CAPITAN Firemen's Dance A Success

Judge P. E. Christiansen of Capitan came over on business this Monday. Mr. Christiansen reports that the Firemen's Dance, given on the nights of July 3rd and 4th, was a success, both socially and financially. — If you want anything done Queen's Taste, leave it up to the Capitan Firemen.

ODDFELLOWS

Tuesday of this week the I. O. O. F. Lodge of Carrizozo held a joint installation of officers with Alamogordo Lodge at their lodge room. The following members were installed: Marvin Burton, Noble Grand; Colonel Jones, Vice Grand; Glen H. Dorsett, Sec'y; Calvin Carl, Treas. After the installation the members and their visitors retired to the Burnett Cafe for a delicious chicken pie dinner, thoroughly enjoyed by all. Eight members of Alamogordo came up for the installation.

B. B. Mancha of the New Shoe Shop has installed up-to-date machinery in his place of business.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. George Simpson were here from Corona, Monday. Mrs. Simpson attending a meeting of the Lincoln County School Board of which she is a member and George attending the meeting of the Sheriff's Posse that evening.

Mrs. Nellie Reily visited her sister Mrs. Albert Scharf over the 4th of July holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Johnson of the ranch near Three Rivers spent the 4th as guests of their relatives and many local friends.

To Miss Nina Norris of this city—Many thanks for your favor of recent date.

Former S. P. yardmaster Richards is in El Paso, being employed by the railroad at that place.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Garcia and children of Bisbee, Arizona, were here this week to visit the Joe Garcia family. They left for home yesterday morning.

Station Agent C. O. Brewster has been transferred from Mosquero to Pastura, N. M.

We have a letter from our old friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Jenkins, who are visiting at Amarillo, Texas. In reading of the death of Jess Mirabel, who lost his life coming from the Hip-O ranch last week, Mr. Jenkins says there has been some misinformation concerning the ownership of the ranch. He wishes to state that he is the owner and will take possession of the same in November, where he will breed and run some fine thoroughbred horses.

Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Maddux of El Paso, son, Bill of the Douglas Aircraft factory at Glendale, Calif. and Bob Maddux of Aztec, were here last week, spending the 4th with the Felix Ramey family. Mr. and Mrs. Maddux are parents of Mrs. Ramey; Mr. Bob Maddux her uncle and Bill her brother.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Bello and daughter Charlotte of Claunch were here the first of the week and were guests at the A. L. Vigil home.

Bill Lumpkins came in yesterday morning by plane and spent several hours here in the interest of the Civil Service Employment Signal Corps, for which he is an advance agent.

Miss Betty Magruder of Tucumcari is here this week as a guest of her sister, Mrs. Margaret English.

Miss Marye Lewis, who is now a graduate trained nurse, left Wednesday for San Antonio, Texas, where she entered the Robert B. Green Memorial Hospital. Marye has made good and is much interested in her profession. Best of everything, Marye.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Perkins, small daughter and Archie's mother, Mrs. Perkins of Hot Springs passed through here Tuesday to return Mrs. Perkins to her home and incidentally, Archie and Geraldine will, we presume, catch some of the biggest fish which have ever been caught at Elephant Butte Dam, while they are there.

Lincoln County Rodeo Committee

Rodeo Aug. 15 and 16th
in Carrizozo

At the regular monthly meeting of the Lincoln County Sheriff's Posse held Monday night at the Sheriff's office, Bert Pfingsten presided and R. C. Bishop acted as secretary.

After some discussion on things for the good and welfare of the Posse, it was finally decided to hold the regular yearly Rodeo on the dates of August 15-16. Committee members were appointed as follows:

Prizes and Rules: A. F. Stover, chairman. Ralph Bonnell, Tom Karr, members.

Advertising: M. U. Fairley, chairman. A. L. Burke, W. D. Clayton, members.

Livestock: Grady Eldridge, chairman. Peg Pfingsten, F. C. Stover, Friday Sherrill, George Simpson, members.

Grounds: R. C. Bishop, chairman. S. Dawsey Stokes, A. T. Roberts, George Clayton, W. W. Gallacher, members.

Dance: Chairman, Nick Vega, Members, A. B. Zumwalt, O. C. Londen

Rodeo committee—is chairman; of each of the previous committees.

At the Hat Drawing, A. L. Burke was appointed to draw the first ballot, which was No. 12 and the lucky holder was George Clayton.

The office of secretary being vacant, R. C. Bishop was elected to that office by acclamation.

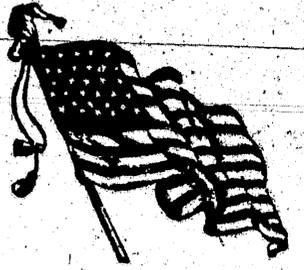

Rodeo dates Aug. 15 and 16th.

Wednesday morning we received a letter from Mrs. Letta Pehrm of Hilldale, Michigan, which is her place of residence. Mrs. Pehrm is a sister of Mrs. Blaney.

By L. L. STEVENSON
As the dim-out regulations continue night after night, more and more apparent becomes the change brought to Broadway by the army order issued for the protection of the lives of our men of the merchant marine as well as ships of the armed forces.

Just what effect the dim-out is having on the night life of the city cannot be determined as yet. Always at this season there is a slump and clubs that have been tottering on the brink fold up in numbers while others continue to struggle along.

Midtown traffic officers have lighter tasks these nights than in the past. Decrease in wheeled traffic, of course, is not entirely due to the dim-out since there are even more important factors.

New York's roof gardens are operating, or will operate, as usual despite the fact that many are above the 15th floor light limit.

The dim-out has brought a problem—a very minor one, true—to those of us who dwell above the 15th floor.

A young woman car owner listened to the troubles of the owner of the garage where she stores her motor.

Just learned that in New York there are between 2,500 and 3,000 apartments that rent for $7,000 or more a year.

High Egg Production While Prices Are Good

Suggestions Given for Improved Pullet Flocks

By H. H. ALP
(Extension Poultryman, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.)

In times of good prices one is not likely to think in terms of losing money, certainly not so much as when prices are low.

Courtesy U. S. Department of Agriculture

It is a smile of Victory this young miss has. For with the eggs from her own chickens for consumption here, and abroad where they are sent in powdered form, the necessary energy to carry on the great fight against the enemy is being partly supplied.

greater than it would be if egg production were low during a period of poor prices.

For good egg production at this season of the year, the pullet flock should have:

- 1. A poultry house which provides four square feet of floor space for each bird.
2. Some form of insulation in the house.
3. A good ration in small feeders, which are freshly filled every day, or at least every other day.
4. Two water containers in a room approximately 20 by 20 feet.
5. A ration featuring some form of milk, whole oats, a good grade of alfalfa, and a vitamin-D oil.
6. A supplemental feeding of moist mash once a day, if necessary. This practice is not essential for all flocks, but in the case of flocks "going stale" or losing weight, and for late, immature pullets.
7. Lights if necessary. Lights might be used in the same situations in which moist mash feeding is suitable. A successful practice has been to use two 10-watt lamps all night in a room 20 by 20 feet.
8. Fresh litter to keep up the spirits of the flock and for the maintenance of health.
9. Regular attention; irregularity plays havoc with egg production.
10. The benefit of some good common sense. It is not bought in bottles and bags.

AGRICULTURE INDUSTRY Peat Moss BY FLORENCE WEED

Peat miners, you might call them, those farmers who are lucky enough to find a bed of peat located on their land.

Most of the beds in this country are located in northern states; Maine, New Hampshire, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Ohio and northern Washington.

Moss, sedge and reed peat are considered safe as a fertilizer for gardens and golf course greens. Other kinds which have an acid reaction and are not chemically adapted to combination with soil are found useful as insulating material, as stable litter, and as an absorbent layer for poultry houses in winter.

Peat mining is not a difficult job. The peat is first ripped up from the earth, shredded in a machine, pressed or dried to get rid of excess moisture, then cleaned and sacked. For some uses, the peat is pulverized to powder. All of these are farm operations that can be done by one man.

Agricultural Notes

Wet mash has been used from the beginning of the poultry industry to encourage the birds to eat more, and to increase or maintain production.

The U. S. department of agriculture has recommended to war emergency officials that increased amounts of dairy equipment be made available to farmers in 1942.

TO YOUR Good Health by DR. JAMES W. BARTON

CANCER OF THROAT

A surgeon friend of mine showed me a patient, 65 years of age, who had consulted him because of a sore throat and persistent hoarseness.

When examined it was found that he had cancer of the throat and, owing to its location, surgery was inadvisable. Accordingly, treatment by radium was given and as I looked into the throat I was amazed at the size of the "hole" left in the throat and the healthy condition of the tissues. The man looked and felt very well.

Had this case gone on a while longer it would have been too late for treatment, yet his only complaint was a slight soreness and persistent hoarseness.

It is because cancer of the throat often comes on with slight soreness only and hoarseness that it is overlooked by the patient and sometimes even by the physician. It is for this reason, therefore, that Dr. Chevalier Jackson and Dr. G. E. Pfahler, Philadelphia, keep reminding us that hoarseness that persists for more than two weeks should be investigated.

"Cancer of the larynx is best prevented by avoiding irritation, excessive or faulty use of the voice, inhaling smoke, dust or fumes. From 70 to 80 per cent of such cancers can be cured if caught in the early stage when only a part of a vocal cord is involved. Danger signals are hoarseness or pain in the larynx."

We may be inclined to become discouraged about cancer because of the general statement, "Until the cause of cancer is discovered there is not much that can be done about it." As a matter of fact, much is known about the cause of cancer in that "irritation," not a single irritation but continuous irritation can cause cancer in any "surface" tissue of the body in some individuals.

Remember, then, that "throat cancers are difficult to prevent and recognize. General warning is swelling or soreness around the throat or tonsils that doesn't improve in two weeks."

If, then, you or any member of your family has a sore throat and hoarseness that does not respond to ordinary home treatment you should consult your physician.

New Treatment Of Stomach Ulcer

For many years the treatment of peptic ulcer—ulcer of the stomach and ulcer of the small intestine into which stomach empties—has been small meals taken often and an alkali powder to overcome the excess acid digestive juice in the stomach. This is known as the Sippy treatment.

It will come as a surprise to ulcer patients and to many physicians also to learn that a series of 41 cases has been successfully treated by a different method. Drs. George F. Dick and C. Wesley Elsie, in the Journal of the American Medical Association, state that the treating of stomach and duodenal ulcers (peptic ulcer) will progress satisfactorily without the attempted neutralization of acidity with alkalis.

"Under hourly treatment with milk and cream without the use of alkalis, the speed of healing of peptic ulcers compares favorably with that under other methods of treatment. Such treatment brought about (1) the prompt disappearance of symptoms and the complete comfort of the patient, (2) the disappearance of blood from the stool when blood was present, and (3) the disappearance of the cavity of the ulcer as shown by X-rays."

These physicians state that while the present treatment of overcoming the excess acid stomach juice by the use of alkalis has been accepted as the "best" treatment nevertheless the fact that different alkalis are being used from time to time for peptic ulcer treatment shows that alkali treatment is not altogether satisfactory.

"In their series of 41 cases, seven were suffering from stomach ulcer and 34 from duodenal or intestinal ulcer. X-ray studies were used to show the progress of the treatment. Seventy per cent of the 'cavities' of duodenal ulcers disappeared within 75 days. Complete relief of symptoms occurred in nearly all cases before the cavity was completely healed. In 31 cases all symptoms were controlled within one week."

The treatment—milk and cream every hour without use of alkalis.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—Are there any Sulfis drugs that are helpful in tuberculosis treatment? A.—The Sulfis drugs are most helpful in acute or early conditions. Their use in chronic conditions is not very successful as yet. Q.—How can nervous spasms of the intestines be treated? A.—Nervous spasms in intestine is due to nervousness or emotional disturbances. Trying to keep calm in spirit and avoiding rough foods will give relief.

Star Dust STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE Released by Western Newspaper Union.

JINX FALKENBURG received an urgent request from a group of soldiers at a U. S. military outpost recently; signing themselves as the boys in "Hut #33, Iceland," they begged her to send them a large picture of herself in a bathing suit, as soon as possible. "We want to put it on the wall for two important reasons," they wrote. "It will give us something interesting to look at. 2.—It will help to keep the captain's eyes busy when he comes around to inspect our quarters." She sent a picture five feet high!

"Once Upon a Honeymoon" unites three of the screen's top figures in the studio where each has previously scored triumphs—RKO Radio. They're Ginger Rogers and Cary Grant, who've both made plenty of hit pictures, and Leo McCarey, producer-director of such delightful films as "Love Affair" and "My Favorite Wife." "Once Upon a Honeymoon" is the kind of thing they all do best.

Thousands of moviegoers, on reading of Elmer Davis' appointment as director of the Office of War Information, recalled seeing him on the screen. To "Information Please" fans he was one of the highlights of the series issued by RKO Pathé.

Bill Stern, NBC director of sports and famous sportscaster, plays himself in Samuel Goldwyn's "The Pride of the Yankees," which stars Gary Cooper and is based on the life of the late Lou Gehrig. Theresa Wright, Walter Brennan and Babe Ruth head the supporting cast. Stern flew from the Coast to participate in the scene showing "Lou Gehrig Memorial day," which marked Gehrig's retirement.

J. Carroll Naish is going to be seen as an ape-man, no less, in 20th Century-Fox's "Buried Alive." It's this company's first effort in the horror line, and just the title promises well. John Shepperd and Lynne Roberts will have the romantic leads.

Resailed Russell is booked for another of these pictures in which she's such a clever and handsome young business woman that she makes business women in the audience green with envy. This one will be "Portrait of a Lady," and the plot (which somehow has a familiar ring) deals with the efforts of a husband to win his wife away from a business career.

"Guerrilla Brigade," the Soviet picture which was shown in New York recently, has been booked by the RKO circuit and is scheduled for national release. This is the first time in some years that a Russian picture has been booked by a major theater chain here.

Those bitter little quarrels between actors and motion picture companies no longer mean what they once did, not since radio's here to stay. When Madeleine Carroll and Paramount disagreed not long ago, the beautiful Miss Carroll merely departed for New York and picked up some engagements to broadcast, at $2,500 each. Paul Muni and his studio parted, so he did a stage play, got $5,000 apiece for several radio performances, then signed with another studio. John Garfield and Warner Bros. disagreed, and radio grabbed him.

William L. Shirer talks to his friend, Edward R. Murrow ("This Is London") every Sunday before their respective broadcasts. The conversation is over a private wire, and the first thing Murrow asks is about the baseball teams.

ODDS AND ENDS—Janet Blair, former singer with Hal Kemp's orchestra and now playing the title role in "My Sister Eileen," is rehearsing the songs for a new comic opera to be presented late this summer in Los Angeles. . . . Melvyn Frank, famous dramatist who's been responsible for many of the Dashiell Hammett stories, has been signed to a new contract by Fox. . . . Bob Burns has a new broadcast made from scraps from F-33 bombers by the boys who build the planes. . . . Donna Reed's wearing the silver wings of a pilot on the first Summer Patrol in the Atlantic. Lt. Donald Arlen, whom she's never met.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

The People's Choice

FIFTY years ago this month occurred an event unique in American political history. For on July 5, 1892, a convention of the Populist, or People's, party nominated Gen. James B. Weaver of Iowa for President. Weaver has the distinction of being the only man who was ever the leader of two different "third parties" and as the head of one of them he received the fourth highest number of electoral votes ever given such a candidate.

Born in Ohio in 1833, Weaver was graduated from the law school of the Ohio university at Cincinnati at the age of 23 and migrated to Iowa to practice his profession. At the outbreak of the Civil war he enlisted in the Union army and came out of it a brigadier general. After the war Weaver returned to Iowa to resume his law practice but was soon called to public office—first as a district attorney and later as assessor of internal revenue.

Dissatisfaction of the farmers with the financial policies of President Grant resulted in the formation, by inflationists who wanted to issue a large amount of paper money without regard to specie payment, of the National Greenback party in which Weaver was a leader. In the campaign of 1876 the Greenbackers nominated Peter Cooper of New York for President but he polled only 80,000 popular votes and failed to receive a single electoral vote.

J. B. Weaver

In the congressional elections of 1878 the Greenbackers did much better. They polled more than a million votes and elected a number of congressmen, among them General Weaver, who served until 1881. In the meantime he was a delegate to the 1880 national convention of his party in Chicago and there became its nominee for President. Because of Weaver's popularity in the West, the Republican party was greatly alarmed over the possibility of his taking away enough votes from them to assure a Democratic victory. But their fears proved groundless for the Greenbackers were able to muster only 350,000 votes and not a single one in the electoral college.

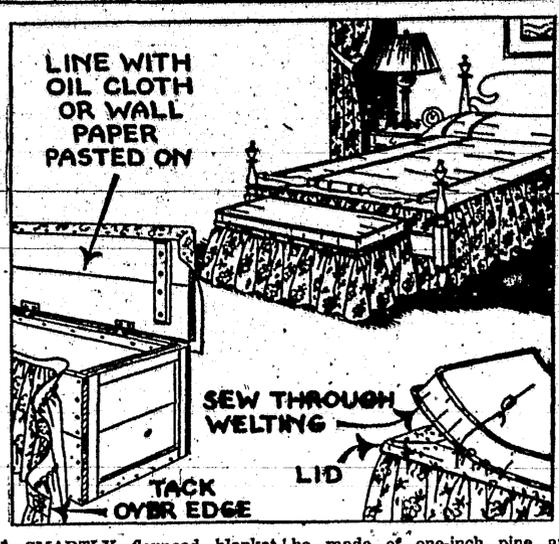

In 1884 Weaver was elected to congress by the Democratic and Greenback-Labor parties, was re-elected in 1886 but defeated for a third term in 1888. Meanwhile, a new "third party" had sprung up to champion the cause of the farmer and the working man and rapidly gained adherents. In the state and congressional elections of 1890 this Populist, or People's party carried the legislatures of Kansas and Nebraska, elected nine members of congress and forced 34 others, Republicans and Democrats, to pledge themselves to carry out Populist ideas about free coinage of silver, issue of paper money to be loaned directly to farmers on the security of their crops, abolition of national banks, government ownership of public utilities, establishment of a postal savings bank, and a graduate income tax and prohibition of alien land ownership.

Most of these ideas were incorporated in a book, "A Call to Action," which Weaver, the former Greenbacker, had published in 1892 and when the Populists held their nominating convention in Chicago that year he became their candidate for President. This time he did better than he had done as the standard-bearer of the Greenbackers. He corralled 1,041,028 popular votes and received 22 electoral college votes. In his own state Weaver received only 20,095 votes but he did much better in Kansas, where Populism was rampant. There he was given 162,845 votes.

This was the climax of Weaver's political career. He never again aspired to high political office although he served as mayor of the city of Colfax, Iowa, from 1904 to 1908 and died there in 1912.

During its short career the Populist party gave to American political history more picturesque characters, perhaps, than any party before or since. One of them was Mary Ellen Lease of Kansas who as a campaigner for the Populists rejoiced in a variety of sobriquets—"Mary Yellin," "the Patrick Henry in Petticoats," and "the Lady Orator of the West." But she is best remembered for the advice which she roared at the delegates to the Chicago convention 50 years ago—"What you farmers need to do is to raise less corn and more hell!"

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

A SMARTLY flounced blanket chest with contrasting cushion is a useful addition to any bedroom. It serves as a convenient seat; and extra covers are right at hand on chilly nights. A pair of these, covered to match spreads, would go well with twin beds.

Plan the size of your chest to fill your needs and space. It may

ASK ME ANOTHER? A General Quiz

- 1. The earliest flag of the American colonies was called what? 2. The familiar cross used by the Red Cross is sometimes called what? 3. What do the Australians call one who favors strict blue laws? 4. A viva voce vote is taken how? 5. Do the governors of all the states have the power to veto legislative acts? 6. What city lies on the Golden Horn? 7. What does a Scotsman mean by a burn? 8. Do camels hold the record for going without water? 9. In what river is Muscle Shoals? 10. How did the yachting trophy, the America's cup, get its name?

The Answers

- 1. The Cambridge flag. 2. A Geneva cross. 3. A wowsar. 4. A viva voce vote is taken orally. 5. Of all the states, only North Carolina does not give the governor the right to veto a legislative act. 6. Istanbul. 7. A rivulet. 8. No. It is said that certain African desert rodents do not drink during their entire lives. The Gama gazelle lives for years without drinking, and there is some doubt that he ever drinks at all. 9. Tennessee river. 10. It was named in honor of the schooner America which won the first race in England in 1851. Our vessels have won all of the 17 international races.

Test of Truth

The grand and, indeed, the only character of truth, is its capability of enduring the test of universal experience, and coming unchanged out of every possible form of fair discussion.—Sir John Herschel.

Our Equal Right

The equal right of all men to the use of land is as clear as their equal right to breathe the air—it is a right proclaimed by the fact of their existence. For we can not suppose that some men have a right to be in this world, and others no right.—Henry George.

Animal Oddities

The capybara, largest of all living rodents, has teeth powerful enough to cut corrugated iron, says Collier's. The Steganopodes, an order of birds including pelicans, cormorants and gannets, have no nostrils and breathe through their mouths.

Chow dogs and polar bears are the only animals that have black tongues; frogs and toads are the only animals that cannot swallow without closing their eyes; and minks and weasels are the only animals, other than skunks, that eject a malodorous fluid when angered.

Did You Place Your FALSE TEETH in a Glass Last Night?

Thousands of men wonder why their teeth loose, their mouths sore and their breath stinks when they wake up in the morning.
The answer is simple. They have placed their false teeth in a glass last night.
The moisture in the air has caused the teeth to swell and they have become loose. The same is true of the dentures. They have become loose and the mouth is sore.
The answer is simple. Do not place your false teeth in a glass last night. Place them in a cup of water. This will keep them moist and they will not swell. The mouth will not be sore and the breath will not stink.

BANKS AND THE WAR

What Will Win the War?

There are many statements, loosely circulated, to the effect that food, faith, hope, courage, production, unity, etc., each is the one thing that will win the war. However, the truth is that military might will win—nothing else. The things mentioned above, and many others, are highly important, some vitally so. But let's not be distracted from the fact that FORCE is what we must have to win. Let's bend our every effort to build the greatest striking force of all time.

We're all Telephone Neighbors

...Uniting the Country in Spirit and Speed

For the duration, it will be necessary to share the telephone equipment now available so that vital materials like copper, zinc, rubber and others can go into war production. A "good neighbor" policy gives better service to all persons using the telephone. You can help by remembering the following:

- Hold the line only as long as reasonable. Long conversations may needlessly delay urgent messages. Telephone lines to war industries, army camps, government offices, and to your home are all part of one great interconnecting system.
- Answer as promptly as possible.
- Be sure of the number before you call.

Your cooperation helps speed up the biggest job the country has ever faced

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Federal Agents Foil Sabotage Plot With Capture of Nazi Spies in East; Rommel Forces Drive Toward Suez; Germany Opens New Russian Front

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

The long, solid black line shows the course of Nazi Field Marshal Rommel's African army in its drive toward Alexandria and the Suez canal.

SABOTEURS: Major Failure

A dramatic story of the attempted Nazi sabotage in the United States was unfolded by FBI agents who rounded up eight master saboteurs trained by Nazi experts and landed by rubber boats from two submarines at Amagansett beach.

The four Germans who landed at Amagansett beach rowed ashore in the early hours of the morning after the submarine had crept within 500 yards of the beach.

Objectives assigned to the men included the bombing of Hell Gate railroad bridge, the bombing of all bridge approaches to New York city, bombing of the New York water supply lines and the blasting of other vital objectives.

Each of the agents was provided with many types of forged credentials, including social security cards and selective service cards.

A sequel to the story came with the arrest of several accomplices of the eight men, some of whom are regarded as associates of the Nazi agents who may have intended to take part in the sabotage effort.

NEW OFFENSIVE: In Russia

German troops opened a third summer front with a new offensive near Kursk, 120 miles north of Kharkov and 280 miles south of Moscow.

A Soviet communique said that in the Kurak direction, fighting commenced against the German troops who had gone over to the offensive.

Marshall Semyon Timoshenko announced the stemming of a German advance east of Kopyansk, then launched a counterattack on one key sector and pushed westward.

German dispatches announced that operations on the Kharkov front were successfully concluded, but Russian communiques said the Red army was counterattacking successfully in several areas.

A German break-through east of Kurak would threaten vital Russian communications and might bring Soviet forces in the Kharkov sector within reach of an encirclement movement from the north.

U. S. POWER: In Europe

One of the most important angles of the 1,000 plane raid by the British Royal Air Force on Bremen, Germany, was the first official admission that U. S. made aircraft took part in the main operations of a bombing raid of this scale.

ROMMEL IN EGYPT: Fluid Fighting

In the battle for Egypt, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, director of the Axis drive toward Suez, struck at the British eighth army with the full weight of three armored divisions backed by artillery and infantry.

The first major British stand in Egypt, 15 miles west of Matruh, was by-passed early by mechanized units. The Nazi high command announced in a special communique the "storming" of Matruh.

The British communique stated that "Enemy forces which have by-passed our position west of Matruh were met by our battle troops. Some of our armored forces attacked enemy forces west of Matruh."

An Italian communique said the Axis army had reached a position on the coast road about 19 miles beyond Matruh and that several hundred prisoners were captured.

OFFICIAL SCORE: In Battle of Midway

Official score of the Midway battle has been announced by the navy department—and the results were more heartening than had been previously supposed.

At least 10 Japanese ships were sunk, including four aircraft carriers, and at least eight others were damaged. Sunk in addition to the carriers were two 8,500 ton cruisers, three destroyers, and one or more transport or cargo vessels.

Damaged were two and probably three battleships, three or more heavy cruisers, one light cruiser and three transport or cargo ships. All the aircraft about the four Japanese cruisers, totaling about 275 planes, and all the aerial forces were lost, the communique said.

American losses were reported earlier. They included an aircraft carrier, damaged, a destroyer sunk and some American planes lost.

SUGAR RATIONS: May Be Upped

A moderate increase in sugar rations—possibly half a pound per coupon—has been hinted by officials of the Office of Price Administration.

A survey of sugar stocks in the United States shows that the supply in the hands of consumers is 50 per cent less than a year ago. Stocks held by primary distributors and 20 per cent below 1941 and total sugar stock on hand is one-third less than at this time last year.

Final decision on the ration increase depends largely upon prospects of sugar shipments from Puerto Rico and Cuba during the next six months. In addition, the decision will hinge on information which is becoming available on actual distribution under the rationing system.

"The real question," one official said, "is how much sugar is going to be brought in from the Caribbean area."

SECOND FRONT: And Russian Hopes

Russia's fears that a second front may fall to realization were allayed by Foreign Commissioner V. M. Molotov who reported complete agreement between Washington and London on a United Nations offensive in the west.

The joint statement issued by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill was hailed as proof of the approaching Allied offensive.

PRODUCTION: Silence Broken

America's strict seal of wartime silence on production of materials for fighting the war was broken by President Roosevelt when he disclosed figures which as he put it, would not give "aid and comfort" to the enemy.

In fact, these production figures would likely have the opposite effect according to most Washington observers, for it was revealed that in May, U. S. factories produced nearly 4,000 planes, 1,500 tanks, 2,000 artillery and anti-tank guns, 50,000 machine guns and about 50,000 sub-machine guns.

The White House announcement of these figures came at the close of the Churchill-Roosevelt conferences and indicated that the strategy of the war had progressed to a point where a definite plan was developing. This meant the problem now resolved itself into providing a method for getting these huge supplies being turned out in the U. S. to the second front; how to continue the flow of supplies to Russia and how to even still more speed up the output of American machines.

CCC: Lease on Life

In a dramatic move, Vice President Henry A. Wallace came to the aid of the Civilian Conservation Corps and with his vote broke a senate tie to give at least a temporary lease on life to the seemingly doomed CCC.

By a vote of 32 to 32, the senate approved an appropriation of $75,829,800 for CCC financing during the 1943 fiscal year. Previously the house had voted to liquidate the agency, one of the earliest New Deal ventures.

House-senate differences will have to be ironed out in conference on the bill appropriating $1,157,498,426 for the labor department, Federal Security Administration and related agencies. This bill contains CCC funds.

The senate was tense as the roll call vote was taken on the CCC issue. The first call showed that 28 members favored continuation of the CCC; 24 members were opposed. The vote emerged 32 to 32 in a recapitulation. Then, from the chair, Vice President Wallace announced that the vote was a tie, and added: "The chair votes in the affirmative."

JAP SETBACK: In China

Linhien, a major Japanese base in the Honan-Shanai border area west of the Peiping-Hankow railway, has been recaptured by Chinese troops, dispatches revealed. A total of 5,500 Japs were killed in 13 days of combat, the dispatches added.

The recapture of Linhien came as good news to Russia. Chinese observers were convinced that the Japanese operations in this north China area were a prelude to a surprise attack on Siberia. The day following the recapture of Linhien was marked by a counteroffensive against the city. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's troops beat off the attack, chasing the Japanese into mountainous regions where the Japs "face imminent annihilation." A Chinese communique said that Chinese troops had recaptured Linping in the southern region of the Kiangsi-Hunan border front.

BRIEFS:

BLOOD MONEY? Two Czechs have divided a German reward of 10,000,000 Czech crowns ($400,000) for supplying information which led to the shooting of two men as the assassins of Reinhard Heydrich, Czech hangman. A Berlin broadcast stated that an additional half million crowns was paid to seven Germans and 52 Czechs.

ELMER TWITCHELL AND FOOD CONTROL

Uncle Sam has now named a WPBFR, War Production Board Food Requirement Committee. It will look into the matter of food requirements during the war, with a view to conservation.

A good deal could be accomplished right off the bat by a simple but inflexible rule requiring people to stop overloading the fork.

We are a nation of overloaders, and if we are to guard against food shortages something's gotta be done to check us up. Watch the average American eat today, in the middle of a global war, and would you suspect he was subsisting during a great conflict? You would not.

Elmer Twitchell, famous caricature student, pinocle player and stamp collector, has been studying the food situation, and he thinks that if Uncle Sam wants to avoid waste Step Number One should be the abolition of the Three-Decker Sandwich.

"The upper deck is a mere waste of bread," declares Elmer, "and it also involves a further waste of lettuce. There is little in these modern three-deckers except lettuce, anyhow, unless you want to admit that those tomato slices are food."

"I am for a National Committee for the Control of Lettuce also," continued Elmer. "If there is one thing which lunchroom men are profligate with it is lettuce. Of course, in many cases this comes under the head of second-hand or reconditioned lettuce."

"This new Government board should also look into the French fried situation. Boy, there's a food waste for you! The American lunchroom has come to regard French fries as a mere matter of stuffing. They are just plate fillers. They are so greasy that nobody finishes 'em, so the result is mere waste. Let us have a 75 per cent cut in French fries at once by all means!"

"Then there is the dining car toast situation. Did you ever try eating the toast you get with a steak sandwich on a railroad train? Mister, it was never meant to eat. Let us do something about this."

Elmer was getting quite excited. "And then there is the chicken pie situation," he resumed. "Chicken is certainly conserved through the average chicken pie, but nobody eats those onions and potatoes with which they are filled to the exclusion of anything resembling meat."

"And, by the way, if we want to save food let's stop peddling all this vitamin talk. Millions of Americans are not eating because they want the food immediately involved. They are on a vitamin binge."

BEN HOGAN, the little man whose perseverance finally paid dividends, made his followers happy when he annexed his first major championship—the Hale America war fund tournament in Chicago.

It was homecoming for the sharp-shooting Texan, who registers from Hershey, Pa. Last summer he took the Chicago Open title, and because that title was included in the Hale America tournament, he defended it successfully. But more important, he won his first victory in a tournament officially designated as national. The Hale America was the No. 1 event of golf in 1942.

The tournament will be remembered for a number of things. To begin with, there was Ben's astounding 62 on the second day, one of the all-time feats in golf history. Then, too, there was his total score of 271—just 17 under par.

The Hale America will be remembered as the contest which Jimmy Demaret had in the bag—until the last five holes. Jimmy led Hogan by three strokes with only five holes left to go. Then Jimmy blew apart like an over-inflated balloon.

Jimmy's cavelin wasn't a temporary thing. He had taken an eagle dance on the 67th hole, steering straight for victory. He then picked up a birdie which left him 17 under par for 68 holes. Then followed three holes, the like of which can't be remembered in any other major tournament. One seemingly immovable spectator deflected Demaret's 15th tee shot with his shoulder. The ball was behind a tree, two inches from the trunk, on the opposite side from which Jimmy drove. He knocked it out scotch-paw style, using a putter. A six was the result.

On the 16th hole he hooked his drive into some luxuriant alfalfa rough. His second shot caught another interested spectator in the chest, dropping into some stubborn vegetation fronting the green. His recovery traveled south by east, with the cup approximately 15 feet away. Two putts gave him a sterling five—the second of three consecutive bogies.

Jimmy hooked on the 17th, ever-shot the second, chipped to within a yard of the cup, and missed the putt, taking one ever par for a last round score of 69.

It was a heartbreaking tournament for Demaret to lose. But Jimmy kept on smiling, taking the break in stride. It wasn't a pose by any means. An hour after Hogan had been presented with the winner's $1,000 purse, Jimmy and a couple of newspaper pals went out and played a couple of holes in the semi-darkness to settle a small wager.

In review, it appears that Hogan settled the eventual outcome on the 14th and 15th. On the former he just missed a 15-foot putt for an eagle three. He chipped up and sank a difficult putt for another birdie on 15. That made him even with Demaret. He fashioned a pair of pars on the next two holes and thundered through to finish with a 30-foot putt for a two on the 18th green.

Hogan deserved to win the Hale America. He has been burning up the fairways for the past two years, yet, until now, he hadn't succeeded in winning a major championship. Hogan is the hardest working of all golfers, getting in four and five hours of practice every day.

Weighing a scant 135 pounds, he packs exceptional power in his big hands. Completely confident, he seemed not to even consider the chance for defeat when Demaret led him by three strokes. That temperament, plus the ability to play consistently great golf, is ample evidence that he'll go right on winning his share of the big ones.

SPORT SHORTS

Ten per cent of the gross receipts of the Ohio State-Illinois game at Cleveland November 14 will go to army and navy relief funds.

Alsbac cost his owner $700. To date he has earned $197,000.

With Coach Benny Friedman trying to get into military service, the City College of New York announces that it probably will give up football. Since 1888, Northwestern and Purdue have played 25 football games. Each team has won 12 games and one ended in a tie.

ONE of the most mysterious and colorful figures in this modern conglomeration of golfing talent is Joe Kirkwood. Joe is almost complete proof as to the vital part the emotional or psychological side can play in this ancient Scottish game.

When Kirkwood came to this country from Australia over 20 years ago he was even then the master of every shot in the game. In his exhibitions Joe could call a low hook or a high slice, a low slice or a straight hook, a fade or a pull. He could even call, in advance, that hardest of all shots to play—a straight ball.

At 200 yards away he could make a caddie duck with either a slice or a hook. It was an easy game in trick shot or exhibition play. But Kirkwood could never win a big championship.

"Competition," he has always said, "is an entirely different game from any exhibition stuff."

How It Works

Years ago I followed Kirkwood in a North and South championship at Pinehurst. He wasn't scoring any too well. He was having more than his share of trouble.

"What seems to be the matter?" I asked.

"I've developed a fade I can't stop," he said.

"Why don't you call for a hook, or even for a straight ball, as you do in your exhibitions?" I asked.

"If I tried that," he said, "I'd be all over the course. This tournament-scoring game has nothing to do with exhibition play."

The Curse of Golf

"Golf would be an easy game for anyone to play," Joe commented, "except for one thing."

"What's that?" I asked.

"Tension," he said. "That's the killer—the poison."

"If it weren't for tension almost anyone could play golf well. But tension grabs them all by the throat—or the nerves. Take the average duffer. Watch his practice swing. Watch him swinging at a dandelion or a cigar butt. You'll see an 80 swing. Then watch the difference when he has to hit a golf ball. He immediately tightens up. He plants his feet in the turf. He takes an iron grip with both hands. His legs and body promptly stiffen up. He has wrecked his swing before he even moves the clubhead.

True of the Pro

"After a fashion, this is also true of most pros. Most of the good ones can hit the ball long and straight, can play almost every club well. In practice they can give you a 67 or a 55. But when some big tournament starts, especially a championship, it is too often another story."

"You can tell this in the more hurried pace of their backswings and downswings. You can tell it in their restricted, or more restricted, body turns. The temptation in a big tournament is to steer the ball—to keep it away from trouble."

"Only a few can keep their true form or their true swings working smoothly, as they do in a practice round."

"Leo Diegel told me once," I said to Joe, "that the longest walk in golf was from the practice tee to the first hole of tournament play."

"Leo was 100 per cent right," Kirkwood said. "It's about ten miles—or ten strokes."

"For those who know how to swing a club, golf is about 75 per cent tension, nerves and concentration. It is harder on the nervous system than any other game, since it carries less physical action or motion. The more motion you have, the less tension there is."

"Football players are always extremely nervous and packed with tension before the kickoff. But most of this is removed in the first clash of bodies—after the first impact. You don't get that in golf."

"In golf tension begins to get worse—especially around the greens when you find you've lost your putting touch. I've never seen a golfer who was good enough to win a big tournament when he was putting poorly. And when you get what Tommy Armour calls 'the yips,' you are just about through."

"How can tension be cured?" "The only sure cure I know," Kirkwood said, "is to cut off your head."

Foot Action

Henry Picard, a master stylist, is among those who believe that good foot action is the most difficult of the golfing arts.

"Only a few stars know how to use their feet properly," Picard says, referring to weight shift through the swing. Chick Evans had no superior in this respect. You had only to watch the work of his feet to get a big part of the answer concerning especially his iron play.

SHE LOVED A SPY

by SYLVIA TAYLOR

THE STORY SO FAR—Joan Leland, secretary, falls in love with Karl Miller, her employer, owner of a night club. She spurns secret invitations from Eric Brown, Karl's business partner, and Paul Sherman, his manager. Her sister, Sybil, does not approve of Karl, but Joan blindly defends him, even when Paul, in a friendly manner warns her about Karl. Karl shoots Eric in Joan's presence, which her idea of placing her finger-print on the gun, then admits he is a Nazi spy—his wife is German. He tells Joan unless she continues to work, and remain silent about the murder, he will blame it on her. The terrified girl agrees and later Paul reveals himself as Paul O'Malley of the FBI, working to trap the higher-ups of the spy ring. Sybil falls to come home, and a suicide note later is thought by them to mean Karl intended to hold her as a hostage. Joan agrees secretly to help Paul, and reports that Karl has hired a beautiful young girl to sing, and is already making love to her. It's Paul's runaway sister, Joan gets her to share her apartment. Paul and Joan search the beauty shop of Mrs. Murdock, who had employed Sybil at Karl's suggestion. Now continue with the story.

Joan peered over his shoulder at the unintelligible writing. "What do they say?"

CHAPTER XIII

The light revealed a desk, a short-wave radio set and three large filing cabinets. He drew on a pair of gloves. "Don't touch anything," he cautioned Joan.

Joan's heart was in her throat. "Oh Paul, what if Karl should find out we were here?"

"By that time," Paul replied grimly, "it will be too late."

Joan looked curiously at the radio set. "Do you suppose Karl has a receiver too?"

"Probably, though where it would be I don't know."

He opened a drawer of the desk. "Doesn't seem to be anything here . . ."

"Wait!" Joan cried. "What's this?" She seized a gray glove lying among pencils and bits of papers. "This is Sybil's glove!" she said excitedly. "She always wore these with her suit, and she was wearing that suit the day she disappeared."

Paul gazed speculatively at the slender gray glove. "It could mean that Sybil discovered this room, that she knew what was going on in here, and that's why Karl put her out of the way."

Joan pressed the glove against her cheek. "Oh Sybil!" she wept.

"I still think Sybil is alive," Paul said. "Karl is saving her as an ace up his sleeve. In that way she is of more use to him living than dead. Anyway, that's my hunch. It will be better if you can believe it too."

"I'll try," Joan gulped, controlling herself with an effort. Half an hour passed while Paul's nimble fingers explored the contents of drawer after drawer.

He tapped the walls but they revealed nothing. It was Joan who cried, "Paul! Look at this desk. There's something odd about it."

There seemed to be a panel on the side of the desk. "You're right," Paul said, and gently forcing the wood, he pulled it to one side. "Here we are!" he said as they both gazed into a small hidden compartment. Eagerly Paul thrust in his hand and drew forth a large envelope. He opened it. "Look Joan! These are the plans for that bombing plane. We were right!"

Joan peered over his shoulder at the unintelligible writing. "What do they say?"

Paul smiled excitedly as he ran his eyes over the pages. "Plenty! There's enough here to convict Karl and Mrs. Murdock as well as some others!"

"Let's get out of here, quick," Joan begged, glancing back at the half-open panel which had admitted them.

"While we're here I'm going to take a last look around to see if I can find a copy of that code."

Joan watched his brown head bend over the drawer. Her heart went out to him in gratitude for his kindness. "This is really the end of our search then?" she asked.

"It looks like it."

"I wish we were out of here," Joan repeated. "I have a feeling something else is about to happen."

Paul laughed. "You women and your intuition!"

But Joan shivered nervously as she waited for Paul to finish.

In a downtown hotel, Karl Miller was dancing with Pat.

"You're a darling!" he murmured against her hair.

"Oh Karl, I love you so much," he smiled. "You are happy, Liebchen?"

"I still can't believe it," Pat said, turning her radiant face to his. "Just think . . . Mrs. Karl Miller."

"We can't be married for two or three months yet," Karl told her. "I don't care. I'm so happy."

Pat gazed down at the emerald, a magnificent jewel which flashed green fire from her hand. "It's such a beautiful ring! Joan will be so surprised."

"No doubt," Karl smiled. "And Paul too?"

"Paul? Why should Paul be surprised?"

The music had stopped now and they returned to their table.

"What has Paul got to do with us?" Karl demanded.

Pat looked embarrassed. She had promised not to reveal Paul's identity under any circumstances. "Oh, nothing," she faltered.

But Karl was not to be side-tracked. "What is there between you and Paul?"

Pat laughed. "Are you jealous?"

"Jealous? Of course I am. I insist upon knowing."

"I promised I wouldn't tell anyone," Pat hesitated.

Karl's voice was smoothly persuasive. "But, Liebchen, we are going to be married. You must not have any secrets from your husband."

Pat's brown eyes were troubled. "Well, I don't know."

Karl took her hand. "You must tell me," he insisted.

"I suppose now that we are engaged, it's different," Pat admitted. "Anyway, it's really nothing for you to be jealous about. You see, Paul is my brother. He's using an assumed name because some time ago he used to work for the government."

"Indeed?" Karl Miller said, rising quickly. "I find that information extremely interesting."

It seemed to Joan that Paul was taking an unnecessarily long time looking for the code. She watched impatiently as he rechecked each drawer, wondering at his calm deliberation.

"Please hurry, Paul! Let's get out of here."

"Queer I can't find it. They must have it here somewhere."

"What does it matter now? We have the other evidence. You said these papers incriminate Karl. Isn't that enough?"

"I always like to do a thorough job while I'm at it."

"Wait! Oh Paul, I hear something! Someone is coming down the hall!"

She ran to the open panel and gazed through the office to the hallway leading to the street, but she could see nothing.

"You're just nervous," Paul said. "I'll be through in a minute. Sit down and relax."

"I'm sure I heard someone. What if Karl has found out?" Joan said, sitting down at the desk where Sybil's glove remained among the pile of papers. "He's too clever to let us get away with this."

"Karl's not as clever as you may imagine," Paul told her, "or he wouldn't leave these papers for me to find."

"It all seems too easy," Joan insisted. "There must be a catch to it."

"We've waited long enough to get Karl," he reminded her. "I knew that eventually we'd catch up with him. Haven't you ever heard that crime does not pay?" He actually seemed amused.

"I don't see anything funny about it!"

"You're a sweet kid!" Paul said. "And you've been a big help to me."

"Please let's get out of here!" She was on the verge of tears.

Paul glanced around the small room. Papers were strewn on the floor, even carelessly over the radio equipment.

"This untidy mess will be quite a surprise to our friends," he commented.

"Are we going to the authorities now?"

Paul picked up the envelope. "Right. And in here we have enough to keep Karl Miller out of circulation for good."

Joan took Sybil's glove and put it in her purse, but before she could fasten the clasp, Karl Miller's voice came to them from the open panel.

"I thought I'd find you here."

His powerful figure filled the small doorway. He held a gun. Paul reached for his coat, but Karl was too quick for him. "No use trying that, Mr. O'Malley."

Joan backed against the wall, her eyes fastened, as though hypnotized, upon Karl's face.

"You need not be frightened," Karl told her. "I am principally interested in Paul. Too bad he has such a talkative sister."

"So Paul told you?"

Joan marveled at Paul's indifference.

"Yes. It might interest you to know that she thinks I am about to become your brother-in-law."

There was a long ride down the Embaradero. Neither Karl nor Paul spoke. As they went through the warehouse and up the swaying steps of the gangplank, Joan was surprised at her own calmness. She was no longer afraid of Karl Miller. She followed Paul's example of superb indifference.

On deck Paul and Joan were led to a small shabby cabin, and the door locked behind them.

"Cozy?" Paul grinned.

"Paul! You act as though you actually enjoy this."

His face grew serious. "I don't like it for your sake, Joan. But so far as I'm concerned, it couldn't have worked out better."

"What do you mean?"

"I counted on Karl's finding us at the beauty shop. I wanted him to. I think he'll lead us to the rest of the gang this way."

Joan sat down gingerly on a dirty, faded chintz chair. "But you said those papers were enough."

Paul lit a cigarette. "They were, but I still have a few ends to tie. We're not in any actual danger yet. Trust me for that."

Paul watched Joan as she explored their tiny prison. "You have more nerve than any other girl I ever saw," he said, admiringly, repeating what he had said the night Karl killed Strom and Joan had promised to help trap Karl after Paul revealed he was an FBI man.

"My knees are shaking," Joan admitted, smiling, "but I wouldn't let Karl know how I felt. It would give him too much satisfaction."

"Good girl!" Paul approved.

"And," Joan continued, "this may be your idea of 'no actual danger' but it doesn't seem that way to me."

The gentle throb of the ship's engines warned them the freighter was moving. "Here we go," Paul said. "Try to trust me, Joan, that this is the best way. I took you with me tonight deliberately because I was afraid that it would be worse for you if you were left behind."

"What about Pat?"

"Pat doesn't know anything. They won't be apt to harm her."

In the dim light of a small electric bulb they waited. As the ship rolled more, Paul said, "We're going through the Gate now. We'll soon be on the open sea."

"Where is Karl taking us? Can't you tell me that?"

"I'd rather not. The first thing to find out is how he intends to get rid of those plans," he added. "Might ship them to a submarine."

"A submarine!" Joan cried in dismay.

"It's not a pretty picture, is it?" Paul said grimly. "That's why I don't want you to know too much."

Karl did not reappear but a sailor unlocked the door and mumbled something to Paul in German. "He says he'll show you to your cabin," Paul explained.

"I'd rather stay here!"

But Paul advised her to go without objection, so Joan followed the sailor out on deck. He opened a door and motioned for her to go inside. Hesitatingly she obeyed.

There was a bunk with a quilt folded neatly upon it, a washstand and one porthole through which Joan could see the deck. Fog enveloped the sea and it was impossible to tell how far away from shore they were.

In a few minutes she heard the sound of footsteps, and sitting up she saw that Paul was being shown into the cabin next to hers. Even though the door was locked behind him and a sailor remained on guard outside, Joan was comforted to know that he was near.

Joan had not expected to have any rest that night but she found herself overcome with fatigue. She wakened to feel the warmth of the sea upon her face.

Karl smiled. "I assure you I have no intention of going through with it. As you no doubt know, I already have one wife."

"What have you done with her?" Paul demanded.

"Shut up! Give me that envelope. We're getting out of here. Come on, Joan, I'll keep you with me."

Paul walked ahead and Karl followed with Joan. His grasp on her arm was painful but she did not wince. She was too proud to let Karl Miller see that he had hurt her.

The finished creation of God was "very good," but before long it was marred by sin. Dr. Hart-Davies in his book on Genesis speaks of a brick from the walls of ancient Babylon, now in the British museum. It bears the imprint of one of Babylon's mighty kings. Right over the center of the royal seal is deeply impressed the footprint of a 'pariah' dog which apparently trod upon it when it was soft and plastic. Human nature is like that brick. Man originally was made in the image of God, but over the divine likeness there has been superimposed the dirty disfigurement of the devil's imprint.

We see first in our lesson the appearance of the serpent who is the subtle emissary of—

I. Satan (vv. 1-5).

Man, because he was made in God's image, was not a mere automaton, having no moral choice. He was a free being who had to choose between good and evil. Obedience to God is the underlying moral principle of the universe. Man was given an opportunity to obey the prohibition of one tree in the Garden of Eden. The principle of prohibition in the midst of a world of privilege thus has divine sanction.

Satan provided the occasion for man's fall into sin. He came, not as the cloven-footed monstrosity of modern cartoonists, but as a creature more subtle than all other creation. His approach in our day is just as smooth and cultured (II Cor. 11:14).

ADAM AND EVE: TEMPTATION AND SIN

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 3:1-23, 24. GOLDEN TEXT—The soul that sinneth, it shall die.—Ezekiel 18:4.

The finished creation of God was "very good," but before long it was marred by sin. Dr. Hart-Davies in his book on Genesis speaks of a brick from the walls of ancient Babylon, now in the British museum. It bears the imprint of one of Babylon's mighty kings. Right over the center of the royal seal is deeply impressed the footprint of a 'pariah' dog which apparently trod upon it when it was soft and plastic. Human nature is like that brick. Man originally was made in the image of God, but over the divine likeness there has been superimposed the dirty disfigurement of the devil's imprint.

We see first in our lesson the appearance of the serpent who is the subtle emissary of—

I. Satan (vv. 1-5).

Man, because he was made in God's image, was not a mere automaton, having no moral choice. He was a free being who had to choose between good and evil. Obedience to God is the underlying moral principle of the universe. Man was given an opportunity to obey the prohibition of one tree in the Garden of Eden. The principle of prohibition in the midst of a world of privilege thus has divine sanction.

Satan provided the occasion for man's fall into sin. He came, not as the cloven-footed monstrosity of modern cartoonists, but as a creature more subtle than all other creation. His approach in our day is just as smooth and cultured (II Cor. 11:14).

II. Sin (v. 6).

Let us be clear that sin is not a necessity, not a natural weakness of man, not a falling upward in the progress of the race, but a deliberate choice to transgress the law of God. At once it showed its true nature by reaching out and leading another into transgression.

The one who listens to a slander against God can easily begin to doubt His Word, and then it is not difficult to look at what God has forbidden. Then the desire of the flesh takes hold and disobedience follows (cf. I John 2:16).

III. Shame (vv. 7-13).

The breaking of a right relationship with God broke the perfection of man's fellowship with man. Innocence was swallowed up in a sense of shame. But the shame is far deeper than a sense of nakedness. It speaks of a heart marked with sin which makes man hide from God.

Satan had promised Adam and Eve that they should know more about good and evil (v. 5), but all the good they learned about was what they had now lost, and the evil they learned was the sin which now blackened their souls and darkened their lives.

And with them fell the whole human race, for Paul tells us in Romans 5:12 that "by one man sin entered the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned."

IV. Sorrow (vv. 23, 24).

Man and his help meet, who had begun with such glorious promise in the garden, now had the great sorrow of being driven out by God. No longer to be trusted, man was kept out by the cherubim, mysterious angelic beings with the awful flaming sword.

Labor, which in the garden had been but a pleasant diversion, became a struggle against a thorn-infested ground. Sorrow was linked with motherhood, and man began to bear the heavy responsibilities of life (see Gen. 3:14-19).

But we must not close our lesson without pointing out that in the midst of judgment God provided mercy. The promise of man's redemption is written first in God's Book in Genesis 3:15, and from there the scarlet thread of redemptive truth runs right through the Bible to its last chapter.

Even in judging the first Adam for his sin, God thus promised the coming of the second Adam who was to redeem the race. We became members of the first Adam's family by natural birth—without the privilege of choice. We became members of the family of the second Adam by a new birth—a spiritual, supernatural rebirth. (I Cor. 15:21, 22, 45).

Wayside Ministering.

Jesus was never bound down to the size of his audience. He was neither elated by a big crowd nor discouraged by an audience of one. In fact, some of his most wonderful teachings were given to individuals whom he met by the wayside, the woman of Samaria, Zacharias, Mary and Martha, the Syrochenaean woman, Nicodemus, the woman taken in adultery, the blind man in the temple, are only a few of those to whom Jesus gave of his best as he passed them on the way.

Spider's Larder

Without refrigerators or ice, spiders and some wasps preserve meat for weeks.

Spiders need live meat to eat, and they cannot depend upon getting a sufficient supply every day. So they preserve the surplus of a catch by injecting a liquid into insect victims which stupefies but does not kill them.

Many wasps do the same. Their babies must have live meat, so the wasps inject their paralyzing fluid into spiders and caterpillars which they catch and save for babies' food.

A most welcome gift to any pipe-smoker or roll-your-own fan now in our armed forces is a pound of his favorite tobacco. Numerous surveys have shown that tobacco is the No. 1 gift on the service man's list. A favorite with many of our soldiers, sailors, marines, and Coast Guardsmen is Prince Albert, the largest-selling smoking tobacco in the world. If you have a friend or relative in the Army, Navy, Marines, or Coast Guard who smokes a pipe or rolls-his-own, send a pound can of Prince Albert. Your local dealer is featuring the National Joy Smoke as an ideal gift for service men.—Adv.
