Lieut. Joe Drake Tells About His Thrilling Fiftieth Air Raid

In a letter written on Oct. 8, Bombardier Lieut. Joe Drake portrays a thrilling adventure his ship crew had on their fiftieth air raid in a fierce air battle somewhere on the fighting line in Sicily. Before taking off, the boys had been talking about that being their last combat, after which they would be grounded and perhaps sent back home.

In the letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Drake of Ancho, Joe said: "I was flying with my old crew and in our original ship and on our last raid before being grounded for faithful service, after which we were to be retired. Everything went well until we started on the target, when I saw the ship directly in front of us, go down in flames."

The aircraft fire was so terrible that I felt as though that would be our last trip. Besides all the guns on the ground shooting at us, the enemy air fighters began shooting at us and with bullets flying at us, we let go on the target. At that time, our ship was going swell, when they hit us. Then the tail of the ship dropped down, the nose came up and the indicator showed we were losing speed rapidly. The craft started to slide to one side and caused us to lose control. We finally righted the ship, dropped our bombs, but in trying to turn, it was the trickiest thing I ever saw. When one wing would go down, it took all the strength of the pilot and co-pilot to bring it back again, but we finally made it across the Mediterranean, not knowing how soon we would go into a tail spin. You can bet we were sweating blood before we reached Africa. "It was too dangerous to land, so I held the ship as straight as I could while the crew bailed out. Sitting up there all alone, I never felt so spooky in my life. To hold the ship as straight as I could with one hand—I fastened my harness and parachute with the other, I crawled back to the exit and could feel the ship reeling. I took a look at the ground which seemed farther away than I had ever seen it, but I hadn't much time, so I grabbed my rip-cord with one hand and dropped out. It seemed a long time before the "chute" opened and when it did the jar I received almost knocked me out. When I hit the ground, I alighted backwards, striking with my feet first and then on my head, after which, the lights went out and I did not gain consciousness until I was awakened by a little French girl, who had taken off my harness and was rubbing my hands, and asking me if I was hurt. Two of the boys are in the hospital, one with a broken leg and the other "goofy" from the shock. We went to where the ship crashed and found it entirely burned up. I think yesterday was the most thrilling experience I have ever had and hope to be back in the states before long." Joe.

Extend Best Wishes to Bean Harvest

Your attention is called to the good-will ad on page 5 by Roswell merchants to the bean-growers of Lincoln and Socorro counties. In their greeting to the bean growers of both counties, they express their good wishes for present and future prosperity. Read the ads.

Singing Convention

The Singing Convention at Ancho last Sunday was well attended, the fact that the skies were heavy and many people from neighboring counties were afraid there was some "danger" of rain, but it did rain after the affair was over. The tables were laden with good things to eat, provided by the good people of Ancho and vicinity. As usual, Harry Straley made the good coffee.

We acknowledge the receipt of a letter from one of our esteemed friends and subscribers, Mrs. Selma Degitz, now a resident of Anaheim, Calif., in which she states that they are having a nice fall season and gardeners are preparing their winter gardens. Mrs. Degitz sends her kindest regards to Carrizozo friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben C. Sanchez received a telegram from their son Albert, who had been out on the Pacific and in that he is now at San Francisco. Word also was received from their other son George, he is out somewhere on the Pacific also.

We had an interesting letter this week from Mrs. R. L. Huffmyer, the family at one time resided here and at White Oaks, but now residing near Duncan, Arizona, in which she tells of a wedding of Miss Virginia Hulbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hulbert of Lincoln, N. M., to Lieut. Milton Coons of Williams Field. She also made mention of her husband, R. L. (Red) Huffmyer, who has driven 100 miles every day for the past year and had but one accident. This happened last week, when on one of his trips, a horse ran directly in front of his car, went up on the hood and over the top of the car. Two of Red's children were in the car with their daddy and all were bruised from broken glass and flying pieces of metal. This is the first time on record that old Dobbin has put his opponent (the auto) out of business with one stroke. No wonder there is a war on hand.

While we doubt his integrity, yet being a shrewd politician, we see a bid for the voters of the Cattle Growers, for he knew just how they felt about the bureau before he spoke. But the Cattle Growers are not so dumb as he might think. They have minds of their own and know that he, as a friend of the President and as a member of Congress, he was a rank New Dealer and has never been anything else. Again: He sees the trend of things against the New Deal and evidently he would very much like to "ride the winner" in 1944, but the people of New Mexico will remember his promise to not make any additional taxes and his first official act was to levy the infamous tobacco tax against the will of the people.

Mesdames J. B. French and Jesse Snyder came over from Albuquerque the latter part of last week; Mrs. French going up to Eagle Creek to close her summer home, after which the ladies remained over and returned to the Duke City, Monday. While here, Mrs. French was the guest of Mrs. R. E. Lemon and Mrs. Snyder being the guest of Mrs. T. E. Kelley. Mrs. French, who had been in Knoxville, Tenn., for the past six months, will be in Albuquerque until near the holiday season, when she will go to Washington, D. C., to visit her son, Lieut. Commander Baird Miller French and family.

Governor Dempsey's "Tweedle-De-Dum"

On Sept. 27, Governor John J. Dempsey gave the delegates to the Cattle Growers Convention a roasting on the National Bureau at Washington and said that the people should see that Congress should never again allow any agency to have more power than it has. He followed by saying and we quote: "There is a tendency on the part of many of our administrative leaders to centralize government. Actually, what we need is more state, county and city rights". He then said and we are still quoting: "In this emergency, there are some boards necessary for the efficient prosecution of the war effort, but we resent the constant taking away of our rights by some bureau." When Congress passes a law to create an agency like the OPA, the bureaucrats pass another 1000 laws to govern our activity. I'm so confused by these bureaus that I don't know what to do."

If governor Dempsey is really in earnest in what he said, (which we doubt very much) he should have repented before the Cattle Growers that all he was complaining about "he asked for it," what he is now denouncing. In other words he could have said, "I'm sorry boys, but I plead guilty to the fact that I, as a member of Congress, helped to create just such a mess as we are now in."

Miss Eloise Yochem left last Saturday night for Springfield, Mo., where she will attend the school of the Western Union Telegraph Co., for a course in telegraphy.

Carrizozo is getting more like El Paso every day. Even our local park has benches in it like El Paso Parks. Mike Doering having donated three nice benches to the city for use in the park.

In a letter from one of our old friends, Carl Vigil, who is now in San Diego, Calif., he says among other things, that he intends to spend the winter and there and sends regards to his Carrizozo friends.

BOB HAWK, CBS quipmaster of "Thanks to the Yanks," manages to spend at least two nights a week performing for men in the armed services. When a camp calls for a show Hawk sends a call to his many friends in the entertainment world and immediately a well-rounded show of varied acts organizes to help "Thanks to the Yanks." Bob, who taught junior high school English when he was 18, has broadcast everything from grand opera to wrestling matches—says his toughest assignment was giving a hole-by-hole description of a miniature golf tournament. He's never done better work than he's doing now for the men in the service.

Just 11 years ago Lucille Ball went to Hollywood as a show girl, to appear in Eddie Cantor's "Roman Scandals," along with 11 others. You'll see her, as a show girl, in

"Meet the People," she's climbed clear to the top of the ladder in the meantime. Right now people are crowding to see her in "Du Barry Was a Lady." She's the only one of the original twelve who's still in pictures.

These American Youth Hostels that have become so popular get their innings in "Song of the Open Road," for which Sammy Kaye and his orchestra have been signed. Red-headed Peggy O'Neill makes her debut in the starring role.

Leatrice Joy Gilbert has been under contract to Metro for some time, but it's only now that she's going to get her chance—a role in "Kismet." She worked in summer stock last season, and if there's anything in heredity this daughter of Leatrice Joy and the late Jack Gilbert certainly ought to go far as an actress. Her father was one of Metro's big stars for years.

Some clever lad at MGM is composing a new song for Lena Horne, who will now and then everywhere, the studio predicts, in "I Dood It," the Red Skelton-Francis Foxall picture. The song is called, we're told, "Moonlight Sonata."

One photograph of Renee Terry of CBS' "Bright Horizon," inspired 341 proposals of marriage immediately after it appeared in a New York newspaper. It showed her in her Nurses Aide uniform, feeding a baby in the children's ward of a hospital.

Frank Sinatra seems to like Hollywood and picture making; he's going back in November to make "Mr. Cinderella" for RKO, and they do say that the story of the picture is pretty much the story of the young man's life.

When Bob Hope got back from that trip that took him to England, Africa, Sicily and Iceland he wasn't sure whether he'd be able to return to the air September 21 or not—said Bing Crosby would punch him for him if he couldn't. He was pretty tired, but forgot that when he talked about his trip. "The greatest thing that ever happened to me," said he. And "Believe me, the programs we do from the States are going to mean more than ever to us now that we know what they mean to the men."

Last season hundreds of service men had to be turned away from the Edgar Bergen-Charlie McCarthy shows because of lack of room. This year Bergen will put on a preview of the show, just as it goes on the air, plus added entertainment by Songstress Dale Evans and the cast, for service men on furlough in the Los Angeles area. So every Saturday night there'll be fun for soldiers, sailors and marines.

ODDS AND ENDS—Myrna Loy, who's made no pictures for a year, returns to Hollywood to co-star in "The Thin Man Goes Home," with William Powell. . . . ## Marine Fliers Triumph Over Perils of Air and Sea; Combat Correspondents Recount Tales of Heroism

Sergeant Survives After 32 Days on Barren Islands

For 72 days he was "missing in action." His comrades in a marine corps flying unit in the Guadalcanal area had long given up hope of seeing him again. But Sergeant Bill Coffeen came back. Shaggy and lean, he stepped out of a navy rescue plane. He told of surviving storms, blistering sun and infection and living for 32 days on a coconut diet. The last 40 days he was missing, friendly natives cared for him.

Today Staff Sergt. William I. Coffeen Jr., 23; whose parents live at 5348 North Lotus street, Chicago, Ill., is at a naval base hospital being treated for malaria and malnutrition.

"I got off on the wrong foot that morning of April 13 and ended up the same way," began Coffeen. "My plane barely missed the treetops as I took off from Henderson Field. A guide light at the end of the strip blinded me. We were to escort navy torpedo bombers on a mission.

"Within sight of land between Kolombangara and Choiseul islands, I suddenly noticed my engine smoking. My oil line was leaking.

"Losing altitude rapidly and fearing the motor would explode, I decided to bale out.

"It seemed that I hit the water just a few seconds after my parachute opened.

"I pulled the cord on my life jacket, but it failed to inflate. It had been punctured. I pulled my rubber raft out and inflated it. The paddle was missing.

"The water was calm, but 30 minutes later a storm hit. High waves tossed my small rubber raft about like a toothpick, and overturned it. Into the water went all of my medical supplies and emergency rations. All I had left was the clothing I was wearing, and my hunting knife and pistol.

"After I righted the raft I started paddling with my hands. I still was in sight of land. In mid-afternoon I heard the familiar drone of our fighter plane motors—it was my sight returning from the strike on which I had set out that morning.

"Several of the planes flew low and almost directly over me. I fired five shots from my pistol and waved the white raft sail, but they failed to see me.

"I started paddling with my hands toward land. On the way, sharks swished by the raft.

Reaches Small Island.

"I slept in a sitting position that night. Long before daybreak I started again for land. The sea was calm. Near sundown the second day out, I finally reached the shore of a small island. I was exhausted, hungry and thirsty. When I reached the beach of the coconut grove island I realized I made a grave mistake by tossing my shoes overboard after the storm. My socks were the only protection for my feet.

"I gathered two coconuts, cut holes in them with my knife, drank the juice, then broke them open and ate the meat. It was the first liquid and food I had had in nearly 48 hours.

"I stayed on this island three days. It was uninhabited and I knew I would die if I stayed there.

"Far away I could see a larger island and decided on the fifth day to strike out for it. I was growing weak from the coconut diet.

"After hand-paddling along the coast all that day with a blazing sun baking me, I made the next island at dusk. It was studded with coconut trees like the first island.

"Next morning I decided to try for another island. It took me all that day to reach it. It was the same story when I landed there—no food, no fresh water, no life.

Arm and Foot Infected.

"My left arm was swollen to twice its normal size overnight. My right foot was also infected. I realized blood poison was developing, so I cut open the source of infection with my knife, and bathed my arm in salt water for more than an hour. I was relieved somewhat and decided to move on. That morning I tried to drink coconut juice, but I just couldn't get it down.

"As I paddled along the shore I saw what appeared to be a red-roofed house near the end of the island.

"The house proved a greater distance away than I had estimated; when night fell I still was several miles from it. But I had something to look forward to—and I slept better that night.

(Editor's note: The following two stories were written by Combat Correspondents of the United States marine corps. Typical of the work of these fighting writers, the first was by Staff Sergeant William I. Coffeen Jr., as told to Staff Sergeant Harry Bolser. The second was written by Sergeant Pen T. Johnson.)

"I reached the beach near the house at mid-afternoon of the next day. I hid my raft in the bush and approached the building, fearful that it was occupied by Japs. I saw a sign that read 'Solomon Developing Company, Sydney, Australia.' I soon learned that the building was part of an abandoned coconut plantation.

"I stayed at the plantation house five days. On the sixth day I gathered some limes and oranges and started traveling again. In the distance I could see the tip of a large island, with the peak of a mountain rising above the clouds. I decided to make this island my next objective.

"When I landed I soon found that I had made another bad move. I found no life; only cliffs and mountains. However, there was plenty of fresh water—my first in approximately 27 days.

"I finally decided that I would retrace my steps and try to make it back to the first island on which I landed. I started out the next morning and barely made it back to the plantation house. The infection in my hand had cleared, but my foot was swollen from infection.

Prayed for Direction.

"That night I planned what I decided would probably be my final attempt to contact life. I prayed to God Almighty to send me in the right direction. Tomorrow, I decided I'll make for the other side of the big island.

"Near dusk on the fourth day, as I had barely enough strength in my arms to paddle, a storm broke and gradually I was carried out to sea. The last I remember I started to scream, and then I passed out. "I was told later that a high wind blew me into shore. When I regained consciousness I was in the arms of a native.

"'You American or Jap?' the native inquired in his best pidgin English.

"'I'm American,' I told him.

"'American, you good,' he replied.

"Those were the best words I believe I have ever heard in my life. I knew then that I had been rescued.

"I couldn't walk. My rescuer carried me to his hut not far from the beach. I asked the date and he told me it was May 15. When I told him I had been lost since April 13—32 days—he hardly believed me. He told me that white men could not live that long on the sea and in the jungle. The native was a converted Seventh Day Adventist. He had been taught English by missionaries.

"I felt stronger the next day. By the third day I was able to walk once more. They decided to take me in a canoe to their village, where I was given American food—canned meat and potatoes. On the second day in the village the infection in my foot was lanced.

"During my stay in the native village I was stricken with malaria. I was given 'queenie,' native name for quinine. My body was bathed in fresh water and lime. Within five days the fever disappeared. While with the natives I regained 20 of the 40 pounds I had lost. When I arrived at the native village I weighed about 115 pounds.

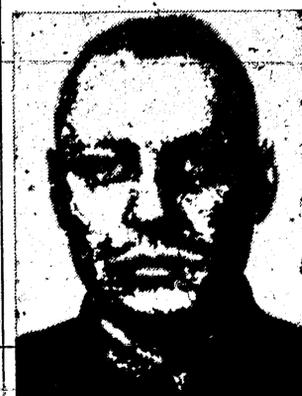

"On the 72nd day after I had parachuted into the sea, a navy rescue plane landed off shore near the native village."

Gunner Attempts To Bring Home Crippled Bomber

"Twelve fighter pilots of my squadron had been out on a routine escort mission. We were sent to escort a group of marine dive bombers on a foray against the Jap-held airfield at Munda and were returning to Henderson on Guadalcanal."

Major R. L. Vroomer, U. S. M. C., was telling a group of fighter pilots about Sgt. Gilbert Henze, an 18-year-old gunner from State Center, Iowa. "Somehow in the fracas I got separated from my formation," went on the major. "As I headed home I received a radio warning that one of our dive bombers was in trouble.

"I found it a good mile south of me at about 5,000 feet. The pilot hanging half way out of the bomber's cockpit, his helmet gone, his clothes ripped to shreds.

"I asked by radio, is your pilot alive?"

"'I don't know sir!' he answered, 'we got hit by a burst of shrapnel about 20 minutes ago, and he has been that way ever since.'

"'Can you, or have you ever flown a plane?'

"'No sir,' he answered.

"'Do you think that you can keep her level and follow my instructions?'

"'Yes sir, I sure can try.'

"'The first thing I want you to do then is to release that 1,000 pound bomb.'

Can't Release Bomb.

"'I can't release it sir, it can only be done from the front cockpit.' "I peered anxiously ahead. Below and just visible lay the shoreline of Guadalcanal. If we could make it I could signal for a crash boat or any kind of a boat and then if I could get the kid to follow my instructions I would try to bring him in by water. Then I heard the kid shout over his radio, 'My engine just sputtered then, sir. She must be out of gas.'

"That's the last word I heard over my radio for suddenly it too went dead.

"I could see the kid working frantically on the stick; as the bomber went into a sickening glide.

"With my radio dead I frantically signaled for the kid to jump.

"If he saw me he failed to notice. Then I saw his head and shoulders emerge from the cockpit. I saw him clutching for his rip-cord. Suddenly I saw his body, parachute and all, shoot upward as the trailing edge of the plane hit him. No man could live under such an impact.

"I followed the chute downward in tight circles. I could see a huge vent in the shrouds. The kid's body dangled from the harness.

"A few minutes later it hit the water with a splash.

"I brought my plane within a few feet of the water. As I passed over the spot where the kid had fallen all I could see was his yellow 'Ewe West.'

"As I headed for home I prayed that the kid was unconscious when he hit, at least this would spare him any suffering before he drowned.

"I happened to be sitting by our radio a few days later. A flier had been picked up by some friendly natives. He was conscious when found, and though suffering from multiple wounds and fractures, had a better than 50-50 chance to survive.

"I learned later that the tail of the plane had severed his right leg below the knee."

(Editor's note: Sergeant Henze was returned to the States and died at the U.S. naval hospital, Mare Island, California. He was buried at Hillside cemetery, State Center, Iowa.)

TO YOUR Good Health

by DR. JAMES W. BARTON

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

MEAT AND PROTEINS

While the rationing of sugar, butter, tea and coffee caused considerable dismay, the rationing of meat has caused more concern than any other single food.

Most food experts will agree that not only is meat an important food from the standpoint of nitrogen or body building, but in the minds of the majority of us, nothing quite satisfies the stomach and the appetite as does meat.

What then is likely to happen to the health of the individual and the nation if we cannot obtain all the meat we need? The reason that meat is so important to health and strength is because of its richness in protein and the protein of animal food—meat—is richer and is more completely digested and absorbed into the blood than is protein from vegetables.

However, there are two points that make us more satisfied to eat protein as furnished in fish and eggs (other animal proteins) and the proteins in vegetables, especially peas and beans. In Hygeia, the health magazine, Phoebe Mayo Walters, Corona, Calif., explains that while it is the protein in meat that is necessary to life, it is not the meat itself because other foods rich in protein may be made to do almost as well as meat in furnishing the necessary protein. Fish is one of those foods, as is also cheese in any form.

Other foods high in protein are those of the dry bean family—white, navy and kidney beans, soybeans, peanuts and peanut butter.

The second point is that there is no reason why we should buy the expensive cuts of meat, because there is no difference in the amount or quality in expensive or cheap cuts.

For years, physicians have been advising patients with thin blood to eat more of the gland meats—kidneys, liver, heart—which foods are not usually rationed.

Finally, there are food substitutes designed to resemble various common foods which are really rich in food value and are not rationed. The thought then is that we should all eat our full ration of meat if we are well and about on our feet, eat more fish, eggs, cheese, and green and yellow vegetables. If, then, we feel that we want or need more meat, remember that it is the protein that the body needs and there are plenty of other foods that are rich in protein.

Infected Appendix A Constant Threat

The story is told of two British mining engineers about to go on a prospecting trip. Both were in excellent health but as they thought of their destination, they decided to enter a hospital and have the appendix removed before starting.

Most physicians would agree that these engineers were wise.

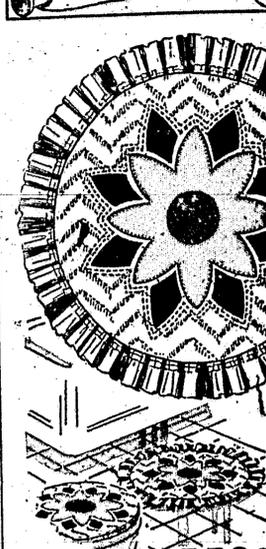

Further, physicians are agreed that while the appendix must have had some use in the body in prehistoric times, there is at present no definite use for it. The appendix is just a remnant or trace of a once useful organ that has not completely disappeared from man. It is a blind pouch that may rest or lie in various positions about the last part of the small and the beginning of the large intestine. It has its own blood supply and a closing or obstructive arrangement at its base. Even in health it is filled with infective material and it contains a large amount of lymphoid or spongy tissue (similar to tonsils and adenoids) which is particularly easy to infect.

Because there is "always" the chance of infection present, Drs. Boyce and Nelson believe that any attack of appendicitis should be considered and treated as a serious attack. "The problem of acute appendicitis would be solved and its challenge met if the public could be taught and if physicians would remember (1) that any abdominal pain may be the first symptom of acute appendicitis; (2) that food, fluids and particularly purgatives should be withheld in every case of abdominal pain until it is definitely decided that acute appendicitis is not present, and (3) that prompt operation should be performed as soon as the physician is reasonably sure that acute appendicitis is present.

Protecting Game Fish

An electronic screen is now being used to repel game fish from the danger areas around the floodgates of irrigation ditches and hydroelectric plants, in which millions of fish are killed each year.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Fifty-three per cent of the cars on highways continue to waste rubber, for officials report that that number continue to be driven over 35 mph. A year ago 91 per cent of the cars traveled faster than the rubber conservation limit. Kok-Sagay, rubber-bearing Russian dandelion, was planted and grown in 100 different test localities in the U. S. last year. The B. F. Goodrich Company is aiding in this experiment.

If your tires show undue wear at the center of the tread, it is a signal that you are over-inflating. This is as much a rubber waster as under-inflation.

Plan Day's Meals Using Basic Seven As Your Guide

Utilize a little bit of meat with vegetables and tuck under a flavorful, flaky piecrust and serve the family a meat pie. All vegetables and meat are served in one casserole and save serving dishes.

Is there a blueprint or plan for making menus? That's a question homemakers frequently put to the food experts. Yes, there is. Suppose you are given a list of foods to be included in your daily diets, a sort of general plan that you can adapt to every day's needs. Can you make out your menus? Here is the blueprint:

Group I. Green and yellow vegetables. At least one of each kind should be included daily to meet vitamin and mineral requirements of the diet.

Group II. At least one serving of oranges, grapefruit or tomatoes to get enough Vitamin C in the diet. A good time to get this requirement in is during breakfast—with the fruit.

Group III. Potatoes or other fruit and vegetables to add more minerals and vitamins to the diet.

Group IV. Milk or milk products. This may be in the form of milk (1 pint per day for adults, 1 quart for children), fresh or evaporated, and cheese.

Group V. Meat, poultry, fish, eggs or dried beans, peas, nuts or peanut butter. This group is needed to build and repair body tissue.

Group VI. Bread, flour and cereals are required to meet energy needs and the vitamin B needs of the body. Be sure that any of these that you use are whole-grain, enriched or restored. You would have to eat four times as much ordinary bread, for example, to get as much nutritional value as one loaf of enriched bread contains.

Group VII. Butter or fortified margarine. Use some of either every day to give energy and vitamin A. That's the plan. Use food out of every group, every day.

The best way to divide the groups into three balanced meals will run something like this:

For breakfast: Citrus fruit, cereal, eggs, milk or beverage, toast.

For lunch or dinner: Meat (poultry or fish, etc.), vegetable in either group I or III, milk or milk products.

For dinner or supper: Meat, poultry or fish, vegetable or fruit from groups I, II, or III. Milk or milk product, and also bread and butter from groups VI and VII.

An easy way to plan the menus is to write down the foods and the corresponding number of the group of food from which it comes. If you do not use one or two of the groups during one meal, pick them up at the next. No chance for slips, here! Keep one eye on the plan and the other on the ration books while doing.

Lynn Says:

What they do: The basic seven food requirements are so made up as to take care of the body's demand for certain types of food.

For example, proteins, minerals and water are all essential to building torn parts of the body and keeping them in repair. They are needed for tissues, bones, muscles, blood and other fluids.

Energy for breathing, heart action, circulation of the blood, and other bodily functions is supplied by fuel foods—foods rich in fats and sugar.

To keep up the body's resistance to disease, to keep it in good running order, is the function of regulation and protective foods—these are the vitamins, minerals, water and roughage.

IMPROVED UNIFORM-INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

JESUS AND THE TEN COMMANDMENTS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 5:17-20; 19:16-22; John 5:39, 40.
GOLDEN TEXT—Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill.—Matthew 5:17.

With this lesson we begin a series of studies which should be of unusual value, a consideration of the Ten Commandments in the light of the teachings of Jesus, and other related New Testament passages.

It is appropriate to point out that, far from being outmoded, the Ten Commandments are really the basis of all moral law. They need a diligent restudy and re-emphasis in our day of disregard of moral standards.

As interpreted by the Lord Jesus and applied to our daily living, the truth of these commandments should be brought home to every boy and girl, man and woman in our Bible schools.

We learn here that our Lord did not come to set aside or destroy the law, but to fulfill it in the most complete way. But the gospel takes us a step beyond the law, and it is a great step, for we follow the One who is greater than the law.

I. Built on the Law (Matt. 5:17-20).

The law of God is eternal, never to be abrogated, never set aside. Christ Himself, although we might properly say that He was in reality the Lawgiver and thus had power and authority over the law, indicated His purpose in coming to be that of giving the law its full meaning, not of destroying it. One could wish that those who profess to be His servants might have the same measure of regard for God's law. If they did, they obviously would not be so ready to ignore it, so quick to change it or explain it away, and far more ready to accept with their Master every "jot and tittle," that is, even the minutest detail of His Word.

Recognizing Christ as the fulfillment of the law should prepare one to manifest obedience to every moral precept through His grace.

II. More Than the Law (Matt. 19:16-22).

Obedience to the commandments brings a man up to the very entrance upon life, but to enter in, he must have more than the "things" of the law; he must have the Person who is "the Door" to eternal life.

The young man who came to Christ was rich. His mind was obsessed with things. He had made it his business to observe the law, and had done well (v. 20), but his soul was not satisfied. He thought one more "thing" to do would accomplish his purpose.

The general attitude of the man was commendable. He sensed his lack of the vital something which would remake his life. He came to the right one—the Lord Jesus—with his question.

His failure to go beyond the things of the law to a faith in Christ, however, showed that he loved his possessions more than he desired to follow the Lord.

Those in our day who are trying to please God and gain eternal blessedness by works, by doing things and keeping commandments, need to recognize that in Christianity we have the One who is more than the law. They need to look away from things to be done, to the great thing that was done once and for all on Calvary.

III. Greater Than the Law (John 5:39, 40).

The Scriptures are great because they bear witness to the Christ who can give life. But obviously the One to whom they bear witness is greater than they are.

Paul speaks of the law as a "schoolmaster to bring us to Christ" (Gal. 3:24). The picture is literally of a servant charged with bringing the child to school where he may learn the truth. So the law convicts man of sin, makes him conscious of his own utter inability to meet God's requirements, and makes him ready to turn to Christ in faith and repentance (Rom. 3:20).

These men of our Lord's time were very religious. They spent much of their time searching the Scriptures that they might find eternal life. But most of them failed to understand that the life they sought was in the One who stood before them—Jesus of Nazareth—and not in the letter of the law.

This has a vital bearing on the proper study of the lessons of this quarter. "The time has passed when men might seek life in the Scriptures apart from Jesus. Now that Jesus has come, life can be found only if the Scriptures lead one to Jesus.

"If our study of the Scriptures does not bring us to Christ, then it is vain indeed. For that reason we cannot study the Ten Commandments without turning constantly to Jesus as the One greater than the law" (Lesson Commentary).

Gas: Waste It, But Don't Use It!

There's a lot of gas in the news from Washington. A young lady from New York wrote the OPA about what to do with the extra gas in her launch. Must I pour it out, or can I use it, she asked. "Don't pour it out, use it," an OPA official advised. "Run the motor each day, but don't let the boat leave the dock."

As Amos says, "Aint that sumpin'?"

New York reported that 90 per cent of the gas stations were without fuel. New Yorkers, bitter over their inability to use meat ration stamps - "you can't eat 'em, use 'em or give 'em away" began to feel the same way about gasoline coupons.

Sigue Que Si, Amigo. Mior: (You bet your sweet life)

By W. J. Hooten in the El Paso Times:

Dr. R. E. Blaney of Carrizozo sent me a copy of a full-page advertisement in the Carrizozo Outlook telling of the 3rd War Loan Drive in that community, whose quota is $180,000.

In the center of the page was a poem written by Dr. Blaney. It follows-

"Everyone should buy a War Bond
To send supplies across the pond;
The more bonds we buy, the more work we do
The less blood and tears, when the War is through."

I'd like to wager that Lincoln County of which Carrizozo is the county seat, goes over the top. The 'big bond push' there will be held Sept. 29.

P. S. - If you want a civic affair done right, we suggest that Dr. Blaney manage the event.

Decision Made on Tax Assessment

Sept. 21, 1943.

Hon. M. U. Finley, Mayor, Carrizozo, New Mexico.
Dear Mr. Finley:

I am glad to advise you that Judge Frenger rendered his decision on September 16 by the terms of which he held that the tax assessment for 1942 against the Municipal Light and Power Plant and distribution system was invalid in that the property was now the property of the Village of Carrizozo, and he further enjoined the County Treasurer from selling or attempting to sell said property. He held to the same effect regarding the assessment on the Community Center Building. These taxes, together with interest, amount to approximately $639.00.

Respectfully,
John E. Hall.

Free the Seas

Before we win the final battle with Hitler's Nazis all navy men are agreed we must win the battle of the Atlantic; that is to free the sea lanes of the German U-boats.

A year ago we were building
54 cruisers and nearly 200 destroyers or just about enough for a two ocean navy.

Now we have come to realize that this war is to the finish, "winner take all," and our Government is building a five ocean navy.
That is why we are being asked to increase our subscriptions for War Bonds. That is why we must do it.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Allied Armies Start Drive to North Against Fortified Nazi Lines in Italy; Jap Key Base at Rabaul Is Encircled; Farm Groups Dissent on Subsidy Plans

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper. Reprinted by Western Newspaper Union.

Shown scanning skies for re-appearance of strafing Messerschmitts, this American anti-aircraft crew aided in valiant defense of beachheads established by U. S. troops at Salerno in bloody fighting.

ITALY: Yanks on Offense

Their bases firmly established on the beaches of Salerno after eight days of bloody battle, Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth Army went onto the offensive and drove Nazi panzer units back into the hills surrounding the beach.

Although the Allies were first pounded by 88 mm guns when they landed on the sandy beach, and harassed by German armored units before they could organize strongly for attack, their position was gradually strengthened by a constant stream of reinforcements.

Losses in Sicily

Despite the Allies' whirlwind 30-day campaign in Sicily, they suffered material losses ranging up to 54 per cent, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau declared in support of the current 15 billion dollar bond drive.

According to Morgenthau, operations in Sicily cost 13 per cent of all 155 mm howitzers landed, 40 per cent of all 57 mm guns, 13 per cent of all medium tanks, 6 per cent of all light tanks, 54 per cent of the carriages for the 37 mm guns, 16 per cent of the carriages for the 75 mm guns, and 22 per cent of the carriages for the 105 mm guns.

"In Sicily we met only a small fraction of the opposition we are getting from the Germans now in Italy," he said.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC: Big Base Encircled

With Allied troops in command of the Solomons and firmly closing their grip on New Guinea, the great Japanese naval and air base of Rabaul has been encircled and neutralized as an advance post for action in the Southwest Pacific.

Hardly had General MacArthur's troops closed the noose before a big naval battle was reported in the area between New Guinea and the Solomons, thus indicating that the Allies were moving swiftly to capitalize on their position.

With Allied bombers faced with shorter runs and therefore enabled to carry heavier loads to the big base, and with the U. S. fleet ready to spring into action from neighboring waters, the encirclement of Rabaul removes the Japs' immediate threat to Australasia. At one time the Japs threatened to overrun the entire region.

JAPS: Woo Subjects

In an effort to enlist the active support of the 700 million Asiatics already under her heel, Japan has promised them self-government, taken scrupulous care to respect their religions, invited their young students and leaders to Tokyo, where they have been entertained by the emperor, and exchanged technicians with them.

Premier Tojo

According to diplomatic advisers, the program has had its effect. With the assistance of the natives, the Japs are getting bauxite for aluminum from Burma; iron from North China and Manchuria; oil from Java and Borneo; copper, tin and manganese from the Philippines and foodstuffs from Thailand. In addition, the wily Japs are installing factories in the conquered countries.

Under Tojo's leadership, it was said, the Japs are ready to sacrifice five million men to beat the Allies. They expect the war to be long, but consider present action in the South Pacific as merely outpost skirmishes.

WHISKY: No Production

Because of a boost of 20 per cent in the estimated requirements of industrial alcohol for the newly established synthetic rubber industry, distilleries will not be allowed to switch to whisky production for the rest of the year. Previously, distilleries nourished hopes of being given two weeks to build up dwindling stocks of whisky and blends.

The decision to place greater reliance on alcohol for synthetic rubber than on petroleum resulted from conclusions that use of the latter would interfere with the aviation gasoline program. Furthermore, it was said, the government objected to the diversion of grain to whisky at a time when it was trying to maintain the nation's food standards.

This Excuses Everybody

As chairman of the house ways and means committee, Rep. Robert Doughton presided over congress' shaping of the present income tax.

Recently, Doughton summoned the committee to a night session to see whether something couldn't be done to simplify the filling of returns.

Doughton, it seems, had to get a "tax expert" to make out his own form!

HOME DELIVERIES: Cut Oct. 11

To assure continuation of motor transportation against wartime shortages of fuel, replacement parts, equipment, tires and manpower, Director of Defense Transportation Joseph B. Eastman ordered curtailment of retail and wholesale merchandise deliveries.

Effective October 11, milk deliveries to homes will be limited to four times a week; meats, fruits, vegetables, fish and bread to three times, and dry groceries, laundry and dry cleaning to two times. Permission was given for delivery of ice every day.

Wholesale deliveries will be cut to six times weekly for bread, bakery products, cream, milk, dairy products and repair parts; five times for meats, eggs, fruits, vegetables, fish, live plants, laundry, dry cleaning and cut flowers; and once for alcoholic beverages, wines and bottled malt beverages.

RUSSIA: Oil Hopes Blasted

Once set up as the cornerstone of the Nazis' drive for the Caucasus oil, Novorossiisk was abandoned by them as the Germans pulled back to the Dnieper river for a last ditch stand in Russia.

The German withdrawal along the whole front to the Dnieper was regular, with the Nazis within 100 miles of the broad, curving river, from Bryansk in the north to Lozovaya in the south. Only along the coast of the Sea of Azov were the Germans any distance from the Dnieper, and here it was believed they were holding deeper defenses to permit their troops in the Crimea to pull out.

Every indication pointed to the Germans' use of the Dnieper as their last strong natural defense in Russia. If the Reds cracked the Dnieper, the Germans would have no suitable defensive terrain left, but would have to fall back on the Dniester river, in Europe itself.

MEXICO: Tourist Boom

"American tourists are crowding Mexico and buying up everything from gin and electrical appliances to bobby pins and elastic," it is reported.

The people of Mexico are not feeling the war as acutely as are the people of the United States as rationing has not gone into effect there. There is plenty of everything, it is said, but Americans are buying much of the surplus goods. American money is welcome.

Nation to Be Active Factor in Post-War Peace Plans

Majority of American People Ask Participation in International Organization to Maintain Harmony.

By BAUKHAGE, News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building Washington, D. C. Slowly the pattern of America's post-war plans are taking shape, but only the pattern.

When congress returned, it was evident that no matter how much disagreement there might be as to the details of the role the United States will play in the post-war world, the people have registered one idea: they want to take part in some kind of an international organization to maintain peace.

The same opinion turned up in the conversation of three members of congress of widely differing political sentiments with whom I talked shortly after they returned. Speaker Sam Rayburn told me that the one phrase which received the most applause in the speeches he made in the Southwest was when he said that the United States must do a man's job for peace.

Two leading Republican senators expressed the same idea, namely, that "the people seem to be of one mind" that America must join in some kind of international effort after the war to maintain peace.

The disagreements in congress are chiefly a difference in degree and represent a discussion, for the most part, over details that nobody expects congress to decide in advance anyhow.

Of course, there are two things which make for lack of harmony: one is the natural desire of each political party to criticize the other in a campaign year; the other is the effort of small groups to get over their own particular ideas.

Secretary of State Hull, in his speech of September 12, made it plain that the administration was in favor of an international organization which would agree to use force to maintain peace—implying that the United States would offer its armed forces in collaboration with other nations to stop aggression. He went further on the subject than any official so far but there has been a feeling on the part of many members of congress that the people would support such a policy.

Pooling of Resources. Meanwhile, the public has gradually come to the realization that Winston Churchill, as the king's first minister with plenary powers, and President Roosevelt, as commander-in-chief and, therefore, with similar authority, have agreed that the United States and Britain will pool their military resources not only until the fighting ends, but until the emergency is ended. They will do this merely by continuing the committee of joint chiefs of staff.

They have made it plain that they consider the emergency, or as an official spokesman for the United States described it, "a period of transition," will not end until the last peace treaties are signed. In other words, the United States and Great Britain intend, as long as the emergency exists, to take part in an organization to establish and maintain the peace by means of what amounts to a military alliance between the two nations.

Prime Minister Churchill was ready to sign a written agreement which would include Britain's pledge to remain our ally and continue the war with us until Japan was beaten—that much he told the newsmen—and he added, the President had said it was not necessary, that his word was good enough. Presumably, the written agreement would have included the continuation of the joint committee of the chiefs of staff, too. But written or unwritten, such a pact now exists.

It is, therefore, clear that the President intends, if he remains in office, to maintain an interim arrangement which will keep this country an active factor in world affairs to the point where its policies will be supported by military action. This will be of indefinite length, as Churchill put it, until it can be shown that a better arrangement, including all nations, can be found to supplant it.

In one sense, therefore, it is less important what decision the congress or the administration makes right now as to its foreign policy since there will be plenty of time for the people to become fully acquainted with the whole situation during the "transition period" when two of the strongest nations remain united. The important thing, of course, is to obtain the co-operation of the third most powerful nation, Russia.

And that is what is on the fire right now. Until we know a little more about Russia's views and intentions, it will be impossible to make a detailed plan for the post-war world.

Battle of Italy Beginning of End

As I write these lines, the startled moon has just slipped behind a jagged curtain of clouds, like a transport sliding under the protecting cloak of a smoke screen.

That comparison leaps to my mind because all day I have been following, as you have and as closely as either of us could, the progress of the greatest military undertaking which an American army has attempted in this war—the battle of Italy. For the battle of Italy is the storming of the very portals of the Reich, the outer rim, it is true, but nonetheless, the first breastworks of Hitler's inner fortress.

Here, for the first time, American soldiers, hardened on the harsh sands of Africa and the cruel hills of Sicily, meet the guardians of the Nazi citadel. Not a bi-colored army, diluted by a half-hearted ally, Italy, but dogged German fighters defending the gateway to their own, their native land.

The end of the beginning has begun, the beginning of the end has begun. And we who have watched every sign and every signal as the curtain between what we thought and what we knew was lifted, realize how little we and the world can guess of the inner and complicated workings of this great war machine.

As the armies of the Allies attack the enemy citadel—the leaders of the Allies, Roosevelt and Churchill, plan a new edifice.

The invasion of Sicily and the invasion of Italy were planned at Casablanca where, for 24 hours, the few newsmen who were permitted to know, kept the secret of the meeting itself. Beside the historic waters of the St. Lawrence, in the citadel at Quebec, the marching orders were sealed while we newsmen waited, blinded and deafened to all but the most general ideas.

What are those marching orders? Some other startled moon will tell.

Civilian Defense Proves Its Worth

As Germany begins the defense of her inner fortress and the once-famous Luftwaffe has been converted from an offensive to a defensive machine the problem of keeping up the morale of Civilian Defense in this country is a difficult one. It would be foolhardy to lie down on the job now for history has shown that frequently fierce and bitter conflicts grow out of victories and until the last shot is fired and after that, it isn't safe to desert the ramparts.

Recently the value of civilian defense training was proved in a manner which received very little recognition outside of the immediate vicinity. When the Congressional Limited, the crack train that runs between New York and Washington, was wrecked in Philadelphia, when the Twentieth Century Limited, another crack train between Chicago and New York, was wrecked, and when a hotel burned in Houston, Texas, the civilian defense organization proved its mettle. On all three occasions, invaluable services were rendered by these unselfish men and women who have so long answered mock alarms and gone on duty for practice drills.

It was definitely shown that in the case of the wreck of the Congressional Limited and in the Houston fire lives were actually saved by the defense workers. In Philadelphia a group of air raid wardens meeting near the scene of the wreck were the first to arrive on the scene.

In a short time 7,500 trained workers were at work assisting police and helping the rescue. So effectively did they handle the traffic that in spite of the great crowds, lanes were kept open so that all injured persons not actually pinned in the wreck had been removed to hospitals within 35 or 40 minutes.

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

Although more than 1,500 chaplains now serve in the navy, the coast guard and the marine corps, more must be added.

Emblem of the government war food program is a market basket carried by an arm and hand obviously belonging to Uncle Sam. Over the basket is the theme "Food fights for freedom."

The armed forces are using leathers for camouflage equipment, sleeping bags and aviators' jackets.

Household Hints

A cloth dampened with vinegar or coal oil and rubbed over the windows before washing, will remove the smoky look.

Common table salt is the best cleanser for a milk strainer. Rub both sides of the strainer vigorously with the salt.

Rich, active suds and thorough rinsing are elemental requirements for successful laundering.

Handle fruits and vegetables gently. Do not bruise.

After butchering and cooking all the bone meat, there is always much greasy broth left. This can be canned. It is fine for seasoning beans, greens, cabbage or other foods. Save the broth for a day or two, then put in pint jars in a hot-water bath. Boil for 20 or 30 minutes.

To cut fresh bread, dip knife in boiling water and slices may be cut as thin as desired. A piece of apple in the breadbox will keep bread and cake fresh for days.

When washing overalls, clip the ends of the shoulder straps to which the buckles are fastened into the hip pocket. Pin securely with a safety pin, and the overalls can be washed without the trouble of removing the buckles.

When you hear a Marine called a "Leatherneck," it has nothing to do with the epidermis of his neck. Years ago the Marine uniform was equipped with a stiff leather collar. From that time on, "Leatherneck" has been the word for a Marine. The word for his favorite cigarette is "Camel"—the favorite cigarette also of men in the Army, Navy, and Coast Guard. (Based on actual sales records from service men's stores.) And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

ITALIAN CROPS: Italy is believed to have harvested more wheat this year than she ever did, even before the war, but most of it will probably fall to the German army, say department of agriculture spokesmen. They think the crop may have amounted to 260 million bushels. Indicating that looting of food supplies is taking place is a report by way of Stockholm.

"FAY DAY": Farm soils working overtime to meet the war's vast production quotas can be restored if farmers will earmark part of their present war bond purchases for peacetime soil rebuilding projects, including the use of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash, according to a statement by the Middle West Soil Improvement committee made recently.

See Here, Private Hargrove!

by Marion Hargrove

THE STORY SO FAR: Private Marion Hargrove, former feature editor of the Charlotte (N. C.) News, has been inducted into the army and has completed the first few days of his training at camp. He has given prospective inductees advice to "paint the town red" before getting into the army and once in he tells them that "the first three weeks are the hardest." He has gone through the experience of the army physical exam, has been fitted with a uniform, been classified as a cook and has had a good taste of KP duty. In fact, he has had so much of the latter that his sergeant is beginning to despair. So is Private Hargrove. He has completed a KP session and returns to his quarters.

CHAPTER III

I tiptoed into the squadroom so that the sergeant wouldn't notice that I was wearing fatigue clothes. His voice rang out to me as I passed his door, and I slunk in guiltily.

The sergeant's face showed that he was hurt. "You were on KP again today, weren't you, Hargrove?"

I lowered my eyes and scuffed my toe against the floor. "Yes, sir."

"Oh, I get so discouraged sometimes," the sergeant said. "I try so hard to make something of you and what good does it do? Every time I go through the kitchen I see you in there scrubbing the sink! How many times have you been on KP this week?"

"Only three times, sir," I said, avoiding his eyes.

"It was all the corporal's fault, sir," I said, looking around to make sure that the corporal wasn't there to defend himself. "Just because I right-faced a few times when I was supposed to left-face, and I zigged when I should have zagged, and because I forgot and smoked in ranks and a few other things like that."

"And," said the sergeant shaking his head sadly, "you just turned around casually every time he ordered 'about-face.' And you kept watching your feet all through drill. And you stayed out of step all morn-

"That's all, Hargrove," he said, mopping his brow; "you're not supposed to salute a non-commissioned officer—just go to bed."

ing and you took those plowhand strides of yours and walked all over the man in front of you. And you paced the drillmaster three times. And you generally spoiled the whole morning's drill. Why can't you be a good boy and learn the drills?"

"I don't mean to be bad, sir," I said.

"And that's another thing," the sergeant moaned. "Why must you say 'sir' to the non-commissioned officers and forget to salute the commissioned ones? He mopped his forehead wearily. "Do you know what the top sergeant told me today?"

"No, sir," I said, twisting my cap and awaiting the worst.

"He said—and don't 'sir' me—that when the battery commander had you on the carpet yesterday you stood there leaning on the table, and you shifted your feet eight times. And you saluted four times during his talk—and when you saluted you gave a European heel-click and bowed. And when the captain dismissed you, you told him, 'Thank you, sergeant' and forgot to salute when you left."

"Was there anything else, sir?" I asked in a whisper.

"That's all, Hargrove," he said, wiping great drops of perspiration from his forehead.

"Thank you, sir," I said. I saluted, clicking my heels, and turned to go.

"Hargrove, the tired voice said. "You're not supposed to salute a non-commissioned—Never mind, Hargrove. Just go to bed."

"Just look at me," the exercise sergeant roars in a voice that would go four miles against the wind. "Just look! I weigh two hundred and eight pounds and I'm in the worst physical condition I've ever been in! I ought to be busted for the way I've allowed myself to get fat and flabby! I'm ashamed!"

You look at the exercise sergeant and wonder what he's leading up to. To you he looks like the "after taking" part of a malted yeast advertisement. He could probably lick his weight in police dogs.

His next statement explains everything. "Now I'm going to show you an exercise that's so simple it's almost ridiculous. Even I can do it. Now, I don't want to hear anybody down there admitting he's in worse shape than I am. If I can do it, you can do it—or else!"

He outlines the exercise and you begin wondering how a contortionist happened to wind up at Fort Bragg. This self-styled "fat and flabby" calisthenics-master doesn't have any knees or elbows. You stand there waiting to hear his spine fall apart under the strain, but he comes up all in one piece.

"That's the way I want you boys to do it," he says, beaming cheerfully. You begin to feel your face getting gray and you wonder why a bolt of lightning doesn't come to deliver you from the prospective torture.

"One. Two. Three. Four. Five. Six. Seven. Eight. One. Two—"

The first three or four times are the hardest. After that, you get the swing of it. It's really tame stuff, you decide.

"The next exercise," says the sergeant, "is what we call the quarter, half and full knee bend. It goes like this." He shows you. When you see it, the corners of your mouth go up in a sneer of derision (unless the corporal is looking). Ho Hum, you say to yourself. Why do they take up time with this play?

"Exercise—one, two, three, four—" Quarter, half, full recover. Your knees get that Tired Feeling after the third time. After the sixth time, you feel your eyes getting glassy. After the ninth, you're floating in space. By the time the exercise is over, nothing matters any more.

Before you have marched off the drill field you notice that you still haven't collapsed. In fact, you find to your disappointment that you're beginning to feel good. All limbered up.

Quarantine has been lifted for us of the July 17 contingency. If the sergeant wasn't looking over my shoulder, I'd say it's about time. Before our release from isolation, Army style, I was able to get around and swap lies and gripes with every one of the boys in our group.

A little under 100 per cent of them came up with the same account, which reads as follows: "Our battery has the worst food in the Army. We've got the worst sergeant in the battery. No kidding, though, our platoon makes all the others look crummy. Here two weeks already and I haven't pulled KP or had the sergeant jump me a time yet. Don't tell a soul, but I think they're going to make me a corporal." All of which is a lot of hot air.

Actually, they're fighting to get into the mess hall first at every meal. They're gaining weight and tanning where they used to blister. They're passing their sergeants, who deplore them as the sorriest bunch of rookies they ever sweated over. Every one of them has been on KP at least once.

By the time Congress says I may go home and be a mere civilian again, I suppose I'll be the best soldier at Fort Bragg. At least I seem to get more individual attention than anyone else. Private tutoring, I always tell the boys.

We were at work the other morning learning how to handle a rifle. The sergeant was putting us through our paces.

"Hargrove," he said with infinite sweetness, "where is the balance of your rifle?"

"This is all the supply sergeant gave me, sir," I said. "I thought it was all here."

The sergeant slapped his forehead and mumbled something furiously under his breath. "Wonder-child," he said, "this (pointing) is the balance of your rifle. I can't imagine why they call it that, unless it's because when you hold the rifle there with one hand, it's balanced." He then went on for a few minutes, explaining a few of the things I had still failed to master.

"Now do you understand it?" he asked, beaming at me with a look made of all sweet accord.

"No, sir," I said.

The sergeant sighed wearily. "Private Hargrove," he said, "right down by the next barracks there's a group of young people who are practicing with rifles for the first time. They haven't had theirs for three days like you have. Run along down there and see if you can keep up with them."

I tried. There was some confusion about the orders, however. At the end of a movement where I wound up with my rifle on my left shoulder, the rest of the detail had theirs on the right. I noticed also that I usually finished a command long before the others.

The sergeant in charge of the detail commented on this. "You know, Shorty," he said, "you have all of these routines worked out much better than the War Department was able to do them. Where it took them sixteen counts to complete the sixteen-count manual, you always manage somehow to complete it in twelve."

I was still blushing modestly when he called the corporal over. He said something to the corporal, who took me by the elbow and guided me gently around the building at a spot where, he said, the battery officers wouldn't see me drilling and thereby be discouraged.

"This," he said, pronouncing each syllable slowly and distinctly, "is what we have come to call a rifle.

R-I-F-E. It is used for the purpose of shooting. Primitive man, we are told, did not have a rifle. Primitive man was forced to bring down his supper with a knife, a spear, a stone, a bow and arrows or his own little primitive hands."

I nodded automatically and paid scant attention to all this. I already knew it.

"Today," he continued, "civilization has been improved upon to the extent that—"and he went on and on. After that we began at the beginning of the manual of arms and took each command slowly. The corporal sweated for forty-five minutes.

"In the first place you can peel potatoes with a bayonet."

"Are there any questions now, Private Hargrove?"

I thought for a while. "Yes, sir," I said. "That is, 'yes, corporal.' What use will I have for a rifle? I'm going to be a cook."

The corporal mopped his brow. "Well, Private Hargrove," he said, patting me lovingly on the shoulder, "you'll find use for it. Hat-hat in the first place, you can peel potatoes with a bayonet. And in the second place—if you're as good a cook as you are a soldier—you'll need it every day. After breakfast, lunch, and supper you'll need it to protect yourself from murder at the hands of your comrades in arms."

"See here, Private Hargrove," the sergeant sighed. "Can't you try just once to do something right? Don't you want to be a credit to the platoon? You don't want us to be the worst bunch in the battery after we've been the best for so long, do you?"

"Please, sergeant," I begged him, "couldn't I just stay inside for this once? They'd never miss me at rifle inspection. I'd be very quiet and nobody would ever know."

He ignored the request. "Try hard to remember, private, these few simple things. When the officer reaches the man next to you, open the rifle. When he grabs your gun, don't hang onto it or you'll have a bellyache for two weeks. When he throws it back to you, don't catch it with your chin. And when you get it back, snap the trigger. And heaven help you if you ball this thing up!"

The forces of Destiny placed me second in the front rank at inspection. We stood at attention for three minutes before the inspecting officer approached. For seconds after we brought our rifles up for inspection, a fly which seemed to be a little larger than a June bug landed on my forehead. The sergeant shot a warning glance across my brow and I decided to humor the fly. It would go away soon, I told myself, although I knew it wouldn't.

The inspecting officer still had not begun his rounds. He was waiting for us to get off our guard. The fly demonstrated its impatience by stepping up to double-quick in its pacing. "Oh, if I only had you alone!" I thought. The itching nose became more insistent. A gnaw made a three-point landing on it and began playing about the left nostril.

I gave the sergeant a glance which said distinctly, "This can't go on much longer. Something's going to pop!" His return glance said, in italicized words, "But just one eyelash and I'll break your neck!"

Suddenly the inspecting officer grabbed the rifle from the hand of Grafenstein, who stood beside me. His lightning swoop on the gun, coupled with the speed with which Grafenstein relinquished it, completely paralyzed me. An almost inaudible groan made me look at the sergeant. He was making furious grimaces at me and his face looked as if he was going to burst a blood vessel. He kept wagging his eyes down to the bolt of my rifle. A split second before the officer reached me, I managed to pull the bolt.

I could see the sergeant unloading freight carloads of potatoes for me to peel. I could see the next weekend, with me restricted to quarters while the rest of the platoon enjoyed themselves in town.

The officer reached me several lifetimes later. He looked at my face and sighed wearily. Then, with infinite tenderness, he gently lifted the rifle from my grasp. He inspected it and handed it back to me as though he was laying a brick on an orchid or giving a hundred-pound weight to his aged grandmother. He sighed again and passed on to the next man, whose rifle he grabbed with the confidence that the man wouldn't fall apart when he snatched it.

OUR OWN RADIO DOMESTIC MEDIATION BOARD

(After listening to a famous radio program.)

Q.—Now we come to Case 877. Will you tell the board about your problem?

A.—Well, I've been keeping company with a man for 32 years. I find I am becoming rather fond of him and I think we should be married.

Q.—You think 32 years is too long for a courtship?

A.—Yes. Maybe I'm being unreasonable, but I'm the impatient type.

Q.—What does the man say?

A.—Every night he just comes home, reads the newspaper, finds fault with everything. He shows no interest in me or the children.

Q.—What children?

A.—Our children.

Q.—How old are these children?

A.—The oldest is 36.

Q.—But you said you had only known this man 32 years.

A.—That's one of the things I want to have straightened out by this board!

(The three mediators, Oscar Wimp, jurist; Theodor Spudd, famous psychologist; and O. Duffie Baggs, author, swoon, which is a great disappointment to them as they had counted on making quite a radio hit.)

Q.—(continuing)—Now let's see what the man in the case has to say. You came here so you could be guided by the board's decision?

A.—No; I just jumped at my chance to get on the air.

Q.—What is your answer to this woman's story?

A.—The last 10 years I have tired of her.

Q.—Won't she let you leave?

A.—Yes, but she won't let me take all the furniture and a half ton of coal!

(The interrogator finds the mediators are still out and proceeds with the next case.)

Q.—What is your problem, madam?

A.—It's about my 70-year-old mother. A couple of years ago I got married and we came home to live with her. My husband can't work as he has a mania for crossword puzzles. I tried working once and don't like it either. We were very happy with mother until the last six months.

Q.—What is causing your unhappiness now?

A.—Mother gave up her job at the iron mill.

Q.—Since she is 70 years old, isn't it possible she had some excuse?

A.—No. We had her examined by the family veterinarian, and he says she is still able to work all week if she rests Sundays.

Q.—What do you wish to know?

A.—I want to know if a mother has a right to stop work.

Q.—Now, let's get the other side. Mother, what have you to say?

A.—She's crazy. I would be working right now but she made me quit to come down here on this radio program.

Q.—Why did you do it?

A.—She said if we went over good we might get a regular air engagement.

Q.—Judge Wimp, what is your view in this case?

Judge Wimp—I think the girl should return the $300 and go back to her sister.

Mr. Spudd—Blood is thicker than water. A rolling stone gathers no moss. What we have here is a plain case of glandular disturbance. I recommend a suit for damages.

Mr. Baggs (very thoughtfully)—It was either Napoleon or Henry the Seventh.

The interrogator (rather muddled)—What are you talking about, Mr. Baggs?

Mr. Baggs—Isn't this a quiz program?

Pvt. Harry Kowal, in the hospital at Camp Blanding with a bad case of foot trouble, was asked how his feet got that way and replied, "A cute little WAVE just about walked me to death." All-Out Arlene says it served him right. "He should have met a WAC," she explains, "they know when a boy begins to get lame."

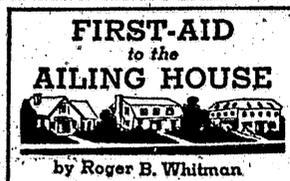

The latest rumor about Mussolini's whereabouts comes from All-Out Arlene, who wires from Africa that he is in the crater of Vesuvius, where it is comparatively cool.

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger B. Whitman

Question: How can I make a neat job of putting nails or hooks in a plastered wall, so that I can hang a couple of mirrors?

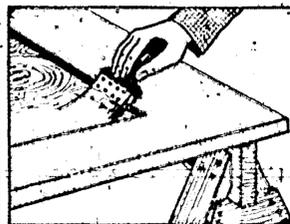

Answer: Nails should not be driven into plastered walls. To hang your mirrors, holes should be drilled into the plaster, wall plugs or anchors inserted and screws used. A hardware store can supply you with these articles. If the mirrors are not too large and heavy you can use a sharply pointed nail, especially made for this purpose, which has a hook attached. These can be had in large or small sizes from a hardware dealer. If the mirrors are very heavy, it might be better to hang them from the picture molding (if there is one), using picture wire or cord. (The wire may be hard to get.)

Here is the way one of our readers runs a screw into a plaster wall: "Mark the position and drill a hole about the size of the screw. Wood putty is then packed into the hole, and after hardening overnight the screw is run into it. This method has held a great deal of weight around my house without any failures. When you move the screws can be taken out, leaving the wall in a neat condition."

PAINTING A DOOR

Question: I have been attempting a painting job on some of our doors and am making heavy weather of it. The paint does not flow evenly, but streaks and blobs. What ought I to do?

Answer: It is almost impossible to paint a door evenly when it is in position; it should be taken off its hinges and laid flat on boxes or sawhorses at a convenient height for working. When the door is laid flat the paint will flow evenly.

Storing Furniture

Question: I want to store my kitchen, living and bedroom furniture. Would it be all right to store it in an unheated upstairs room? Do you think the coldness would ruin the finish or warp the furniture? And what effect would the cold have on the mirror of a vanity? Answer: Low temperatures will not harm the furniture, but you should take every precaution against dampness. Before storing the furniture clean and polish it, and then cover with a heavy kraft paper to keep dust off the surfaces. The refrigerator should be cleaned and put away with the door partly open. Cover the bare metal parts of the stove with a light oil to prevent rusting. If the mirror is of good quality it will stand up under all conditions.

Insulated Hot-Air Ducts

Question: The warm-air ducts from our furnace are covered with the usual sheet asbestos. Dust clings to this surface and is very hard to remove. Can this covering be painted, to give a hard surface that can be cleaned easily?

Answer: Asbestos insulating materials are very porous and, because of this, are difficult to paint. The following method will be fairly successful: After brushing off the dust, apply a thin coat of shellac (if you can get it), thinned half-and-half with denatured alcohol. When dry, finish with a coat of brushing lacquer. If lacquer cannot be obtained, apply a coat of flat paint followed by a coat of quick-drying enamel.

Spots on Linoleum

Question: How can I remove spots from my linoleum floor? Neither soap nor kitchen cleaners have any effect upon them. They seem to form under chair and table legs. The linoleum has been waxed.

Answer: Try rubbing gently with turpentine and very fine steel wool. Then, when spots have been removed, touch up with a little paste wax, allow to dry hard and then polish.

Touch-Up on Chairs

Question: My black-enameled chairs are chipped off in a few spots to the bare wood, and also are slightly smeared with white paint. How can I touch up these places without damaging the undercoating?

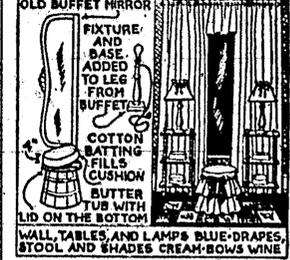

Answer: Rub the chipped spots with fine steel wool; wipe with benzene, being careful of fire, and then touch up with matching enamel, building up the chipped area to the surrounding level. Then wipe with turpentine. If the finish is dulled rub with a little paste wax.

ON THE HOME FRONT

with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

A LONG mirror with a table at each side makes an ideal place to dress. Here you have it with the old mirror from the buffet described recently. The mirror is turned end-wise and the irregularities of the frame covered with cream colored curtains of unbleached muslin hung from a rod attached to the picture molding.

But that is not the last of the old buffet. The turned legs are here made into lamps. The base of each is a square piece of one-inch lumber which is screwed through the center to the largest end of the leg piece. An electric fixture such as is often used in candle sticks is then inserted in a hole bored in the other end. The lamp shades and the butter-tub stool are covered with the cream colored muslin.

NOTE—The complete story of the old buffet and how its various parts were used is in BOOK 7 of the series offered with these articles. Directions for making a spool table similar to those illustrated are in BOOK 9. Also the directions for the rug illustrated are in BOOK 5. Booklets are 15 cents each. Send your order to:
