Mrs. Elvin Harkey and children were business visitors from the Ancho country yesterday, returning home in the afternoon.

J. G. Moore, former manager of the Carrizozo Mercantile Co. for 5 years, has resigned and will be employed by the American Loan Co., as manager of that business enterprise. For the past four years, he has been chairman of the Republican County Central Committee and did some valuable work for the party during that period. With the Moore family the basis of success in their future undertaking. They will reside at Gallup.

Annual meeting of the Lincoln County Red Cross will be held Friday, May 25, at 3 o'clock at the Courthouse in the Court Room. This announcement was made by Mrs. S. Dewey Stoker who said the date was fixed by the chapter by-law. She urged all members to be present to participate in the election of officers for the coming year and to hear what the chapter had accomplished during the past year. All individuals who paid $1 or more during the recent campaign are members of the Red Cross.

W. F. Manire, a '45 hi school graduate, is assisting at the Citizens State Bank.

Mrs. Jackie Silvers of Ancho had a permanent wave at the Reil Beauty Shoppe Wednesday.

Mr. Joe Morgan, local phone manager is the new secretary of the Business Men's Club, taking the place of Felix Ramey who resigned.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Davis, daughters Carolyn and Sandra were here from their ranch home near Capitan Tuesday returning home in the afternoon.

Mrs. Jane LaRue and little daughter Claudia are in Albuquerque visiting at the home of Jane's mother-in-law, Mrs. Jane LaRue and will be absent for about two weeks.

I, a letter from Mrs. Harbour Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Stover, she advises us to send her the Outlook to Albuquerque, they having moved to that city from Tucuman a short time ago.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Lamay of the Nogal-Mesa were here yesterday. Tom, their son, is with 9th army in Germany.

Clyde Jones proprietor of Clyde's Garage at Corona was a business visitor here Monday and while in town made this friendly call.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Day of Glencoe, were here Monday from their farm where they raise all kinds of fruit and vegetables. It is a pleasure to meet such old friends as the Days whom we see so seldom.

'THE LITTLE' RED SCHOOL HOUSE

(By A. L. Burke)

When the time came for our military forces to occupy Germany, General Eisenhower established his headquarters in a little red school house and from that place, conducted all the operations which resulted in causing the German portion of the Axis to surrender, unconditionally.

General Eisenhower is one of these home-spun Americans, who believes in our ancient landmarks and in keeping with that lofty aim, he selected as his headquarters, the little red school house. He could have selected a place more in prominence and dignity. He could have made his headquarters in some abandoned mansion, such had been occupied by principals in the Axis regime, or in world renowned "Beer Cellar", where Hitler had made most of his vitriolous speeches, attacking the Allied. He could as we have said, had his headquarters in mansions, surrounded by hordes of brilliantly uniformed guards, but none of that for General "Ike" Eisenhower. His guards were GI's, all of whom had his confidence and friendship.

To the contrary, he took the "Little Red School House" famed in poetry and song, one of our ancient landmarks of our free educational system, which was born soon after liberty was declared and which exists to the present day, in defiance of dictatorship or other attempts to destroy it. When the General was besieged by reporters and congratulated on winning the war in Germany, he said: "The credit belonged to the GI Joe's, not to us. It's true that we directed operations, but the boys did the work and to them belongs the credit. As long as we have men like General Eisenhower in this country, we may consider ourselves safe, but what we must avoid, denounce and defend, is attempts at destroying State Rights, without which, we would be thrown into the slime of serfdom and dictatorship. Now, at this particular time, let's 'we the people' instruct our representatives in Congress, to guard the doors of what freedom we have left, which is very little; our independence is gone. Dictatorship has shown its fangs in the past—it will show itself in the future, and we must be vigilant, lest we fall by the wayside and low what our boys have fought and died to uphold.

We had a letter this week from Mrs. Edith Van Schoyck, formerly of White Oaks, but now residing at Walsenburg, Colo., in which she informs us that her youngest son, Bert joined the Navy in March and is now located at San Diego. She sends her kind regards to old friends here and at White Oaks. She wants Bert to get the Outlook, which he will.

Play Ball!

Plans are under way in Carrizozo for formation of a kid's baseball team to enter the American Legion Junior Baseball Program tournament at Albuquerque in August. It is believed that a worthy kid's team can be whipped together in Carrizozo to try to wrestle the State title which has been a monopoly of Albuquerque for a good many years. Who knows... maybe the State championship team to represent New Mexico at the regional tournament in Colorado this year will go from Carrizozo. The local American Legion post promises 100% cooperation in sponsoring the tourney team.
 Mr. Roy Shafer, chairman of the County Commissioners, has promised that the county grid will soon get the ball in shape to play on. Mr. Art Roland has donated baseballs. Other equipment is needed. If you have any around your place not being used and care to donate to this cause, call the Welfare office at the Courthouse and someone will pick it up. You may be sure that it will be put to good use. Most important are players. Any boy in Carrizozo under 18 who wants to play ball is asked to go to the Carrizozo ball park any evening after 5:30 to try for a place on the teams. As many teams will be formed as there are boys to play. So, let's play ball!—A. S. Chavez.

Notice to the Public

The Carrizozo Volunteer Fire Department requests the assistance and cooperation of the public at all future fires within the limits of the Village of Carrizozo as follows:

- All cars pull to the right curb when fire sirens blows and remain until Fire Truck and firemen have reached fire.
- Park car one block away from site of fire.
- Onlookers remain across from site of fire.
- All persons not members of the Fire Department leave hose and equipment alone unless asked to assist by a member of the Department.
- All persons not members of the Fire Department stay off Fire Truck.
- Do not drive on or across any Fire Hose.
- Please do not burn trash in windy days and such fires should always be attended and seen that they are thoroughly extinguished.

These requests are made because of several careless acts of the Public during the past few weeks. On one occasion a passenger car ran over the hose, bursting it and causing a lack of water at the fire. On another occasion a pickup parked on the hose shut off the water for several minutes. One parked their car in a street intersection causing a collision with the Fire Truck and considerable delay and confusion.

The Carrizozo Volunteer Fire Department is a volunteer organization and members must drop their work and get to the fire as soon as possible. If the public will cooperate by abiding by above mentioned requests, the efficiency of the Fire Department will be greatly increased and the necessity of enforcing the ordinance and levying fines against persons violating the City Ordinance relating to Fires will be unnecessary. Henceforth Ordinance No. 28 will be enforced and the public will be required to adhere to said Ordinance.

The Fire Warden and Fire Department will inspect all Public Building for Fire Hazards

AMERICAN REPRESENTATIVES FOR F.D.E. PEACE PLAN

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—Mr. Truman called in privately most of the American delegation to this world conference soon after he took office (several days before the announced conference.)

He told them they had their instructions from Mr. Roosevelt and he did not wish to change those instructions in any particular. His words implied that while he could not go with them, he would hold them responsible for following every detail of the Roosevelt plan.

The plan, of course, has not been made public, any more than was the Truman warning, but it can be outlined upon the highest living authority as running along this following line:

We must not fail to establish the Dumbarton League of the United Nations, no matter what its defects, or the limitations placed upon our program. We must do this because our first duty is to do everything possible to see that war cannot happen again. The next war would destroy civilization.

No matter what we think the best answer to peace is, we must come out of this meeting with a final formula for international relationships. To do this we must give and take, but essentially we must make a beginning toward peace.

WE CANNOT FAIL

We have taken two or three big initial steps (Atlantic charter, Dumbarton, Livadia) and we are now ready for the next. We must succeed in this one. We cannot afford to fail. We cannot stich it out for perfection. We must make come start, whatever it is.

This is the explanation behind all recent Roosevelt-Truman international policy developments as well as the official background tone and guide for the conference.

In my opinion, there was a time a few weeks back when the late Mr. Roosevelt and his State Secretary Stettinius may have had their doubts about going ahead. Their inability to gain their most important objective for small nations and full democratic freedoms universally may well have disappointed them, and at that time there was a chance this conference might have been called off.

Evidently they decided in favor of the above outlined course, and since then after direct request, British changed its mind and sent its Foreign Minister Eden and Stalin changed and sent the equally-ranking Molotov.

This conference, in accordance with these objectives, is to be thrown wide open. It is to be a free forum for airing the causes of the little people primarily. Officially, Mr. Stettinius has been saying it will last four or five weeks, but is more likely to last a couple of months.

Discussion of everything is to be allowed. Every nation will be invited to say all it wishes. The Dumbarton Oaks setup is to be thrown literally upon the table, as if to say to all:

"Here it is, go to it."

Any hope that such a program can be concluded in four or five weeks is therefore, concededly optimistic.

ALTERNATIVE TO PLAN

Now come authorities may well differ with these fundamental conclusions of the government. The alternative to Dumbarton Oaks is not necessarily chaos or another world war. Rather it is bilateral agreements or hemisphere defense or spheres of influence maintained by individual understandings and alliances and substitute courses for peace.

These do not necessarily require wars, or make them any more likely, than a weak or impractical formula for a league, containing, as this one does, the right of big nations to veto any interference with their own wars and no disarmament.

It is unreasonable to say that unless any specific course is followed there will be another world war, or, as the emotional extremist Mr. Wallace, to contend that anyone who is against his tariff views is "advocating another world war."

Russia's excuse for at first deciding to send an inferior ranking diplomat to this world conference was never made public, but it was passed privately and officially to Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Stettinius.

The Kremlin pointed out to them that Molotov was not only the foreign minister in the Soviet setup but the second man of the Stalin government. Stalin said he could not spare Molotov from his side for so long a period just at the critical time of victory in Europe, and because his government is desperately short-handed on diplomats.

Breakfast Club Appeals To Millions of Air Fans

Audiences and Events Make Program of Ever Increasing Interest

By W. J. DRYDEN

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Radio stations and networks throughout the country revised their programs, cancelled outright, or drastically revised all commercial broadcasts when word was received of the death of President Roosevelt. Typical of programs undergoing complete revision was the Breakfast Club's broadcast on which Don McNeill, master of ceremony, paid tribute to the president:

"One of the qualities about Mr. Roosevelt that I always admired," said McNeill, "was his sense of humor. In the tremendous job in which he gave his life he needed a sense of humor for balance. In fact, if he could speak to us now, he might say something like this: 'Never mind the flowery language about me — when my time had come the Lord knew I was not an indispensable man, so get back in there and finish off the job in a hurry, and make a peace so binding, so secure, that this may never happen again. Get back to the days when you can quit worrying about your loved ones and when you can laugh and smile. Your face looks so much better that way.'"

Radio's favorite daytime variety show, the Breakfast Club, owes its popularity to its ardent fans in every city, hamlet and nearly every farm in America. It has been adopted and considered as a part of rural America. By making an appeal to those in rural districts as well as in metropolitan areas, it proved that a morning hour variety show could achieve immense popularity. Scripts have been entirely dispensed with and the cast depends on native wit rather than on gag writers.

Like the program following President Roosevelt's death, each program is created by circumstances and the audience itself. There is no monotony, for the program is life itself, the life as played by its many fans. They create the program, play the parts, give the questions and answers.

Audience's Contributions

There are other reasons for this radio program clicking. Don McNeill, the genial m.c. of the program, which is carried over Blue Network stations of the American Broadcasting company, would say that the audience's contributions are what makes for the remarkable success of the program.

Many fans find other reasons. Some 875,000 of them applied for charter membership in the club in one week.

Each program from Monday through Saturday at 8 a.m. will find 600 fans watching the program. Hundreds are turned away daily from the Chicago studios where the broadcast originates. Tickets are now required two weeks in advance. These people come from all the states in the union. They come to see Don McNeill, who has served as master of ceremonies on more network broadcasts than any other man, woman or child in radio. He has spent more than 4,000 hours before the microphone, and still gains in popularity.

They come to see Nancy Martin, the singing schoolma'am, or songster Marion Mann. They come to see Sam Cowling, the heckler, or Ed Ballatine, the orchestra director, or Ray Grant's Vagabonds.

They come to see Fran Allison's characterizations of genial, gossipy, gauche "Aunt Fanny," which are so realistic that Fran's mother, back in Iowa, is in a perpetual dither for fear that kinfolk might be offended. They come to make the program, their program.

Memory and inspiration time on the broadcast has reached the heartstrings of the Breakfast Club's fans. The prayer and impromptu assignments for D-Day will go down in radio as a classic of the year.

When the program was started 12 years ago, no visitors were allowed. This rule was first broken in 1937, in response to a letter from a hopelessly tubercular marine, who wrote that seeing a performance of the club was chief among the things he wanted to do before his final hour. In 1938, the doors were thrown open to all comers. Since then half a million people have seen the program and watched the "gang" go through their paces.

The program has attracted national attention in its effective work. They are given credit for hav-

Hybrid Hogs Produce Super Meat

Development of a super meat yielding hybrid hog by the application of the same inbreeding methods that produced hybrid corn is the goal of farm authorities.

Thirteen state experiment stations are cooperating in what is known as the Regional Swine Breeding Laboratory, George A. Montgomery writes in Copper's Farmer. They are inbreeding some of the more popular breeds with the hope of establishing superior types. In this they are following the methods of those who developed inbred parent stock for modern hybrid corn.

"The hog men are little further advanced in their program than corn men were 15 or 20 years ago," Mr. Montgomery points out. "They have their inbreds, but the work of main in his herd: 1. Sows must be able to produce large litters of live pigs. 2. A high percentage of pigs born alive must survive to market age. 3. Pigs must gain rapidly from birth to market weight. 4. Feed requirements for each unit of gain must be low. 5. Body form must be such as to produce high yields of the most desirable cuts of pork.

"He has succeeded in fixing the last three characteristics so some of his lines and crosses of these lines excel purebred Polands that have been propagated by ordinary breeding methods. However, inbreeding lowers vitality and, to a lesser extent, fertility; and crossing two unrelated inbred lines of the same breed does not produce the hybrid vigor that comes when two breeds are crossed. Winters ex-combining them to see which ones nick has hardly started. Minnesota and Iowa, for example, have crossed inbred lines of Poland Chinas, with certain elements in the results highly encouraging; others distinctly disappointing.

"At the Minnesota station, Dr. M. L. Winters, working with Poland Chinas, has saved only individuals that best combine five economical desirable characteristics. To re-

Within Irrigation Project

Landowners on 1,029,000 acres in the Columbia river basin in eastern Washington are offered irrigation benefits at $35 per irrigable acre, payable over 40-year period, according to plans approved by Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes. Approval of the repayment plan brings a step nearer the interior department's largest of 300 irrigation and multiple-purpose developments of the bureau.

plains that this is because the base is too narrow.

"Work done at the Minnesota station with ordinary purebred boars bears out this theory. A cross of a purebred boar of one breed with a purebred sow of another gave pigs that were superior to either parent breed. The cross-bred gilts, mated to a purebred boar of a third breed were still better than a two-breed cross.

"If Winters' beliefs are borne out, a farmer of the future may start, for example, with sows obtained by crossing the best line of inbred Polands that come out of Minnesota's experiments on the fastest line of Hampshires developed at the Illinois Experiment station. These would then be bred to an inbred Duroc boar from the line developed at the Ohio station. Gilts of that line might be mated to an inbred Berkshire, after which the producer might go to a Hampshire boar and continue thereafter the Hampshire-Poland-Duroc-Berkshire rotation.

ing started the waste paper salvage drive in the United States. They focused national attention on the crucial manpower shortage in war industries — and early in the war received the government's thanks for this work. At one bond auction McNeill sold $1,114,000 worth of war bonds at the swank Winnetka district. For this he received a treasury citation.

M.C. Don McNeill is an honorary sergeant major at Fort Sheridan and a reserve recruiting official in the marines. He was recently awarded the degree of Doctor of Frustration by the Boswell Institute. His greatest honor, however, he says, is the thousands of letters received from his fans.

The host of the Breakfast Club was born in Galena, Ill., December 23, 1907. That should make him 35 years old, but he insists that he is only 28. Several years later the McNeill family moved to Sheboygan, Wis., where Don attended high school. There is no record of any previous schooling. He gained fame in high school by winning a flyswatting contest. In 1925, he found his way to Milwaukee and enrolled in the college of journalism at Marquette university, where he edited the student newspaper and tooted a snazzy saxophone. His personal representative, Jimmy Bennett, says that the success of both ventures can be determined by the fact that he is no longer employed as a tooter of saxophones or a newspaper editor.

In 1928 he secured a job on a Milwaukee radio station, announcing programs, directing programs, riding gain in the control room, rounding up guest speakers, editing the station's publicity releases and answering the telephone. He was paid $10 a week, which was later increased to $15 a week. When he recently signed a new five-year contract with the Blue Network, it was at a figure slightly above what he was getting at Milwaukee.

After receiving his Ph.D degree he decamped to Louisville, where he became one of the Two Professors, a comedy team over WHAS. In 1933 he went to Chicago, took over the not-too-well-known Pepper Pot program and developed the present Breakfast Club.

Ever since Pearl Harbor, the Breakfast club calendar has been crowded with extra-curricular activities. The entire cast has appeared before hospitals and camps. They have appeared at the Great Lakes training station on several occasions.

When D-Day broke, Don McNeill was on the way to the studio. He cleared the way for the omission of commercials, had patriotic music played and offered up a prayer. The order was to stand by for news flashes and the prayer, which was written 15 minutes before air time.

Hedda Hopper: Looking at HOLLYWOOD

THE DANCE is not only one of the seven lively arts; it's threatening to become the liveliest. In the movies it's always an up-and-down career, if not actually tough going. Our producers have doled it out in fits and starts—a number here, a finale there—as if they were afraid we could not take it in more than five-minute doses. And except for the Astaire-Rogers musicals and an occasional "Cover Girl" we've had mighty few that can really be described as dancing films.

In this connection, the late Mark Sandrich was one of those rare producers—directors who had enough foresight to cry, "On with the dance!" He did the best of those delightful ballroom romances with Ginger and Fred, and just before he died he was preparing "Blue Skies," a cavalcade of hits by my old (but only in years of friendship) pal, Irving Berlin.

Only Local Oversight

But if Hollywood—and exceptions like Mark Sandrich only prove the rule—has failed to grasp the terrific possibilities of the dance, the rest of the country certainly hasn't. On Broadway and in the once so-called hinterlands something has been happening—something to which Hollywood cannot close its eyes much longer.

What has happened, my dears, is that the dance has come into its own. And by dance I don't mean live, although that, my spies report, is doing all right, too. I mean—and it's perfectly safe to come right out and say it—ballet. Only it's ballet with the curse off—pantomime and jazz and the classics and the joy of living, all rolled into one.

Today the big names are those like Agnes De Mille, Jerome Robbins, George Balanchine, and David Lichine, among choreographers, and Leonard Bernstein, brilliant young composer of "Fancy Free" and "On the Town." There are ballets in "Oklahoma," "Bloomer Girl," "One Touch of Venus," "Song of Norway," "Up in Central Park," "La Vie Parisienne," and "Carmen Jones." Antea Dolia and Alicia Markova are demonstrating terpsichore in Billy Rose's "Seven Lively Arts." Vera Zorina, that gorgeous, elflike creature, is posing in Shakespeare's "The Tempest." And Ruth Page and Sgt. Beatley Stone have set New York town—and Commissioner Moss—on their respective ears with a sensational interpretation of "Frankie and Johnny."

Common Denominator

Sooner or later motion pictures and the dance are bound to get together. The very soul of both is rhythm. In one sense they already have. Isn't Walt Disney the greatest creator of rhythm of them all? And we've had our "numbers" and our "specialties" by Veloz and Yolanda, the De Marcos, Carmen Amaya, the Hartmans, Katharine Dunham, and countless others. We've even had a short or two with the Ballet Russe. And we've had Astaire, Gene Kelly, Jimmy Cagney, George Murphy, and that spectacular leaper Marc Platt of "Tonight and Every Night."

Our dancing daughters have been few but precious—Rita Hayworth, Betty Grable, Ann Miller, Ruby Keeler, Eleanor Powell, Ginger (of course), and little Joan McCracken, who highlighted "Hollywood Canteen" with her "Ballet in Jive."

The other day I had the pleasure of watching a sequence from "Wonder Man," Danny Kaye's new one for Sam Goldwyn. Danny wasn't in it, but Vera-Ellen was. She sang and danced a number called "I'm So in Love." Sam hired her without even making a screen test after he'd caught her in "A Connecticut Yankee," and this time I'm betting on his judgment. Vera-Ellen (the last name is Rohe) is not only petite and blonde as Marilyn was; she can put over a song with refreshing charm and she's a dancin' fool.

If Warners ever get around to making that Marilyn Miller film they'll be wise to have a look at Vera-Ellen. It's O.K. with Sam Goldwyn of course.

Incidentally, Goldwyn, who is something of a wonder himself, has already snapped up Jerome Robbins, who staged the dances for "On the Town," to design numbers for Danny Kaye's next. Which brings ballet that much nearer to the screen.

Over-Age at 15 Months

Gene Tierney thought for one exciting moment she'd get her daughter in for a christening scene in "Dragonwyck." In fact, Joe Mankiewicz led her to believe it, then asked how old the baby was. She said, "15 months." "Sorry," said Joe, "She's 14 months too old." . . . Since so much fuss, feathers, and furbelows have been put on her in "The Dolly Sisters," Betty Grable thinks our costume designers should get an award next year. Why not? Set designers do.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lesson for May 13

THE TRAGEDY OF THE NORTHERN KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 12:26-30, 12:14, 13:18; II Kings 17:7, 8.
GOLDEN TEXT—O magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt His name together.—Psalm 34:3.

Nations as well as people come to crossroads in their history, and taking the wrong road then means future disaster. Solomon had built up a great national prosperity, but at the expense of heavy taxes. He had forgotten God, and was succeeded by a son who followed in his footsteps.

Offered an opportunity to ease the burden of the people (I Kings 12:14), Rehoboam in his folly made it greater, and the nation was divided. The ten northern tribes, which were henceforth to be known as Israel, followed Jeroboam, and the two southern tribes under Rehoboam became the kingdom of Judah.

Jeroboam, started with God's favor, and might have led his people aright, but instead he became the king whose name stood for wickedness (see II Kings 15:18). The story of that downfall is a sad picture of unbelief and failure.

I. Religion Meets Politics (I Kings 12:28-30).

Jerusalem, now in the rival kingdom of Judah, was the center of Hebrew worship. While the people of Israel were free to go there to worship, Jeroboam saw that it might lead to their being led away from him. It was a shrewd political deduction, but it left God out of the picture.

He established new centers of worship, where calves of gold were set up. They were probably intended to be a symbol of God, but they bespeak the folly of mixing worldly things with the things of God. They become an abomination and a snare.

The people responded to the apparent interest of the king in their welfare, and worshiped at the most convenient place. Religion had met politics, and had let politics take the upper hand.

Someone has suggested that when we begin to find ways to make our religion easy, we can be certain that it is the enemy of our souls who is at work. When Satan begins to be solicitous about our welfare and suggest that it is too far to go to church, or that the weather is too cold (or too warm), etc., etc., we should be on guard.

Religious ease was a big step downward for Israel, and it can be for any other nation. Where does America stand in that important matter?

II. A Queen Meets a Prophet (I Kings 19:14, 13b-18).

Elijah under the mighty hand of God had defied the wicked king, Ahab, and his more wicked queen, Jezebel; yes, and all the prophets of Baal, and had been gloriously victorious (I Kings 10:17-41).

The queen, who was devilish in her wickedness and determination to destroy the worship of the true God, threatened the prophet. He who had met the challenge of the hundreds of prophets fled in fear before the relentless hatred of this venomous woman.

The prophet felt that all was lost, but God revealed to him that even in that dark day there were many who were still true to Him (v. 10). It is a precious and encouraging bit of light in an otherwise dark scene.

Our main interest in this lesson is not the experience of the prophet, but in seeing the cause of Israel's downfall. Here we see one great reason—every king of Israel was a wicked man. Some were better and some worse, but all of them forgot God.

A nation is on the downward path when its rulers forget God. What about our own nation? What about the elected representatives of the people? Do we choose men for public office because of their Christian faith and character, or on the basis of political expediency or affiliation?

III. A Nation Meets Its Doom (II Kings 17:7, 8).

The hour had struck when God's heavy hand of judgment had to fall on Israel, the northern kingdom of 10 tribes. Verse 6 of this chapter relates their carrying away into captivity to Assyria, and verses 7-9 tell us the reason for that judgment.

Ingratitude for God's blessing (v. 7) led to the worship of other gods (v. 8). They knew God's hatred for the sin of idolatry, and His judgment upon those who walked in that way, but they went right on.

Note in verse 9 that these things were done "secretly." "The same thing is true today of many who profess to be the people of God. The line of demarcation between the church and the world is not clearly drawn. We do well to note carefully the outcome of this course of procedure on Israel's part (vv. 6, 18). The fact that Israel did these things secretly did not hide them from the eyes of Jehovah (Ps. 139:1, 2; Heb. 4:13)" (John W. Bradbury).

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Vegetables Rescue Luncheon Time From Doldrums

Creamy rice, tinged red with tomatoes and garnished with eggs, peeks through this pretty loaf dish and flirts with winter-weary appetites.

If you have any luncheon obligations, take care of them during the spring. You have the fresh colors of spring flowers to help out your table motif and a gardenful of fresh fruit and crisp green vegetables.

Yes, give your luncheons in spring. A group of feminine guests won't expect the hearty substantial affair that a male gathering would, so you can lay aside the ration book and concentrate on point-free foods.

There are eggs, plentiful in spring, asparagus, tomatoes, greens, strawberries and rhubarb. All make colorful and delectable eating.

Your table will be pretty carried out in the delicate shades of green and pale pink, green and yellow, or pale blue gray and yellow. Do have flowers if it's at all possible because they make-for-freshness and gaiety. Or, work out an attractive arrangement in fruit. A fresh pineapple surrounded with oranges and shiny apples draped with grapes is effective.

My first suggestion is for a scalloped dish of eggs and tomatoes which is a pretty blending of white, yellow and touches of green and red.

*Scalloped Eggs and Tomatoes. (Serves 6 to 8)
1 1/2 cups scallions or small onions
4 tablespoons butter or substitute
2 cups cooked tomatoes
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon marjoram
1/2 teaspoon celery seed
2 cups boiled rice
2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
3/4 cup grated American cheese

Cook the sliced scallions in butter or substitute until they are about tender. Mix together tomatoes, salt, marjoram, celery seed and cooked scallions. Place half of the boiled rice in the bottom of a well-greased loaf pan; cover with tomato and scallion mixture and with a layer of sliced eggs. Place the

Tomato-Bacon Luncheon. (Serves 4)

4 firm ripe tomatoes
3 tablespoons butter or salad oil
1/2 pound fresh mushrooms
1 green pepper, chopped
1 cup cream
Salt and pepper to taste
8 toast triangles
8 slices bacon, broiled

Cut tomatoes in 1/2-inch slices and brown on both sides in butter or oil. Remove from pan and fry mushrooms, green pepper about five minutes. Remove vegetables from pan, add cream to drippings, bring to a boil and season. Arrange vegetables on top of toast. Cover with sauce and top each toast triangle with a slice of bacon.

The above is good when served with a cantaloupe salad, and ice cream with toasted almonds.

If you tire of potato-salad-reading, I'd suggest you give yourself a different treat with a macaroni salad, molded to be pretty as a picture and garnished cleverly with deviled eggs ornamented with pimiento:

*Macaroni Salad. (Serves 3 to 10)
1/2 pound elbow macaroni
4 cups tomato juice
3 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin in
1/2 cup cold water
1 cup diced chicken or ham or flaked salmon or tuna fish
1/2 cup diced celery
1/2 cup canned peas or diced green pepper.

Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain. Rinse with cold water and allow to cool. Heat the tomato juice to boiling. Add gelatin which has been dissolved in the cold water. Cool mixture. Then add other ingredients and place in oiled mold. Refrigerate until set. Unmold and serve garnished with deviled eggs, pimiento and cucumber slices.

The dessert for the above main dish salad can be hearty. You might like applesauce cake with chocolate icing, icebox cake or lemon meringue pie.

Meatless is the description for this spaghetti with its vegetable balls that taste like meat and a savory sauce also made of vegetables.

Have you gone vegetarian enough to eat your spaghetti that way? Then you'll like this recipe which makes a tasty dish but still saves points:

Vegetarian Spaghetti. (Serves 6 to 8)
1/2 pound spaghetti
Cook the spaghetti in boiling, salted water until tender; drain. In the meantime make up the following mixture:
1 onion, medium
1 green pepper
4 carrots
4 stalks celery
1/2 to 1 cup ground cooked meat, poultry or fish, if desired.

Grind vegetables and then blend with ground meat, poultry or flaked fish. Mix 1 egg and 1 cup fine dry bread crumbs into mixture. Shape into balls and fry in hot fat or drippings. Remove and drain, then place on top of vegetable sauce made as follows:

3 tablespoons drippings or oil
1/4 cup onion, chopped
1/2 cup green pepper
1 cup diced celery
1 cup mushrooms (optional)
2 cups canned tomatoes

Cook the onion, green pepper, celery and mushrooms in hot drippings until lightly browned. Then add tomatoes and cook until thickened. Serve by heaping spaghetti on platter, garnish with vegetable balls and pour sauce over all.

Logs Debarked by High Pressure Jets of Water

Several sawmills now remove bark from logs at the rate of 20 feet in 30 seconds with a new machine that fires two jets of water down at them as they rotate and pass by on a conveyor, says Collier's.

As the jets exert the tremendous pressure of 1,400 pounds per square inch, they are moved back and forth rapidly on a carriage, so that they will not bore holes in the logs.

SNAPPY FACTS about RUBBER

In 1942, our first year at war, 4 1/2% of the rubber consumed in the U. S. was synthetic; in 1943, 35%, and in 1944 80%. At the present time, more than 85% is synthetic.

The synthetic rubber industry is using soap at the rate of 100,000,000 pounds a year—enough to cover the needs of the population of Chicago for one year.

A new kind of synthetic rubber has been developed from lactic acid (buttermilk).

The B. F. Goodrich Company has made experimental tires of rubber produced from kokisaghyz, the Russian dandelion.

Household Hints

When making pancakes, here is a useful tip: Rub a little salt over the frying-pan when it is hot. The batter will not stick then.

Used crankcase oil may be used to paint fences and gates. Paint only during dry weather.

Squeeze a little lemon juice through the meat grinder before grinding dates, figs, prunes or raisins and they will leave the chopper more readily.

By cooking in dishes that you can bring right to the table, food will stay hot longer and you will save yourself dishwashing.

To avoid fatigue while you are ironing or doing any work where you remain long in one spot, stand on a heavy rug or rubber mat.

Dusting with talcum or cornstarch will help keep rubber gloves from sticking together on the inside. The powder is dusted both on the inside and on the outside. This should be done on any rubber material that lies folded.

THELMA GILDA

Psi Lambda Tau sorority at Central High School.

The Misses Gilda and Thelma Klevit announced that parents who'd like a night out, but are held home-bound by baby's needs, now may break their shackles in the easiest possible fashion—by purchasing a War Bond from one of a group of 20 sorority girls.

Graduated now, the Sisters Klevit have kept up their contact with their friends, and when not tending baby are Federal workers. They'll take care of baby if pop and mom will buy a War Bond.

The sisters said that during previous loans other sororities and some fraternities shoveled ashes, cleaned cellars and did other household chores in return for War Bond purchases and they suggest their plan be carried out nationally.

The Country's First "War Loan" Advertisement

ADVERTISEMENT

NOTICE is hereby given to all who have contracted to send wagons and teams or single horses from York County to the Army at Wills Creek, that David M. Conaughy and Michael Schwoope of said county, Gentlemen, will attend on my behalf at York Town on Friday next, and at Philip Fornays on Saturday, to value or appraise all such wagons, teams and horses, as shall appear at those places on the said days for that purpose; and such as do not appear must be valued at Wills Creek. The wagons that are valued at York and Fornays are to be set out immediately after valuation from thence to Wills Creek. The Conduct and Direction of Persons I shall appoint for the purpose. The owner or owners of each wagon or set of horses should bring with them a paper containing a description of their several horses in writing, with their several marks natural and artificial; which paper is to be annexed to the contract. Each wagon should be furnished with a cover, that the goods laden therein may be kept from damage by the rain, and the health of the drivers preserved, who are to lodge in the wagons. And each cover should be marked with the contractor's name in large characters. Each wagon, and every horse driver, should also be furnished with a hook or sickle, fit to cut long grass that grows in the country beyond the mountains. As all the wagons are obliged to carry a load of oats, or Indian corn, persons who have such grain to dispose of are desired to be cautious how they hinder the King's Service, by demanding an extravagant price on this occasion.

BEN FRANKLIN, at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, on May 6, 1755, caused to be written what is termed the country's first war loan advertisement. Franklin warned his readers against inflationary prices lest they "hinder the King's Service," a lesson still good in the Mighty Seventh War Loan. The document was written in German as well as English. Superimposed on the original are the words used by Franklin. This was a loan of materials and not of dollars.

Nation's School Children Ready To Assume Part in Seventh Drive

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The nation's 30,000,000 school children are again all set to assume as much responsibility as is given them in helping to meet the $7,000,000,000 quota set for sales of War Bonds to individuals in the Seventh War Loan. The demonstrated sales effectiveness of school children was an important factor in the determination of the dates set for this new Drive—May 14th through June 30th. Incidence on the part of many War Finance Chairmen throughout the country paid tribute to the vital support that pupils, teachers and school administrators have given previous Bond Drives. A recent survey reveals that more than 20 million people heard about the Sixth War Loan from school children. Over eleven million were directly asked to buy bonds by these boys and girls, a little less than a third of whom were solicited in no other way. The participation of school children ranges from rallies at their schools to the taking over of actual house-to-house canvassing. In Pennsylvania, a small New Jersey town, during the last Drive, E Bond sales were lagging badly. In desperation, the War Finance Committee turned to the students of the town's two high schools and one grammar school. "If the adults won't do it, it's up to you," the County Chairman told them. Accepting the challenge, within a week boys and girls had sold $25,000 worth of bonds, and before the close of the Drive, Pennsylvania's 6,485 citizens had topped their E Bond quota by $17,000. "Let's chuck that worriment about youth taking responsibility into the ash can," said the local weekly newspaper. In Michigan, public schools sold $23,750,500 worth of bonds in the Sixth War Loan, with Detroit schools contributing almost a third of this

Marshall, King Pledge Victory to 'Bond Front'

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Army has overcome what in the past would have seemed to have been insurmountable obstacles. The Navy has promised full unconditional surrender. Chief of Staff General George C. Marshall and Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King said today, in commenting on the Mighty Seventh War Loan. General Marshall said: "We in the Army have overcome what in the past would have seemed to have been insurmountable obstacles. We have calculated for us Americans, nothing has ever been impossible. Yours is a hard task—a heavy responsibility. But we of the Army have confidence that you will again achieve the impossible."

Admiral King said: "We have had two wars to wage. One of those wars is just beginning. That means that your own labors, far from over, are also just beginning. The Navy, like the Army, has one objective. The unconditional surrender of the enemy. We will attain that objective because of people of good faith. People who have demonstrated their patriotism and their willingness to undertake the most gigantic financial task ever undertaken by a free people."

Preparing fellow townspeople for solicitation by the pupils of Fairmount School, Hackensack, N. J., the principal wrote: "You may feel that we are placing an unusual responsibility on our children, but they are unusual children, living in unusual times. They are sincere in their belief that the future of America depends upon our continued support of every man in the line of battle." His pupils sold bonds worth more than $1,050,000 in the Sixth War Loan.

Farmers Plan Greater Buys in War Bonds

In spite of an "off" season so far as income is concerned, farm War Bond leaders are now making preparations for selling more bonds to farmers during the Seventh War Loan than in any previous Drive according to M. L. Predmore, Chief of the Agricultural Section, War Finance Division, Treasury Department. "With the help of country bankers they're out to convince the mer- who till the soil that they should convert their expanded bank accounts into bonds. "Farmers like all Americans have been building up bank deposit and currency holdings ever since the war started," Predmore said. "On January 1, 1920, agriculture held currency and bank deposits totaling slightly over 4 billion dollars. The 1945 figure is not available, but it is expected to be in excess of 10 billion. With larger operations and increased costs, farmers must have more operating capital than in 1940 but they don't need 10 billion, in Predmore's opinion. He believes farmers can and will put a substantial portion of these cash reserves into War Bonds. When they go out to sell War Bonds to farmers in the Seventh War Finance Committees through out the nation will stress persons solicitation. A survey made following the Sixth War Loan showed that 57 percent of the farmers who were personally solicited bought bonds."

FIGHT ON DISTEMPER IS GAINING GROUND

Vaccination Prevents Many Cases and Scrums Soften Attack of Dog Malady Carry a person through the ailments of his first twelve or thirteen years and chances are that he will grow into a sturdy, healthy individual. Carry a dog through its first year and in all probability you will have a vigorous, hardy servant or companion for the rest of its life.

this malady is not nearly so hopeless as it once was. It is wise, therefore, when a dog shows first signs of illness that might mean distemper to place him in the hands of a competent veterinarian at once. It has been observed that puppies with weak constitutions and pampered, overfed, underexercised pets are the most likely to contract the infection. As in the case of human influenza, a filterable virus starts the trouble and bacterial organisms do the rest. A rise in body temperature, accompanied by shivering or sneezing, an eye or nasal discharge, diarrhea, partial loss of appetite and sluggishness, is very suggestive of distemper. In immunizing his puppy against distemper, the dog owner has his choice of several methods, any one of which is helpful in controlling the disease. The best time for immunization is when the puppy is three to four months of age. Usually there are two injections of vaccine or serum two weeks or so apart, with a final administration of living virus the dog to be inoculated should be free of worms or rickets and in a state of general good health.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Allies Mount Drives to Smash Nazi Pockets for Early Win; Guerrillas Pare Jap Strength

Released by Western Newspaper Union. (EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Forced to view emaciated bodies of atrocity victims near Weimar, German civilians register conflicting emotions. Stories of brutalities have led congressmen to call for harsh peace.

EUROPE: Trap Closes

With Adolf Hitler himself directing the city's defenses, Berlin stood as a burning symbol as combined U. S., British, Russian and French armies sought a speedy knockout of German remnants to bring the war to an early conclusion.

Of all the savage-city fighting of World War II—fighting which left such historic centers as Warsaw and Vienna in ruin—none approached the ferocity of the battle for Berlin, where German women and even children reportedly joined the 500,000 army defenders in a fanatical attempt to curb the Russian steam-roller.

With both Germans and Russians fighting with a burning hatred for each other, the battle swirled from house to house through rubble strewn streets, with mangled Red artillery and air fleets steadily reducing enemy strongpoints. Said Russian correspondents: "Each stone of the city, each meter of street, is against us. We have to take them with our blood."

As the Reds' vise closed on embattled Berlin and Hitler exposed himself to one of the most dramatic captures in history, elements of the two Russian armies attacking the city swept beyond it westward for a junction with American troops along the Elbe and Mulde rivers. Meanwhile, still another Red force smashed past Steflin to drive westward along the Baltic coast and join British troops whittling Nazi pockets in the north.

Working together to slash off the Germans in the north, the allies also cooperated to K. O. them in the south, with two drives aiming to smash the Nazis' vaunted national redoubt in the Bavarian Alps and pinch off the great arsenal of Czechoslovakia.

In the first instance, the French 1st army, the U. S. 7th and 9th and the Russians rode hard on the enemy's mountain hideout from the west, north and east in an attempt to enter it before fanatical SS men could steady themselves for a stand. In the other instance, the U. S. 3rd army pushed into Czechoslovakia from the west while Russians moved in from the east, with the Yanks also swinging southward into Austria for a hookup with the Reds. Thus was a solid ring of steel forged around Hitler's last important industrial area.

In Italy, fast U. S. and British motorized columns and low-flying planes shot up retreating Nazi troop columns falling back on the Alps to the north. Italian partisans fast took over administration of this last stronghold of Mussolini's.

POSTWAR SECURITY: Discuss Terms

An delegates from 46 United Nations fashioned a postwar organization to keep the peace at the San Francisco conference, they pondered amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks plan, serving as a basis for such a body.

Foremost among the amendments were those proposed by China and supported by the U. S., Britain and Russia calling for the application of justice and international law in settlement of disputes; the referral of changes or development of such law to the assembly of the security organization; and the addition of educational and cultural cooperation to the postwar body's responsibilities.

FARM VALUES

Farm real estate sales continued in large volume in 1944, activity in the first quarter being the highest on record, the American Bankers association reports. Now, fewer farms are reported as being offered for sale, but the demand is steadily increasing.

Farms held by insurance companies, banks, and estates have been sold in most areas and will no longer be a dampening influence on the market, the A.B.A. said.

membership on the executive council, and with any of the five big nations able to check the use of force or economic sanctions for aggression, many of the smaller countries strove for greater representation of the smaller states in policy making.

PACIFIC: Guerrillas Help

Effective in harassing enemy strength in Europe, guerrillas are playing an equally effective role in the Philippines, where their operations behind Japanese lines are helping to reduce their position.

While regular American army units tightened their hold on the Baguio district in northern Luzon, where the Japanese were putting up a last stand, Philippine guerrillas sallied far behind the front lines to capture the big port of Vigan and adjacent airfield and clean up the entire province of Ilocos Sur.

Meanwhile, Japanese defenses on bloody Okinawa crumbled under the terrific weight of U. S. naval, low-flying aerial and artillery bombardment, with the Yanks fighting forward through battered entrenchments. Japanese dead far outnumbered prisoners, again indicating the ferocity with which they resisted.

FRANCE: Bombshell

With Marshal Henri Petain still commanding a large following, France seethed as the 59-year-old hero of Verdun of World War I and collaborationist of World War II voluntarily returned to his native country to stand trial on charges of plotting against the state.

Famed for stopping the Germans at Verdun in 1916 when they threatened to break the back of French resistance, Petain gained notoriety after his country's downfall in 1940 for a cooperative policy with the enemy which his followers aver was necessary for him to obtain fair treatment for the stricken nation.

Declaring that at his age one had only to fear a failure to perform his duty, Petain said he was returning for trial not only to clear his own honor, but also to protect all of his followers. The peculiarity of the Marshal's position is exemplified by the fact that some of his reforms have been carried over by the De Gaulle government.

MEAT: Supply Cut

Ringing true to predictions that the meat situation would grow even tighter, OPA revealed a 2 1/2 per cent cut in supplies this month from April, with slightly more veal, lamb, mutton and pork offset by about 9,000,000 pounds less beef.

At the same time, OPA announced that rationing would be extended to cover 93 1/2 per cent of all available meat items, with only about 5,000,000 pounds of mutton left on a point-free basis. Cull and utility grades of veal and lamb and the breasts, shanks, necks and flanks of those meats were put on the red-point list.

Keep Troops Moving

Approximately 38,600,000 troops were carried by rail in organized movements from Pearl Harbor to the end of February, 1945, the Association of American Railroads discloses.

POW LABOR

Prisoners of war held in the continental United States did more than $44,000,000 worth of work during the first three months of 1945, the war department announced.

Helping relieve a serious manpower shortage in the United States, the prisoners performed 8,850,108 man days of work on army posts and 3,230,465 man days of work for private contractors during the three-month period, the Provost Marshal General's office reported.

SHOES: Tight Fit

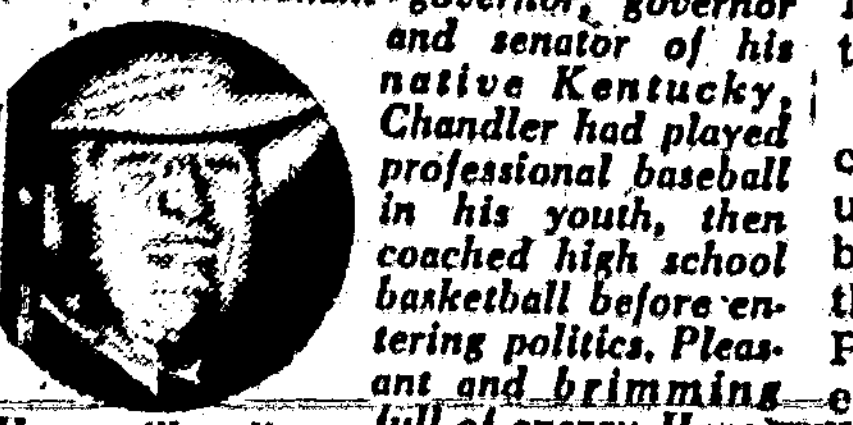

Forced to renege on its promise of validating another shoe stamp for children this spring, OPA found itself compelled to go one step farther in conserving the tight supply of footwear by limiting vets to two stamps in a book and new babies to one—in the latter case, to prevent use of more stamps by adults.

Though OPA later backtracked on its promise to increase children's shoe rationing in recognition of their greater use of footwear, it said 150,000,000 pairs of part leather or composition shoes would be produced for sale to both youths and adults without stamps. However, few of these shoes have reached dealers' hands.

Factor in the continued shoe shortage, OPA officials said, was the under-supply of full grown and fattened steers, which produce the best leather. Because stockers have trimmed their feeding of these animals on complaint of unfair cellophane prices, decreased amounts of this leather is available.

Happy Czar

When burly, bubbly, 46-year-old Senator Albert B. (Happy) Chandler was appointed commissioner of organized baseball to succeed the late Judge Landis, the game obtained not only an able executive but an enthusiastic sportsman as well.

Graduate of the Harvard and Kentucky university law schools, and former state legislator, lieutenant-governor, governor and senator of his native Kentucky, Chandler had played professional baseball in his youth, then coached high school basketball before entering politics. Pleasant and brimming with energy, Happy soon made his mark as a politico, being first appointed to the U. S. senate after losing a close race to Senator Alben Barkley.

Indicative of Chandler's disposition is the story of his stopping off to watch a sandlot game in Washington, D. C., while on his way to see ex-Secretary of State Cordell Hull. Jumping into the game when one side became short-handed, Happy stayed to the finish, then rushed to keep his appointment. Sweated and dusty.

WAR SURPLUS: Wallace's Baby

Charged with the welfare of both domestic and foreign business, the department of commerce was given the responsibility of disposing of consumer and miscellaneous, surplus war property formerly handled by the treasury.

Although over-all policies are determined by the Surplus Property board in spirit with the surplus properties act, administration of the regulations will lie with newly appointed Secretary Henry A. Wallace's commerce department, thus affording him the opportunity of proving his executive mettle on a difficult job which must be fitted so as not to disrupt the normal economy and accomplished to obtain the maximum return for the government.

WHEAT: Big Carryover

With surplus wheat stocks of the U. S., Canada, Argentina and Australia expected to total approximately 550,000,000 bushels on July 1, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported that this amount would be sufficient for world trade without compelling any of the countries to draw upon carryovers for 1945.

In the U. S. alone, the bureau said, surplus may reach 350,000,000 to 375,000,000 bushels in view of the difficulty of exporting sizable quantities because of the shortage of freight cars for shipment to ports.

Unless a great many more cars are available for movement of wheat which has piled up in country elevators and on farms during the last five months, it was said, not only the export program for lend-lease and foreign relief may be hampered but also the handling of the prospective large 1945 crop.

ARMY DISCHARGES: Limited Releases

Even should German resistance continue through the summer, army plans call for the release of some 375,000 prisoners of service regardless of age, military officials disclosed.

At the same time, congress moved to preclude the use of 18-year-olds in combat without six months of training.

Under the army's plans, some men who volunteered as the military expansion program got underway in 1940 or were among the first inducted would be discharged, with releases dependent upon the availability of the individual from his unit.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—There is something significant, I believe, in the fact that this world conference which hopes to plot a happier course for the future of the world is being held at the Golden Gate. I can't help contrasting the atmosphere with that which enveloped the gathering on the banks of the Seine 26 years ago, which I also covered.

I think there is much more hope for success for this gathering than there was for the Paris conference two decades ago, although most of us who crowded the into its opening session on the Quai d'Orsay in Paris on a sunny January day in 1919, were well supplied with hope, too.

I think the meeting place was well chosen and if the agenda becomes unfinished business, it might well be concluded on the same spot where the clean fog sweeps in from the Pacific whose wide waters unite the east and the west.

There still lingers on California's shores the memory of its multifold historical national contacts. It was here in "Drake's Bay" that the famous English explorer is said to have stopped to repair his ship. I say was Drake's bay for later, Cermeño, the Spaniard, on a voyage from Manila in 1595, was shipwrecked in the same body of water and gave it its present name of San Francisco bay. The Franciscan missionaries built missions a mule-daily's journey apart from southern northern California. The sword followed the cross and Portola's Spanish soldiers fought their way up to what is still called the Pracido, the very year the American nation was born.

Less definite are the records of the czar's explorers but the "Russian river" just north of here remains a flowing memento of their early visits.

Less distinguished Chinese and Japanese came and raised their problems; great settlements of Hindus remain in the state and colonies of Swiss and Italians toil among vineyards reproducing the products of their homelands.

Seek to Build

On Firm Ground

As I write these lines two things appear as near certainties an certainties exist in this kaleidoscopic world. The United Nations are sincere in the hope of erecting some sort of structure which, if it is humanly possible to do so, can provide a place for the shelter, care and feeding of the dove of peace.

A shadowy and almost paradoxical corollary of this statement is the frank acknowledgment that probably one desideratum primum omnium of only one of the great powers is the international organization itself. What Russia and Britain want, first of all, is an inner citadel girded by strong mutually protective alliances. The rest of the structure is, for them, largely window dressing. Nevertheless, to obtain cooperation among the strong few, they are willing to include the weaker many.

The second thing which I think even at this juncture can be predicted is that no matter how harmonious the building of this new temple of hope may be, the final edifice will be constructed on such a broad foundation and with such wide portals, that it will not confine its tenants to any very strict restraint of action. There will be plenty of room to turn around in it, in case some of the occupants feel they don't want to go in exactly the same direction as their fellows. This is not a cynical conclusion—it is simply the result of a practical desire not to put anything in the way of getting something started. The American delegation realizes that.

An agreement on major questions which could be decided following the meeting of Stettinius, Molotov and Eden was announced by the delegation before we left Washington, which meant that Senator Vandenberg was satisfied that the wording of the final agreement which the Americans would accept contained enough elasticity to provide an "escape clause." This assures the senate and the American people that

One of the shortages which has not been called to general attention is the lack of garbage cans. The OPA says that only one-fifth of the number demanded is being produced. This will soon be evident to anyone who doesn't hold his nose.

CHAPTER I

Melody Jones and his side-rider, George Fury, had not expected to wind up in Payneville.

for any way of riding but his own. Melody was a double-rig, tie-fast man.

The girl went into the Lost Dutchman Saloon. The wind went out of Melody, so definitely that his pony took advantage of him and stopped.

Consequently, as they rounded the shoulder of some mountain—it later turned out to be Big Bone Ledge—they were rocked in their saddles by the sight of a sizable town immediately below.

Old George Fury looked surprised. The town was big enough to hold several hundred people, and it gave George a creepy sense of insecurity to see it appear out of nowhere.

He estimated the amount of jerky hanging up in a Mexican outdoor beanyery, and his cattle-counting eye told him there were forty-seven strips about a yard long.

As Melody went up the steps to the store's broad gallery he was wary and watchful again. Two men, a big one and a little one, loomed on the gallery, just outside the door.

Melody didn't look any special way. At twenty-two he was lanky and relaxed, and looked four years younger than his age.

George Fury, who sometimes took four days to pass a given saloon, would not get any farther, just yet.

Both wore low-strapped forty-fives, the same as Melody himself, except that Melody's was in the thigh pocket of his ragged shot-gun chaps.

"I should judge she's a cow town," Melody said. "I can tell by the corral."

George Fury snorted. Corrals or not, the town could not possibly have been anything else.

Melody shrugged. "Them things is easy for me."

While Melody looked at him, the man's eyes changed, then the whole face. The eyes sharpened to a quick focus, not on Melody, but across the street; and it was as if the sleepy knife had turned point first and sung past Melody's ear.

"It beats me how she come here," George Fury said, staring at the town.

Melody turned slowly on his high heel, feet apart to clear his long-chained spur, and followed the man's eyes. It was like Melody thought. The girl had come out of the Lost Dutchman. Not thirsty after all. Looking for somebody.

"I mind one night I rode into Salice," Melody said, "and it was right where I think it was, and all, only some way I come into it from the east, instead of from the west.

The stranger's hat flew off, and his head spun sideways, slamming against the board front with a boom that shook the store.

Melody could not carry a tune, so of course liked to sing, but he did not get his name from this. His real name was Melvin, and this had got changed to Melody at Javelina, Texas, where the Rio Grande draws the wandering border with Mexico.

The man himself half buckled at the knees, his face a blank amazement. He slid sideways against the wall, and came down sitting on his hat.

"It beats me how she come here," George Fury said, staring at the town.

Melody stood watching the fellow shake his head and feel out the workings of his jaw, and Melody had never been worse dumbfounded in his life.

George Fury snorted again, and pushed his shaggy pony down the twist of the trail toward the town which he did not yet know was Payneville.

Melody pushed his pony on up the street, through the soft dust. He was following the girl along with an innocent detachment that would have killed George Fury.

Payneville was a crossing town. A wagon route west from Diamond Forks to California crossed the river here, and trail herds of cattle, pushing north to the railroad, forded the same shallows.

Up from the wooden face the stranger's eyes were looking at Melody like a couple of cactus buds. Melody stooped and got a grip on the gun arm with both hands, his head canted to bounce off a possible crusher from the stranger's left.

George Fury glared sideways at him. "What in hell's the matter with you? You got your snout rubbed up like you was going to bawl."

A few weeks later Laura was hailed by Mrs. Farnham, who was on the porch brushing sofa cushions. She waved the brush with a condescending gesture.

As they drew closer, riding between the bones of vanished buffalo, Payneville looked dustier, and more ramshackle. They entered the town through a drift of ruined huts, stared at by mestizo children, and turned at a slow plod into Court Street.

Laura locked up, glanced at her watch and wished her big, old-fashioned house were a bit nearer the bus line. As near as Mrs. Farnham's modern bungalow.

Melody modified his expression somewhat, as well as he could. Melody had originally started out from Two Lance, Montana, at fourteen or fifteen, on the occasion of It's becoming an old story to Dinah Shore, this business of being named the No. 1 radio songstress of the nation, in a newspaper poll. So far this season it's happened 11 times—but to Dinah it's still pretty thrilling.

Probably the most carefully guarded plot in Hollywood was that of "Notorious," Ingrid Bergman's picture, which Alfred Hitchcock will direct for David O. Selznick. Hitchcock and Ben Hecht wrote most of the story in a hotel room in New York. Only they and Selznick knew for some time what sort of role Miss Bergman would play.

GASLESS-FUEL HERE, Says Engineer. It sounds too good to be true, but modern new car has FIVE TIMES MORE MILEAGE than they ever did before. The Beasley Engineering Co. will tell you how to convert his engine with one and done operation and will operate, without fuel, on non-flammable clean fuel, resulting in a 50% oil in fuel saving. This is a revolutionary new idea. BEASLEY'S assures complete satisfaction. These instructions are given for the purpose of saving gas costs and not for avoiding gas or mileage rationing. Write TODAY to the BEASLEY ENGINEERING CO. for instructions. The Big 2000.

OREGON CAPITOL

Oregon's capitol at Salem is now one of the fine structures which Americans buy War Bonds to protect. It's new and beautiful; one of the nation's prized possessions. It is worth buying a great many War Bonds to provide planes and material for our fighting men to use in its defense. Oregon City and Corvallis were capitals of the territory for brief periods but Salem became the permanent capital when Congress provided funds for the erection of territory capitol buildings there and the U. S. Treasury refused to provide the funds for construction anywhere else. Fire destroyed the first capitol and also another in 1915.

Extension Club
Clothing Drive

Members of the Hondo Extension Club took the initiative in the Hondo and Ruidoso Valleys in sponsoring a Drive in the rural areas during the month of April. Members of the Extension Club and the Friends Club are six quilts, in addition to sewing all leaders in collecting various garments in that area.

Part of the collection was brought to the last meeting of the club and was delivered to Mrs. Henry Hoffman, in Carrizozo to be turned in with the Carrizozo collection. Other members turned in their collection at Ruidoso.

AMERICAN HEROES
By WOODY COWAN

Pike, South Dakota, can be proud of Lt. Robert Pershing Williams. Decorated with the Navy Cross and the Distinguished Flying Cross, Lt. Williams, spotting a German sub while piloting a Navy Torpedo Bomber in the Atlantic, attacked the enemy without supporting fighter planes. He released four depth charges, all of which exploded close, sinking the sub and throwing enemy personnel into the water. For his heroism and extraordinary achievement Lt. Williams received the Gold Star, War Bonds buy depth charges. (See such heroic acts.)
