That being the date for the annual election of officers, the following were elected for the ensuing year:

Mandamus Denied

Judge A. W. Marshall sitting for Judge Nana Frenger at the Court House in Carrizozo ruled on the Primary Law Monday and Tuesday. At the hearing where Mrs. Wayne Van Schoyck had asked that the Court require the County Commissioners to canvas the write-in vote she received in the Primary, and that the County Clerk be compelled to place her name on the General Election Ballot, the Court held that the Primary Law required that only those persons filing in the Primary according to Law were entitled to be voted on. The Court also ruled that unless a nomination was first made in the Primary Election no vacancy existed and no party committee could make nominations unless said vacancy occurred in the list of candidates, following the Primary. Attorneys Whitley & Garland represented Mrs. Van Schoyck and Martin A. Threat District Attorney, represented the County Commissioners and Clerk. A Supreme Court hearing on Appeal has been set for the 15th of October.

FULL UTILIZATION OF FARM RESOURCES

"The Jerry P. Guthrie farm located northwest of Ancho is an outstanding example of full utilization of farm resources for food and feed production," says Mr. John R. Curry, local Supervisor for FSA.

Although there is no water available for irrigation the Guthrie family has a fine terraced garden in which this year they have grown tomatoes, cabbage, okra, onions, turnips, cucumbers, squash and other vegetables sufficient for family use and some additional for the school hot lunch project.

From his contoured fields Mr. Guthrie has on hand corn, milo heads, milo bundles, and cane bundles from last year's crop. Also, he has filled a trench silo this year and has fine crops ready for harvest this fall.

The Guthrie family received assistance from the County Agricultural Agent in contouring their land. They received payments from AAA for carrying out soil conserving practices and FSA extended some financial assistance but these services are available to other farmers and it has been thru the family's own efforts that such unusual progress has been made.

Mr. Curry says that the Guthrie's have the best garden that he has seen this year in spite of the fact that it was grown with no irrigation water except run-off which was caught and held by terraces.

This family he says will not need to worry about food rationing and they will not be going to the store to buy food which should go to our armed forces or our allies.

Capable Candidates

If elected, they will conduct the respective offices for the benefit and the service of all the people of Lincoln county.

Circus Coming to Carrizozo

Arrangements have been made for the appearance in Carrizozo on Friday October 16—afternoon and night, of the Al G Kelly & Miller Bros. Circus. This is one of the largest and best mortorized circuses on the road and comes to town highly recommended from other towns where they have appeared this summer. The McCook Daily Gazette of McCook, Nebraska had this to say about this circus:

"Circus Plays to Excellent Crowd that Liked Show."

A crowd that overflowed the seating capacity of the Al G. Kelly & Miller Bros. Circus and sought standing room at the end of the main tent, last night saw and enjoyed a two hour performance by what is regarded as one of the best troupes to visit McCook in a number of years.

All the Balancing and aerial acts and other feature attractions were far above the average and the shows performing elephants had probably the largest repertoire of tricks in the rings ever shown here. "Mena" in Ring No. 1—"Teeny" in Ring No. 2 and "Boyo" on the Hippodrome track in front of the Grand Stand. Also extra good were the performing horses—Ponies—Dogs—Monkeys—Mules, etc.

All in all it was just a real good Circus and pleased the large crowds which attended. There was comment among the spectators on the additional fact that the show was a clean exhibition, entirely devoid of any obscene or objectionable side shows or other rackets usually found on a circus lot.

This good clean circus will always be welcome in McCook should they care to return."

See this good circus in Carrizozo, New Mex. Friday October 16—afternoon and night.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Nazi Forces Pay Huge Manpower Toll In Effort to Maintain Unbroken Line; OPA Calls for New Fuel Oil Reduction; American Bombers Blast Balkan Cities

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

En route to some unnamed destination, these five high-ranking marine officers are planning strategy aboard a transport. Left to right are Maj. Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, Lieut. Col. Gerald C. Thomas, Lieut. Col. Randolph McPate, Col. Frank P. Goettge and Col. W. C. James. Colonel Goettge is reported missing in the Solomons.

RUSSIAN FRONT: Nazi Toll Mounts

Ever as Wendell L. Willkie called for a second front to aid the Russians, Soviet troops were battling defiantly for every foot of ground on the Volga river front.

Russian gains were reported officially on the long front extending from the Moscow-Leningrad sector to the deep Caucasus. Soviet troops occupied several heights and villages southeast of Novorossiisk, German-held Black sea base, killing about 1,200 Germans in one day.

In the Stalingrad area more than 4,000 Nazis had been reported killed in one day's fighting. The major battle had appeared to be in the northwest of the city. In one sector the Germans launched eight attacks against Soviet positions in 24 hours in an effort to check the threat to their left flank. The heavy infantry attacks were supported by 40 tanks. Four attacks were reported repulsed. Silence concerning the other four indicated that progress had been made by the Nazis.

The Soviet communique acknowledged a withdrawal in the Mozdok area where it was announced that "numerically superior forces" had captured a village. Between Moscow and Leningrad, Soviet troops continued to mop up German forces which had penetrated into the Russian defenses.

In a broadcast the German high command announced that "in the northwestern part of the Caucasus and on the Terek river the enemy was ejected from deep positions notwithstanding tenacious resistance."

GAS RATIONING: For Entire Nation

Rubber Administrator William M. Jeffers' order for the rationing of gasoline on a nation-wide basis came as no great surprise to America's 27,000,000 motorists, forewarned by the report of the Baruch committee.

The rationing system, expected to take effect in November, will be patterned after the permanent program which went into effect in the eastern states July 22. The system permits a basic ration of 192 gallons a year, enough for 2,880 miles of travel on the basis of 15 miles per gallon. It is an average of 3.63 gallons a week.

Non-essential motorists receive "A" books, permitting them to purchase 32 gallons of gasoline over a three-month period. About 68 per cent of the car owners in the eastern states have "A" cards. A "B" book permits its user a maximum of 470 miles a month. Those eligible for such a book are persons with essential occupations. The "C" books are for individuals engaged in war or civilian defense activities. They allow 128 gallons a month and holders may receive as many as they actually need.

In his first statement since his appointment as rubber czar, Jeffers called upon the nation's motorists to "be volunteers" in trying to keep our "economic life from breaking down." He asked for a maximum speed limit of 35 miles an hour, but told drivers they were to be their own policemen. He urged that "every citizen ration his own driving and reduce his own speed" immediately, without waiting for actual rationing.

BALKANS BLASTED: By U. S. Bombers

Four Axis satellites in the Balkans—Croatia, Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria—are feeling the strength of the American air arm as long-range B-24 four-motored bombers deposit their loads on the capital cities of those nations.

Allied bases for the attacks have not been named, nor has the nationality of the flight crews been revealed, but observers assume that American airmen are working with Russian and British airmen.

WILLKIE: 'Now Is the Time'

Before he left Russia for his conference in China with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, Wendell Willkie took time out to tell the American people that in his opinion the time for opening a second front was not next spring, but right now.

He said that Nazi pressure on the resources of Soviet Russia was terrific and that relief was badly needed. He urged a very definite step-up in the amount of aid being delivered to the Russians and pointed out that almost a third of their population had been subjected to German rule.

After this statement was issued Premier Joseph Stalin held his farewell banquet for Willkie, President Roosevelt's emissary on his round-the-world check-up of the war fronts. This event was described as being most cordial.

Though Stalin was joking and teasing him throughout the affair, Willkie said later that the Russian premier demonstrated his clear, logical mind, and "a vital subject, which cannot be disclosed" was mentioned often throughout the evening.

MACARTHUR'S MEN: Drive on Japs

The first Jap withdrawal from some outposts in the Owen Stanley mountain range above Port Moresby, New Guinea, was announced in a communique from General MacArthur's headquarters in Australia.

Strong allied patrols, aided by light artillery, forced the Jap withdrawal, which came concurrently with the start of heavy rains, the communique said. MacArthur's ground forces made gains in counter attacks southwest of Salamaua on the left flank of the Owen Stanley line. Ground successes were teamed with new aerial assaults on enemy posts and island bases across a thousand mile area in the southwestern Pacific.

Allied dive bombing attacks on vital Japanese supply routes met with considerable success. The Jap Kokoda-Buna supply line on the northern slope of the Owen Stanley mountains was blasted while other planes raided Dilli, capital of the enemy-held Portuguese Timor, and Ambai.

Allied bombers also struck at Jap positions in the Solomons.

FUEL OIL RATIONS: Cut to Two-Thirds

Oil-heated homes in 30 eastern and middle western states will have to get along with two-thirds of their normal fuel supply under a new ruling by the Office of Price Administration.

"The coupon rationing plan," said Paul M. O'Leary, OPA deputy administrator, "is going to be geared to an estimated overall average of 33 1/3 per cent of normal consumption. We found that the 25 per cent cut, originally planned, would not be sufficient to provide an adequate margin of safety and still meet the fuel shortage."

O'Leary warned that householders who cannot heat their homes comfortably on two-thirds of the fuel normally used, should convert to coal if possible.

If furnaces cannot be converted from oil to other fuels, he said, "then everything that is possible must be done to improve the burner efficiency and to insulate the home properly."

He pointed out that the householders who improved the thermal efficiency of his home through insulation and by installing storm doors and windows, weather stripping and by overhauling his heating unit would be rewarded by added comfort.

The OPA warned consumers to fill their tanks before rationing begins.

FIGHTING FRENCH: A Nod From Moscow

Soviet Russia became the first of the United Nations to recognize the "Fighting French" movement as "the only body entitled to organize participation of French citizens in the war," when it was announced from Moscow that Gen. Charles de Gaulle had been accepted as the sole representative of this group.

Thus the Vichy government of Pierre Laval and Marshal Henri Petain received its first official diplomatic slap in the face. It had been almost a year to the week before De Gaulle received the recognition he had been seeking from the United Nations. For late in September last year he organized the Fighting French as a political administration as well as a fighting force and through frequent appeals has sought to replace the Vichy government as the official agent of the French people.

This recognition by the Soviet came just two days after a Fighting French air unit arrived in Russia to fight on the eastern front against the Germans. Known as the Normandy squadron, this unit is being made a part of the Soviet air force.

WAR PRODUCTION: Progress Report

"Right now," according to WPB Chairman Donald Nelson, "approximately 40 per cent of our entire production is going for war. By the middle of next year that proportion has got to be around 60 per cent." WPB Vice Chairman Knowlson issued a statement about the same time, in which he indicated that present war production is 3 1/2 times that of ten months ago.

Said he: "We're beginning to recognize the truth of the situation, to know we've been behind the eight-ball."

An estimate from the commerce department revealed that the total output of machine tools during the calendar year 1942 would be about 350,000 units, or almost double last year's production. These would have a value of $1,400,000,000.

Another report, this one by the Maritime commission, showed that in the past 12-month period 433 ships, aggregating about 5,450,000 deadweight tons, had been completed and delivered. Of this total, 327 were Liberty ships.

This report, made to the President by Chairman Land of the commission, declared that: "Scheduled deliveries for the remaining months of 1942 should bring us to the 8,000,000-ton goal of your directive."

AIR OFFENSIVE: Renewed in China

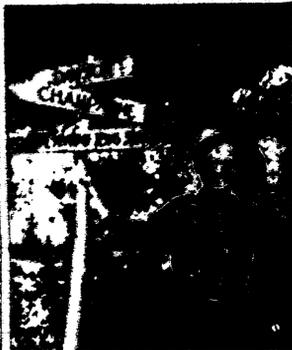

After a lull of almost a month, the American air force in China renewed activity against the Japanese with an attack on troop columns in southwest Yunnan province and a foray against Hanoi in French Indo-China.

A communique from Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced that 18 Jap troop trucks and a staff car were destroyed in the strafing attack along the highway between Lungling and Chefang by fighting planes. The raid at Hanoi was on the Gai-Lam airport.

Brig. Gen. Claire Chennault, commander of American air forces in China, stated that French and natives of Indo-China were becoming less co-operative with the Japs as a result of American air successes. "Intelligence reports show that the French are disillusioned, though the Japanese are now all-powerful in Indo-China," Chennault said.

A new Japanese two-motored, two-seater fighting plane was encountered by Americans on the Hanoi raid. The plane, an I-45, was reported to be heavily armed with a 20-millimeter cannon and two 13-millimeter guns forward.

Alaska Bound

Some where in the middle of Canada this U. S. army private is working on the U. S.-Canada-Alaska highway which, when completed, will play an important part in the United Nations war effort. The new highway is expected to be open by December 1.

MISCELLANY

BENEFITS: Headed by Joseph E. Davies, the President's War Relief Control board has prohibited army or navy relief benefit shows or solicitation of funds after November 15 unless organized by the services and participated in by service personnel. The order will not prevent private agencies or individuals from staging benefits for the DWO or other war charities.

AMONG other somewhat tangled snarls the war department is facing a tough problem regarding sport for 1943. It is easy enough and simple enough to say that sport will be abolished.

"This would be a bad thing," a high-ranking officer tells me, "We need sport for future physical fitness, for revenue and for morale. There is no sense in solving headaches by cutting off heads. And we'll have plenty of headaches."

"There is a very good chance that before 1943 arrives all our big league ball players, our professional football players and our college football players will be drawn into some branch of the service. We need too many men. Being married or having dependents won't help those between 20 and 45, especially those who are physically fit, as most athletes should be.

"There is little use in building up a sporting nation if these men can't be used in time of war for active service."

Looking Ahead

"What will happen to competitive sport?" I asked. "I'm referring largely to baseball and football."

"Sport will have to get along with what it has left. There won't be any stars left on the professional side. I don't think there will be many stars left on the amateur side for college football either. There may be few big spectacles of any sort—or none at all." But that doesn't mean all sport will be thrown overboard. That would be a serious mistake.

With a draft limit fixed between 18 and 50, something almost certain to happen, with more and more married men drawn in—even those with families—it is difficult to see how the two major baseball leagues or the professional football leagues can operate after 1942 has slipped over the hill. Men physically equipped to play hard games are the ones that are needed above all other types.

What will be used to fill in the huge gaps is another guess.

The College Side

College football may run into the same tangle. The season just ahead will be one of the most spectacular in football history. There will be far more men playing more games; when you include the different service teams.

But with the growing need for men, especially young men, power, the colleges will get a terrific raiding. Which is the way it should be.

On a general average to find the best type of man-power we must look to youth—to those between 18 and 30. So far as war and training for war is concerned, the best years range between 18 and 25.

No one but a complete idiot can gamble on this being a short war. Suppose it isn't a short war, which few who should know think it will be? In that case the younger men, the athletes, will be among those who can help most.

I saw a big chunk of the present German army in hard training around Berlin in 1936 during the last Olympic games. Kids by the thousands—12, 13 and 14 years old—marched mile after mile—up to 15 miles a day.

No matter what the game, youngsters must be caught and trained early in order to reach any real heights.

Training Plan

There should be some plan for training and developing boys around 13 or 14 in this country today. Those to whom I have talked in the army and the war department in general agree with this. These youngsters will be a vital part of our service in case the war lasted five or six years. Not forgetting the force that will be needed after the war is over.

An athlete might be no better than one who was never cast in any athletic test. But he should be. Not in the matter of courage, but along the line of physical condition and trained muscles—in co-ordination and endurance.

This country has been shy in leg strength and leg stamina for a long time. The place to start now is at far younger ages, and some war plan must be worked out to meet this vital situation.

There never has been a better coach than Bob Zuppke to get set for a vital contest.

Fritz Cleavel, Michigan's able leader, discovered this when he happened to say that Tom Harmon was a better back than Grange ever was.

That was all Zuppke needed. Using this as his theme in a series of blazing oratorical sorties, Zuppke had his team so steamed up by game time that Harmon could find no exits.

Speaking of Sports

by Bob McShane Released by Western Newspaper Union.

DURING the first couple of weeks of each football season it is customary to announce that it will be a year of stunning upsets, back-breaking schedules and unprecedented gridiron thrills.

It is to be regretted that such all-inclusive pronouncements were made in past years. The cry of "wolf!" has been heard too often—and a large number of interested individuals now wish they had saved their verbal—and written—ammunition for the 1942 season.

Northwestern's schedule isn't typical of all major teams, but it does give a fair indication of the outlook for the nation's top-notch elevens. For example, the Wildcats play a schedule on successive weeks against the Iowa Seahawks, Texas, Purdue, Michigan, Ohio, Minnesota, Illinois, Wisconsin, Notre Dame and Great Lakes. A schedule like that is enough to bring shivers to the bravest Monday morning quarterback.

Without question the current season will be one of the most exciting in the history of football. It will see some of the best running and aerial attacks ever devised by coaches.

About Notre Dame

Many observers wouldn't be surprised to see Notre Dame lead the field with her passing game. Angelo Bertelli is good insurance. He was a great passer last year as a sophomore, and that experience should make him doubly tough on competitors.

Frank Leahy should have no complaint about his running attack. Last year he lacked power backs. That hole has been plugged with Jerry Cowling and other heavyweights. With the T-formation he will have improved his offense and his defense will be just as good.

In the Big Ten, Minnesota is the team to beat. The Gophers have one of the strongest backfields in the conference, led by Bill Daley, who did such a bang-up job last year.

On paper the strongest Big Ten teams are Minnesota, Michigan, Indiana and Northwestern. Purdue, Illinois and Iowa are question marks. Purdue may develop into a stronger team than expected, and may upset the apple cart for some of those bracketed above the Keller-makers. Iowa and Illinois may cause the issue by handing out a few surprises.

Powerful Seahawks

Wisconsin and Ohio look plenty tough. If Billy Hillenbrand of Indiana, Tommy Kuzma of Michigan or Otto Graham of Northwestern were injured, the underdogs might well turn the tables.

Lieut. Col. Bernie Bierman's Iowa City Seahawks are rated the equal of any team he ever put on the field for Minnesota. This was proved early in the season when his team won a lopsided 61-to-0 victory over Kansas.

Bierman was more than pleased with the spirit of such former college stars as Big Mike Evashevski, captain and quarterback for Michigan in 1940, when Tom Harmon broke Red Grange's scoring record. Against Kansas Evashevski showed why he was a great college player. He was brilliant as a field general, caught passes, ran with the ball and carried through on his blocking and tackling with wild abandon.

Few teams will have any breathing spots this fall, especially those who have games with Naval Cadet teams. No coach can afford to be complacent when meeting a team like the Great Lakes Naval Training Base, with Bruce Smith on deck.

Iowa, North Carolina, Georgia and St. Mary's all have plenty of strength to send against their competition in about 40 games scheduled.

SPORT SHORTS

Frank Phillips, Kansas horseshoe pitcher, scored 100 ringers in 108 straight pitches in 1939. The record stands.

John J. McGraw had a lifetime batting average of .334 for 16 major league seasons.

Quote from Larry MacPhail of the Brooklyn Dodgers about Jim Gallagher of the Chicago Cubs: "Gallagher is not one of my favorite people, but when he gives you his assurance about anything I can believe him."

ALL-BRAN FUDGE SQUARES—BEST YOU EVER TASTED!

Every mother in the land will want to bake these scrumptious cookies. Children will demolish a plate of them in a wink. Crown-ups rave about their "different" taste and new crunchy texture. They're made, of course, with the famous cereal, Kellogg's All-Bran. MILLER'S ALL-BRAN FUDGE SQUARES 3 squares need: 1 cup sugar, 1/2 cup butter, 1/2 cup All-Bran, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract. Melt chocolate over hot water and add butter. Beat eggs well, add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Add melted chocolate and butter. Stir in flour, All-Bran, chopped nuts and flavoring. Pour into greased pan, making a layer about one-third inch thick. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) about 25 minutes. Yield: Sixteen 2-inch squares (8 x 8 inch pan).

IF YOU want to laugh, want to stop thinking about the war for just a little while, be sure to see "The Major and the Minor." It's one of the most delightful pictures that has come along in many a moon. Ginger Rogers, as the young woman who dons little girl's clothes in order to ride half-fare on a train taking her home, gives an expert performance, establishing herself firmly as one of our leading comedienne. Ray Milland is excellent, as is the rest of the cast. It's a swell picture—don't miss it!

One of the best friends and former associates of Gen. Draja Mihailovitch, leader of the Yugoslavian guerrillas, is Tom Lincir, now in Hollywood working for Columbia pictures. Columbia has made a number of war pictures—"The Commandos," "Submarine Raider," etc. but Tom Lincir's been in none of them—he's a conga dancer in "My Sister Eileen," movie version of the stage play laid in New York, with Rosalind Russell and Brian Aherne.

About a year ago RKO bought a novel, "There Goes Lona Henry," and afterward gave up the idea of making it. Now it's being readied as a picture for Ruth Warrick. It's the story of an ambitious Washington society woman.

Richard Arlen and Arlene Judge certainly started something when, working in "Wildcat," they suggested that each time a player made a mistake in his dialogue he make a contribution to the American Red Cross; fewer errors mean fewer retakes, so the company profits, and the Red Cross makes money when somebody does blow his lines. With film companies cutting expenses, it's a swell idea.

Alexis Smith has been urging Warner Bros. to contribute all the metal from his numerous hoopskirts, weighted petticoats and the like to the nation's scrap metal drive. "I had to wear costumes like that all through 'Gentleman Jim,'" said she, "and now I'm doing it again in 'The Adventures of Mark Twain.' I've packed around enough lead and steel to make a dozen of those General Grant tanks! The studio would be doing the government—and me!—a favor if they'd just turn it all in."

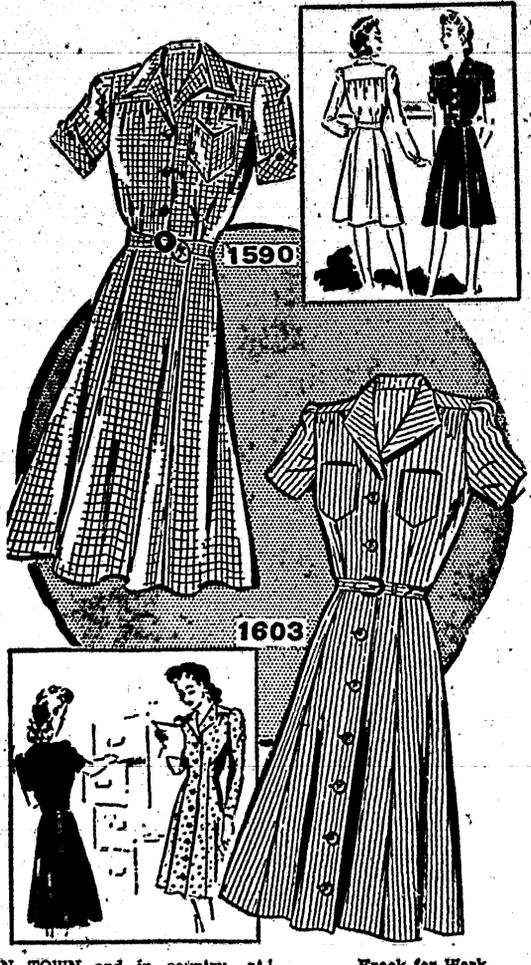

Olivia de Havilland's learning to play the saxophone—brings the shiny new instrument to her dressing room and tootles between scenes of "The Princess O'Rourke." She played "Happy Birthday" for the sound stage doorman the other day, her first public performance. She also offered him three cigars, in case he didn't care for her music. He didn't comment on the music, but took the cigars.

Sergt. Gene Autrey used to think he was pretty busy when he was making pictures, running his own rodeo and his two ranches and doing his regular air stunts. But now! He does the air show, also the regular work of an army sergeant, and he's picking up flying hours and burning the midnight oil, studying up on the book work needed for army flying examinations!

Lewis Milestone, directing "The Edge of Darkness," was worried when the company went on location on the Monterey peninsula, for fear that some of the cast might be shot on sight. It's a story of the underground movement in Norway, and green-clad Nazi troopers play an important part in it. "If a German soldier is seen around Monterey, he'll be an actor," was part of Milestone's warning to citizens.

ODDS AND ENDS—Clark Gable has lost 27 pounds since he joined the army. . . . Picture celebrities are conserving stars by going to Hollywood studios in groups, in station wagons. . . . They're rushing work on "The Immortal Sergeant" so that Henry Fonda can report to the navy on time. . . . Because Martha Scott went to New York to do a guest appearance on "Stage Door Canteen," her husband, Carlton Alspa, got a permanent job at NBC as director of the air's "Abbie's Irish Rose." . . . Humphrey Bogart averages 50 letters a week from persons who announce that they hate him.

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

IN TOWN and in country, at home and in the office this is a dress which is "tops" for style and comfort. Larger figures will particularly like the full-cut bodice and the six-gore skirt which fits with such admirable smoothness. We suggest it for gabardine, flannels, new rayon weaves.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1590-B is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 with short sleeves takes 4 1/2 yards 36-inch material.

Father—Didn't you promise me to be a good boy?
Son—Yes, father.
Father—And didn't I promise you a thrashing if you weren't?
Son—Yes, father, but as I've broken my promise you needn't keep yours.

Still at It
The customer couldn't see eye-to-eye with the taxicab driver on the matter of fare. Finally he said in exasperation: "See here, I haven't been riding in cabs for ten years for nothing."
"No, but I'll bet you've been trying to," retorted the driver.

Sometimes a man spends years seeking the ideal woman. And in the meantime he gets married.

Ready and Willing
She had gone to the fortune-teller and had listened with increasing interest to the sketch of her life as portrayed in the lines of her palm.
"Madam," said the fortune-teller, in his most impressive manner, "you should be very, very happy. A nobler man than your husband you have yet to meet."
"How absolutely thrilling!" gushed the woman. "But when?"

Freck for Work.
AS YOU join the ranks of the serious workers, here is a dress you'll enjoy having. Spartan simplicity is maintained throughout, in the simple rever collar, the straight cut sleeves, the button closing down the front. Wear it with or without a belt, make it with or without the pockets. It is a boon for home, office or factory workers!

ON THE HOME FRONT

with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

HERE is a way to give an old couch a new lease on life with style and comfort. Start with 9 1/2 yards of 36-inch-wide cotton twill to cover an average couch and three cushions. Here a soft tan is used to match one of the tones in the rug. Seams are accented with a second stitching, as shown. And there is no untidy slipping and sliding for this cover. The seam allowance around the top is sewn to the couch pad with long stitches of carpet thread. The cushions are made to stand erect by using an inside core of

PREPAREDNESS by the AMERICAN RED CROSS

AMERICAN service men fighting the nation's battles overseas are making American Red Cross clubs their favorite meeting place during leave periods.

The Red Cross clubs, established in nearly all the major overseas war theaters, are open to the enlisted men of the United Nations in addition to Americans, but the atmosphere of the clubs is typically American.

Such home country stand-bys as hotdogs, soft drinks, hamburgers, and ice cream made the American way, are regulars on the clubs' bills of fare. They may be obtained for a penny at the snack bars which are open throughout the day.

The clubs are staffed by trained Red Cross workers with the accent upon competent American girls specially selected for conducting an active recreational program in the clubs. The girls are attractive, too.

Typical of the clubs in the larger cities is the Red Cross Washington club located in the Mayfair section of London. Here service men may use luxurious lounge rooms, a dance room, and recreation rooms where ping pong and billiards are the popular games.

A large restaurant, capable of serving 600 men at one sitting, is maintained in the club, and dormitories large enough to house 1,200 men are contained in the club and adjacent dormitories. For bed and breakfast the Yank on leave in London pays 50 cents. He can get a piping hot lunch and supper for 20 cents each.

Prices charged by the Red Cross are below cost, the deficit being met through Red Cross funds. Officials of the American Red Cross were reluctant to make any charge for food or meals and did so only after Secretary of War Stimson requested that a nominal fee for such services be made since other United Nations clubs also charge.

The Red Cross club program is a new wartime service of the Red Cross which was requested by the war department. Red Cross clubs are the only ones operated for Americans on foreign soil.

All of the clubs in the larger cities maintain a Central Leave Information bureau where service men on leave may make inquiries as to what to see and do. Many of the club workers report that the service men most of all want to talk to American girls. They find the Red Cross club worker a mighty attractive confidante. Prepared exclusively for WNU.

Right-Angled Trees

American Indians used to make their trails by bending saplings with rawhide, says Collier's. Today hundreds of these deformed trees, all with their main trunks bent at a right angle about three or four feet from the ground, still stand, especially in the Middle West, where they are found, in some places, less than 200 feet apart.

Hot-Seat Throne

About 40 years ago, Emperor Menelik II of Ethiopia ordered three electric chairs from America when he learned that electrocution was the modern way to execute criminals, says Collier's. Much to his astonishment, the two that arrived in Addis Ababa could not be used because they required electricity, which was not yet being generated in his country. So for years, he used one as a royal throne.

TREAT SHEEP FOR HEAD GRUBS NOW

Sheep having head grubs should be treated now before the tiny maggots migrate to the frontal sinuses. If a rancher delays treatment until the larvae has entered the frontal sinuses, the dead grubs cause pathological conditions in the sinuses affected, which are detrimental to the sheep.

Treatment consists of irrigating the nasal passages with a three percent solution of Lysol. Experience has shown that the best results are obtained by introducing the solution into the nasal passages by means of an air pressure apparatus when the animal is restrained upon its back. To avoid strangulation of the sheep, it is necessary to construct a special table which has a tilting restraint. Blueprints for constructing the table and the air pressure apparatus may be obtained at the County Agent's Office.

GETTING YOUR OIL CARD

Q.—What is your name?
A.—Ch-h-che-ches-t-ter J-J-Jones.
Q.—Stop stuttering please.
A.—If you were as cold as I am you'd stutter.
Q.—Nonsense. It isn't cold now.
A.—No, but I'm looking ahead!
Q.—Have you an oil-burning furnace?
A.—It all depends on you!

Q.—How many rooms are there in your house?
A.—Six rooms and nine baths.
Q.—Isn't that a slightly unbalanced layout?
A.—Not the way architects design homes today.

Q.—Is your house insulated?
A.—I can't be sure. All I know is that I paid the contractor to do it. It's like the vitamins in spinach... you are told they are there but you can't prove it.

Q.—How about storm windows?
A.—I'll bite; how about 'em?
Q.—Have you had them put in?
A.—Yes, sir. I know they're there by the rattle.

Q.—Storm windows are no good if they rattle.

A.—The carpenter who made them thought I had ordered tent flaps. And they're so thin he must have been a manufacturer of paper caps for milk bottles before he turned carpenter.

Q.—Have you closed off any rooms?

A.—I've closed off so many that I find myself trapped in my own home. My mother-in-law was missing for three days before they found I had nailed her up in a guest room.

Q.—Splendid. That's the way to win a war.

A.—Not the war with my mother-in-law.

Q.—How much oil did you burn last winter.

A.—By the bills I must have been the largest consumer next to the Empire State building.

Q.—Do you agree that 65 degrees is warm enough for any home?

A.—Mister, when the heat in my house gets that low the whole family starts hunting for seals. If our thermostat gets below 78 my wife accuses me of trying to stage a revival of Eliza crossing the ice.

Q.—Doesn't your wife want to win this war?

A.—Yes, but not by dog sled.

Q.—You'd better have a stern talk with her and just set the heat at 60 as Washington suggests.

A.—No matter where I set it she will shove it up to where her bridge club wants it.

Q.—Would she defy Washington?

A.—Mister, when she gets uncomfortable in winter she will defy Washington, Jefferson and Hamilton.

Q.—Here's your ration book. And you won't suffer from cold all winter. I can guarantee it.

A.—How?

Q.—When you discover how little oil you can get with it you are going to feel plenty hot.

'Artist-Correspondent'

EVEN though the campaign which Generals Hancock and Custer waged against the hostile tribes of the Southern Plains 75 years ago this summer was a failure, it was noteworthy for one fact, if for no other. It marked the first time in American history that a military expedition against the red men was accompanied by accredited representatives of the press.

There were two of them—Theodore R. Davis, "artist-correspondent" for Harper's Weekly, and Henry M. Stanley who was serving the Weekly Missouri Democrat of St. Louis and the New York Tribune. Although both men joined Hancock's army soon after it left Fort Leavenworth in March, 1867, Davis remained in the field longer than did Stanley. After Hancock retired from the scene of action, he joined Custer's command and remained with it throughout the summer. Thus his sketches and dispatches, which appeared in the Weekly from May until September, are the best contemporary accounts we have of the beginning of Custer's career as an Indian fighter.

Although only 27 years old at the time, Davis was a veteran at covering wars. From 1861 to 1865 he saw the capture of Fort Royal; the fight between the Monitor and the Merrimac; the great battle at Shiloh; the first bombardment of Vicksburg by Commodore Porter's gunboats; the battle of Antietam; the surrender of Vicksburg; the battle of Chickamauga; the siege and battle of Chattanooga; and finally he accompanied Sherman on his famous "March to the Sea."

After the war Harper sent him on a tour of the Western Plains during which he traveled more than 2,800 miles by stage-coach and once barely escaped with his life when the coach was attacked by the Indians. He visited the Colorado mining camps, went to Santa Fe, accompanied General Steedman on his Southern tour and after a trip through Texas returned to New York to be present at the laying of the Atlantic cable.

In the spring of 1867, upon invitation of General Hancock, whom he had known during the war, he joined Hancock's expedition, was present at the council between the general and the Kiowa chiefs at Fort Dodge, saw the burning of the Cheyenne village near Fort Larned and not only recorded these events with his pencil but also made sketches of Satanta, Kicking Bear and other famous Kiowa chiefs.

When Hancock ended his futile campaign, leaving orders for Custer to continue pursuing the hostiles, Davis "joined the cavalry." He became a tentmate of Maj. Joel Elliott and the friendship which sprang up between these two young men continued until Elliott's tragic death at the battle of the Washita in November, 1868. Davis soon became a favorite with the other officers of the Seventh cavalry also, sharing all of the hardships as well as the few pleasures of the campaign. One of these was a big buffalo-killing contest after which the losers gave the winners a "right good feed."

SADDLE and RIDE

By ERNEST HAYCOX

THE STORY SO FAR: Clay Morgan has decided to play a lone hand against Herendeen, a rancher bent on ruining the cattle country his own way. The two men have been enemies for years, having first fought over Clay's wife, Lila, who died hating him and believing she should have married Herendeen. Morgan is a solitary figure, devoted to his nine-year-old daughter, Janet. Although two women, Catherine Grant and Ann McGarrab, are in love with him, they know he cannot forget Lila. Of his former friends, only Hack Breathitt has not gone over to Herendeen's side. Gurd Grant, Catherine's brother, hesitated about joining Herendeen, but became Morgan's sworn enemy when he discovered that Catherine had been to his ranch. Hack Breathitt, seen camping with Pete Borders, a runner, is being watched by Herendeen's men. New Clay has just learned that Government Valley is to be auctioned at Sage City, 120 miles away. Morgan knows Herendeen will be bidding for the land, and he is determined to get it. Meanwhile Hack Breathitt has encountered some of Herendeen's men.

The sound of Hack Breathitt's gun pounded between the walls of the street.

CHAPTER VII

Hack Breathitt held himself in the thick shadows by the courthouse corner and saw McGee and Liard Connor leave the Long Grade saloon. The two of them immediately separated, McGee turning toward Old Town while Connor traveled to Gentry's stable. More Three Pines riders drifted from the saloon, moving toward the dance hall. Instead of going up the stairs they turned down the black alley between the Odd Fellows' Hall and the adjoining saddle shop. Meanwhile Clay Morgan walked down Stage Street with Harley Stewart, these two going into the bank. A light flashed on Jesse Rusey appeared from the darkness, at once crossing to the bank and looking through the window. Lige and Mrs. White left the dance hall and passed Hack, on the way to the hotel. Hack heard Lige say in his light, courteous voice: "I'll have a drink or two with the boys, then we'll go home." Presently Lige returned from the hotel, passed the saloon and followed the Burnt Ranch road, disappearing toward Mrs. Benson's house. Hack clucked his tongue in disapproval, saw Morgan come out of the bank, and went at once toward his partner.

"Stayin' around, Clay?"
"No," said Morgan, "I'm riding out." He saw the glitter of Hack's gumbell buckle. "What's up?"
"Nothin'. Nothin' at all."
Morgan said: "Don't let anybody push you into the wrong stall, Hack," and turned across the street to his horse. Morgan stepped into the stirrups, sat there a moment looking ahead of him, and went out of War Pass at a long-reaching gallop. Hack thought, "I ought to be with him." Liard Connor appeared at the bank corner, exactly opposite the point he had disappeared from a few minutes before; whereupon Hack Breathitt crossed Stage Street, passed the hotel and ducked down an alley. He threshed around the broken boxes and tin cans and bottles behind Shevlin's pool hall, made a wide sweep of this completely black area and came into the street again near Old Town.

At this same moment McGee stepped from the shadows of the blacksmith shop. He had his head turned, watching the up-street direction, but whipped around when he heard the strike of Breathitt's boots. The two stood here, face to face with half the street between them. Hack didn't say anything. He held his ground, showing McGee his swift, malicious grin. McGee pulled up both hands and caught the lapel of his coat, which was his way of showing Hack he didn't want to draw, and afterwards he rolled up the street toward the saloon. Connor was near the door of the Long Grade; he saw McGee—and started down to join him.

Breathitt's laughter was a soft bubble in his throat. He crossed the street and circled the blacksmith shop at a short, jumpy run. He trotted around the Odd Fellows' building into a small vacant lot adjoining Gentry's saloon. The dance-hall lights fell on the street and, hugging the side of the wall, Hack saw Liard Connor step from Gentry's. Hack was softly laughing again, at Connor's back. He said: "Wrong way, Liard," and watched Connor jerk around.

Connor said: "All right—all right." But he wasn't talking to Breathitt. Bones McGee broke out of the shadows near the bank. Somebody kicked out a window in the dance hall, the glass splattering around Breathitt. McGee had quit advancing. Liard Connor, no longer in motion, said again, "All right," and dropped his hands.

They had him hipped. Drawing, he had his one single moment's choice—McGee on his left or Connor in front of him; knowing Connor to be the tougher man, he threw his shot that way. Connor's head flew up and—

The sound of Hack Breathitt's gun pounded between the walls of the street.

And was drowned out by Bones McGee's quick-following fire. Connor fell on the walk and pulled himself to his knees; his gun had dropped on the walk and now he crawled forward, trying to reach it, and fell again with his arm stretched out full length, fingers touching the gun's butt.

Hack Breathitt felt McGee's shots breathe by. He snapped an answer across the street, meanwhile plunging past the open mouth of Gentry's toward his horse. The shadows sheltered him and McGee's shots crushed through the soft wood of the stable wall, wide of their mark. Men's boots pounded down the Odd Fellows' stairway; somewhere a woman screamed. Breathitt was on his horse, racing along the Burnt Ranch road, when, looking back, he saw four Herendeen men rush from the side of the courthouse. McGee was in front of him, but fading back from Breathitt's fire, into the shallow alleyway beside the bank. Low-bent, Breathitt went by him, pouncing the pony with his spurs. There was a short following fire and afterwards, in the safe darkness beyond town, Breathitt's Indian yell sailed up. He was a fugitive then, and knew it; and this was his way of telling them so.

Morgan took the desert road as soon as he left War Pass, heading northeast into the open flats.
At midnight, from a summit point he looked down upon the breaks of the Crooked River, whose rounded peaks and shale pinnacles and bare ravines lay tangled and disheveled in the moonlight. From this elevation he saw one lone light buried in a far pocket, which was the location of Van Walrad's ranch, and went downgrade into the river canyon.

Beyond one in the morning, he sighted a close row of poplar trees beyond the stream. He passed over a swaying cable bridge, the gelding's feet booming up enormous echoes from the planking. Before he saw the house definitely he began calling: "Hello, there—hello, Walrad!"

There was a yard behind the poplars and the blurred skeletal outline of corrals and wagons and hayracks, and a house almost hidden by the trees. A door slammed. He passed through the poplars to reach a front porch, and held his seat here until Walrad's voice came at him, sleepy and uncharitable. "Well, who is it?"

"Clay Morgan, I'm riding straight through to Sage City, Vane. My horse is going bad."
"Morgan?" said the man, and was still. Morgan heard a pair of horses stirring in the adjoining corral. One of them softly whinnied, and then the rancher said with a reviving cordiality, "Sure, Clay."

"I'll be back to pick up my horse in two days."
Moonlight put a silver, phosphorescent glow to the road's dust. Pulling in for a walk, Morgan looked at his watch and found it to be half-past two; one hour later with the moonlight changing and day not far away, he knew his horse was done. Nor could he see the shadow of ranch or house ahead. He let the pony drop to a walk and in this time-eating way covered the next half-hour. The road climbed to a long roll of land, tipped over the crest and point into a shallow meadow, through which a creek ran with a pale glowing. There was a hazel grove here. Coming to the water he let his horse drink; and heard a rustling in the low tree branches. A tall white horse, followed by three others, came out of the covert and stopped.

He roped the white horse, saddled it, and left his worn out pony to graze.
Ten hours out of War Pass found him threading the pine timber. Here and there a woodcutter's road led away, and occasionally he saw cattle grazing.

At noon the country changed again, the pines dropping behind and a canyon taking him down a rocky draw. Shortly thereafter a desert of scab rock and sage, smoky with fall's heat and fall's distant brush fires, unrolled before him. Nowhere did he see a break—either the shape of a ranch, or a town, or a moving object. He had his moment of tremendous disappointment; and then, completely obscuring the canyon, he discovered, on his right, a chuck wagon and a half-dozen riders seated around it.

He pulled over at once, but remained in the saddle until the wagon boss said: "Get off and pick it up." He stepped stiffly from the saddle, found a tin plate and cup at the tail gate of the chuck wagon and helped himself to the pan of short ribs and Dutch-oven bread by the fire. He crouched here, drinking down two hot strong cups of coffee without delay, before touching the solid food. The mark of the long ride was on him and on the big jacked horse, and Morgan knew that the crew, sprawled idly under the sun, saw all this and were making their guesses. A man on the run, they would be thinking. He finished his meal and tapered a cigarette and lay back on the ground, propped up by an elbow. This food hit him like a shot of whisky. It took the heaviness out of his muscles, it made him cheerful. But he was increasingly pushed by the sense of wasting time. He said: "Which way to Sage City?"

The wagon boss drawled: "There's a trail about five miles over yonder. Keep on it. I hear old man Lowry ain't in good health."
Morgan thought about that. The brand on the big white horse was Romney L. Maybe that was what the puncher was talking about.

He said: "Never met him. I've been on the trail since last night at nine o'clock, from War Pass. I swapped horses at Crooked River, and roped this one off the grass-lands. What I need is a fresh horse for the ride into Sage City. I'll be back this way day after tomorrow."
"Not a bad ride," said the wagon boss idly, and let the silence come on.

The wagon boss had made up his mind. He said: "No, not a bad ride at all. Take that strawberry."
Morgan rose at once. His upper legs had gone stiff; he stamped his feet on the ground and limped over to the white horse. He put his gear on the strawberry and hit the saddle.

At three thirty, with eighteen hours of steady riding behind him, he came upon a main break in the road. One fork led into the south-east, the other swung toward the north. It was now within a half hour of the land office deadline; paused at this junction, scanning the forward haze with an anxious eye, he made out no kind of a blur on the horizon. This land ran straight into the cloudy mists, flat as a board. A few fresh prints showed either road; they were alike, these roads, as to the wear and tear of usage, and nothing gave him a hunch except that the north-easter fork seemed to head more nearly toward the spot he thought Sage City ought to be.

And so he took it, but two miles later this road brought up before the burnt ruin of a ranch-house.
He wheeled around, backtracked to the junction and followed the other route. Wagon tracks came from the desert and dropped into the road, a wavering wheel-and-hoof pattern coming out of nowhere and leading apparently nowhere. It was then four o'clock and he thought he had lost his race. Twenty minutes later the desert marched to a rim that fell downward three hundred feet into a valley. The road descended a sharp grade. At the bottom of the grade, straddling the silver streak of a shallow river, lay Sage City, its gray houseposts and dusty streets making a toy town's pattern from this elevation. He set the tiring pony into its last run, came down the grade and crossed a wooden bridge. He saw the half-empty street, the false-fronted buildings and the once-white spire of a courthouse sitting athwart the far end of the street. When he reached the courthouse and stepped down, a pair of men came out of the door.

Morgan said: "Land office in there?"
They nodded. He passed into a shadowed hall, heard voices through a half-closed doorway, and pushed that door before him. There was a man standing by a desk; this man was saying: "Seventy-eight hundred. That's the bid. Another bid, gentlemen? Another bid?"

There were only four other men in the room. One of them, standing by the room's side-wall with his feet turned from Morgan at the moment, was Charley Hillhouse.
Charley Hillhouse said: "Eight thousand," and came about and discovered Morgan.

LOYALTY TO CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—Mark 4:14-17; John 6:66-69; Philippians 3:7-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—What things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ.—Philippians 3:7.

Loyalty is undoubtedly one of the finest traits of mankind. Because of its strength, its fidelity to duty, etc., shrewd men have learned to play upon man's loyalty, making it serve evil and ignoble ends. Unworthy causes, having thus gained the interest of man by fair means or foul, have demanded blind loyalty. Even in the carrying out of crime there has been the suggestion that there is some kind of a code of honor, a loyalty among thieves. All this does not change the fact that there is a high and holy impulse in man to stand true to the right; and in the Christian, to be found ever loyal to the Christ, whose we are and whom we serve. Faith in Christ (our lesson of last week) is rightly followed by loyalty to Him. It manifests itself in three ways.

I. Following Christ (Mark 2:14-17).
Without obedience there is no use talking about loyalty. When Jesus said: "Follow me," Matthew (Levi) arose and followed. He was a sinner (v. 17), a man of the despised calling of tax-gatherer (v. 14), but he was ready for the call of Jesus.

Notice also that following Christ carries with it the privilege and obligation (it is both) of making Him known to our friends. Matthew did not wait until he had made a new circle of friends and then invite them to a feast. He celebrated his entrance upon the new life of faith by a friendly and effective testimony before his friends who were publicans and sinners.

Notice the words of Jesus in verse 17. It is not good people, satisfied in their own self-righteousness, who get to heaven. It is sinners, saved by grace, who will there magnify the Saviour's name.

II. Faithfulness to Christ (John 6:66-69).
It is one thing to begin, but quite another to persevere in well doing. Jesus had been doing many miracles and a host of followers had flocked to Him. He had not only done great deeds, but had spoken beautiful words about the Fatherhood of God, the power of the Holy Spirit, etc. He had fed the five thousand, and they liked that too.

But now He had talked about a broken body, about partaking of His flesh and His blood, and they did not like it. This reached too deeply into the necessity for a personal spiritual experience, and one that spoke of sacrifice, and many of the disciples "walked no more with Him" (v. 66).

How perfect a picture of the "religious experience" of multitudes of men and women in our day.

The true disciple, however, stands truest in just such an hour. "We believe," said Peter, and he spoke better than ever before in his life. "We don't understand everything (that's the thought back of 'To whom shall we go?'), but we believe, and we will stand fast." Blessed word of loyalty!

Observe that Peter and his brethren recognized Christ as the "Holy One of God," that is, God's Son in a unique and intimate sense. One close to and participating in the holiness of God. Loyalty will not hold on any lesser concept of Christ. There is no incentive to real service and sacrifice in the watered-out religious faith of the modernistic liberal.

III. Forsaking All for Christ (Phil. 3:7-11).
There were a number of things in the life of Paul as a natural man of which he was justifiably proud, but which in the light of his relationship to Christ paled into insignificance. The best this world can offer looks like rubbish (v. 8)—which it really is—when one catches a glimpse of Jesus Christ.

Turn your eyes upon Jesus, Look full in His wonderful face, And the things of earth will grow strangely dim, In the light of His glory and grace.

However, that experience of Paul's was only the beginning of a life of devotion to the Lord, which is expressed in words the depth of which we cannot fully plumb. What does it mean to know "the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings, being made comfortable unto his death"? We do not fully know, but certain we are that it speaks of a fellowship with Christ that is very deep and intimate; a life of power, because He lives in and works through the believer; a sharing with Him of the hatred and bitterness of the world, yes, of death, if need be, for Him, in the assurance of resurrection.

This is an "all out" Christian experience, nothing held back, nothing thought to be too difficult or trying—everything gladly given in unstinted love and devotion to Christ. Now the Christian church is languishing for the want of those who will forsake all to follow Him in complete faithfulness.

Vaccination of Calves Checks Bang's Disease

Immune Heifers Obtained Through This Process

Because of the war and the desire to step up milk production in line with the Food for Freedom program, dairy farmers have adopted calthood vaccination as a means of controlling Bang's disease more quickly than they would have in ordinary times.

Calthood vaccination makes it possible for herd owners to replace old, unprofitable cows with heifers immune from brucellosis, or Bang's disease, Dr. George E. Taylor, extension dairyman at Rutgers university, reminds herd owners. However, the answer to the question of whether vaccination is the best method of controlling the disease, depends upon many things, Dr. Taylor says.

"As an example, U. S. department of agriculture officials point to many farmers who have tried the test and - slaughter method and have not been able to eliminate the disease from their herds completely," he reports. "These farmers frequently are in communities where brucellosis is prevalent. And in all probability, calthood vaccination would be recommended.

"On the other hand, a farmer may have only one or two cases of brucellosis in his herd. If he lives in a community which is comparatively free from the disease, he and his advisers often conclude that the best thing to do is to get rid of the reacting animals, make a thorough clean-up, and then keep close watch for any reappearance of the trouble.

This small herd, part of a larger one, is the kind that has to be watched for any outbreak of the dreaded Bang's disease.

"Also, there are circumstances which lead farmers to adopt a combination of calthood vaccination and test-and-slaughter methods in their control of brucellosis."

So if you have brucellosis or Bang's disease in your herd, talk the matter over with your livestock sanitary officials, veterinarian, and your county agricultural agent, suggests Dr. Taylor.

Agriculture in Industry

Hops

The relatively unimportant hops crop contains hop oil, hop resins and acids, hop tannin, hop bitters and hop wax, but few of these possibilities have been converted to industrial uses. Hops are used mainly in brewing malt beverages where their favoring and preserving qualities are of particular value. American hops are of high quality but a few individual brewers prefer to import varieties which have special properties lacking in the domestic hops. This makes the market variable and in some years, 5,000,000 pounds of hops have been left unharvested when the price is low and labor is scarce.

The yellowish aromatic substance called "lupulin" contained in hops, has some outlet in medicines. Research is under way to recover certain compounds found in hops which are lost in the brewing process yet might be valuable in other industries. Dyes, tannins, wax and peetin all might be recovered. Even the fibers left after the hop roots is extracted might be converted into plastics as is being done with soybeans.

Hops are like their name in the way they have moved about this country. They were first introduced in New Netherlands in 1625 and came to Virginia five years later.

Guard Livestock Health

More research on livestock health, and passing the information to livestock and poultry producers is urged. A report pointed out that livestock losses in the United States, because of poor health and disease, total about 268 million dollars a year.

It was also suggested that farmers may be given the facts best through newspapers, periodicals, and the farm press, telling of practices that will conserve the nation's livestock and poultry resources.

HOUSEHOLD TIPS

Too much heat kills yeast. When dissolving yeast for baking, be sure the liquid is lukewarm, about 80 degrees F.

Old shirts no longer worn because they are collarless or out of style, make pretty kitchen aprons.

Better results will be obtained from cookies which require rolling, if the dough is chilled for several hours. (Even chilling them overnight is not too long.) A thorough chilling enables the dough to be handled more easily.

Domestic red pepper is less hot than cayenne and can be used in salad dressings, cheese and meat dishes, relishes and fruit butters.

To prevent crushing all a hat crown with tissue paper and store the hat in its brim in its own box.

Kitchen scales are almost a necessity at canning time. For best results weigh everything.

Sharpen needles with an emery bag for longer service.

To wash nylon curtains squeeze them in a mild soap and water solution. Rinse in lukewarm water and roll in a turkish towel to remove moisture. They need not be ironed.
