C. E. Batterby was here from White Oaks Wednesday.

Miss Thelma White of White Oaks was a shopper here Tuesday.

Billy Dolan killed his deer the second day of the hunting season.

Wiley Davis of his ranch near Capitan made this office a pleasant call Tuesday.

Ranger David Stauffer of the Gallinas district was here the last of the week.

John Dolan is home from Chicago, where he attended business college the past term.

Ranger Walter Hackelman of the Capitan district was here on business the last of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Jarrett of the Jarrett ranch near Claunch were visitors in town Wednesday.

Mrs. Lulu Lewis and son Rex of the Lewis ranch at the head of the Malpais were here the last of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maxwell of the Maxwell ranch near Claunch were business visitors here the last of the week.

Doc Hickman of the El Capitan Service Station was here on business Monday, making this office a friendly call while in town.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Jenkins, long residents of this section, are now in Dalhart, Texas, according to word received from them last week.

Mrs. T. C. Key, granddaughter Roberta Key, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Young of Capitan were here visiting the Ernest Key family Saturday.

Mrs. J. Wesley Lee of Corona was in town Monday, leaving for Roswell to spend a few days on business, after which she will return to Corona the middle part of this week.

Welch Morgan, Sr. and son Welch Morgan, Jr. of their ranch in the Capitan country were here on business Wednesday and made this office a pleasant call while in town.

Mrs. Wm. Cathey, a small daughter and A. W. Drake of the Ancho country were shoppers in town Saturday; Mr. Drake making this office a friendly visit while here.

In the same mail, came a letter from Mrs. C. B. Ellsworth of Grand Rapids, Michigan. Mrs. Ellsworth will be remembered as the former Miss Robbie Taylor, sister to Mrs. Grace Baker of the Paden's Drug Store.

We have a nice letter from Mrs. Albert Wood, formerly of Ocura, Mrs. Wood said that the country around St. David is well stocked and the grazing is in excellent condition. They like their new home, but often wish they were here again. Their son is in the armed service and stationed at Pearl Harbor. They send their best regards to Lincoln county friends.

In the Service

Deway Stokes, jr., is a Lieutenant in the army.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Hightower of Ancho were visitors here Wednesday. The Hightowers have a son and son-in-law in the service.

Meyer Barnett is recovering from a recent illness. The Barnetts have a son Ben in the Navy.

Navy Petty officer Otto Prehm is home to stay. The last word we had from him was from the Navy hospital in San Diego. Glad to see you, Amigo.

Pvt. Egnat Prehm, his brother, is a Jap prisoner, along with Pvt. Lorenzo Mirabal.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan, McKinley and family have returned from Los Angeles, where they had been for about one year. Their son, George, who is in the Navy and somewhere in the South Pacific, he met Bob Shafer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Shafer. The boys were glad to meet each other so far away from home.

Word has been received by Mrs. Ella Sprinkel to the effect that her son Captain Ernest Sprinkel, Commanding officer of the Lancaster, Pa., WAC recruiting station, gave the WAC flag to Miss Ruth Sprinkel, she being the first woman to be sworn in at that place. Capt. Sprinkel was here a short time ago visiting his mother and sisters Miss Ruth Sprinkel and Mrs. J. C. Hutchinson.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maxwell of their ranch near Claunch were visitors here and from them we learned that one of their sons Frank, Jr., had entered the army at Fort Bliss. His elder brother Staff Sgt. Warden Maxwell has been in the service for the past four years, and is also at Fort Bliss. When Frank took him to the dressing quarters and saw that he had a perfect fit of his uniform. This is the first time we have known of a brother in the service dressing up one of his near kin with a uniform.

Get your gun cleaned up and attend the big turkey shoot at Capitan Sunday. What's more, you might get your turkey on the first shot. Then you'll have a good roast for the Roper's Thanksgiving Day, which is, as it always should be, on November 30. That's the reason their ad read, the Sunday before Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. J. Wesley Lee of Corona informs this office that on or about Dec. 1, she will open a hotel at Corona and the name will be the "Lee Vista." Due notice will be given at a later date, announcing the opening. Carrizozo visitors to our neighboring town will please take notice and give the "Lee Vista" a call.

E. Bello, prominent ranchman of Claunch, did not go deer hunting until Nov. 17, but on that day, he went down to Picocho and had not gone but one quarter of a mile from the highway when he sighted a fine young four-pointer and brought him down. We know it was young, because he brought us a fine roast from the kill.

Woman's Club

The Carrizozo Woman's Club met Friday, Nov. 17th at Community Center at 5 p. m. with Pres. Mrs. Norman presiding.

Two verses of America were sung with Miss White leading and Mrs. Burns at piano. Salute to the Flag was given. Miss White stated the Red Cross quota for knitted socks in the county was 100 pairs and Mrs. Nellie Branum had knitted 70 pairs.

A note was read from Mrs. Sale thanking the club members for her "Sunshine Box".

Miss White as Child Welfare chairman, stated that in Dec., or Jan., 9 crippled children from Lincoln County were to be taken to the clinic at Roswell. She suggested the club pay for their lunches.

The Red Cross had asked for 144 kit bags from the county. The club voted to make and fill 25 bags.

It was voted to have piano tuned.

Announcement made of 8th war bond drive starting Monday, Nov. 20th.

It was stated that the club should be considering a project of a circulating library.

The December 15th meeting to be a party. Each one present to bring a gift costing $1 or less.

Mrs. J. P. Turner, program chairman, "Flag of the United States" (Elizette).

Song, Club, Star Spangled Banner.

Talk on Flag-Courtesy, Rev. John Loudin.

Song, Club, "Flag of the Free." The hostesses, Mesdames Walker, Stover, Tiffany, West, served refreshments of doughnuts, cookies, mints, cider and coffee.

Mrs. E. S. Burns, Reporter pro tem.

Mr. and Mrs. George McDonald came up from the ranch yesterday to meet Miss Lucy Bugge, who came over on the Roswell bus from Dexter, where she is teaching school. Miss Bugge will be a guest at the McDonald home for the week end.

Give Gifts to Yanks Who Gave

It is the earnest hopes of the American Legion and Auxiliary that every service man and woman wounded, sick, or disabled to be given Christmas gifts through this channel this year. On his radio program, Eddie Cantor is urging listeners to cooperate to make this "The World's Greatest Christmas Party". Our slogan is "Give Gifts to Yanks Who Gave." Make Christmas Day brighter and happier for those on the Purple Heart circuit.

Every person in the community is asked to give a Christmas package for a wounded service man or woman. The complete job of assembling the gifts, the distribution and delivery is the task of the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary. All local department stores are cooperating in this program. Articles suggested are books, stationery, games, toiletries and things to wear, but foodstuffs are not acceptable. Anyone donating a gift may enclose their personal card.

Select your gifts as soon as possible and give it to your American Legion Post or Unit. Mrs. Ball at Titworth Co. and Mrs. Exling at Murphy Merc. will be glad to take care of your gift boxes. Please have them in either place by December 1st.

Respectfully,
The American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary,
Captain, N. M.

Work begins today on the refrigeration project by the city administration.

Lieut. Col. Truman Spencer is home from the South Pacific, visiting the home folks on his 30-day leave of absence. Col. Spencer has distinguished himself in various ways in overseas service which again proves that if you leave a ny task for the Carrizozo boys to do, the work will be well done.

Out-of-the-Ordinary

(A. L. Burke)

History has never recorded a like occurrence as the following Time magazine accused President Roosevelt with taking the name of the Lord in vain when he voted at the recent election. The President came back by saying that he did not take the Lord's name in vain, but admitted that in closing the curtain which sets the voting machine to working, failed to function at which he remarked, quote, "The damned thing won't work". This is still America.

It was on the night of Nov. 10, that Mrs. John Runyan of Butte City, Montana, awakened her husband, telling him that burglars were in the house. At that time, John had something over $1000 laid away in one of the dresser drawers to take to the banker the next morning. The burglars overlooked the money and took his box of cigarettes. After they had gone, John was surprised to find the money untouched, but bemoaned the loss of the cigarettes, because it was the last box in town.

One of the most unusual things of the political campaign comes from Fairfield, Idaho. Ray G. Jones, Republican nominee for the office of Probate Judge against W. G. Packham, Democrat. In his campaigning, the Republican boasted his opponent in this manner: "Ladies and gentlemen, my opponent is a good citizen, an honest man and therefore I heartily recommend him to the office I am running for." When the votes were counted the Republican received 392 votes and the Democrat 226, defeating the Democrat by 166 votes.

Mr. and Mrs. Pat Dolan returned this week from Carrizozo where they spent the week with relatives and friends. Mr. Dolan spent several days on a deer hunt and you'll have to ask him about the luck he had — we haven't the heart to tell you — Tucuman American.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

HONEST DIFFERENCES

NEW YORK—Luckily the non-sense of American political campaigns generally evaporates, as fast as the ballots themselves, which, once counted, lose their value and become waste paper.

In the closing of the campaign some hasty people on the radio, for instance, suggested Dewey or Roosevelt should be impeached for something or other which was not clear in the speakers excited minds.

Both sides promised the same things in great instances. This agreeable residue of the debate is what the country has the right to expect from the victor, indeed what it must insist upon.

Jobs, Dewey promised them to all and Roosevelt promised 60,000,000. Indeed they both promised the method of furnishing them—free enterprise. Both promised against the Communist and Socialist way of furnishing them (free enterprise clearly disavows socialistic methods).

Both promised a high-wage, high-priced economy with fair employment practices and Mr. Roosevelt even defined his living wage as applying only to "a full work week" in reflection of previous trends toward less work.

Behind these generalized agreements, there now lies of course, great prospects of change and sharp irreconcilable differences on both sides. On the Roosevelt side, or rather the inside, it became evident State Secretary Hull's health might eliminate his sound search for unity on foreign policy, and the administration's economic director James Byrnes definitely made arrangements to quit before election.

Wood is being used to make lots of things formerly made of metal and other scarce materials. There are trucks, for instance, of polished hardwood on sale. Tanks and siege guns, battleships, steam shovels and many other mechanical toys are made largely of wood, with a few metal parts.

Blown glass balls for Christmas tree ornaments can be bought readily, but tinsel, excepting lead foil is off the market, and certain other ornaments and decorations are scarce or unobtainable.

Girls are more fortunate than boys this year, for dolls are being turned out in sufficient quantities to meet the demand. There are both hard and soft bodied dolls in the stores, made of everything from cotton to porcelain.

There is less cause for the quadrennial metamorphosis this time. Of course, the frenzied few managed to call each other liars, but not many proved it, and after all anyone in politics is supposed to be a liar these days, so the charge is hardly sensational.

As a matter of fact I achieve the distinction of being called a liar by four or five of my 20,000,000 readers (circulation going up) for having quoted Mr. R. as saying in his Boston speech that he would never send our boys abroad in foreign wars.

The Early Shopper Gets the Toys— There Aren't Enough for Everybody

Stock of Playthings Is Larger Than Last Year, but Still Short

Eager-eyed kiddies will have to be content with about half as many toys this year as they used to get before the war, when they come dashing in to the parlor on Christmas morning.

Both toy factories and toy makers are busy making war materials—percussion caps for torpedoes and shells, gas masks, and a thousand other things. They make toys out of scraps and leftovers, and substitutes like wood and pasteboard.

With wartime prosperity putting money into everyone's pocket, fathers and mothers, uncles, aunts and cousins have a good deal to spend on presents for the children in their families. But they can't buy all they want to, because there just aren't enough toys in the stores to go around.

Metal toys will be represented by a few articles, but in general steel and iron playthings will be missing.

Wooden playthings like blocks are not so hard to get, but it's still a good idea to shop early. A record-breaking demand for toys of all sorts is anticipated, and many children are going to be disappointed, because of shortages.

fits, are in "fair supply," manufacturers say. Apparatus made of glass, porcelain, plastics, wood or pasteboard is being substituted for metal articles.

A survey of the toy supply situation conducted by the Toy Manufacturers of the U.S.A. reveals such shortages as these: Less than 15 per cent of the normal supply of sleds with steel runners will be on sale.

could operate their entire plant at near capacity.

Another organization busily at work on the toy situation is the Office of Price Administration. This government agency has to set fair ceiling prices on every toy item that is to be offered for sale.

FOLKS GATHER 'ROUND FOR PARLOR GAMES

Games that all the family can enjoy together take the spotlight in Santa Claus' 1944 pack. Catering to the wartime necessity to "stay at home and like it," a variety of easy-to-learn, quick action parlor sports are ready to help the juvenile and grown-up contingents forget about limitations on the family car and relax from worries and responsibilities.

Revivals of old favorites that were crazes in the horse and buggy age head the list of escape-type games that will be relatively abundant in a season when Santa Claus' Yuletide pack is short of a great number of familiar play materials.

Among the parlor pastimes back in favor are ROOK, PIT and FLINCH. But MONOPOLY, the real estate trading game, continues to hold craze honors.

SORRY, the English board game that won top favor during the Blitz, is another best seller this winter with American families.

For arm chair strategists there are game inventions inspired by the exploits of America's armed forces.

"Memopoly," the classic real estate trading game, is still the favorite with family groups this Christmas.

CAMELOT, the lively battle game, is a favorite with service men which has a large family following, too.

Some of the Christmas games will be a helpful adjunct to spelling as well as arithmetic. DIG, a streamlined word-building game that uses miniature gold miner's picks with sticky tips to grab the letters, offers opportunity for keen competition that incidentally inspires Junior to improve.

CROSSWORD LEXICON, based on four-letter words built with cards, is another spelling game that provides good competition for all ages. Once the youngsters have a chance to show their mettle unself-consciously, many a parent will be surprised to find himself hard-pressed to hold his share of winner's honors.

Chungking, capital of wartime China, played an important role in the first American air raid on Tokyo, in 1942; it was there that Doolittle and his men were to meet after bombing the Jap capital. So Metro's "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo" was booked for a world premier in Chungking as well as in New York.

All top roles for Columbia's picture of the radio show, "I Love a Mystery," have been filled. Jim Bannon, former announcer on the program, plays one of the two detectives; the second is played by Barton Yarborough, who created the role in the original radio show.

Johnnie Johnston, rising young movie and radio star, is proving that performers have to have the stamina of a coal heaver these days. Recently out of a hospital bed after an appendectomy, Johnston, who sings romantic songs with Paul Baroni's orchestra on the new CBS "Music That Satisfies," appeared at five shows a day at the theater where Lana Turner's "Marriage is a Private Affair" was playing.

Phil Baker, star of CBS' "Take It or Leave It," claims he was the highest paid movie actor in Hollywood. He got eight weeks' pay for one week's work—when he reached Hollywood, the "Take It or Leave It" film was complete except for his sequence.

Johnny Morgan seems to have grabbed top place among the new comedians of 1944. In addition to his Monday evening show he will soon be seen in a new Broadway musical comedy, and is headed for Hollywood in the spring.

A talented new crop of top-line performers, scripters and technicians will emerge from veterans of this war, a survey of the results of the first few weeks of NBC's "Welcome Home Auditions" reveals. One of every three veterans interviewed has been found worthy of professional employment.

Holla Hopper Looking at HOLLYWOOD

"THE hardest thing about making a movie is landing the job to make it." This disarming statement comes from Edmund Goulding, who, if he doesn't know all there is to know about directing pictures, can at least give lessons to nine out of ten of his contemporaries.

What was your favorite picture? "Dark Victory"? "Grand Hotel"? "The Old Maid"? "Rip Tide"? "The Devil's Holiday"? "Love"? "White Banners"? "The Trespasser"? "The Constant Nymph"? "Claudia"?

Goulding directed them all, and many more.

Rugged Individualist
Goulding is like no one else here. His technique is his and his alone. He welcomes temperament. The tougher they come the better he likes 'em.

There is so much to write about Goulding that in this article you can get only a glimpse of the man. When I say that he is fabulous I'm pulling my punches.

Edmund Goulding

I'll let Eddie talk. I quote:

"Most of the people who have interested me, are those who are in some kind of spot. They were either beginning or desperately anxious—Bing Crosby, a natural... Bankhead, beautiful, vital... Constance Bennett, so positive... Alexis Smith, so nervous... Dolores Moran, so green... Joyce Reynolds, so young... Gig Young, so anxious... Geraldine Fitzgerald, so Irishly indifferent... Louise Hayward, Noel Coward's tip and mine... David Niven, so refreshing... Fay Bainter, so scared of the movies... Helen Hayes (for whom he wrote "Dancing Mothers")... Paul Lukas, so bothered about our language... Richard Barthelme, so ambitious... Some weird fate brings me into other people's lives when they need me.

"Show me someone trembling, perspiring, fearing they're not good, hoping they will get by—someone to whom the enterprise means life or death—and I become their soldier."

Begins With Research
"I want to know all about them. I want to enter their lives, know all their problems; their aches, pains, fears, apprehensions, and hopes. I'm paid well for my trouble, because there is great strength to be given by someone who digs and understands more than surface problems."

As this is being written Edmund Goulding is doing what he considers the most important picture of his career. It's "Of Human Bondage," the Somerset Maugham story that catapulted Bette Davis to stardom. Her part of Mildred, the cockney girl who wrecks the life of Philip Carey, is being taken in the present version by Eleanor Parker.

Goulding's method of conditioning Eleanor, an almost unknown, for the important role is typical of his thoroughness.

He went down on the set of "Between Two Worlds" to see her. She was very beautiful, quiet, more unlike Mildred than anyone he'd ever seen.

Eleanor said: "Of course I want to play the part of Mildred, but I'm sure I can't."

"What makes you so cocksure you can't do it?" asked Eddie.

She answered: "Well, it takes an actress, and you've got to be English."

Eddie continued the narrative: "Well—something happened then. It was instinctive, it was a challenge. It was my ego, I guess."

"I asked her to sneak away when she could, talk cockney with me. I got the English actress Doris Lloyd to help her. At the end of the week I knew she could do it."

"I worked with her like a psychiatrist. Altogether it took two and a half solid months of work to play around with that girl until she blindly believed in me."

"We made the test, and I will stake my reputation in the theater and films on the statement that Eleanor Parker is as great and exciting, as thrilling and promising an actress as I've ever directed."

Blonde Tresses Are Going
Lana Turner is a big girl now, so her hair will be cut short for "Week-End at the Waldorf." She had quite a time with that blonde halo while playing a WAC. They parted and braided it, and wound it around her head... Gregory Bates, a Russian, borrowed Sgt. Bob Davis, an Englishman, from the "Winged Victory" set to teach MacMurray, an Irishman, a guttural German accent for a scene in "Where Do We Go From Here?"—burlesquing an 18th century Hitler.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for November 26

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education, used by permission.

THE CHRISTIAN VIEW OF INDUSTRY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:13-26; II Thessalonians 3:10-12.

GOLDEN TEXT—Let him that stole steal no more; but rather let him labor, working with his hands the thing that is good, that he may have to give to him that needeth.—Ephesians 4:28.

Work is a blessing, and the proper attitude toward it is an important part of the life of a Christian. Industry has found its best and most dependable workers among those who believe in Christ. It has also come to realize that the strengthening of the faith of its workers makes them better workmen; hence we see all over the land the interesting development of chaplains in industrial plants. That activity rightly planned and properly conducted can be of great value to both the individual and to industry.

Our lesson rightly deals with the individual. Christianity is a personal matter, a life rather than a theory. It deals with the man rather than the mass.

I. We Are Accountable for Opportunity (Luke 19:15).

The king in this parable is Christ, who has now gone away, to return when God is ready for Him to set up His kingdom on earth. In the meantime His servants have been given that which they should be using for Him.

Two things stand out in this story. First, the fact that Jesus is coming again. There are many scoffers who deny that, blessed truth (II Pet. 3:3, 4). There are many believers to whom the promise has become but a formal truth in a confession of faith or a creed. But the failure of men to recognize truth and their unwillingness to hold it precious, do not alter the fact. Jesus is coming again!

When He comes, He will have many things to accomplish, but—and this is our second fact—one of the most important is that there shall be an accounting with His followers (who are supposed to be His servants) regarding the life they have lived. What will your answer and mine be in that day? It depends on what we are and what we are doing right now.

The basis of His judgment appears in the following verses, where we learn that—

II. We Are to Be Rewarded for Faithfulness (Luke 19:16-26).

When believers stand in the presence of Christ to answer for the deeds done in the flesh (our sins were judged at Calvary!), it will not be a question of what church you belong to, or what family name you bear, or how much money you have amassed. No, the only question asked will be, "Have you been faithful in trading with the gifts, the abilities and the opportunities which God has given you?"

Note that there are three different judgments here, but all on the one ground of faithfulness. The first man represents those who with all diligence and zeal seek to grow spiritually and to serve the Lord with glad abandon. All that they have and are they give to Him for His glory and for the winning of others to Him. They will be commended by the Lord and great will be their reward!

The second man, with equal opportunity, did accomplish something, but not too much. He represents those who do want to serve the Lord but with no special zeal, no great measure of sacrificial endeavor—just "average" (what an unfortunate standard!) Christians.

The Lord is fair. He does not deprive them of their reward. In the measure that they have been faithful, they too shall find joyous service for Him. But observe that there is no special word of commendation in this case, and there is a limited reward.

The third man represents those who profess to be in fear of God. He seems to demand so much of them and they are not ready to give it. After all, they say, we want to enjoy life. Why should the Lord expect so much of us? Not only do they lose all reward, but the Lord must take away even that which He has already given.

III. We Are Commanded to Work (II Thes. 3:10-12).

From the day that God put Adam in the garden of Eden to care for it, honest work has been the lot of all mankind—yes, and his honor. There is no place in the economy of God for the man or woman who is able to work but is not willing to do so. "If any will not work, neither let him eat" (v. 10).

Apparently there were some in the church at Thessalonica who perverted the teaching of the Lord's return, who said that if Jesus were coming any day there was no use working. They had turned the truth completely around. The point is that since Jesus may come at any time, we should all be doing our utmost to accomplish all we can so that we may stand in His presence with joy, and not with shame.

takes on flavor from tomatoes and bacon:

Lima Beans in Tomato Sauce (Serves 6)

- 1 1/2 cups dried lima beans
- 3 cups cold water
- 1 1/2 cups canned tomatoes
- 4 whole cloves
- 8 slices of bacon
- 1 medium-sized onion
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper

Wash beans. Soak overnight in the water. Cook slowly until tender.

Simmer tomatoes with cloves 10 minutes; remove cloves. Fry bacon in skillet until crisp. Remove bacon and brown onion in drippings then add flour and seasonings and blend well. Add tomatoes and cook until thickened. Add beans and serve with warm bacon over top.

You've heard often enough the nutrition story on liver. Here's another recipe to add to your collection on this excellent meat:

Liver With Spanish Beans (Serves 5-6)

- 1 1/2 cup dried kidney beans
- 1 quart cold water
- 1 cup canned tomatoes
- 2 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 bay leaf
- 1/4 teaspoon powdered thyme
- 2 medium onions, sliced
- 1/4 cup shortening
- 1/2 pound thinly sliced beef liver
- 1 tablespoon flour

Wash beans, soak in cold water overnight. Drain and measure the liquid and add enough water to cover. Onions are plentiful this year and make an excellent casserole with mushrooms.

A little nest of grated American Cheese will surprise the family, in these fluffy potato croquettes. Nourishing and filling, they fit well into winter menus.

Thrift and Nutrition

There's a clamor among nutrition conscious homemakers for recipes that nourish but that are inexpensive to fix.

Expense of food has little to do with nutrition as the recipes today will show. There's good eating in them besides, and the family will welcome seconds as readily as they do the more expensive foods:

Surprise Croquettes (Makes 6)

- 6 Idaho potatoes
- 1/2 cup hot milk
- 2 tablespoons butter
- Salt and pepper
- 2 tablespoons minced parsley
- 1 teaspoon grated cheese
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon water
- Fine dry bread crumbs

Scrub potatoes and steam until tender in a small amount of water. Spear potatoes on fork and slip off skins. Mash well, adding hot milk, butter, salt, pepper, parsley and onion. Shape large spoonfuls, sufficient for a serving into croquettes with a tablespoonful of cheese in center of each. Roll in fine crumbs, dip in beaten egg to which 1 teaspoon water has been added. Then roll again in crumbs. Fry in deep fat (380 degrees) until brown. Serve at once.

Onions are plentiful this year and make an excellent casserole with mushrooms.

Onion Casserole Supreme (Serves 6)

- 4-5 Sweet Spanish onions
- 1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 cup grated American cheese

Slice onions in 1/2 inch slices. Cover with boiling, salted water, 1 teaspoon to each quart. Cook until just tender—about 20 minutes. Pour in to a large strainer or colander and allow to drain thoroughly. Place half of onions in buttered casserole and pour 1/2 of mushroom soup which has been diluted with an equal quantity of water over them. Then add remaining onions and sauce and top with cheese. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) until brown on top and bubbly.

Lentils are full of protein and can be served in place of meat. They're especially good when cooked with salt pork.

Hoppin' John (Serves 5)

- 1 cup lentils
- 1/2 cup rice
- 1 quart water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 pound salt pork
- 2 tablespoons butter or bacon drippings
- 1 small onion
- 1/4 teaspoon celery salt

Rinse lentils and rice and add water, salt, diced pork and cook on low heat 45 minutes. Chop onion fine and cook until tender in butter or bacon drippings. Add to cooked lentils and rice and stir in celery salt. Another bean which is highly nutritious is the lima. In this dish it

Combine cranberry sherbet with mint sherbet for first course.

Add pink coloring to honey before serving on pancakes if you like a bluish on the flapjacks.

Add chopped ripe olives to carrots or celery or the two vegetables when combined.

HOW to make French door curtains harmonize with the window treatment in a room is a question that always arises. Frequently, over-draperies are omitted for the doors even though they are used for windows. The same glass curtain material is then used as for the windows but a heading and rod is used both top and bottom. However, over-draperies add dignity.

Either a wooden or a metal rod extending well beyond the sides of the door frame may be hooked in place as shown here in the diagram. This permits the doors to open without interfering with draperies.

It is not necessary to repeat window valances over doors though it may be done if desired by using a

Next time you hear a Southern Pacific train whistle in the night, think of it as something more than a lonely, haunting sound. It is a reassuring sound—a promise that even while you sleep, the war trains are rolling. It's the confident voice of an industry that's doing the biggest job in its history, and will be in there pitching long after the war is over.

Wouldn't you like to know the language of the train whistles? Below we show you:

What S. P. train whistles mean

We haven't room to explain all the whistles, but here are the commonest ones. The "o" stands for a short sound, the dash means a longer sound.

■ ■ ○ ■ Warning whistle when train is approaching a highway crossing.

○ ○ ○ When train is running, this means it will stop at next station, which is not a regular stop. If train is standing still, this signal warns that it is about to back up.

■ One long whistle is sounded a mile before train reaches stations, railroad crossings, drawbridges, etc.

■ ○ ○ ○ Signal for brakeman to protect rear of train. He must go down the track with necessary flagman's signals.

○ ○ ○ ■ Signal for brakeman to protect front of train.

■ ■ ■ ■ This signal orders brakeman to return from the west.

■ ■ ■ ■ ■ This signal recalls brakeman from the east.

■ ○ ○ This tells other trains that a second section is following.

○ ○ This is the engineer's answer to most signals from other trains.

○ ○ ○ ○ ○ A succession of short sounds is a warning to persons or livestock on the track.

Win Strengthens F.D.R.'s Hand; Germans Fear New Allied Drive; Storms Slow Pacific Warfare

Released by Western Newspaper Union. (EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

With U. S. trucks waiting in mud, Chinese coolies work diligently to clear washout of section of Burma road.

DEMS GAIN:

F.D.R. Strengthened

In winning a fourth term, Pres. Franklin D. Roosevelt carried the Democratic party along with him in both the senate and house, where he now appears to be assured of a working majority on both international and domestic issues.

Their own positions materially weakened by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's strong stand for an effective international organization to preserve world peace, staunch GOP nationalists were among the defeated, with the result that F.D.R.'s peace program should encounter easier sledding in the senate, where details will be worked out, and in the house where funds will be appropriated.

All of the so-called nationalists did not suffer defeat, but prominent among those that did were Senators Nye in North Dakota, Danaher in Connecticut and Davis in Pennsylvania, and Representatives Fish of New York and Day and Maas of Minnesota.

Although the Democrats failed to make any gains in the senate, they stand just short of a two-thirds majority necessary for ratification of foreign treaties, a margin they may make up by an alliance of such GOP internationalists as Bail of Minnesota.

In the house, however, the Democrats made big gains, increasing their membership to over 240, while the Republicans fell far below their pre-election strength of 210.

Thus, although President Roosevelt's winning margin was below that of 1940, the Democratic victory built around his leadership, assumed the proportion of a landslide. The successful conduct of the war, the comparative comfort of people despite rationing and the President's intimate acquaintance with Allied affairs—all tended to offset opposition.

As usual, the President drew his greatest strength from the nation's large industrial centers, where efficient political machines like Ed Kelly's of Chicago, Tammany's of New York and Frank Hague's of Jersey City piled up tremendous pluralities which traditional Republican rural districts could not counter-balance.

Much credit for getting the vote out in the big industrial centers went to Sidney Hillman's CIO Political Action committee, which undertook to impress union membership with the exercise of their power through the polls.

Abroad, President Roosevelt's election was well hailed in Allied circles.

Said the London Evening Standard: "The result of the election... leaves the tasks of winning the war and the larger tasks of advancing Anglo-American-Soviet unity to win the peace in the strong, proven hands of Roosevelt."

MISCELLANY

Approx 200 farm buildings burn every day in the United States and Canada, and some 3,500 people a year perish in these fires.

EUROPE:

Things to Come

All along the 400 mile western front, fighting was confined to local actions, but the Germans, for one, brooked no misgivings on the comparative calm.

While the British were clearing all of southwestern Holland, and U. S. forces were improving positions near Aachen in the north, Metz in the center and the Vosges mountains in the south, the Nazis claimed that the Allies were striving to obtain springboards for a great drive on the Reich, and only using 25 per cent of their troops.

Though action in the west was local, it was bitter, with very tough fighting below Aachen, where doughboys worked through the air and pize Hurlgen forest in Indian fashion on the road to the Rhineland.

As the Doughboys pushed through the splintered Hurlgen forest, both sides made free use of air and artillery bombardment for maintenance of open positions outside the wooded tract.

It was there, in little hamlets, that some of the bitterest fighting occurred, with tiny villages changing hands in close-quarter action.

Fierce fighting also took place in the foothills of the Vosges mountains, where mixed U. S. and French units pounded forward toward the great passes leading into southwestern Germany. As Allied troops worked forward, the Nazis pushed in reinforcements in an effort to check the advances.

Showing off in a surprise attack about Metz after a heavy artillery bombardment, U. S. troops improved their positions along a 55 mile front, encountering mainly small arms fire from Germans caught flat-footed. In developing their attack, Yanks braved icy streams, chest-high, to get across to the opposite banks to establish bridgeheads and cover for engineering corps throwing across bridges.

PACIFIC:

Stormy Weather

Raging hurricanes known throughout tropical waters swept across the Philippines, and U. S. troops driving down the northwestern half of Leyte Island toward the Jap base of Ormoc were caught in the swirling whirlwind and their attack slowed.

Having cleared the enemy from virtually all of the eastern section of Leyte, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces swung around the northern tip of the mountain range blocking off the western coast, and were driving down it when the hurricane struck.

With one of Japan's top militarists, General Yamashita, put in command of the enemy's forces, the Japs' determination to put up a fight for the Philippines was well reflected in their stand on Leyte, where elements of four Jap divisions entrenched themselves in the hilly and tangled terrain on the west coast to face the oncoming Yanks.

As a first-class slugging match developed on the ground, air combat also increased in tempo, with U. S. carrier-based planes attacking enemy airdromes and supply depots in an effort to weaken the enemy's air force, while Jap land-based craft conducted harassing raids on U. S. positions on Leyte.

Blow Hard

Hurricanes that strike the Philippine area blow strong winds. In addition to their circular whirl the tropical cyclones move in their entirety, slowly at first, and usually no more than 20 miles an hour. Some storms, however, have attained a speed of 60 miles or more per hour. The usual direction for these north of the equator is westward, then northward.

Tropical cyclones are usually at their strongest in the area stretching northward from Leyte.

CLIP 'SE:

New Markets

With American consumers coming to appreciate the fine quality of domestic production of such cheeses as roquefort, camembert, gorgonzola and Swiss, U. S. producers are expected to obtain an increasing volume of business in these types over importers in the postwar years.

Before the war, imports of European cheese averaged over 50,000,000 pounds annually, with roquefort and camembert coming in from France, gorgonzola from Italy and Swiss, of course, from Switzerland.

With U. S. epicureans becoming accustomed to American brands of these rarities, however, they are expected to more and more satisfy their taste for roquefort from Illinois, Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin producers; for camembert from New York and Wisconsin; for gorgonzola from Wisconsin, and for Swiss from Wisconsin, Illinois and Ohio.

In prewar years, over-all U. S. cheese production totalled around 700,000,000 pounds, with output soaring to 916,000,000 pounds in 1941.

STEEL:

Expand Capacity

Greatest in the world, the U. S. steel industry made substantial expansion since 1940, adding 12½ million tons to capacity at a cost of over 2 billion dollars, half of which was put up by the government.

As of July 1, figures showed that the capacity of blast furnaces for refining raw ore was raised to over 68½ million tons, while capacity for further processing of iron and scrap into steel was boosted to over 24 million tons.

Most vivid indication of the size of the U. S. industry lies in its comparison with that of other countries, with Germany's prewar capacity rated at around 20 million tons, and Great Britain's at 15 million tons.

Zoot Shoes

Zoot garters with the long coats and baggy pants with tight ankles have come up with a new one in Los Angeles, Calif. Their latest are shoes with steel plated soles and heels, two inches thick, which they use as weapons. Chief Justice Robert Fisher is shown inspecting some of the 100 pairs of such shoes confiscated by juvenile authorities.

DISEASE:

'Hold Line'

Although there has been no appreciable increase in the rate of venereal disease in the U. S. since the war, an increase among servicemen in recent months foretells a letdown in the vigorous campaign which has been waged against these scourges, officials said.

Source of great future danger, Surgeon Gen. Thomas Parran of the U. S. public health service said, lies in the spread of these diseases by untreated people throughout the country in the postwar period of migration and possible decline of moral standards.

While the overall venereal disease rate is at an all-time low in the navy, it was said, infection among personnel in the U. S. has increased 24 per cent above 1942. The rate also has taken a jump in the army since January, 1944, it was reported.

GRAIN MARKETS:

Election Spur

With reelection of President Roosevelt presaging the farm bloc's continued control over the administration's agricultural program, prices reacted favorably on grain markets, scoring fractional gains.

Of all grains, only corn failed to respond to election happenings, with the large volume of country offerings in the middle-west tempering prices.

Revival of talk that beverage alcohol manufacturers again would be allowed a temporary holiday from war distillation for civilian production, added to election optimism, resulted in an upswing in rye.

ARMY SURPLUS

Surplus serviceable property varying from nontactical aircraft to snowshoes, is being reported by the war department to government agencies charged with disposal of such goods.

Examples of types of surplus property suitable for other war agencies and for civilian distribution, have included marine engines, wool shearlings, machines and machine tools, oil drums, automotive spare parts, pavers, graders and cranes.

The lid is off! Four days before election the ticker, jammed with campaign speeches, paused long enough to announce the strike of the Mechanics Educational Society in 20 Detroit plants. There hadn't been much strike news for some time and this item stuck out like a sore thumb.

The reason there had not been much strike news was not because there were not plenty of strikes—three weeks before election they were bobbing up at the rate of 400 a month; 10 a day were being reported to conciliators in the labor department and that didn't include the strikes against the decisions of the national war labor board, itself.

The reason why this bulge in the walk-out record wasn't in front of the reading public's nose was because both parties were taking particular care not to say anything that might look as if it were criticism of a kind that would alienate the labor vote.

Now, as I remarked, the lid is off. But this is only a sample of what is going to happen when Germany collapses. Washington expects when that otherwise happy day comes, it will have to face the job of damming a veritable flood of labor problems. And that flood, many of the insiders believe, will inundate the labor board and probably have the effect of sweeping it into the discard.

Two things badly threaten the board's future. One was the private walkout of the AFL members who simply announced they would not sit in on any decisions on wage raises until the board had handed down a decision on the Little Steel wage formula. That was one blow. Any decision on Little Steel, itself, will be another.

The board knows it is facing a dilemma on that subject. Although decision in favor of Little Steel (that is, breaking the wage ceiling and giving the steel workers an increase to meet what the unions declare is a rise in the standard of living) would satisfy the steel workers it would start a whole series of demands for increases in other fields.

If, on the other hand, the board refused to adjust the Little Steel formula upward, it would have to face a strike in the great steel industry.

That dilemma is gruesome enough but not too far away is another problem which will arise when Germany collapses and the government war contracts are sharply cut back.

When this happens there are a number of companies which are called "fly-by-night" by some labor officials because their only reason for income is from war orders and their chief reason for existence is the part they play in the war effort, a part which will not have to be played when Germany quits. In any case, it is freely predicted that there will be strikes in these plants, encouraged, aided and abetted by the employers in the hope that their factories will be seized by the government. They may have no further excuse for functioning but there is a possibility that if the government takes them over they can collect something through damage suits thereafter.

This creates a very difficult problem. As you know, when the war labor board hands down a decision its function ends. There is no legal means of enforcing this decision and if it is not complied with, the only recourse of the board is to pass the buck to the White House. If an appeal from that source proves futile, the government has to take over the plant.

Now already the caution has been sounded to the board to be very circumspect hereafter in passing the buck to the White House in such cases. This is the reason: if the White House accepts all of these employer-encouraged strikes and the government takes them over it may find itself owning hoards of useless businesses and facing years of litigation.

If, on the other hand, the White House refuses to act, the board loses its prestige and since it has no legal right of enforcement, it loses its influence. All of which caused many hard-boiled optimists to predict months ago, that no matter who was elected in November, the hands of the war labor board were rapidly running out.

Suggest Postwar Control of Enemy

Who shall we do with Germany and Japan?

Who is "we"? I have looked over a sheaf of books and pamphlets, listened to radio broadcasts including one by Vansittart (the number one German-bater) and several apologies of the appeasementists, who think all we need to do is to kiss and make up. If I am part of that "we," I must say that part of us is pretty confused.

There have been many negative arguments offered to propositions proposed.

There have been many bold and conflicting affirmative statements. I know you have to have a negative and an affirmative argument to make a good debate and that is why I am glad to see two men sit down and produce a document, stripped of all emotion, based on hard cold facts put together scientifically, which knocks down and builds up, too. One of the authors is a scholar, a man who has devoted most of his life to long, cold, analytical studies. The other is a man who has an engineering education as a foundation, and a successful industrial career as a background.

The booklet comprises only 117 pages, succinctly summarized, written in simple, straight-forward language, like the title which is "The Control of Germany and Japan." The authors are Harold G. Moulton, a trained economist, head of the Brookings Institution, a non-partisan, scientific research organization, and Louis Marlio, a French businessman, who has constructed half a dozen industrial plants in Europe, served on committees of the League of Nations.

This is a book which everyone ought to read. Briefly, the plan it offers is military control (not complete or permanent occupation) with "supplemental economic devices."

This would involve disarmament of enemy countries, with maintenance of substantial allied armed forces at key points only as a last resort; otherwise withdrawal of military forces as soon as possible and the use of a system of detection, to learn of violations of conditions and punitive measures if necessary. "The United States," say the authors, "is faced with two plain objectives: either to join with a group of nations in a collective program for preventing German and Japanese rearmament and in general developing a universal collective security system; or to rely on an independent defense system adequate to preserve its freedom."

And they conclude that "only by the first means can this country hope to maintain its national independence, or to preserve its system of free enterprise." Since everybody, even the Vansittartists, who represent the extreme English supporters of a punitive peace against Germany, agree that the peace must be such that it will work best for the whole world, the Moulton-Marlio, which holds strongly to this tenet, is interesting.

I have had many requests concerning the return of war prisoners when Germany collapses. So has the Red Cross. This is what it says: "The military authorities, of course, are looking forward to the protection of the men as soon as they can be reached in Germany; but the Red Cross will assist the military authorities in every way possible. For this purpose, a special representative of the American Red Cross has been assigned to work with the military authorities in Europe and with other Red Cross organizations there which are no less concerned about the welfare of their nationals. "The stocks of standard prisoner of war packages amount to over 5,000,000."

GOD IS MY CO-PILOT

Col. Robert L. Scott

WASH. RELEASE

The story thus far: Robert Scott, a self-made West Point graduate, wins his wings at Kelly Field, Texas, and marries a girl from Georgia. From Mitchell Field, N. Y., he is sent to Panama where his real pursuit training is begun in a P-125. He is given a job constructing flying fields which would some day protect the Canal. He begins to train other pilots. The war is getting closer and he is unhappy because he realizes he is getting further and further from actual combat duty. As director of training in a twin-engine school in California he writes to General after General asking for a chance to fight. When that chance comes he realizes that his wife and child meant America for him.

CHAPTER VI

Doug was an ideal flying officer, and it was to him that I first turned for advice on how I should make myself acquainted with this big airplane. Doug had learned to fly at the period when I had been instructing. I had taught his class to fly; now the tables were turned and he would have to be the instructor for a while. Don't forget that as yet I hadn't flown a B-17E.

Introducing myself to my co-pilot, I said, "How about showing me how to fly this ship—I want to see how to work these turbos and such." He merely grinned at me in disbelief. "Aw, Colonel," he said, "you can fly the thing—why, you taught me to fly." I finally got him to give me some cockpit instruction by explaining that though I had many thousand hours in P.T.'s, B.T.'s, and other trainers, and knew lots about single-seaters and fast twin-engine medium bombers, I knew nothing about such planes as this big devil.

He showed me the approved method of starting the four engines, when to use the booster switches, how to set the turbos, how to lock the tail wheel—and generally how to pick up that fifty-seven thousand pounds of flying dynamite and take it around the field. I flew it for two landings that afternoon, and that night I climbed all over the Fortress, read the entire maintenance manual, and learned from scratch what made the big ship go. Next day I soloed it for over four hours, and after the twentieth landing I felt as if I was ready to start for war.

Then we tested everything—fired all guns at targets in the everglades, and the cordite from all those roaring fifty-calibers gave even the swampy "glades" a sweet aroma. My gunners were eager to be on the way, and I soon found that they knew exactly what they were doing. Private Motley was my tail gunner. During the entire trip I think he stayed in the tail ninety per cent of the time, just to get used to the way to handle the tail turret. I used to say of Motley that he just didn't care where he was going—he wanted to see where he had been.

Sergeant Aaltonen, the engineer, was charged with keeping the engines functioning properly, and in general the entire enlisted personnel was under him. He was a diligent Finn and one of the bravest men I have ever seen. I can see Aaltonen now, standing there behind my seat and the co-pilot's seat, unperturbed in the roughest of storms, from the violent currents of the equatorial front of the Hamadans to the Sinals of Africa and Arabia. Eternally watching the many instruments, waiting to correct the slightest trouble even before it happened. When we were lost over trackless seas he was never ruffled, but ready at all times with information as to fuel consumption and the best RPM's for cruising. Once when he was told that we would probably have to land in the Atlantic there was no change in the expression on his face; he simply began to move the provisions to a point where they could be quickly placed in the rubber boats. His job in case of attack was to man the top turret with its twin Fifties.

Sergeant Baldrige was the head radioman. His secondary duty was to handle one of the waist guns back aft of midships. Corporal Cobb was second radioman; he would leave that to enter the lower turret. The other waist gun on this flight was to be handled by a radio officer, Lieutenant Hershey.

The navigator was a Lieutenant whom I'll call Jack. He was a navy kid who liked his job. I know that after our mission, he made many raids as navigator to bomb the Japs in Rangoon.

We tested the bombardier and the bombardier, too, before we started the flight. Lean, lanky, six-foot-three Bombardier George—I never did see how he managed to wiggle into the nose of the Fortress. I can see him there now, tense over his sight, waiting for the bombs to go—ever with the cross-hairs on the target. George had a couple of fifty-caliber guns up there in the nose with him, too. He was just the opposite of the tail gunner—he never did know where he had been but always got there first.

And so the eight of them made up my crew—eight good soldiers who had volunteered and who wanted to hurt the enemy. None of them worried about whether or not he'd get home—for he knew of bigger things that had to be done.

We had to test everything, for it was over sixteen thousand miles to Japan the way we were having to go; there couldn't be a slip-up on this mission, and so we didn't take a chance. When finally all was set

I was about nervous enough to bite my nails off, for my ship was to be last to leave the States. I had worried every minute of the time we had been waiting for fear that some brass hat would get my orders changed before I could get on my way. The other twelve ships had gone, with Colonel Haynes leading in his B-24. They all made their way to the East separately, with instructions to meet in Karachi, India, for final orders. And Karachi was 12,000 miles away.

As soon as we could leave the West coast of Florida, we loaded up, and crossed the State. Going on East over West Palm Beach, I rang the alarm bell, putting all men on the alert, and we dropped down, with the crew firing at the white-caps out over the Gulf Stream. The guns were working fine but we couldn't take a chance. I had to learn right now whether the crew could work as a team, for once we started it would be too late.

As we came back towards the last field we were to land on in the U. S. A., something strange met my sight, something that made the blood pound a little harder in my temples. There, along the entire beach of Florida, was a jagged black line—the clean sand of Florida's beaches had been made black and terrible-looking by the oil from many tankers sunk by the Axis submarine war. It gave me a queer feeling, for along the beaches there was also the beached wreckage of several ships. This war was meaning more and more to us as we prepared to shove off for the first stop out of America.

Now we were poised for our flight to Puerto Rico. In our two-day wait for technical changes on the engines I worried more than ever, for the other twelve ships were gone and I was getting frantic lest something might change the orders. Finally, after having to wait during days of perfect weather, we took off in heavy rain for Borinquen Field, P. R.

The take-off and first two hours of the flight were "instrument," as we were flying through a moderate tropical front. We finally broke into clearing weather over Long Island Key, British West Indies. This was on March 31, 1942.

Just after noon we sighted Hispaniola at the point of Cape Frances Viejo. Sergeant Aaltonen passed out some hot coffee from the thermos jugs. Our spirits were high, for now that we had passed the bad weather this was like a picnic. The big ship was handling like a single-seater. We turned from the dark, mysterious Hispaniola, crossed Mona Passage, and landed at Borinquen Field at 15:07, just three minutes off our E.T.A. (Estimated Time of Arrival).

Two of our flight's Fortresses were waiting in Puerto Rico for minor repairs, so we felt a little less lonesome. Just in case the authorities in Washington decided to stop the last ship or the last two ships in our mission, I got my crew up long before daylight next morning, and we soon were heading South for Trinidad, ahead of the other two.

A real night take-off from Trinidad—we were airborne in the darkness at 8:20 a. m. As the wheels left the ground I realized very quickly how great a load we were lifting. This was the first time we had taken off with full load of fuel, and it seemed to me that I almost had to break my arms to keep the tail from going all the way back to the jungle—for all practical purposes the Fortress tried a loop. (It must have been that case of Scotch, added suddenly to the other sixty thousand pounds.) Finally we got the ship rigged properly and climbed on top of the clouds at eight thousand feet. Later we had to go higher to keep from going through the heavy tropical thunderheads; with our overload, neither Doug nor I wanted to risk the turbulence that we knew was there.

As the sun came up we could look down through holes at intervals, and see the dark Atlantic near the Gulanax.

Over Devil's Island at 9:20, I saw by our chart that we were only five degrees North of the equator. Crossing down lower to look at the French penal colony, we found that although the temperature was comfortable on top of the haze at six thousand feet, down in the soup near the water we had difficulty breathing. Passing on over another river identified as the Rio Oyapok, we went out over the Guianas into Brazil at 9:55 a. m. Cruising low at eight hundred feet, we got some unforgettable views of the steaming Brazilian jungle.

Looking out to sea, we noticed that the blue color already was changing to the murkiness of the Amazon, though we were about a hundred miles from its mouth. Flying low, I noted that the hump of Brazil near the coast was flat and green and hot as hell—temperature ninety-six and humidity about ninety-nine per cent at 10:55 a. m. We reached the mouth of the greatest river in the world at 11:35 E.W.T. Here the width of the Amazon is about one hundred and fifty miles.

Boys will have their fun too, no matter if you are flying low over the greatest of rivers. As we crossed the equator—old Zero Degrees Lat. at 11:59 a. m., at West Longitude 49 degrees 32 minutes—I saw those of my crew who had been in the South latitudes before take paper cups of water and drop them on the heads of those who were uninitiated, thus making them subjects of the sacred realm of Jupiter Rex as identified from the realm of Neptune Rex on the sea. We crossed the Amazon; from just West of Point Grossa over Bahia Santa Rosa to Mixiana Island, thence to Isla da Marajo. This last island in the mouth of the river is one hundred miles wide and reputedly has more cattle on the single ranch than any other ranch in the world. Soon we came to Rio Para, crossed it in a thunderstorm, and were over Belem, where we landed in the blackness of a tropical rain at 12:40 E.W.T.

On April 4, we left Belem for Natal at 6:55 a. m., and climbed to ten thousand feet in order to top as much of the cumulus as possible. We had to skirt one great evil-head reaching up into the sub-stratosphere near Bahia San Luz. This storm covered about fifty miles, but we got around it without going into its turbulence. As we went on South of the equator the haze diminished gradually and the country became dry, making us think we were over western Texas. We landed at Natal, our jumping-off point for the South Atlantic crossing, at 12:25 E.W.T.

This was to be a real day's flight. For we were not to be able to spend the night at Natal. Our run from Belem to Natal of nine hundred miles, then the crossing of nineteen hundred miles to Liberia, plus the run down the hump of Africa to a Pan-American base on the Gold Coast—this last almost nine hundred miles—had to be made without stops, except short ones for fuel. For all practical purposes, then, we had thirty-seven hundred miles to make in one day.

We got the big ship serviced and ready for the trip, then went to the Ferry Command Hotel. There we found two more crews of our thirteen heavy bombers. One group of these had turned back the night before with one engine out. The other, piloted by Col. Gerry Mason, had nearly come to grief on the way in from Belem. The rubber life-rafts in the Forts are carried in two compartments where the wing of the B-17 joins the big fuselage. This is to facilitate their automatic release upon contact with the water should the ship have to land at sea. They are of course tied to the airplane with strong manila rope, and it is on this hemp that the present tale hangs. In the flight down the coast some malfunction had caused one of these compartments to spring open—and out came the heavy, five-man boat. At the speed of two hundred miles an hour with which it struck the tail section as it went back on its rope in the slipstream of two engines, it nearly took the entire horizontal stabilizer off. Only by very skillful piloting had Gerry Mason managed to get the Fort and his crew of ten to Natal.

Just the same, in my attempted nap that afternoon, I grinned at the thought that we in old "Hades Ab Altar" were passing ahead of two more ships of the flight. Boy, I dreamed, they'll have a hell of a job getting me back there into the training center now! It's four thousand miles back to Florida and in the morning I'll be across the Atlantic.

We climbed out of the Fortress and stepped upon Africa at 11:05 G.M.T. Our crossing from Natal had been made in thirteen hours. Leaving the natives at work under Royal Air Force bosses, we hurried on to Operations, where we arranged for clearance down the coast. Then we were led into a thatch-roofed dining hall for good hot food. If I hadn't been so hungry and tired from the extra tension I had been subjected to, I think I'd have "gawked" at those wild-looking tribesmen who were serving us. In one night we'd left the hotels of South America, and here we were, having our plates brought by jet-black bush Negroes with rings in their ears and noses, jabbering away in a West Coast dialect. To them we were "Bwana," the food was "chop," and dessert was "sweet."

Float 2 Ports to Norman Coast

Artificial Harbors Built in Britain Used to Supply Invasion.

LONDON. — Two artificial harbors, built in secret and towed across the channel behind the assault forces for installation on the Normandy beaches, supplied the invasion armies and "made possible the liberation of western Europe," supreme headquarters disclosed recently.

The worst channel storm in 49 years wrecked one before it was completed, but not before it had contributed heavily to the stream of men and equipment pouring into France. The other was finished as planned—a port as big as Dover, complete with docks, piers, and breakwaters, capable of unloading at least 12,000 tons of stores and 2,500 vehicles daily.

The ports were built in three sections, blockships, caissons (sea-walls), and breakwaters. To provide immediate protection for the smaller ships, 60 old ships were sunk forming five small breakwaters along the French coast. Several British and Dutch warships were sent to the bottom with the old flotilla that provided 24,000 feet of breakwater.

Gigantic Task. Planning of the gigantic construction task began in June, 1943, when American and British operations officers decided that French ports falling into allied hands during the invasion could not possibly have the capacity for the quantity of stores necessary.

One harbor was earmarked for the Americans and the other for the British.

A decision to go ahead was made at the Quebec conference of the combined chiefs of staff and involved:

1. Building 150 concrete caissons (harbor walls) of six different sizes to suit various depths of water up to 5 1/2 fathoms (33 feet). The largest caisson displaced 6,044 tons and the smallest 1,672.
2. Prefabrication of seven miles of pier equipment and its assembly into towing pieces 480 feet long.
3. Constructing outer breakwaters made from steel floats weighing 15,000 tons.
4. Preparation of the blockships so they could be sunk easily and rapidly on even keel.

Towed by 85 Tugs. In addition to the construction, plans had to be made for:

1. Towing the caissons, floating the breakwater and pier equipment from as far distant as Leith and Glasgow with 85 tugs necessitating 500 tows in the face of enemy action.
2. Servicing and general preparations of the tug fleet.
3. Forming and training staffs and personnel of the United States navy, the royal navy, and engineers.

Soon after the assault troops hit the beach the old block ships arrived, and in spite of their age, all made the crossing. They were sunk by explosive charges and within five days troops and equipment ashore were provided very valuable shelter during this critical period.

Meanwhile the breakwaters, caissons and piers were being towed across at an average speed of four knots through choppy water. Luckily few tugs were lost to enemy action.

By D-day plus eight heavy moorings had been laid in deep water to which the floating breakwaters were attached as they arrived.

Port parties of American Seabees, royal engineers and royal marines cleared mines, cut ramps and prepared roadways down to the beaches to receive the shore end of the piers.

More Returned Fliers Return From Bulgaria

ROME.—The withdrawal of 442 captured Allied fliers from Bulgaria was completed when 24 wounded men landed at an Italian air base from Calro. The first men crossed the Bulgar border into Turkey September 10 following Bulgaria's surrender. A 15th air force announcement said all the injured made the trip in good condition and, like those brought here earlier, told stories of life in overcrowded prison camps, where food and medical care were poor.

Allies Have Captured Half-Million Germans

LONDON.—The six Allies in Western Europe have captured at least 528,084 German prisoners.

Prisoners announced captured by the various armies:

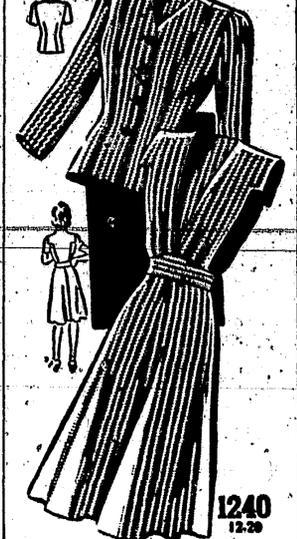

- U. S. First army, 183,827; U. S. Third army 92,600; U. S. Seventh army, 90,000; U. S. Ninth army, 19,312; British Second army, 77,709; Canadian First army, 62,636.

Eire Now Only Haven For War Criminals

LONDON, ENGLAND.—Portugal has informed Great Britain that it will refuse asylum to war criminals, Richard Law, Portugal's minister of state, announced in common recently.

Declaration left Eire as the only neutral country which has not agreed to refuse refuge for war criminals who might try to escape Allied tribunals established to try them.

Household Hints

If candles are soiled, rub them with a cloth dipped in alcohol. Or they may be rubbed with lard or other fats.

Wax your book shelves. This will permit books to slide in and out easier, and cause less wear on them.

When driving a nail into a wall to hang a picture, try placing a small piece of adhesive tape over the spot and drive the nail through it. This will prevent the wall from cracking there.

A little skim milk rubbed over leather chairs several times a year will keep the leather soft and prevent cracking.

Add salt to the water in which eggs are to be cooked. This makes the shells more brittle and easier to remove.

When sending a book through the mails, cut the corners from several heavy envelopes and place over the four corners of the book to protect them.

In order not to scorch milk, rinse the pan with water for several minutes before heating the milk.

If there is a suggestion of rust on your refrigerator shelves, wash them with a mild scouring powder and hot water, dry well with a soft clean cloth, and apply a thin coating of hot melted paraffin.

Never use a big unsightly knot when sewing. Even a tiny knot should be hidden on the wrong side. Most dressmakers do not use a knot at all in the ends of basting threads because in removing bastings the knot may catch in the threads of the fabric and pull them. Three or four fastening stitches at the beginning and end of basting will hold it securely.

Where Americans Talk As in Days of Chaucer

According to a survey made by Lester V. Berrey and published by the Columbia University Press, Americans living in the Southern Appalachian and Ozark mountains use figures of speech much like those of characters from Chaucer's Canterbury Tales (14th century). Moreover, they pronounce words as in the days of Alexander Pope and William Shakespeare.

These Americans, for example, say a thing "admires" them when they mean it astonishes them, and their pronouncing peculiarities include: "fine" for "join," "saled" for "boil," and "Bwaltet" for "bald."

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Nearly 2,000 rubber tires daily were required in North Africa to replace tires which had been worn out or destroyed in action.

As a result of the diversion of the petroleum by-product to aviation gasoline, about 50 per cent of the butadiene produced for synthetic rubber processing so far in 1944 come from alcohol plants.

When you wonder about the shortage of aviation tires, bear in mind that in the time it takes to build one B-24 airplane five at B. F. Goodrich factories, seven B-25-20 truck tires or sixty B-20016 passenger tires could be made. And airplane tires are "made" these days!
