Writes of Queer Sight (Tucumcari American)

Mrs. W. T. Barnes of 1806 South Second street, received a letter last week from her son Billy Barney who is in the Navy and stationed at present in San Diego, California, telling of an extraordinary sight he had just seen in a freak cow.

Billy sent a description of the animal to his mother and it was so interesting we are passing it on to our readers.

The cow was born on a dairy farm near San Diego, is described as being 7 years of age and was one of a pair of twins, weighing 180 pounds at birth. She stands five feet in height, nine feet in length and twenty-eight inches through the shoulders and is still growing.

Some of the remarkable freaks about the animal are; two normal heads, one a male and the other female; she has the black and white markings of a holstein, these markings showing a picture of a camel, a lamb, a child in prayer on one of her sides and on the other a map of the United States, a dog with two heads and a bird.

Bill tells his mother that the animal was surely something queer to look at.

Frank said that clouds would gather over nearby ranches and it would rain to a certain extent, but the clear spots would hover above his range lands. Better pay the preacher in advance, Frank.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Battle Wagons

When Japan attacked at Pearl Harbor we had 17 battleships in service and 15 building. We were making preparations but the war did not wait. These 32 battle wagons cost American taxpayers three billion dollars for a two ocean navy. The war seemed far away then.

Now fifty million Americans have a personal stake in this war. It has been brought home to them. That's why everyone is increasing purchases of War Bonds.

U. S. Treasury Department

Aimed at The Press (Roswell Record)

Just at present a war is going on inside of the United States and it is a virulent, relentless and bitter war. It is aimed at destroying the freedom of speech and the right to have a free press. If that war succeeds it will mean the end of a free America.

Yet, this war is so insidious and is being aided by so many powerful men that it is making rapid headway. Among the men who are aiding it are men sworn to defend the constitution of the United States, which provides for freedom of speech, religion and a free press.

The war we are fighting against Germany, Italy and Japan and their subject nations is not a whit more dangerous to us than is the war that is being fought here at home inside our country.

And while this war is going on so many of our statesmen, our leaders in public life and in the professions are silent and apparently unwilling or unable to take a position on one side or the other.

Americans are facing the greatest crisis in the life of the nation today.

Bill Fulmer, who has been attending the Albuquerque high school, is spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Fulmer.

Machinist's Mate Chas Carl was here last week visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Carl. Charles has been in the U. S. Navy for the past year and in that service the position of Machinist's Mate is one of much prominence and responsibility.

Ben Franklin's Wisdom (Industrial News Review)

Ben Franklin made a speech before the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia in 1787. He warned the builders of the Republic against the dangers of bureaucracy, saying: "There is scarce a king in a hundred who would not if he could, follow the example of Pharaoh—get first all the people's money, then nail their hands, and then make them and their children servants forever." Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming in a recent address said: "We do not want the government to run the whole show. The natural and inevitable result of concentrated power is the limitation of growth. We must realize that though the government may create debt, only the people can pay it. Production by the people is the only dependable source of government revenue. The supreme task of the democracy, therefore, is to enable the people to produce. The only alternative is some form of national socialism."

When the "king" (the government) referred to by Ben Franklin, goes into business in competition with private citizens, the seeds of national socialism have been planted. That has already happened in our country. It remains to be seen to what extent the people will cultivate this alien crop. If they permit it to flourish, it will swallow their money, their lands, and leave them and their children servants.

This nation reaps from individual ambition and enterprise developing the natural resources of the country—with government the servant, not the master of the people. Remember Ben Franklin's words whenever some one talks about the government going into business in competition with private citizens to furnish service "at cost." When it does that, the people go out of business, national socialism is established, and we all work for the government instead of ourselves. It becomes the master instead of the servant.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Attu Victory Brings U. S. Nearer Tokyo; Flood Damage Menaces Food Production; Labor Stirred by Lewis Bid to AFL; Churchill: 'Bomb Jap Cities to Ashes'

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Feted from one end of the country to the other for his exploits in shooting down the record number of 28 Jap planes, Marine Capt. Joseph Foss received from President Roosevelt the Congressional Medal of Honor for "outstanding heroism and courage above and beyond the call of duty." Photo shows, left to right: President Roosevelt; Mrs. Mary Foss, mother of the air hero; Captain Foss and his wife, June, adjusting the medal around his neck.

ALEUTIANS:

Tokyo Gets Nearer

The Japanese government had prepared the civilian population of Nippon for the fall of Attu through the medium of a report indicating that the last defenders of the Aleutian Islands outpost were making a death stand against attacking American troops.

While the Japs were singing their Attu swan song, reports from Washington had disclosed the strategic moves that had succeeded in bottling the enemy up. Two American columns, landed on opposite sides of the island, had joined and trapped the Japs on a narrow front on the northwestern end of Attu.

Japs Warn Reds

As American air power thus moved closer to Tokyo, the Japs showed their uneasiness. Apparently the success of Allied bombings of Germany had stirred the Japanese government to the dangers ahead should the United Nations be permitted by Russia to use Siberian bases.

The result was a Tokyo broadcast reported by the British warning Russia that "if in the future she ever put her Siberian bases at the disposal of the United States, the Japanese army will resort to a blitzkrieg and will deal upon her the heaviest blows Russia has ever known."

AFL TO LEWIS:

'Come Back Home'

Unpredictable John L. Lewis knocked at the door of the American Federation of Labor carrying in his hand an application for the readmission of his United Mine Workers. Just eight years before he had torn the parent union asunder in the greatest labor schism in history.

That the door would be opened wide to the errant Mine Workers was evident from AFL President William Green's announcement that the federation's executive council was considering Lewis' application in an "orderly and sympathetic way." Green said he personally welcomed the miners and reminded the public that for seven or eight years he had said the latch string was out and he wanted the miners "to come back home."

What effect Lewis' move would have on the present peace negotiations between the AFL and the CIO which Lewis founded and later quit, was not immediately evident.

EUROPE:

Air Blasts Continue

In the wake of ebbing flood waters that had swept disastrously through Germany's industrial Ruhr valleys from the Eder and Moehne dams, shattered by RAF bombs, American Flying Fortresses inflicted further punishment on the Nazis in attacks on submarine and shipbuilding yards at Kiel and Flensburg, 40 miles away.

Air Force communicants said the unescorted bombers had left both targets in flames and shot down many enemy fighter planes that had tried to ward them off.

GAS CRISIS:

Middle West Next?

As the gasoline supply crisis mounted along the Atlantic seaboard, Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown decreed a complete ban on pleasure driving in 12 eastern states, part of another and in the District of Columbia.

The states affected by the ruling were Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia. In addition eight eastern counties in West Virginia were affected.

Previously the OPA had sought to curb nonessential driving through a voluntary "honor system."

That additional restrictions loomed ahead was indicated by Petroleum Administrator Harold L. Ickes, who said that the East would have to cut its gasoline consumption still further and that new restrictions may be put into effect in the Middle West so that some gasoline may be diverted from there to the seaboard area.

FOOD CONFERENCE:

Postwar Goals Outlined

Continuance of food rationing after the war, the creation of a global agricultural commission and the assurance that the people of the world will be better fed in the postwar period were among goals agreed upon by delegates representing the "big four" of the United Nations—the United States, Great Britain, China and Soviet Russia—attending the food conference at Hot Springs, Va.

In addition the delegates were said to be in agreement on declarations advocating continued agricultural expansion throughout the period of post-war relief, on a statement favoring the reduction of world tariffs and on educational measures to promote better nutritional goals.

Although no binding agreements linked the delegates, Paul H. Appleby, undersecretary of agriculture and acting chairman of the American delegation, said that representatives of 44 governments attending the conference had come forward with offers of co-operation.

FARM IMPLEMENTS:

Bigger Output Ahead

Production of farm machinery in 1944 at an estimated rate of 80 per cent of the average annual output in the 1940-41 period, and unlimited production of repair parts was approved by the War Production board.

farmers, Paul Henry, head of the WFA's production-equipment branch, revealed.

Concentration of the farm equipment industry previously ordered in a WPB directive, is to be eliminated. Donald Nelson, WPB chairman, announced that "concentration is a dead duck." Thus large farm equipment manufacturers whose sales are over $10,000,000 are permitted to come back into production.

RUSSIANS:

Reds Press Hard

Even as former Ambassador Joseph E. Davies was engaged in conferences with Russ Premier Joseph Stalin in furtherance of his second and historic mission to Moscow, Red armies were reported by the Germans to have launched major attacks on four points along a 1,100-mile section of the Eastern front in the Volkov sector to the Kuban valley in the Caucasus.

In the Caucasus campaign Red army troops shattered two Nazi attacks, according to a Soviet report, and blasted 14 boatloads of Nazis attempting to retreat over the Kuban river.

In the vicinity of Novorossiisk, last remaining Axis bridgehead in the Caucasus, Russian forces continued their pressure, breaking up Nazi tank assaults and tightening their offensive ring around the key city.

CANNED FOODS:

More for Civilians

Civilian supplies of canned fruits and vegetables will be increased by approximately 30,000,000 cases from the 1943 pack because of reduced military demands for these commodities, the War Food administration announced.

Whether the new allocation would result in a lowering of point values for canned goods was not known. Officials said this would depend on the size of the 1943 fruit and vegetable pack.

Washington Digest

American Propaganda Strengthened by Victory

Triumph in Tunisia Furnishes Powerful Ammunition for Verbal Warfare; Axis Policy of Suppression Backfires.

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

As this is written, America is preparing for the greatest assault on the German home front since the war began. The new offensive is made possible by two things: the fall of Tunisia which weakened the barricade of German morale, and the capture of the City of Tunis, where Africa's most effective radio station for reaching Europe is located. Because of the water-jump, the transmission from Tunis is especially favorable.

The members of the staff of the Office of War Information who man the front in the battle of verbal warfare say that their fire power has increased tremendously with the African military victory. They explain it this way: propaganda is a strange thing. Alone, it is not a very powerful weapon—it has to be backed up by events. Germany's barrage of words that had so much to do with preparing the way for her soldiers did not really become effective until Hitler had begun to act; until he could report his successful aggression, his blitz against Poland helped against Scandinavia; his victory in the low countries bolstered his "Victory in the West"—the film of that name was widely used as defeatist propaganda.

Because of this principle, American propaganda was handicapped. Until November fifth of last year, the only concrete thing which America had to talk about was production. But on and after that date, the attack from the radio stations in Africa jumped from the sniper to the machine-gun class because the enemy knew that not far from the radio station were American soldiers. America was actually in the war, physically participating against the troops of the Axis.

Truth Pays Dividends

Two things, the experts point out, strengthen the American attack. First, from the beginning, the Americans told the truth; they didn't overshoot the mark. Second, the Germans played down the Tunisian campaign, failed to prepare the people for the humiliating catastrophe ahead of them. And so Herr Goebbels, supposed to be past master of the art of psychological warfare, ignored one of its main theses, namely, that it is a weapon that turns in your hands if it is forged of lies.

As Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, recently put it in an article in the spring issue of the Public Opinion quarterly—"Thanks to . . . the endeavor of the totalitarian governments to suppress all news and all opinion except what they choose to give out, the truth has become a more powerful weapon than ever before."

The American campaign now under way takes advantage of this fact, plus the fact that the Americans now have new and important truths to report.

There are two separate fronts: the people in the occupied countries; the enemy countries. To the former will go much of the same material as is directed at the enemy plus the warnings against premature uprisings and encouragement to the underground organizations to which the British have long been directing their broadcasts. They will be cautioned not to risk their lives until the final word is given.

Revolt in Holland

Recently, it was reported that a revolt had broken out in Holland after the prime minister of the Netherlands had ordered the Dutch ex-servicemen to resist the German order to report for internment. This was not an attempt at revolution. Those in the know understood the prime minister's message which was in no way different from the instructions to the Frenchmen to resist the conscription for labor in Germany. The French did resist and the whole plan was sabotaged.

What the Netherlands will do can be imagined. As the Germans themselves put it, "The widespread stubbornness of the Dutch sticks until this day to the saying: 'The Germans have invaded our country, have not conquered it.'" For the second front at which the Allied propaganda is aimed, the civilian population in the enemy countries, the story is a little different. It is specialized for Italy where the people are frankly told: "If you want to stop the bombing of your cities, make peace now." The Germans are not ready for such a message as this is written but they may be before long.

To them, defeatist propaganda will be served in large doses now much more effective since they have tasted real defeat in Africa. Instead of hammering on the theme as formerly, "the Allies will win," the radio now tells them in a cool and factual statement, "the Allies are winning." The unbeatable Germans were beaten in Africa.

The second line of attack is a variation of the invasion warning which now also is much more telling. No actual information can be broadcast on this subject and everything that is said is carefully checked by the general staffs but it follows the line of the President's statement after Casablanca, "We will attack the continent from the northern capes of Norway to the eastern islands of the Mediterranean"—and right now, the Germans are beginning to feel the truth of this statement.

Deadly Parallel

Details of the surrender at Tunis and Bizerte and on the Cape Bon peninsula will be repeated. Coolly and objectively, the deadly parallel will be presented; what the German government told the people would happen; what did happen; what the German communicants said had happened; what actually happened—the "fight to the last cartridge" versus the huge stocks of ammunition captured by the Allies and the German troops marching up without guards to report to the prison camps.

So Herr Goebbels' weapon, which has turned in his hand, is given a slight push.

The Germans are brilliant students but somehow their learning always seems to fall just a little short of practical application. Listen to what Herr Hitler himself wrote in "Mein Kampf" about American and British propaganda in the last war which he praised highly and which he admits he used as a model for his own in this war: "The war propaganda of the English and Americans was psychologically correct," wrote the Fuehrer-to-be as he sat in jail after his first putsch. "In the beginning, it sounded crazy and impudent; later, it was no more than unpleasant; and finally, it was believed. After four and a half years, there broke out in Germany a revolution whose slogans came from the enemy's war propaganda."

Hitler didn't know it but he was writing history that is about to repeat itself before long.

Planners for the Postwar World

Never before in history have men expended as much time and money in an effort to plan a better world. Kites rise against the wind and the demology of Nazidom has swept away the gilt and the gee-gaws of our civilization and left bare the foundations with all their potential strength and pitiful weakness. The positive forces of evil have generated positive forces of good to oppose them.

At this moment more than 137 important government agencies in Washington and private organizations scattered throughout the country, not counting various state and smaller local groups "are engaged in research or public education on a national scale on the problems facing the United States when the war ends," according to the findings of a recent investigation by the Twentieth Century Fund, a research organization.

The interesting thing about these studies is that most of them agree on one constructive peacetime goal which is considered essential to bring about necessary reforms and that is "full employment"—in other words, a job for everybody who can and will work. The war has shown what tremendous potential production is possible. If it is maintained, most of our other ills will fade.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, uric acid and other waste matter that causes stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the kidneys require the special attention that is given them. If the kidneys fail to function properly, burning, scanty or too frequent urination, sometimes urines that smell like is wrong. THE STORY SO FAR: After a chance meeting and swift courtship, Will McPhail starts for Moose Bay, leaving Robin Dale to wait for him. A career girl could be so completely won by her feet. She knows little of Will, but that he is an engineer and that he has a brother named Angus, a poor Scot who hates women. Tired of the city and eager for adventure, Robin decides to take the next steamer up the St. Lawrence to Moose Bay. Driving to the port where she is to take the boat, Robin meets a salmon salarman, who turns out to be Angus McPhail. A letter from Will asks her to help heal Angus' heart, broken by an early marriage.

New continue with the story.

CHAPTER III

Robin wanted, in a friendly tenderness tonight, to help heal those scars. Sitting on the edge of the narrow bunk, the letter in her hand, she remembered the lines of old pain around the Salmon Man's mouth, the dregs of stale suffering in his eyes. He was like a small boy who has been hurt in ways he does not understand.

She remembered his tone when he spoke of Will, understood the deep affection in him for the younger man; and she decided that nothing must interfere with that trip they meant to make together. Certainly she would not rob Angus of that happiness. But if Will knew she had come to Moose Bay, he would insist on staying with her. That, simply, must not happen. Before she slept, she decided what to do. The White Queen was bound on a egyptian cruise around the Gulf of St. Lawrence. She would stay aboard, take the cruise, land at Rimouski on the return trip, and pick up her car and go on her way. Will never know she had been so near him.

Next morning she was one of the late breakfasters, and the small dining saloon was almost deserted; but before she had finished, Mr. Jenkins in his checked suit appeared and sat down beside her.

"Saw you on the dock last night," he reminded her.

"Yes, I remember." He seemed nice enough by daylight, in this safe security, with the stewards about. He seemed even nicer when he said, surprisingly!

"I'm afraid you found me annoying. May I apologize? Some friends had been seeing me off. I was a little—exuberant. I hope I didn't bother you?"

She forgave him at once. "You weren't really annoying; just—friendly."

"Too friendly," he insisted. "Let's forget last night, start fresh." He asked again whether she knew anyone in Moose Bay, and why she happened to be going there; and when she said she was an artist, he assured her she would find plenty of things to paint. She had made up her mind not to leave the ship at Moose Bay at all; but she need not tell Mr. Jenkins that. She finished her breakfast and left him busy with eggs and went on deck. There were twenty or thirty passengers aboard the White Queen, most of them for the cruise, most of them feminine. She found a group on the afterdeck tossing soft little bags of sand at a perforated board and exclaiming delightedly over their scores. The purser, a pleasant young man named Lewis, was with them; and Robin spoke to him about abandoning her plan to land at Moose Bay and continuing the cruise. He was pleased; and he introduced her to the others in the group here. A sister and brother in their later teens, Bob and Helen Marston, were the youngest and the liveliest passengers aboard; and Helen urged Robin to join in their game; but Robin said: "Later, please? I've a letter to write first."

The letter was to Will. Mr. Lewis could mail it at Moose Bay so that Will would receive it after the White Queen had gone. She told him about meeting Angus.

"And he happened to mention that you and he were going off on this fine trip together, and I could tell how much he was looking forward to having you with him. I know if you saw me you wouldn't go."

They came in sight of Moose Bay in mid-afternoon. As the White Queen drew in toward the long dock, Robin saw through a fringe of trees a considerable town on the wooded shore, the houses all brightly painted, fresh and new. The dock itself was impressive by its length, and by the fact that three freighters lay there disgorging their cargoes. She was on the upper deck of the White Queen, watching the rugged coast black with spruce, when Bob and Helen Marston came to the rail beside her. They were in bathing suits, slim and young.

"Bob and I are going swimming as soon as we dock, Miss Dale," Helen explained. "The purser says there's a landing stage we can swim from; says it will be right under the bow almost, when we tie up. Don't you want to come?"

Robin swam well, and she was an expert diver. "That might be fun," she agreed. "Maybe I will."

"We're all ready," the boy said. "You better go dress."

But Robin said she would wait till after the White Queen was tied up. "I want to see what the place looks like as we come closer," she exclaimed.

She wanted, in fact, to keep out of sight till they had docked; for Will would certainly be at the dock to meet Angus, and Will must not see her.

The White Queen neared the dock, moving slow and slower. In spite of the fact that it was late Saturday afternoon, men seemed to be working everywhere.

Robin, on the boat deck, kept herself half-hidden for fear Will, waiting on the dock to meet his brother, might see her. The White Queen drew alongside, and Robin saw that they were slowly approaching a landing stage for small boats. That was where those children meant to have their swim. Beyond the landing stage, a man in a bathing suit poised on the stringpiece of the wharf and dived—rather poorly.

A heaving line went unreeling through the air from the White Queen to the dock, was seized there and taken in, the hawser following. Robin suddenly wanted to say good-by to Angus. The gangplank would come aboard on the deck below where she stood; and she went in to descend to that deck. Mr. Jen-kings came out of the smoking room as she passed the door; and he protested:

She took the air in a swan dive.

"Thought you were getting off here?"

"No, I've decided to stay aboard for the whole cruise. It seems like fun."

He urged: "Say, you're making a mistake. You'd have a great time here. Stay over and let me show you the sights. You don't want to miss Moose Bay when you're so near."

"I'm afraid I do," she said, smiling a little. "I mean, I'm afraid I do want to miss it." She and Mr. Jenkins blocked the stairs; and here was Angus McPhail trying to pass. She spoke to him over Mr. Jenkins' shoulder.

"Goodby, Mr. McPhail. Thank you for telling me all about salmon. Have a fine trip!"

She would have offered him her hand; but before she could do so, he said goodby, simply, neither smiling nor rebuffing her, and descended the stairs to the deck below. Robin, Mr. Jenkins following her, moved out on the upper deck in time to see Angus McPhail step on the dock. She looked for Will to meet him, but another man who seemed to be a workman—Robin saw only his clothes, not his face—hailed Angus; and Robin, not listening to Mr. Jenkins' continued urgencies at her elbow, saw Angus and this man who had greeted him go toward a decrepit automobile, get in, and drive away along the dock toward the shore half a mile away, toward the town beyond.

Robin had a moment's wonder why Will was not here. Maybe he was sick, or hurt, or something! Then she realized that Will was probably at work, too busy to come to meet the steamer. Mr. Jenkins was still urging her to change her mind. She said:

"Excuse me. I'm going to have a swim here, so I'll have to change."

She left him and went swiftly to her cabin. While she was dressing, one of the youngsters called outside her door:

"Ready, Miss Dale?"

"In a minute."

"The landing stage's right ahead of us. You can go along the dock and down to it that way. We'll go ahead. You come as soon as you're ready."

"Right!" Robin agreed. "Don't wait for me."

Her bathing suit was designed for swimming, reduced to its essentials; and since she was traveling with a minimum of luggage, she had no beach robe. She came out into the companionway and turned aft toward the gangplank and saw Mr. Jenkins standing there. He was talking with Mr. Lewis, but she suspected he was waiting to intercept her, so she turned back and went toward the bow, adjusting her bathing cap. She needn't go along the dock; she could just dive off the White Queen's rail. On the forward deck when she came out there, the fore hatch was open, the cargo derrick lifting some freight out of the hold; and the men stopped their work to look after her as she passed them. She had not realized there were so many men about till they all looked at her now. To get into the water as quickly as possible, she climbed on the low bulwark forward and took the air in a swan dive, arms wide, body beautifully arched, bright and slender in the sun. She met the water cleanly, and went deep, thrilling to the cool, sweet shock of it. She arched her back and glided toward the surface, letting her own buoyancy carry her up till her head emerged.

As she came to the surface she felt, rather than heard, a heavy splintering crash. She felt its impact through the water. Then even with a bathing cap over her ears she heard sudden shouts, with excitement and terror in them. The people along the stringpiece of the dock above her, silhouetted against the sky, suddenly whirled and disappeared. They must have run toward the other side of the dock. Something had happened. A great surge of water came through the forest of piles under the dock and lifted Robin and let her down again. Bob and Helen Marston and two or three older swimmers off the White Queen were climbing up on the landing stage, running up to the dock level, disappearing. She swam swiftly toward the stage, swung herself up on it, followed them.

Men were packed along the opposite side of the dock, their backs toward her, crowding, standing on tiptoe, trying to see over the shoulders of men in front, looking down at the water. She touched one of them.

"What happened?"

He told her, with only the briefest glance. "The crane fell over the side of the dock. Fellow in it. They're trying to get him out." He spoke almost with unctious. "But he's done for, all right."

Robin went back toward the White Queen, sick and shaken. The day was so sunny and fine and fair, the sky so blue and beautiful; yet someone had died. She dressed slowly, oppressed and miserable. She went to find Mr. Lewis.

"Did they get the man out?" she asked.

He said: "No. Not yet." The purser added: "He was Mr. McPhail's brother. Will McPhail."

When Angus McPhail stepped off the White Queen, he expected his brother Will to greet him. Will was not in sight; but Pat Donohoe was here. Pat was as ugly a man as you could meet in a nightmare, with red hair that stuck up in some places like sprouting grass; with a red face and a battered nose which suggested that it had met strange flots in its time and might again; with one ear half the size of the other; with a great scar on his upper lip—a horse had kicked him there—so that his mouth would not quite close. But he had a twinkling blue eye which made you forget the rest of his battered countenance; and he caught McPhail's hand and squeezed it to a pulp, and he took McPhail's heaviest bag and heaved it into an automobile which stood with the engine running, and he said:

"Got in—yourself, sort. Here we go."

"Where's Will?"

"Waiting for you, be sure."

So Angus got in, and the car picked its way through scattered groups of men, and past piles of freight, and around switching engines, and then speeded up for the last half-mile run along the dock to the shore. There the rough new road slowed them down; they bounced and grunted; and Angus thought Pat was driving faster than he needed to. But he did not complain. He wanted to see Will. Once he asked:

"Why didn't Will meet me? All right, is he?"

"Sure, sort, he's fine. Busy, most like."

"What's he doing now?"

Pat chuckled. "Whatever they put him to, this thing and that. He'll make a hand, that lad."

Angus nodded, pleased and happy. He said: "I see they're unloading the rollers?"

"Aye," Pat dolefully agreed. "That means the end of the job's in sight. I hate to see the rollers come. Another eighteen months and we'll be moving on somewhere else again." Pat would be engineer and navigator on this trip which Angus and Will meant to take; but he was a construction man by habit and by long love. "Here's the bunkhouse, sort. Like as not we'll find him here."

But Will McPhail was not there. Angus, after one glance inside, said so; and Pat walked in and said in seeming surprise:

"Sure he is not, at that. I made sure he would be. We'll wait, sort. He'll be coming in any minute now."

But if Will was not here, other men were; and one of them volunteered information. "McPhail? He was out on the pier half an hour ago, fuming the traveler."

PETER COMFORTS PERSECUTED CHRISTIANS

LESSON TEXT—1 Peter 3:13-17; 4:12-16; 5:9-10. GOLDEN TEXT—For it is better, if the will of God be so, that ye suffer for well-doing, than for evil-doing.—1 Peter 3:17.

What shall we do? Where shall we turn? Is there no help for us? Such are the natural and understandable cries of those who bear the heavy heartbreak of persecution. God's Word has the answer, for from the very beginning the followers of Christ have had to meet that problem.

Peter is especially the apostle of comfort, and the portion now before us is rich in helpful instruction. His word to persecuted people is five-fold.

I. Do Not Be Afraid—Christ Is Lord (3:13-17).

By doing good the Christian will escape much suffering (v. 13), but if even then it comes, he is not to be afraid (v. 14). He is to sanctify Christ in his heart, that is, fully recognize the holiness of Christ and all that He is and can do for him. This is to be done in his heart. That means the exercise of full faith in Christ the Lord as the indwelling Presence. Who then can be afraid?

Note that this is not just a subjective spiritual exercise for his own enjoyment—it will show in his "good manner of life in Christ" which will put his persecutors "to shame" (v. 10). How effectively that has worked only recently in Germany, Norway and elsewhere.

II. Do Not Be Surprised—the Enemy Will Attack (4:12, 13).

Surprise attack is effective. Remember Pearl Harbor! Satan is an expert in strategy, and is eager to keep Christians in an easy and comfortable mood, so that he may strike a vicious blow when it is not expected. We best prepare to meet him when we recognize that persecution and suffering will come.

We are to bear in mind that it is not some "strange thing" which has happened; we who suffer as Christians are "partakers of Christ's sufferings." Joy and glory are ahead.

III. Do Not Be Ashamed—You Suffer for Christ (4:14-16).

Sadness and depression rest upon the one who suffers for his own evil deeds, but those who suffer for Christ's sake may be ever rejoicing. Can you not see that "the spirit of glory and the Spirit of God" are resting (v. 14) even now on some who sit in prisons and concentration camps? What a glorious picture of His grace!

It is proper to observe here that the believer is not to be guilty of that which justly brings the law's condemnation (v. 15). Do not fail to note the last of the list of crimes—"meddler in other men's matters." Has not just that caused endless trouble in the church, and harmed its testimony before the world? Let's quit meddling!

IV. Do Not Worry—He Careth for You (5:6, 7).

Worry! Worry! How it does crowd itself into our thinking. Yes, we know we are Christians, that we are unjustly accused or persecuted, that we are suffering for Christ's sake. That's all true, but how is it all coming out? What about my family? Will they harm my children? If I do survive will I be able to start life anew? And so on—questions without end; and soon comes the corroding touch of worry.

What shall we do? The answer is plain. Cast all your care on Christ—"He careth for you" (v. 7). That takes an act of faith just as it does to become a Christian in the first place, but it works.

The cure for all anxiety is right there—but it can only be reached by the path of humility. "Humble yourselves" (v. 6). There is the gateway to comfort, and to true exaltation in God's own good time (cf. Jas. 4:10).

V. Do Not Waver—God Is Your Strength (5:8-10).

Steady, perfected, established in Christ, sure of his eternal destiny and with the eyes of faith seeing the glory to come—such is the man who is ready and able to meet the devil when, like a roaring lion, he seeks to disturb and devour God's people. The believer should be ready and equipped.

That does not mean that the Christian sits with his hands folded waiting in a fatalistic way for the inevitable to happen. Never! He is "on the alert" with his spiritual ears attuned to hear the approach of the enemy's "bombers." He is "sober and watchful" against the "roaring lion" (v. 8).

Satan is unusually busy in our day. Alert Christian people see his deadly onslaughts on their brethren, which are possibly more severe now than for many years. He is seeking to break them down physically, mentally and spiritually, to make them fearful, to make them timid about work for Christ, to limit their usefulness, and to steal from them their victorious assurance. He is busy—let us be alert against him.

ON THE HOME FRONT with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

SEW-ON covers of chintz or other smart cottons are always neat and trim and, since the pieces are all sewn to the old upholstery of the chair with rather long stitches, it is not difficult to remove the cover for washing or cleaning. If washed at home it is much easier to handle separate pieces than an entire slip cover.

A sew-on cover should be pinned with a 4-inch tuck-in around the spring seat and 1-inch seam allowances. Use tailor's chalk to mark stitching lines and indicate pieces to have welting stitched to edges. Here, welting is used for

Being of a very kindly nature, the foreman of the munition plant took a great interest in the love affair of one of his pretty "munitionettes."

Then one day he was surprised to hear that it was broken off. But that very evening he was even more surprised to see the young lady in question out with the newly discarded young man.

"Why, Doris," he said chidingly, "I thought you had finished with that young man. And here you are out with him."

"That's right, I have," was the reply from Doris; "but I had to give him seven days' notice; didn't I?"

What is the most welcome gift you can send to a man in the service? Well, surveys among service men themselves show that one of the favorite packages from home are cigarettes. And first choice among men in all the services is Camel, based on the actual sales records in Post-Exchanges and Cantons. Though there are now Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Considering cost of oil, gas, tires and upkeep, it is estimated that the cost of driving the average car for 1000 miles at 45 miles per hour is $22.02. At 25 mph the cost is only $14.30 and at 35 mph it is held to $17.45.

Malaya and the Netherlands Indies were the only sources of natural rubber in the world which had been successfully exploited to an important extent prior to the present war.

Rubber and gun reticuling did not drastically curtail war work operations last year. Official figures show that during 1942 trucks hauled an estimated 46 billion tons miles of freight on main line highways, compared with 48.7 billion in the more normal 1940.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS

by Lynn Chambers

Last Word in Deliciousness . . . Chicken Chowder!
(See Recipe Below)

Get Your Protein!

There's no reason why you should not be getting your necessary protein into your daily menus, or why using meat alternates, i.e.—foods you use alternately with meat—should become a dull or difficult problem.

Here's your opportunity to show your family what a really smart homemaker you are—for you can keep up their admiration for you by serving an endless variety of good egg and chicken dishes, and fish in all its variety. These foods are protein-rich and with a little ingenuity you can make a star performer out of many of them.

Chicken comes beautifully to the rescue for it's a good, complete protein and the supply is good, especially at the present time. Use chicken wisely, however, a little bit of it combined with other foods can make a meal or more out of one chicken. Here's an example:

*Chicken Chowder.

- (Serves 6)
- 1 cup cooked, diced chicken
 - 1 ounce salt pork, finely diced, or
 - 4 tablespoons chicken fat
 - 2 to 4 tablespoons onion, finely chopped
 - 2 1/4 cups potatoes, diced
 - 1 cup celery, diced
 - 2 cups chicken stock
 - 1 No. 2 can kernel corn
 - 1 tall can evaporated milk
 - 1/4 teaspoon paprika
 - 1/4 teaspoon ginger
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 - 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- Coak salt pork in sauce pan over low heat until lightly browned. Add chicken and onion and cook until onion is soft, but not browned. Add potatoes, celery and chicken stock. Simmer until vegetables are tender. Add corn, milk, and seasonings. Heat thoroughly, stirring occasionally. Season to taste with additional salt and pepper, if desired. Serve very hot with crackers, hard rolls or toast.

Make good use of crisp, cool vegetables to go into a salad with the Chicken Chowder to round out the meal.

*Chef's Salad.

- (Serves 6)
- 1 head lettuce
 - 2 tomatoes, cut in quarters
 - 4 spring onions, cut fine

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: Consumers can do a lot in stamping out the illegal sale of meat by making sure that all meat they buy comes from a carcass which carries the necessary stamps—the permit number of the slaughterer and a grade stamp.

Calling prices are in effect in many areas for meat. They are posted by the butcher near meat counters and you can consult them when buying your meat.

Changes have come about on the bread situation. No more double or triple wrapping is allowed for bread and rolls. No more leftover bread or rolls can be returned to the baker, nor can there be any fancy racks for displaying bread.

Retail bakers are limited to 15 varieties of bread and nine varieties of rolls in one week. Many of these measures are designed to keep bread prices down.

Although outwardly, bread trimmings have been stripped, the insides are better. All white bread must now be enriched. Each loaf of white bread must contain not less than three parts nor more than four parts of milk solids to 100 parts of flour.

Lynn Chambers' Point-Saving Menu

- *Chicken Chowder
- Crisp Crackers
- *Chef's Salad
- Stewed Rhubarb
- Beverage
- *Recipes Given

2 hearts of celery, cut fine
2 hard-cooked eggs, quartered
Wash lettuce and dry in towel. Break lettuce apart, but do not cut. Place in chilled bowl and add remaining ingredients. Toss lightly together with french dressing.

Another good dish using chicken, a complete protein food, and spaghetti usually classified as a second class protein food, is combined in this way:

Spaghetti and Chicken Casserole.

- (Serves 8)
- 1/2 cup chicken fat or shortening
 - 1/2 cup chopped onion
 - 1/4 cup flour
 - 2 cups chicken stock
 - 1 cup grated cheese
 - 1 cup cooked tomatoes
 - 2 cups diced chicken
 - 1 7/8-ounce package spaghetti, cooked
 - 1/2 cup buttered bread crumbs

Melt fat and cook onions slowly for 10 minutes. Add flour, stir well, add stock, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add cheese and stir until melted. Blend in tomatoes and chicken. Place chicken mixture and spaghetti alternately in greased casserole. Cover with buttered crumbs. Bake for 25 minutes in a 375-degree oven.

Ever think of creaming deviled eggs? They make a delicious main dish on warmer nights:

Creamed Deviled Eggs.

- (Serves 6)
- 4 hard-cooked eggs
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons vinegar
 - 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 - 1/4 teaspoon sugar
 - 1 1/2 tablespoons melted butter
 - 1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
 - 1 cup white sauce

Cut eggs lengthwise into halves. Combine egg yolks with next seven ingredients. Beat together until well blended and smooth. Fill whites with yolk mixture, place in baking dish and cover with white sauce. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven 15 minutes. Serve hot on biscuits or toasted English muffins.

If desired, use 1/4 cup condensed mushroom soup thinned with 1/4 cup milk instead of the white sauce.

A dessert can take the place of a protein food for a meal and help you along in getting important body building and maintaining material, if it's a dessert like this:

Oatmeal Peach Fudding.

- (Serves 6)
- 2 cups canned peaches, fresh rhubarb or apples
 - 2 tablespoons lemon juice
 - 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
 - 1 tablespoon butter
 - 1/4 cup melted shortening
 - 1/2 cup brown sugar
 - 1/2 cup sifted flour
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon soda
 - 1/2 cup quick-cooking oatmeal
 - 1/4 teaspoon vanilla

Arrange fruit in shallow, greased baking dish. Sprinkle with lemon juice and cinnamon and dot with butter. Combine melted shortening and brown sugar. Sift flour, salt and soda together and mix the oatmeal. Blend in sugar mixture, crumbling well, then add vanilla. Spread over fruit and bake for 45 minutes in a 350-degree oven. Serve warm with pudding sauce or top milk.

Milk Takes Important Place in Nation's War Diet; Dairy Industry Breaks All Production Records to Meet Needs

By E. M. HARMON

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

In a time when milk has become more important as a dietary factor than ever before, the U. S. dairy industry has taken a front rank in the war effort by smashing all records for production. During the first four months of this year, 37,157,000,000 pounds of milk were produced, 212,000,000 pounds over last year's mark for the same period.

That is enough increased production in quarts of milk to make a row of milk bottles from San Francisco to Boston by way of Chicago and back through New York City, Washington, D. C., and St. Louis to the Carlsbad Caverns in New Mexico.

In other words, more than 26,000,000 dairy cows on American farms are greatly exceeding last year's record-breaking production.

With the single exception of April of this year milk production each month has been higher every month than for the corresponding month of the previous year since January, 1940. In January, 1943, production was 47,000,000 pounds over January of last year and 1,246,000,000 pounds over the average for January in the years of 1935 to 1939.

In February, 1943, these 26,000,000 cows produced 53,000,000 pounds more milk than in February of 1942, and in March production exceeded that of March last year by 133,000,000 pounds. Due largely to the lateness of the season this year April production is 60,000,000 pounds below last year but is still 1,317,000,000 pounds above the average for the years 1935 to 1939.

Hard Work Does Job.

But don't get the impression that these record-breaking yields are being easily accomplished. Labor and equipment shortages are making what is always hard work even more difficult. On the one and a quarter million dairy farms of the nation these producers, their wives, daughters and small children are toiling long hours to take the places of the big brothers and hired hands who have gone to war. On more than 3,000,000 other farms, where a few cows are kept as a sideline, equal efforts are being made.

Always important to health and well-being of the nation, milk and its products become doubly so during the war emergency. The master menus of the army call for fresh fluid milk every day and for butter at every meal. They call for frequent servings of cheese, ice cream and other dairy products. Field rations are made up very largely of milk in concentrated forms.

Executives and managers of factories and offices are coming to realize the part that diet plays in efficiency of workers and to insist on a greater utilization of milk and its products. In many cases by simply installing a mid-meal milk service, accident rates have been reduced as much as 30 per cent and the amount of work per employee materially increased.

The nutrition program of the National Dairy Council is of fundamental importance in developing this national health consciousness. Born of research discoveries which pointed to the place of dairy products in correcting some of the nutritional deficiencies of the first World War, this program is now in its 25th year. For nearly a quarter of a century the Dairy Council has spearheaded a nutrition education program in the schools and among the more than 3,000,000 doctors, nurses, dentists, dietitians, teachers and other opinion-forming leaders who largely determine the food habits of the nation. It is fitting that the results of these efforts should come to their maximum fruition during this emergency period when such information is so much needed to achieve war efficiency.

That the lessons on the value of dairy products to human health are being learned is shown by the fact that total consumption of all dairy products in milk equivalent rose from 808 pounds per person in 1935 to 1039 to 825 pounds per person per year in 1941 and from that to 854 pounds per person in 1942. Consumption of fluid milk and cream per capita rose from 328 pounds in 1935-

Almost 11,250,000,000 pounds of milk are required to make that much butter, or more than 30,000,000 pounds of milk a day. Stated differently, the milk that is required every day to make butter for government needs would fill a train of 37,500-pound capacity tank cars, 5.3 miles long.

But that is only a part of the government needs for lend lease and for the army. Fifty per cent of all the American cheddar cheese is being called for by the government for wartime needs. It is anticipated that this will amount to about 375,000,000 pounds of cheese this year. Another 4,000,000,000 pounds of milk are needed to make this cheese. That is 11,000,000 pounds of milk a day. If we were to take an average farm from the one and a quarter million dairy farms of the United States and ask that they produce enough milk to meet the government's cheese needs for the war emergency for one day, it would take that farm 120 years to do so.

U. S. to Increase Purchases.

During the period of heavy production beginning May 1, the government is requiring that the amount of butter to be set aside for lend lease and the fighting forces be increased from 30 to 50 per cent. Likewise, the cheddar cheese required for these purposes is increased from 50 per cent to 70 per cent. However, it is assumed that this is done to get the bulk of the government needs while supplies are the largest and thus leave fairly uniform amounts for civilians throughout the year. It is not anticipated that the total governmental needs will exceed 30 per cent of the butter and 50 per cent of the cheddar cheese for the entire year.

Evaporated milk is being called for by the armed forces to the extent of 20,000,000 cases a year. That calls for 2,000,000,000 more pounds. In addition fresh fluid milk is on the army master menus every day, and ice cream is served from 8 to 12 times a month. Milk is also served frequently in cocoa and various other forms.

Of defatted milk powder there is practically no limit to the needs of the government, both for the fighting forces and for lend lease. Manufacturers are required to sell 90 per cent of all their "spray process" milk powder to the government. Many of them dispose of all of it in that way. Altogether about 611,000,000 pounds of defatted milk powder was made last year from about 7 1/2 billion pounds of skim milk. Probably another 2,000,000,000 pounds of defatted milk powder could be made if the price were high enough to encourage diverting it from livestock feed and if milk drying machinery could be made available.

In spite of every effort along the production line it will not be possible to provide civilians with all of the dairy products they want. Ice cream production has been reduced to 65 per cent of that made last year, in order to make the additional milk solids available for our fighting forces. That means there will only be 8.5 quarts per civilian this year as compared with 13 quarts last year. After the necessary butter has been set aside for army and lend lease needs there will only be about 12 pounds each for civilians this year compared with 17 pounds in former years. Taking out the army requirements for cheddar cheese, civilians will probably have to reduce their cheese consumption from 6.5 pounds last year to less than 5 pounds this year.

These curtailments represent a distinct sacrifice on the part of consumers.

World War I	World War II
Fresh milk 1/2 qt.	1 qt.
Evaporated milk 1/2 qt.	1 qt.
Butter 1/2 oz.	1 oz.
Cheese 1/2 oz.	1 oz.

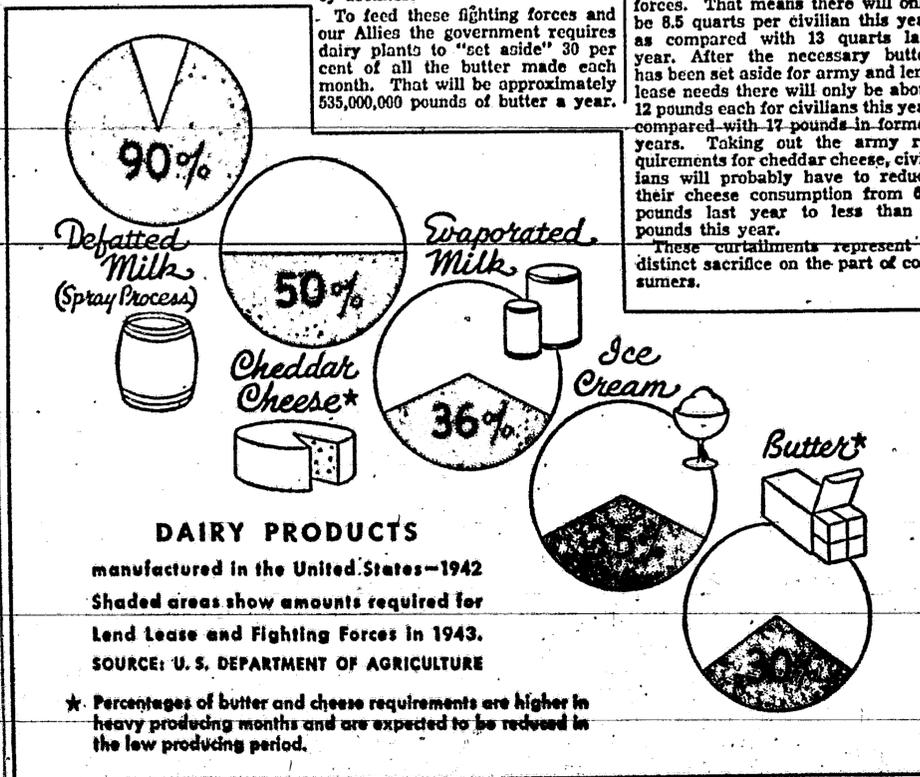

*Ice cream is a favorite with men in the armed forces in World War II. It is served on the average twice weekly at regular meals and eaten in large quantities in connection with larger amounts than in World War I.

39 to 381 pounds in 1942. Cheese consumption increased from 5.5 pounds to 6.4 pounds and ice cream consumption from a little over 7 quarts to 13 quarts per capita during that same period. Consumption of milk in most other forms increased.

This growing appreciation of the food values of milk and its products has resulted in a realization by government that fighting forces must have adequate quantities of dairy products. It has caused milk and its products to be given No. 1 place among the protective foods. It is even made necessary the furnishing of vast quantities of dairy products to our Allies.

All of this adds up to the greatest opportunity and the greatest challenge that has ever come to the dairy industry. It means that the greatest contribution the skilled dairy farmer or dairy plant worker can make is to stay right on the production line, feeding soldiers and war workers. Without foods of the right kind, army efficiency goes down and the war workers' efficiency declines.

To feed these fighting forces and our Allies the government requires dairy plants to "set aside" 30 per cent of all the butter made each month. That will be approximately 535,000,000 pounds of butter a year.

Large Herd of Reindeer in Alaska to Supply Meat

Ten thousand reindeer are to contribute a million and a half pounds of meat to Uncle Sam's dining tables.

Reindeer breeding in Alaska has been so successful that on Nunivak island a herd of 200, released at the close of World War I, now in a hundred times as large. Since Nunivak can pasture only 10,000 animals, the surplus will be butchered at roundup time next fall. Military and civilian menus from Alaska to Fier-da will include this venison.

This is the second time in half a century that reindeer have helped out in a food shortage, says the National Geographic society. By 1861, whalers had depleted the walrus, seal, and whale, the main source of food and clothing in the Arctic.

The government stepped in to avert a famine. Sixteen reindeer were imported from Siberia to Teller on Seward peninsula—Alaska's westernmost point. Laplanders were brought over from northern Scandinavia to instruct natives in the care of the animals. Thus a major Arctic industry was born.

Today, to some 15,000 Aleut, Eskimo, and Indian natives of Alaska, reindeer are important as a source of food and clothing. The sinews are used as thread; adult hides become sleeping bags; fawn skins, parkies and underwear. The antlers show up as knife handles.

BLITZ THEN AND NOW
The blitzkrieg was aondrous feat, A tactic which makes progress fleet; The Nazis made it quite a fad, But how they wish they never had!

The blitzkrieg set a dizzy pace For any so-called Master Race; Herr Hitler thought it up when hot— But how he wishes he had NOT!

The blitzkrieg was such ghoulish fun When it was dished out by the Hun; He gave it everything he could . . . But now it does not look so good!

The blitzkrieg was a thing devised To keep the whole world terrorized; It was the gem of Hitler Haus, But now the word for it is "Raus!"

The blitzkrieg, what a master thought! Some lessons to those Poles he taught; (It taught those Netherlanders, too—) But that was when the thing was new!

The blitz was one swell Nazi scheme; They loved to hear the victims scream; But when it's done by Nazi foes, Ach, Gott, such low and dirty blows!

The blitzkrieg, how it battered France! The slaughter made Der Fuehrer dance; But, turned about, it's something else— Der Fuehrer's fervor for it melts!

The blitz applied to helpless Greeks— It made plump Goering laugh for weeks! It made his tummy shake and howl! But that is not what's shaking now!

A blitz put on an English town— The Nazis do that stuff up brown; That's war at new artistic heights They thought . . . but not these days and nights!

A farmer blasted at his crops— This struck the Nazi code as tops; A kindergarten stained with gore Seemed legal . . . but not any more!

Civilians, helpless, out to bits— This gave the Nazis laughing fits; They think their blitz was quite a stunt— But only when they're out in front!

From Warsaw through to Coventry The Nazis staged the blitz with glee; It fattened Adolf's pride and purse . . . But, ach, how different IN REVERSE!

HARRY HOPKINS AND THE VICTORY GARDEN

Harry Hopkins has planted a Victory Garden and the newspapers and newsreels are carrying pictures of Harry looking down on the plot as if a little worried that the vegetables might come up without any government assistance.

Harry's whole expression as he stands there looking down on his garden plot seems to say, "I knew those little seeds used to come through in the old days, but this is a new era. They'll have to get help."

We can imagine Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins out there planting. "Do you think the ground has been plowed enough, Harry?" asks Mrs. Hopkins.

"I suppose the Republicans would claim it's soft enough, but I have my doubts," replies Harry.

"What about putting in soybeans?" Mrs. Hopkins asks.

"I don't care much for soybeans," Harry admits. "They're too closely associated with industrialism. You can do wonderful things with a soybean without any party backing. It's too reminiscent of the old order."

"How about some lettuce?"

"Lettuce prospers pretty freely without much help, too."

"What do you think of setting out some cabbage heads?"

"Don't ask me for an opinion on cabbage heads now. Wait until I see the Republican slate."

Do you like peas?"

"I don't know what our party would do without 'em. Look at all the peas we depend on . . . WEE . . . OPA . . . EFC . . . FWA . . . everything like that."

"I suppose we'd better plant some string beans."

"Yes, if only on account of the President's hold the string order."

"He said hold the line, not the string."

"Oh, yes! My mistake."

Well, anyhow, the garden gets planted and then Mr. Hopkins calls some secretaries and says, "Take some letters about our activities in this garden."

"You don't need letters to get a garden to grow," says Mrs. Hopkins.

"Nonsense," insists Harry. "There has got to follow the regular channels . . . There must be a statement on preplanting and postplanting plans . . . There must be definite objectives . . . and the usual blueprints."

FIRST AID
AILING HOUSE
by Roger B. Whitman

Roger B. Whitman—WNU Features.

You may not be able to replace worn or broken household equipment. This is war. Government priorities come first. So take care of what you have. As well as you possibly can. This column by the housewife's friend tells you how.

Colored Concrete Floor

Question: In coloring a concrete floor for a sun parlor, is it best to mix powdered coloring with the concrete when the floor is made, or to wait until the floor is finished and then paint it?

Answer: If the right kind of coloring is used, powdered color mixed with the concrete when the floor is made is permanent and will not wear off. However, the color should be of a special kind that is proof against the effects of lime in the cement. Lime-proof colors are on sale and should be insisted on. They should not be used in a greater proportion than 10 per cent of the weight of the cement. For a floor that is not in contact with the earth and therefore permanently dry, color can be had with ordinary top quality floor enamel. The manufacturer's instructions should be carefully followed. A penetrating dye made for the purpose can also be had.

Damp Walls

Question: My house is stucco on hollow tiles. The wallpaper in many places shows wet spots the shape of the tiles. What can I do about it?

Answer: The inside plaster is evidently applied directly to the tile, instead of being applied on lath on furring strips. The plaster therefore, becomes as cold as the tile, and the wet spots are due to condensation. The only real way to cure the trouble is to replaster the house, using lath on furring strips, or a form of insulating board, to be had at a lumber yard, to be applied over your present walls. No form of paint or any outside treatment will do, for neither one will provide the insulation that is necessary.

Broken Birdbath

Question: What will mend a broken birdbath? The bowl cracked in the frost. What will stick it together so that it will hold water?

Answer: Bring the bowl into the house so that it will dry out. Then coat both sides of the break with white lead paste and bind the parts tightly together. After hardening, which will take three months or so, the joint will be watertight. If you do not want to wait as long as that, and a yellowish tinge of the cement makes no difference, make a cement powdered litharge and ordinary glycerine. This acts quickly and is thoroughly waterproof when dry.

Removing Wallpaper

Question: Can wallpaper be removed from plasterboard?

Answer: That could be done by soaking with water, but using no more water than will be needed. If you use too much, you may soak off the paper finish of the plasterboard. At best, the plasterboard surface will be left rough. To smooth it, put on a coat of shellac, which in drying, will stiffen the paper surface of the board, which can then be rubbed smooth with sandpaper. It is then ready for papering.

Sagging Floor

Question: In an old house that is to be remodeled, the floors are sinking and buckling, apparently from crumbling foundations. How can they be strengthened? Is the situation hopeless?

Answer: The trouble may start with poor foundations, which can be renewed by a good mason. Trouble may also be from the rotting of sills, beams, and other wood parts, or from termite attack. The case is by no means hopeless. Consult any good contractor.

Porch Floor Supports

Question: In a stucco house the frame and stucco porches are supported on piers even with the surface of the ground. Wood under the stucco touches the ground and has begun to rot. If the wood is replaced by concrete, must the foundation be deep? The piers now extend below the frost line.

Answer: Evidently the piers are made of concrete or masonry, and could be used as supports for beams of concrete. Foundation walls would not be needed.

Waxed Floors Get Dull

Question: What is the best way to care for my waxed floors? They lose their shine so quickly after being waxed and polished with an electric polisher.

Answer: Perhaps you have used too much wax. Remove it, then apply two thin, even coats, polishing each one well after hard-drying. Frequent waxing should be necessary only at doorways. For the rest of the floor, twice a year is enough. Frequent use of the electric polisher will keep the floors looking well.

Had All of It
Wife—That child doesn't get her temper from me.
Husband—No, there's none of yours missing.

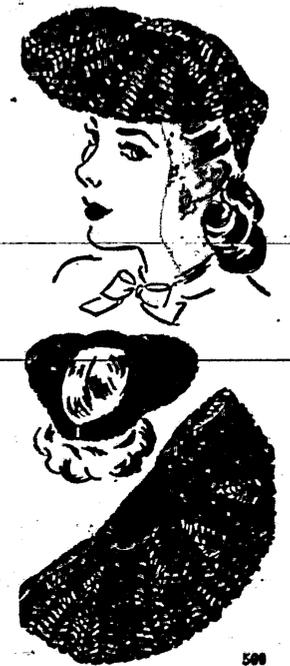

Suited Him
The boy was obviously not suited to the job.
"You told me when I engaged you that you were very handy," his employer said.
"So I am, sir," replied the boy. "I live just opposite."

Stuck to the Point
Some gulls were following a steamer, and an Irishman said to his companion: "Sure, an' they're a nice flock of pigeons."
"They're not pigeons," said his companion; "they're gulls."
"Well," said the Irishman, "gulls or boys, they're a nice flock of pigeons."

Man in Court: "My wife always said she wasn't strong enough to do housework, so she left me to take a job on the railroad." Any-way, it's another line.

Now It Comes Out
"Will you be my wife?"
"Don't be ridiculous."
"Yes, I know it sounds ridiculous, but I'm not so particular as some men."

Largest Bible Weighs Over Half Ton; of Wood

I wonder if it is mere coincidence that the largest Bible in the world was made by a carpenter? Aided by his wife, he constructed it at Los Angeles, and the job took them two years exactly. This gigantic volume measures 43 1/2 inches by 34 inches and is 34 inches thick. Weighing 1,034 pounds—approximately half a ton—when open it spans 8 feet 2 inches, has 32 separate sections, and contains 8,048 pages. And it was all done on a hand stamping machine!
