BORN—At the Turner hospital Monday, April 10, to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Richard, a boy. The newcomer has been named Ronnie Marvin—congratulations.

Roy Richard's military training stands him in good hand right now. You should see the strut he has since the arrival of the new son. Boy, does he strut.

Lewis Burke is in receipt of a letter from his old musical friend H. E. Alden, formerly Army bandmaster and leader of the crack State College band. He says that Mrs. Alden passed away recently after a year of illness in El Paso. Mr. Alden sends best regards to his friends here and in Lincoln County.

We were glad to receive a letter from another of our home boys, Ben Barnett, now at San Francisco. Ben told us a good joke, which for the sake of modesty, we are leaving out of his article. But it's a good one, Ben.

Mrs. Ira Greer of Tucuman, who had been here for the past week visiting relatives, left Monday evening for home, accompanied by her nephew, Tom Barnett, who will visit with his auntie for a short while.

Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Hefker, formerly residing at Fairbanks, Arizona, have moved to Hatch, N. M., according to a letter from the folks Wednesday. Mr. Hefker is with the S. P. water service and was lately transferred to Hatch.

One curious fact is the great number of medals passed around these days. When old George Washington led the continental army, the greatest honor that that could come to a hero was to get a pair of home knit warm socks. Don't times change?

William Harrison of Oakland, Calif., was here for a short stay last week, on his way to Texas, where he will visit his wife's parents and thence to Anadarko, Okla., where he will visit his parents. Mr. Harrison is a brother-in-law to Mrs. John Bell of Carrizozo.

Frankie Silva, Coast Guard Leatherneck, arrived home last Saturday and on Wednesday, he made this office a friendly call. Frankie has been somewhat ill of late and has undergone treatment at one of the government hospitals at San Francisco, consequently, he was granted a furlough for a short time and he decided to spend that period at home.

THE WRONG PATTERN HERE

Our armed forces are scattered on every continent and the seven seas for the avowed purpose of perpetuating human freedom, destroyed political and military dictatorship, and punishing aggressor nations.

But in the United States, our own Government is using the aggression tactics of the dictator to propagandize communities and deprive groups of citizens of their lawfully acquired industries and deprive groups of citizens of their lawfully acquired industries, in order to monopolize those fields of endeavor.

Since the inauguration of the Tennessee Valley Power Authority as government power monopoly, the tactics of an aggressor nation toward a weaker people have been extended in the United States, and private power companies have been put out of business through political action, just as definitely as were the industries that Hitler, as a dictator, absorbed for his own interests in Germany.

The Federal power monopoly has been extended from Tennessee to other states, and now the drive is in full swing to wipe the privately-owned power companies out of the whole Pacific

Among the letters from our old friends in different places, was one from R. A. (Bud) Crenshaw, now in the Naval service at San Diego, Calif. Bud says among other things, that there are some New Mexico boys in his line of service: Tom Kennedy, Joe West, Don Aguayo, Douglas Glatfeller, S. A. Montes, and young Runnels, all in the same barracks with him. He sends his best regards to old friends. Here we go into quotations: Bud says: When people ask us if we are from Texas, we say: "No, we have been sick, that's the reason we look that way!"

We have a letter on our desk received Wednesday morning from Mrs. Marjorie Picture, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Nickels of Carrizozo. Mrs. Picture is now in St. Petersburg, Florida, where she says she likes the country very well, but before the letter ended, she gave us to understand that she would be glad to again breathe the pure air of old New Mexico. Marjorie's husband is in the service and will have his furlough pretty soon and after fishing at Miami, they plan to make us a visit before his leave expires.

Northwest area. At the moment, the promoters of state socialism are centering their activities on the state of Washington.

The administrator of the Federal power plant at Bonneville has been authorized by the Secretary of the Interior and 16 satellite Washington PUDs, to offer the largest power company in the state $90,000,000 to get out of business. This boondoggling political scheme would cause the state of Washington to lose one of its best tax-paying industries and load it with tax-exempt political power authorities. Not one new kilowatt of power would be produced by the transaction.

But, over and above that, innocent owners of private power companies, like innocent owners of property in little countries in Europe, would find themselves ruthlessly put out of business by powerful political forces of aggression which trample on the ideals of freedom instead of protecting personal liberty. Such tactics can destroy our Republic as surely as they destroyed the weaker nations in Europe, unless the people curb them in time.—Industrial News Review.

Lieut. Harold Hoffman has been transferred from Clovis to Pratt, Kansas.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Ed Harris of their ranch near Claunch were here Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Jarrett of the Jarrett ranch near Claunch were shoppers in town the first of the week.

Mrs. Mary J. Lumpkins of Ruidoso was a visitor here yesterday.

THE new "Transatlantic Quiz" show scheduled to start April 15 promises to be amusing; whether it will carry out its purpose, "to find out, through the participants, what Americans know about Britain and what the British know about America," remains to be seen. Col. David Niven, the movie star, who has been with the English army since the outbreak of the war, will be a regular member of the London panel when his war assignments permit. Russel Crouse, playwright, and Christopher Morley, author of "Kitty Foyle," will be regulars at this end. Slated for Saturday afternoons, the programs are done by the Blue network and British Broadcasting corporation.

received by RKO players; averages 2,634 pieces monthly. The list is led by Ginger Rogers, who gets 3,500 letters a month.

Jack Lannon, Hollywood's best-known fog and rain maker, has a new job on his hands. He's been signed to handle the special weather effects which play an important part in creating the atmospheric setting for Cary Grant's new "None But the Lonely Heart."

Three narrow escapes in raids over German targets and in an RAF torpedo boat are recounted by Dave Oliver, RKO Pathe News cameraman who is back after serving for nine months as a newsreel correspondent. He kept on cranking his camera during running fights with the enemy in the air, at sea, and in the Italian campaign. He lived with a torpedo boat squadron for three weeks.

Radio's "Great Gilderdale" moved into Hollywood from the San Fernando Valley, primarily to save gas, tires and time—and two days later Warner Bros. sent for him to do a special picture for the Canadian government, in the neighborhood he'd just vacated!

More than 12,000 individual programs supporting 60 separate war campaigns were broadcast by Columbia Broadcasting system on the home front in 1943, according to a recent announcement. The promise of postwar television, in full, natural color, and a plea for freedom of radio are also contained in the report.

John Loder, host and director of "Silver Theater" on CBS, can't wait at the same microphone with many of his guests whether he wants to or not. It isn't that he wants to be aloof—a fellow who stands six feet three just can't get together at a mike with a five foot glamour girl.

It's an April birthday for "First Nighter," one of radio's veteran serials—625 consecutive performances on its Mutual network. Barbara Luddy was selected as "First Lady" of radio twice, in 1940 and '43, for her performances as the perennial heroine.

Victor Borgo has been signed to play the voice of a new animated cartoon character who is expected to outstrip Donald Duck, Mickey Mouse, etc., in the public's affections. Victor's Scandinavian accent will be used to portray Wallie Walrus.

Barbara Stanwyck turns blonde for the second time in her career for the role of the murderess in "Double Indemnity." "I'd always visualized murderesses as brunettes," she protested. "But evidently blondes are considered more unscrupulous this season."

ODDS AND ENDS Howard Hawks is right in his element as technical adviser on sword fishing scenes in the new Humphrey Bogart picture, "To Have and Have Not." Hawks is cited among the nation's top game fishermen. It's a furthered success for Dorothy Lamour for a lukewarm success in the Crosby-Hope "How to Succeed in Love." Alana Ladd, Alan Ladd's eight months old daughter, has already been introduced to the motion picture world. Her mother took her calling on papa during production of "And Now Tomorrow." RKO is going all out on "Adventures of Sinbad the Sailor"; the studio's going to make it one of those lavish Technicolor productions.

Penicillin, Latest Triumph of Medical Research, Marks Another Long Step Toward Distant Goal

'Magic' Germ Killer Was Discovered by Fortunate Accident

By AL JEDLICKA
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

It is back in 1929. Prof. Alexander Fleming of London discovers that a mold growing in a container which he is using in research has killed certain germs. Although Professor Fleming does not enter into a thorough investigation of the phenomenon, he takes the time to make a note of it, suggesting that maybe the mold could destroy germs in human infections.

Other English scientists go to work on the mold and in 1940 find it effective in human treatment. Penicillin, the magic drug, has been discovered, and like so many great other discoveries, by chance.

Penicillin is not the greatest nor the final discovery in medicine, but it is the latest and among the most effective, momentarily climaxing medicine's long, steady march forward on the path of alleviating man's pain.

Sought by king and commoner alike, penicillin has proven its usefulness in the treatment of streptococcus pyogenes, a germ that causes pus and promotes diseases like septic sore throat, childbed fever and erysipelas; of staphylococcus aureus, another pus-forming germ found in boils and in infections of the bone; of the pneumonia and diphtheria germs; of the organisms that cause gonorrhoea, gas gangrene, meningitis and syphilis.

In Chicago's modern Museum of Science and Industry at the foot of Lake Michigan in Jackson Park, Dr. Milan Novak, head of the department of bacteriology and public health of University of Illinois college of medicine, has established a public exhibit demonstrating the processes in the present production of penicillin.

The penicillin exhibit is just one of many in the museum's medical section, which is under direction of Dr. E. J. Carey, dean of the Marquette university medical school, Milwaukee, Wis. In this section, we are given a graphic picture of man's gradual development of curative remedies from the early uses of vegetable and mineral substances.

Seven Benefactors. One exhibit pictures seven great men and their works which have given mankind boundless relief from its physical illnesses:

Karl Wilhelm Scheele (1742-'86), who discovered chlorine, the constituent of common compounds like salt; tartaric acids, which make fruits taste sour; manganese, the metallic element necessary for plant development, and oxygen, the most universal of all elements.

Pelletier and Caventou, who in 1820 extracted quinine, the active medicinal constituent of cinchona, the wrinkled brown bark found by the Spaniards in Peru in 1630, and most effective in treating malaria.

Louis Jacques Thenard (1777-1857) who found boric acid and hydrogen peroxide.

Frederick Belding Powder (1853-1927), who worked on development of oil of peppermint and wintergreen, and also oil of chaulmoogra, a ment of hormones for treatment of glandular deficiencies in 1901, with the introduction of coal-tar synthetic drugs in 1884 and thyroxin in 1893 grouped between.

The 'Magic' Drug. The climatic and currently most interesting exhibit, of course, is the one dealing with the growth of penicillin, from a mold to a refined liquid containing the drug which al-

Prof. Alexander Fleming, discoverer of penicillin, is shown with a bottle holding cultures of penicillium notatum, as he converses with two visiting Turkish doctors in his London laboratory, where he made the remarkable experiments.

source of certain chemical compounds for use in treating leprosy.

Bernard Courtois (1777-1838), who isolated iodine in 1811, when he observed that washings from seaweed ashes gave off purple vapors when treated with sulphuric acid, and then turned into crystals which contained the element, now so useful in medicine.

Antoine Lavoisier (1743-'94), who discovered bromine in 1826.

Moderns as well as oldsters find the museum's replica of the 19th century American apothecary shop an interesting contrast to the present, streamlined drug store.

To say the least, the old apothecary shop ranked as a colorful spectacle as well as a popular medicinal center, what with its big, square jars of black zingiber, white zinc sulphide, reddish tincture of serpent and gold spiders odoratus. Drawers contained emery, talcum, manna, creta and iris.

Of interest is the 19th century doctor's bulky, varnished medicine case which he carried in his saddlebag as he made his rounds through the country. In its case, one can find quinine, turkey rhubarb, essence of peppermint, fire of magnesia, essence of ginger and tincture of orange peel.

On the counter of the apothecary shop stands a box of herbal smoking mixture for cure of catarrh, bronchitis, asthma, hay fever, lung disease, coughs, hoarseness, ulcerated throat and all pulmonary complaints, the customer merely being asked to smoke and inhale it.

Hard by the replica of the old apothecary shop, we find a drug exhibit depicting 19th century medicinal advances, from the discovery of alkaloids in 1816 to the development of hormones for treatment of glandular deficiencies in 1901, with the introduction of coal-tar synthetic drugs in 1884 and thyroxin in 1893 grouped between.

The 'Magic' Drug. The climatic and currently most interesting exhibit, of course, is the one dealing with the growth of penicillin, from a mold to a refined liquid containing the drug which already has become an awesome, magical byword.

Step by step, the exhibit demonstrates the processes of producing penicillin: First, there's the stock culture, with a mold similar to but not identical with green molds found on fruits or cheese, shown growing on a jelly-like base containing sugar.

Second, the spores (seeds) from the stock culture are transferred to a nutrient solution containing sugar, and they germinate into white woolly plants. In three days, the mold covers the surface of the liquid. This mold creates penicillin, which collects in the nutrient but not in the mold plants.

Third, as the mold plants mature, their color changes from white to gray-green because of the development of numerous spores (seeds). At this stage, the solution contains a maximum amount of penicillin and the culture is ready for collection. If allowed to become too old, the penicillin in the liquid loses some of its strength.

Fourth, the first step in collecting the penicillin is to remove the mold growth from the liquid by filtration, since the plant itself contains none of the drug. The liquid thus filtered possesses small amounts of penicillin. An elaborate process of extraction and absorption is used to concentrate and remove the penicillin from the liquid.

Fifth, the purification process removes objectionable substances. If left in its yellow-brown solution form, penicillin loses some of its strength, but is relatively stable as a powder, into which it is converted by commercial production.

When penicillin is to be injected into a patient, it is dissolved. A hypodermic syringe is used for intramuscular injection, and if intravenous injection is desired, a blood transfusion apparatus is used.

Penicillin must be tested regularly for strength. In the cup method, melted agar is uniformly inoculated with test bacteria, which cannot grow in the presence of penicillin, and is placed in a round dish to solidify. Small glass cylinders are put in the solidified agar and filled with a penicillin solution, which then seeps outward into the infected mold. The test bacteria grow and cloud the agar, except where their growth is stopped by the penicillin. The size of the clear zone is proportional to the strength of the penicillin.

If penicillin is hard to get, it's because its production is limited by its growth. From a large batch of the nutrient solution only a relatively small amount of penicillin is obtainable. As yet no synthetic method to produce the drug on a mass-scale has been developed, and until some such process is installed, the civilians' share will be strictly determined by the military and naval services' needs.

HARD WATER SCALE

Question: I have some water pans that are used with radiator covers for humidifying the air of the room. After a season's use these pans have a heavy coating of white sediment, due to our hard water. I have previously scraped and painted the pans, although scraping does not remove all the accumulation. What kind of paint should I use to preserve them?

Answer: Fill each pan with water mixed with cider vinegar in the proportion of a cupful to the quart. Bring to a boil and allow to stand overnight. The scale should then be loose enough to be scraped out easily. A good paint would be an aluminum paint with a spar varnish base, or a heat resisting black asphaltum paint. You may have a substitute that will serve until after the war.

Finish for Wire Screens

Question: What will remove rust from almost new wire screens? They are natural wire color, unpainted. What can I use to preserve the wire which will not change the color and appearance?

Answer: Clean off the rust with steel wool, and then wipe the screens with turpentine. Paint them with a very thin varnish, the kind that can be applied with a lintless cloth. If you cannot get this, use a mixture of two parts spar varnish and one part each of linseed oil and turpentine. If this blobs in the mesh, brush it out with a dry brush.

EFFLORESCENCE ON BRICK

Question: How can I stop the salt-peter from coming out on the bricks of my home?

Answer: The "efflorescence" can be removed by scrubbing with a mixture of one pint muriatic acid in 4½ quarts of water. Pour the acid slowly into the water to prevent splattering. Mix in an enamel pail in good condition or a wooden pail. Use a fiber brush and do not allow this acid to remain on the brick for more than two or three minutes; longer action might damage the cement in the mortar joints. Rinse well with plenty of clear water to remove every trace of the acid. As this acid is highly corrosive, use rubber gloves and wear old clothes and goggles. Do not get any of it on your skin, for it would make a burn. A colorless waterproofing on the wall may retard the re-appearance of this efflorescence.

Noisy Heating System

Question: I have a newly-built house heated by oil. When the unit goes on the radiators knock, although I open the gadget at the side to release air. What will stop this knocking?

Answer: Try raising the radiators a quarter or even a half-inch by placing a block of wood under each leg. See that each radiator stands perfectly level.

Stains on Gas Range

Question: What will remove the brown coating which forms around the door of my gas range?

Answer: Try cleaning it off with a scratchless scouring powder moistened with a little water and a few drops of household ammonia. There also are commercial preparations for cleaning enamel on gas ranges, etc.

Joint Cement

Question: The cement filler at the joint where the gutter pipe enters the drain tile in the ground level always cracks away. What to do?

Answer: You can use a roofing cement, or, if you object to the black color of the roofing cement, you can fill the joint with a caulking compound of a light color.

'Dustless' Dust Cloth

Question: Some time ago you had a paragraph in your column about making a dustless dustcloth. I have misplaced the paper. Will you repeat?

Answer: Soak flannel or thick flannel in a mixture of two parts paraffin oil and one part turpentine; wring out and hang out to dry.

The first time the rare drug was ever released for civilian use was in the case of Patricia Malone, two-year-old New York city girl, who was suffering from the staphylococcal type of septicemia. The army gave enough penicillin to halt the disease, when appealed to by a New York newspaper.

Until Synthetic Method Is Devised, Production Of Penicillin Will Remain Slow and Costly

Brought doubly into the limelight by frequent dramatic uses of the drug, penicillin has been made available in cases where the patient would respond to it, Dr. Austin E. Smith, secretary of the council on pharmacy and chemistry of the American Medical Association, said. Because of its comparative scarcity, Dr. Smith stated, unlimited use of penicillin has not been permitted, and in cases where other drugs, like the sulfonamides for instance, are effective, authorities have insisted on employing them instead. Until synthetic production of penicillin is developed, its manufacture will continue a costly and cumbersome process. At the start of the year, about eight firms were producing quantities of penicillin, and the total was expected to be expanded to 20.

This tiny sealed vial contains 10,000 Flory units of penicillin.

LESSON TEXT: Acts 9:19b-30; 11:25, 26. GOLDEN TEXT: I am not ashamed of the gospel; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth.—Romans 1:16.

"A changed man"—that oft-used expression assumes real meaning as it is applied to one who has experienced the redeeming grace of God in Christ. In a special way this was true of Paul, whose transformed life amazed those who knew him before he had met Christ on the Damascus road.

In our lesson we find him in three different cities, serving his newfound Master and Lord.

I. At Damascus—Confounding the Jews (9:19-25).

"Straightway." What a good word to apply to the servant of the Lord. Paul did not hesitate to declare his faith in Christ, to proclaim that the One who had redeemed him was able also to save others.

It is the normal and proper expression of Christian faith to give testimony to others. That should be true of every believer. With Paul there was the added element of his call to preach, for God had ordained that he should be His chosen vessel for that purpose (Acts 9:15).

One is impressed by the prompt and unquestioning obedience of so many of Christ's followers of whom we read in the New Testament. No doubt that explains their power and wide usefulness. We could learn of them.

Paul's message was Christ. He proved to the Jews that Jesus was the Christ (v. 22), the One of whom their Old Testament Scriptures spoke and for whom they professed to be looking. He declared Him to be the Son of God (v. 20).

They were unwilling to accept the message. They were "amazed" at Paul and "confounded" by the truth he proclaimed; but they rejected both it and him, and he had to escape for his life. But another city must hear his witness, so we find him—

II. At Jerusalem—Disputing with the Grecians (9:26-30).

Knowing his violent persecution of the church, the disciples in Jerusalem were suspicious. Perhaps there was a measure of justification for such an attitude, but one is glad that there was present the generous, open-hearted Barnabas, ready to believe in his new brother in Christ and to sponsor him in the church.

A word of admonition to the church of our day is necessary, regarding the making of a new convert or a stranger at home in the fellowship of the saints. There is no need of putting such a one quickly into office or a place of honor, but let him know that he is accepted and believed in, and thus give him an opportunity to grow.

Paul remained in Jerusalem this time for two weeks (Gal. 1:18), going in and out, that is, in friendly fellowship. That is just what the young Christian needs, and should seek.

He also had something to make right. He had joined the Grecian Jews when they disputed with Stephen (6:9) and stoned him. Paul had agreed with and joined them on that occasion. Now by the miracle of regeneration he is a new creature and is on the exactly opposite side. Now he disputes with the Grecians, declaring that Jesus is the Christ. What a blessed change!

They refused to tolerate that word, and prepared to kill him. But the servant of the Lord was kept by Him, and delivered through the good offices of Christian brethren. How often it is true that the minister must look to the brethren for that kindness which delivers him from distress and danger.

Paul returned for a time to his home city of Tarsus, but when a need of his services arose he was called out, and we find him—

III. At Antioch—Teaching the Christians (11:25, 26).

Persecution spread the believers abroad (Acts 11:19), and like the scattered brands of a beaten fire they carried the flame of Christianity far and wide. Thus the gospel came to Antioch, the third greatest city in the world of that day. A revival broke out, and Barnabas was sent from Jerusalem to be of help.

Good and spiritual man that he was (Acts 19:23, 24), Barnabas did nothing to hinder this work of God, but admonished the people to "cleave unto the Lord," that is, to follow Him closely. Would that all spiritual advisers had such a spirit and such sound judgment.

He was also wise in sensing his need of help. So he went after Paul, the very man to teach these young Christians, and to lead them out into a radiant and abundant life for the Lord.

Here it was that the beautiful name of "Christian" was first applied to believers. It is believed to have originally been a term of ridicule, but even then it was a testimony, for it declared that these believers were devoted to Christ and concerned only with pleasing and serving Him.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS by Lynn Chambers

Salads Make Menus Sparkle!
(See Recipes Below)

Salad Ensembles

The warmer the weather, the more popular the salad becomes as a luncheon mainstay. Salads can be made from fruit or fish, fowl or vegetables—or from combinations of any of these classes as long as the foods go together.

If you want to give your salads a more than average nutritional boost plus distinction serve them with a cream cheese dressing. Then, if company drops in, you will not have to make apologies for what you're serving. For vegetables, use chive cream cheese blended with mayonnaise—a 6-ounce wedge with 4 tablespoons of mayonnaise is a good proportion.

Fruit salads are good with the pimento cream cheese dressing blended with mayonnaise. Fish salads are best with the relish cream cheese. Use 6 ounces blended with 4 tablespoons of mayonnaise.

Salads can be light or hearty, depending on their ingredients.

Savory Salad.

- (Serves 6 to 8)
- 1 1/2 cups macaroni
 - 1/2 cup leftover ham or sausage
 - 1/2 cup chopped sweet pickle
 - 1/4 cup finely diced celery
 - 1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
 - 2 cups chopped apple
 - 3 tablespoons minced pimiento
 - 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
 - 2 tablespoons grated onion
 - 1/4 cup thinly sliced carrots
 - 1 cup salted peanuts
 - 1/2 cup mayonnaise

Cook macaroni in boiling salted water until tender. Drain. Cool. Combine with remaining ingredients. Add mayonnaise and mix well. Chill. Serve in lettuce cups garnished with radish slices.

Save Used Fats!

As fresh as spring and just as enchanting is this lighter salad:

Garden Salad.

- (Serves 6)
- 1 head lettuce or Chinese cabbage
 - 1 onion, grated
 - 1 bunch celery
 - 1 bunch radishes
 - 2 tomatoes, sliced
 - 2 carrots, grated
 - 1 cucumber, chopped
 - 2 hard-cooked eggs
- Combine ingredients. When ready to serve, toss with French dressing.

Jellied Chicken Salad.

- (Serves 6)
- 2 cups cooked, diced chicken
 - 1 1/4 cups chicken broth
 - 1 tablespoon gelatin
 - 1/4 cup cold water
 - 1 teaspoon lemon juice
 - 1/4 teaspoon onion salt
 - 1/2 cup peas
- Mayonnaise
- Heat well-seasoned chicken broth. Add gelatin, soaked in water, chicken, lemon juice, onion salt and peas.

Lynn Says

Fretty, Pretty: All foods no matter how simple can be made more appetizing by attractive garnishes. And remember to eat the garnishes, for in most cases they're as nutritious as they are beautiful. This is especially true in the case of eggs.

Sieve hard-cooked yolk over top of creamed soups. Cut hard-cooked egg whites into attractive shapes for bouillon or consommé.

Baked custard can be cut into attractive shapes for clear soups. Make the custard using meat stock or bouillon cubes.

Daisy garnishes for vegetables are very effective. Cut whites of eggs lengthwise into five or more petals using a sharp knife, cutting from larger end to within 1/4 inch of the smaller end. Open petals, remove yolks and fill center of petals with sieved egg yolk.

Lynn Chambers' Point-Saving Menu

- Salmon Cutlets
- Egg Sauce
- Garden Salad
- Peas with Onions
- Caramel Rolls
- Spread
- Citrus Chiffon Pie
- Recipe Given

Mold in cups rubbed slightly with olive oil and allow to chill until firm. Serve with mayonnaise on crisp lettuce leaves. Clusters of grapes make an attractive garnish.

Contrast in color becomes important when putting together salads. Since we are said "to eat with our eyes first" it's important to keep the salad appetizing. Carrots, green pepper and celery are a good combination. Cooked beets, green beans and cauliflower look well together. Leave the skin on apples so they can add the bright touch of red to the salad. Nuts offer contrast in color as well as texture to fruit, vegetable or chicken salad.

- Egg Salad Mold.
(Serves 6)
- 2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
 - 1/4 cup cold water
 - 1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
 - 4 hard-cooked eggs, shredded
 - 1/2 cup diced celery
 - 2 tablespoons diced green pepper
 - 2 tablespoons pickle relish
 - 1 tablespoon diced pimiento
 - 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt

Soften gelatin in cold water for 5 minutes. Heat over boiling water until gelatin is dissolved. Cool.

When thickened, add remaining ingredients. Pour into individual molds or one large mold and chill. Serve with additional mayonnaise and garnish with endive and carrot curls.

Save Used Fats!

Rhubarb Salad Ring.

- (Serves 6)
- 1 package raspberry or lemon flavored gelatin
 - 1 cup hot rhubarb sauce
 - 1 cup cold water
 - 1 cup chopped apples
 - 1 cup chopped nuts

Dissolve gelatin in hot sauce. Add water, cool and pour into a ring mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on lettuce. Serve Waldorf salad in center of ring. Or, make salad ring with strained cranberry sauce and serve chicken salad in center of ring.

If the salad is as good as its dressing, you will be able to use these suggestions:

Salad Bowl Dressing: Combine 2 tablespoons tarragon vinegar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, a dash of pepper, 1 to 2 drops liquid garlic and a dash of sugar. Mix until blended and then pour in 1 cup salad oil and 1/2 teaspoon gum arabic or gum tragacanth (obtainable at a druggist's, usually). Shake or beat well and chill before using.

Peanut Butter French Dressing: Combine the following: 1/4 cup peanut oil, 1/2 cup salad oil, 1/2 cup pure cider vinegar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, and 1/2 teaspoon paprika. Beat thoroughly until blended. This is good for simple green salads.

Sour Cream Dressing: Mix together 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons flour, 2 teaspoons sugar and a dash of cayenne. Blend together 1 egg yolk beaten, 1 tablespoon oil and 1/2 cup vinegar and stir gradually into dry ingredients. Cook in top of double boiler until thick, remove from heat, then cool. Before serving, fold in 1/2 cup sour cream.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Planes fly in supplies and bring out crude rubber from Central American plantations. Weeks are saved by this method of transportation.

In building a battleship it takes 150,000 pounds of rubber. This is equivalent to the rubber used in the manufacture of more than 12,000 small passenger-car tires.

The first city omnibus lines, the forerunner of modern motor bus transportation, started operations over the streets of Paris in 1842.

Seventy-three per cent of the employees in 94 war plants depend upon their cars for transportation. Rubber is essential to their work.

Santa Fe.—Effective March 28

New Mexico Magazine halted acceptance of new subscriptions to the publication, George Fitzpatrick, editor, announced.

The action was taken in order to comply with a War Production Board order which limits the Magazine's quota of paper in 1944 to 75 per cent of its estimated requirement for the year.

"As a further means of decreasing the amount of paper used, the Magazine will be entirely withdrawn from newsstand sales throughout the State, beginning with the May issue," Fitzpatrick said, "The April issue appears as usual on the newsstand this week."

Bills Affecting Post-War Agriculture In Congress

Surplus equipment, materials, and supplies for use in carrying out the work programs of soil conservation districts would be made available for this purpose at the end of the war under provisions of bills now before Congress. A T Pfingsten, chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the Upper Hondo Soil Conservation District, has been advised by Joe Wilkinson, chairman of the New Mexico Soil Conservation Committee

The bill which would provide this assistance to the post-war soil conservation program was introduced in the Senate by Carl A Hatch of New Mexico, and in the House by Representative W. R. Poage of Texas. This proposed legislation is the result of efforts of Gov. J J Dempsey of New Mexico, Wilkinson, and others interested in soil conservation and who desire to make conservative use of the vast quantities of surplus equipment, materials, and supplies at the end of the war

New Mexico now has 42 soil conservation districts which have been organized under state law and which would be eligible to receive surplus equipment and other materials under provisions of this legislation. Mr. Pfingsten pointed out

He said that, although it is too early to predict the end of the war and conditions which may exist at that time, it is safe to say that the nation will increase its soil conservation work and that this legislation will be a great step forward in providing for additional facilities which will be needed at that time.

Mr. Pfingsten points out that soil conservation work now is being carried on by soil conservation districts in 45 states which have been organized under state laws, governed by local boards of supervisors elected by farmers in the district, and that the program of soil conservation is certainly standing upon a solid democratic foundation

Increased Activity in Pacific Sector Marked by U. S. Blows on Jap Bases And Heavy Fighting in Burma, India; 4-Fs Get Study in Manpower Crisis

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Italy—Against a background of war's ruin at Cassino, an Allied medical unit moves to the front to attend the wounded.

RATIONING: Announce Changes

More gas, freer use of fuel oil and food coupons and ration changes in vegetables, fruits, meats and oils were announced by OPA.

To maintain the distribution business, it was announced drivers holding "B" cards will be allowed an additional 100 miles a month, while expiration dates for fuel oil coupons will be eliminated before the fall season of heavy consumption gets underway.

Because many shoppers cashed in their red and blue food coupons for tokens at expiration dates, OPA took off all time limits on the stamps.

While all frozen fruits and vegetables were taken off rationing, beef flank meat, pork liver, lamb and mutton hearts, liver, sweetbreads and tongue, beef tongue, cooked and barbecued pork spareribs and pork tongue were cut 1 point. Shortening, salad and cooking oil were slashed 1 point. Points on canned carrots and tomato juice also were reduced.

DRAFT: Eye 4-Fs

To fill up the industrial and agricultural ranks left vacant by the drafting of all men except key workers under 20, the government called for the induction of all 4-Fs not engaged in essential occupations and a congressional committee moved to shape special legislation for such a program.

At the same time, it was revealed Selective Service was scrapping its unit system of deferring agricultural workers, only giving consideration to a man's regular employment on a farm and the problem of replacing him.

Under the government's proposal, 4-Fs doing nonessential work would be enlisted as reserves and directed to essential occupations at regular civilian pay, or they would be enrolled in labor battalions for employment at army pay if they refused to accept the assignments.

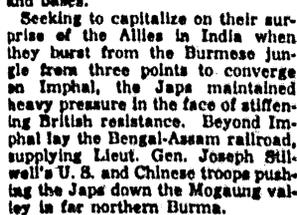

Of the nation's 3,500,000 4-Fs it was estimated that about 1,000,000 were engaged in non-essential work.

PACIFIC: Threaten India

As bold Japanese forces thrust toward the highway hub of Imphal in India, Adm. Louis Mountbatten rallied Allied forces to a stand to hold this key to land communications all along the 600-mile Burmese front.

In the Southwest Pacific area, strong U. S. naval forces again challenged the Japanese fleet to come out and fight by attacking the enemy's sea base of Palau, 460 miles from the Philippines, but the Nips once more withdrew. On New Guinea, New Britain and Bougainville, Allied ground forces continued to press the Japs, as U. S. airmen impeded reinforcement of their battered troops by shooting up shipping and bases.

Seeking to capitalize on their surprise of the Allies in India when they burst from the Burmese jungle from three points to converge on Imphal, the Japs maintained heavy pressure in the face of stiffening British resistance. Beyond Imphal lay the Bengal-Assam railroad, supplying Lieut. Gen. Joseph Stilwell's U. S. and Chinese troops pushing the Japs down the Mogaung valley in far northern Burma.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

DAIRY SUBSIDIES: Charles Holman, secretary of the National Cooperative Milk Producers Federation, told a senate committee that subsidies on dairy products would have to be increased by $200,000,000 a year to give farmers a fair return. This would raise the total paid to milk producers from $450,000,000 to $750,000,000. Holman is opposed to the whole dairy subsidy program.

SAVINGS: In the first two years of war, savings of the American people have increased by more than 50 per cent, represented by war bonds, bank deposits and life insurance. The total of these three items on January 1 of this year was $1 billion dollars. About 12 per cent of individual income goes into these forms of savings, according to the Institute of Life Insurance.

SURPLUS GOODS: Consult Business

To prevent a disruption of ordinary business channels, U. S. agencies entrusted with the disposal of surplus war goods for civilian use have been instructed to confer with the War Production board's 750 industry advisory committees on distribution of material through established outlets.

Although most members of the industry advisory committees are manufacturers, some wholesalers and retailers have been included in the groups, and it will be their task to help determine normal outlets for certain goods, the amount of material to be released, and whether distributors should bid for the merchandise, negotiate for its purchase or buy it at auction.

While the new procedure was announced, Rep. Wright Patman (Texas) pressed for enactment of a bill under which retailers would be given equal voice in the disposal of surplus war goods along with the bigger manufacturers and wholesalers.

GERMANY: Production Efficiency

Striving to stretch their human and material resources to maximum, Germany's production efforts have reached into industrial and domestic activity alike.

In industry, the Nazis have spared men and metal by reducing locomotive models from 119 to 13, and they have economized on shipping space by extensive dehydration of foods. More efficient methods reportedly increased steel, copper and aluminum output while decreasing man hours.

To keep working women from performing house tasks at home, the Nazis have organized groups to mend their stockings and attend to other domestic functions. Persons from 65 to 70 have been enlisted to assist service men at railway depots.

Finds Long Way Back

Taken to St. Petersburg, Fla., by his master and then given to a resident there, an Irish setter, Duke, so longed for his old home that he traveled 1,200 miles back to it at Roann, Ind., where an old friend, Rev. Robert Collins, found him bloody-footed and exhausted.

Informed of Duke's plight, his master wired Rev. Collins funds to care for the dog until he should return.

ARMY AND NAVY: Furloughs

Because of shipping difficulties and preparations for campaigns, the army will continue to grant furloughs on an individual basis rather than to whole units, Sen. Guy Gillette (Iowa) was advised by the war department.

With other midwestern senators, Gillette had queried the war department about the possibilities of furloughing the 34th division, which has been overseas for more than two years and is made up of men from Minnesota, South Dakota, North Dakota, Nebraska and Iowa.

While the war department admitted many empty cargo ships were returning to the U. S., it added that there was a problem of shore handling once the vessels reached here.

New Construction

Heralding an intensification of the war against the Japanese, the U. S. navy asked for 1 1/2 billion dollars for the construction of shore facilities, principally on the West coast.

Plans call for the building of fleet and cargo piers, supply depots, aviation training bases, harbor improvements and repair depots.

Expansion of present hospital facilities from 80,000 to 80,000 beds and provision for malaria recuperation centers also were included in the plans.

WITHOUT COUNTRY

A bill has been passed by the house which would make men who fed the United States to avoid the draft "men without a country." These expatriates would be forever barred from reentering the United States. The bill was sent to the senate for action.

The house immigration committee reported that many men have gone into Mexico to avoid induction. In the vicinity of El Paso, Texas, alone, more than 800 swabbers are known to have crossed the border.

Difficult Job Confronts New Democratic Leaders

Chairman Hannegan, Publicist Porter, Must Rebuild Party Machine; Answer GOP Attacks on Bureaucracy.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

Bombs one day will cease bursting, ships will sail the seas undisturbed by torpedoes, and cities will no longer be levelled, but politics knows no armistice.

The political forces are already laying down their preliminary barages.

Two weeks ago, I reported a visit to Republican headquarters up on Connecticut avenue and I attempted to outline the job that Chairman of the Republican National committee, Harrison Spangler, has laid out for himself.

Since then, I have been admitted into the front lines in the Democratic sector and now that I am back safe in limb and, I hope, sound in mind, I shall attempt to report the strategy that Field Marshal Hannegan's cohorts seem to be employing. Democratic Chairman Hannegan is a young man, who has served in the ranks and worked his way up from ward politics to City Chairman for St. Louis whence he leapt to the national chairmanship.

Just to give you a little of the atmosphere in which the Democratic GHQ operates, let me say a word about a gathering held recently in the Mayflower Hotel (which also houses the Democratic headquarters) just a few blocks down Connecticut avenue from the old residence that the GOP has taken over.

This gathering was the occasion of the retirement of Charley Michelson and the assumption of his duties as Number One publicity man for the Democratic committee by tall and personable Paul Porter, who said he felt as if somebody had put him down in Carnegie Hall, handed him Kreisler's violin, and said: "Now play."

That was a pat remark. We all know Charley Michelson. We all know Porter, who has been around Washington in one important job or another ever since the New Deal began dealing. And we know the typewriter of Charley Michelson is as hard for anyone but its possessor to play upon as Kreisler's fiddle would be. However, when I was up at Democratic headquarters a few days later, there was Charley apparently giving such aid and comfort and encouragement as might be needed from the wings.

One thing that makes it hard for the Democrats is that the Republicans are in a position to lift their copyright.

As one Democrat explained it to me, it is like this:

"Nobody will have a chance to do the job that Charley Michelson did for us from 1922 on until the election of FDR. The trouble is the Republicans are in a position to use his theme song adapted, of course, to suit their needs.

"They have already started to do to the administration just what Michelson did to Hoover. They have started to attack the war agencies and all of the administration departments and activities, exposing every blunder, playing up failures and trying to show that everything the people think are burdens and annoyances can be traced directly to the administration.

"And you know," this wise old veteran added, "what you write and say about how bad the other guy is makes a lot better reading than what you say about how good you think YOU are."

That is one obstacle Chairman Hannegan is up against, although the real responsibility falls on the shoulders of Michelson's successor, Paul Porter, and they are broad shoulders with a very good newspaper head between them.

But Hannegan has another, bigger problem. It is a job for a master mechanic. It is a repair job on the Democratic machine which is euphemistically designated in the language of party politics as the "organization."

Broken Machine

Hannegan is a young, energetic, open-faced Irishman, and it is a good thing he is young and energetic and optimistic because he has had to start his job of organization at scratch. Anyone at Democratic headquarters will admit that.

The reason is revealed in this simple chronology:

Jim Farley took over a pretty well running machine built up by Raskob. Farley did a splendid job of keeping it spinning until 1936. It was a hundred-per-cent-Roosevelt-for-President machine that far. Then Farley got other ideas—one, that two terms was enough for Roosevelt, and the other was that the next term, it would be Farley. The machine changed to a one-man dog which, for four years, would only come when its master spoke and its master was Farley. After the historic split, it fell apart except as the states kept their segments intact.

So all Mr. Hannegan has to do is to put it together again if he can find all the parts.

That is the first job as far as the Democratic offensive goes.

As to the defense, they feel they already have a pretty clear picture of the Republican war plans as revealed in activities to date.

They point to the campaign that won the Republicans another seat in the House of Representatives from the first Congressional district of Colorado. The Democratic candidate was a young war hero. His Republican opponent was a business man. He had a very simple line of attack. He hammered bureaucracy; he placed the present ills of the community squarely on the head of the administration—gas rationing, for instance.

The OPA Fight

The Democrats say this pattern—damning the administration's administering—has been revealed in congress too. The fight over the OPA is a current example. Minority Leader Joe Martin announced at the beginning that nobody wanted to do away with price regulation but that present regulation must be improved. What the Democrats expect is that the Republicans will drag out the hearings as long as possible, parade what they call "a chamber of horrors" before the people, attempting to associate all the irritations, limitations and restrictions which are annoying the public, on the administration.

There are other obstacles which are a product of the time which the Democrats have to meet. They are realistic about them.

One is the fourth term, of course. That may partially be offset by the "don't change horses in the middle of a stream" argument which is counted upon to influence a great number of people who think it might be disastrous to shift leadership, whether you like it or not, while the war is going on.

Another situation which the Democrats face and about which there is little or nothing to do is the great migration of voters who have failed to establish residence in their new homes or who are in the armed forces and will not be able to vote. As one Democrat put it to me: "We know we are going to suffer more than the Republicans from this change of residence business. It isn't the man and woman who lives in a Park Avenue penthouse who moves to San Diego to work in an airplane plant; it is the hill billy who has voted Democratic all his life who moves to a war boom town and forgets to register."

Campaign Weapons

"And," he added, "it is the soldier son of families which have been re-electing Roosevelt who isn't going to get his ballot in from Kwajalein atoll or Middlesex-on-sticks, Wangle-shire, Hereford, England."

Here are two main dishes the Democrats probably will offer the voter!

The first, I have already mentioned. Don't change horses . . .

The second can be encompassed in one word—work! You can call it security, or any other name that smells as sweet. But the Democrats count on the fact that the average American fears another depression, or at least temporary unemployment when the boys come home. The argument is, "They (the Democrats) did it before, they can do it again . . . the Republicans brought you panic, the New Deal got you through it."

Circumstances alter the best laid plans of mice, men and national committees, but that seems to be what they are shouting at along Connecticut avenue today.

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

Ohio's six State universities, through their Inter-University Council, have asked the director of education of Ohio, Kenneth S. Ray, to call a state conference on problems relating to the rehabilitation of returning servicemen.

U. S. civilian supplies of sugar will be 6 per cent less than 1943 consumption, according to WFA.

Under existing legislation all veterans of World War II who were citizens of Illinois when they entered military service are eligible for University of Illinois scholarships.

Berlin radio told Latin America that the German tourist movement in 1943 was only 8 per cent lower than in years before the war.

Elephants Predecessors to Modern Tanks in Warfare

Predecessor to the modern army tank troop was the Hindu elephant troop employed hundreds of years ago. The tribes of India mounted their "bow-and-arrow" warriors in boxes on the broad backs of mature elephants.

The strategy was to crush down footmen with a stamped charge. Wrote Tartar Emperor Kublak Khan: "Infantry and cavalry took fright when these elephants mounted by archers attacked."

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not see as nature intended—all to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, stiffness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.
Other signs of lagging or kidney disorder are sometimes burning, scanty, or too frequent urination.

Indian BEEF

by HAROLD CHANNING WIRE

W.N.U. RELEASE

LEW BURNET is trail boss of the Cross T herd which is being driven from Texas to the Indian agent at Ogallala. The year is 1875. TOM ARNOLD, owner, has been killed in a stampede. His will names Lew boss and owner until the cattle are sold, when STEVE and JOY are to receive their shares. After overcoming difficulties and hardships, they enter Indian territory and are attacked by a raiding party of Cheyennes. Their leader, Crazy Bear, kidnaps Joy, but Lew and WILLY NICKLE rescue her. Lew then forces the drive onward at a faster pace. CLAY MANNING, Joy's fiance, is strangely changed. He has lost his self-assurance and appears moody and surly.

CHAPTER XVI

On the far side of the quieted cattle, Lew saw Clay ride out with Joe Wheat and Neal Good on their first guard and passed him in the dark still later at the change of watches when he began his own second guard from eleven until two; so that his first sense, when Owl-Head Jackson's rough hand awakened him in the morning, was one of refusing what he heard.

Bent above him in the half-light, the cook was saying, "Lew! Hey there! Something's missin'. We're short a man."

He sat up in his blankets. Clay, his bedroll and his war bag were gone.

He still refused it. Drugged with a heavy sleep, he said irritably, "All right, all right. I see. Never mind." But afterward, dressed, he walked out through the picketed night-guard horses and found that Clay had taken the one he had ridden last. Following fresh tracks on the dewy grass, he traced them to the creek and across it and saw they were aimed for town.

All the camp was aroused and knew of it by the time he got back. Owl-Head's busy tongue was letting them know. He saw Joy crouched at the parted wagon flaps, her long dark hair sleep-tossed, a quilted blanket around her. She called to him, and going over, he spoke first, "It's all right now. Nothing's happened."

"But where has he gone?" Her voice was quick. Fear haunted the soft sleepiness of her eyes.

"Into town," he said. "I don't know why or anything about it. It's his own business."

Her hand came out to him and gripped his arm hard. "Lew, you can't let him! You've got to get him back. Send someone in," she begged. "You must!"

He spoke gently. "Joy, when a man's got something on his mind he has to work it out himself. Clay must know what he's doing. I'm going to leave him alone."

"And if anything happens—" She stared at him. "And I knew you might have helped—"

"I'll take the blame," he said. "I know." Here was what he had understood that night in the Wichita hills. Above everything else there would be this loyalty to Clay. He saw her eyes go beyond him. He turned his head.

Steve was coming toward them, walking fast, two high spots of color staining his flat cheeks. Quick and blunt, he said, "Lew, I'm going in to town," and wheeled on to saddle up.

He called out, "Wait a minute, kid!" following. "There's plenty of time. We're all going in tonight." He sharpened his stare into the nervous eyes. "You knew about this?"

"Not till just now, no." "Then you can wait." He started off and turned back. He felt no gentleness with Steve. "Don't you try to skin out either! I'll be on watch for that."

With the arrowhead shaped and grazing forward he rode back to Joe Wheat in the next swing position.

"Joe," he said, "I want you to work this out for me. You go in and see what Clay's up to. Get a line on the Open A and its men—you know the joints in their better than any of us."

"Guess I do." The old man grinned and rubbed his corded neck. "We'll cross the river," Lew finished, "and go into camp about five miles west of town. Get your news and come back there. That will be some time late this afternoon."

If he could have his own way he'd pass Dodge without a stop. Time was crowding him, a threat always over his head. They still had six weeks until September first, the delivery date in Ogallala, but also four hundred long miles. He'd like to pass Dodge secretly and keep on. Yet even if Clay had not spoiled that he knew it couldn't be done. No trail crew would stand for it. Dodge was a mecca, a safety valve.

The afternoon was almost spent, when he swung the point off again to bring the herd into a milling stop on an open flat and saw the cook's wagon and Joe Wheat arriving from town. Wheat came on waving a signal. He rode out to meet the man alone.

"Find him, Joe?" "He's there," Wheat nodded. "Been there all day. But I don't figure it. Splann's there and a fellow called Stoddard, said to be the Open A boss. First it was only them three and Clay was putting up some kind of talk. They kept north of the tracks, drinking. Dodge still has that dead line. They don't carry guns in that part. But along this afternoon five more Open A riders joined in. Clay's drunk and they've got him south of the dead line now. Lew, I don't know." Joe Wheat's usually sour face showed a deep concern. "Looks like they're crowding Clay into something. They've got him cornered and Clay's still a Cross T man. What do you think?"

He guessed old Joe was right. Clay was a Cross T man till he proved something else. He hadn't done that yet. "We'll ride," he said. "Better not waste any time."

In camp he told the men who had started to wash up for supper, "Don't stop to eat." Dripping heads came up as they stared at him. He didn't explain.

He wanted the best of this crew around him in town; some would have to stay here on guard. Owl-Head had already been in and showed it. There wasn't much of a meal cooking on the pit tonight. For the others to be left he picked out Moonlight Bailey, young Jim Hope and Steve. Getting Moonlight off alone, he said, "If Steve tries to skin out rope him. I don't want him in town at all."

He turned across to Joy's wagon, found the canvas closed tight and called inside, "We're going off for a little while. I'm leaving Steve here with you."

Her voice came out to him with an even quietness. "I'm riding into town when you do. Will you saddle a horse for me?"

"Later, maybe," he said. "Not now."

The flaps parted. She held them together around her head. She was dressing. Her hair was brushed back smoothly and knotted at the nape of her neck. "I'll go to a horse."

"Anything else?"

"Some trouble I heard with the Indian Supply Company's Open A. Bad?"

"Bad enough," he said. "That's why I've come to you. How many of the boys have you got in soak here?"

"Say!" Rachel put out his hand and moved an oil lamp on a table until it lighted a storeroom behind it. "Take a look."

Lew crossed to the doorway. Forty or fifty saddles were hung in there on pegs along the wall. He turned back, grinning a little. "They'll never learn, I guess. Well, you know the men. You round up ten of the best and have them back here inside of an hour. I'll pay their bills and give them jobs."

Pete Rachal's blue eyes studied him over their heavy pouches. "Cow work?"

"I've got enough men," he said, "to handle the cows. We're headed through to Ogallala. I don't figure to be stopped."

"That bad, is it?" "That bad."

"You come back," Rachel said. "I know the right ones for that."

"In an hour," he promised and went out in time to hear Charley Storms' rising complaint, "What's he holding us back for?" And then, "Hey, Lew, how about some fun?"

"Charley," he said, "too bad, but you'll have to wait." Only Joe Wheat knew fully what they had come in for. He got into his saddle. "We're looking for Clay, Joe, where was it you saw him last?"

"They'd worked the Lady Gay and Mrs. Gore's," Wheat said, "and were drinking at Dutch Jake's when I left."

"Likely moved on from there by this time. We'll comb the plaza first."

He led out between the livery and the depot, entering at once into the open plaza two blocks wide and four long.

Here in this dusty compound all the visible life of Dodge was centered, hemmed in by the high-fronted buildings with their plank walks and wooden awnings running from end to end.

He knew the horse Clay had ridden and watched for it among the three hundred or more saddle animals lined solidly along the graved hitching rails. In the brighter fans of light from the windows of Delmonico's Restaurant, a dozen barbershops, The Alamo and The Alhambra saloons he watched the brown faces of men. They jammed the plank walk shoulder to shoulder in their moving stream.

Clay's big shape was not in this crowd, and past the Long Branch Corner, boasting the longest bar in the world and fifty gambling tables, he said, "We might as well go across."

But the hitching rails were mostly vacant, and Joe Wheat said, "I guess he's gone, Lew. This is where I saw his horse."

He nodded. "I'll take a look." Men drifted through these places, tried others and came back again. He got down from his saddle and walked along, peering over the bathing doors. Dutch Jake's place was empty now. In those farther on only a few drunks were propped against the bars. He had almost reached the corner, with open ground and the river crossing at right angles beyond, when he passed a man standing as motionless as a post against an unlighted wall of the saloon front; passed him and halted and turned back to look at him again.

Instantly the dark figure sprang out and ran the width of the street to a saddled horse. He hadn't seen the man's face, but it was plainly someone stationed on lookout duty.

He didn't look and still held back his question while they entered the high, square lobby and found she could get a ground-floor room.

But he took her arm as a Negro porter picked up her bag and started off. "What are you going to do?"

She turned to face him. Her lips were pale. "Nothing. Find Clay. Tell him I'm here."

He looked at her, filled with a wretched pity for that belief, that all he had to do was tell Clay she was here. "All right," he said. "I'll let him know."

Outside and mounted, there was one other thing he wanted to do first. He turned into a cross street and rode two blocks to Railroad Avenue, turned down that toward the river and reached a section of warehouses, the depot, a huge barn with corrals sprawled behind it—Rachal Brothers' livery.

He said once more, "Wait here," and entered the livery office.

Pete Rachal was inside, sunk deep in a bridle cowhide chair, a man grown fat and wealthy now, and yet an outlaw once whose rustled herds had pioneered the trail to Dodge. He was a Texan who could never go back. But any Texas cowboy, cleaned of his money, needn't go hungry here nor sell his horse and saddle. Pete Rachal was their hock shop and bank.

He lifted a stubby hand with its thumb missing and let it fall. "Burnet, how are you? Heard your Cross T was getting in."

"How'd you hear that?" "Horseback information. Someone dropped it off."

"Anything else?" "Some trouble I heard with the Indian Supply Company's Open A. Bad?"

"Bad enough," he said. "That's why I've come to you. How many of the boys have you got in soak here?"

"Say!" Rachal put out his hand and moved an oil lamp on a table until it lighted a storeroom behind it. "Take a look."

Lew crossed to the doorway. Forty or fifty saddles were hung in there on pegs along the wall. He turned back, grinning a little. "They'll never learn, I guess. Well, you know the men. You round up ten of the best and have them back here inside of an hour. I'll pay their bills and give them jobs."

Pete Rachal's blue eyes studied him over their heavy pouches. "Cow work?"

"I've got enough men," he said, "to handle the cows. We're headed through to Ogallala. I don't figure to be stopped."

"That bad, is it?" "That bad."

"You come back," Rachel said. "I know the right ones for that."

"In an hour," he promised and went out in time to hear Charley Storms' rising complaint, "What's he holding us back for?" And then, "Hey, Lew, how about some fun?"

"Charley," he said, "too bad, but you'll have to wait." Only Joe Wheat knew fully what they had come in for. He got into his saddle. "We're looking for Clay, Joe, where was it you saw him last?"

"They'd worked the Lady Gay and Mrs. Gore's," Wheat said, "and were drinking at Dutch Jake's when I left."

"Likely moved on from there by this time. We'll comb the plaza first."

He led out between the livery and the depot, entering at once into the open plaza two blocks wide and four long.

Here in this dusty compound all the visible life of Dodge was centered, hemmed in by the high-fronted buildings with their plank walks and wooden awnings running from end to end.

He knew the horse Clay had ridden and watched for it among the three hundred or more saddle animals lined solidly along the graved hitching rails. In the brighter fans of light from the windows of Delmonico's Restaurant, a dozen barbershops, The Alamo and The Alhambra saloons he watched the brown faces of men. They jammed the plank walk shoulder to shoulder in their moving stream.

Clay's big shape was not in this crowd, and past the Long Branch Corner, boasting the longest bar in the world and fifty gambling tables, he said, "We might as well go across."

But the hitching rails were mostly vacant, and Joe Wheat said, "I guess he's gone, Lew. This is where I saw his horse."

He nodded. "I'll take a look." Men drifted through these places, tried others and came back again. He got down from his saddle and walked along, peering over the bathing doors. Dutch Jake's place was empty now. In those farther on only a few drunks were propped against the bars. He had almost reached the corner, with open ground and the river crossing at right angles beyond, when he passed a man standing as motionless as a post against an unlighted wall of the saloon front; passed him and halted and turned back to look at him again.

Instantly the dark figure sprang out and ran the width of the street to a saddled horse. He hadn't seen the man's face, but it was plainly someone stationed on lookout duty.

He didn't look and still held back

Hedda Hopper: Looking at HOLLYWOOD

A MODEST four room bungalow on a Hollywood side street houses a Hollywood phenomenon—an actor who spurns stardom. Living in bachelor untidiness, Barry Fitzgerald at 50 is taking piano lessons and trying his utmost to duck and squirm from under the newest Hollywood ack-ack that has him as its target because he all but stole Bing Crosby's newest picture, "Going My Way?"

Hollywood has "discovered" Fitzgerald—and how that tickles this Irishman's sense of irony!

"That makes four times I've been discovered," he chortled as he plopped into a bamboo porch chair to try to take the man apart for the clinic that cannot believe that this fantastic city called Hollywood can produce one so impervious to flattery, so uncares for the fat financial awards stardom spawns, and so utterly, utterly out of step with the rest of the boys and girls who march in the parade, of the Rock Candy Mountaineers.

Getting to Be a Habit

"The first discovery was back in 1915 in Dublin when I sneaked into the extra ranks of the Abbey Players and in two weeks won a speaking part, to wit, 'This way, sire.' Then London discovered me. New York did likewise in 1931. And now, almost 30 years after the Dublin debut with a spear, I am again discovered. Under the yardstick of values, I suppose, none but the Hollywood discovery can be considered official. I'm not excited—I'm amused."

Fitzgerald is a gnomelike little man with shaggy eyebrows that defy gravity, training, or barber shop calderies. He still has a sufficient growth of blond hair, running wild on the lower 40 and fallow on the crown. He has deep-set quartz blue eyes. He squints at you, but the eyes are lighted with laughter.

He loves caps—old ones. He fondles his motorcycle with loving hands. He has two suits of clothes and 11 pairs of overalls. He keeps no clippings. He answers no fan mail. And, because he frequents only the unknown byways of the Spanish section of Los Angeles, he is free of autograph hunters. He seldom attends movies and never goes to see those in which he has a part.

A Tree and Romance Grow

Constance Dowling gets one of those juicy parts in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" which Ell Kazan is directing. Incidentally, their romance is mighty warm. . . . Metro got a star in 14-year-old Jane Powell. She cleans up in "Song of the Open Road," which stars Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy.

Marjorie Massow, former cashier at Twentieth Century's commissary, plays the lead with Phil Baker in "Take It or Leave It."

Irving Cummings has gone overboard on a story Mark Kelly and Mal St. Clair wrote called "Beau McGurk's Girl." It's a natural for Jean Arthur.

They Even Switch Sex

"California," written for Bing Crosby, has been rewritten for Betty Hutton and Katina Paxinou. That should take a bit of doing. It's to be a musical in color showing San Francisco in the gold rush days—the old wineries, mission, and the padres—with Harry Tugend producing. Sounds as though they were going to make Paxinou a kind of female sheriff. And an inner voice asks, "Would that be bad?"

Metro hopes Jackie Miles, the "Blitz from the Bronx," will be funny enough to step into Red Skelton's shoes. He'll be in "Anchors Aweigh."

David Yields Ingrid

Ingrid Bergman is being borrowed from David Selznick, after he said he wouldn't lend her, to star in "Olympic" for Charles Brackett and William Wilder at Paramount. If anyone can put this picture over, Ingrid can. The screen version will probably bear no relation to the stage play, which I remember vividly. The late Laura Hope Crews stole all the honors by smoking a big cigar. . . . Lee Patrick, a fine actress, plays Greer Garson's daughter in "Mrs. Parkington." . . . Warners were lucky to sign up Eve Arden for "Cover Girl."

Newcomer Doing Well

Metro wants Keitt Frings' "God's Front Porch" as a starring vehicle for Bob Walker. He'd be great as "Finky." . . . Attention, Harry Cohn: Keep your eye on Marc Platt, who's dancing opposite Rita Hayworth and teaching her routines for her next picture. He was a featured dancer in "Oklahoma!" He's a comer. . . . Carole Landis is being loaned by Twentieth for another picture. . . . Mary Anderson, so good in "Lifeboat," goes into "Family Album."

Blast Tore Up Street; Workman Did Likewise

The talkative workman was holding forth to an admiring audience in the village store. He was explaining that even in his job, which people might think dull enough, there was sometimes quite a lot of excitement.

"Why I can remember once when a gas explosion tore up a main street where I was working. Huge stones were hurled into the air, buildings trembled and debris rained all about me."

"And what did you do," expectantly asked one of the store's customers.

"Me?" replied the workman, "I quickly regained my composure and tore up a side street."

One thing a soldier is afraid of is a display of emotion. That's why his slang so often sounds derogatory. For example, he refers to the silver eagles on his colonel's shoulder straps as "buzzards." But when he speaks of his favorite cigarette, he says: "Camels. They're first with men in the Army as well as with Sailors, Marines, and Coast Guardsmen. (According to actual sales records in service men's stores.) And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

ENDS 5-YEAR SIEGE OF CONSTIPATION!

"Now as Regular as Anyone!" Says H. C. Durand

Here's a sincere, unsolicited letter every disappointed "dosor" will want to read:

"I'm 82 years old, and have been constipated over 5 years, going as much as 4 days without a movement. Pills and laxatives would relieve me only for the day I took them. Next day I'd be as bad as ever. Then I tried KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. Am now on my second box, and as regular as anyone could want, thanks to regular use of your wonderful product!"

Mr. H. C. Durand, 221 N. Columbus Ave., Freeport, Long Island, N. Y.

Sounds like "magic," doesn't it? Yet, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN really can, and does, get at a common cause of constipation—lack of certain dietary "cellulose" elements! That's because it is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements—which help the friendly colonic flora fluff up and prepare the colonic wastes for easy, natural elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative! Doesn't work by "sweeping out!" It is simply a gentle-acting, "regulating" food!

If your constipation is of this type, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN or several ALL-BRAN muffins daily. Drink plenty of water. See if you don't find welcome relief! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

New Mexico Magazine Takes No New Readers

Santa Fe.—Effective March 23 New Mexico Magazine halted acceptance of new subscriptions to the publication, George Fitzpatrick, editor, announced.

The action was taken in order to comply with a War Production Board order which limits the Magazine's quota of paper in 1944 to 75 per cent of its estimated requirement for the year.

"As a further means of decreasing the amount of paper used, the Magazine will be entirely withdrawn from newsstand sales throughout the State, beginning with the May issue," Fitzpatrick said. "The April issue appears as usual on the newsstand this week."
