"We're buying one," yelled youngsters at the Whitler School, Sioux Falls, South Dakota, when they saw the jeep above. Actually they expect to have bought enough war stamps and bonds by the middle of December to pay for two jeeps for the armed forces. To the People of this Community

Five billion dollars of the 14 billion dollars our country needs to press the war against our enemies must come from individual investors. That sounds like, and is, a lot of money. Actually, success or failure of the Sixth War Loan is up to each individual American. Every war loan has been oversubscribed because Americans by the millions have shared its responsibility. Americans such as you have recognized the need of extra War Bond purchases over and above their normal payroll savings.

There is no such thing as a little fellow in a War Bond drive. Your War Bond purchases, multiplied by the War Bond purchases of your friends and neighbors, become fighting power which saves lives of Americans on the battlefronts and brings us nearer our common objective.

Capt. Frank W. Shelton From Overseas

Somewhere Netherlands East Indies, Nov. 28, 1944.

Dear Mr. Burke:

My folks send me clippings of your paper every once in awhile, and get quite a bit of news about good old Lincoln County.

Since my last visit there, a little over a year ago, I have traveled quite a bit from Sydney to Townsville, Australia, New Guinea and now here. It has been quite educational, plenty of hard work at times, and not near as tough over here as you would think.

I have been on some amphibious landings, met very little resistance and came out in good shape.

We have been getting raids by Tojo and the fireworks is beautiful especially when we see a plane blossom into flame and fall.

Our food is very good in comparison to what it could be, fresh meat every once in a while fresh eggs occasionally, plenty of cigarettes and candy. Then corned beef and dehydrated vegetables are our main stay. We had ice cream-day before yesterday and Turkey with trimmings today. Oh yes, I forgot to mention we get good old United States beer about every two months.

As long as we have to fight our loss, there is no place for me except in the middle of it, but the day can't be too near to return home and settle down for awhile.

Give my regards to all. Sincerely, Frank W. Shelton.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS
By PAUL MALLON

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

CHINESE CABINET CHANGE WILL AID WAR
WASHINGTON.— All the news from China has been bad lately, excepting Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's thorough shaking out of his cabinet.

From the inside, it appears that the generalissimo, having been instrumental in ousting our General Stilwell and thus having saved face with his own people for the military failures, is now getting ready to cooperate more closely with the other United Nations. At least that is what might be termed the inner official view here.

The motives behind the Stilwell withdrawal, unexplained at the time, thus now become more fully evident. The whole panoply of mystifying news from that front thus becomes apparent. Chiang has always been suspicious of the Chinese Communists.

While they are fighting on his side with their armies far off in the north, he actually has had soldiers detached from his own war effort on the Japanese front to watch them. True, the Communists have not been much of a deterrent to the Japs. While some published estimates of their strength run as high as 300,000, numbers are worthless in gauging any Chinese fighting forces.

No one knows exactly how many troops the Communies have, except that there have been sufficient to repel a few Jap attacks. Many whom they count as soldiers are actually farmers who run to action in an emergency. Others are untrained civilians, and the term "bandit" has been applied to a few in the past.

Now by kicking from his cabinet the strongest anti-Communist elements, Chiang is falling in line with the ideas of officialdom here for more coherent action on that front. However, the change can be interpreted as more political than military so far.

Improved Leadership.
Those who know the new war minister say they expect his leadership to bring some "improvement" in Chinese fighting, but very few people in this country appreciate the difficulties he is facing.

Frankly, it must now be said that no satisfactory Chinese military effort has developed anywhere lately. The action on the Salween river front may be an exception, but there we trained the officers and men. It is time to admit also that China is mostly in Jap hands. All of the industry and much of the agriculture went long ago. The seacoast is closed. Most of the internal railroads are controlled by the Japs.

We are today flying in from India through the only contact the Chinese have with the outside world more materials of war than were carried on the Burma road before the Japs cut it.

But our planes flying in a load of gasoline for instance probably consume as much as they can carry as a load. The limitations upon our assistance are therefore evident, and likely to continue indefinitely, although we have greatly increased our supplies in the last five months. Then again we must recognize that her armies are sometimes led by what we used to call "provincial war lords," many of whom are politicians not strictly supporting the Chungking government.

The Chinese internal economic distribution system has not improved much since before the war, when news of vast starvation was a world sensation almost annually. Inflation is unbelievable, and indeed most authorities suspect China cannot survive financially even if peace comes soon. Certainly the central government is none too sure of itself.

But as these internal inefficiencies, dissensions and weaknesses are native to the Chinese, so also has been their cold, valorous spirit of resistance against the conqueror. While the difficulties practically amount now to internal demoralization, they are not likely to lead to a collapse of the fight on that front.

The Jap drive in China luckily is limited. All advice here prove rather conclusively that the Jap strategy is directed only toward cutting central China off from Burma—if it can be done. But even if this mission is accomplished, they will then have long lines of communication running back to the coast.

Tighter Competition After War Demands Soil Fertility Be Maintained at High Level

Elements Drawn From Soil by Bumper Crops Should Be Replaced

What will the coming transition from war to peacetime economy mean to American agriculture?

That question has been raised with increasing frequency not only by dirt farmers but by so-called agricultural economists, too, as Uncle Sam's armies and fleets have won smashing victories overseas and as prayed-for peace becomes a closer possibility.

One thing is clear. When the war ends, the farmer's situation will be long as the war lasts. Food needs of our Allies and liberated regions may keep it quiescent for a while even after Germany cracks up. But in some future day it will become a worrisome reality.

Reports from liberated countries indicate that the food supply situation there is less acute than had been anticipated. France, the Balkans, Poland and even eventually Germany may require less food from our supply than we had been counting on. Stocks of goods in Great Britain are reported to be 5,500,000 tons, against a normal 1,500,000 tons. These reserves have been built up substantially from lend-lease shipments out of this country. If these were reduced to say, 2,000,000 tons when the war ends, there would be left about 3,500,000 for relief. Surveys by the Stanford Food Research institute support the belief from the army, they will be able to work more land than hitherto.

Homesteads for Soldiers.
"The government is already planning to give homesteads to servicemen. When this is done, the owner of an expensive farm will be in a tough spot to produce crops in competition with the man who has no capital investment in the soil portion of his food factory."

"The only way the American farmer can successfully compete either in domestic or world markets in postwar years, is by producing crops at a lower cost per unit. In such a program, the steady use of mixed fertilizer containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potash will be an enormously important factor. More bushels per acre can, and will mean more food from less land. It will also mean more good food per acre to help build healthier human beings and farm animals in the future."

The need for building up the soil's productivity is widely recognized as a postwar "must." No less an authority than Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard recently declared: "Now is the time for farmers to worry about soil fertility."

In answer to any farmer's statement that "My yields are better than ever," Secretary Wickard counters with this question:

"Ask yourself how much better machinery and better plant varieties have had to do with those increases. Over much of our best farm land, better yields are the most pronounced cause of accelerated soil depletion — a steady decline that most farmers can't see yet, but which could bring a nationwide crisis in soil fertility."

"No great nation can afford to neglect the productivity of its soil. The problems of abundance, baffling as they seem, are a challenge. They can be solved; and their solution will be the gateway to a better way of living. But to the problems of steadily declining production there is no answer. That pathway eventually leads to decline and ruin. It not only is impossible to produce abundantly on depleted soils; it is almost impossible to produce efficiently."

Huge Crops Robbed Soil.
"After four years of record-breaking production for war, farmers have special need for checking up on their soil resources and for repairing the effects of depletion."

Such a checking up would in most cases reveal that the soil's fertility level is lower than it was in prewar years. Fertility has been one of the necessary casualties in the battle to meet wartime food production goals. Peak-load croppings have taken a heavy toll of the soil's resources of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash.

Rehabilitation of the soil is thus a necessity, if the fertility level is to be built up and the productive capacity of the land maintained in the competitive postwar period.

All things considered, the cost of plowing, seeding and cultivating a

Get It Early!

"The War Food administration again calls on farmers to accept delivery of their fertilizers during the winter and early spring, when the manufacturing plants can make delivery most easily, and to store it in their barns and sheds for use when needed." P. H. Groggins, chief of the chemicals and fertilizers branch, advises.

"The individual farmer can assure himself of sufficient fertilizer by placing his orders as far as possible ahead of the season of use. If all farmers will do this, plants can be kept working at the capacity permitted by available labor. Continued maximum production and use of fertilizers is necessary in support of the war food program."

field is the same whether the crop yield be large or small. Therefore, the farmer who is able to get big yields at a relatively low production cost is the one who will make money when competition is keen.

Attention to essentials is, of course, important in any soil improvement plan for postwar years. In addition to good rotation, the growing of deep-rooted legumes, contour plowing where necessary, and the return of manure and crop refuse to the soil, the use of mixed fertilizer is a No. 1 necessity. Quality as well as high yield will be important factors in the postwar farm market. Experience has demonstrated that fertilized crops are of higher quality and yield than unfertilized ones.

Holla Hopper: Looking at HOLLYWOOD

EVERY producer of musicals in Hollywood is trying to equal Flo Ziegfeld's record, for no one person ever discovered more beautiful girls than Flo.

Flo picked 'em for his Broadway shows, but sooner or later—it was usually sooner—the studios signed 'em up on contracts and made 'em screen stars.

Strangely, too, many of those luscious blonde, brunette, and titan stunners ended their careers tragically. Seems the candle of life burned too brightly for them, as most of the lovely moths finally burned their wings on the flame of fame.

Irene Dunne, incidentally, is as lucky in private life as she is professionally. She married Dr. Francis Griffin in 1927; they have one adopted daughter, Mary Frances, and they're all very happy, thank you.

A Hard Worker
Paulette Goddard is another who started as a Ziegfeld girl. Paulette was in "Rio Rita." She came here as a blonde showgirl to appear in the line of some of the early Eddie Cantor musical films. Paulette was ambitious—still is. She married Charlie Chaplin, appeared as his leading lady in "Modern Times" and "The Great Dictator," and prospered even more after she left his board and pictures. Paulette is currently under contract to Paramount and is married to Actor Burgess Meredith.

Virginia Bruce still appears in pictures. Virginia is wealthy in her own right, but her life has had many tragic moments. Her marriage with John Gilbert ended on the rocks. They had one child. Her happy marriage to Director J. Walter Ruben ended in despair when he died suddenly. They had a child, too.

From Tears to Cheers
Fannie Brice, currently making one of her rare appearances before the movie cameras in "Ziegfeld Polles," is a big radio name through her Baby Snooks character. Fannie was never a beauty, but she soared to fame as a comedy star. Although Fannie's career has been perennial, her private life hasn't been all orchids and ermine. She broke her heart over the man she married, Nicky Arnstein, when he went to jail. She was once Mrs. Billy Rose, but that didn't work either.

Gorgeous Olive Thomas was in several shows for Flo, and later starred in silent pictures for Lewis J. Selznick, David's father.

Olive married Jack Pickford, Mary's kid brother, and died tragically of an overdose of sleeping powders in a Paris hospital. Pretty, dainty Marilyn Miller starred in "Sally" and "Sunny" on the stage before she repeated those successes for the cameras. Marilyn, too, married Jack Pickford, and the ceremony caused a breach with Flo. The marriage didn't last long, ended in divorce. Marilyn was still a star when she died.

Never a Dull Moment
Ina Claire is best known as a stage star of drawing room comedy, but Ina was a Ziegfeld lass 'way back in "Follies of 1916." Ina's off-stage-and-screen life has been tempestuous, and several of her marriages have ended in divorces. Now Ina is happily wed to a San Francisco lawyer.

Billie Burke, who was not only Flo's wife but the star of one of his musicals (strangely, a flop) called "Annie Dear," still plays dizzy matrons in films, also on the air. Billie's stage career goes back to Charles Frohman.

Lupe Velez, who made so many "Mexican Spitfire" films, was in "Hotcha." The vehement Velez was married to Johnny Weismuller and divorced after a tempestuous period of marital strife.

There are dozens and dozens of "Follies" graduates, and whose lives are happy, gay and successful, others whose lives were tied up in eventual disappointment and defeat. It seems sad that so many beautiful girls who had so much of this world's goods ended by really having so little happiness.

Ideas Not for Privates
You could cast quite a play from the gang who gave Pvt. Robert Porterfield a surprise shipping-out party. Those who sent him off were the Zachary Scotts, Jack Lees, Gregory Pecks, William Princes, John Hodiak, Annie Baxter, Marjorie Main, Selena Royle, James Hilton, Margaret Wycherly, and Mrs. John Craven. Bob's been planning post-war veteran theater groups all over the country. It seems those ideas should come from a brass hat. So he's being shipped to Texas.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Demand for military tests has had a strong influence on the supply of cotton needed for the manufacture of tires and other rubber items.

Accurate tire inflation means more now than ever before. Too much pressure encourages impact bruise; too little causes excess flexing and heat—a heavy mileage waster.

A compliment to the technicians responsible for the development of synthetic rubber is the fact that tires and tubes required by the U. S. Ordnance Department are about 85 per cent converted to a substitute for natural rubber.

KEEP BUYING WAR BONDS

To the People of this Community

"Sad little personal belongings are strewn all over there, bitter sands." Thus wrote Ernie Pyle from a beachhead in Normandy.

More than 2,000 bundles of these belongings, carefully collected and packed by the armed forces, are sent monthly from a Kansas City depot to homes throughout America. That's the current price of victory over enemies who forced this war upon you. These "souvenirs" are enveloped with heartaches and drenched with tears.

How long this tragic depot stays in business is up to you. Every second prolongs the slaughter. Every extra $100 War Bond in the Sixth War Loan helps to shorten the fighting. Can you do less than to lend your money for speedy victory?

To the People of this Community

The Victory Volunteer goes by many names in the Sixth War Loan. Sometimes he or she is called a Gallant, sometimes a Blue Star Brigadier or perhaps a Bondholder.

Remember one thing: you do not do them a favor when you buy an extra War Bond. You help your country, your fighting relatives and friends and yourself. The Victory Volunteer gives his time and his energy in a great cause. He or she makes it easy for you to do your duty by buying at least one extra $100 War Bond over and above your regular Bond purchases.

DOG'S EXERCISE

Regular Walks Will Keep Him And Owner In Shape

Coordinate your own exercise with that of your dog and you'll both be the better off for it, advises the Gaines Dog Research Center, New York City.

The dog's health requires sunshine and fresh air as much as yours does. Swimming or jumping is wonderful for him if he enjoys it, but regular walking will keep him in good condition. Regularity in exercising is most important. It is far better to take him half a dozen blocks each day than half a dozen miles on Sundays. Extended walks should not be undertaken immediately after meals, and he should always be taken out on his leash. If he tends to put on weight, reduce his food intake or step up his exercise. If it is impossible for you to give him daily walking exercise, a device like that shown in the illustration will provide it for him in complete safety.

Not only your dog's size, but his temperament and the food he consumes have a bearing on the amount of exercise he should have. In pre-meral days the dog was forced to take a tremendous amount of exercise merely in finding his food. Under today's domesticated conditions he cannot possibly digest either the quantity or quality of food that he could in his wild state. More authorities are leaning to the belief that today's red meat alone is not a suitable diet for the dog. Better for him are the prepared, well balanced high quality dog meals, rich in all essential food elements, to be found on the shelves of the corner grocery. A dog fed on such food receives complete nourishment and requires nothing else save water.

ROPE DEVICE GIVES DOG AMPLE EXERCISE

To the People of this Community

GI Joe in his Pacific trenches, maybe he is your brother, husband, sweetheart or friend—is listening in on you today.

He knows you have a date with a Victory Volunteer, a neighbor with a War Bond order in his or her hand. The two of you may talk it over at your work bench, in your office or in your home. Will GI Joe pick up purchases like "Why do they have to have more money?" "We'll lick Japan with one hand tied behind our back?" GI Joe counts on you to have enough sense and knowledge of the facts about the Pacific war to back him up in his foxhole. The extra $100 War Bond you buy today is a War Bond with the most power. It gives GI Joe the support he must have at the time when he needs it most. It tells Tokyo you're in the fight to the finish.
