had been asked to give up was comfortable transportation and the two lumps of sugar in his coffee.

The Minute Man would have thought himself a Five-Minute Egg if he felt it necessary for his government to mention his war obligations every time there was any mention of indigestion tablets, beer, whisky, cigars and toothpastes.

Rationing was such a self-cultivated habit with him, even in time of peace, that in time of war he regarded it as impeding the national effort if he admitted he had an appetite for fresh meat.

The Minute Man wasn't so called because he watched the minute hand on a clock; when his country was in peril he didn't even watch the hour hand!

The one tool he kept at hand at all times was his rifle, and he was his own night and day shift.

His life was so hazardous that he thought saving his scalp was more important than saving money; and he would have been a little sickened by the thought that he would be recorded as doing his part if he merely bought war bonds.

The Minute Man thought the minutes important. And the only price he fixed on them was in terms of life and death.

In time of war he thought his rights fully protected if, at the end of every minute, he still had his gun and could replenish his powder.

The Minute Man never dreamed of 30-minute radio programs to arouse his patriotism; to have listened to a 15-minute air appeal to his Americanism every few hours would have made him feel insulted.

The Minute Man wanted his news straight and his battle reports undiluted; and the one thing his government never had to ask was, "Shall we tell him now or do you think it would upset him?"

The Minute Man was a man every minute. He won against incredible odds after years of heroism.

He made secure a great nation for nearly two centuries.

NO CARD! To market, to market! Some sugar to buy! Home again, home again... Sugar me eye!

Elmer Twichell is so timid these sugar rationing days that he doesn't even address his wife as "My sweet"—any more.

MIKE AND MEYER No feering, feild jests did they employ— They used no jokes from smoking room or pit, And yet down through the years they brought us joy By cleverness and decency and wit.

Theirs was no search for situations vile— No gags dug from the sewers of Broadway— Clean, wholesome comedy, such was their style And they would have been out of place today.

Farewell to Mike, farewell to Meyer, too! To them we bow and gladly give great thanks, For they were comers to traditions true, Who never dug for laughs beneath wet planks!

Historic Tailor Shop

Historic Tailor Shop

THE other day President Roosevelt took time out from his grave duties as Chief Executive of a nation to sign a proclamation which gave to America another "national monument."

So far as looks are concerned, it is perhaps one of the most unimpressive of our patriotic shrines.

For it is a simple, clap-boarded house with a big brick chimney at one end and it was once a combined home and tailor shop!

But this little structure in Greenville, Tenn., is probably the most historic tailor shop in all these United States.

For it was here that Andrew Johnson started on the road which was to lead him eventually to the White House in Washington and to a fame that is unique.

Of him it has been said that he was "the most courageous and consistent statesman of his day" and "next to Lincoln, he did more to preserve the Union than any other civil official of his time."

Moreover, Andrew Johnson had one of the most extraordinary records of any citizen of the United States.

It is doubtful if any other American, except possibly his fellow-Tennessean, Andrew Jackson, ever occupied as many different positions of public trust.

During his 40 years of public life he held, with integrity and ability, every type of office under the Constitution—legislative, executive, judicial and military!

Here they are: Alderman (1827-30); mayor (1830-35); state representative (1835-39); state senator (1841-43); United States representative (1843-53); governor (1853-57); United States senator (1857-63); brigadier-general (1862); military governor (1862-64); vice president of the United States (1865); President of the United States (1865-69) and United States senator (1875).

Such was the record of a man who never went to school a day in his life! Of all American "success stories" it is doubtful if any can be found to match that of Andrew Johnson.

Born in Raleigh, N. C., December 29, 1808, Johnson lost his father when he was four years old and, by the time he was 10 years old and apprenticed to a tailor, he was the chief support of his mother and his younger brother.

After serving six of the eight years of his apprenticeship Johnson and his brother ran away, whereupon the future President was branded in a newspaper advertisement as a fugitive from justice with a price of $10 upon his head.

A year later young Johnson returned to Raleigh, made a satisfactory adjustment with his bondsmen and then, obtaining an old horse and wagon, took the family and their scanty household goods over the mountains into Tennessee.

At Greenville he set up his own tailor shop in the little house, which was recently made a national monument, and as he sat cross-legged on his tailor's table he hired the educated loafers of the village to read history to him.

But it was not until he married Eliza McCardell in 1827 that he received any formal education—his wife taught him to read.

Soon after the outbreak of the War Between the States, Johnson, at the request of President Lincoln, gave up his seat in the senate to become military governor of Tennessee.

Two years later he was chosen as the vice presidential running mate for Lincoln in an effort to hold the border states. He became President after Lincoln was assassinated and when he tried to carry out the reconstruction policies of the Great Emancipator, he was bitterly assailed by the radical Republicans who were determined to punish the defeated Southern states for seceding from the Union.

Johnson resisted every move that they made until finally they used his removal of Edwin M. Stanton, secretary of war, from his cabinet as an excuse for bringing a bill of impeachment. Happily for the country they failed to remove him from office—by the narrow margin of one vote in the senate—and when he finished his term of office in 1869 the state of Tennessee showed its faith in him by electing him to the senate again six years later.

He died soon afterwards—on July 31, 1875—and his Tennessee neighbors buried him on a hilltop near Greenville, wrapped in an American flag, with a copy of the United States Constitution, which he had upheld so valiantly, serving as a pillow for his eternal sleep.

Johnson was one of the staunchest defenders of the common man who ever sat in the White House. When he was nominated on the ticket with Lincoln he is said to have exclaimed, "What will the aristocrats do with a rail-splitter for President and a tailor for vice president?"

By L. L. STEVENSON

Rambblings and Ruminations: A dressed-up young man and woman holding hands as they ride slowly along the winding roads of Central Park in an old-fashioned hansom cab.

With the driver sitting behind and high above them informing one and all by his broad grin that he is acting as charioteer for a couple of newlyweds.

Three sailors and three girls sitting on one bench watching youngsters sail toy boats in a little lake.

and the young men of the sea quite plainly not at all disturbed by the fact that the bench was built for four and not six.

Boys with balls, bats, gloves and uniforms coming into the park, a sure sign that summer now is not far away.

Bright-eyed robins searching the new green for worms.

Patients waiting in the high-up office of a Central Park South physician passing the time by looking down on the scenes of the park.

and probably wishing they were there instead of where they are.

The simplicity of some of the expensive little shops on Fifth avenue.

A contrast to the gaudiness of some of the establishments to the east where there is quite a price difference.

The bootblack across the street from Carnegie hall whose customers are musicians and who knows the great of the music world by sight and by name.

The never-ending line of vehicles moving toward the Queensboro bridge.

Everything from a jalopy to a glittering limousine.

and from a motorcycle to a 10-ton truck.

The mass of buildings that form New York hospital.

A little city in itself.

Tugs darting about the surface of the East river, their propellers churning the murky waters into white foam.

Longshoremen busily loading ships over on the Brooklyn side, the screech of winches an accompaniment to their toil.

The dash, the noise and the bluff of Broadway.

Not so gay now with some of the big signs darkened for the duration.

Yet continuing with its atmosphere of sophistication.

Wonder why beauty shops employ some of the most down-at-the-heel and unshaven sandwich men that are to be seen in midtown.

Stage folk, some yawning a bit, dropping into Lindy's for a sausage-and-scrambled-egg breakfast.

Rich Husbands in India Rich husbands are a must in India. If a girl fails to find one she is married to a bunch of flowers!

Then the "husband" is dropped into a well. And presto! the bride is a widow—with the privilege of marrying again.

For some reason, the "second" husband doesn't have to be rich.

WE'RE DOING Our Part

Hotels of Southern California are doing their part in this great national cause by maintaining normal facilities and operations in every department for the use of soldiers, sailors, nurses, and physical release from strains and fatigue.

Facilities for the business of Americans, and in the interest of war production, there is augmented service at the great metropolitan hotels of Los Angeles, Hollywood, Long Beach, San Diego and the other large cities of Southern California.

There are no rationing of fun at the San resort hotels located on the desert at Palm Springs; by the sea at Chula Vista, Coronado, Laguna, La Jolla, Santa Catalina, Santa Monica and Santa Barbara; and amid the beauty of mountains, Beverly Hills and Hollywood. Health and energy still bubble from the earth at the famous mineral springs resorts.

Gold, tennis, riding, swimming, cycling, badminton and a multitude of other sports and recreational activities will be enjoyed every day of the year by the visitor to this sun-blessed land.

Hotel rates in Southern California will continue at pre-war levels. Nowhere is there a greater variety of hotel accommodations to suit every budget and every taste. In spite of currency travel is normal, and throughout the state is normal, and hotel and resort life is normal.

For further particulars, consult the nearest travel or transportation agency or your automobile club.

STAGE SCREEN RADIO
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

By VIRGINIA VALE
PARAMOUNT'S "Wake, Island" ran into unexpected trouble the other day. Some 150 Filipinos, engaged to portray invading Nipponese troops, were to charge a machine-gun-nest manned by Robert Preston and William Bendix. "Half of you fall dead," they were told. When the smoke cleared all 150 were stretched corpse-like on the ground. The scene was shot again, after the same instructions were given. Same result. They'd play Japanese soldiers only if they could play dead ones, so Director John Farrow had to give in.

Kate Smith recently signed a contract to make a series of shorts for Columbia under the collective title of "America Sings With Kate

KATE SMITH

Smith—for one dollar as total compensation. All profits over that sum go to the USO.

Five years ago Tim Whelan, of RKO Radio, saw a Spanish picture in Seville, and began looking for a dark-eyed young actress who appeared in it. He finally found her; she's Mappy Cortes, of Puerto Rico, and will appear in an important role in his new musical.

Marguerite Chapman was a member of the Navy Blues Sextette before Columbia spotted her late the big time last January. Now another member of it, Lorraine Gottman, steps out. Re-christened Leslie Brooks, she's been given a long-term contract by the company, as the result of her outstanding work in a supporting role in "Talk of the Town," co-starring Jean Arthur, Cary Grant and Ronald Colman.

The route that led Jack Trent into the movies is a curious one. Formerly a Montana schoolteacher, he became Shirley Temple's bodyguard, and wound up as an actor; you'll see him in "Silver Queen," the 1937 drama starring Priscilla Lane and George Brent.

No one has viewed C. B. DeMille's "Reap the Wild Wind" with more interest than did Rear Admiral William D. Leahy, U. S. ambassador to France. The Technicolor sea saga, starring Ray Milland, John Wayne and Paulette Goddard, deals with America's fight to wipe out a nest of pirate wreckers in the Florida keys years ago. Leahy wrote DeMille that he "got the last of those wreckers" back in the year 1905.

Ransom Sherman finally has discovered the haunt where Dix Davis, 13-year-old who plays "Stanley" in the Broadway musical, spends the half hour before broadcast time. It's the Shirley Temple studio, across the hall—he just stands there and worships from afar.

Ann Miller's been saying that she was 18 ever since she was 12. Tall for her age, she did it then to keep the prize—two weeks' work as a stage attraction—at the Orpheum theater. At 14 she danced—and fibbed—her way into a night club engagement in San Francisco. That year RKO signed her up, then Columbia borrowed her; at 16, and still saying she was 18—she landed on Broadway. RKO again, Columbia again—then Paramount, for "True to the Army." On April 12 of this year she celebrated her 19th birthday, on the "Priorities of 1942" set.

Now that the "Are You a Missing Heir" radio program has restored its millionth dollar to rightful legatees, you'd think the program executives would sit back and relax, but there are still 77 million unclaimed dollars buried in probate court records as a goal for the program to shoot at.

ODDS AND ENDS—The goofy sound-man who used to heckle Jack Benny on the Sunday night broadcasts has joined the army air corps. Ed Murrow and William L. Shirer, news commentators, first met at a Paris cafe. Now that Ronald Colman has finished "The Talk of the Town" he can share, for the first time in months, the reading room of the RKO—story of a woman who's waiting for the government to Japanese-held islands of the Pacific. ... Madeline Carroll received 16 front row seats for her army and navy boy escorts at her latest broadcast in New York.

All This, We Find, Was According to Orders

Out for a drive in her pony-cart, an elderly lady managed to get involved in some army maneuvers. As she approached a bridge a sentry stopped her.

"It looks all right to me," she murmured. Then, as another soldier came along, she asked: "Excuse me, but can you tell me what's wrong with this bridge?"

"Don't ask me, lady," he replied; "I've been dead two days."

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

JUST an old dresser with no mirror and one leg broken, but a new base gave it a modern air. Open shelves on top were the next step. The owner writes that she sent for scallop pattern 207, planning to have jig saw scallops cut for the shelves but she changed her mind and used the pattern for painted scallops instead. The whole piece was painted pale gray to match the kitchen woodwork; scallop designs were then chosen to fit drawers and cross boards at top and bottom of shelves. These, as well as base and drawer pulls were painted orange.

NOTE—Scallop pattern No. 207 gives dozens of designs to fit any space. These may be cut out of wood, composition board, linoleum, all cloth or paper. They may be pasted or painted on wood or metal. The pattern may also be used to make novel finishes for curtains and other things of fabric. Ask for pattern No. 207, and address:

AROUND THE HOUSE

If the surface of your stove looks rough, it probably is due to an accumulation of stove blacking. Sandpaper rubbed over the surface will make it as smooth as when new.

Never wash the grids of a waffle iron and never put the iron in water. Instead clean the grids with a wire brush and dry cloth, wipe the outside of the iron with a damp cloth and a soft polishing cloth.

When pressing or ironing, keep a damp sponge in a saucer, close by. It can be used for giving extra dampness to articles, for opening seams or sponging collars and cuffs.

Have a brush especially for scrubbing pastry boards and tables. Wash and wipe dry, and be careful not to allow the dough to accumulate in the cracks.

A chocolate pie will take on a new flavor if left-over coffee is substituted for half the milk.

A stick of cinnamon broken into the milk beaten into custards gives the custards a faint cinnamon color but does not darken them.

Try cooking beet greens with bacon. After boiling, the bacon is crisped in frying pan and served with slices of hard-boiled eggs as a border around greens.

PREPAREDNESS by the AMERICAN RED CROSS

When disaster strikes, the Red Cross is first and last out.

VOLUNTEER Special Services of the American Red Cross have been geared to meet war requirements and war priorities.

Although a shortage of materials has cut down production work, women who have sewed and knitted for the Red Cross will be glad to know that, under an agreement with the War Production board, a certain amount of wool and yard goods will be available for Red Cross workers, according to Mrs. Dwight Davis, national director of this Red Cross program.

The Red Cross Motor corps has been active since the early days of the First World war, but since last year its work has tripled. Many of the 6,576 members, on account of the priorities, are restricting the personal use of their cars so that their motor corps work may be continued. Motor corps volunteers drive the ambulances which provide transportation for hospitals and Red Cross chapters, and hold themselves ready for service in any kind of emergency. Besides their basic training in motor mechanics and advanced first aid, many members are now studying map reading; stretcher drills, and convoy and ambulance black-out driving in co-operation with their local police and fire departments.

A new canteen aide corps has recently been formed in preparation for wartime emergencies, when feeding of large groups of people such as evacuees or disaster victims may have to be hastily organized.

The other general wartime volunteer services of the Red Cross include home service to the families of the men in the forces, the hospital and recreation corps which brings cheer to the sick and wounded, and the staff assistance corps, which provides volunteers for all kinds of office work in hospitals, clinics and Red Cross chapter and to man information desks and register disaster victims. ## Smile Awhile

Trial Treatment Sufferer—I wish I had some drops to cure this toothache. Friend—It's all a matter of the mind, not medicine. Yesterday I was feeling terrible. But when I went home my wife put her arms around me and kissed me, and consoled me, so that I soon felt better. Sufferer—You don't say. Is your wife at home now? OUT AND IN

"I say, it's odd this being in society." "How so?" "Why, to keep in it you must be continually going out, don't you know?"

Another Type "How did Smith hurt his hand?" "Reckless driving." "Smash up his car?" "No, just his finger. He missed the nail."

We are told that millions of germs cling to our paper money. It's more than most humans can do nowadays!

The Long and Short of It Customer—I suspect that you're giving me awfully short weight for my money! Grocer—Well, I'm positive you're giving me an awfully long wait for mine.

Without the Grounds "My girl's father doesn't like me." "On what grounds?" "On my grounds within ten miles of his house."

Appreciated Jean—I wouldn't marry the best man living. Bert—I'm sorry you feel that way about me, but thanks for the compliment.

Simple as That "Yes, I came face to face with a lion once," said the club liar, "and I was alone and unarmed." "Heavens, what did you do?" asked a new member, who didn't know his man.

What could I do? I tried staring straight into his eyes, but he just continued crawling towards me. "How did you get away, then?" "I just left him and passed on to the next cage."

Anyone can recognize opportunity after the other fellow has seized it.

Slow Going As the secretary of the golf club was crossing the course he saw a player driving off about a foot in front of the tee-mark.

"Here," he exclaimed indignantly, "you can't do that! You're disqualified." "Why?" demanded the player. "You're driving off in front of the mark." "Don't be an ass!" was the terse reply; "I'm playing my third shot."

The problem of what to send a service man has been solved by the men themselves. Tobacco tops the list of gifts—service men prefer from the folks back home, according to numerous surveys. If you have a friend or relative in the armed forces—Army, Navy, Marines, or Coast Guard—who smokes a pipe, or rolls-his-own, a pound of his favorite tobacco is very much in order. A big favorite with many service men is Prince Albert, the world's largest-selling smoking tobacco. Local dealers now are featuring Prince Albert in the pound can for the men in the service.—Adv.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Released Diplomats, Newspaper Men Tell Inside Stories of Axis Unrest; Armored AEF Arrives in Ireland; WPB Cancels War Plant Construction

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper. Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

"Sorry, No Gas"—just a sign of the times in eastern seaboard states since gas rationing went into effect. A sharp curtailment in automobile travel is the direct result of Axis submarine activity against U. S. coastal shipping trade.

'INSIDE' STORIES: Of Axis Internees

Inside stories of conditions in Axis nations were related by diplomats and newspaper men who arrived in Lisbon, Portugal, after five months of internment in Germany and Italy. United States and Axis internees were exchanged in Lisbon.

Correspondents were unanimous in their belief that Germany will gamble everything on an all-out drive this spring. To meet this showdown, Hitler is reported to have prepared 300 army divisions. Of these, 210 divisions have been assigned to the Russian front.

Competent observers in Berlin predict that Germany must "shoot the works" this summer and that the fortunes of war will turn definitely against the Nazis unless the all-out drive is successful.

Hitler's declaration of war upon the United States was termed the biggest blunder of his career. The German people did not expect it—even after Japan attacked the United States. Germany's older generation remembered all too well that the U. S. helped decide World War I.

Italy's war against this country is exceedingly unpopular with the people, according to interned correspondents. The Italians dislike the Germans and care nothing for the Japanese.

Mussolini, too, is unpopular with his people. King Victor Emmanuel lost much of the respect that was his when war was declared in his name. But observers were agreed that a revolution is doomed to failure unless it has the support of the army. The army still is loyal to the throne.

CONSTRUCTION CUT: Production Stressed

Behind the War Production board's decision to cancel contracts for war plants which cannot be completed and in production by mid-1943 lies two major considerations:

A severe shortage of raw materials.

Belief that spring and summer developments may bring a turning point in the war.

Construction will be stepped up on facilities such as synthetic rubber and aviation gasoline plants and will be cut down on such projects as new steel plants.

Because of the raw material shortage, the WPB had decided to concentrate available supplies on arms and munitions production rather than on the plants in which they are manufactured.

Officials explained that the WPB has determined to produce 60,000 planes, 45,000 tanks, and eight million tons of shipping in 1942. They will deal with the increased program for 1943 when that time arrives.

AIRLINES: War Footing

At President Roosevelt's direction the war department placed domestic airlines on a wartime footing by ordering the transfer to the army air forces of a substantial proportion of available flight equipment for operation by army personnel; by having the airlines convert approximately 70 ships into cargo carriers which they will operate for the Air Service command; and by giving emergency military missions priority on the remaining 70 ships to be owned and operated by the airlines.

BRIGHT LIGHTS: And Shipping Losses

Because dim-out regulations in New York were held "unsatisfactory" by the army, drastic new regulations will affect the lives of the city's millions.

Acting with the approval of the army and navy, Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia ordered a program which for the first time will screen all freighting in railroad yards, manufacturing plants, docks, shipyards and terminals.

RE-ENFORCEMENTS: Land in Ireland

Shipment upon shipment of United States soldiers, fully equipped for mechanical warfare, have arrived in Northern Ireland to bolster the already large American garrison there.

Enthusiasm was at high pitch in Britain. One military observer pointed out that the arrival of thousands of American soldiers in Ulster allows planning for offensive operations on the continent "on a scale of at least 20 divisions or 300,000 men."

The U. S. communique stated: "British Isles: The war department today announced the arrival of additional United States army troops. The number is substantially larger than previous contingents and includes tank units."

The debarkation was carried out swiftly and secretly. Secluded bases already had been prepared for the men.

RUSSIA: Kharkov and Kerch

For some time Hitler's objective on the southern flank of his eastern front had been clear. He wanted badly the oil that the Caucasian area could give him. His much-feared "spring offensive" shaped up that as the mud of Russia's Crimea began to dry.

With overwhelming numbers he swept the Russians before him on his march across the Kerch peninsula. Then from Berlin came the report that the fighting in this area had ended and that the Russian troops had been "annihilated." But Moscow even later reported that in the town of Kerch itself there was still street fighting and that the defenders were hanging tenaciously on to their foothold at the eastern tip of the Crimea.

It was near Kharkov, further north, though, that the Russians claimed their greatest successes. The Kerch peninsula might be lost to the Germans but Nazi defenses around Kharkov had taken a terrific pounding from the Soviet artillery, tanks, planes and infantry.

One report said that the Russians in a "new push" had taken 300 towns, slain 12,000 Nazis, captured 1,200 additional soldiers and had destroyed 400 tanks.

In the Kharkov battle, Russian Marshal Timoshenko seemed to have taken the Nazis by surprise. The Soviet high command reported that the Germans first fled in panic before the onslaught of Russian planes battering their lines at altitudes as low as 70 feet. Then the Nazis rallied and the fighting gained a new peak of ferocity.

RAISE: For the Shipbuilders

Payable in war bonds, a wage increase averaging eight cents an hour went to the workers in the major shipbuilding yards throughout the nation. This announcement was made after a 21-day conference in Chicago of private shipbuilders, union officials and government representatives. Five hundred thousand workers throughout the country were affected by the wage increase. President Roosevelt had requested the War Bond raise as an aid to checking inflation and at the same time allow shipbuilders to meet increased living costs.

MISCELLANY:

Smash: In Pittsburgh, Actress Katherine Hepburn smashed a newspaper's camera when he snapped her picture without asking her permission.

Geotape: A Stockholm dispatch said that Reinhard Heydrich, right-hand man of Heinrich Himmler, Geotape chief, had been appointed Geotape commissioner general in all German occupied territory.

MARTINIQUE: Laval Laments 'Blow to France'

Though his opinion was not asked by the U. S. state department, Pierre Laval, pro-Nazi chief of the Vichy-French government, gave a rejection to most of the six U. S. demands concerning the Caribbean island of Martinique.

The state department had earlier submitted to Admiral Georges Robert, high commissioner of the French possession, a request that if the status of Martinique, Guadeloupe, and French Guiana, were changed "the United States could no longer guarantee their belonging to the French people." What the U. S. really wanted was to immobilize French warships and airplanes now in the Martinique area, and some method for checking on persistent reports that this region was being used as a base for Nazi submarine activity in the raids on Atlantic coast shipping.

Laval said that these demands were a "grave blow to French sovereignty" and that France would not relinquish any of her rights over Martinique "no matter what happens." To this unsolicited statement Washington gave the cold shoulder. It looked like the state department intended to deal directly with officials on the island rather than with Laval.

THREE GALLONS: 'Essential'

As American motorists on the Eastern seaboard got their first taste of gasoline rationing many of them began to wonder if they would be classified as "essential" drivers. For if they had such a classification they would be permitted to buy more than the three gallons per week allotted under the rationing set-up.

Motorists in Oregon and Washington were to get their gasoline ration cards the first of June when deliveries of fuel oil and gasoline to these two states were cut to 50 percent of normal deliveries. Petroleum Co-ordinator Ickes said there is no immediate need of curtailing petroleum products deliveries elsewhere in the country.

Reports from the East coast gave indication of grumbling on the part of some motorists to the effect that rationing should apply to all sections or to none at all. Then came the assurance from OPA that workers who customarily drive to work were to be allowed enough gasoline to continue so doing.

Congressmen and other federal and state employees using private cars to transact business with a government agency are entitled to unlimited supplies of gasoline.

SELECTIVE SERVICE: New Induction Plan

When Selective Service Director Hershey announced that after June 15 a new policy for the induction of men procured through the draft machinery would be introduced, he did much to solve the personal problems of selectees. Under the new plan men will be inducted immediately after they pass the physical examinations and will then be transferred to the Enlisted Reserve corps and be granted 14 days for concluding personal affairs before being assigned to active duty. Transportation and meals from the induction center to the local board locally ordering the registrant to report for examination and subsequently to a designated reception center will be at government expense.

Director Hershey predicted that 10,000,000 U. S. men may be under arms by late 1943 or early 1944.

Honored Guest

President Manuel Prado of Peru, left, a visitor to the United States, and Maj. Gen. Francis Wilby, superintendent of the United States Military academy, as they reviewed West Point cadets who paraded in President Prado's honor.

CHURCHILL: Confident

Confidence was the keynote of Winston Churchill's address to 25,000 Yorkshiremen when he told them that the beginning of victory is in sight and that England will "play rough" in repayment for any torture inflicted on Britain and its allies.

Churchill's talk emphasized his warning that Britain would over German military objectives with poison gas if that weapon were used by Germany in its war on Russia.

ROTC Students Learn Proficiency in Arms

Nowadays at ROTC units throughout the country the accent is on guns as well as books, and college students are learning to be proficient in the use of arms. In picture at right, ROTC students are drawing rifles in the gun-room of the recently constructed drill hall built at City college, New York, by the federal government. Two Changes in Detroit Assembly Lines

Production lines are moving again in Detroit factories, but planes are now being made instead of automobiles. Then, too, there are women in the plants. At this large plant, which formerly made auto bodies, we see an entire assembly line (left) made up of women. The line at the right is made up of men. They are fabricating engine nacelles for bombers.

SHE LOVED A SPY

by SYLVIA TAYLOR

THE STORY SO FAR: Joan Laird, secretary, is discharged by her employer, Arthur Mulford, importer. She takes a secretarial position with Karl Miller, handsome proprietor of a night club. She is fascinated by him and when he gets her sister Sybil, a new job and takes her into his arms, her joy knows no end. She meets his club manager, Paul Sherman, who warns her about working for Karl, but refuses to give his reasons. Then Karl introduces her to his partner, Eric Strom, and she releases his secret attraction to her. During a ride with Karl they heard a freighter ship and when Karl asks her if he can show her the world she melts into his arms with an affirmative answer. Sybil notices that he never mentions marriage to Joan, but Joan defends him. Eric Strom seizes an opportunity to try to make love to her, when Paul Sherman walks in and knocks him out with one blow. Karl sends Joan with a package to the freighter captain. Paul follows. He takes her to a hotel grill.

New episode with the story.

Paul Sherman's warning had disturbed Joan. Paul had said that Karl would never marry her.

CHAPTER VII

"Listen to me, Joan!" Paul said in a low voice. "You were right. I have been following you but only for your own protection. You don't know what you're getting into. I've tried to warn you but you won't listen."

"You have never said anything except that I wasn't the type to work in a night club." In spite of her annoyance, she felt compelled to listen.

"There are some things I can't tell you, but you must trust me. Do you think I'd be risking my own position this way if I didn't feel that it was terribly important?"

Silently she stared at him.

"I know you think you're in love with Karl," Paul went on quickly. "But if he is sincere, Joan, why doesn't he ask you to marry him? Isn't that proof enough that there's something wrong with the picture?"

His steady brown eyes gazed into hers. She twisted her hands nervously. Paul's words had quickened the doubt in her own heart but she said calmly, "I don't see that it's any of your business."

He smiled wryly. "I'm only using that as an example to prove to you that Karl Miller is not on the level. Believe me, I don't go around meddling in other people's affairs without reason."

The sincerity in his voice was unmistakable as he continued, "I can't tell you now what that reason is. All I can do is to warn you that Karl Miller will never marry you."

Her voice was ragged with alarm. "How do you know? What right have you to say that?"

"You poor kid! You're really in love with him, aren't you?"

A lump rose in her throat. "He's wrong about Karl," she thought. "He must be. Karl loves me!"

Paul went on, "There's no use kidding yourself, Joan! If you don't believe me, why don't you ask him and find out for yourself?"

Joan raised challenging green eyes to his. "All right! Maybe I will!"

Paul Sherman's warning had disturbed Joan. Paul had said that Karl would never marry her. Why? Paul had even challenged her to find out for herself whether or not Karl was sincere.

She was awake early the next morning. Lazily she watched Sybil dress to leave for the beauty shop.

When Sybil had gone Joan tried to sleep but it was useless. At nine o'clock she rose, dressed, and drank a glass of orange juice and a cup of coffee.

Shortly before ten she left the apartment and went downtown. To satisfy her curiosity she walked past the shop where she had been employed formerly by Arthur Mulford. It was vacant and a For Rent sign hung in the window.

"Karl didn't lie about that then!" she told herself, recalling that he had said Mulford had quit the importing business.

Why was she doubting him? Was it really because of Paul's warning? Or because of her own small doubts that she had concealed so carefully the last few weeks?

As she walked down Grant avenue, deep in her own thoughts, a voice surprised her. "Hello, Joan! What are you doing out so early?"

She looked up into the smiling face of Karl Miller.

"What's the matter, liebchen? You look surprised."

It was impossible to doubt him when she was with him. His magnetism banished her fears.

"I am surprised to see you," she admitted.

Joan changed the subject. "By the way, did you see Paul Sherman last night?"

She hesitated for one cautious moment before she said, "Yes, I did." Karl's smile was untroubled. "Ah? I am glad he found you. I sent him after you. I forgot to mention it last night when you got back to the office."

Joan's eyes widened. Karl had sent Paul after her? Certainly Paul had not given her that impression.

"Don't you believe me?" Karl asked softly and Joan felt the color rush into her cheeks.

"Karl, however, did not seem angry. He paid the check and together they walked to where he had parked his car."

It was not until they reached the beach that Karl stopped and said abruptly, "I know what you're thinking, Joan!"

She stared straight ahead into the blue waters of the Pacific. She did not know what to say.

"You are wondering," Karl Miller continued, "why I don't ask you to marry me."

Her heart beat heavily. She could not bring herself to meet those piercing blue eyes.

"Joan!" She felt his hand strong and warm over hers.

"Look at me!" he commanded. Blindly she raised her eyes to his.

"Will you marry me?" She could not believe it. She stared at him as though she had not heard.

"No answer? You do not love me?"

"Oh, Karl! Of course I do!"

"We can't be married for two or three months yet," Karl said. "I want to get the club going first. Then we'll take a long honeymoon, maybe to South America. Would that make you happy?"

Tears trembled in her green eyes. "Happy? I'm so happy I can't speak."

"You must learn to trust me, Joan! I would have asked you before to marry me, but I wanted to be secure financially. You understand?"

"Of course I do, darling! How could she have doubted that? Paul Sherman had been so sure that Karl would not marry her! How wrong he had been! How wrong Sybil had been! Karl had been misjudged by them all."

"I'll never doubt him again," Joan vowed as they drove back to the Club Elite. She sat contentedly with her arm tucked through his.

No girl had ever been so happy as she was at that moment. All fears had been swept away by Karl's proposal of marriage.

When they entered his private office he drew her to him, kissed her and said, "I have a surprise for you."

"What is it?" Her eyes shone like a child's in their happiness.

Karl smiled as he opened his safe and drew out a small velvet box. Snapping open the lid, he took out a ring, a magnificent emerald set in plain platinum. It was a large stone, beautifully cut.

"Oh Karl! Karl! It's gorgeous!"

denied. "I just wondered, that's all."

Joan could not worry about Sybil's meaning now. She could not worry about anything. Karl wanted to marry her! His ring gleamed on her white hand! She could scarcely wait to see Paul Sherman and tell him the good news, but Paul did not appear at the Club Elite that night or for several nights to come.

The days passed rapidly, magically for Joan.

"You'll have to get a new secretary," she told Karl. "My mind is definitely not on my work."

He smiled at her. "There's plenty of time for that later."

And then one night, as Joan sat alone in the office typing, Paul Sherman made an appearance. He was as good-looking, as debonaire and cheerful as ever.

"Did you miss me?" he inquired, grinning at Joan. "Karl sent me out of town."

Joan smiled. She was going to enjoy telling Paul. He had been so sure about Karl, so prejudiced.

"Not much," she informed him airily. "A lot has happened while you were gone."

"Such as what?"

"Karl and I are going to be married," she said proudly.

Paul's expression changed. He advanced towards Joan's desk repeating incredulously, "Do you mean that Karl Miller has asked you to marry him?"

There was something in his face that took the joy out of her announcement but she said calmly, "Yes! You were wrong about Karl."

"I was wrong all right," he agreed savagely. "I suppose nothing I can say now will make any difference."

Joan smiled. "That's right."

"When is the happy event taking place?"

"In about two or three months. We're going away on a long honeymoon."

"Is that so?"

Joan was really annoyed with him now. The least he could do was admit he had been wrong.

"Well, it's your funeral, my girl!" Paul said, and jamming his hat down on his head he bolted out of the office.

Joan smiled as she turned back to her work. Perhaps Sybil had been right. Maybe Paul was in love with her. But he certainly had a peculiar way of showing it.

Sybil seldom mentioned her sister's approaching marriage. She was behaving strangely these days, saying little, staring into space for long periods.

And so life moved on triumphantly until the week before Christmas. It was a rainy, windy winter day and San Franciscans thronged the shops armed with umbrellas and golashes. The stores were open at night now and Joan found herself elbowing her way through the crowd. She had dined downtown preparatory to buying Karl's Christmas present.

"Ten past eight!" Joan exclaimed, glancing at the clock on the corner. "I'll have to come back tomorrow."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for May 31

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

FRIDAY: THE DAY OF SUFFERING

LESSON TEXT—Mark 14:32-34, 44-46; 15:1-5. GOLDEN TEXT—Not my will, but thine, be done.—Luke 22:42.

Suffering such as no man ever faced came upon our Lord in the night between Thursday and Friday as He prayed in Gethsemane. Hatred and condemnation were poured upon Him as He went through the mockery of false trials on Friday. The important events of last week's lesson had taken place, the precious words of comfort and assurance had been spoken, and now as midnight brings the darkness of night to its deepest hue, the Son of Man goes alone into the depth of the garden where we see Him

I. Sorrowful unto Death (14:32-34).

This Scripture portion uses many words to convey the depth of His soul's agony, as though it were impossible to express it in the faulty medium of speech. So it is, for our Lord here experienced something far more serious than a dread of physical death. He was not a coward. He was not afraid to die. But now His soul was about to have put upon its spotless sinlessness the stain and dishonor of the world's sins.

As Krummacker says: "Something approached Him which threatened to rend His nerves and the sight of it to freeze the blood in His veins." Little wonder that He was "sorrowful even unto death" (v. 34). It should break our hearts to see His loving heart break!

Since this was the road the Master trod, should not His servants tread it still? Service for Christ may call for passing through deep and chilling waters, but never as deep or as cold as those of Gethsemane.

Jesus took with Him into the garden the three who were closest to Him in the circle of disciples. He counted on their fellowship and sympathy in His hour of anguish. Merely to have them near Him, to know that they were there to watch and pray even though they could not share His holy burden, was to be a comfort to Him.

How ignominiously they failed. The spirit was willing (v. 38), but the flesh took the upper hand, and they slept! He was alone with His Father when He prayed that if it were possible the hour might pass from Him, but in true and beautiful submission said, "Not what I will, but what thou wilt."

II. Betrayed With a Kiss (14:44-46).

To betray the one who had done nothing but good, who had loved him and served him even in the washing of his feet, this would have been far more than one could have expected of even the sin-blinded heart of a Judas. But he filled the measure of his ignominy to overflowing by betraying his Lord with the sign of affection—a kiss.

We know that we may not stand on the same ground as our Lord even here, for, whereas He had done nothing to merit betrayal, we at our best are not able to stand forth without fault. Nevertheless, great is the hurt when we face the betrayals of life. It may be one whom we have befriended, who has been the object of our loving thought and care, and who in the hour when he thinks to gain himself some advantage or avenge some fancied wrong strikes us in the back, even as he smilingly professes to be a friend. Shall we be embittered in soul and give like for like? God forbid! Let us rather say as Jesus did to Judas, "Friend, wherefore art thou come?" (Matt. 26:50).

III. Condemned by Hatred and Cowardice (15:1-5).

We have only a partial picture of the betrayal of Jesus in our lesson, but it is typical of all that took place, for it reveals the hatred-inspired false witness of the Jews, which, combined with the cowardice of Pilate, resulted in His being condemned to death.

Pilate was convinced of His innocence, but because of the pressure by Jewish leaders he was in a difficult position. He was afraid to follow his convictions, feeling that it was more expedient to yield to the will of the populace. So he lost his great opportunity to write his name large among the heroes of history.

Many there are who follow in Pilate's steps. They know what they ought to do with Jesus, but fearing the comments of friends or the possible loss of earthly advantage, they let Him be crucified afresh by their unbelief.

The Jewish leaders and those whom they had misled hated Jesus with a malicious hatred which made them relentless in their determination to destroy Him. Now they had their quarry at bay and they were determined to close in for "the kill."

They have their present day counterpart in those who have so long rejected Christ that they have become embittered against Him.

Farm Acreage Yield Increase Is Needed

Conservation of Soil Must Still Be Practiced

Greater emphasis on increasing yields to the acre to meet wartime production goals is urged by the wartime committee on conservation at the New York state college of agriculture.

This is recommended in place of expanding tilled land acreage "which should be the last resort," the committee said. Other recommendations include:

Any necessary expansion of acreage for clean-tilled crops should be first on land least subject to soil and water losses.

All agricultural leaders and workers should encourage and help farmers to plant all sloping land on the contour.

Greater use should be made of existing demonstration farms in connection with small community meetings and to show results of various crop practices.

Efforts should be made to have all new sloping orchards and vineyards planted on the contour.

A rough, trashy tillage type of cultivation should be encouraged in sod orchards which will be broken as a source of nitrogen.

Farmers should be encouraged to practice conservation to prevent a recurrence of the tremendous waste of soil resources that occurred in World War I.

The committee making these recommendations consists of agronomists, economists, pomologists, agricultural engineers, and soil conservationists at the college.

AGRICULTURE IN INDUSTRY

By FLORENCE C. WEED

(This is one of a series of articles showing how farm products are finding an important market in industry.)

Sugar Beets

Napoleon might be called the father of the sugar beet industry since he fostered the research by which chemists learned how to extract sugar from beets. In our western states, it is an important cash crop, valued at 63 million dollars annually.

The chief product is refined beet sugar which competes with cane sugar. This infant beet sugar industry has received some government protection through the Sugar Act of 1937 which requires that 23 per cent of our national requirement of sugar shall be the beet sugar variety.

By-products of the industry have not been widely developed. Wet beet pulp from the factories is converted into animal feed and the green beet tops are fed to livestock.

Beet molasses is not palatable as cane molasses is, so it is subjected to the "Steffen process" which recovers a great part of the sugar with the aid of finely ground lime. Molasses which has not been treated, is sold for cattle feed and for the manufacture of yeast and alcohol. Experiments are soon to be made to find ways of utilizing beet pulp as a base in fermentation industries and as a source of pectin and some other acids.

The main beet-producing states in order of their importance are Colorado, California, Nebraska, Michigan, Utah, Wyoming and Montana. Midwest states which have some beet-growing sections are Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and North and South Dakota.

About 80 factories are being operated to produce the 1,500,000 tons of beet sugar used in this country.

Roof Laying Faults

Faults in laying metal roofs and use of improper paints to protect them after being laid will cause trouble or unnecessary expense later on farm buildings.

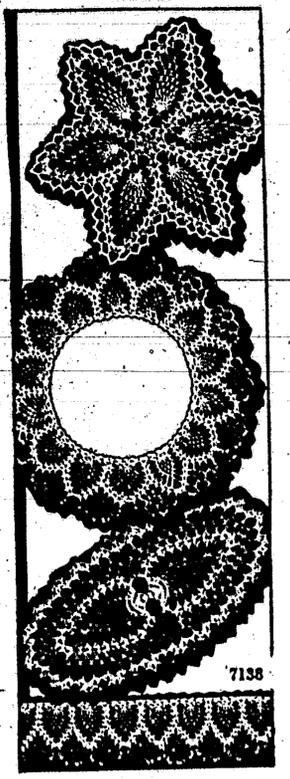

Many metal roofs on farm buildings are laid over slats. G. R. Shier, specialist in agricultural engineering, Ohio State university, says that only corrugated metal has enough stiffness to be laid over slats without courting trouble. Other metal roofing should be placed over solid sheathing.

All types of metal roofing should be nailed every eight inches along the side lap even when the spacing of the sheets makes it necessary to insert short strips to provide places for nailing. It is almost impossible to lay metal roofs which will not leak on nearly flat-topped sheds attached to barns.

Tree Tobacco Insecticide

The possibility that tree tobacco, now a worthless weed in the arid sections of Mexico and southwestern United States, may become a valuable cash crop is seen by United States scientists who have extracted from it anabasine, a valuable insecticide. The product was not discovered in the tree-tobacco plant until 1926, although it had been produced synthetically and found in an Asiatic plant six years earlier than the first test in the U. S.

TIN CANS & IRON

Numerous inquiries have been made regarding the salvaging of tin cans. New Mexico does not have a detinning plant and the transportation of tin cans to plants in other states is not practicable at this time. When this situation is changed, local conservation boards will be notified. A truck will call at every home Saturday, May 30, to gather iron scrap of any and all sorts. Please have your iron scrap gathered and placed near the front gate so as not to detain the haulers. The proceeds of this scrap will go to the Boy Scouts, a worthy organization. Help the Scouts by donating all the old iron you can gather in your yards.
