What of 1943?

Each year for the past 26, in which we have been engaged in publishing this paper, we have given out predictions as to what the coming years might have in store for us as a nation. Some of our predictions have been prophetic, while others have differed widely from what we predicted.

For the incoming year of 1943 we wonder if some of the things we are about to mention will come true. As coming events cast their shadows before, we can visualize a few things which may come to pass—some, we would welcome with happy hearts, while others would bring sorrow and grief to us as a nation. As far as we have gone in this war, we have been close Allies with Russia. We have not only been closely allied with that nation in sympathy with the common cause, but we have given them armed assistance far beyond what we have given to China and which has caused the Oriental Kingdom to complain about the difference that has been made.

When we view the above facts, we must also realize that the difference in the forms of government differ so widely that in settlement of affairs after the war, one, it would seem, must give way to the other. In this country we have what we call a Democracy, while that of Russia, is communistic. Which will we, the People, choose? If we link together after the war, this matter is sure to come to the surface and something must be done.

If we adopt their way of life, then the liberty we so long maintained will be lost forever. Abraham Lincoln once said in an open letter to his people: "The day may come, but let us hope not, when affiliations with powers of other lands, may serve to lure us into their ways and forms of government which would undo all this we have achieved by a liberty-loving people." We wonder if such a condition should throw a pall over this country of which we have so long boasted; God forbid.

In the year at hand, we will encounter conditions such as we have never seen before and we wonder sometimes how such things could ever come to pass. Taxes such as the world has never known will be assessed against the people and the burden will be more than the people can stand, but it is coming and we might as well prepare for it. As time goes on, mothers will have their sons returned to them bereft of the bloom of youth, some limless, others without sight, hearing etc., but they must bear the burden, feeling that it was for the cause of freedom. Looking at it from that viewpoint, shall we give in exchange that freedom which has always lived in the hearts of our countrymen for a government which differs in every respect from that for which our forefathers fought and died?

Not as long as there is a drop of pure American blood afloat in the veins of liberty-loving people.

In the year at hand, we must meet conditions which will test to the utmost, all true bravery at our command. We must broaden our shoulders and tighten our belts in order to stem the tide. Aside from things of which we spoke, is the dreaded ghost of inflation into which we are slowly and surely drifting. But we the people have never been lacking and never will. Through sorrows, tribulations and purse-strainings, let us meet everything as good sports or else take down our signs.

Ed Titsworth In Africa

The family of Ed Titsworth has just received an interesting letter from Africa where he had just arrived from England to take part in the final push at that place.

Reading Ed's letter, you gather that in spite of certain hardships encountered, he is in a land of many delights. A climate and country similar to California.

Ed says in part, "We soldiers have a varied diet; excellent food; it like a vacation on pay. My only regret is I can't see all of the wonderful things. But it is all quite similar to a conducted tourist trip. Such is life in the army."

A letter such as Ed writes makes us feel that out of these many experiences will come a richer and fuller life—and should be a consolation to all who have loved ones in the armed forces.

BRIGHT blue is the color keynote in this bathroom. Blue is used for towels and bath mat stripes and for a painted box cornice. The curtains are of coarse white muslin tufted with old-fashioned candlewicking in bright blue. It is difficult to find appropriate curtains that will stand steam and moisture so you may want to copy these in your favorite color.

Cut the curtains the length and width desired with ample allowance for shrinkage and baste the hems in. Next place the material flat on a table and mark diagonal lines on the goods with a yardstick and pencil, spacing the lines four inches apart to form the plaid pattern. Now, thread a tufting needle with four strands of candlewick yarn, and work along these ruled lines using the thread double, as at the upper right. Also, sew the hem in this manner; then clip the stitches, as shown at lower right and dip in water. Spread out smooth to dry but do not iron. Finish the tops with a rod casing.

NOTE: It is easy to give all your windows a professional finish with box corners, and they prevent light from showing at the top. In a blackout Pattern 207 which gives directions for making corners will be mailed for 10 cents Address:

Form for Mrs. Ruth Wyeth Spears, Bedford Hills, New York, enclosing 10 cents for Pattern No. 207. Fields for Name and Address.

ACE IN THE HOLE by JACKSON GREGORY

CHAPTER I

Old Early Bill Cole knew full well in the fullness of his years that his days, held by some filled with iniquity and general hell-raising, were numbered and his sands were running fast. He had known for six months and with a sort of devilish flicker of glee in all that he did, had gone about making the final arrangements. He was a rare old lone eagle and in him was a stripe of Satan a yard wide, at infrequent times something almost saintlike, and on many a joyous occasion a dash of Santa Claus.

"Even if I got to die like other fool folks," he consoled himself, "I'm going to get me my mite 'o' fun out of it! Hell's bells, yes, sir!" With his preparations pretty well in order, Early Bill Cole of the King Cole Ranch still estimated that his course had a few weeks to run, but that was before this particular morning had blossomed in shining gold out of the pleasantly cool, shadowy dawn. It was always his habit to be astrir before the new day. He had no great fondness for the night time. The things he loved with all that wild old heart of his were the good earth and green things growing and the earliest hours with the last stars winking out rather like the twinkle in his old, hard, steely blue eyes, and the little dawn breeze and the sunup and the glorious unfolding. And of late he was up and out of his enormous old adobe ranch house each morning earlier than was even his habit. He didn't want folks to see him and realize what he was up to. For each day he was telling some part of his wide spread acres, the whole of his world, a last adios.

For many the year he had inhabited all alone the ancient, picturesque adobe building which long before his days had been the home of the Spanish-California Estradas. At first, being younger and even wilder than that at the end, he had always had a house full, and very colorful accounts of proceedings under the red-tiled roof and within the thick white earthen walls leaked out. But now, no. A quarter of a mile from the old adobe, beyond a big grove of cottonwoods, were out-buildings, stables and corrals and barns and quarters for hired hands. His later years he wanted to be alone, like an old wolf, except when he himself went out in quest of company.

Thus, this morning, he should be sure of going about whatever his own business might be, with no fear of a spying eye. He stepped along under the fading stars with his horny thumbs hooked into his cartridge belt, his battered old black hat pushed far back on his thatch of white hair, his high-heeled boots stepping briskly. He was darning if he'd crawl about like an old man, seen or unseen.

The house was on a gently bosomed site with big oaks all about it; to the west, miles away, towered the mountains; between the house and the mountains were little rippling green hills where many a tall pine and many a tight clump of young pines grew. He walked toward the nearest hill with the three nobly tall pines on its crest. Here was a place of vantage well above the slopes where chaparral and manzanita wove themselves into thickets for rabbits to hide in.

It was still half dark when he came to the one pine which, with no one in the least suspecting it, he had loved with a deep, still, fragrantly romantic love for nearly forty years. There was a reason, locked away in his own heart. In the half dark, and with no eyes to see, he pulled off his hat and looked up at the one star, still bright, laughing down at him through the branches. He put his long, thin, sinewy arms as far as he could about the tree. He pressed his grizzled cheek against the bark, so rough yet to his feeling so tenderly soft.

Then a rifle shot, clear and vicious, cracked through the still loveliness of the hour, and old Early Bill Cole felt a stab of pain. For a moment he clung to the pine tree, gripping it tight for support. Then, quick and erect, he stepped free of it and as he did so dragged both of his old guns, almost as old and worn and deadly as himself, up from their loose leathers.

His shrewd old wintry eyes barely discerned a puff of smoke like a wisp of vanishing mist hanging above the thicket where a fierce animal than brush rabbits was hiding this morning. And not waiting for any sure target he started blazing away with both guns. What amazed him was that no second shot was winged his way.

So still was the hour that small sounds carried far and distinct; he heard a man crashing his way through the bushes, and prayed through clenched teeth for a fair sight of him. None was afforded however until his assailant, having run to a horse tethered under the eaves of the slope, went up into the saddle. The distance was great, the light none too good; Early Bill leaned against his old pine and steadied himself and was very deliberate about his next shot. And then, with a catch in his throat, he laughed; there were times when the old man could laugh like a wolf snarling.

He had come within an inch or two of shooting the other man through the head; he had shot his hat off! That's what made Early Bill, contending with the pain of a bullet in his hand, laugh. The man threw up his hand and by a lucky chance caught his hat in the air—and then departed like something shot out of a gun.

Early Bill holstered his weapons, set his long, lean back against his tree and cursed, and when old Bill Cole cursed in such rage as now his words would have drawn rapt attention from a congress of mule skinner. What made him mad wasn't so much having a man try to dry gulch him; hell's bells, he had been used for a target more than once in his stretch of years. But that a man should sneak up on him and hide and spy on him when he thought himself alone with memories and an old pine—

It was a wickedly wrathful Early Bill Cole making his staggering, lurching way back to the house. The return over the brief distance which had taken him some few minutes required a tortuous hour. He got his door open, got halfway into his living room and fainted.

After a time—it must have been upward of an hour, for the sun was glancing in at his windows—he heaved himself up, moved shak-ly to a big chair, slumped down with a grunt and closed his eyes. Presently he stiffened will and body together and got his shirt open. He had lost a lot of blood that he could not afford to lose. The wound was through his side, down low through the lower ribs. Lucky, he judged, that he hadn't already bled to death.

Then quick and erect, he stepped free of it.

Without getting up he ripped off his shirt and with badly shaking hands contrived a bandage of sorts. Then, half swooning, he sat for a long time, feeling light headed yet as grim of determination as he always was to get the better of a bad deal. Finally he rose and made his way like a drunken man to the door opening upon the old Spanish patio whence he could look down to the cottonwood grove just beyond which the outbuildings were. He saw a faint smudge of smoke above the tree tops. He filled his lungs and tried to yell; he snorted, though feebly, in disgust at the result. He dragged out his guns; there was a shot left in one, two in the other. He fired all three shots, spacing them, and let the guns slip out of his hands. Then he sat down on the old green bench to wait. Though the earlier shots had evidently gone unheard, the distance now was less and the hour later, and he had hopes.

It was one of his Mexican hands, slouching up the slope, wondering what was afoot, and found him. "For the love of God!" cried the boy in his native tongue. Old Bill licked his lips and beckoned the boy closer.

"Get on a horse, Gaucho," he said thickly, "and ride into town. Tell Doc Joe I want him real bad. Now, wait a shake! Damn you, can't you stand still until a man sneezes? Then you find the Judge. I want him, too." "Si, si, Senor!" cried the excited boy. "I'll ride Elton Jim, and I'll go like the wind! But, Senor! The first thing, I must get you to bed!"

"Look you, Gaucho," said the old Bill, of a sudden patient, taking into consideration the boy's youth and excitability, "if I've got to cash in, I can do it standing up. And if I'm going to live, what the heck would I want a bed for? Now get out of here." A wry grin twisted his hard old lips, and he added, "I'll be here when you get back."

The little town of Bald Eagle, squatting untidily in its place in the sun with the cattle country lying to the south and southwest, and the hectic mining country in the broken lands to the north, was as lively as any crickets most nights and many a gala afternoon; but profoundly somnolent before what was conventionally termed first drink time. This morning you wouldn't have seen a horse tied to any of the hitching rails, nor a puff of dust in the road not playfully stirred up by the half-hearted morning breeze, nor would you have heard anywhere the echoing thump and jingle of spurred boots on the crazy wooden sidewalks. But on the porch of the Bald Eagle Hotel two old men sat in their rocking chairs and smoked their after breakfast stogies and looked with mild, complacent eyes across all that was to be seen of their town's stark ugliness.

These were the two men for whom Early Bill had sent. They were alike in many respects and in some were like old Bill Cole himself, though they never could measure up to his stature. Younger than Bill, they were, too, by some few years. "Doc Joe," who had been christened Joseph Daniel Dodge; the "Judge," for the other, Bald Eagle's one and only lawyer at the moment, banker besides, and christened Arthur Henry Pope. Like old Bill, though some inches below his six foot two, they were lean and wiry and gray. Doc Joe was as bald as a door knob, the Judge's glinting white hair was long like a mane and both wore fashionable flowing white mustaches. One an old bachelor, the other a widower for so many years that it was as though he, too, had never known a home life, they lived at the hotel, had their three meals together, and did their porch-sitting in the two chairs which the community conceded were their particular property by right of homesteading.

They were sitting brooding, smoking ruminantly and digesting their hearty breakfasts when the Mexican boy from the King Cole Ranch came racing into town. He saw them as he turned into Main Street, and began yelling at them before they could hear a word that he said. "Him!" grunted Doc Joe. "Something must have bit him."

"It's that half-breed from Early Bill Cole's place," the Judge said, with his shaggy brows perked up. "And he's riding old Bill's favorite saddle horse. Must be something wrong, Joe. Eise Bill wouldn't let any breed that ever lived fork Slim Jim."

Gaucho slung himself out of the saddle and poured out his story in a deluge of words. The two old men didn't stir, didn't say a thing until he had finished. Then Doc Joe said quietly, "Take it easy, Gaucho. Now tell me—" And this time he got the essentials. He and the Judge regarded each other with poker faces, and for a time no one spoke. Gaucho, jerking about, started to tell the whole thing over when Doc Joe interrupted him.

"Here's four bits, kid," he said. "You go buy yourself a drink. You'll want to let your horse blow ten minutes. Then you ride back to the ranch and tell your boss that we're coming. Pronto, kid."

"Si, Senor," said Gaucho and touched his hat and moved away. And still the two old men sat as still as the ancient hills behind Bald Eagle. They didn't look at each other again. The Judge cleared his throat; sounded as though some of that dust had settled in it. He tossed his cigar away, only half-smoked though it was, and gnawed off a hunk of his plug cut.

"Looks like the old buzzard must be in pretty bad shape, and knows it," he offered. "Well, the old fool didn't have much longer to live anyhow. I always told him I'd outlive him; fact is, we've got a bet on it." "I know," muttered Doc Joe. He looked his cigar over carefully, but instead of throwing it away started chewing it. "Same with him and me; we've got a bet. Five hundred, like yours." Then he did stand up and hurl his cigar clean across the street. "I'll go get my little old black polska bag," he said cheerily. "You better fetch pen and ink and papers and any other legal junk a dying man might want." Then he let out a whoop, calling back Gaucho Ortega who had progressed only as far as the near-by saloon door. "Get along first to the livery stable, Gaucho. Tell Luke to let me have those two young grays to a light buzzard."

SAID my favorite taxi driver, "So I picks up this couple, and as we starts off he says something to her, and his voice is so familiar that I looks around, and sure enough, it's Ronald Colman. He thinks I didn't get the address, and says it again, and I says 'I know, but Mr. Colman, I had to look at you; I seen all your pictures.' So he's regular; he moves to the jump seat, and we talk, and I tell him which pictures I didn't like, and why. And he agrees with me, he didn't like 'em either. Then he laughs and says: 'What do you think of my wife?' And I says: 'I always knew you was a good actor; now I know you're a good picker too!'"

Incidentally, Mr. Colman was in New York for a rest, after completing "Stand By for Action"; "Random Harvest," the very good picture which he did with Greer Garson, was packing the huge Radio City Music Hall to the roof.

MARY MARTIN

When Mary Martin leaped to stardom by singing "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" in a Broadway musical, she wore a fur coat. Back in New York to appear on CBS' "Stage Door Canteen," she gave it to John S. Staniszewski, America's most torpedoed seaman—it'll be made into a fur vest and worn on that North-Atlantic run, if Staniszewski can bear to have it cut up!

Twenty 16 mm. prints of "Star Spangled Rhythm," an all-star Paramount musical, have been presented by the motion picture industry's War Activities committee to the army; they'll go to battle stations in various parts of the world.

"I Dood It" is now before the cameras at Metro's Culver City Studios, with Red Skelton providing the laughs, Eleanor Powell (who's talking about quitting picture-making,) performing some spectacular dances, and Jimmy Dorsey and his band providing the music.

Just received a copy of "Salute," the smart little 20-page magazine which RKO prints and mails to nearly 600 service men from the parent or affiliated companies. RKO's the first movie company to do this for its men and girls who've joined the armed forces; "Salute" gives them news from home and gives them a directory of other RKO-ites who've joined up.

The Irving Pichels certainly have an interest in "The Moon Is Down," now in the making at 20th Century-Fox. Violette Wilson (Mrs. Pichel) is appearing in it, and Pichel is directing the picture and also playing a tavern-keeper.

When Marguerite Chapman's 18-year-old brother joins up he'll be the fourth to enter the navy. Fred's in Panama, Ed's in Hawaii, Harold's on the East coast. And Marguerite's playing a sailor's daughter in Columbia's "Destroyer," to make it complete.

Gracie Allen takes her regular radio shows in her stride. But after a recent one she made a 15-minute recording with George, Jack Benny and Eddie Cantor for the Office of War Information's gas rationing campaign—and had a bad case of stage fright!

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Clean out your refrigerator at least once weekly, with one tablespoon washing soda for each four cups boiling water required to fill a dish pan. Rinse with clear water applied on a clean cloth and wipe dry. Stains left in the refrigerator and molded foods are likely to contaminate foods.

Dip the knot on the end of that new halter rope in glue and let it dry a few days before you use it, and you won't have any trouble keeping the knot in it. Better use waterproof glue if you can get it.

A little salt added to the last rinse water will prevent clothes from freezing on the line.

If a fruit pie runs out in the oven, sprinkle salt over the spilled juice and the oven will not become filled with smoke.

To oil a door lock, dip key into oil and turn several times in lock.

When liquid glue has hardened so as to be unfit for use, try softening it with a bit of hot vinegar, just a little at a time.

Little Lunches Flatter Wartime Menus
(See Recipes Below)

Victory Lunches

Mid-day meals with that go-and-get-it spirit are those that are properly balanced, and have plenty of eye-appeal. The days are gone when you can make a quick dash to the corner grocery and bring home lamb chops to broil quickly. Gone, too, are days when you had loads of leftovers from yesterday's roast.

But, homemakers, you need not be fooled, rather let your ingenuity devise new ways of getting nutrition requirements into your menus. Use protein foods like peas, beans, eggs, and vitamin-B1 foods like cereals as extenders to make up for meat. Your New Year victory menu parade starts off with a meat loaf "stretched" with oatmeal.

Savory Meat Loaf

(Serves 8)
1 pound ground beef
1/2 pound ground pork
1/2 cup oatmeal
1 egg, beaten
1/2 onion, grated
1/2 cup milk
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
3 tablespoons catsup
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
Combine ingredients in order given. Mix lightly until well blended. Place in a greased loaf pan, patting smooth. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) about 1 hour. Makes approximately 2 1/2-pound meat loaf.

Little Luncheons

(Serves 6)
2 cups sifted enriched flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
2 to 4 tablespoons shortening
1/2 to 3/4 cup milk
3/4 cup ground ham
6 poached eggs
Creamy Cheese Sauce
Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cut or rub in shortening. Add milk to form a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead 1/2 minute. Roll dough out into a long rectangle 8 inches wide and 1/2 inch thick. Cut in half lengthwise and spread each half with ham and roll jelly-roll fashion, sealing edges well. Cut rolls into 8-inch pieces. Form each piece into rings on baking sheet. Pinch ends together. With scissors, cut through rings almost to center, in slices about 1 inch thick. Turn each slice slightly on its side. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees) 10 to 12 minutes. Place a poached egg in the center of each ring and serve with Creamy Cheese Sauce.

Creamy Cheese Sauce

2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Lynn Says:

Cans and Jars: You will have noticed that your grocery shelves present a different picture than in the past. Instead of all food being put up in cans, some food has been preserved in glass.

In those foods placed in cans, the government has decreed three different sized cans.

A number two sized can, one of the standard sizes yields 2 1/2 cups and will serve four to five people. The number 2 1/2 sized can averages 3 1/2 cups and feeds six people.

Largest food can is number 10, usually used by institutions and restaurants. This large size is not usually practical for a family of less than eight since it yields 12 cups and would last for at least two meals.

A few additional sized cans are allowed in the case of canned meats, fish, baby food, and citrus juices.

*Date-Pecan Pie
*Recipes Given.

2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup grated cheese.

Melt butter and stir in flour. Gradually add milk, stirring constantly. Boil sauce until it thickens. Cook 3 minutes. Add seasonings. Add cheese and stir over low heat until cheese is melted.

Baked Corn and Sausage

(Serves 6 to 8)
1/2 pound link or bulk sausage
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
2 1/2 cups whole kernel corn and juice

2 1/2 cups canned tomatoes and juice
1 cup oven-popped rice

If bulk sausage is used, form into shape of link sausages. Brown sausage in heavy frying pan. Remove sausage and brown onions and pepper in fat remaining in pan. Add flour and seasonings and blend. Add corn and tomatoes and simmer until juice has partially evaporated (about 1/2 hour). Pour into casserole; arrange browned sausages on top like the spokes of a wheel. Sprinkle oven-popped rice on top. Cook in moderate oven (400 degrees) about 15 minutes until oven-popped rice is golden brown.

As golden as sunshine and as welcome is this luncheon soufflé. Rich in vitamin A carrots and cheese, this dish will boost your resistance to colds and infection this winter.

Rice-Carrot Soufflé

(Serves 8)
1 1/2 cups of cold cooked rice
2 beaten eggs
2 cups of milk
1 teaspoon of sugar
1 cup of grated cheese
1/2 teaspoon of salt
1 cup of cooked and sliced carrots
Make a thin custard of eggs, milk and salt. Add the cheese and, when melted, add the rice which has been boiled in salted water, drained and shaken dry. Pour into a buttered baking dish, cover with the sliced carrots, a fine sprinkling of sugar, and grated cheese. Bake over a pan of water about three-quarters of an hour in a slow oven.

*Date-Pecan Pie

(Makes 1 9-inch pie)
Pastry for 1 9-inch pie
1 cup unbroken pecan meats
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup dates, cut
1 cup dark corn syrup
2 eggs, beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon salt

Line pie plate with pastry. Arrange pecan meats over the pastry. Cream butter and sugar together thoroughly, then add remaining ingredients, beating well. Pour into unbaked pastry shell over the pecans and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) 10 minutes, then reduce to moderate (350 degrees) and bake 30 to 35 minutes or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Cool. May be served with whipped cream.

JESUS INSTRUCTS A GREAT TEACHER

LESSON TEXT—John 3:1-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life.—John 3:16.

Nicodemus came to our Lord when He was in Jerusalem for the Passover. Jesus had chosen six of His disciples, had performed His first miracle at Cana, and had made a brief visit to Capernaum, after which He came to Jerusalem for the feast.

In high and holy indignation He had driven the money changers out of the temple. The Pharisees who looked for the coming of the Messiah as a secular conqueror wondered at this new spiritual leader. It was probably as much on their behalf as his own that Nicodemus came to inquire of Jesus.

In answering his questions Jesus reveals the necessity, the nature, and the method of regeneration. The only entrance into the Christian life is by the door of the new birth. Regeneration is the act of God whereby the divine nature is imparted to the believing sinner and he becomes the child of God. He who has not entered by this way has not entered at all. He is still dead in trespasses and sins, without God and without hope (Eph. 2:1, 12).

Men seek to enter the household of God by almost any other means—culture, reform, character building—and neglect or reject God's way.

I. The Necessity of Regeneration (vv. 1-7).

Jesus was not unduly impressed by the dignity and high station of his visitor, nor by the visitor's courteous acknowledgment of His own position as a great teacher. With inclusive boldness Jesus declared that this man, a cultured and distinguished ruler of the Jews, must be born again if he is to see the kingdom of God.

God is no respecter of persons. This "doctor of divinity" must be born again, just as was the illiterate fisherman. The requirements are the same for all, and the necessity as great in one level of society as in another.

The surprising thing is that this teacher of theology could be so ignorant of the one essential element of a real spiritual experience. He evidently thought he could bring his soul to eternal life by his own works, when in fact he was not able to give himself physical—let alone spiritual—life.

Two reasons are given by our Lord for the "must" of verse 7: (1) "The kingdom of God is a spiritual kingdom, and cannot be entered by way of our human nature; and (2) "that which is born of the flesh is flesh" and is radically and essentially bad. To learn why the flesh is bad read Jeremiah 13:23 and Galatians 5:19-21. Scripture on this point is diametrically opposed to the teaching of unbelieving men. When such a difference arises be sure of this—God's Word is right. Follow it!

II. The Nature of Regeneration (vv. 8-13).

The new birth is a divine mystery, not fathomable by human reason. Those who insist that all spiritual truth be put through the little horns of their intelligence will never understand it or receive its blessing.

The striking illustration of the life-giving and energizing wind used by our Lord is most illuminating. Wind is unseen, but the results of its movement are evident. Even so the spiritual rebirth of men is an enigma to the worldly man, but even he can see its results in godly living.

Observe the clarity and simplicity of our Lord's teaching on what is undoubtedly the most profound subject in all the world. Let us follow His example and always "make the message clear and plain, Christ receiveth sinful men!"

III. The Method of Regeneration (vv. 14-16).

Many there are who ask Nicodemus' question, "How can these things be?" (v. 9). The answer is clear—"Only by faith in the Son of God, our Saviour."

Just as there was healing and life in a look at the uplifted serpent (Num. 21:8), so there is life for a look at the Crucified One. Faith receives God's perfect provision for sin.

John 3:16 may well be regarded as the greatest sentence in the greatest Book in the world. It presents the whole plan of salvation—its source, its ground, its recipients, its condition, and its result. It also reveals God's love—its "object character, manifestation, purpose and the result" (John W. Bradbury).

This glorious salvation is for all men—"whosoever"—but some reject it. Notice that God does not condemn them. Their own evil works and desires condemn them (vv. 17-20). God in His grace is ready and willing to save, but men love "darkness rather than light," for their works are evil.

Nicodemus came to Jesus by night—but he came. Have you come? Will you come now?

Child's Frock.

PRETTY frocks for children are easy to come by, even at lowest possible costs, when you sew at home. Today's pattern suggests an adorable style for two to sixers with a perky scalloped front, curved shoulder yokes framing a flattering neckline and a wide, waist-smoothing girdle which ties firmly in back.

EVERY line of this easy-to-look-at dress flatters the mature, larger figure. The deep cut neckline shows off an expanse of throat which makes your face appear younger and prettier. The smooth shoulders and simple sleeves simplify the top of the dress, gathers through the bodice give the soft fullness which is best for you, the panelled skirt fits flat over the hips.

Pattern No. 8268 is in sizes 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 30, short sleeves, requires 4 yards 39-inch material, 2 yards bias fold.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

The average car owner drove 9,000 miles in 1941, ticked off at the rate of about 6,700 miles a year. In 1942 before gasoline rationing was nationalized, essential driving is now supposed to average of 2,000 miles annually and the 1942 rationing book allows for 2,800 miles of driving a year.

Don't always be content with an "on the wheel" inspection. Have your tires removed from the wheels, greased and closely checked. You'll be surprised what this inspection sometimes shows in the way of internal carcass rotions. Catch them in time and save mileage.

In 1941 a total new supply of rubber amounting to 1,441,000 tons, 310,000 or 21% consisted of reclaimed rubber.

The germ that causes inflation is spending. The antidote is thrift. Putting it another way, the dollars you bank fight on our side, the dollars you spend unnecessarily fight for the Axis. The FIRESIDE PHILOSOPHER
By ALFRED BLOSS

Lost love is rarely revived.
Love 100% pure is rare as radium.
Suspicion feeds jealousy, certainty starves it.
It is easier to hurt those who love us than those who do not.
We are more fooled by our own egotism than by flatterers.
We often get credit for good qualities by hiding our bad ones.
Those who boast of many friends are generally advertising their own virtues.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Navy is making a plea to civilians to turn in their binoculars for military use during the War. The Army and Navy both need binoculars for navigation and scouting purposes. Depending on the power of the lenses, they cost from $50 to $80 each.

If you have a set of 6 x 30 up to 7 x 50-power lense binoculars loan them to the Army or Navy. If not, your purchase of War Bonds and Stamps will help buy this equipment for our fighting forces. At least ten percent of your income in War Bonds every payday will do the job . . . and provide the "eyes" through which a scouting pilot may spot an enemy battleship.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Air, Naval Blows on Nazi Supply Lines Pace Allied Offensive in North Africa; New Advance Carries Reds to Ukraine Thus Threatening Million Nazi Troops

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

NORTH AFRICA:

Supply Route Attack

Increased Allied naval and air activity in North Africa took a heavy toll of Axis supplies and men in a series of vigorous actions which foreshadowed greater things to come.

At least six and probably 10 Axis ships were sunk on the Tunisia-Sicily supply line. British submarines sank three supply ships in the Sicily-Africa lane and Middle Eastern command planes based on Malta blew up two more ships in the Tunis Harbor basin. The remainder were sunk as they attempted to bring reinforcements to Nazi forces.

During the comparative lull in the fighting, announcement was made of the landing of American troops in Dakar, nerve center of French West Africa, and the port which repulsed a British and Fighting French attack in September, 1940.

Operating to the southwest of Tunisia under newly established Allied aerial superiority, French forces reported that they had captured "numerous prisoners, armored vehicles and air 'bery" in one sector while beating off repeated Axis counterattacks in another.

A French communique announced that French forces had captured the Axis men and material near Pont-du-Fah, about 35 miles south of Tunisia.

However, Axis forces in Tunisia were found to be strongly entrenched when Allied Commando troops raided northern Tunisia at a point within five miles of the huge Axis naval base of Bizerte. The incursion lasted several days, and the raiders were forced to regain the beach through about 15 miles of enemy-held territory. The Germans held strong machine gun posts in the area.

Libyan Drive

Dispatches from the Libyan front said that General Montgomery's British eighth army was advancing on Buerat El Mahin, only 50 miles west of Sirte along the Mediterranean coast and 100 miles from Tripoli. The British had advanced more than 200 miles west of El Agheila since launching a new attack to drive Marshal Rommel out of Libya.

FOOD FATS:

Face 15% Cut

Because of military and lend-lease requirements, the government expects to ration food fats and oils in 1943 at a level approximately 15 per cent below civilian demands, the bureau of agricultural economics has announced.

Likely to be rationed are cooking compounds, butter, margarine, lard and possibly salad dressing. Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, food administrator, indicated previously that butter would be rationed as soon as plans could be made.

Food items now under ration or scheduled for in 1943 include sugar, coffee, meats and cheese. Even milk supplies are running low in metropolitan areas.

The bureau estimated that civilians, with increased incomes, would buy about 52.1 pounds of fats and oils per capita in 1943 at present calling prices if this supply were available. Per capita consumption amounted to 51 pounds during the 1940-42 period.

CLAUDE WICKARD
48 Pounds Per Capita.

Under a rationing system about 48 pounds would be available for each person, including indirect consumption of fats in bread, cake, confectionery and canned soups.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

RELIEF: Because 13 midwestern states suffered a record-breaking cold wave in December, the Office of Price Administration ordered a 10 per cent increase in fuel oil rations for that area.

QUAKE: About 1,000 persons were killed with many more injured in an earthquake that destroyed the town of Erzurum, Turkey. Population of the town was 5,000.

NEW GUINEA:

Progress Slow

"The advance of our troops continues in the face of desperate enemy resistance. Progress was relatively slow, due to intricate and thoroughly prepared positions of the enemy."

That communique from General MacArthur's headquarters summed up the reasons for the seemingly prolonged battle to drive the Japs out of the Buna area of New Guinea. The Japs made all possible use of nature's defense facilities. The high kumai grass and the abundance of trees made Jap snipers an ever-present threat. The fact that they preferred death to capture made them doubly dangerous.

But American and Australian troops pushed the enemy into two narrowing coastal sectors on Cape Endauadere. The Japs were forced to evacuate more than 100 pillboxes, leaving many dead behind them in each one.

LAVAL'S 'DEAL':

New Aid to Nazis

When France's Chief of Government Pierre Laval reported to his cabinet following a conference with Adolf Hitler he did so amid growing indications that his country may declare war on the United Nations.

Hitler's demands were all-inclusive. Both neutral and Axis sources said that Laval has acceded to them and that France will become a full

PIERRE LAVAL
Complete Sellout for France?

Axis partner. According to reports, none of which were officially confirmed, Laval has agreed to put an army in the field under German command, and also to:

Purge France's anti-Nazis. Resume the Riom "war guilt" trials with added defendants, including former Premier Edouard Herriot.

Maintain the German forces in France.

Turn over all industries in the formerly unoccupied zone to German war production.

Ship 400,000 industrial workers to Germany.

MILLION NAZIS:

And Russia's Offensive

After getting away to a terrific start the Russian winter offensive stalled, then gained speed again as Moscow communiques told of fierce battling in their campaign for Rostov, key city at the mouth of the Don river. Along the entire front there was plenty of action but it was toward Rostov that the Reds concentrated the full power of their counteroffensive.

While reports said the retreat of the Germans was rapid, Soviet sources reported that in a single day they had found time to kill 7,000 of the enemy and on the next day capture 6,700 more. In the first week of the Rostov campaign, Nazi casualties (not including wounded) were officially set at 85,200.

Fighting still was going on within Stalingrad, where progress on both sides for weeks has been reported in terms of houses and blocks.

In addition, the winter campaign of the Russian army was spreading westward toward the Ukraine. But military experts kept their eye on Rostov for the capture of that city by the Russians meant that all of the Nazi troops in the Caucasus were cut off from retreat (except by sea). Adding this force to the Nazi numbers in peril before Stalingrad it is estimated that a million German soldiers were threatened on two fronts.

NAZI MORALE:

Artificial Boost

In an effort to bolster a morale lowered by bad news from the war fronts and by lower food rations, Germany's Propaganda Minister Goebbels is reported to have mobilized hundreds of Nazi orators to deliver a nation-wide series of "pep talks" to the German people. At the same time the German press began hammering home the thought that African setbacks are unimportant because the war will be decided in Russia.

Information from Germany indicates that a program of mass meetings is under way with Goebbels and Dr. Robert Ley, Nazi labor leader, keynoting the morale offensive.

The Voelkischer Beobachter, Adolf Hitler's newspaper, declared editorially that the objective properly was Europe, not Africa, and that after Russian resistance is ended, "we will soon regain on the southern front what we have had to give up."

DR. ROBERT LEY

The Beobachter reminded Germans who grumble about the scarcity of food and clothes that their sacrifices were as nothing compared with the soldier who is called on to "give his blood for the homeland." But the holiday season was not a happy one, despite the morale-boosting drive.

POSTWAR GOODS:

Plan for Purchase

A detailed plan for consumers to pay now for automobiles, automatic furnaces, refrigerators, pianos and other postwar goods to be delivered after the war has been developed by the Office of Price Administration.

The plan, which OPA officials said would drain off $9,000,000,000 annually in excess purchasing power, has been described as "installment selling in reverse." It is also intended to help many business firms which otherwise might fail to survive another year of war.

Here is the way the plan would work:

Consumers would purchase any item exactly the way they did normally, but they would receive a certificate instead of merchandise. Payment would be made in cash or installments. The dealer would get a 6 per cent commission and the finance company either 1 per cent or 7 cents a collection. The money would be deposited with the U. S. treasury which would pay manufacturers when the goods were delivered after the war. The certificates would constitute a priority for the desired article.

Sale price of the certificates would be set at an arbitrary figure and would have no bearing on the actual price. They would be non-interest bearing.

Following the war, consumers would be permitted to select their own brand.

ROYAL NAVY:

Back to Sumatra

Two important facts were made evident when British naval planes bombed the Japanese fueling and naval base of Sebang off the northwest tip of Sumatra.

One: The fact that the royal navy went back to the scene of an earlier tragic defeat was evidence of increased strength of the British navy.

Second: Losses inflicted by the United States were thought to have compelled the Japs to withdraw ships to the South Pacific.

In opening offensive operations at the western end of the Netherlands East Indies, 600 miles from Singapore, the British naval force heavily damaged the base at Sebang. Heavy explosions occurred at the dock and gasoline tank area, followed by huge fires. The bomber planes were thought to have been based on a carrier—perhaps the 23,000-ton Illustrious.

Sebang had become a major Japanese base. It lies slightly more than 300 miles west of Penang off the Malaya coast. The harbor has a coaling station and is sheltered from heavy winds and ocean swells by mountains and a high coast line.

COPPER WIRE:

Raid Is Charged

Russian military technicians had first complained about defective Lend-Lease wire. Then the FBI took the trail. The result was an indictment at Fort Wayne, Ind., of the Anaconda Wire and Cable company of Marlon, Ind., in what was described by Attorney General Biddle in Washington as "one of the most reprehensible cases of defrauding the government and endangering the lives of American soldiers and sailors."

Washington Digest

Importance of World Trade Turns Spotlight on Sec. Hull

Post-War Rebuilding of International Structure Will Get Consideration Before Armistice.

By BAUKHAGE

(News Analysis and Commentator.)

WNU Service, 1343 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

Hints to the effect that the President will make a discussion of post-war conditions a part of his forthcoming message to the 78th congress foreshadows the re-entry on the diplomatic stage in a prominent role of the figure of Secretary of State Cordell Hull. In wartime, diplomacy plays its part chiefly behind the scenes—the brass hats have their day in public. But there are now several indications that Secretary Hull is about to take the spotlight again in an old familiar role, namely, as spokesman for the economic platform which he made a part of our foreign policy before the war.

To understand Secretary Hull's importance today it is well to recall the words spoken to me not long ago by a very keen diplomatist: "Secretary Hull," he said, "was probably chosen as secretary of state for four reasons: One, because of the President's political debt to him and because they were friends; two, because he had a diplomatic gift; three, because there was vital need for liaison between the state department and congress; and four, because of Hull's deep knowledge of international trade relations."

Reason No. 3 is more important than ever, and although reason No. 4 may have been a pure coincidence at the time, it is turning out to be one of the most important factors.

Today "reason No. 4" is coming to the front. There are those in the administration who believe that America must play a vital part in the building of the post-war world if freedom of enterprise is to be maintained. They realize, too, that unless conditions of peace are outlined before the armistice, isolationist sentiment may break out again and force America back into extreme nationalism when the war is over, as it did in 1918.

Turning Point

Toward Depression?

America's withdrawal from world affairs in 1918 is considered by the people who believe in Hull's international trade policy as the turning point that led straight to the depression of the twenties. Then it was that America began building up her tariff walls, which many economists consider one of the causes of World War II.

Throughout this period the foreign war-debts were festering. America continued to demand payment of those debts and at the same time to raise trade barriers that curtailed international commerce and thus made the debt payments impossible. Then came the New Deal and the introduction of many measures, some of which tended further toward nationalism. Secretary Hull, who had been fighting an uphill fight for free trade relations without much success, especially after the sabotaging of the London Economic conference in 1933, finally launched his reciprocal trade agreements plan.

Hull's progress was retarded for many natural reasons. In the first place, it was too slow and undramatic a procedure to engage the President's active support. The President leans to the dramatic, does not pretend to understand fiscal matters.

In the second place, the traditional state department attitude was one of aristocratic disdain of all matters involving trade.

Lend-Lease Policy

Fitted Into Picture

Then came that new and strange device, the lend-lease policy. It was inaugurated, first in the hope that we could fight the war in absentia by furnishing Britain the tools, and secondly, to avoid the recurrence of that painful phenomenon, the war debts. And then, just when, it is not known, or exactly how, Secretary Hull was able to revive his policy of unhampered trade by introducing Article VII into the lend-lease agreements.

Briefly, Article VII provides: "In the final determination of the benefits to be provided to the United States of America by the Government of . . . in return for aid furnished under the Act of Congress of March 11, 1941, the terms and conditions thereof shall be such as not to burden commerce between the two countries, but to promote mutually advantageous economic relations between them and the betterment of world-wide economic relations. To that end, they shall include provision for agreed action by the United States of America and . . . open to participation by all other countries of like mind, directed to the expansion, by appropriate international and domestic measures, of production, employment, and the exchange and consumption of goods, which are the material foundations of the liberty and welfare of all peoples; to the elimination of all forms of discriminatory treatment in international commerce; to the reduction of tariffs and other trade barriers; and, in general, to the attainment of economic objectives identical with those set forth in the Joint Declaration made on August 14, 1941, by the President of the United States of America and the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom."

At an early convenient date, conversations shall be begun between the two governments with a view to determining, in the light of governing economic conditions, the best means of attaining the above-stated objectives by their own agreed action and of seeking the agreed action of other like-minded governments."

The chronology of America's approach to a peace founded on the principles of free economic intercourse is:

Autumn of 1940: The Atlantic Charter.

March, 1941: Lend-Lease Law.

February, 1942: Master Lend-Lease agreement with Britain.

June, 1942: President's clarification of Article VII.

Secretary Hull believes that a sound and equitable international economic policy must be laid down before we can hope for international political stability. He will be, as he always has been, the champion of that view.

Washington's 'Second City'

—The Pentagon

"This ain't a building—this is a city with a roof over it; that's what I call it."

This was the remark of my dusky-skinned guide between bites of a ham sandwich which one of his colleagues had offered him as we made our journey through the maze of corridors in that amazing building, the Pentagon, in Washington, which houses the war department.

It is a city, for it houses no less than 40,000 workers. When they leave, they begin at 4:30 p. m., one group after another every ten minutes. Otherwise, all the buses and cabs and private cars that jam the labyrinth of highways, which cost $150,000 a mile to build, would never be able to take care of them.

Recently I took a cab with an inexperienced driver. I'm afraid I took the hard way. There were four policemen at the door and a huge receptionist desk.

I found my proper stall, labeled "Press," and showed my pass to the girl. She had never heard of me or the Western Newspaper Union or the Blue Network, and she spelled my name wrong three times. However, I was eventually moved up to a waiting bench and finally a guide appeared and escorted me to the officer I wished to see.

We passed two beverage rooms on the way and as I was somewhat exhausted, I dropped into one for a soft drink and a cigar.

It took me 30 minutes from the time I got in the building to the time I reached my destination, and some of the people there told me they had already been waiting longer than that.

The officer whom I was visiting had an inside office. He told me that if the lights ever went out, they would be in pitch blackness at noon, for, of course, there were no windows. I asked what would happen if the ventilating system broke down. He said he had not thought of that. I had—and I imagine the air would get pretty bad before very many minutes if the air conditioner ceased to work.

This huge institution is only a fraction of the expansion of Washington which has been caused by the war, but it is a concrete symbol of the tremendous clerical effort required to beat the Axis.

The first packing center for prisoners of war parcels, which will have an initial capacity of 100,000 packages a month, will be opened in January by the American Red Cross in Philadelphia. The parcels, containing 11 pounds of food, tobacco and soap, will be for distribution to American and other United Nations prisoners of war and civilians held by the enemy.

Synthetic Era Taking Shape Today.

SUBSTITUTES INCREASE

Raw Materials Might Have Less Importance After War Ends.

Remember not so long ago when the slogan "Accept no substitutes" was popular? Today, because of war demands for strategic materials, the very opposite of that is the rule!

And the enemy is beginning to realize that what with Paratroopers dropping down on them from the skies in synthetic cloth parachutes, from transport planes made from substitute synthetic material, it would be good for them if they could get a personal substitute on the battle fields all over the world.

As the war progresses, Americans are awakening to the fact that they are in the middle of a chemical revolution, the end of which is not in sight, and the social possibilities of which are far from being completely, thoroughly achieved.

It used to be that the motorists of this nation were completely dependent on the laboring, sweating natives coming out of the jungles of South America and the Southwest Pacific area with their crude rubber extracted from trees. Within a year, according to William M. Jeffers, there will be plenty of synthetic tires for every one who has a car. And those tires will be synthetically made from all native, easy to obtain, either chemically or from the earth itself, material in the U. S.

An interesting part of this chemico-industrial revolution is that the rural section of the United States is taking an increasingly important part in it. Chemurgy, the science of finding new industrial uses for farm products, has been very busy during the past years. Now that the war is on, the good it is doing can be noted in the extensive use made of casein obtained from skimmed milk. The plastic material obtained offers the best possibilities as a substitute material in various kinds of war material.

Parts of many bombers, dropping back busters over Italy and Germany, are made from casein. Further research will find still greater uses for it. As it is now, a contented cow chomping grass along a

The Army's New Wooden Plane

This is an official war department sketch of the new type wood and non-strategic material military transport plane. It is twin-engined, and about the size of the present-day all-metal transport planes operated by domestic airlines. It is officially designated the Curtiss C-76. Performance details are a military secret.

Mississippi levee in Louisiana is partially the cause for discontentment in Axis nations.

Soybeans, from which many plastic articles useful both for the war effort, and helpful in the homes, is another farm product that is being further developed. Bagasse obtained from sugar cane waste has proven its worth for electrical goods, washing machines and automobile parts. Possibly the toothbrush you used today had a handle made from sugar cane.

Often you hear the statement that possibly, because of the nation's all-out war and death-dealing on the Axis, most of its natural resources such as oil, coal, iron ore, will be used up. But from the great strides taken by industries making substitute synthetics and plastics, it isn't far-fetched to suggest that maybe there will be no need for the present natural resources in years to come. At least, not as necessary as today.

Miss and Mrs. America have found that many synthetic products are clothing them just as well as when they could buy all the silk they wanted from Japan. Scientists state that it is quite possible that every bit of clothing you will be wearing in the not too far distance will be synthetically made. Maybe four or five of the pieces of clothing you own today are synthetically made, and yet you never realized it.

Household furnishings, from glass fireplaces to dishes, from dressers to stoves are now being made from synthetic materials. The old gag about the errant husband hiding all the dishes before facing his wife holds no more. For many plastic dishes don't hurt when they land on the target because of their light weight. On top of that they won't break and are also too colorful to throw around. Any angry wife will think twice before she begins to lay down a barrage with such ammunition.

Many of the war plants constructed, and in the process of construction today, have no windows. All artificial lighting and air-conditioning takes care of what nature used to consider her job. Glass bricks that let the health rays of the sun through, but prevent vision, now take the place of windows.

Those who aren't "up on" their knowledge of what is going on in the world of substitutes still say something to the effect that "People who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones." But there are glass houses today, with more in the offing, that wouldn't be in the least affected by anyone who might want to throw some stones at them. Even some good, solid glass bricks wouldn't cause them any damage.

Statements from scientists busy working in laboratories far into the night in all the free United Nations have hinted that what has been seen so far in plastics, is nothing compared to what is to come. One spokesman stated that by October, 1943, synthetic production will be sufficient to provide the nation's military needs.

As you look about and see the hundreds, thousands, of articles of everyday commonplace variety, you automatically begin to ask yourself, after fully realizing the significance of the substitution era you are in, whether that article, or this article—probably having some strategic, or scarce material—could not be substituted by a plastic. More than likely in the months to come you won't be surprised when that article appears in its plastic dress.

Scientists have tagged the millions of years in ancient man's past as belonging to certain periods as he slowly developed from the brute stage. Then there were the various ages, of stone, wood and iron. The astounding use of steel, brought about by quicker, more efficient production methods, gave that period of development in the U. S. the title The Steel Age.

You wouldn't be surprised, would you, if after this war is over and won, the present days, and then, would be appropriately titled the Plastic Period, or the Synthetic Era?

Glamorous

U. S. Department of Commerce Puts Title on Plastic Industry in Bulletin.

Acting director of the U. S. department of commerce's bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, in a reference service bulletin, issued this statement:

"The spotlight of industry today is focused on our glamorous plastics which are commanding much interest and attention. This gigantic new industry, now gone to war, is doing a fulltime job in meeting the requirements of the war effort where performance counts most.

"Both at the front and behind the front, plastics are playing an important part in war equipment. Through their ever-increasing use as materials vitally essential in both combat and industry they are now on equal basis with the older fundamental raw materials, glass, wood, stone and metal.

"Although the new and original uses, as well as substitutions, in the non-essential civilian classification have been curtailed for the duration, the plastics industry, we feel assured, will not retreat after the war, but continue its rapid advance."

Bulletins being printed for the department of commerce contain latest information on present-day articles now being made from synthetics.

As each new substitute is put on the market, the various bulletins have been listing them. Along with the articles listed are the trade names, besides technical names.

Celluloid, one of the earliest synthetics, which was used as transparent windows for early model car side curtains, is the forerunner of comb, brush, and mirror handles.

STUDY OF MAN GONE SLIGHTLY MAD THROUGH RATION RULES

Mr. Twitchell took two more letters from ration boards from the letterman and weighed them carefully. Then he handed them back. "Sorry. Can't use 'em," he said. "I've already had my two and a half pounds this week."

"Get the sugar bowl," he commanded, addressing Mrs. Twitchell. "What for?" she asked.

"Got to turn in all but five lumps," he said.

Elmer then stood on his head in the middle of the living room and put on his glasses.

"What on earth are you doing now?" demanded Mrs. Twitchell.

"Got to copy the serial numbers on the sidewalls of all my oil burners," he snapped.

At this point, Mrs. Twitchell went upstairs and quietly summoned the doctor.

The doctor arrived as Elmer was leaning over a table repeating his name and address over and over again and giving his height, age and color of eyes.

"Elmer, what are you doing now?" asked the wife.

"Just another registration," he snapped.

The doctor motioned to Mrs. Twitchell to sit down and whispered that it would be better just to observe Elmer without any comment for a while.

Elmer took from his pocket a small thermometer and held it in his mouth a few moments. Then he read it. "Seventy-nine degrees," he announced. "They can make trouble for me for having a temperature like that. I could have avoided it all, though."

Mrs. Twitchell forgot herself and asked: "How?"

"By switching from meat to coal," he barked. "You remember all those warnings that all cars should keep down to two cups a mile."

He then went into the kitchen, took the coffee pot and threw it away.

"Got to get something smaller," he said. "I'm only an 'A' card holder. My allowance is to be cut to three gallons a week now. Used to be allowed four. Tried to join a Share-the-Mocha club but couldn't do it."

Elmer walked to the telephone. "Hello, is this Henderson?" he asked. "Just want to tell you about the butter. It was worth rereading so I called the express company and turned it in."

"Quite a case," observed the doctor, making notes.

Mr. Twitchell now got a can of gasoline, poured out a small quantity, added condensed milk, a pinch of sugar and proceeded to drink it.

"Tastes lousy," he said, "but a ration order is a ration order."

Suddenly he put the cup aside and remarked, "I forget this was a coffeeless Tuesday."

"How long has he been acting like this?" asked the doctor.

"Just for the last day or two," said Mrs. Twitchell.

"Who's that?" demanded Elmer, suddenly noticing the doctor.

"Ah, I recognize him now. He's the federal furnace inspector. It's okay, inspector. I laid my furnace up for the winter and am heating the house by bicycle now."

The doctor at this point sneaked up behind Elmer and slugged him with a heavy paperweight, knocking him cold.

"It's the only way to handle these cases," he said to Mrs. Twitchell. "I'm getting more of 'em every day."

Father's pretty dizzy now— They've tossed him into bed. To get those tire numbers he stood too long on his head.

Now that butter is to be rationed we ought to see less of the fellow who always took about a pound of it on his knife and said: "Please put a little toast on this."

New slogan: Praise the war and don't pass the butter.

NO USE

Last night I sprayed my radio with strong insecticide, but just the same Laval got through; He's tough as hippo hide.

Many stores are now rationing ice cream, and refusing to sell any to take-out. One man says his wife wanted a pint for a sick child, and so explained to the ice-cream clerk. But the reply—believe it or not—was: "You'll have to get a prescription."

Horse meat, so labeled, is now being sold in many cities, and it is selling pretty fast. Some people say it isn't bad. Elmer Twitchell insists it's pretty good. "It all depends on the horse," he declares.

FIRST AID AILING HOUSE

by Roger E. Whitman

Roger E. Whitman—WNU Features.

You may not be able to replace worn or broken household equipment. This is war. Government priorities come first. So take care of what you have . . . as well as you possibly can. This column by the housewife's friend tells you how.

WORN VARNISH AT DOORWAYS CAN BE PATCHED

THE waxing of a varnished floor has another purpose besides improving the appearance; for the wax takes the wear. Heaviest wear, of course, is at doorways, and the replacement of wax is a simple method of protection. Many people do not like waxed floors because of possible slipping, and in that case, the wear at doorways comes directly on the varnish. When wear begins to show, the revarnishing of the entire floor is not necessary, for the worn place can be so neatly patched that it will not show. The first step is to go over the worn place with sandpaper to make it smooth and to take off soiling that washing may not remove. Varnishing should begin at the center of a worn place and go toward the edges. At the edges the varnish is applied thin, and should go over the old varnish in such a way that a margin will not be visible. Two and probably three coats of varnish will be needed in the center of the worn place, but the edges of all of them should be so thin that they will not show. As each undercoat becomes hard, it should be lightly rubbed with very fine sandpaper to cut into the gloss.

Basement Playroom

Question: In the summer our cellar walls sweat pretty badly. I am planning to build a playroom there. What would you advise for the ceiling and walls? Since the basement is not very warm in winter, would you advise placing rock wool batts or other insulation between the furring strips? Would covering the walls stop the sweating?

Answer: Covering the walls with plywood, a rigid insulating board or a gypsum wallboard, with the top and bottom sealed against air circulation in the space behind the wallboard, should prevent condensation. If the cellar is very cold, a one-inch blanket of insulation, the kind enclosed in waterproof paper, placed between the furring strips will make it more comfortable. The floor can be covered with asphalt tile or a synthetic resin floor paint.

Sooty House

Question: I have a coal-burning furnace, with a stoker. While I get all the heat I need, the soot is so thick that curtains and furniture are covered in six hours. Heat comes through a grille.

Answer: In a hot-air heating system soot and fine ash are likely to seep through cracks in the cement joints between the furnace sections, or between the floor and the base of the furnace and into the heated air rising to the rooms above. Any cracks or crevices at these points should be filled with iron cement. All furnace doors should fit well against the frame. In addition, it might be advisable to place two thicknesses of dark mosquito netting back of each grille.

Radiator Does Not Heat

Question: I am having trouble with one of the radiators of my hot-water heating system; it does not heat. I drained the system and refilled it, and bled the air out of all the radiators. They all heat up except this one. What can I do?

Answer: There are several possibilities; perhaps the shut off valve at the radiator is not opened wide. Or air still may remain in the radiator, or may be trapped in a pipe bend or angle, thus blocking the circulation. Or the piping may be defective. A heating contractor should be called in to check on all these points.

Scratch Remover

Question: Is there such a thing as a scratch remover? I am sure I saw it advertised.

Answer: Yes; but you will have to inquire about it at your hardware store. I cannot give trade names in the column. If you do not find what you want, try running a little varnish of the right color into the scratch, using a pointed camel-hair brush. Or use the meat of a pecan or Brazil nut—unsalted, of course.

Hot-Air Registers

Question: Our hot air registers make the rooms quite dusty. To catch the dust, I am planning to place a thickness of mosquito netting against the pipe inside the register. Would this check the flow of hot air, and should we have to burn more fuel?

Answer: Two thicknesses of black mosquito netting placed back of the hot air register may have a slight effect on the flow of heat, but not enough to cause an appreciable increase in fuel consumption.

Hostess Let Herself In For an Awkward Moment

At a Christmas gathering the shy young hostess, in an effort to be genial, led aside the comparative stranger, whose name, somehow, eluded her.

"Look," she said, "I've paired you off with that lady in the corner. Will you take her in to dinner?"

"My husband says she's a bit of an old frump, but she's got lots of money, and one of his clever friends has just married her for it, so you can understand we must be nice to her."

"I'm sorry," said the guest, "but I am the clever friend in question."

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—the risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pain, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are some times burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's has the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Old License Plate Still Useful

The small tabs which this New York miss is holding are right over last year's license. By using them, instead of full size tags, the state will save many tons of strategic metal, besides thousands of dollars production costs. Regardless of the size of the license, they will still cost the same as last year.

It all depends on where you are living whether you will be seeing new automobile licenses, or new color combinations on the license plates on automobiles. This year only five states—Colorado, Illinois, Mississippi, Wyoming and South Carolina—are having new color combinations on the licenses.

Of course, you might be living near one of these adjoining states and get to see them, but the possibilities are very small, considering how gas rationing is cutting down highway travel.

The reason for the use of 1942's license for the current year, 1943, is due to a WPB order, of March 18, 1942, curtailing the use of steel for license purpose by 90 per cent.

State officials have devised many schemes to overcome the obstacles brought on by the lack of steel for plates.

Some states will use a windshield sticker, some will use date tabs on the license plates, while even wooden, fibre board tags will be available.

About half of the states will continue to use the old plates with a small tab, or strip (as shown above) attached to them. Of these states, 13 will not even use steel for the purpose, registration will be shown by a windshield sticker.

Florida and Massachusetts will use both tag and windshield identification.

Pennsylvania's license, which has had added a touch of individuality by having the plates in the shape of the state's outline, will go a little further this year in originality by having a date tab in the form of the state's symbol, a keystone.

Ingenuity has been shown in every state with the license problem.

Illinois is using new plates made from fiber board. Arkansas is using wooden plates for trucks and motorcycles, but passenger cars will use their old license plus a windshield sticker.

Wyoming will have new plates of orange letters and black background, because they were made before the WPB order went into effect.

The other four states' new color combinations are: Colorado, yellow letters with black background; Illinois, white letters with green background; Mississippi, white letters with green background; South Carolina, black letters with yellow background. The new plates—with the exception of Illinois—will be issued one to an automobile while the WPB order stands.

Cattlemen Postpone Quarterly Meeting

Albuquerque, N. M., Dec. 28 1942, Tom Clayton, President of the New Mexico Cattle Growers' Association, today declared that the Executive Committee of the Association has voted to postpone the Third Quarterly Executive Board meeting, scheduled to be held at Santa Fe sometime in January.

In view of transportation difficulties and the need to conserve tires, and because of an acute ranch labor shortage throughout the state, Clayton stated, the Executive Committee meeting will be held the evening before the Annual Convention at Albuquerque in March, 1943. Date of the Annual Meeting will be announced early in January.

Cattle growers throughout the state are today being called upon to maintain and increase production of beef with less manpower than ever before, Clayton said, and this together with additional war time problems confronting all ranchers is making the cattle business a twenty-four-hour-a-day job.

The Legislative Committee of the Cattle Association, consisting of twelve members and headed by Burton Roach, State Senator from Hillsboro will probably be called together at Santa Fe the latter part of January, Clayton said.

DIRECTIVE 49

An order issued to the petroleum industry by the Office of Petroleum Coordination virtually socializes the oil industry. The order is known as Directive 59. Under it, the competition which stimulated development of the oil industry to undreamed-of heights of public service has been abandoned. Progress has been frozen and henceforth the resources of the oil industry will be pooled under government control.

As a representative from one company pointed out, the industry gladly contributes its facilities to be used in the common effort, adding that no one will accept the cost—in money or constitutional liberties.
