The deceased was one of the leading businessmen of the Border City, being engaged in the finance business and as such, the attendance at the services was extraordinary. ### BARBECUE SATURDAY

Business Men's Club

The summer hot weather attendance although small, was a very interesting. Several discussions for the public good and welfare took place. The speaker of the evening was Prof. L. Z. Manire, the new school superintendent, who gave his hearers an insight into the different kinds of poison gas which was used in the first world war. He named three kinds of the death-dealing stuff, the most destructive of which was scattered among the grass, weeds and underbrush by retreating armies. The gas remained dormant and inactive until disturbed by marching feet. Then it would arise and smother its victims in a short space of time. He knew how the gas was made, for he was engaged in that part of the war, but he avoided giving us information on that secret. His talk was very interesting.

RETAILERS FOR DEFENSE

Every retail merchant in the United States is called upon to sell as many War Stamps as possible during July. It has been suggested that stores use 5 minutes each day for the exclusive sale of War Stamps. The July drive is of vital importance and there is every assurance that the Retail Merchants of New Mexico will do everything in their power to put it over.

Dr. R. E. Blaney,
County Chairman.

Mitchell vs. McCormick

At the recent Republican meeting at Albuquerque, held Monday, the resignation of C. Y. R. McCormick as National Committeeman, was accepted and Albert Mitchell, former candidate for Governor and Senator, given that post of honor.

First, let us say, that Albert Mitchell has always been loyal to his party. In season and out-of-season—in defeat, which he has suffered two times, has made him more loyal than before, rather than to surrender to the common political enemy, the New Deal. You always know where to find Albert Mitchell and that is with his party 100 percent. Defeat is not failure—in defeat the loser often gains ground. So with Albert Mitchell. In his two races, he has by his loyalty gained the admiration of the opposition on account of his being a man who can be trusted. Men of all political beliefs admire the party man; the man on whom rests the name of being dependable. We delight to say that he will accept the position, and the selection was more than well made.

As to Cyrus McCormick—he, like other so-called Republicans, went over to the New Deal and deserted his post, therefore playing the role of Mussolini with Hitler, wanting to "ride the winner." He also accepted a position as a "dollar-a-year" man with the "joker" on the dollar. In that action he proved himself like Cutting, to be a deserter when his party needed him the worst. We are glad he resigned, for had he not, the party would have asked for his resignation.

We have had our say in that matter. We have defined the difference between the two men. Hurrah for Mitchell!

No More Peanuts

Heretofore, it was next to impossible to buy candy without a certain degree of peanuts. But now, since the Association for the Advancement of Science has decreed that the humble nut contains a valuable source of glycerine for explosives, the administration has ordered growers to increase their acreage 255 percent.

So, for the duration at least, the purchase of peanuts will be impossible. No more will you hear the voice of the peanut vendor at the circus and ball park, says the Christian Science Monitor.

New Rubber From Old to Help Bridge Shortage

When you answer the nation's call for your scrap rubber, here is what becomes of it before it becomes reclaimed rubber, mixed with crude and served up to bridge the shortage. At left you see scrap rubber which has been ground, heated and mixed before being forced through a fine screen to remove dirt. The rubber comes out like spaghetti strings. At right is a pile of finely ground rubber scrap.

A seven-foot high collection of logs, sandbags and dirt, piled to a 45-degree angle, is really no obstacle to these boys at Selfridge Field as they go over the new 230-yard obstacle course, designed to toughen them up. At this side of the obstacle is a four-foot ditch filled with sand. There are hurdles, tunnels and jumps where a miss means a mud-bath.

PRIVATE PURKEY IN LOVE AND WAR

Dear Oscar—This will have to be just a short note, my dear. I am trying to get into the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps and I got crushed in the rush. My right arm was so twisted I can hardly write. I cannot bear to think of you in the service of your country without feeling that I should also do my bit in some way. It would be fine if I got assigned to duty somewhere near enough to see you often, as I miss you terribly. More later.

All my love, Harriet. Dear Harriet—Gee but I am surprised about you and the WAAC and I don't know if I like it or not. It is a fine thing for you to do I guess but it sort of makes it look like you did not have complete confidence in me to win this war. I mean all your letters up to this time indicated you was satisfied with the part I was doing and not that you thought you should get in and make sure everything went okay.

And another thing, Harriet, is this. We are having enuff trouble corresponding when only one of us is in the army and it would be twice as confusing if we was both being switched around the globe. It is bad enuff when you ain't sure where I am but it would be worse if you didn't know where you was neither and vice versa.

Now, Harriet, if you have made up your mind I suppose it is no sense arguing but all I hope is that you have thought it all over carefully first. I read in the paper that the women's army is to go on hikes and be trained a good deal like any army and I am awful worried about your feet. I remember you never was much good at long walks and I cannot bear the idea of you being out in the hot sun all day with your feet hurting.

I warn you that army life is awful tough on dogs. It is bad enough on a man's dogs which is tougher than a girl's dogs anyhow and I do not think girl's feet is meant for such work. I warn you also to ask about guard duty and k.p. detail, Harriet. Find out if you got to do these things in a woman's army. And if you have I am sure you would want no part of it. Guard duty means you got to go out and walk between two posts sometimes all night and you won't see nobody. You will hear the darndest noises and it is two creepsy for any girl, especially one who is as nervous as you. I remember you are a little jumpy in the dark even when I am with you and so how would you feel all alone, Harriet?

Now k.p. duty is going around picking up all waste papers, butts, etc., all over the camp and peeling vegetables and it is no job for a girl who is not used to it and I remember your mother always said you hated to help in the kitchen at all and did not exactly like house cleaning either. Of course I have not got the lowdown on the women's army and do not know what you would half to do but I am just warning you.

Sergeant Mooney says you would have to do all that a man does in a army except to fight. But I read in a paper that you would be detailed most to light duties which I hope is true on account of I have enuff to do worrying about what shape I am in without worrying about you, Harriet.

So think it all over and as the old saying goes look before you become a rolling stone. Write me a long letter.

Love, Oscar.

All stores will sell war bonds and stamps and nothing else for 15 minutes on July 1. And there will, of course, be the shopper who will want a discount for cash and ask that they be sent.

Another dimout victim is the actor who now has to sign up at so much per week and his name in the distinguished lights.

Private Purkey's old man who rebuked the other day for oversteering explained: "I'm developing my second front."

It is Emma Wade who tried to assist in the New York dimout by coming downtown at night and wearing dark glasses.

WHO is the most colorful of the legions of baseball players who have graced the big league scene? While there may be a few other nominations, Babe Ruth still gets the nod from an overwhelming majority of baseball addicts. The Bambino never will be forgotten. His natural place was in the spotlight.

Twenty-eight years ago Babe reported to the Boston Red Sox as a left-handed pitcher. He wasn't too happy in the role, which prevented his playing every day. He liked to perform in the outfield. But the Sox won the American league pennant in 1915 with Ruth's pitching assistance. They repeated in 1916, and in the series of that year, Babe started his astonishing series of hurling 29 consecutive series innings without allowing a run.

This shutout pitching performance was at the expense of the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1916 and the Chicago Cubs two years later. Starting against the Dodgers, he gave them one run the first inning, then blanked them for the following 13.

In 1918 he shut out the Cubs for the regulation nine innings of the first game. He came back in the fourth game for seven more scoreless innings. He was relieved in the ninth frame, having pitched wild ball. But he finished the game in left field.

Ruth has a 29-year lifetime batting average of .346. He hit more than 800 home runs, including those poked out in exhibition games. He accounted for 88 home runs in 1927, batting in 164 runs and hitting .356.

But the Babe is just as proud of his pitching record. He claims the best five-year or lifetime pitching average in the game. And he includes Mathewson, Cy Young, Alexander, Ed Walsh, Walter Johnson and all the rest. Although he was allowed to pitch only five years, his average was around .700.

In 1919, his bat accounted for 29 homers, then a major league record. The manager of the Red Sox was Ed Barrow. He and Owner Harry Frazee sold Ruth to the Yankees for a record price of $100,000 and $35,000 worth of ball players. Then Barrow followed Ruth to the Yankees, becoming business manager under Col. Jacob Ruppert.

With the Yanks, Babe switched to the outfield and electrified the sports world with his sensational hitting. In 1921 he poked out 59 home runs. He was rewarded with a $52,000 salary for 1922.

But the next season his hitting fell off. Baseball writers termed his the "busted phenomenon." Then, in 1923 he came back with a .393 average and 41 home runs.

Ruth's worst season came in 1925. En route home from spring training, the Babe collapsed and spent weeks in a hospital from the combined effects of indigestion and influenza. When he returned to active duty he staged a rip-roaring row with Manager Miller Huggins. The Babe was fined $5,000 for "misconduct off the playing field"—the stiffest fine ever charged against a player. Again he was considered through. He had hit only 290 and had totaled only 25 home runs.

Once more Ruth silenced his critics. In 1926 he paced one of the greatest teams in baseball history into the first of three straight pennants. He batted .372 and hit 47 home runs. The next year he was responsible for the greatest slugging record of all time—60 home runs.

According to Hugh S. Fullerton, one of the greatest of all baseball writers, Babe was a "careless, reckless, innocent-minded overgrown boy and always tried to please where small boys were concerned. He once umpired a game between two 'kid' teams and had to be rescued by police when more than 10,000 youngsters crowded around to shake his hand."

Although he cost the Yankees $125,000, the Babe repaid the club many times over. His lure at the gate was responsible for Yankee stadium—"the house that Ruth built."

Today the Babe probably would give half of his possessions to be back in the big leagues. But the memory of his past deeds should prove sufficient solace.

SPORT SHORTS

Only 702 of the 5,000 golf clubs in the country are members of the U. S. Golf association.

Don Buffmire of Grand Rapids, Minn., sophomore on Northwestern university's track team, will captain the 1943 squad.

Ray Lamanno, recruit catcher for Cincinnati, drove in seven runs in one inning in 1938. Playing with Muskogee in the Western association, he hit two homers in the same inning, once with three men on, the other with two on.

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

METRO'S "Mrs. Miniver" will probably be one of the best remembered war pictures that have reached the screen, not merely because it is well directed (by William Wyler) and superbly acted, but because it deals with a typical family, facing the war at home. It vividly presents the sort of situations that we might have had to deal with in this country. Incidentally a "Mrs. Miniver" rose has been developed, named for the one in the picture; it is dedicated to "the unselfish and sterling qualities of American women in the war," women like the one whom Greer Garson plays so movingly in the film. Don't miss "Mrs. Miniver!"

Buddy Clark, young baritone of radio's "Hit Parade," has an important role in RKO's "Sweet or Hot," starring Lucille Ball and Victor Mature. His comedy specialties and songs last year won him one of the highest individual ratings on radio listener polls, but in the picture he'll do more than sing; with Peter Lind Hayes and Arnold Stang he'll play an army buddy of Mature's.

Alan Ladd attracted plenty of attention and favorable comment during his stay in New York; as part of the campaign to introduce this new leading man to the public Paramount can consider the trip a success. But all the girls who eyed him admiringly realized that it was a case of "Hands off!" Mrs. Ladd (the former Sue Carol, once a movie star) was with him, and they're devoted.

Joan Crawford is one screen maverick who wants her daughter to follow in her footsteps. Looking at golden-haired Christina, now three, she remarked: "If she isn't an actress I'll be the most disappointed person in the world."

Russell Hoyt, handsome 24-year-old North Carolina traveling salesman signed by RKO, reached Hollywood without a lot of dramatic experience. A friend, an agent and a talent scout were responsible, and he got a contract without even making a test.

Gary Cooper can spend his vacation traveling with the San Francisco Seals as the ball team's assistant manager if he wants to. He was invited by Lefty O'Doul, the manager, who taught him to bat and throw left-handed for "The Pride of the Yankees."

As part of his war work, Ronald Colman is making three films this year; during the past six years he's made only one a year. The bulk of his income will go to the government in taxes. During the last war he served with Kitchener's "Companions," saw action at Ypres, was wounded at Messines, and he holds the Medal with 1914 bar. His next picture is "Random Harvest."

Eric Blore celebrated his 50th picture role when he began work in Paramount's "Happy Go Lucky," which stars Mary Martin and Dick Powell. Once on the London stage, with time out for serving in the last war, he's been in demand in Hollywood since 1934.

Warren Hull, Parks Johnson's new "Vox Pop" partner, is instantly recognized by young radio followers as "The Green Hornet," a role he played in a screen serial. He was besieged by juvenile autograph hunters in an Alexandria, Va., store.

Phil Baker ought to be happy; the one thing that visitors to New York seem to want more than anything else is tickets to his "Take It or Leave It" broadcast.

ODDS AND ENDS—Edward G. Robinson of "Big Town" has taken up horseback riding at his ranch behind Beverly Hills. . . . No actor changes leading ladies more often than Tim Holt; his new one, in "Son of the Saddle," is Ann Summers, a newcomer. . . . Khaki-clad Staff Lieutenant Hopper passes out loud when she aids the treasury department in selling war bonds—she they recognize her as Marsha Hunt; she was her married name when in uniform. . . . Eddy Langner does a starring routine in "Whoopee"—in a song. . . . Keep your eye on Helmut Dineke, who gives an outstanding performance as a German star in "Mrs. Miniver."

PREPAREDNESS

NEWEST of all the American Red Cross activities is the Wool Conservation program. Under it, volunteers from the more than 3,700 Red Cross chapters throughout the nation collect scraps of new, unused wool and place them in reprocessing channels.

The Wool Conservation program was developed jointly by the War Production board and the Red Cross when it became apparent that the nation faced a serious wool shortage. There were only two ways in which this shortage could be alleviated within the next year. The first was by cutting down wool consumption in every possible way by restyling and redesigning garments to save wool. The second was to have every scrap of new, unused wool reprocessed as rapidly as possible. The Red Cross was selected to do this job.

Under the agreement between the Red Cross and the War Production board, the 3,700 Red Cross chapters arrange for the collection of trousers cuff clippings, wool samples and other wool clips from tailors, men's clothing stores, department stores, clothing manufacturers and cleaners. These are then placed in reprocessing channels by selling them to wool reclaiming firms.

When reprocessed into wool cloth, the clippings from 21 pairs of men's trousers will be enough to make a complete soldier's uniform or another civilian suit. One Red Cross chapter in a large city collected enough wool clips in one day to make 1,755 soldiers' uniforms.

Proceeds from the sale of the wool clips collected under the Wool Conservation program are retained by the local Red Cross chapters to carry on their work of War Relief and Civilian Defense Preparedness training.

Prepared Exclusively for WNU.

War-time Problem Solved

Necessity has forced the American people to do many new things. While in the past many bird lovers have raised canaries at home for the pleasure and satisfaction they derived, now the breeding of canaries at home has become a new, worthwhile hobby—a money-making hobby that is spreading all over this country.

With the major supplies of canaries from abroad abruptly stopped . . . with a strict wartime ban placed on the importation of hundreds of thousands of canaries formerly shipped yearly from Central Europe and Asia, the ingenuity and foresight of the American people have met the situation with smiles of satisfaction—as they turned this canary shortage into a wartime opportunity.

But a small out-lay was required to start this worthwhile hobby—turning a most pleasurable undertaking into a profitable, money-making business at home.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Spread a thin layer of orange marmalade or apricot jam on baked pancakes. Roll quickly and sprinkle with confectioner's sugar. Serve with pineapple syrup for breakfast or luncheon.

To prevent marmalade from graining, do not boil it too fast and take it off the stove as soon as a little of it jellies on a cold plate. Be careful that you have pure sugar for this and all preserves.

When frying in deep fat use a heavy aluminum kettle. It holds the heat and does not tip over easily. Use a wire basket to transfer food from and to hot fat.

When the corrugations on the wheels of your lawn mower wear out, take a rattail file and renew them. This will give your mower better traction.

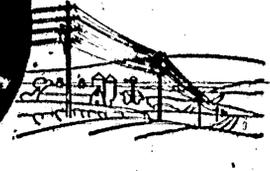

Lemon juice sprinkled over alligator pear salad just before it is served improves the flavor.

Fine grained sandpaper will remove surface spots from white felt hats and will raise the nap on felt hats that have been caught in the rain. For white straw or fabric hats, try art gum.

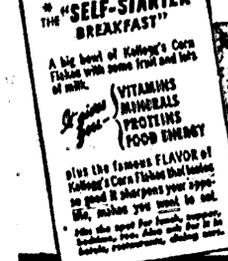

When a splinter has gone very deep into the flesh try extraction by steam. Heat a wide-mouthed bottle and fill it two-thirds full of very-hot-water-and-plate-under the injured spot. The suction draws the flesh down when a little pressure is used, and the steam in a few minutes removes both splinter and inflammation. This method is particularly good when the splinter has been in for some time.

CARL WILLIAMS is a telephone company "troubleshooter". That's a job that's tough and plenty dangerous. Mr. Williams says: "I've got to be alert and on my toes every minute I'm working. ## NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

BY RUTH WYETH SPEARS

MOST quilts today are planned as bedspreads and have a color scheme to harmonize with other decorations. If a variety of figured scraps is used one color is generally repeated in each block to give the design unity.

The beauty of any quilt is enhanced if it is set off with a valance around the bed. The bed in the sketch had no particular tradition and the footboard was much too high to display the quilt to advantage. What a difference in the effect when the board was cut down and the crisp frills of dotted Swiss were added! Surely, any quilt worth piecing is worth this extra touch.

Big Wind From Motor
The army air force's new $2,500,000 wind tunnel at Wright Field near Dayton is equipped with a 40,000 horsepower, alternating-current induction motor that develops a 400-mile-an-hour wind, says Collier's. Largest of its kind ever constructed, this motor cannot be turned on until notice has been given to the electric company, so it may be prepared for this load, which is equal to the capacity of one of its largest generators.

Fortunately Hole in Barrel Was Discovered in Time
The particular unit in question had taken on a large number of new recruits and some of them were a little raw. During the first rifle inspection, the officer approached one of the men, had a look at his rifle, and then called to the N.C.O. in charge. "Look at this man's rifle!" he announced. The sergeant looked down the barrel, swung the rifle around to the recruit, and barked: "Take a look at that rifle, you!" The recruit peered carefully down the barrel, then muttered in a surprised tone: "Well, what do you know. Got a hole clean through it!"

NOTE: If you have a metal bed that you would like to modernize you will find sketches and directions in Mrs. Spears' Book 2. There are eight of these booklets of 32 pages of things to make from odds and ends which accumulate around the house, or from inexpensive new materials. Copies are 10 cents each and with an order for three (No. 1 to 3) you will receive a set of three different quilt block patterns including the Wind! Wind illustrated herewith. Send order to:

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The giant four-motored Navy Patrol Bombers are the world's most powerful planes. They cost approximately $700,000 each. The Navy also has a lighter Bomber called the Scout Bomber which costs about $143,000 apiece.

The battle for Britain was almost lost because England had none of these giant four-motored planes with which to fight back. We need thousands of them and they are coming off the assembly lines in our production plants at a high rate of speed today. You can help buy these for your Navy by purchasing War Bonds and Stamps every pay day. Put at least ten percent into Bonds or Stamps and help your county go over its quota.

ALEUTIANS: Fogg Details

When the Jap radio announced that Nipponese troops had made a landing on the Aleutian Islands there was no immediate denial by the U. S. government. For the navy had to wait for the fog to clear in that area to check these claims. When the weather turned better it was found that enemy landings had been made on the island of Attu, at the extreme tip of the island group which stretches off Alaska in the Pacific ocean. Also Jap ships had put into Kiska harbor on an island nearer the North American mainland.

Navy "operations" were called into play immediately to squelch any threat of a Jap drive for Alaska. It was believed that the landings took place at the time of the first raid on Dutch Harbor and about the same time as the beginning of the Midway island battle.

Rear Admiral John H. Towers, U. S. navy chief of the bureau of aeronautics, classed the Jap thrust as of "no real importance" and figured that it could even become a liability to the enemy.

WAR INFORMATION: Gets an Overhauling

At long last there came word from Washington that all the information functions of the government agencies were being consolidated by the creation of an "Office of War Information" to be headed by Elmer Davis, well-known writer and radio commentator.

All the duties and activities of the Office of Facts and Figures, the Office of Government Reports, the division of information for the Office of Emergency Management and the foreign information service of the co-ordinator of information, will be under the authority of the new office, according to a White House announcement.

Further, Director Davis will have "full authority to eliminate all overlapping and duplication and to discontinue in any department any informational activity" which is not necessary or useful to the war effort. Under policies laid down by the President this office will "issue directives to all departments and agencies of the government with respect to their informational services."

This means that while the various agencies and departments will still continue to operate, their activities must now conform to such direction as the Office of War Information may give them.

The presidential order provided for close collaboration between Byron Price, director of censorship, and Davis to "facilitate the prompt and full dissemination of all available information which will not give aid to the enemy."

HOUSING: 'Conversion Loans'

With a term as long as seven years, a new type of "war conversion loan" up to $6,000 is available for converting an existing structure into additional living accommodations for war workers in war production areas.

This new type loan was announced by Federal Housing Commissioner Ferguson at the same time it was revealed that during the first five months of 1943, 70,336 new dwellings were started in war housing areas. New home programs generally are from 38 to 48 per cent lower than a year ago.

HIGHLIGHTS in the week's news

COMMUNICATION: The house ways and means committee has approved an increase of at least 50 per cent in the tax on telephone and telegraph charges of all kinds. REIGNITION: In order that a younger man might take his place, Mr. Harry Luke, British governor of the Fiji Islands and high commissioner of the western Pacific since 1940, has resigned.

RUSSIA: Diplomacy and Death

In Russia, even as the "citizens army" took up arms to defend to the death their city of Sevastopol, word came from Washington, Moscow and London that gave them cause for cheer although their immediate fate was darkened.

It was the word that the Soviet Union and the United States had reached a "full-understanding" with regard to the urgent tasks of opening a second European front in 1942. After a conference between Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov and President Roosevelt in Washington, methods of speeding U. S. war aid to Russia were developed and the fundamental problems of post-war co-operation to safeguard "peace and security" were decided upon.

The state department of the United States had further good news for the Russian people. It was that a lease-lend agreement similar to that signed between the U. S. and Britain as well as China, had been entered into with the Soviet.

The good news from London was that Russia and Britain had signed a 20-year mutual assistance pact.

But in the Sevastopol area and around Kharkov the Nazis continued their pounding at Russian lines. Civilian morale was good, said Moscow reports.

BOTTOMS UP: For Jap Navy

Eight Japanese aircraft carriers—at least half of that country's known carrier power—were sunk or so badly damaged in the Midway and Coral Sea battles that they will be unfit for early action, informed naval sources have estimated.

Based on communiques issued by the U. S. army and navy and Allied headquarters, capital ship losses of Japan and the United States from December 7 up to and including the Midway battle are as follows:

Table with columns for JAPAN and UNITED STATES, listing battleships, aircraft carriers, and seaplane tenders.

The official communiques concern only those ships whose loss is unquestioned. Unofficial reports include ships whose loss, though unverified, is fairly certain.

TREASURE HUNT: This Time Rubber

Although it was only one cent a pound, that fact didn't stop Americans from stripping their homes, garages and factories of every available pound of idle and (to them) useless rubber.

The rubber salvage program got under way upon President Roosevelt's order. Collected by the nation's gasoline filling stations, the scrap rubber is being transported to central collection points by petroleum industry trucks and sold to the Rubber Recovery corporation.

Undersecretary of War Patterson reported that army and navy crude rubber requirements during the 21 months after April 1, 1942, will be 900,000 tons, compared with the present U. S. reserves of 600,000 tons. He said he hoped the difference would be made by the synthetic program. WPB Rubber Co-ordinator Newhall stated that the synthetic program will produce 30,000 tons in the rest of 1942 and 300,000 tons during 1943.

HEROES: Visiting Washington on a tour of the nation in behalf of war bond sales 15 American and British war heroes paid their respects to President Roosevelt and congress. At the White House, President and Mrs. Roosevelt and British Ambassador Lord Halifax were on hand to greet them. On Capitol Hill they were greeted in the house chamber and by senate members.

VENGEANCE: Promised Czechs By President

In a broadcast from London, Czechoslovakian President Eduard Benes promised that, following the war, military law, including the death penalty, will be imposed on all Nazis responsible for the "bestial destruction" in the Czech nation. Benes declared flatly that on the first day of victory the policy of personal responsibility would be carried out mercilessly against all exponents of the Nazi party and the Reich government on Czech territory, beginning with the former protector, Baron von Neurath, all leaders of the Gestapo and SS formations, and all Germans in the political and military administration of Bohemia and Moravia.

In Washington, Jan Masaryk, Czechoslovakian vice premier and foreign minister, urged destruction of "several" German villages by air bombardment in retaliation for the wiping out of the Czech town of Lidice. (Lidice was eradicated as a reprisal measure for the killing of Reinhard Heydrich, Reich protector for Bohemia and Moravia.) "To my mind," said Masaryk, "it should be ten teeth for one and ten eyes for one."

CHINESE FRONT: Nancheng Falls

On the Chinese front the Japanese drive in Kiangsi province had advanced 100 miles and forced the defenders to evacuate the town of Nancheng, bringing the Japanese within 125 miles of closing the gap between their eastern and western forces.

Dispatches stated that the Chinese had recaptured the town of Tsung-jen, approximately half way between Nanchang, Jap Kiangsi base, and Nancheng.

A Domei news agency report claimed that Japanese troops, advancing rapidly, have occupied Kwangtung, 18 miles southwest of Yushan.

Japanese forces northeast of Wu-jing were reported to be under severe attack, and Anyi, west of the Jap base of Nanchang, was under siege.

SYNTHETIC RUBBER: And 'Cracking'

U. S. chemists have perfected a new petroleum "cracking" process for making high-grade aviation gasoline that should also help break the bottleneck in synthetic rubber production, according to the War Production board.

The same refining plant turning out aviation gas would be able also to turn out butadiene, a vital ingredient in making synthetic rubber, according to this announcement. Although both these products come from the same petroleum base, up to now they have been produced in separate operations.

Plants which can handle the production of 120,000 tons of synthetic rubber from butadiene will be in use before January 1, 1943, but until this new process was discovered, there were grave doubts as to whether or not a sufficient supply of butadiene to keep them going could be supplied.

It is believed that the new process will permit just that.

LIBYA: Tanks at Tobruk

Bir Hacheim in Libya had fallen and the British thought this might slow somewhat the desert thrust of the Nazi forces aimed at Tobruk but on came the tank army of Col. Gen. Erwin Rommel. Forgotten was the fact that last year the British had held that city throughout the Libyan campaign and had made history during its siege.

There were mine fields and strong barbed wire defenses stretching almost 15 miles around the city and at its back door was the Mediterranean sea. But it was at the center of the land front that Rommel threw his heaviest tanks. These were met by British soldiers at the controls of American-made "General Grant" tanks, most successful weapons yet found to harass the mechanized units of the enemy.

There was some speculation at first as to whether or not Rommel might try a flank thrust to reach the sea to the east or west of the city but from the start of the battle the fate of Tobruk hinged on a frontal drive itself. This fact stood out, experts said, because Rommel was intent on taking the city itself and thus avoid the risk of leaving it as a British "scor-spot" as it proved to be last year.

MANPOWER:

Industry and the armed forces must forget the "quest for the 'ideal man' for every job," according to Selective Service Director Harnsey, who said the time was not far off when all men and women will be needed and Selective Service will touch the "fringe of men deserted... because of dependency." Congress had acted to raise the base pay of army men to 300 per month and the plan for authorizing assistance to dependents of members of the armed forces cleared.

Saviors of the Flag

WHEN a press dispatch carried the news recently that an army captain and three enlisted men had braved heavy Japanese fire to restore the American flag atop a 100-foot pole on siege-bound Corregidor, it sent the editorial writers scurrying to their history books to look up the name of a soldier who performed a similar heroic deed during the Revolution. So the story of the defense of Fort Sullivan, during the month of June, 1776, was old again and once more Americans were reminded of one of their almost-legendary heroes.

He was Sgt. William Jasper and beside his name in the annals of America are now written, as "saviors of the flag," the names of Capt. Arthur E. Huff of St. Louis, Mo., Corp. Louis A. Roark of Gypsum, Kan., and Privates Roy O. Bailey of Kansas City, Mo., and Harley H. Leaird of Durant, Okla. For their feat at Corregidor they were awarded the silver star decoration. What their fate has been is unknown at the time this article is written, for Corregidor no longer flies the flag which they rescued. They may be prisoners of the Japanese, or they may have died gloriously in that last battle, just as did Sergeant Jasper in his last battle.

Jasper was born in South Carolina about 1750 and soon after the outbreak of the Revolution enlisted as a sergeant in the Second South Carolina regiment, commanded by Col. William Moultrie. Early in June, 1776, when a British land and naval force under Sir Henry Clinton and Admiral Sir Peter Parker appeared off the Carolina coast to invest Charleston, Moultrie was trying to complete a fortress on Sullivan's Island at the mouth of the harbor.

On the morning of June 28 five ships of the British armada sailed in close to the unfinished fort and opened a furious fire. Moultrie had only a limited supply of ammunition, so his return fire was very light compared with that of the enemy. In the midst of the bombardment a shot struck the staff from which flew the South Carolina banner—a blue flag, with a crescent moon in the upper corner—and it fell to the bottom of the ditch outside the entrenchments. A great cheer went up from the British men-of-war when they saw the patriot's flag go down.

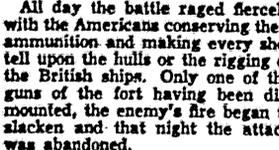

But the next moment Sergeant Jasper had sprung from an embrasure, seized the flag, tore it from its shattered staff and tied it on to the staff of a sponge which he had been welding as he helped serve one of the guns of the fort. Then he sprang back to the parapet and, amid a hail of enemy fire, supported it there until another flagstaff had been secured to take its place. And above the roar of the cannonade could be heard the cheers of the Americans acclaiming the sergeant's deed!

All day the battle raged fiercely with the Americans conserving their ammunition and making every shot tell upon the hulls or the rigging of the British ships. Only one of the guns of the fort having been dismounted, the enemy's fire began to slacken and that night the attack was abandoned.

In recognition of his brave act, Sergeant Jasper was presented by Governor Rutledge of South Carolina with his own sword. The governor also offered him a lieutenant's commission but Jasper declined the honor because he could neither read nor write. However, Moultrie was so impressed with his daring that he gave the sergeant a roving commission and allowed him to select six kindred spirits to carry out raids against the British.

Jasper proved to be a successful partisan leader. His daring career came to an end on October 9, 1778. During the assault on the Spring Hill redoubt in the attack on Savannah by the American and French forces, led by General Lincoln and Admiral D'Estaing, Jasper was mortally wounded while attempting to fasten the regimental colors to the parapet. A square in the city of Savannah and a county in Georgia perpetuate his name.

William Moultrie, his commanding officer, was destined to have a longer and more distinguished career. In commemoration of his bravery in defending Fort Sullivan, the fort was later named Fort Moultrie. Soon afterwards he was commissioned a brigadier general in the Continental army and placed in charge of military affairs in Georgia and South Carolina where he repeatedly distinguished himself in battle against the British and Tories. In April, 1779, he again saved Charleston from being captured by a British force under General Prevost.

Transportation Pools Requested

Program Planned Has Vital Double Purpose

The Office of Defense Transportation and the United States department of agriculture asked farmers throughout the country to co-operate in a comprehensive program for conservation and more efficient use of farm trucks and automobiles.

Because of the rubber shortage, the limited supply of new vehicles and the increasing scarcity of repair parts, farmers are urged to use their trucks and cars as little as possible.

The two government agencies recommended that farmers not only eliminate unnecessary driving but also form transportation pools both

Some of the attractive colorful rooms in modern homes are made with wall board of pressed sugar cane. Time was when no one knew what to do with sugar cane bagasse after the sugar was extracted. Tons were either destroyed or burned as fuel in the sugar mills. Then industrial chemists found a way to press the cane refuse into long fibers, to felt and weave it into long board sheets.

Chemists have also found that a cheap molding compound can be made from bagasse. By grinding the cane to a powder, combining it with chemicals, the substance can be molded into flat panels or floor tiles.

Backers believe that this low cost molding compound will enable the plastics industry to branch out into broader fields such as the manufacture of furniture, building materials and parts for automobiles since it can be made for less than half the cost of the cheapest synthetic compound known.

SHE LOVED A SPY

by SYLVIA TAYLOR

THE STORY SO FAR: Joan Leland, secretary, falls in love with her handsome night club employer, Karl Miller. Her sister, Sybil, does not trust Karl but Joan defends him blindly. Paul Sherman, his manager, offers Joan friendship and warns her against Karl, but refuses to give reasons. Believing a mysterious message for Karl late at night, Joan secretly notices Paul trailing her. Karl shoots his partner, Eric Strom, and asks Joan to pick up the gun. He then reminds her of her finger-prints on the gun and threatens to charge her with murder unless she does as he wants. Paul Sherman, to her surprise, agrees with him. Karl admits he is not a U. S. citizen and has a wife in Germany. Later Paul confesses to Joan that he is Paul O'Malley, of the FBI and part of the force trying to trap the higher-ups of the spy ring. Joan finds a terrified note from Sybil and she and Paul suspect that Karl is holding her as hostage for Joan's good behavior. Joan agrees to carry on her work, but to secretly help Paul and the FBI. The police call at the office next day with Sybil's clothes and a suicide note found near her bridge. Joan wants to accuse Karl then but Paul prevents her.

New continue with the story.

She was comforted by his sympathetic shoulder. She needed someone to talk to so much, now that Sybil was gone.

CHAPTER XI

"Yes!" Joan cried with determination. "And I'll be all right from now on." She lifted her chin bravely.

"That's swell," Paul said with admiration as they entered the apartment. "You've got more nerve than any girl I ever saw."

"Paul, why didn't the men at police headquarters know who you were?"

He laughed. "My dear girl, the reason they sent me out here was that I am not known by the local police. We have to work in absolute secrecy."

"Where is your real home?" Joan asked curiously.

"Brooklyn," Paul laughed. "I was born and raised there. Technically I work in Washington but I'm usually off on an assignment."

"Was Eric really Karl's partner?" Joan inquired.

Paul shrugged. "Probably just a title. I don't know who actually put up the money but I am certain that Eric worked under Karl."

"And Karl works under some other person?"

"Right! And someone else who will bear watching is this Mrs. Murdock who supposedly owns the beauty shop where Sybil worked."

Paul had scarcely finished speaking when the doorbell rang. Joan and Paul exchanged glances.

"Karl!" Joan cried in alarm, but Paul shook his head.

"I don't think so," he said, going to the door.

A middle-aged woman, well-dressed, rather heavy-set, with dyed black hair and expressionless black eyes, stood waiting.

"May I see Miss Leland?" she inquired. "I am Mrs. Murdock."

Joan rose quickly from her place by the fire. Mrs. Murdock! Sybil's employer!

"Do come in," Paul said pleasantly. "I am Karl Miller's manager, Paul Sherman."

Mrs. Murdock nodded her head slightly. "Yes, I know."

"And this is Miss Leland, Sybil's sister."

The three of them sat down by the fire. "I was so sorry to hear of your sister's—unfortunate accident," Mrs. Murdock said delicately.

Joan looked at Paul. These had been Karl's words, "unfortunate accident." But Paul seemed not to notice.

"I feel it my duty," Mrs. Murdock continued tonelessly, "to tell you certain facts. First, that I discharged Sybil two days ago."

"Discharged?" Joan repeated in astonishment. "But Sybil didn't tell me anything about it."

The older woman looked uncomfortable. "Her work was not entirely satisfactory. I was sorry but I had to let her go."

"Sybil was one of the best beauty operators in this city," Joan flared.

"Sybil," Mrs. Murdock went on, "was very upset. She told me she needed the money desperately."

"That isn't true!" Joan snapped. Mrs. Murdock shrugged. "That is what she told me. When I told her that I was letting her go she became hysterical and threatened to do away with herself. I told this to the police when they called on me an hour ago."

"Very kind of you to come to see Miss Leland. She is upset naturally, but it's always better to know the truth." Paul's voice was smooth.

Joan did not look up. Better to let Paul handle this. He went to the door with Mrs. Murdock and watched her disappear down the hall. Then he said, "Well, what do you think?"

"The whole thing's a lie," Joan insisted.

"It fits together too well," Paul admitted. "The truth is seldom that logical. This Murdock woman is undoubtedly involved with Karl."

"How can we prove it? Paul, we've got to do something! Sybil may be alive and in danger."

"We must have patience," Paul told her. "These things don't work out overnight and we can't afford to rush it."

"I know." His understanding broke down her last defense. She hid her face against his shoulder and wept. "But I'll never get over it. Never."

"I'd like to break his rotten neck," Paul said but Joan did not hear him. She was comforted by his sympathetic shoulder. She needed someone to talk to so much, now that Sybil was gone.

December days dragged to a close. Christmas passed. Paul spent the day with Joan, taking her to dinner at a quiet restaurant. They spoke little. Paul attempted to cheer her but his efforts produced little effect.

"Karl said we wouldn't be needed at the Club New Year's Eve. Would you like to go out?"

Joan glanced about the brilliantly decorated restaurant, the shining Christmas tree and light decked wreaths in the windows. "It doesn't seem fair for us to celebrate while we don't know what's happened to Sybil."

"I don't think Sybil would want you to worry. Let's try it anyway. Shall we, Joan?"

"We'll try," she promised. New Year's Eve arrived, clear and cold. Joan wore a green satin dress to match her eyes.

Paul bought her gardenias, waxy pale and fragrant. "You look very lovely, Joan," he told her and she was glad that he had not said "beautiful" . . . Karl always said that.

She made a valiant attempt to enjoy herself and though the evening proved not particularly gay, Joan found Paul entertaining.

"I've been watching Mrs. Murdock's beauty shop," he reported, "and I'm convinced there's something funny about it. Once I thought I saw Karl with her."

"How can you get proof?"

"You are going to have your hair fixed there next week," Paul informed her. "Look the place over and if you see anything suspicious, tell me. You might even try to see Mrs. Murdock in her private office. If there's anything going on, you may find evidence there. Try to be pleasant with her. You probably put her on her guard the last time you saw her."

Joan leaned closer to hear him. The laughing, screaming crowd all around them made conversation difficult. A spray of confetti fell across Joan's shoulder. The blare of trumpets droned in their ears.

Paul smiled. "Let's dance."

Holding her close, he guided her through the mob. It was hard to dance in the crowd but Joan found the happiness of others infectious.

"Any resolutions?" Paul asked, smiling.

"Not one, except maybe never to fall in love again."

"So long as you don't give up your friends."

She smiled at him. "You're the best friend I have, Paul. In fact, you are the only one I have right now."

They laughed and suddenly the lights were dimmed, the bells pealed.

"Happy New Year!" Paul cried. "The same to you, Paul."

"It's good-bye to the past," Joan thought, "Good-bye to Karl and all the things that such a little while ago were important . . ."

And then she saw Karl Miller, handsome, smiling Karl. And he was not alone. A girl clung to his arm, a girl so freshly lovely, so heartbreakingly young that sympathy swept through Joan's heart.

"Look!" she said to Paul. "Karl has a new girl . . ."

As Paul's eyes followed hers, his face grew white.

"What is the matter, Paul?" Joan asked as they stared at Karl Miller and the girl at his side.

"Let's get out of here," Paul said grimly. "I don't want them to see us."

Hurriedly they collected their wraps and left the hotel.

"Can't you tell me what it is?" she begged.

"I'd rather not, Joan, and I have another favor to ask. Would you mind if I took you home? I want to trail Karl and find out where that girl lives."

"Of course! But I'll go home in a taxi," Joan said practically. "They might leave any minute."

He pressed her hand. "You're a grand sport!"

"Good luck," Joan called as she climbed into a taxi which bore her swiftly home. She slept well that night. She felt that she had turned a new page in her life.

On New Year's day Paul did not come to see her and Joan was surprised.

But when Monday came and Paul Sherman did not call for her she was alarmed, when, instead, Karl himself drove her to the club. But she dared not inquire about Paul. Karl did not offer any explanation. He seemed in good spirits.

"By the way," Karl told her, "I am hiring a new singer for the band. Draw up a contract. She will be in later."

Even then Joan was not prepared for the sight of the same slim, lovely girl who had been Karl's dancing companion.

She came in the door a little shyly, but Joan recognized the happy look in her eyes. Joan had once looked that way. Her heart went out to this girl. She couldn't be a day over seventeen.

"Won't you sit down," Joan asked pleasantly. "Mr. Miller will be back in a few minutes."

The girl sat down primly and looked around with admiration. She was dressed in a brown suit and sports hat. Her brown hair hung softly to her shoulders. Her brown eyes were wide and childlike.

"Mr. Miller tells me that you are going to sing here."

"Yes. My name is Pat Hines."

Joan fancied that she hesitated as she spoke her name. "Do you live here?" she asked.

Pat dropped her eyes. "I came from Los Angeles," she explained briefly, adding with enthusiasm, "I'm so grateful to Mr. Miller. He's been wonderful to me. I don't know how I would ever have gotten a job. It was really just luck. You see I noticed his advertisement in the paper for a singer. And I applied and Mr. Miller said I was just what he was looking for."

Joan's green-eyes narrowed. So Karl was playing his little game again!

"How old are you?" Joan asked. "Nineteen."

Joan sighed, sure that she was younger. If only there were something she could do or say to warn this girl. But what? She dared not risk Karl's disapproval now. Too much was at stake. Paul and Sybil! She could not take the chance. She turned back to her typing while Pat sat waiting with an enraptured expression.

Those few minutes did more to cure Joan of her former infatuation for Karl than anything else. Seeing Pat, as she herself had been—seeing Karl playing the same game again—gave her a clearer picture of the situation.

Karl came in almost immediately, smiling as he saw Pat waiting for him. "The orchestra leader tells me your audition was very satisfactory," he said, taking her hand. Pat left the office with Karl, clinging to his arm, radiant-eyed.

"And to think," Joan said savagely to herself, "that I looked like that once!"

That evening she had made an appointment at Mrs. Murdock's beauty salon.

She found the Ritz Beauty Salon an elaborate establishment and an efficient operator arranged her hair with capable fingers. As she sat under the drier she glanced around curiously, but could see nothing unusual.

When her hair was dry, Joan inquired the way to Mrs. Murdock's private office.

Mrs. Murdock did not seem pleased at Joan's visit. She regarded the girl through narrowed eyes, saying, "This is quite a surprise."

"I feel that I owe you an apology," Joan said pleasantly. "I was so upset when you came to see me. I hope you understand." As she spoke her eyes took in the room. There seemed to be nothing strange here either. It was a nicely decorated room, beige rugs, paneled walls and Venetian blinds.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for June 28

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

ALCOHOL FACTS VERSUS DRINKING PROPAGANDA

LESSON TEXT—Proverbs 21:17; 23:32; Isaiah 5:2-3; Hosea 4:11; Joel 3:2, 3; Ephesians 5:18.

GOLDEN TEXT—If sinners entice thee, consent thou not.—Proverbs 1:10.

The facts are on the side of the one who opposes the liquor traffic, and they are so plentiful and so devastating that the industry does not care to face them. Their "best bet" is to use propaganda so skillfully prepared as to disarm the reader. If the propaganda is truthful, it is only because it has to be, and only in that measure.

Our lesson suggests several points in the liquor propaganda, each of which we can prove to be untrue.

I. They Say, "Enjoy Life, That's What We Are Here For" (Prov. 21:17).

Consider the ads of the liquor trade. They carry the beautiful lady, the brilliant young man, the socially correct surroundings, riches, ease, etc. They suggest that even the grandmother in the home approves the use of intoxicants to bring comfort and pleasure to the breadwinner in the home.

What is the truth? Man is not here for pleasure; he is here to serve God. History demonstrates that the nation that lives for pleasure, especially in connection with the use of intoxicants, is doomed to extinction.

II. They Say, "Liquor Is Not Dangerous" (Prov. 23:32).

It is presented as a pleasant and harmless stimulant, when in fact it is known to science, to police and social welfare workers as a narcotic which not only upsets digestion and deranges physical processes but, most vicious of all, "affects personality by its action upon the certain specific brain area. It disturbs, confuses, slows down, and removes the restraints, the checks and balances which make a well-rounded personality. It is the highest functional level of the brain, the personality level, which is first put into eclipse by the action of alcohol" (Carson Taylor).

III. They Say, "Those Who Oppose Liquor Are Fanatics" (Isa. 5:20, 21, 22).

The prophet answers that claim by pointing out that those who favor the use of alcohol are the ones who call evil good and good evil, etc. A little study of liquor propaganda as it appears in the advertising of the industry soon demonstrates that fact. Of late they have been trying to convince us that beer is just a soft drink for the home. Any policeman who has seen a man drunk on beer, and any social or religious worker who has seen the destruction it has wrought in the home and in society, knows that is not true.

IV. They Say, "Strong Men and Leaders Are Drinkers" (Isa. 5:22).

Sadly enough, many of our leading men do indulge in liquor, but if the truth were out, it would be known that they are less capable as leaders and weaker men for their use of it. And who has not seen a leader become a poor dervish by the alcohol route, or a strong man become a jittery mental, moral, and physical wreck in the same way.

The work of a nation in both war and peace is done by sober, steady, trustworthy men who have a "clear head," not because they use a certain whisky but because they do not use it.

V. They Say, "The Pleasure Is Worth Price" (Hosea 4:11; Joel 3:2, 3).

The wicked ones who captured Israel felt they made a good trade when they gave a boy for a harlot, or exchanged a girl for wine. The modern system of making merchandise of boys and girls is not as openly gross as that, but when you figure the cost of alcohol to our land, be sure to add in the girls who have gone into iniquity by the way of tavern hostesses and the boys who have lost everything sacred because of "booze."

Remember too that the beer makers are deliberately using this war to cultivate a taste for beer in millions of young men—their future customers—and we are letting them get away with it, right in the army camps.

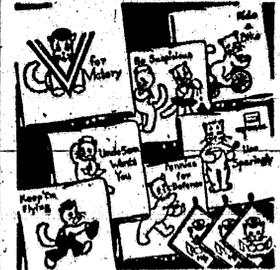

VI. They Say, "Drinking and Religion Go Well Together" (Eph. 5:18).

The contrast of Paul gives that claim the direct brand of falsehood. Being drunk with wine is the exact opposite of spirituality.

Liquor interests know that if church members can be led to believe that wine at dinner, beer as a soft drink—and an occasional social cocktail—is not incompatible with religious life, they will have effectually shut the mouth of the opposition they fear the most—the church.

Let pastors and church boards deal plainly and drastically with drinking church members, and the church will profit spiritually, and again become an effective means of stemming the tide of social iniquity which is engulfing our nation.

What's a musical comedy got to do with winning a war?

PLENTY! We're building an army of men—not machines. And men have minds. And minds need freshening . . . change . . . relaxation.

So one of the biggest undertakings of the USO is its sponsoring of free entertainment, through the cooperation of the movie and theatrical industries, at army camps, naval bases—wherever the fighting men of the USA go to train or dig in.

USO Camp Shows, Inc. is actually the biggest single theatrical enterprise the world has ever seen. It books 264 shows for the boys every week, which play to an average nightly attendance of 50,000.

It contacts movie stars, theatrical headliners, big name bands and their leaders. It routes all these . . . plans their itinerary . . . arranges the most convenient times when soldiers and sailors can take time out to sit and be entertained.

For it realizes that the one great advantage of the American fighting man is his ability to think for himself, to make the most of any situation, to fight as a liberty-loving individual.

And this is one of his great differences from our enemy.

To help carry on the all-important work of maintaining the morale of our fighting forces, the USO needs your help . . . it needs your contribution.

Your dollar has many demands on it this year. Many of these demands must be met—others deserve to be met. And among these latter, the plea of the USO for whatever sum you can contribute merits your earnest consideration.

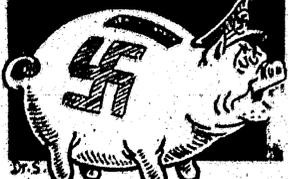

For we have a war to win, and the USO is directly concerned with the men who must—and will—win it.

Dig deep—for the men who are digging in!

Send your contribution to your local chairman or to USO, Empire State Building, New York.

As the war continues, many of our men in the service will be either killed or disabled. The government recognizes that families of these men left dependent, should be cared for, through legislation establishing certain benefits for them. The Red Cross has a moral and legal responsibility to assist these men and families to any benefits to which they may be entitled. The real job is to assist them in their home communities. It is here that the application of home ser-

about the most constructive gov-
