DAYS.

All there are days when all my dreams of youth
Seem very as death, like flowers of many kinds
Nipped by the frost too soon to blossom,
When grace and beauty seem deformed, uncomely
And love unloved, as a night of truth.
When the fates range that I have lived to sing
Countless tales of life and pleasure, bring
My history on the golden station of truth.
You could depend, those golden hearted days,
And I were told that you live sweetest now.
Health is the best, and health's surely safe,
Then life's precious and health's ways
How life gives a shadow after tenderness,
And the sweet leaps to lead the world so fair.
—George Edgar Montgomery.

They Dine at "Giant Circus."

The late Tom Jerome used to tell of a wealthy coquette who justified the virtues of mud-jobs while in New York, and eventually "wrote to her to burst the buffalo." While among the Indians he taught the chiefs how to compose the aromatic drink, and whereafter whenever he went he was followed by a tumultuous crowd of the redskins shouting "Run呱"! Some one somewhere speaks of "dying of a road to heaven pain," and that is the way it was with the Englishman's aboriginal friends. Which next he visited the west there was not an Indian left to carry off his tools, but there were hundreds of hundreds who were all the victims of the Englishman's firewater and of the novel poor devils who "loved not wisely, but too well." They died of "run grage," and now a colony of Britons is cultivating the soil their foemen remain encircled.—Joseph H. Foster in New York Times.

Farmers and Farm Laborers.

Some very interesting particulars as to the number of Farmers and Farm laborers in the United States, and the number and area of farms are given by the agricultural report of the Washington department of agriculture. At the last census the number of farms reported was 4,000,000, and that of farm laborers 4,250,000, while the laborers numbered 3,225,000. There were fewer men working for hire on the land than on their own account, as the census was taken the population had increased by 20 per cent., and it is estimated that the number of persons now employed in agriculture or in the wives and children of agriculturists, is 4,000,000, 100,000 of whom amount 2,000,000 are hired laborers. Including women and children, two agricultural population is supposed to reach 60,000,000.—Once a Week.

Gone to Quiet Night.

It is getting to quiet night for girls to chew gum at night, and is a most vicious habit. They lose their rest, get them usually peevish jaws and wake up in the morning parched, erect grained, with a yellow complexion, their digestive organs impaired and their body and vitality gone!

The fact that girls who make a habit of chewing gum are so to lose their innocence and pretty looks, as it develops the character muscles just move the jaw, to the detriment of the fatty substance that protects the brain in the bone. But this is not all. It is also to break the mouth, to injure the teeth, posture of the lips, to pollute the atmosphere. It is certainly very disgusting, but I must say, you may say, not the room-making craze—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

The Freight Claim Agent.

To be a successful freight claim agent a man must be thoroughly understand the policy of his railroad and company, must be prompt—able to calculate, present, etc., anything, able to convince others that he does not believe himself an all-around expert, familiar with the grain, live stock, produce, grocery, hardware and dry goods trade, a lawyer, lightning calculator, and able to fill a lot of certificates for him to pay a claim amounting to its original value and have sufficient left to cover freight charges. There are several other things to know, but the ope are the most important.—Chicago Journal.

A New Hash Machine.

The Soldiers' Home at Washington has purchased a new hash machine which has in addition to the usual heating facility of gas-cooked, electric, steam, etc., which work very quickly in a shallow roaster, will also accommodate the hash. But today is too early to say for the day is not mentioned in the building house, fire, and the point of control heat and 30 bushels of potatoes are required to make the hashmeal. The chopping is done on Friday afternoon, and it takes three hours and the above mentioned hashmeal forty-five minutes to take the necessary amount.—Times-Democrat.

A Voyage of the Pavilion.

According to an Englishmen the language of the pavilion is indorsement, handle, to jester, consider; "I dare every day go to the pavilion"; "I would be an ass to enter"; "dropping into the right"; "I brave everything for you"; "but"; "I love you"; "cared in the morning"; "I could beat you"; "had by the front"; "I always gain"; held; "I can"; "I hate you"; leaving the town.—New York Sun.

On the Way to Heaven.

Many railroads are conducting their buildings the pavilion going from town to town, training men, children, etc., instead of running at their stations to receive passengers. This is a bold and enterprising idea, and at the same time it is economical for the railroads.—Chicago News.

The National Flower.

The National Flower of America has a gold medal to the person who should select the most appropriate national flower. Thirty-five entries were received, and the judges decided that the sunflower had made out the best case.—New York Tribune.

What Is a Good Thing? A wise man said if it is bad don't have it.—Vicksburg Commercial Herald.

Important to Subscribers.

A Postmaster is required to give official notice (returning a paper does not satisfy the law) when a subscriber does not take his paper from the office, and states the reason of its not being taken, and a neglect to do so makes the post master responsible to the publisher for the payment.

Any person who takes a paper from the post office, who is directed in his name or that of another, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the pay.

If a person loses his paper accidentally, and cannot pay all account, or the publisher
